I remember an experience as a graduate student in a Hebrew University dorm. At Passover, my Israeli non-Orthodox roommates had as their major concern, planning trips to the Old City to guarantee a fresh supply of bread. Another time, I recited the Kiddush on Friday night in the presence of some young secular Israelis. They looked at me as if I had come from Mars. Since I did not conform to their image of an Orthodox Jew, they could not understand how I knew the Kiddush and why I would bother reciting it. The politicization of religion just keeps that gulf wide.

To all readers, best wishes for a Shanah Tovah U'metukah.

The Kirshner File

Edgar Bronfman: the making of a Jew

Edgar Miles Bronfman, the third child of Sam and Saidye, was born in Montreal into a world of wealth and privilege. But, as he acknowledges in The Making of a Jew (G.P. Putnam's Sons, $32.50), his candid memoir of the evolution of a Jewishly-conscious man, he had less than an idyllic boyhood and he struggled with his Jewish identity.

By Sheldon Kirshner

"I had a confusing and mostly unhappy childhood," concedes Bronfman, president of the World Jewish Congress and chair of the Seagram Company.

Bronfman, you see, was intimidated by his father's "awesome and frightening presence." Samuel Bronfman, founder of a distillery empire which employs 30,000 workers today, was driven, very insecure and had an explosive temper which, his son always feared, could be turned on him.

Samuel's personality, he tells us, was forged on the anvil of anti-Semitism and his unrealized ambition of becoming a Canadian senator.

As a result of their tense relationship, Bronfman built up defences against Samuel's rages, rejecting not only him but Judaism. "As a young man growing up, Judaism...meant little to me."

As he explains in this unpretentious book, Bronfman, who was basically brought up by a nurse, was raised in a secular home which neither welcomed the Sabbath nor observed the Jewish holidays. Yet Bronfman's youthful alienation from Judaism was not only a question of indifference. "I was simply still in rebellion against my father, and I actually went so far as to eat ham at our house in Westmount on Yom Kippur."

Even later, when he was a junior executive at Seagram, Bronfman followed "the path of least resistance," not bothering to join a synagogue or trying to teach his children the rudiments of Jewish traditions.

But not long after his arrival in New York City, Bronfman got involved with the local Jewish federation and in Israeli affairs. His Jewish awareness grew during the 1950s and 1960s, though his religious awakening developed much more slowly.

After his father's death in July 1971, Bronfman embraced a leadership role at the World Jewish Congress (WJC), doing so at the urging of Nahum Goldmann, the WJC's co-founder and one of the most influential figures in his life. A decade later, Bronfman was named president of the WJC.

In this capacity, Bronfman immersed himself in Jewish issues, travelled widely and met a plethora of world leaders.

Due in part to the fact that his parents' respective families hailed from what is now Moldova and Ukraine, he began to focus on Soviet Jewry. The goals of his campaign were three-fold: the release of all Prisoners of Zion, the free emigration of Jews from the Soviet Union and the freedom of Jews to live as Jews, including the right to learn Hebrew.

In attempting to achieve these objectives, Bronfman and his aide, Israel Singer, hewed to a two-track strategy. They created "plenty of noise" and they entered into talks with Moscow.

Bronfman does not claim that the WJC alone changed the status quo in the Soviet Union. "But we were there at the right time, and we were able to show the Soviets what they had to do to be accepted as a civilized nation among civilized nations."

Bronfman's success in Moscow stemmed from two factors. "I was seen not only as a Jewish leader, but as an important business figure: one must remember that the Soviets (and former Soviets) still think that the Jews have undue influence, and that the real rulers in the West are those who run businesses."

Turning to another topic, Bronfman contends that Germany, despite its payment of reparations to Holocaust survivors, still "owes" Jews and Israel.

On the eve of Germany's reunification in 1990, Bronfman delivered a speech in Berlin in which he set out several points: Jews will never forget the Holocaust, nor should Germans; the German government must protect all minorities; Germany must have a special relationship with Israel; Germany must never become a nuclear power.

The speech, he writes, was well received but did not make Chancellor Helmut Kohl "deliriously happy."

Bronfman devotes a chapter to the Kurt Waldheim affair, which, he reveals, the WJC initiated so as to revive the fading memory of the Holocaust. He describes Waldheim, who tried to conceal his Nazi past, as "a despicable liar." And, perhaps unjustly, he claims that Austria "is still the head office for anti-Semitism..."

In reading the rest of The Making of a Jew, which Bronfman composed in longhand over a 10-year period, I was struck by a number of his observations.

He implicitly takes credit for having convinced Poland to re-establish diplomatic relations with Israel in the early 1980s. The Poles were convinced that better ties with the United States went through Israel.

He had an "up-and-down" relationship with Menachem Begin, and he strongly disagreed with Yitzhak Shamir's settlement policy. He financially supported Yitzhak Rabin in the 1992 election, being convinced that his plans for peace "were strategically perfect." He calls George Bush one of "the best foreign friends Israel ever had."

Bronfman wants peace for Israel, but not at any price. He notes that there is still a disagreement about what constitutes "defensible borders" for Israel, and pledges that he will never use "gift dollars" as leverage to affect its security.

Taking issue with Benjamin Netanyahu's views, Bronfman believes that "one of the best things that could happen to Israel is to have a democratic Palestinian state on its border."

Israel, he adds, can neither return to the intifadah nor annex the West Bank and convert itself into a binational state.

As for the status of the Golan Heights, he believes it should not be returned to Syria without ironclad security assurances.

In concluding, Bronfman maintains that the battle against anti-Semitism must be fought on two levels. First, it must be exposed, and second, Jews must take pride in their Jewishness. "This means, essentially, that Jews must have a better Jewish education."

Without it, he feels, the Jewish community faces a process of attrition, or, as he puts it, is liable to "slip down the slippery slope to a silent and painless Holocaust."

Bronfman, given the path two of his seven children have chosen, has more than a passing acquaintance with assimilation.

Sam, his oldest son, married an Episcopalian who was devoted to her faith. Sam adopted her religion, and before she died of cancer in 1991, she made him promise to bring up their kids as Christians. "He will honor that vow," Bronfman reports.

Edgar Jr., in his second marriage, wed a Venezuelan Catholic in a ceremony presided over by a rabbi and a priest.

In light of these developments, it is not surprising that Bronfman has called upon Jews to rededicate themselves to their Jewishness. "Let us go to work," he writes," for there is much to be done."

Adults Only
65 and Over
(Youngsters 64 and under must be accompanied by an adult)

UPCOMING EVENTS FOR SENIORS

Forest Hill Place
645 Castlefield Ave., Toronto

"Wishing all our friends in the Jewish Community a Healthy and Happy New Year"

'The Development of the Impressionist Era'
With Art Historian, Paul Pergal.
Thursday, October 23 - 2pm

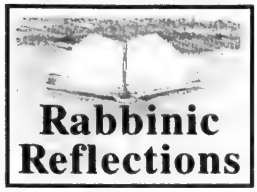
'Lorenz Hart ~ A Poet on Broadway'
With Musical Historian, Gordon Bean.
Thursday, October 30 - 2pm

Call Marlene or Karen at (416) 785-1511 to reserve your place

LIFESTYLE
Retirement Communities
A Subsidiary of London Life

Ask about our other locations in Mississauga, North York, Burlington and Oakville.

Moses' eternal message



By RABBI JOSEPH KELMAN

In the period preceding the High Holy Days, we read the Book of Devarim in which Moshe Rabenu gave his last discourses to the People of Israel. His words have a ringing message even today.

Every year before the High Holy Days, we read the portion Nitzavim and many years, like this one, Vayelach. As we read Chapter 13, Verses 7-14, it seems as if Moshe could foresee the attitude of many Jewish people in the early 20th century who tried to rationalize not being as observant as they were in eastern Europe. One excuse was "es is schver tzu zein a Yid" — "It is hard to be a Jew."

Moshe's message answers this rationalization by saying that the mitzvot in the Torah are not too hard nor were they intended to be practised only in some far distant land. It was as if Moshe understood that some North American Jews would suggest that Judaism was more relevant across the sea in Europe or in Israel.

Moshe suggests in Chapter 13, Verse 14, that keeping the Torah is very possible for all and must be done in three stages "with your mouth, with your heart and then put it into practice." The message to us is very clear. We must use our lips for prayers, for blessings and the study of Torah.

This can be strengthened when our hearts are attuned and inspire us emotionally and intellectually to fulfil the third suggestion, "la-asoto," to do the mitzvot.

Hopefully, on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, our hearts will inspire us to greater observance. Jewish adults in the 20th century have acquired a great deal of secular education. Regrettably, they do not have a similar knowledge or background when it comes to the law, customs and rituals of Judaism. Many such educated Jews have not realized that the rituals and laws which are Divine commandments also have ethical and moral values to them. Our observance of them helps bring us closer to G-d. With proper understanding they also make us more sensitive human beings.

Rabbi Kelman is rabbi emeritus of Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Synagogue.

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

Recommended sites for Rosh Hashanah surfing

Today, I complete my month-long look at some of the best sites on the Jewish Highway. And just in time for the High Holy Days, here are some recommendations of the best sites set up by the major Jewish religious movements.

The best starting point for the United Synagogue of Conservative Judaism is at [http://uscj.org/uscj01.html]. There, you'll find links to the Jewish Theological Seminary [http://www.jtsa. edu/], the Masorti movement in Israel [http://www.masorti.org/] and the ECRUSY Canada youth movement [http://uscj.org/usy/ index0.html].

The Home Page for the Union of American Hebrew Congregations can be found at [http://www.shamash.org/reform/uahc/]. For more on Reform Judaism, don't miss Kolel On-line: A Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning [http://www.cherniak.on.ca/kolel/]. And for a place to go and exchange points of view, visit the Liberal Judaism Mailing List Index [http://www.compclass.com/mlj/].

The Jewish Reconstructionist Federation has its home page at [http://shamash.org/jrf/]. Congregation Agudas Achim of Attleboro, Mass., has a very good Web site that illustrates Reconstructionist Judaism in practice at [http://shamash.org/jrf/agudasma/].

The Orthodox Union's (OU) Cyber Home of Torah [http://www.ou.org/] has links to its audio visual Beit Hamidrash in addition to information about the OU's kashrut service. Project Genesis: Torah on the Information Superhighway [http://www.torah.org/] operates numerous classes and Jewish e-mail lists at a variety of levels.

Also well worth a look is Chabad-Lubavitch in Cyberspace [http:// www.chabad.org]. In addition to sections on Torah and the festivals, you'll also find background on Chassidism and on the Mashiach.

Here are a couple of recommended sites for Rosh Hashanah surfing. For a comprehensive summary of the traditions of the Days of Awe, check out Virtual Jerusalem [http://www.virtual.co.il/city_services/holidays/rosh/index.htm]. You'll find everything there, from essays on prayer and holiday recipes to games for kids. For a page with many more New Years' links, go to Maven [http://www.maven.co.il/subjects/idx122.htm].

Most of the "best of" sites that I have looked at are the product of non-profit organizations or for profit companies. But some of the best work on the Jewish Highway is done by individuals with a message to share. I highly recommend the work of Calgary's Eliezer Segal [http://www.ucalgary.ca/~elsegal/Shokel/Art_Index.html] (with his Rosh Hashanah essays at [http://www.ucalgary.ca/~elsegal/Shokel/Calendar_Index.html#RH].) This is a wonderful site with over 150 articles on a wide variety of subjects, each with a bit of heritage, Halachah or humor that will both surprise and educate. Not the kind of stuff I learned in day school.

If I have skipped your favorite Jewish or Israeli site, I want to know about it. E-mail me the Web site's name and address, and a short explanation of why you like to surf there. I have no prizes to offer except for a bit of fame. If I use your selection in a future column, I'll credit you for your suggestion.

Well that's it for the Jewish Highway for 5757. But before I go, I would like to wish you and your family a Shanah tovah u'metuka, a good and sweet New Year.

* * *

Mark Mietkiewicz is a television producer in Toronto with an interest in the Internet. He can be reached at [mdm@inforamp.net].

STEELES
MEMORIAL CHAPEL

Toronto's Jewish Community Chapel

70 years of traditional service to the Jewish families of Toronto

SEVEN DECADES OF COMMUNITY SERVICE

At Steeles Memorial Chapel our greatest good fortune is the ability to perform innovative charitable work and unceasing service and support to the Jewish community of Greater Toronto. It is an honour to reach out and give back to our community through charity. The following organizations have been beneficiaries of donations from Steeles Memorial Chapel ...

Eitz Chaim School
Canadian Diabetes Association
Bialik Hebrew Day School
North York Branson Hospital
Delicrest Children's Centre
Ezra Kadima
Princess Margaret Hospital
North York General Hospital
Ner Israel Yeshiva
Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis
Or Haemet Sephardic School
Canadian Society For Yad Vashem
Ulpanot Orot
United Jewish Appeal
Hospital For Sick Children
Beth Jacob High School
Or Chaim Kollel
Jewish Russian Community Centre
Bobover Yeshiva
AIDS Committee of Toronto
Associated Hebrew Schools
Yeshiva Reishis Jerusalem
Leonard Mayzel Ontario Lodge, BB
Zareinu Education Centre
Board of Jewish Education
Eastern Children's Society
Ivansker Mutual Benefit
Hebrew Friendly Sons
Leo Baeck Day School
Cummer Lodge
Mizrachi Organization
Dr. Ronald Feld Fund
Ezrath Nashim Hospital
C.N.I.B.
Canadian Jewish Congress
Na'amat
Aid To Disabled Veterans
Aish HaTorah
Canadian Friends of Michlalah
Emunah Women
Jewish Public Library
Mazon Canada
Nitzan
Star Fresh Air Fund
Tel Aviv University
United Synagogue Day Schools
Mirrer Yeshiva
Tiferet Shloma
Har Tikvah Synagogue
Zion Orphanage
Heart and Stroke Foundation
Kidney Foundation
Bikur Cholim
Canadian Cancer Society
Toronto Grace Hospital
Hesder Yeshiva
Salvation Army
Multiple Sclerosis Society
Netivot Hatorah Day School
Kielcer Congregation
Mt. Sinai Hospital
Canadian ORT
The Toronto Hospital
St. John's Hospital
Yeshiva Maulat
Dr. Abraham Shore Academy, She'arim Hebrew Day School
Camp Moshava
York Finch Hospital
Jewish National Fund
B'nei Akiva
B'nai Brith Canada
Agudath Israel Camp
Yeshiva Brisk
Minyan Sepharad Congregation
Beth Halachim
York Central Hospital
Moriah Congregation
B'nai Zion Charitable Fund
Chabad Lubavitch
Zim Orphanage
Baycrest Hospital
Kolel Avreichem
Israel Cancer Research Fund
Canadian Foundation for Masorti Judaism
Muscular Dystrophy Association
Canadian Red Magen David
M.T.A. For Community Living
Arthritis Society
Jerusalem College For Women
Israel College Tech. For Women
Leukemia Organization
Mental Health Association
Reena Foundation
Sunshine Fund
Torah Research Academy
Yeshiva Nachlas Zvi
Wellesley Hospital
United Way
Yeshiva of Hamilton
Canadian Friends of Mechullah College for Women
Canadian Jewish Congress, Committee for Yiddish Culture
United Synagogue Day School
Yeshiva Har Brucha
Sunnybrook Hospital
Cantorial Endowment Fund
Stroke Recovery
Canadian Friends of Yeshiva University
Yeshiva Brink
Institute of Sephardic Educational Centre

350 Steeles Avenue West, Thornhill, Ont. L4J 1A1 • Telephone: (905) 881-6003 • (416) 733-2000

Best wishes for a year filled with good health, happiness and peace from

The Board of Directors, Management & Staff

לשנה טובה תכתבו

THE ART SHOPPE WISHES YOU A YEAR OF HEALTH HAPPINESS AND PEACE

THE ART SHOPPE
A PART OF THE COMMUNITY FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS

the Art Shoppe

FURNITURE WITHOUT EQUAL, TORONTO

On Rosh Hashanah we're judged for our deeds

By RACHAEL TURKIENICZ

Rosh Hashanah has arrived and we once again believe that humanity is judged and our fate is soon to be sealed on Yom Kippur.

The very first Rosh Hashanah occurred on the sixth day of creation when the first man and woman came into being. Humanity began on that day, sinned on that day, was judged and punished on that day, and death entered the world on that day. It became our destiny as a species that we should be evaluated on that same day every year.

This is recorded in the first chapter of the book of Genesis, but on the Sabbath following Rosh Hashanah, we are still finishing the book of Deuteronomy. We read Moses' last words when he knows that his fate for the coming year has been sealed: he knows he will soon die.

Moses calls upon heaven and earth to listen to his last words and the midrash explains that he is commissioning them as witnesses. The juxtaposition of the beginning and the end of the Torah standing side by side is very telling.

In Genesis, the man and the woman are in direct contact with G-d. They sin by disobeying the one commandment given them and neither one willingly accepts responsibility. The man blames the woman and the woman blames the snake. In their attempt to be godlike or to ascend to heaven, they have eaten the forbidden fruit that was grown in the earth. When they hear G-d in the garden, they try to hide, unable to admit even to themselves that they have sinned.

Their crime is complex because they have involved both heaven and earth as unwitting accomplices and they refuse to atone for their actions. Although they are individually punished, the world as a whole suffers the consequences, for death enters the world at that point.

The lesson to be learned is more than one of obedience – it is one of responsibility. The man and the woman did not see themselves as connected to the world around them. They did not perceive that their actions could have universal repercussions.

The last part of Deuteronomy addresses that lesson. Moses evokes heaven and earth as eternal witnesses for humanity. They are now responsible for observing our treatment of them and we must be aware that they will hold us accountable; they are not passive, they will react.

From that time on, we cannot presume to think that our actions will stand in isolation. Every deed has echoes and ripples that affect the world we live in and the world we live on. No one can back away from his or her responsibilities, for even if one is estranged from G-d, the heaven and earth are always present, always watching.

On every Rosh Hashanah we stand to be judged for our deeds, as did the very first man and woman and all those who have come after. As we approach our fate on Yom Kippur, only our actions and our intentions will decide what heaven and earth will say.

A TRADITION OF CARING
AT PINE VILLA RETIREMENT RESIDENCE

Welcome to Pine Villa, conveniently located, in the heart of Toronto's Jewish community. With a wide variety of services and amenities included, Pine Villa is designed to enhance your quality of life. At Pine Villa, you can be assured of personal care in a warm and gracious environment.

Enjoy private accommodation and amenities which include:

- 24 hour professional health care
- Fine Jewish dining
- Linen, housekeeping & laundry
- Daily activities with companions who share a common heritage
- Proximity to synagogues & amenities
- Friendly, caring, attentive staff

Pine Villa offers Jewish Retirement Living amidst gracious surroundings

Best wishes for a year of peace, health and happiness to our relatives & friends and the People of Israel.

PINE VILLA

1035 Eglinton Avenue West
(416)787-5626

Member of the Ontario Residential Care Association ORCA

A time for reflection

By DR. ELLIOTT MALAMET

Rosh Hashanah, Day of Judgment, Book of Life and Death, flocks of sheep passing before the Creator. But the kids are saying, "Do we really have to go to synagogue? To sit for hours and be bored? To watch the parade of new fashions? To mumble prayers that we don't understand? What for?"

The parent responds, "You have to go to shul. That's what all Jews do on Rosh Hashanah. It's our tradition."

On the surface there seems to be some logic to this response, the attempt to convey Jewish pride. But there's also a definite backlash factor in responding to children in a blatantly ethnocentric way, the locker room aura of putting on our uniforms and ascending to the Jewish playing fields one more time.

What happens when our children reject this tautological view of the world that says you do Jewish things because that's what Jews do? After all, we didn't tell the children why it was beneficial and essential for them to go to synagogue. We told them this is what we do in our family and in our community, and we relied on this alchemical mixture of group attachment and historical loyalty to produce gold.

Let's try a second option. The parent says, "I'm your parent and if I say you've got to shul today, you go." Admittedly the tactic of coercion causes blushing in many a post-modern Jewish household, but versions of it still resound for at least three days a year.

This approach also conveys an ostensible logic, which is that parents must establish themselves as authority figures who don't necessarily have to enter into detailed discussions with their children, especially the younger ones, about the reasons behind every obligation thrust upon them.

But if this is the exclusive rationale of the day – "We're going to shul and that's that" – then what the children learn is that power wins out. As they grow older, they often resent prayer precisely because it is a symbol of the old family power struggles. Even if the child does listen, his or her attitude will be to associate shul with a guilt feeling rather than any desire to worship.

Over the long term, that is spiritual suicide. And so Rosh Hashanah has become the Jewish family's odd little poker game, parents dutifully betting on the hand of tradition and children calling the bluff of relevance. Or if one prefers a less ennobled version of children as truth seekers, we might paraphrase the quintessential term of current teenage detachment: "Rosh Hashanah? Whatever."

The culture of "whatever" seeks to blur all distinctions by rewriting reality as a kind of fool's quest, hardly worthy of too much emotion, let alone intense existential striving. If a child grows up believing that everything's the same, then Chanukah becomes Christmas, Purim becomes Halloween.

But Judaism is different. While the first of January annually inspires a giant, fairly mindless party, Rosh Hashanah is a period of intense self-reflection in which we are commanded in Jewish law to reflect on our behavior and seek out ways to mend our relations with other people.

But most of all it is a time to consider our relationship with God. My experience with many teenagers is that, beneath their well-rehearsed disengagement, they have some very strong feelings about God, either the God they believe in or the God they claim is an illusion.

This Rosh Hashanah, pay attention to what your family talks about when it talks about God. According to our tradition, God will do likewise.

Greater Toronto Area

Terrorism's impact on Israeli policy increasing: prof.

By BARBARA SILVERSTEIN
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — Terrorism has become more difficult for Israel to control and it is having greater impact on Israeli national policy, an expert on Middle East strategical policy told an audience at Tel Aviv University's (TAU) recent North American conference.

According to Shai Feldman, who in November will head up the Jaffe Centre of Strategic Studies which is run by TAU, terrorism has gained increasing influence on political policy since Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's death in 1995.

"The assassination of Rabin and the wave of suicide bombings in February and March of 1996 affected the result of the political election [in May 1996] and changed the course of politics in a strategic dimension."

Feldman noted that when terrorism was limited to the political arena, Israel could utilize tactical deterrents to control the terrorists and as a consequence political policy was not affected.

However, he stressed that the tactics to combat politically motivated terrorism cannot be applied to the religious terrorism prevalent today. There are few deterrents for religious fanatics willing to sacrifice their lives in the firm belief that they will have a better life in the hereafter.

He said this problem is further exacerbated by the fact that Israel has relinquished control over the major Palestinian population centres in the West bank and Gaza.

Religiously motivated terrorism also affected Israeli policy in Lebanon, which Feldman described as "the last remaining battle ground in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

He said that while the strategic policy in Lebanon has to be evaluated because of the heavy toll on soldiers' lives, it is not easy to find a viable alternative. If Israel withdraws from South Lebanon, the northern Israeli settlements may be more vulnerable to the Hezbolla attacks. He explained that such a scenario would lead Israel to launch more offensive attacks which could ultimately cause more military casualties.

Feldman also addressed the issue of mega-terrorism, which he said could conceivably threaten western societies. "There is a need to think the unthinkable" if terrorists decide "to use weapons of mass destruction as the preferred choice of combat." The west is also vulnerable to cyber-destructive attacks on its computer networks, he added.

Feldman spoke of other issues of strategic concern: the peace treaty with Egypt does not enjoy popular support in Egypt and security on Israel's northern border is threatened by the fully mobilized Syrian army.

He also said there was growing concern about the proliferation of ballistic weapons in Iran and Iraq and, in the wake of the fall of the Soviet Union — the availability of these weapons from Russia, North Korea, and China, countries starved for foreign currency.

Despite these challenges Feldman said that Israel is enjoying more stability than any time in its history.

He attributed the improvement in security to Israel's peace treaties with Egypt and Jordan and its strategic alliances with Turkey and the United States, as well as to the decline in the once powerful alliance between Russia and radical Arab countries such as Syria and Libya.

Israeli police are seen last month in Jerusalem on high alert against the possibility of yet another terrorist incident. [RNS/Reuters]

KEN KIRSH, a well-known Toronto lawyer and executive vice-president of Gamma-Dynacare Medical Laboratories, is a staunch supporter of Reena. Ken will soon face a great challenge. On October 19th, he will participate in the 1997 Canadian International Marathon.

You can help ...

Ken is trying to make a difference. You can help him support Reena by sponsoring his run.

To make your pledge (tax deductable) call Reena's donation office at:

(416) 787-0131

or mail directly to:

Reena
Toby and Henry Battle Developmental Centre
927 Clark Avenue West, Thornhill, ON L4J 8G6

REENA

Towards a better future ... integrating people with developmental handicaps into the community.

Status Financial Inc.
AIC, Dynamic, Mackenzie, Trimark, Templeton . . .
1-888-PAY-NO-LOAD
Mutual Funds. No Commissions.
Call For Your Free Information Kit Today!
www.pay-no-load.com GTA call 416-679-1229

Funding IN ACTION

UJA FEDERATION

Romanian born Irina and Raz Rapaport have brought a fresh and whimsical presence to the simple concept of jigsaw puzzles. Woodenzoo, the Rapaport's successful company, designs and creates freestanding 3D sculptures. Their dream of owning a business would never have gotten off the ground if they hadn't received their first loan from the Toronto Jewish Free Loan Cassa, a UJA Federation beneficiary agency.

WHO 'WOOD' HAVE THOUGHT

The couple's unique concept came to them in 1992 on a trip to the mall. "We were looking for a gift for a child, and we bought something similar to the puzzle," says Irina. "I said to myself, I could make this and do it more creatively."

With their degrees in architecture and fertile imaginations, Irina and Raz began experimenting. Once they had their initial blueprint, the Rapaports headed to the Toronto Jewish Free Loan Cassa with a business plan in one arm and samples of their creative talents in the other. "As it happened, we were already guaranteeing a loan for friends through the Cassa. So we had to wait until they had finished their payments before we could get ours," says Irina.

"The agency provides a place for people who, in many cases would not be able to receive a conventional loan," says Loan Cassa office manager Helen Futerman. "If someone has a valid business proposal that we feel deserves acknowledgment, we will provide them with the funds to get them started."

LENDING A HAND

Once the Rapaports were approved, there was no turning back. "We got our loan at a very critical time," says Raz. "The Loan Cassa was there when we needed them. The money enabled us to accelerate the process of creating and selling. Because the work is so intensive, and each detail so intricate, it is a slow process to produce even one puzzle. It's a true labour of love."

In any given year, the agency will grant 120-150 business loans approved by a committee of volunteers, many of whom have received loans themselves. The Toronto Jewish Free Loan Cassa - it's just another example of UJA Federation Funding in Action.

Yediday Shabbat expands with High Holiday services

By CINDY WAXER
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — In keeping with the Jewish community's increasingly diverse needs, Yediday Shabbat has recently grown to include services which combine religious traditions with modern beliefs for this year's High Holy Days.

Founded in 1994 by Allan Shiff and his wife Helaine, Yediday Shabbat has 12 members, who meet once a month on Friday evenings to participate in traditional Shabbat services. They discuss the week's Torah portion, sing Shabbat melodies, light the candles, recite the Kiddush over the wine and say the Hamotzi over the challah. The evening is generally led by Eli Rubenstein, spiritual leader of the Habonim Congregation.

But unlike most Shabbat services, Yediday Shabbat's program takes a modern and humanistic approach. Although the evening's activities are based upon the readings of the Torah, members are encouraged to examine the material in the context of contemporary life.

"I don't see how you can separate humanism from Judaism, because I think to be Jewish is to be humanist," says Gerry Malis, a longtime member of Yediday Shabbat.

A diverse group comprised of theists, agnostics and atheists with varying religious backgrounds, Yediday Shabbat's unique combination inevitably leads to stimulating debates on how the laws and ideals expressed in the Torah can be applied to the moral dilemmas presented by the 20th century.

Yediday Shabbat recently received a grant from the Action Committee for Jewish Continuity on behalf of UJA Federation and is planning to hold its first-ever High Holy Day services.

"We decided that the best use of the funds would be to put together a High Holiday program in line with our Shabbat activities," says Shiff.

The services to be held at Lifestyles – Forest Hill Place will be led by Justin Lewis, a rabbinic student currently enrolled at the University of Toronto. His wife, Jane Enkin, will be the cantor. All services will feature Hebrew readings from the Torah, the singing of traditional prayers and non-gendered English translations.

In addition, Yediday Shabbat has designed its own machzor to accommodate the diverse needs of the 70 people expected to attend services. The group borrowed from various texts, with the result that the machzor is a collection of hand-picked excerpts from Reconstructionist, Reform and Conservative reading materials, as well as from the B'nai Brith prayer book entitled, On The Wings of Awe.

"We hope [our machzor] will be revised and added to over the years, but perhaps this is the creation of another document that fulfils a need in the community," says Shiff.

It's a contemporary approach to the High Holy Days. Although the group enables congregants to participate in traditional religious practices, such as reading the Jewish texts, members are permitted to regard the Torah as an examination of interpersonal relationships. And the recitation of Jewish prayers is viewed as a means to connect with one's Jewish roots rather than as a verbal proclamation of a belief in G-d.

"We generally use prayers as a symbol, as a connection with Jewish people around the world today and as a connection with the past," says Shiff.

Yet despite its unique combination of Judaic rituals and contemporary thought, Shiff says Yediday Shabbat is committed to fostering an approach to religion and culture that values its members' individual spiritual needs and diverse intellectual viewpoints. And Yediday Shabbat hopes this outlook will rekindle its participants' interest in Judaic practices, both traditional and contemporary.

For more information, call Allan or Helaine Shiff at 416-488-0688.

Lecture series set

TORONTO — Ohr Somayach of Greater Toronto invites the public to attend the series Four Nights That Could Change Your Life! on four consecutive evenings between Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. Scholar/lecturers Rabbi Eliezer Breitowitz, dean of Ohr Somayach Toronto, and Rabbi Mordechai Becher, senior lecturer at Ohr Somayach Jerusalem, will discuss Personal Relationships on Oct. 6, Shabbat on Oct. 7, Prayer on Oct. 8 and Tzedakah on Oct. 9.

All sessions begin at 8:30 p.m. at Ohr Somayach Thornhill, 613 Clark Ave. W. Admission $5 per evening.

Israeli journalist in Toronto hospital

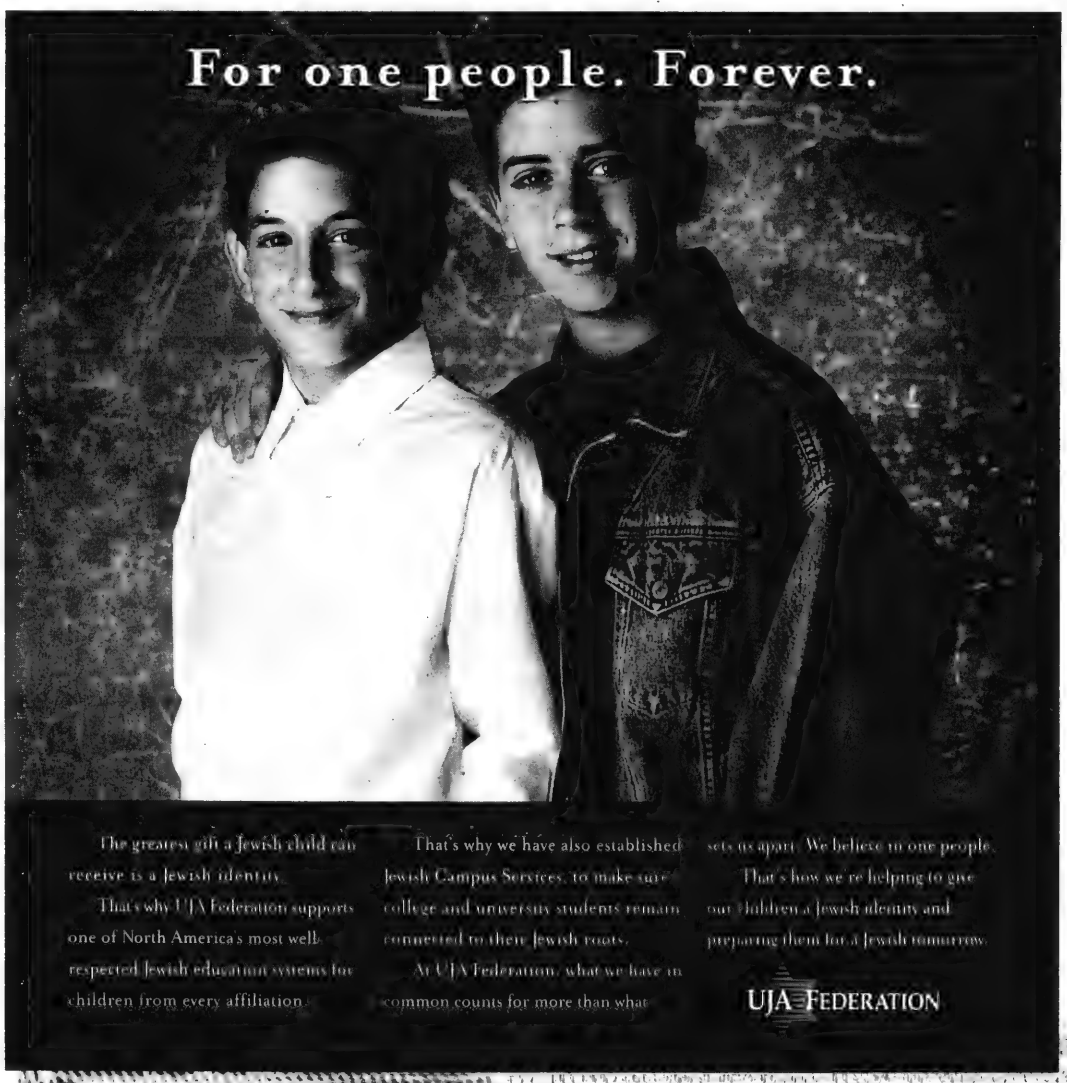
TORONTO — One of Israel's leading television journalists was listed in good condition in a Toronto hospital following heart surgery last week.

Aharon Barnea, 53, a reporter and one-time anchorman for Israel's Channel 2, underwent a triple angioplasty at Sunnybrook Hospital. He was in Toronto on a speaking tour for United Jewish Appeal.

Barnea will spend a few weeks in Toronto recuperating before returning to Israel.

Barnea is a former chief advisor to Israeli President Ezer Weizman and tallies a long career in journalism, including stints at Israel Radio News, the Israel Broadcasting Authority and Hadashot, a newspaper.

He's now head of the Middle East Affairs desk and is a correspondent for Channel 2.



For one people. Forever.
The greatest gift a Jewish child can receive is a Jewish identity.
That's why UJA Federation supports one of North America's most well-respected Jewish education systems for children from every affiliation.
That's why we have also established Jewish Campus Services, to make sure college and university students remain connected to their Jewish roots.
At UJA Federation, what we have in common counts for more than what sets us apart. We believe in one people.
That's how we're helping to give our children a Jewish identity and preparing them for a Jewish tomorrow.
UJA FEDERATION

SUPPLY TEACHERS needed
Temple Sinai School
Hebrew Department
Sun., a.m./Wed. p.m. also
TEACHERS for Religious Department
Sunday a.m.
Fax resume, 487-5499
or call 487-3281
to be listed for immediate interview

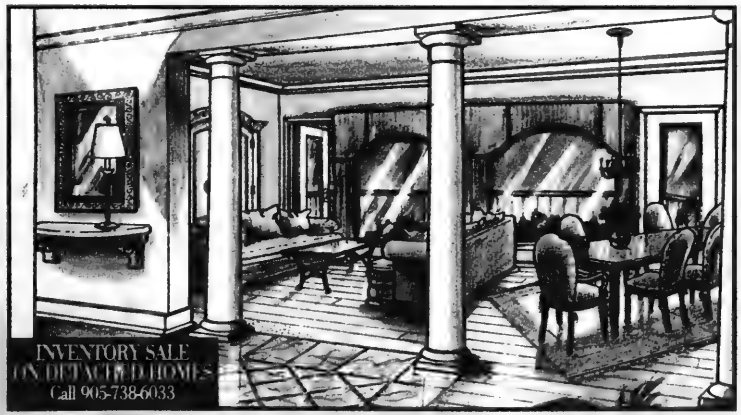
Greater Toronto Area

Celebrating Jerusalem Day — by Mimi Fliess

A DISTINGUISHED RESIDENCE INSPIRED BY EUROPEAN ELEGANCE.



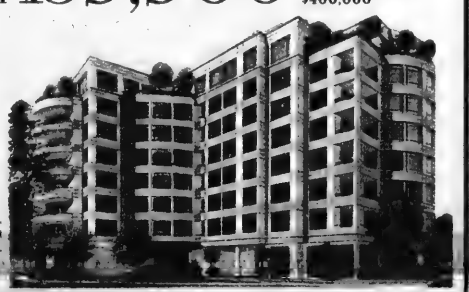
AT "BEFORE-WE-BUILD" PRICES!

There is no other place quite like The Cordoba. A unique condominium residence, where every design is an original and every interior is rich with architectural details that celebrate classical elegance. A place where rooms have been transformed into stunning spaces and every unit is complemented by a long list of luxury upgraded features you won't find in any other residence in Toronto:

The CORDOBA

FROM $189,900 TO JUST OVER $400,000

- Beautiful hardwood floors!
- Stunning marble foyers!
- Glass enclosed gas fireplaces!
- Upgraded cabinetry!
- Classical columns!
- 9 ft. ceilings!
- Unique balcony retreats!
- Cornice mouldings!
- 5 upgraded appliances!
- Lighting package including pot lighting!



NOW REPRESENTED BY

CALL 416-441-2888

Lakeview

*Illustrations are artist's concept. Prices & information correct at press time. E. & O.E.

SALES OFFICE HOURS: Mon. - Wed. 2 p.m. - 8 p.m., Sat. & Sun. 12 noon - 5 p.m. Closed Thurs. & Fri.

Community Matters

HEROINES TELL HARROWING TALES

In fictional novels, a hero is the central character who has displayed in one way or another, remarkable courage, strength or bravery. But real life is often more dramatic than fiction, as Yardena Fanta and Sarah Pachanec recently explained to participants at the UJA Federation Women's Campaign Lion of Judah/Atarah luncheon in the home of Yetta and Zoltan Freeman.

Yardena, now 26, was 12 years old when the Fanta family left their Ethiopian village of Gondar and walked for 30 days across the desert to Sudan on their way to a better life in Israel. "The journey was very difficult," recalled Yardena. "We traveled only at night because we had to hide during the day. In one hand I had water, in the other was food, and I carried my little sister on my back."

Yardena's grandmother, who died last month at the age of 112, made her way on horseback.

When they finally reached Sudan, Yardena and her family lived in a refugee camp for nearly one month.

After what seemed like an eternity, the family was finally able to board a plane for Israel. There, Yardena was sent to a youth aliyah village, funded by the UJA Federation sponsored Jewish Agency. "My father kissed the ground when we landed. It was very moving for all of us."

Today, Yardena is studying for her Masters Degree in Educational Counseling at Tel Aviv University. She is also working as a counselor and workshop moderator on behalf of new Ethiopian immigrants.

February 1994 was when Sarah Pachanec arrived in Israel, but her incredible story began long before she was born. Some 50 years ago, during the Second World War, Sarah's family saved the lives of many Jews living in Yugoslavia.

(left to right) Yetta Freeman, Shira Ozery, Yardena Fanta, Sarah Pachanec, Agi Mandel, Chair of UJA Federation's Women's Campaign. Photo by Stephen Epstein

In 1994, when war broke out in Sarajevo, Sarah, her husband Branmir, and daughter Stella had a decision to make. "The country was under siege. We wanted to leave, but we needed help," remembered Sarah.

For months, the Pachanecs went into hiding, but Sarah always knew that her mother's kindness would save the family. "I knew that somehow my mother would be able to get our family out of the country. She implored the Jewish Agency for help."

Just as Sarah thought, her mother's incredible deed from 50 years ago had not been forgotten. The people whom she helped so many years before rescued them from the rubble of Sarajevo. "It didn't matter that we weren't Jewish," explained Sarah. "We were told there's a place for everyone in Israel."

Once the Pachanecs arrived in Israel the only thing left to do "was to become part of the Jewish people," said Sarah. "We converted to Judaism, had a traditional Jewish wedding, and now we live as Jews."

"Today we heard remarkable stories from courageous women who embody the true definition of strength," Women's Campaign Chair Agi Mandel told Lion of Judah and Atarah members.

This year's Lion of Judah Chairs are Fran Sonshine, Carole Grafstein and Janice Langer. The Campaign '98 Atarah Chairs are Marilyn Gold, Jill Reitman and Maryka Weisz.

Conversion Creates Commitment

Although Elaine Kehoe formally adopted the Jewish faith more than 17 years ago, her growing involvement with the Jewish community through UJA Federation and her synagogue, have made her Jewishness more complete.

Kehoe, who has worked as a law clerk for 21 years, moved from Nova Scotia to Toronto 22 years ago, led by the promise of greater opportunity. Once she became employed, Kehoe, who had given up her Roman Catholic religion long before, began to search for something to fill a growing spiritual void. "Something was missing from my life."

"I immediately sought out Judaism because of its emphasis on community and family values," explains Kehoe, who, following much soul searching, eventually converted to Judaism.

"It's never easy changing religion, but for some reason I always felt comfortable," she recalls.

Elaine Kehoe and Lewis Baker in Jerusalem on UJA Federation's Prime Ministers Mission.

Five years later, Elaine married Lewis Baker and continued to become more involved with Holy Blossom through its many volunteer programs. But Kehoe admits at times she felt like "an outsider looking in," an emotion which was further deepened by controversial conversion legislation introduced last spring in Israel.

"It wasn't until I went to Israel on a UJA Federation mission and saw with my own eyes all the work being done that I began to feel a part of something special," explains Kehoe. "Seeing how Israel takes such good care of its own people made me feel less of an outsider and more in touch with what it really means to be Jewish."

"What I saw touched me so deeply," adds Kehoe, "that when I came home I increased my UJA Federation gift without even being asked."

"Supporting UJA Federation is important if you really want to share what community is all about."

Campaign Barometer '98

- Over $24 million raised to date
- More than 18,000 donors have given a gift for the 1998 campaign
- Just over 9,000 contributors remain to be contacted
- UJA Federation raised $35.5 million last year

DIPLOMAT HASN'T GIVEN UP ON ASSAD

Syrian president Hafez Assad still wants to negotiate the fate of the Golan Heights with Israel, according to a top Israeli diplomat, recently in Toronto on a UJA Federation speaking tour.

Uri Lubrani

"Assad is interested in getting something started," said Uri Lubrani, Israel's chief negotiator with Lebanon. However, Lubrani questions Assad's strategy of using Hizbulla attacks against Israel in Lebanon as a negotiating tool for the Golan. "The Syrians believe that by pressing us on the Lebanese front, they will get advantages on the Syrian-Israeli track," observed Lubrani. "They are mistaken."

Lubrani also thinks Syria's leader has a lot to learn about the consensus required for major political or diplomatic decisions in Israel and the United States. "Assad has his own way of assessing Israeli susceptibilities," said Lubrani. "He doesn't understand our political system or the American system."

Despite terrorist attacks in Israel and the resulting diplomatic setbacks, Lubrani sees the peace process as "irreversible, because there is no other solution," and he doesn't want peace tied to an artificial timetable.

"If we cannot do it this year, we will have to do it next year," he stressed. "We will have to have enough patience, perseverance and wisdom to negotiate something that is viable."

But, for Lubrani, there's also a prerequisite. "There is no possibility of any progress," he said, "without being convinced that Arafat can deal with terror."

Lubrani has served every prime minister since Israel became a state in 1948. His career achievements include arranging for and supervising the massive rescue of Ethiopian Jews.

Feeling Rosh Hashana

Shimon Malka, who has been deaf since birth, will not hear the Shofar this Rosh Hashana. But thanks to a unique Judaic studies program funded by the UJA Federation supported Jewish Agency, he will feel the vibrations of the Shofar for the first time this year.

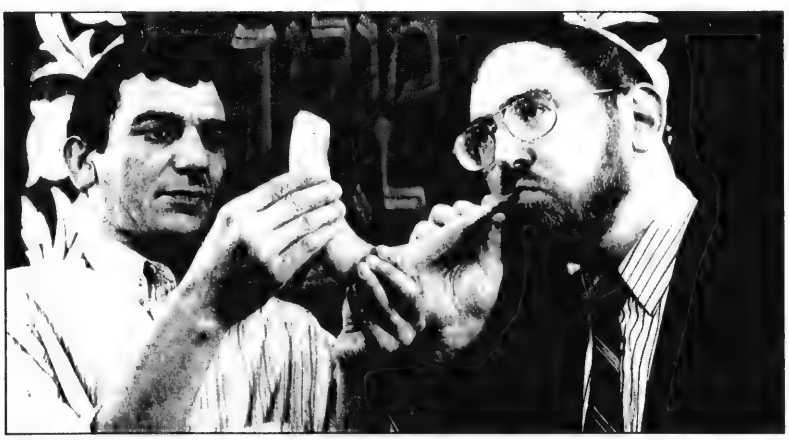
The program, run by the Yeshiva University Alumni Association in Jerusalem and Rehovot, is designed to teach the deaf about their Jewish heritage, putting them in touch with their Jewish identity.

"We found there was no real vocabulary when it came to Judaism for the deaf and we wanted to make a significant contribution of caring," organizers explain.

For Malka's family, the High Holiday season this year will be a time for reflection. Residents of Bet Shemesh, Malka, and his wife, who is also blind, lost a daughter in the tragic incident at Naharayim earlier this year, when seven teenage girls were shot and killed by a Jordanian soldier.

"She was her father and mother's link to the world," says Rabbi Chanoch Yeres, the program's group leader in Jerusalem.

Another significant aspect of the program is the training of rabbis and teachers to conduct religious services for the hard of hearing. "We employ sign language to enable the handicapped to pray and to recite kiddush," says Michael Strik, director of Yeshiva University in Jerusalem. Now the vibrations of the Shofar have been added to this repertoire.



Shimon Malka (left) with Rabbi Chanoch Yeres. Photo: David Haas.

PERSON TO PERSON

Volunteer Remembers His Roots

Person to Person is a regular column in Community Matters profiling members of the community who, in addition to succeeding personally and professionally, have enhanced their Jewish identity and commitment to community through their involvement with UJA Federation.

Andrew Jacob

When Andrew Jacob and his family arrived in Canada more than forty years ago, they were immigrants in a strange land. Today, through his involvement with UJA Federation and its beneficiary agencies, Jacob is extending a helpful hand to newcomers who have also chosen Toronto as their home.

Jacob, who was born in Budapest in 1944, still recalls his family's hasty winter departure by ship following the 1956 Hungarian Revolution. "There was a short window of opportunity for us to leave," he explains, "so with only the clothes on our back, we traveled to safety."

"It was bitterly cold," remembers Jacob, when he, along with his parents and sister, docked in Saint John, New Brunswick. Although their final destination was Toronto, where an aunt lived, Jacob recalls fondly the first assistance they received from the UJA Federation funded Jewish Immigrant Aid Services (JIAS). "It was nice to see a friendly face."

As they settled in Toronto, the Jacobs were concerned about the degree of anti-Semitism that might be present. "At first we were ambivalent about our Jewish identity because of what we had suffered back in Budapest," explains Jacob. Not long after they moved into Bathurst Manor they realized they could live as proud Jews.

"We started celebrating the holidays and observing Jewish traditions just like any other Jewish family."

Today, Jacob's volunteer work keeps him in touch with his immigrant past and Jewish values. In addition to being an active UJA Federation campaigner for more than ten years, Jacob has served on the case committee at the Toronto Jewish Free Loan Cassa, which provides interest free business and personal loans to new immigrants, among others, and currently sits on the JIAS board.

"I identify strongly with the concerns of immigrants," says Jacob. "I was one myself."

Community Matters, a supplement of the Canadian Jewish News, is sponsored and produced by UJA Federation. Website: www.feduja.org*

Greater Toronto Area

Sin without guilt
The Fat Free Food Experience
Cooking School

NORENE GILLETZ,
well known cooking instructor and author of Second Helpings Please!, MicroWays and Pleasures of Your Food Processor will be teaching luscious, low-fat cooking classes.

Upcoming Classes...
• Light Fantastic
• Don't be Chicken
• Light & Easy Entertaining

Ask about our Lunch & Learn Classes and Day or Evening Demonstration Classes
...Tastings to Follow!

...at the New Location of Sin without guilt Cooking School
1875 Leslie Street • Unit 22 • North York
For Dates & Times or to Receive a Copy of our Schedule
Please Call: 416 226-2466

Music teacher Yehuda Gilden conducts the Associated Day School Choir. [Cynthia Gasner photo]

UJA Federation Wonderfun Day draws over 2,000 people

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — The sound of singing, laughter and animated conversations filled the air recently as more than 2,000 people attended the second annual UJA Federation Jewish Community Wonderfun Day at Paramount Canada's Wonderland.

This event brings together all segments of the community in a fun-filled setting, says Howard English, director of communications. "Our purpose for holding this event at Wonderland is to celebrate with our community and to enhance community unity."

Numerous volunteers and staff members were on hand to direct people to the ongoing events, which were presented by members of the community and professional performers.

Along with Wonderland's 160 attractions and 50 rides, there was entertainment throughout the day. At King's Courtyard, Mandell Entertainment disc jockeys Saul Sacks and Paul Coles played Jewish and Hebrew songs, and top 40 hits as youngsters danced and frolicked with Yogi Bear.

Devorah Stark's Grade 6 class choir of the Associated Hebrew Day Schools, conducted by music teacher Yehuda Gilden, sang Hebrew songs. They were followed by the Stars Band. A special UJA Federation interactive Island Celebration was held at the International Show Place.

There was a kosher barbecue. Treats, including popcorn, cotton candy and slushies, were provided by Richard Winkler of Happy Days.

Ted Sokolsky, the federation's campaign director said, "It is a very exciting day. It is great to see families coming out together. This is our way of thanking the community for their support."

MANDY PATINKIN
In Concert
with Paul Ford on piano

"The greatest entertainer on Broadway today-period."
- The New York Post

ON SALE MONDAY
2 PERFORMANCES ONLY!
NOVEMBER 22 AT 8PM
NOVEMBER 23 AT 3PM
CALL 872-2262

HUMMINGBIRD CENTRE
FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS
1 FRONT STREET EAST, TORONTO, ONTARIO M5E 1B2

BAYVIEW VILLAGE...(416) 512-0341 • FIRST CANADIAN PLACE...(416) 367-2101 • SHERWAY GARDENS...(416) 622-0784

PETER NYGÅRD
TONI+ PLUS
DESIGNER FASHIONS SIZES 14-22

Correction

TORONTO — Volunteers at Bernard Betel Centre do not need to be over 55, but those eligible for respite care under the volunteer program do need to be over 55. Incorrect information appeared in a story in the Community Focus supplement of Sept. 11.

From coast to coast

Court allows Nazi cases to proceed

[Cont'd. from page 3]

the hearings before the Federal Court to strip three Ontario men of their Canadian citizenship for failing to disclose their involvement in atrocities during World War II.

The High Court said the cases should resume before another Federal Court judge who has not been "tainted" by the judicial interference.

"Canada's interest in not giving shelter to those who concealed their wartime participation in acts of atrocities outweighs any foreseeable harm that might be done to the appellants or to the integrity of the system by proceeding with the cases."

In January 1995, the federal government moved to strip Helmut Oberlander of Waterloo, Erichs Tobiass of Toronto and Johann Dueck of St. Catharines of their citizenship for lying about their wartime activities when they entered Canada.

In March 1996, Ted Thompson, then assistant deputy attorney general, met privately with Isaac to complain about the slow pace of the cases before Associate Chief Justice James Jerome.

Thompson warned the government was considering bypassing the Federal Court and referring the preliminary legal issues in the cases directly to the Supreme Court because Jerome was "unable or unwilling to proceed...expeditiously."

After conferring with Jerome, Isaac reported both were anxious to avoid a Supreme Court reference and would move quickly to ensure the cases were given "the highest priority."

Opposing lawyers were informed only a week later that the meeting had taken place in their absence.

Jerome later withdrew from the cases and another Federal Court judge, Justice Bud Cullen, granted a stay of proceedings when he called the Isaac-Thompson meeting a "serious breach of judicial independence" that prevented the men from getting a fair hearing.

Ottawa appealed and the Federal Court of Appeal overturned Cullen's ruling and ordered the cases to resume.

In its final verdict, the Supreme Court agreed the meeting was "clearly wrong," but said the "taint" was limited to Jerome and Isaac and not the entire Federal Court.

"As matters stand, society's interest in seeing the cases through to their conclusion is of a most pressing nature and outweighs the affront to the appearance of judicial independence."

The Supreme Court was most critical of Jerome, a former Liberal MP and Commons speaker, for his "inordinate and arguably inexcusable" delays, noting that in one year he held only one day of argument on a preliminary motion.

"In our view, [his] dilatoriness defies explanation," the top court said in an unusually harsh condemnation of a senior judge.

The court also said Isaac should not have met with the Justice Department lawyer, a longtime friend, without defence lawyers and should not have spoken afterwards to Jerome about the pace of the cases.

"A reasonable observer... would perceive that [Isaac and Jerome] were improperly and unduly influenced by a senior officer of the Department of Justice. However, there is no persuasive evidence of bad faith on the part of any of the actors in this drama."

The court, however, was much gentler in its treatment of Thompson, who has since been shuffled from his job in charge of all civil cases involving the federal government.

Thompson had a "legitimate grievance" because of the unacceptable delays, but chose an impermissible means of dealing with it, the justices said.

"We believe that Mr. Thompson's motives were proper. It was his judgment that is questionable. What Mr. Thompson did was not wicked or done in bad faith."

The Canadian Judicial Council has already publicly reprimanded Jerome for his "lack of initiative" in letting the cases languish but cleared Isaac of serious wrongdoing because he held the meeting "in good faith."

DO YOU SUFFER FROM AN IRRITABLE BOWEL?
The University of Toronto is offering a study for women age 18 to 65 diagnosed with irritable bowel syndrome. The goal of this treatment study is to reduce symptoms and improve quality of life.
If interested, please contact:
Ms. Kate Butler at
(416) 586-4800 ext. 2641

In memory of our beloved DOROTHY KRAMER ז"ל who passed away
September 14, 1993 –
YAHRZEIT will be held
September 30, 1997
A woman of great valor who is always sadly missed by her husband Max and family.

Pluck.
Ouch!
(One down, 3,698 hairs to go.)
Why suffer? Our revolutionary new lasers quickly erase facial hair, bikini lines and leg hair, — plus wrinkles, moles, blood vessels, and yellow teeth. Call now for a FREE consultation with our laser clinician:
(416) 923-0092

INSER REJUVINATION CLINICS
Hazelton Lanes Shopping Centre
87 Avenue Road

YIDS IN THE HALL
A GUILT-FREE NIGHT OF JEWISH HUMOUR
INTERNATIONAL STAND-UP COMEDY
HOSTED BY LOU EISEN
$10
8:30 PM
YUK YUK'S SUPERCLUB
2335 YONGE STREET - NORTH OF EGLINTON
RESERVATIONS: (416) 967-6425

Sponsored by: Edward's Record World
2359 Yonge St. Toronto (416) 489-1144
1st in Selection 1st in Imports 1st in New Releases
WANTED USED CDs FOR CASH / CREDIT
On the following Sunday nights:
OCT. 19
NOV. 23, DEC. 25

food Basics
Best Prices Everyday!

In the Spirit and Tradition of Rosh Hashanah, may the sounds of the Shofar fill all with joy, as we wish you a New Year of Health and Happiness.
Happy 5758
Rosh Hashanah
ASSORTED COLOURS
ALSO AVAILABLE: CUT FLOWER BOUQUETS
POTTED MUMS
6 inch pot
3.97
CHAI KOSHER, 2-3 lb AVERAGE, FRESH, GRADE 'A' ROASTING CHICKENS
4.39 per kg
SPECIAL UNTIL OCTOBER 11, 1997
lb 1.99
ZAIDY'S ROUND
FRESH CHALLAH BREAD
750 g
1.99
PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA FANCY GRADE
McINTOSH APPLES
1.04 per kg
lb .47
CINNAMON, POPPYSEED, MULTIGRAIN OR PLAIN
FRESH BAGELS
6/1.77
MAIN EXCHANGE PLAZA
BATHURST & STEELES
(905) 738-6893
EMILIO CHIODO, OWNER
THE SHOPS ON STEELES & 404
DON MILLS & STEELES AVE. E.
(905) 881-4900
JIM & SANDY BOZINIS, OWNERS
8190 BAYVIEW AVENUE
ROMFIELD CRES. & BAYVIEW AVE.
(905) 731-2300
PAUL JOHNSON, MANAGER
PRICES EFFECTIVE UNTIL OCTOBER 11, 1997.

Open Window Bakery
Health Bread
over 30 stores to serve you across metro
THIS WEEKEND SPECIAL
IN ALL OUR STORES
From FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3rd to SUNDAY, OCTOBER 5th
MOCCA RING $4.59 Reg. Price $5.39
Dome $5.19 Reg. Price $5.89
ASK FOR OTHER IN-STORE SPECIALS

From coast to coast

YOU'LL SEE THE SAVINGS AISLE AFTER AISLE

Now Save More By Miles

Now Earn AIR MILES® travel miles for FREE* travel and more at The Savings Stores. It's easy as 1-2-3!!!

*1 Carry the Card *2 Show the Card *3 Earn Free Rewards

For every $20 you spend You'll receive one Travel Mile* and every week bonus travel miles will be available on hundreds of items.

SIGN UP TODAY!

SEE STORE FOR MORE DETAILS

CHAI KOSHER Fresh Chicken Leg Quarters Now! 1.79 lb 3.95 kg

GLATT KOSHER Lean Ground Beef Now! 3.99 lb 8.80 kg

GLATT KOSHER Fresh Minced Veal Now! 6.49 lb 14.31 kg

KOSHER Aaron's Best Chicken Wieners Now! 3.99 450 g pkg

FROZEN Perls Beef, Chicken or Turkey Pies Now! 1.99 230 g pkg

Fresh Seafood SUBJECT TO AVAILABILITY

FROZEN, MASTER CHOICE Smoked Sliced Sockeye Salmon Now! 7.88 198.5 g pkg

FRESH, FARM RAISED Boneless Skinless Atlantic Salmon Fillet Portions Now! 3.88 170 g size

More Savings Now! ...on all of your Grocery Needs

SELECTED VARIETIES INCLUDING Rippin' Good Chocolate Chip Cookies 300 g - 450 g pkg Now! 1.69

ASSORTED FLAVOURS Ceres Fruit Juice 1 L tetra carton Now! 1.99

Billy Bee Liquid Honey 500 g jar Now! 1.99

SELECTED VARIETIES Goodman's Soup Mix 5 - 6 oz pkg Now! .87

REGULAR OR UNSALTED Rok Snackers 300 g pkg Now! 1.69

POP-INS Puff Pastry Dough 1 lb pkg Now! 1.49

The Savings Stores

PRICES EFFECTIVE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS UNTIL SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1997

HAPPY NEW YEAR שנה טובה

save a centre FOOD MARKET

600 SHEPPARD AVE., W. DOWNSVIEW
2760 BATHURST ST., TORONTO

We Save You TIME, MONEY and HASSLES!

Nine women in Sault Ste. Marie were called to the bimah.

Rosh Hashanah special for nine women in Sault

SAULT STE. MARIE — This Rosh Hashanah will be a special one for nine women of Congregation Beth Jacob here, marking six months since they were called to the Torah as b'not mitzvah.

Sault Ste. Marie's Jewish community, with roots that go back over 100 years, has only 35 families. The synagogue, which celebrated its 50th anniversary last year, is dependent upon volunteer leadership and a supportive membership that includes families from Michigan.

The congregation became egalitarian about five years ago and as the scope of its services broadened, a group of women began discussions that culminated with a decision that they would study Torah and Haftorah.

On March 24, the nine women, ranging in age from 46 to 86, were called to the bimah. They each recited the blessings and the section of the parshah, and one woman (recently retired principal of the Hebrew school) enjoyed the honor of the Haftorah. Two of the members gave a dvar Torah.

Personal fulfilment, a desire to participate fully in shul services and striving to be positive role models for the children of the community were some of the reasons the women gave for having the b'not mitzvah.

One way the community benefits is that it is easier to get a minyan, now that nine more may be counted. The women are organizing an adult study group, and two are learning trope.

Sin without guilt

The Fat Free Food Experience

Come in and see Toronto's largest variety of fat-free, low-fat and sugar-free foods!

948 Eglinton Ave. W. Just West of Bathurst 416 785-5821

Toronto General Hospital Lobby of Peter Munk Cardiac Centre-Gerrard Street Entrance 416 596-0FAT(0328)

1875 Leslie St. Unit 21 Just North of York Mills 416 385-3733

Bring this Ad into any of our Locations and Receive a FREE serving of the best FAT-FREE ICE CREAM!

ONE PER COUPON

Reproductions of ad not accepted. Limited time offer.

STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS

our Land
our People
our BOND

our Land our People our BOND

Israel's short history has been marked by incredible change. From a fledgling agricultural state in 1948, Israel has grown into a thriving technological leader. Wars have been fought. Treaties have been signed. Almost 20,000 Israeli soldiers have given their lives. Since 1948, over 2.5 million immigrants have found their way to the refuge of Israeli soil. Staggering growth has put Israel among the economic elite of the Western world. Since Ben Gurion there have been 9 prime ministers, 27 governments and innumerable political crises.

Through all of this change, there has been one constant - one thing that could never be changed. Israel is the eternal home of the Jewish people. Israel stands guard, protecting Jewish lives and Jewish interests around the world.

In order for Israel to continue to be strong, it must continue to grow. Infrastructure – highways, dams, hydro electric developments – are the foundation upon which economic growth is built. Israel Bonds provide working capital for this growing economy.

Israel Bonds are an opportunity for Jews to unite in support of a common cause and a common vision – that our hope, our dream to be a free people in our land has been realized and will never be lost. It is a promise that we make to ourselves. It is a proclamation we make to the world.

Support the growth of the Jewish state. Invest in the future of the Jewish people. Make yourself part of the Jewish dream.

CALL TODAY FOR YOUR BOND ~ (416) 789-3351

From coast to coast

Neo-Nazi Burdi charged with promoting hatred

WINDSOR — A leading Canadian neo-Nazi has been charged with promoting hatred through his Detroit-based music business.

George Burdi, 27, of Woodbridge, Ont., is charged with wilfully promoting hatred and conspiracy to promote hatred. Two other men, Joseph Talic, also of Woodbridge, and Jason Snow of Toronto, face the same charges.

They are to appear in a Windsor court on Oct. 10.

The Ontario Provincial Police laid the charges following a nine-month investigation that involved police in Windsor and Detroit.

The OPP said the three men operate a company called Resistance Records, which publishes and distributes rock music and a magazine.

In addition to founding Resistance Records, Burdi is a lead singer in a skinhead band called Rawoha, a white supremacist term meaning racial holy war. His songs include Third Reich, White Revolution and Race Riot.

Resistance Records also represents about 12 other skinhead bands and distributes their music through a telephone hot- line and the Internet. According to Canadian Jewish Congress, Resistance Records says it has sold some 50,000 CDs in its first 18 months of operations.

In 1995, Burdi was sentenced to a year in jail for kicking a woman in the face during a 1993 clash in Ottawa between neo-Nazis and anti-racists, who were demonstrating against a concert by Rahowa.

That conviction was upheld last February by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Burdi was also a target of a group that calls itself the Anti-Fascist Militia, which threatened to mail parcel bombs to several neo-Nazis, including publisher Ernst Zundel.

Action taken against alleged Nazis

OTTAWA — The federal government last week informed two more suspected Nazi war criminals that it intends to strip them of their citizenship so they can be deported.

The men will not be identified until their cases go to Federal Court. They have 30 days to decide whether to fight the action.

The suspects are accused of crimes against humanity. Ottawa says they lied about their wartime activities when they entered Canada following World War II.

The latest charges mark the 13th and 14th cases Ottawa has initiated against alleged Nazi war criminals since 1995. Of those, five trials are expected to begin within the next six months.

Last month, Ottawa revoked the citizenship of Ladislaus Csizik-Csatary, 82, formerly of Montreal. He became the first war crimes suspect to lose his citizenship without a court fight.

He declined to challenge the action, which accused him of taking an active role in the deportation of thousands of Jews from Hungary to concentration camps.

The two new cases come on the heels of last week's ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada that charges against three other war crimes suspects can move ahead. (See story, page 3).

A delegation from Canadian Jewish Congress met this past Monday with Justice Minister Anne McLelland and Immigration Minister Lucienne Robillard to discuss the progress of war crimes cases.

Butcher shop personnel win lottery

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — For Marla Catton, it was a tremendous wedding present. On Sept. 14, she and her co-workers at Omnitsky Kosher Foods learned that they had won the $1.7 million LOTTO 6/49 jackpot.

Omnitsky owner Alan Rappaport, nine of his employees and one former employee each collected $151,515 tax free.

Omnitsky Kosher Foods is the only kosher butcher in north Winnipeg and the only manufacturer of kosher deli products in western Canada.

Over the past six years, the employees have been contributing $2 a week toward the purchase of 11 tickets for each draw.

None of the employees are planning on quitting their jobs, Rappaport notes. They are using the winnings to pay off mortgages and other bills, and save some for their children. Catton and her new husband are planning to go on a cruise.

BLOX FACTORY DIRECT
Choose from two complete lines of children and youth furniture (painted or stained) available from the manufacturer.
For more information call
(416) 767-4737
ext. 29

REENA
JFCS

Reena and Jewish Family and Child Service are Not-for-Profit Agencies supporting the integration of persons with a developmental disability into the community. Jointly, we are currently offering a two (2) year contract position working 20 hours per week for a:

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT WORKER

The purpose of this contract is to look at systems level changes that will promote further inclusion of people with special needs into the Jewish Community.

Your superior facilitation and planning skills will be utilized in planning and co-ordinating meetings with family groups, the establishment of a family alliance, and consultation with agencies, community service providers, professionals and an advisory group.

You will be expected to have a broad knowledge base of the resources available within the community and demonstrated skills in developing action plans for accessing these resources. Your ultimate goal will be to teach families to develop and maintain community linkages.

You must have exceptional interpersonal, organizational skills and communication skills. In addition, we require three (3) years experience in community development along with a university degree or equivalent experience in social services. A working knowledge of word processing along with an understanding of the developmentally handicapped would be an asset.

If you are interested in this exciting and challenging position, please forward your resume quoting file number CSW-97-01 by October 17th to:

Reena Human Resources Department
927 Clark Avenue West
Thornhill, Ontario L4J 8G6
Fax (905) 889-3827

We would like to thank all applicants for their interest, however, only those candidates selected for an interview will be contacted.

Libby V. Labell, M.Sc. • Consultant for Seniors in Montreal
Past President of Jewish Family Services

Family Counseling
Coordinating with Health Care Services

Retirement Residences
Foster/Nursing Homes
Personalized Service

Free Consultation (514) 482-4818

Finishing high school in January?

Want to go to Israel in February?

KESHER '98

For Israel's 50th Anniversary

$1,995.00 Plus Airfare

February 1998 — May 1998

- Teach English & volunteer in Eilat
- Tour Israel and see the country
- Participate in workshops & seminars
- Live in your own apartment in Eilat

For more information contact:

Ryan Hass (416) 781-5156

KESHER '98 is sponsored by: The Jewish Federation of Greater Toronto, Canadian Young Judaea & the Canada Israel Experience Centre

A wish for all our friends and clients for a very Happy and Prosperous New Year,
from
Arlene, Marty & Michael Winick, Bruce & Sonny Martin and Chuck English and all the staff at Attitude Filmwork & Print
3701 Chesswood Dr. Ste 101
North York, Ontario M3J 2P6
(416) 638-7751

Canadian Society for Yad Vashem is pleased to invite you to join our Guest of Honour, The Honourable Michael Harris, Premier of Ontario, to pay tribute to the Righteous Among The Nations and to honour the Memory of the Six Million who Perished.

The Honourable
Michael Harris, Premier of Ontario

The title Righteous Among The Nations was created in an effort to honour the men and women who risked certain death to save Jewish lives during World War II. To date, more than 10,000 individual names have been inscribed on the "Righteous Wall of Honour" at the Yad Vashem Museum in Jerusalem.

WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 5, 1997
INN ON THE PARK, CENTENNIAL BALLROOM
COCKTAILS 6:30 P.M. DINNER 7:00 P.M.
COUVERT: $250.00 PER PERSON

HONORARY DINNER CHAIRMAN: THE HONOURABLE CHARLES HARNICK
DINNER CO-CHAIRS: JOEL DIMITRY, RONALD FAUST,
HARRY KICHLER & ELLEN SMOSKOWITZ
HONORARY NATIONAL CHAIRMAN: LESLIE DAN
NATIONAL CHAIRMAN: HANK ROSENBAUM

CAMPAIGN CABINET
CHAIR: ALEX EISEN
LOU GREENBAUM, ISAAC JESIN, DAVID PELTZ, EVA SILVERBERG,
PETER SILVERMAN & DAVID SMUSCHKOWITZ

For information, please contact:
(416) 785-1333

A tax receipt will be issued for the maximum allowable amount.
Visa, MasterCard, Israel Bonds accepted. Kashrut observed.

TRIBUTE COMMITTEE

Isabel Bassett MPP
Debbie Berlach
Elinor Caplan MP
Mayor Don Cousins
Aubrey & Marla Dan
Leslie & Anna Dan
Cantor Louis Danto
Frank Diamant
Dr. Saul Dimitry
Betty Eisenstadt
Sol & Toby Feldberg
Sydney Gangbar
Councillor Norm Gardner
Paul Godfrey
Herman Gottesman
Senator Jerahmiel Grafstein
Alex Grossman
Max & Sheila Guttman
Stuart & Andrea Hytman
Jehudi Kinar Consul General of Israel
Monte Kwinter MPP
Mayor Mel Lastman
The Honourable Al Leach MPP
Ralph Lean
Marylyn Light
Jeffery S. Lyons, QC
Howard Orfus
Jim Peterson MP
Alexander & Jeannie Raab
Bob Rae
Arnold Recht
Sigmund Reiser
Allan Silber
Avrom Silver
Ralph Snow
Shoel Silver
Ed Sonshine
Allan Tonks
The Honourable William Saunderson MPP
Rabbi Scheim
The Honourable David Tsubouchi MPP
David Turnbull MPP
David Young

זכור

Canadian Society for
YAD VASHEM
The Holocaust
Martyrs' and Heroes'
Remembrance Authority

On Campus

Paikin strives to maintain balance in his life

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Television journalist Steve Paikin's moment of truth came in 1990, when he was asked to cover a political leadership convention on a Saturday.

"You either tell them, 'No, I'm sorry, I'm going to shul,' and kiss your career good-bye, or you do it," he told a group of Jewish students at Ryerson Polytechnic University.

Paikin, now co-host of TVOntario's Studio 2, was one of three speakers last week at campus career programs sponsored by Aish HaTorah's Jerusalem Fellowships with Jewish Campus Services. The others were Dr. William Seidelman, professor of Medicine, who spoke at the University of Toronto, and Shoshana Lev, vice-president of Nesbitt Burns, who spoke at York University.

Paikin offered career tips and discussed the balance between his personal and professional lives.

Raised in a Reform Jewish home in Hamilton, he became shomer Shabbat in his early married years.

"We quite enjoyed it," he recalled. "I really enjoyed going to services Saturday morning. It's definitely a loss." But giving his career his best shot won out.

"Some days I regret it. Most days I don't," he said. His choice turned out to be "the thin edge of the wedge," paving the way for other lapses in Jewish observance.

For balance, Paikin and a group of friends now study Torah with a rabbi every few weeks.

"The news business is truly a 24-hour-a-day thing," he said. He advised potential journalists to "have extremely understanding spouses and children."

He also noted there are many more graduates than new jobs.

An increase in the hiring of freelancers may make things easier for today's students, he said.

"For the most part, it's wonderfully exciting, challenging, interesting, fun stuff, but it's definitely a kind of bargain with the devil. In exchange for getting to meet wonderful people, ask them intimate questions about their lives and tell other people about it, the price you have to pay is you have to make all sorts of compromises in your life."

To allow him more time with his family (he and his wife have three children), Paikin gave up a morning radio show he was doing last year.

In response to an audience question, Paikin discussed the fuss raised when his six-figure salary was made public three years ago. "In the TV business it's not shocking that a host makes [a couple of thousand dollars a year] more than the chairman of the company."

There is some pressure from members of the Jewish community, he told another student. While some people call just to pitch an idea, others see him as "Mr. TVOntario" if they have any problem with the station.

He has experienced anti-Semitism only rarely, he said, adding that newsrooms have become much more multicultural.

He has no conflict over covering Jewish or Israel-related issues. "It's just so obvious your job is...to report, not opine."

A youthful 37, Paikin has been in the business 15 years. As a graduate student at Boston University, he interned on radio and TV, and wrote for publications here.

Stay in school as long as possible, he advised, stressing the need for practical experience and life experience also.

"I would urge you, if you're going [away] and plan to come back: keep in touch with people."

THANK YOU TO THE FOLLOWING SCHOOLS FOR PARTICIPATING IN THE junior UJA club TZEDAKAH ALL-STAR TEAM

- ☆ ASSOCIATED HEBREW SCHOOLS - DANILACK CAMPUS
- ☆ ASSOCIATED HEBREW SCHOOLS - HURWICH CAMPUS
- ☆ ASSOCIATED HEBREW SCHOOLS - KAMIN CAMPUS
- ☆ BIALIK HEBREW DAY SCHOOL
- ☆ NETIVOT HATORAH
- ☆ TEMPLE HAR ZION
- ☆ TEMPLE KOL AMI SCHOOL
- ☆ TEMPLE SINAI RELIGIOUS SCHOOL
- ☆ THE TORONTO HESCHEL SCHOOL
- ☆ USDS - BATHURST CAMPUS
- ☆ USDS - BAYVIEW CAMPUS
- ☆ USDS - RICHMOND HILL CAMPUS

IT'S EASY TO BE A TZEDAKAH ALL-STAR! Just bring at least one unopened present from a birthday or holiday to the nearest Junior UJA All-Star box. They're located at participating schools or UJA Federation offices, 4600 Bathurst Street, 5th floor. The gifts will be distributed by Jewish Family & Child Service to needy kids in our community. So far, over 1,500 presents have been donated to children in need.

UJA FEDERATION

Each TZEDAKAH ALL-STAR automatically becomes a member of the junior UJA club

Kids HELPING KIDS

For more information, please call (416) 631-5731

TD Sponsor of the Junior UJA Club

The Law Firm of

STITT FELD HANDY HOUSTON

BARRISTERS • MEDIATORS • ADR CONSULTANTS

wishes their clients, friends and relatives a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year.

§ § §

Alternative Dispute Resolution
Negotiation and Mediation Skills

Four-day Certificate Workshop for Non-Lawyers and Lawyers

Presented by University of Windsor Faculty of Law &
STITT FELD HANDY HOUSTON

ADR WORKSHOPS™:
TORONTO, October 28-31
TORONTO, November 11-14
TORONTO, December 9-12

ADVANCED ADR™:
TORONTO, October 14-17
OTTAWA, December 2-5
TORONTO, December 16-19

ADR WORKSHOP™ in the Caribbean:
BARBADOS, November 16-22

§ § §

"Superb. After each experiential exercise, new 'windows' [in understanding] were opened by the three instructors. This was a workshop that made me grow!"

Selma Sage, Community Education and Program Consultant

For more information, call us at 1-800-318-9741 or visit our web site at www.adr.ca

UNIVERSITÉ YORK UNIVERSITY

The Centre for Jewish Studies at York University

A Challenging Environment for Growth and Continuity

A Message from the Director

As we take stock of the past year and plan for the next, it is my pleasure to extend greetings from the York University Centre for Jewish Studies.

York has more Jewish students than any other university in Canada – over 4000. We offer more than 50 courses in Jewish Studies and two undergraduate programs – a Bachelor of Arts and a combined Bachelor of Arts/Bachelor of Education. Areas of focus include: Hebrew language and literature, classical texts, education, Jewish thought and history, Jewish community studies (especially of Canada), Holocaust, Sephardi culture, women's studies, film, and sport and recreation.

Our alumni include rabbis, teachers in Jewish schools, and community professionals and volunteers. Most, however, are people in all walks of life whose knowledge and appreciation of Judaism were deepened during their years at York.

Over the past year the Centre sponsored a variety of challenging programmes for students and for the general public. Significant research projects came to fruition including major books by Centre faculty on the Bible, Israeli history, and Canadian-Jewish Studies.

Let me thank here all those who have helped to enhance the activities of the York Centre. I hope that we may continue to serve the community well and to enjoy its support. My colleagues and I invite you to join us at York during the coming year which promises to be one of the most exciting and stimulating ever. Shana tova.

Michael Brown

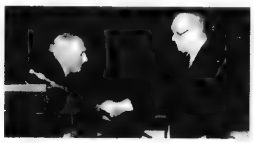
The Campaign

York is one of Canada's largest institutions of higher learning, and it is in the midst of a major fund-raising campaign. The Jewish Studies Campaign Committee is headed by Martin Goldfarb, chairman of the Goldfarb Corporation and a long-time member of York's Board of Governors. Among the accomplishments of the campaign to date are generous gifts from the Israel Koschitzky Family Foundation for a Professorship in Jewish Teacher Education and from J. Richard Shiff towards the establishment of a Chair for the Study of Canadian Jewry. Student exchanges to Israel, a traditional strength of the Centre, have been given a substantial boost by support from the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University, the Leonard Wolinsky Foundation, and the family and friends of Percy Singer. Matching funds under the Ontario Student Opportunity Trust Fund bring these gifts to a total of more than $4M. Scholarships in Holocaust Studies have been established under this Trust Fund program by Allan Silber and by the family and friends of Berek and Regina Gertner. Scholarships for Sephardi Studies have been funded by Georges Benarroch. If you would like to become a supporter of York's Centre for Jewish Studies and its special programs, please contact Professor Michael Brown at (416) 736-5823.

Professor Michael Brown, Professor Irving Abella, Dr. Susan Mann, and Mr. J. Richard Shiff celebrating Shiff's gift to the Centre.

Professor Maynard Maidman lecturing in Russia.

Professor Alex Pomson with student Yuri Hronsky during a class in Jewish Teacher Education.



Professor Bernard Zelechow congratulating Professor Sydney Eisen at an event honouring Eisen for his service to York University.

Recent Centre Highlights

Creating the Jewish Future – an international conference sponsored by Bernie Ghert which explored dimensions of the Jewish future. The conference volume is in preparation.

New Courses – in Canadian-Jewish Studies, Holocaust Studies, and Jewish Women's Studies.

New Scholarships – over $4,000,000 pledged for Ontario Student Opportunity Scholarships in Sephardi Studies, Holocaust Studies, and for study in Israel.

Distance Education – New course in Jewish civilization offered jointly by York and Waterloo universities. Biblical Hebrew will be offered next year.

Jewish Mothers and Daughters Symposium – held jointly with the Centre for Feminist Research.

The Land and Its Interpreters – The Leonard Wolinsky Lectures in honour of the 50th anniversary of the State of Israel and the 100th anniversary of Zionism.

Israel Exchanges – York students and faculty in Israel and Israeli scholars, including a Hebrew University graduate student, at York.

Russian Exchange in Jewish Studies – faculty and student exchanges in both directions.

Scholarships and Prizes 1996-97

Benarroch-Hazan Scholarship and Prize in Sephardic Studies
Marilyn Blackman, Adam Segal
Alan S. Berg Jewish Education Award
Rina Dienna
Molly Eisenberg Memorial Award in Judaic Studies
Daniella Robicsek, Ilana Shainhouse
Arnold and Leona Finkler Bar-Ilan Scholarship
Miriam Markovits
Gertrude and Jack Friedman Memorial Award For Study in Israel
Elisabeth Friedman
Hebrew University Exchange Scholarship
Rinat Nissim, Stacey Wintre
Shoshana Kurtz Book Prize in Jewish Education
Miriam Birnbaum
Metro Toronto Lodge B'nai Brith Prize in Canadian Jewish Studies
Frank Bialystok, Nancy Lewis
Samuel Rosen Book Prize
Christine Morgan, Barbra Price
Abraham I. Silver Scholarship for Study in Israel
Jeremy Stolow
Leonard Wolinsky Scholarship for Study in Israel
Sharrona Pearl, Deborah Wolgelerenter
Joseph Zbili Award for Hebrew Studies
Ayala Wenner
Berek and Regina Gertner Scholarship in Holocaust Studies
Elisabeth Friedman

York students in Israel with Professor Martin Lockshin.

Join us...

The Contribution of Nehama Leibowitz to Torah Scholarship
November 9-11, 1997
Seminars with Marla Frankel of the Melton Center for Jewish Education in the Diaspora at the Hebrew University

The Land and Its Interpreters, the Leonard Wolinsky Lectures
March 1-2, 1998
Lectures on the new literature and art of Israel by Professor Bezalel Narkiss and noted author Natan Shaham.

A Heritage in Transition
June 7-8, 1998
A conference on the Study of Canadian Jewry supported by Heritage Canada and held jointly with Concordia University. A public symposium will feature Professors Irving Abella, Ramsay Cook, and Deborah Dash Moore.

Centre for Jewish Studies at York University

Michael Brown, Director
Martin Lockshin, Associate Director
Irving Abella, Chair of Council
Sydney Eisen, Founding Director

Executive Committee
Michael Creal, Humanities
Helen Doan, Psychology
Joseph Levy, Atkinson College/Nursing
Rachel Schlesinger, Social Science
Ahouva Shulman, Hebrew
Mark Webber, Humanities and German
William Whitla, Humanities and English

For further information, please contact:
Professor Michael Brown, Director
Centre for Jewish Studies, York University
4700 Keele Street
North York, Ontario M3J 1P3
(416) 736-5823
e-mail: michaelb@yorku.ca website: www.yorku.ca/research/CJS

Rosh Hashanah 5758

A Letter From Israel

Dear Mom and Dad,

We are so proud that Israel Bonds has chosen to honour you, Mom. It is indeed, an enlightened choice and a thoroughly deserved tribute.

I remember, as a child, thinking that Israel Bonds were somehow part of the Yom Kippur liturgy, even though I could never find the right page in the prayer-book. Bonds have always been an integral part of our family's vocabulary, just as commitment to Israel has always been a foundation stone in our lives. For as long as I can remember, buying Israel Bonds has been as much a part of our family's life as Kol Nidre.

Of course, being "connected to Israel" means even more to us, now that we are living here. It's no longer just a dream or simply a part of our Jewish consciousness. In our family, Israel now means each and every waking moment: sending the kids off to school in the morning, going to work, and yes, taking the bus to shop on Ben Yehuda Street or the Machaneh Yehuda shuk.

I think of "Israel Bonds" not as a noun, but as a verb: Israel BONDS. And, as a transitive verb, the question of "whom does Israel bond?" is obvious. Israel bonds Jews! Israel bonds Jews - throughout the world. If we have learned anything from the difficult tragedies, that we have endured these last weeks, it is that we really are all in it together. When a family sits shiva over the loss of their 14 year old daughter in a terrorist attack, Jews, in Hamilton - and every other Jewish community in the world - grieve along with them. As we should! Israel bonds!

Mom, whether you knew it or not, we learned our commitment to the Jewish People and Israel by watching you. Your work for the Hamilton Jewish Community, whether at the Hamilton Jewish Federation or the Adas Israel, was always way more than a job. Anyone who watched you could see clearly that you considered it a "mitzva" as much as a profession. What makes you such a fitting honouree is that you have always worked so untiringly to ensure that other Jews built and maintained their bonds to Israel and the Jewish People, too.

Many people look to see what they can get out of affiliation with Israel and the Jewish community. If they would only watch you, they would realize that the REAL winners are the ones who give to Israel and to the Jewish community. When the bonds are strong, there is never a question of "Will my children and grandchildren be Jewish?" "Will the State of Israel continue be strong enough to stand tall against all the challenges and threats flung at her?"

Mom, you have always shown us that when one gives, with all one's strength and means, to support Israel and the Jewish community, there are no doubts about continuity. Although we can't join in this wonderful tribute to you in person, we are proud to live in the State of Israel and raise your grandchildren in the most vivid and vibrant Jewish community in the world. In this way, we hope to maintain and strengthen the bonds which you and Dad have always taught us.

As we say in Hebrew, KOL HA-KAVOD!

With all our love,

Beth, Steven, Aviad, Adira and Tamar

Beit Shemesh, Israel

This unsolicited letter was recently written to Helen "Dolly" Cohen and her husband Ralph by their son, Rabbi Steven Cohen, his wife Beth and their family. Helen was recently honoured by Israel Bonds in Hamilton for her commitment and many contributions to the community.

our Land
our People
our BOND

STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS

CALL TODAY FOR YOUR BOND ~ (416)789-3351

Message from the Israeli ambassador to Canada, David Sultan, on the occasion of Rosh Hashanah 5758.

Dear Friends,

As we celebrate Rosh Hashanah and observe Yom Kippur, it is customary to reflect upon the year that has just past. At times the year has been painful and difficult, terrorism and violence in Israel have affected the lives of both Jews in Israel and abroad. While the path to peace will undoubtedly be strewn with hardships and problems, we must look towards the future with confidence knowing that peace will be achieved.

David Sultan

During the next year, we will have much to celebrate. One hundred years ago, Theodor Herzl gave modern expression to old sentiments by founding Zionism. Little could he have known then, as we celebrate this important milestone, that we would also be marking Israel's 50th anniversary. As Jews, we have much to be proud of concerning Israel. In a very short period, we have built a strong state, with institutions and achievements that rival those in countries that have been around for centuries.

Israel's 50th anniversary will undoubtedly serve to strengthen the relationship and bond between Israel and the Diaspora. Israel has been and must remain a focal point for both communities to rally together as brothers and sisters. I hope as we all do, that this year will bring peace to the State of Israel.

On a personal note, it has been one year since I came to Canada as ambassador. I have been encouraged by the warm welcome and support that has been accorded both my wife and me by the Canadian Jewish community. For this we are grateful.

On behalf of the government of Israel and its people, I wish you all a healthy, peaceful and prosperous Rosh Hashanah. Shanah Tovah.

Rosh Hashanah message from president of Canadian Jewish Congress Goldie Hershon

The New Year 5758 approaches and Jews around the world prepare themselves for the holiest time in the Jewish calendar. This unique period of reflection commands us to examine what we have accomplished and to seek new paths or directions.

The Canadian Jewish community is most fortunate. We live in freedom and are able to participate in the affairs of our nation and make meaningful contributions. We must continue to put as much energy as possible towards bringing suspected Nazi war criminals resident in Canada to justice. Acts of anti-Semitism and racism nationally and abroad cannot be ignored; our community must continue to be active and promote national unity; we must redouble our advocacy efforts on restitution issues and, of course, we look forward to celebrating the 50th anniversary of the State of Israel in an atmosphere of peace.

Goldie Hershon

Rosh Hashanah coincides with the 10th anniversary of the passage of federal legislation, which permitted trials in Canada for suspected Nazi war criminals. We are encouraged by recent developments on this dossier, both from the government perspective and the renewed interest shown by members of our grassroots community. During the past year communities across the country have held high profile rallies and vigils seeking a resolution to this issue. Ten cases are presently in the system.

Meanwhile, while anti-Semitism and racism continue to search for new media, the most popular of late being the Internet, Canadian Jewish Congress will continue to address the matter on a proactive basis.

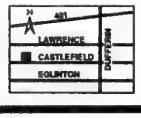
As we gather in synagogue during the High Holy Days, let us all pray for a year of goodwill and coalition building between communities. May the New Year bring an end to hatred and bigotry, and may it be a year of peace, security and prosperity.

PATIO FURNITURE
FLOOR MODEL SALE

Everything must go!
30%-50% off
All Remaining Patio Furniture
No Reasonable offer refused

All Patio Groupings
Umbrellas & Cushions
Dining & Lounge Chairs
Side Tables & All Accessories

Don't miss this Sale!



1280 Castlefield Ave.
Toronto M6B 1G3
416 781-4887
Hours: Mon. - Fri. 10 to 5:30
Saturday 10 to 5

Rosh Hashanah 5758

From the library of the Jewish Theological Seminary

Turkish Jews maintain customs

Unique recipes a holiday hallmark

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — While there are very few Sephardi Jews of Turkish descent in Toronto, those who are here try to maintain and pass on to the younger generation their unique customs and foods.

Jane Elvin was born and raised in Istanbul. Although she has lived in Israel, France and the United States, she has called Toronto home for some 20 years.

Even though she and her family live in a mainly Ashkenazi world, she told The CJN that she tries to maintain and pass on Turkish customs.

Turkish Jews, for instance, do not eat apples and honey on the High Holy Days. Instead, she said, they eat apple jam.

A typical Rosh Hashanah meal would consist of apple jam served in a crystal bowl; a whole fish, cooked in tomato sauce, parsley, lemon and oil, and served with the head – the head is put on the husband's dish, to symbolize his position as head of the family; meatballs made with boiled and processed leeks or potatoes, ground beef, eggs and bread crumbs; peas or green beans with rice and chicken; stuffed zucchini; and fresh fruit.

"There is a heavy emphasis on fall vegetables," she said.

Pomegranates are on the table, as is the traditional wine and challah.

A custom that Elvin remembers following in her mother's home takes place just before the erev Yom Kippur meal.

"Everyone would gather around the table and my mother would bring a soup dish with oil. You would look at yourself in the oil and say, 'G-d, if I have sinned, please forgive me as I start my fasting meal.'

"Then we would take the oil to the synagogue and they would use it to light the candles."

"The young generation doesn't do that anymore," she said with regret.

Elvin was happy to share her apple jam recipe with CJN readers.

APPLE JAM

1 kg. apples (She likes Spartan or Macintosh. The taste varies according to the kind of apples used.)
1 kg. sugar
3 glasses of water
juice of two lemons
1 tsp. vanilla (opt.)

Peel, wash and cut apples into two or four pieces. Clean cores well. Shred.

In a pot, melt sugar on a low temperature for about 10 minutes, stirring from time to time with a wooden spoon. Add the apples, then five minutes later add the lemon juice and water. Let cook for 35 to 40 minutes, continuing to stir from time to time.

To make sure the jam is ready, put a drop on a plate and see if it is sticky enough. Turn off the heat, and let jam cool for about two hours.

Reliving memories of a Rosh Hashanah past

[Cont'd. from page 4]

machzor in hand, quietly humming to himself the tunes of the prayers that he and his father had sung so many years ago in a part of the world that no longer existed.

All the grandchildren gathered around the humming grandfather. He looked smaller than he actually was, sitting in the large chair.

The young lawyer then brought out a shofar that he had borrowed from the rabbi.

The oldest grandchild brought out a machzor that she had borrowed from her uncle.

The living room was totally silent. There was no noise from the street, nor any commotion from the seven grandchildren encircling the wounded man sitting in front of them.

He understood what was happening and he started to cry.

Tekiah... the grandchild summoned.

And the young lawyer responded, forcing the air through his perfect embouchure to sustain a loud brassy blast from the ancient instrument.

Shevarim... he effortlessly brought forth the sobbing sounds from the horn.

Teruah... and he even remembered the staccato tapping of the tongue against the mouthpiece.

Tekiah gedolah... He held onto the last sound for an eternity.

* * *

Looking at old photographs, memories were his constant companions. MBD

Marquis Shoes
3237 Yonge St. 484-0104
Howard Share & family wish all their customers & friends a Happy New Year

Crabtree & Evelyn
SHANA TOVA
Hazelton Lanes, 55 Avenue Road
(416) 929-0109

My best wishes for a year filled with Good Health, Happiness & Peace
Gordon Ross
Annuity Accords Insurance Agency Inc.
GORDON ROSS, CLU, CFSB (416) 631-6955

Rob Davis
Councillor, City of York
I would like to extend to you and your family my best wishes for Peace, Happiness and Good Health in the New Year.
(416) 394-2412
Councillor Rob Davis

SHANA TOVA
FROM YOUR FRIENDS AT SEARS
SEARS
THE PROMENADE • BATHURST & CENTRE • (905) 731-3388
SEARS CLUB membership is very rewarding

Open Window Bakery
Health Bread
Best Wishes For A Happy & Healthy New Year
from
MAX, ROSE, & PEARL FEIG
GAIL AGASI and family
TALI WATKIN
GABOR & EDYIE VARSANY and family and the entire Open Window & Health Bread Bakeries Staff

Rosh Hashanah 5758

Ten New Year's resolutions to consider

By RABBI BERNARD BASKIN

A bright and unsullied New Year lies before us; once again resolutions spring irresistibly to mind and heart. This year we are determined — we shall not succumb to temptation or to feckless backsliding. We cry with Macbeth: "The very firstlings of my heart shall be the firstlings of my hand."

How are we to order or govern our lives in the 12 months? Do you have a few extra moments? Consider the following:

Spend some time alone. We echo Wordsworth's lament: "The world is too much with us; getting and spending we lay waste our powers." Happy the person who can call a few hours a day his very own — away from the frenzied, insistent demands of family, business and community. Why should the din and tumult of society stifle the nobler promptings of the heart?

Maintain your individuality. No two persons are identical. Imitation may be the source of popularity, but not of greatness.

An ancient rabbi taught: "What a difference between an earthly being and the King of the Universe." A monarch mints coins upon which he stamps his image; they are all alike. But when the King of the Universe creates men and women in his image — untold millions of them — no two are exactly alike. God made us different, it is a divine right.

Read a good book periodically. A house without books is like a room without windows. Bereft of the inspiration, information and delight of books, human growth and progress is slowed. We may not agree with the philosopher who wrote: "If all the crowns of Europe were placed at my disposal on condition that I should abandon my books and studies, I should spurn the crowns and stand by the books." But we must surely agree that the person who does not read good books has no advantage over the person who can't read them.

From the library of the Jewish Theological Seminary

Accept your limitations. Our society is built on a division of labor. All who work contribute to the whole. Everyone who does his share honestly and with diligence adds to the sum total of human welfare. The heroes and champions, the chiefs and leaders of mankind — those who rise to the apex of the pyramid — depend on the building blocks of those who labor below.

Avoid a static mind. A university president said recently that five percent of people think, 10 percent think they think, and the rest would rather die than think. Life is all flux; immobility of thought or imagination means death. Properly considered, life is not a having and a getting, but a being and a becoming. There is no hope for the satisfied person — and self-complacency is the companion of ignorance.

Eliminate envy from your life. The motto of Lord Cadogan was: "He who envies admits his inferiority." It is an ignoble passion that wastes time and energy and consumes its victims with hatred. Envy blinds us to our own virtues and blessings, and magnifies those of our neighbor — his crops are always better and his cows always give more milk. The Talmud states that when the envious camel demanded horns, they cut off his ears.

Experience the joy of service. Happiness is like perfume, you can't bring it to others without something of its aroma clinging to you. The renowned Dr. Karl Menninger once advised a patient suffering from mental distress to "Turn the key in your door, find someone who needs your help and devote yourself to him." He who does not live in some degree for others hardly lives for himself.

Cultivate the art of tolerance. We are all passengers on the spaceship Earth together. Because we live within a stone's throw of each other is no reason why we must throw stones at each other. We must learn how to accept and tolerate the faults and foibles of others, if our own infirmities and terrors are to be accepted in turn. Why must we seek to make everyone over in our own image or to have them believe as we do? Most of us have committed the Golden Rule to memory; when are we going to commit it to life?

Make optimism rather then pessimism your daily philosophy. Benjamin Disreali cites as the national motto of England: "Something will turn up." Pollyannaism must be shunned, but optimism is the spur to all creativity. Ours may not be the best of all possible worlds, just the one we must make the best of. Two travellers, one a veteran and the other a novice, were climbing in the Pyrenees. One night they were forced to sleep on a rock where the winds howled and wailed. The frightened novice cried out, "I think this must be the end." "Oh, no," said the veteran, "this is how dawn arrives in the Pyrenees."

Adopt a religious attitude toward life. At its best a religious attitude means to say Yes to the universe. An open hand accomplishes more than a closed fist. It means that despite its manifold secrets and mysteries, the world displays order and makes sense. It means that what we do makes some difference in the very fabric of the cosmos. Every tomorrow has two handles. We can take hold of it by the handle of anxiety or the handle of faith. The world may be hard to explain with God, but impossible to understand without Him.

HAPPY NEW YEAR
from
the Shelley Miller band
...flexible band size to suit your budget
416-481-1034
A Capella Music Available for Sabbath Celebrations

Oraynu Community for Secular Humanistic Judaism
formerly the Secular Jewish Association est. 1969
Children's School-Tzedakah • Hebrew • Jewish history, culture
K-Bar/Bat Mitzvah • Bayview/York Mills • Sundays 10:00-12:30
Membership inquiries welcome-Festivals • Social & educational programmes for ALL AGES • Life Cycle celebrations
For info or RH/YK tickets call(416)385-3910
RATIONAL AND SPIRITUAL JUDAISM

1947 - 1997
50th ANNIVERSARY
The Board and Staff of JEWISH VOCATIONAL SERVICE OF GREATER TORONTO wishes all its clients, friends and volunteers and members of the community a
HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
You are cordially invited to join us at our 50TH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING & AUTUMN RECEPTION
Tuesday, October 14, 1997
at
Beth Tzedec Congregation
1700 Bathurst Street
Our Guest Speaker will be
Dr. Elaine M. Todres
President, Baycrest Foundation
R.S.V.P. Joy Levy at (416) 787-1151 extension 244.

CONTEMPORARY SINGLES NETWORK INTERNATIONAL
IS PLEASED TO PRESENT A
Calendar Of Events For SINGLES DANCE PARTIES
(Non Denominational)
OCTOBER 1997
MARK THESE DATES ON YOUR CALENDAR
NEXT EVENT
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4TH
Best Western Primrose Hotel
111 Carleton Street
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11TH
Inn on the Park Hotel
1100 Eglinton Avenue East
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18TH
Radisson Hotel - Toronto-Markham
50 East Valhalla Drive
GOLDEN OLDIES DANCE*
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25TH
Toronto Marriott Hotel
Eaton Centre
525 Bay Street
*Admission $15.
HALLOWEEN WEEKEND
Admission $12. Each Party or $20. For Both
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31ST
Inn on the Park Hotel
1100 Eglinton Avenue East
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1ST
Regal Constellation Hotel
900 Dixon Road
OUR PARTIES FEATURE:
Admission $10, Best DJ
Elegant Ballrooms
Big Dance Floor
CASH PRIZES
DOOR, SPOT & GRAND PRIZE
For Complete Details
Call: (416) 410-6010

SINGLES EVENTS
Singles Events is an advertising feature of
The Canadian Jewish News
Please see the Classified section of this issue for EARLY DEADLINES for October
For rates or to place an ad, call:
Lisa at (416) 391-1836
The CJN encourages readers to direct any queries they may have on an upcoming event to the event's organizers.

ATTENTION PARTYERS! Receive a FREE Mark & Ari season pass with your membership to A NEW CHANCE Jewish Dating Service. Exclusive Offer. 398-3991

Co-ed Volleyball. MTS Presents...It's 5th Annual Co-ed Volleyball Season. Recreational & Competitive Divisions. Volleyball Registration, Sunday, Oct. 5th, 1-4pm, at Tickled Toad, 330 Steeles Ave. West. For info. call: 416-222-7111.

A low pressure dating service designed for people with little time for the dating scene. It's Just Lunch. 416- 204-1553

Darren, Mark & Ari invite you to...Long Weekend Bash III, Sun., Oct. 12, 9pm, Atlas Bar & Grill, 129 Peter St. (at Richmond), door prizes, great DJ, dance music, pool tables, enclosed patio bar featuring a complimentary BBQ & complimentary finger foods. Party includes Satellite Lounge! Admission $10. (adv), $12. (at door). TicketMaster 416-870-8000, Hotline 416-733-1419. You're never too old to dance & party - come with a group of friends!.

HIKE THE ELORA GORGE: Start the New Year off healthy! Explore the Elora Gorge during the beauty of Fall colours. Sun., Oct. 5th. Shana Tova - from Tucker Tours & The Adventure Network: 905-707-0147.

Jewish Singles Registry. Over 1450 registered. Averaging an engagement every 4 wks. 483-4151.

"Just Between Us"

שישאר בינינו

גידי קורן וחברים

בשלושה שבועות נהרגו 21 חיילים ישראליים בדרום לבנון, זאת לעומת 26 חיילים שנהרגו בלבנון בכל שנת 96. אימו של החלל האחרון, קיבוצניקית מאשדות-יעקב מאוחד אומרת: "אני מתחרטת שלא פעלתי יותר למען יציאה מלבנון". ולעומתה, אמר מנהיג החמאס שבנו הלוחם נהרג השבוע בידי צה"ל שהוא מודה לאלוהים שלקח את בנו והפך אותו לקדוש. איזו מנטאליות! איזה נהינום! אין שום צורה אפילו להתחיל לדבר עם יצורים כאלה לדעתי חייבים להגיע להסדר מהר ככל האפשר עם המתונים ביותר, עראפת ודומיו, גם אם לא אוהבים אותם, לפני שהחיבאללה יחסל גם אותם. ללא שיתוף פעולה מלא עם עראפאת אין סיכוי להשתלט על התופעה הזו. רק תראו מה עושים המוסלמים הקיצוניים באלג'יריה ובמצרים כדי להבין שבלי גישה כוללת אין לעניין הזה סיכוי. והקיצוניים היהודים! הולכים ומתיישבים בלב שכונה ערבית בירושלים. את המבנים קנה באופן חוקי יהודי חרד ממיאמי, שבעוד כמה ימים יטוס לעסקי ההימורים שלו, ויישאיר חיילים ישראלים הרוגים במהומות שתהיינה בגדה. אם המרכז המתון, גם הישראלי וגם הפלשתינאי, לא ישתלט על סדר היום, הולכת להיות תקופה קשה ביותר. אין מה להגיד - השנה החדשה לא נראית טוב. אבל מה, לפחות יש על מה להתפלל.

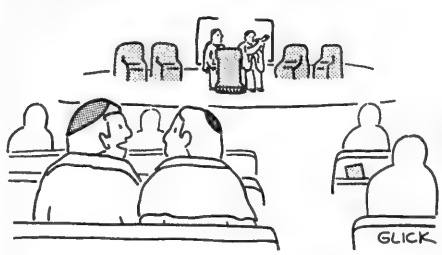
שתהיה שנה טובה.

כאשר העולם כולו רותק למסכי הטלביזיה כדי לעקוב אחרי מסעה האחרון של הנסיכה דיאנה, היה לי הכבוד לשהות כל אותו שבוע בלונדון "החמומה והמתאבלת" (לפי התיאורים בעיתונות הכתובה והמצולמת). להפתעתי חוץ מבודדים לא היה ברחובות הבירה הבריטית זכר להם, לאבל ולזעזוע עליו דיווחה התקשורת. וזה כולל את מניחי הפרחים, והאלפים שאחרי ההמתנה הממושכת בתורים האין סופיים זכו לחתום בספר האורחים, ועוד לפני שהדיו יבש על הדפים הספיקו לרוקן כוס בירה בפאבים. גם התיאטראות, המסעדות ומועדוני הריקודים חגגו עד שעות הבוקר. אז עם כל הכבוד לנסיכה שחוץ מסינדרלה, היתה אישה אצילה, אין ספק שאמצעי התקשורת ובעיקר תחנות הטלביזיה ברחבי תבל לא החמיצו הזדמנות נוספת להפוך טרגדיה למכרה זהב. וכך התחילה שטיפת מוח חסרת מעצורים שריתקה אל המסך הקטן המונים. וכמו בפרשת סימפסון, רצח רבין ואחרים, המשותף לכולם הוא רייטינג ותחרות על כיסי המפרסמים. תארו לעצמכם שדיאנה לא היתה גבוהה, לא דקיקה והעיקר דומה לחמותה, האם גם אז היתה זוכה להיות אגדה או כוכבת אופרת סבון על בית המלוכה? האם התקשורת היתה טורחת לנפח את דמותה כדי למכור לנו מוצרי צריכה? התשובה מגיעה מכלכותא הרחוקה שם נפטרה אשה צדיקה, שהקדישה את חייה לשכבות מצוקה. אך מה לעשות שמדובר בנזירה קטנה, שאופרות הסבון לא מתלבשות על דמותה המצומקת. אמנם אמא תרזה זכתה בלוויה גדולה ומכובדת, אך לעומת דיאנה קשה להתעלם מההבדל.

לא צריך להציג לאף אחד מיכם את דיויד ברוזה. מעבר ליופי המוסיקה והנגינה המושלמת בגיטרה, דיויד יצר לאלפי בני נוער יהודי וישראלי שנולדו או שוהים בצפון אמריקה גשר אל החוויה הישראלית. אין לי ספק שלו היה מתקיים משאל בנושא- היה ברוזה נבחר לזמר האהוב ביותר על בני הנוער היהודי שקשורים לישראל. מה יותר מתאים מתקופת החגים לחזק את הקשר עם הישראלי שבנו! אז להתראות בברוזה.

איפה? ב- Music Hall,147 Denforth Ave. מתי? 12 באוקטובר ב- 8 בערב. כרטיסים ב- 416-870-8000 Ticket Master.

SHMOOZIN



"It's amazing -- even in today's modern, high-tech world, our emotions are moved by something as ancient as the sound of a shofar."

Dry Bones

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

In the event of a postal strike...

UJA Federation has developed the following easy to use pledge payment options so that thousands in need can continue to count on our help.

- VISA, MASTERCARD OR AMERICAN EXPRESS.
  Call the CREDIT CARD HOTLINE (416) 631-5705
  or FAX: (416) 635-9565
- DROP OFF YOUR PAYMENT • DEBIT/CREDIT CARD SWIPE MACHINES
  at the UJA Federation office:
  Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst St., 5th floor reception
  9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., Monday-Thursday and 9:00 a.m - 4:00 p.m. on Friday.
- VISIT OUR WEB SITE:
  www.feduja.org to make a payment with security assured.
- INTERNET BANKING
- TELEBANKING
- BANK MACHINE TRANSFERS
- AUTOMATIC ACCOUNT DEBITS

For more information on participating banks and additional payment options, please contact Rick Levine (416) 631-5699.

Thank you for your commitment and understanding.

UJA FEDERATION

For One People. Forever.

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA
JNF
Send a traditional greeting for any occasion.....
Say It With Trees!
(416) 638-7200

What's New

By Miriam Herman

CANADIAN SOCIETY FOR YAD VASHEM
has moved to:
534 Lawrence Ave. W.
North York, Ont.
M6A 1A2
Tel: 416-785-1333
Fax: 416-785-4536

HOLIDAY DEADLINES

What's New and About People deadlines:

Monday, Oct. 6 - deadline for Oct. 15 issue

Friday, Oct. 10 (to 2:30 p.m.) - deadline for Oct. 22 issue

Monday, Oct. 20 - deadline for Oct. 30 issue.

I receive calls and sort my mail on deadline days only. Phone 391-1836, fax 391-0829

Saturday, Oct. 4

SHABBAT SHUVAH

Rabbi Moshe Stern delivers two Shabbat Shuvah drashot, How to Save and Strengthen Your Marriage, 3 p.m. at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue, and Materialism and Wealth - What Has It Done to Us?, 5:15 p.m. at Shaarei Tefillah Synagogue. Everyone, men and women invited.

SUNNYBROOK MINYAN

Ma'yan Or, the Sunnybrook Liberal Minyan Shabbat services, 10 a.m. to noon, Sunnybrook Jewish Chapel. Kiddush following. Hilda Harris, shamus, 480-4421, ext. 3552.

Sunday, Oct. 5

AGING AND MEMORY

The Rotman Research Institute of Baycrest Centre hosts a lecture on Aging and Memory with University of Toronto professors Dr. Fergus Craik and Dr. Cheryl Grady, at Baycrest Abe Posluns Auditorium, 2 p.m. RSVP Karen or Sania 785-2500, ext. 2616.

CUMMER LODGE

High Holy Day service for residents and next of kin at Cummer Lodge, 2 p.m., led by Cantor Ephraim Sapir of Beth Tikvah Synagogue and Carl Rees, spiritual leader of Kehilat Beit Avot at Cummer Lodge.

JEWISH STORYTELLING

Jewish Storytelling at Beit Habonim, 5 Glen Park Ave., 7:30 p.m., hosted by Alec Gelcer. All welcome to listen or tell. $3 donation. Presented by Jewish Storytelling Arts. 440-1330.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Canadian Society for Yad Vashem memorial Service at the Yad Vashem Holocaust Memorial, Earl Bales Park, 2 p.m. All organizations, schools, synagogues and landsmanshafts are invited to participate. 785-1333.

BOOK DISCUSSION

Feminist Book Discussion Group of North York chapter, Older Women's Network discusses The Swamp Angel by Ethel Wilson, 2 p.m., Barbara Frum Library. Ruth Goldsmith, 782-6414.

Monday, Oct. 6

ROMANIAN BB LODGE

B'nai Brith Romanian speaking Lodge, Dr. Filderman, meeting with Joseph Spatru who will speak about Jack Elias, 6:30 p.m., B'nai Brith Building, 15 Hove St. 631-0634.

CLUB FOR THE BLIND

The Hebrew Club for the Blind, providing social programs for its visually impaired members, meets 7:30 p.m., Bathurst Jewish Centre. Guest rabbi plus classical pianist Dr. Dina Gruber. Information, Ben Bauer, president, 905-731-7447.

Tuesday, Oct. 7

PRE-YOM KIPPUR

Kolel: A Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning pre-Yom Kippur workshop with Rabbi Ben Hollander of Jerusalem: Tshuvah: Sin and Repentance in Biblical and Rabbinic Text, 7:30-10 p.m., Bloor JCC, Wallin Lounge. Co-sponsored with Downtown Reform Minyan. $8 at door. 905-764-1329.

BIBLE STUDY GROUP

At Chug Tanach, Bible study group, Eva Dessin introduces the Book of Amos, Chapter 1, 8 p.m., Hurwich Educational Centre, 252 Finch Ave.W. Discussion in English.

Wednesday, Oct. 8

TORAH STUDY

Beth Tzedec Congregation presents Continuing the Legend of Nehama Liebowitz with Rabbi Benjamin Hollander, 7:30 p.m. Prof. Nehama Liebowitz, who died

[Cont'd. on page 33]

Price Chopper™
LOWEST PRICES GUARANTEED!*
*Refers to our local area supermarket competition.
MILK all 4L • BUTTER salted, 454 g • BREAD white, 675 g • SUGAR white, 2 kg • BANANAS • LETTUCE head • TOMATOES • POTATOES • EGGS large, 1 dozen
PRICES EFFECTIVE UNTIL SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1997

Del Monte Vegetables
Selected Varieties, 341 - 398 mL tin
.55

Mother's Fish
Assorted Varieties, 24 oz. jar
3.99

Menorah Sabbath Candles
pkg. of 72
3.69

BLACK DIAMOND CHEESE
Assorted Varieties
4.49

WESTERN SOUR CREAM
Regular or Light
.99

Streit's Farfel
7 oz. pkg.
.59

Streit's Matzo Meal
or Manischewitz, 12 oz. pkg.
1.89

Gold Borscht
32 oz. jar
1.39

Chop your PRODUCE bill!

Christmas Rose Grapes
Product of U.S.A., No. 1 Grade, 1.74 kg
.79 LB.

Cauliflower
Product of Canada, Canada No. 1
.79 EA.

MEAT Specials!

Gefelte Fish
Ungers or Monsey, Frozen
670 g pkg.
4.99 EA.

Chai Turkeys
Fresh or Frozen
3.95 kg
1.79 LB.

EVERYDAY LOW PRICES
Available only at:
6201 Bathurst Street & 5845 Leslie Street, Willowdale

What's New

[Cont'd. from page 32]

in mid-April at the age of 92, was known for her encyclopedic knowledge of Bible and commentaries.

JUDAISM BY THE BOOK

Rabbi Aaron Flanzraich discusses What Judaism Sees in Disease and Death, 7:30 p.m., Pride of Israel Synagogue.

FABRIC DOLL MAKING

Pomegranate Guild of Judaic Textiles meeting 8 p.m.; Lodzer Holocaust Congregation, 12 Heaton St. Marilyn Levy speaks on Fabric Doll Making. Sarita 789-1145.

WOMEN AND WEALTH

Seminar on Investing in Your Future: Fundamental Financial Planning, at noon (complimentary lunch), Midland Walwyn, 181 Bay St. 4th floor reception. RSVP Frances Greenwood 369-2111 or Jeffrey Silver 681-4177.

And What Else Is New

SHABBATON RETREAT

Partners in Jewish Living traditional Shabbaton retreat, Judaism Faces the Challenges of Modernity: Resolving the Conflicts, for Jews by choice, their families and singles, with scholar/educator Aaron Nussbaum, Nov. 14-16 at Maple Lake Resort and Conference Centre in Parry Sound. A project of Rabbinical Assembly, Ontario Region, funded by Action Committee on Jewish Continuity of the Jewish Federation of Greater Toronto. Registration deadline Oct. 14. Rabbi Irwin Beigel 782-1501 or Isaac Alonso 905-738-8547 or Lisa Yurkiw 499-6602.

CONCERT

Thursday Night Out Group presents David Broza in concert with Marc Jordan Sunday, Oct. 12, 8 p.m. $50 ticket includes concert and post party with performers. All proceeds go to Jewish Family & Child Service to Send a Kid to Camp. Reserve. Jordana 927-9818.

MEMORY AND AGING

Workshops, five weekly sessions starting Oct. 14 at the Wagman Centre, offer seniors information on changes that happen to memory during normal aging, led by Baycrest psychologists who also give practical tips on enhancing memory performance. $125. Assessments offered for an additional fee. Register 785-2500, ext. 2445.

THEATRE NIGHT

Na'amat-Club Aviva theatre night, the musical comedy I Love You, You're Perfect, Now Change, at New Yorker Theatre, Saturday, Nov. 8, 8 p.m. $50 (charitable donation receipt for $20). Tickets must be booked one month in advance. Doris, 905-771-7988.

ORAYNU EVENTS

Kol Nidre observance, Friday, Oct. 10, 8 p.m., North York City Hall Memorial Hall. RSVP Sarah 385-3910.

Yom Kippur discussion, Prof. Barry Olshen discusses the Book of Jonah, Saturday, Oct. 11, 2:15 p.m. North York Central Library, 2nd floor. RSVP Sarah.

KADIMAH AND USY

Kadimah and USY groups at Beth Tikvah Synagogue welcome individuals in Grades 6, 7 and 8 (Kadimah) and in Grades 9-19th birthday to come out, spend a few hours in a friendly atmosphere, renew old acquaintances, make new friends. Barbara Friedman 221-5083, local 304.

JF & CS GROUPS

Jewish Family & Child Service groups:

Relatives of Adults With Schizophrenia or Manic Depression, 6-week group, beginning Wednesdays in October, 6:30 to 8 p.m. Marsha Berniker, 638-7800. ext. 257

Self Confident Woman: to discuss self-esteem and communication skills, begins Oct. 14. Pat Lieberman 638-7800, ext. 215.

Do Your Kids Have Trouble Making Friends: for parents and kids (ages 6-18), begins Oct. 21. Pat Lieberman.

Positive Parenting groups: Your Preschooler, The School Age Child, Preteens, Surviving Your Teenager, begin Oct. 27. Pat Lieberman.

FOR SENIORS

Beth Tzedec Haverim features Chai Singers in a program of multicultural music under direction of Varda Hall Berenstein, Monday, Oct. 6, 1:30 p.m. Hurwich Boardroom. Nominal charge.

Shaarei Shomayim Friendship Club: In the planning - Monday, Nov. 3, video movie Mr. Holland's Opus ; opening musical luncheon with entertainers Ivory and Silver Monday, Nov. 10. Lena 785-5773. Golden Book donations go to Laniado Hospital in Israel. Dorothy Bloomfield 787-1526.

Aluma Canadian Israeli Club meets 7 p.m. Thursdays at 15 Hove St. (B'nai Brith Building). Oct. 9 is a movie of unusual animals in nature forest in Zaire, 7:30 p.m. Aaron Dahary 661-4689 or Malka 630-5771.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Thornhill Square Oct. 6; Washington, Atlantic City Oct. 26-31; seminar on ABCs of Fraud Nov. 4, 10 a.m.; shopping in Buffalo Nov. 5; Square One Shopping Centre Nov. 19. Activities - table tennis, shuffleboard, woodwork shop, trips day and night. 395-7881.

LZA Seniors Club registration for Miami trip 1998. Libby 782-2059. Ladies folkdancing Thursdays 1:30 p.m. Cultural discussion group Tuesdays 10 a.m. Centre is open for socializing Monday to Friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Club Hadar meets Mondays and Thursdays 1-4 p.m. at Garnet A. Williams Community Centre, 501 Clarke Ave. W., Thornhill, Room 2 for Tai Chi, discussions, bingo. Viola Gladman 905-886-2625.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE

Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living, 1003 Steeles Ave. W. 225-2112.

Uzi Grunvald of Lenscrafters adjusts glasses free of charge Tuesday, Oct. 7, 12:15 p.m.

Low Vision Support Group meeting, Peter Liu, pharmacist from Shoppers Drug Mart, discusses Medications for General Eye Conditions, Tuesday, Oct. 7, 1:30-3 p.m.

Arthritis information session, learn about related conditions. Films Understanding Osteoporosis and Arthritis Remedies: Proven and Unproven plus discussionThursday, Oct. 9, 1:30-2:30 p.m. Joan.

Arthritis Society Pain Management Clinic, Bev Tobe, therapist with Arthritis Society, will conduct individual assessments and counsel individuals on pain management, joint protection, energy conservation, Thursday, Oct. 9, 1-4:30 p.m. Book appointment at Wellness Desk.

Creative Writing class in conjunction with North York Board of Education. Instructor Sylvia Warsh Fridays 10 a.m to noon, 9 classes. Register Oct. 10. $31.50 North York residents. 491-0682 or 225-2112.

History of Music, Thursdays, 10 a.m. to noon, 9 classes, begins Oct. 9. Instructor Esther Shifrin. In cooperation with North York Board of Education. North York seniors Learning Card or $31.50.

Mass Media at the Millennium with Hugh Innis of Ryerson University, Tuesdays Oct. 7-Nov. 25, 10 a.m. Bookie Kwart.

Israeli Club Etrog meets 7 p.m. Tuesdays for movies, lectures, nostalgic sing-a-longs, dances, bingo. Nov. 7 is an Israeli movie. Anna.

Movie The Bishop's Wife Sunday, Oct. 5, 2:30 p.m.

Wednesday afternoon social Oct. 8 features entertainer Jenny Eisenstein 1:30 p.m.

BATHURST JC

Bathurst Jewish Centre, 4588 Bathurst St. 636-1880,

New prenatal and pediatric nutrition lecture series, ext. 248.

Break the Fast Run, 10 K and 15 K Sunday, Oct. 12, 9 a.m. Grant, ext. 374.

Martial Arts program with kickboxing expert David Rosenberg and 3rd degree Black Belt karate instructor Susan Adaskin plus Tai Chi. Joe Moritz, director of athletic programs, ext. 492.

BLOOR JCC

Bloor Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave. 924-6211.

High Holy Day services with Downtown Reform Minyan and The First Narayever Congregation at BJCC.

Women's Self Defence Club starting along with Scuba Divers Club. Alison.

Raptor Ball Youth Leagues for boys and girls, ages 7 to 13, learn skills, play games, attend a private Raptors practice, Fridays 5:30-7:30 p.m. or Saturdays 9-11 a.m. for 12 weeks. $60.

ABOUT PEOPLE

CANADA-ISRAEL OFFICERS

Stephen Victor, immediate past president of the Canada-Israel Committee, announces the following appointments to its board of directors: chair Brian Morris (immediate past president of B'nai Brith Canada); vice-chairs Joe Wilder and Stephen Lipper; treasurer Sheldon Lerman; secretary Norman Godfrey.

New appointments to the board include Judy Mandelman, Vancouver; Cheryl Shore, Calgary; Bruce Elman, Edmonton; Dr. Lawrence Hart, Hamilton; Shoel Silver, Toronto; Dr. Ida Berger, Kingston; Evie Bloomfield-Schacter, Montreal; Joe Gabay, Montreal.

CO-AUTHORS

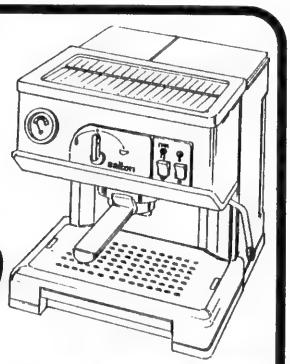
Congratulations to chiropractic radiologists and co-authors Dr. Peter Kogon (professor of radiology, Universite du Quebec a Trois Rivieres) and Dr. Marshall Deltoff (radiologist at Central Chiropractic Group in North York) on the publication and release of The Portable Skeletal X-ray Library . This new textbook is an atlas of x-ray diagnosis and will be used by chiropractors, students and interns all over the world. They are the first Canadian doctors of chiropractic, specializing in radiology, to have a textbook published by Mosby-Yearbook of St. Louis, publisher of health science books and journals.

UNITED WAY WALKATHON

Jewish Family & Child Service supports the United Way at the recent walkathon.

Salton "Espresso Pro" 22 cup Espresso Cappuccino Machine

Features an exclusive Thermoblock Heating/Pump System, Pressure Gauge all metal construction. Compare at 349.99



LOWEST PRICE EVER

$179.99

WORRY FREE!!! BRIDAL REGISTRY

Cayne's The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store

112 DONCASTER AVENUE

OPEN - MON. to WED. 10-6 • THURS. & FRI.10-9 • SAT. 10-6 • SUN. 11-5 • (905) 764-1188

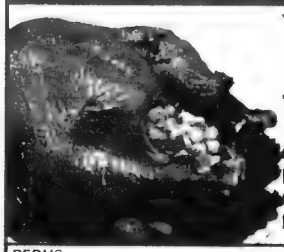
Always 1st Quality • Always Brand Names • Always Warehouse Prices

HAPPY ROSH HASHANAH

Prices Effective from Sun. September 28, 1997 until Sat. October 4, 1997

HIGHLAND FARMS

Freshness at the Right Price



YOUNG OVEN READY TURKEYS

Chai Kosher COR 218
Product of Ontario
Canada Grade A
Frozen, All Weights

1.99 LB
4.39 kg

SUN CROP ORANGE JUICE

100% Pure
Frozen Concentrated

341 ml Tin 49 EA

PERL'S BEEF & CHICKEN WIENERS
450 g Package 3.99 EA

YOPLAIT FRUIT BOTTOM YOGOURT
Assorted Flavours
Regular
Tray of 12 - 3.99
3/1.00
175 g Tub

WHOLE ROASTING CHICKENS

Chai Kosher COR 218
Product of Ontario, Canada Grade A
Fresh

4.39 kg 1.99 LB

ROMA TOMATOES

FOODLAND ONTARIO
Product of Ontario
No. 1 Grade
Fresh

9.95 Bushel

CUCUMBERS
Product of Ontario
No. 1 Grade
Fresh
Large Size
3/1.00

SCOTTIES FACIAL TISSUE

.79 EA

PERL'S MEAT PIES
•Beef •Chicken •Turkey
Frozen
230 g Package 1.69 EA

AVIVA SUNFLOWER SEED OIL
1 L Plastic Bottle 1.99 EA

CROYDEN HOUSE INSTANT CHICKEN SOUP MIX
141 g Jar 1.99 EA

GOLD'S BEET BORSCHT
.946 L Bottle 1.49 EA

GREAT CANADIAN CHEESE STICKS
Assorted Varieties
227 g Bar 2.99 EA

PEACHES & CREAM CORN

Product of Ontario
No. 1 Grade
Fresh

10/1.99

BANANAS

From the Tropics

.64 kg 29 LB

McINTOSH APPLES

Product of Ontario
Direct From Highland Farms
Orchard, Fancy Grade
Fresh
10 lb Poly Bag 3.99 EA

GOODMAN'S, QUICK & HEARTY INSTANT SOUP
Assorted Varieties
35 g Cup .99 EA

KEDEM GRAPE JUICE
•Concord •Muscat •White
1.5 L Bottle 4.99 EA

MANISCHEWITZ MATZOS
Assorted Varieties
275 g Box 2.49 EA

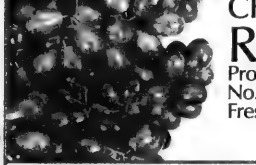
MANISCHEWITZ DRY SOUP MIX
Assorted Varieties
170 g Bag .99 EA

SUNPAC PRUNE NECTAR
Pure
1 L Bottle 1.69 EA

STRUB'S DILL PICKLES

•New •Old
1.5 L Jar

2.99 EA



CHRISTMAS ROSE RED GRAPES

Product of USA, California
No. 1 Grade
Fresh

2.18 kg 99 LB

POMEGRANATES
Product of USA, California
Fresh
Large Size 30
.99 EA

HUNT'S
•TOMATO SAUCE, 680 ml Tin
•PASTA SAUCE, Thick & Rich, 680 ml Tin
•MANWICH, 398 ml Tin
•TOMATO PASTE, 369 ml Tin

.99 EA

KOSHER PRODUCTS ONLY AVAILABLE AT DUFFERIN STORE

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
Monday thru Friday, 8 am to 10 pm
Saturday, 7 am to 10 pm
SUNDAY, 9 AM TO 5 PM

We reserve the right to limit quantities.

4750 DUFFERIN ST. AT SUPERTEST RD. (SOUTH OF STEELES AVE.)

850 ELLESMERE RD. AT KENNEDY RD.

LAWRENCE AVE. E. AT BENNETT RD.

Zionism after 100 years

They came to the Land from the many places of their dispersion. And in the very words they sang, "they built it up and were themselves rebuilt in doing so." This painting by Yochanan Simon, Sabbath in a Kibbutz, captures perfectly the essence of what they achieved.

The Canadian Jewish news

Dreams fulfilled by actions

Editorial

Early on in A History of the Jews, Solomon Grayzel, wisely points out that "it is easier to dream than to do." He offers this wisdom subtly with the keen eye of a historian and with the knowing heart of an experienced observer of human nature.

Grayzel's aphorism evokes the very familiar but far more sonorous suggestion of Theodor Herzl: "If you will it, it is no dream."

Herzl's pen inspired; it had the journalist's flare. But Grayzel's is more insightful. It is in fact, a kind of rosetta stone unlocking the truth of human achievement.

The pages of history are filled with the stories of people who actually worked hard to achieve what they dreamed. And there can never be achievement without the sheer menial, day-in-day-out, hard work that Grayzel unglamorously calls "doing." That is certainly true of the pages of the history of modern Zionism.

In this supplement, through essay and through photograph, we have attempted to make this evident.

The dream of the return to Zion was fulfilled by the actions of countless thousands of ordinary individuals – like all of us – who in their hearts and with their hands determined, simply, to do the hard work of reclaiming and rebuilding the Land to which our collective Jewish soul has been attached for more than 4,000 years.

As we prepare to usher in the new year 5758 and as we reflect on Zionism after 100 years let us remember that we are – all of us – dreamers. But if we are to advance the cause of the Jewish people and bring humanity a little bit further along the road closer to an ideal world, we must also be, as our forebears – ancient and modern – doers.

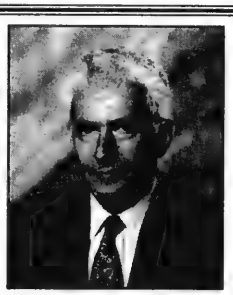
Buchenwald survivors hold tightly to the flag of the yet-to-be-born State of Israel

OUR BEST WISHES

For a Year of Peace and Serenity, Health and Happiness to our Home Buyers, Friends and Business Associates.

Greenpark™
CANADA'S LARGEST HOME BUILDER

To a Happy and Healthy New Year from



Ray Mendell

roy foss

PONTIAC • BUICK • CADILLAC • GMC TRUCKS
EVERY MAKE OF CAR AVAILABLE FOR LEASE
7200 YONGE STREET, THORNHILL
(905) 886-2000

Photo Credits

In compiling the material for this supplement, we were determined to present to CJN readers poignant archival photographs that not only highlight and enhance the articles, but tell their own stories as well. As a result, most of the photographs in the pages that follow are excerpted from Pillar of Fire: The Rebirth of Israel - A Visual History, by Yigal Lossin (Shikmona Publishing Company, 1983.) Pillar of Fire is the very best published collection of archival photographs dealing with the pre-state years of Israel of which we are aware. Unless otherwise credited, the photos are from that unique collection. MBD

Zionism after 100 years

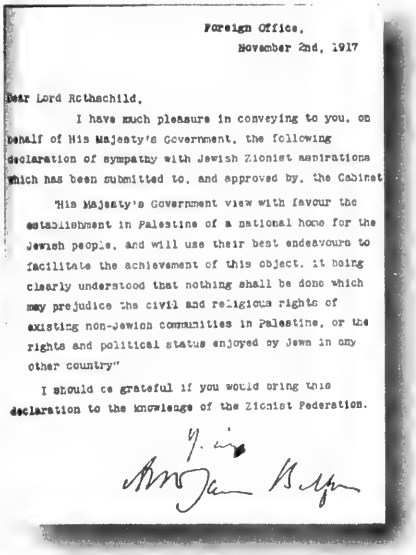
Declaration that inspired

On November 2, 1917, two days after the conquest of Be'ersheva by the British forces, as General Allenby's cavalry advanced northward towards jerusalem, Foreign Secretary Lord Arthur James Balfour wrote what he called a "declaration of sympathy with Jewish Zionist aspirations," in which the key sentence was: "His Majesty's Government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people..."

In 1906 Lord Balfour, then Prime Minister, met with Chaim Weizmann, a young scientist who lived in Manchester. In his memoirs. Weizmann tells of the meeting at which they discussed the proposal to offer Uganda as a possible haven for the Jews.

"'Mister Balfour, supposing I were to offer you Paris instead of London. Would you take it?' Balfour sat bolt upright n his char, looked at me and responded: 'But Dr. Weizmann, London is already ours.' 'This is true,' I said, 'but Jerusalem was in our hands when London was just a swamp.'He leaned back, continued to stare at me and said two things which I remember vividly. First, he asked me.: 'Are there many Jews who think the way you do?' I answered: 'I believe that I express the opinions of millions of Jews whom you will never see and who are unable to speak for themselves.' To this, he declared: 'If this be the case, then the day will come when you will indeed the power."

Forty years after that conversation, the Jewish state did have the power and its shores received immigrants from all over the world.



Foreign Office,
November 2nd, 1917

Dear Lord Rothschild,

I have much pleasure in conveying to you, on behalf of His Majesty's Government, the following declaration of sympathy with Jewish Zionist aspirations which has been submitted to, and approved by, the Cabinet.

'His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country"

I should ce grateful if you would bring this declaration to the knowledge of the Zionist Federation.

Yours sincerely,
Arthur James Balfour

FEMME
COIFFURE
SHANA TOVA
BEST WISHES FOR A HEALTHY, HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR TO ALL OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS SPA
OPENING SOON IN TORONTO
HAZELTON LANES
BAL HARBOUR SHOPS, 9700 COLLINS AVENUE, BAL HARBOUR, FL. 305-864-4400
1 GALERIES WESTMOUNT SQUARE, MONTREAL 514-934-3000
HAZELTON LANES, 87 AVENUE ROAD, TORONTO 416-515-2000

Zionism after 100 years

Hairafter
644 Finch Avenue East
(East of Bayview)
(416) 221-6658
Winners of the Combined Hairstyling World Championship
A Happy & Healthy New Year
from John Colombo & staff

Miller Bernstein & Partners
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
We would like to wish our clients & friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
Suite 1800, 20 Eglinton Avenue West,
Toronto, Ontario M4R 1K8
(416) 482-7050 Fax: (416) 482-9526
Marvin Miller, Howard Kornblum, Leon Bernstein, Fred Birnbaum, Murray Klein, Ron Kobric

Baratz, Judelman
Chartered Accountants
4116 Bathurst Street
North York, Ontario
M3H 3P2
Tel: (416) 633-6061
Fax: (416) 633-1653
Danny Y. Baratz, MBA,CA
Neill Judelman, CA
Robert A. Preisz, CA
Elaine F. Pantel, CGA
Wish All Their Clients And Friends A Happy And Healthy New Year

INDEPENDENT INSURANCE & FINANCIAL SERVICES INC
Wish all their clients & friends a Happy, Healthy New Year
Peter Waxman, Mark Waxman, John Klotz, Lewis Weinerman, Victoria Glencross
Jaymie Bongard, Paul Dicker, Greg Roberts, Ken Stein
Larry Berdugo, Paul Litman, Ken Kirsch, Burney Bongard visit us at: iifs.on.ca
20 HOLLY STREET, SUITE 207, TORONTO, ONTARIO M4S 3B1
TELEPHONE: (416) 486-3989 FAX: (416) 486-4061

This most momentous event

By PROF. EUGENE ORENSTEIN

The celebration of the centenary of the convening of the first Zionist Congress, which we marked on Aug. 29 affords us a fitting occasion to consider a few of the highlights leading up to this momentous event in modern Jewish history and some of the lessons that may be learned from the past.

A History

Zionism presents us with a paradox. It became heir to the millennial yearning of the Jewish people for its homeland, Eretz Yisrael. Despite its emotional religious intensity, the Jews' link to Palestine during 18 centuries of exile did not significantly change the Jewish way of life and accommodation to minority status in the Diaspora.

Facing Jerusalem, Jews prayed three times a day for the Return to Zion, but they did not go there in significant numbers. From time to time, individual Jews did "ascend" to the Land of Israel to live a life of pious religious observance and to be buried in the earth of the Holy Land. Sometimes messianic movements caught up individuals or even entire communities in the fervor of penitence and expectation of the imminent Redemption, but these movements soon collapsed in the despair of disillusioned hopes and the majority of the followers returned to the traditional discipline of Jewish communal life.

A plundered home in Kishinev following a pogrom in 1903.

Mainstream Jewish messianism was quietistic. It was divine providence, not human action, which would determine when and how the Jews would be redeemed from exile and return to Zion. Dehikat ha-kez, "the forcing of the end," i.e. human intervention in the divine plan of redemption, was considered dangerous and destructive. The rabbis always underscored the fact that the children of Israel were placed under an oath "not to make known the end and not forcibly to hasten the advent of the end" (Ket. 111a).

Although Zionism inherited the desire for the Restoration in Zion from Judaism, it was from the Enlightenment and the emancipation, from the growing secularization of society and the rise of modern nationalism, that it received the dynamism, the energy to translate prayer into human action in the political, social and economic arena. The traditional Jewish belief in the Return to Zion had to be freed of its supernatural eschatalogical elements in order to be transformed into modern Zionism. Historians recognize this movement as a post-emancipation phenomenon which responded to new facets of the age-old dilemma of Yisrael bein ha-amim, Israel among the nations.

HEATHER LEVITT-SIMMONS
of
CORPORATE CARS

HEATHER LEVITT-SIMMONS
Wishes all her customers, family and friends a very Happy & Healthy New Year
200 Viceroy Road, Unit #9
Concord, Ontario
(416) 736-7666

THE PARTNERS OF
Shimmerman Penn Burns Becker
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
wish their Friends, Relatives, Staff and Clients a Happy and Healthy New Year
לשנה טובה תכתבו
30 ST. CLAIR AVENUE WEST
SUITE 400
TORONTO, ONTARIO M4V 3A1
Tel: (416) 964-7200 Fax: (416) 964-2025

Israel among nations

For almost two millennia traditional Jewish life was organized in autonomous religio-national communities which were given a designated, albeit restricted, place in the corporate structure of Christian and Muslim societies. Jewish identity was clearly defined and understood by both Jews and non-Jews.

This long-established order was destroyed in the West by the French revolution which emancipated the Jews. Jews were granted civic equality but, in return, had to surrender their national separateness. As stated by Clermont Tonnere, during the debate on Jewish eman-

[Cont'd. on page B 5]

Zionism after 100 years

There were three signifcant forerunners of Zionism

[Cont'd. from page B 4]

cipation in the French National Assembly, "To the Jews as a nation — nothing, to the Jews as individuals — everything."

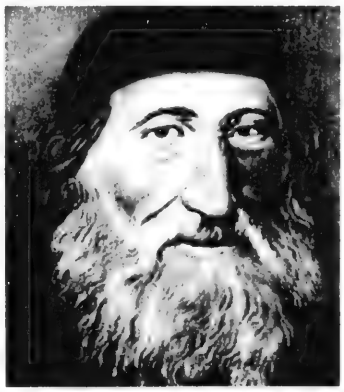
The dynamic activity of Jews in western Europe during the first half of the nineteenth century was generally concentrated on integrating into the new, rapidly changing societies of their respective states. Judaism became fragmented with the development of Reform to meet the challenges of modern society. The Jewish Enlightenment movement, the Haskalah, arose to foster the westernization and secularization of Jewish life. Several of its key features, the revitalization of Hebrew as a modern literary medium and the striving for economic "productivization" were later incorporated in Zionism. The Enlightenment ideal of equality for the adherents of all religions in civic society was soon marred by historicist exclusivism which characterized a large part of the growing nationalist movements in Europe.

It is against this background that we must view the appearance of the three most significant forerunners of Zionism in the nineteenth century, two of whom came from the traditional rabbinate, and one from the new revolutionary intelligentsia.

Rabbi Judah Hai Alkalai (1798-1878), a Sephardi born in Sarajevo and raised in Jerusalem, became rabbi of Semlin, in Serbia, in 1825. The Balkans were seething with nationalist struggles; Greeks, Serbs, Croats, Bulgarians and Romanians were just beginning to discover their national self-consciousness and to fight for their independence from the Ottoman and Austrian Empires. These national struggles were to help shape Rabbi's Alkalai's view of what the Jews must do to improve their condition. Rabbi Alkalai's traditional belief in the messianic redemption was the starting point for the transition to a modern movement based on Jewish political, social and economic activity.

In 1840, corresponding to the Jewish year 5600, there was a rash of messianic expectation among Jews throughout the Balkans and eastern Europe. The failure of the realization of these hopes coincided with the rescue of the Jewish community of Damascus, which had been charged with ritual murder. The Syrian Jews were saved by the efforts of two leading figures of French and British Jewry, Adophe Crémieux and Sir Moses Montefiore, as well as the protests of various western Jewish communities and the political pressure which they brought to bear on their respective governments.

Rabbi Alkalai's messianism began to undergo demystification as he inferred that the rescue of Damascus Jewry was a model for the process of redemption. Further stages of this process could be achieved by Jewish action. He believed that an organized Jewish resettlement of the Land of Israel was a prerequisite for the fulfilment of the divine promise of the Restoration in Zion.



Rabbi Zvi Hirsch Kalischer

Moses Hess

Rabbi Judah Hai Alkalai

Rabbi Alkalai published Hebrew works in which he developed a far-reaching plan to regain Palestine as the Jewish homeland, including the convening of a Jewish assembly to promote immigration of the first pioneers, the creation of an endowment fund (Keren Kayemet) to purchase land in Palestine, the revival of Hebrew as a spoken language, the return to agriculture and the creation of a Jewish armed force.

He even suggested that this would be achieved under the sponsorship of Great Britain. He toured western Europe to propagate his plan among Jews and gentiles. Rabbi Alkalai settled in Jerusalem in 1874.

Rabbi Zvi Hirsch Kalischer (1795-1874) is the second rabbinic figure who represents a synthesis of the traditional religious belief in shivat zion and a modern, realist approach. He, too, lived in a border area, Great Poland, much of which had been annexed by Prussia at the time of his birth. Like Rabbi Alkalai, Rabbi Kalischer's view of the course to be taken by the Jews was influenced by the national struggle in his land of residence, that of Poles and Germans, as well as by the Risorgimento and the Hungarian fight for independence. Beginning with mystical speculation about the reinstitution of animal sacrifice in Jerusalem as a means to stimulate the advent of the ultimate redemption, Rabbi Kalischer's religious devotion to the Return to Zion developed along ever-increasing concrete, practical lines. He suggested that the Jewish plutocrats, such as the Rothschilds, could purchase a charter from the

[Cont'd. on page B 6]

DORON J. GOLD, B.A., LL.B.
BARRISTER AND SOLICITOR
"A Full Service Law Firm"

- Civil Litigation
- Wills
- Commercial Law
- Employment Law
- Powers of Attorney
- Contracts
- Personal Injury
- War Survivor Claims

wishes all his clients and friends
a Happy and Healthy New Year

625 Finch Ave. W. Suite 608
North York, Ontario M2R 3W1
www3.sympatico.ca/doron/doron.html
Phone: (416) 630-9300
Fax: (416) 630-9225
E-Mail:doron@sympatico.ca

David Gold
of
GOLDEN BAY SPORTSWEAR LTD.

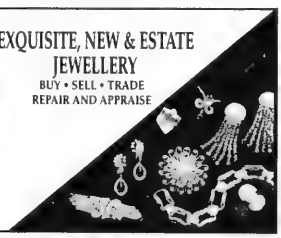
wishes all his clients and friends
a Happy and Healthy New Year

1184 Castlefield Ave.
Toronto, Ont. M6B 1G1
Phone:(416) 783-0179
Fax: (416) 785-3852

#1 DOMESTIC SERVICE Est. 1985
Wishes all their clients a Happy and Healthy New Year.
For all your High Holiday needs, from serving to preparation.
(416) 224-9907 or 630-0674

LG
Lilliane's
FINE JEWELLERY
Wishing all our customers, friends & relatives a Happy & Healthy New Year
HOTEL INTERCONTINENTAL
220 BLOOR STREET WEST
TORONTO, ONTARIO M5S 1T8
(416) 920-7676

EXQUISITE, NEW & ESTATE JEWELLERY
BUY • SELL • TRADE
REPAIR AND APPRAISE



MAXINE'S
on Avenue Road
Wishes everyone a Happy New Year
Thank you for your continued support
1938 AVENUE ROAD • TORONTO, ONTARIO M5H 4A1
(416) 781-5166

MARSHALL R.E. LTD.
Marshall Cohen
wishes all his Clients, Associates, Relatives and Friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
לשנה טובה תכתבו
Marshall Real Estate Limited Real Estate Broker
138 Bannockburn Avenue, Toronto, Ontario, M5M 2N2
Telephone (416) 961-3500 • Fax (416) 785-8415

Zionism after 100 years

Herzl presents a paradox in Zionism's history

[Cont'd. from page B 5]

Sultan of the Ottoman Empire which would grant Palestine to the Jewish people as its homeland.

Rabbi Kalischer became a critic of the traditional system of Diaspora charity which supported the Jewish religious community in Palestine (Halukkah) and argued for the creation of a self-supporting economic structure, including Jewish agriculture, which would productivize the Old Yishuv and increase the absorptive capacity of Jewish Palestine.

It is interesting to note that the model of Jewish settlement in Palestine proposed by Rabbi Kalischer foreshadowed that of later Zionist application in the combination of public and cooperative ownership with private initiative.

Rabbi Alkalai and Rabbi Kalischer were lone figures during the gestation period of modern Jewish nationalism. The synthesis of tradition and modernity which they attempted to create would not gain considerable support until the Zionist idea was launched in the world arena by Theodor Herzl, a Jew who had broken with the religious tradition and who considered the Jewish question in secular society.

An unusual forerunner of Zionism was the pioneer of modern socialism, Moses Hess (1812-1875). Estranged from the religious orthodoxy and Jewish identity of his family in his youth, he accepted assimilation as the appropriate solution for the Jews.

Hess became one of the influential members of the circle of young Left Hegelians and was the first to recognize the genius of Karl Marx. He was briefly deeply affected by Jewish suffering during the Damascus Affair of 1840 but continued to seek universal human redemption in revolutionary socialism. Hess' thought was transformed by his identification with the struggle of the oppressed nations. Inspired by the liberal nationalism of Mazzini, he came to the conclusion that human progress demanded the harmonious cooperation of all nations, each making its specific contribution to human civilization. Hess recognized the Jews as a nation and urged them to preserve their nationality by working for the revival of a Jewish state in Palestine. He identified the Mosaic Law with the early striving toward a cooperative commonwealth and thus foresaw the establishment of the Jewish state on a socialist foundation. Thus a pioneer of modern socialism also became the first socialist-Zionist thinker and published his visionary conception of the Jewish state, Rome and Jerusalem, in 1862.

Herzl speaking at the Second Zionist Congress in Basel, 1898.

At the time of its publication it had little impact. Hess' socialist comrades viewed his Zionism at best, as a foolish eccentricity, and no segment of the Jewish community was yet prepared to receive his message. Herzl "rediscovered" Hess in 1901 and expressed great admiration for him and his work.

Hess and his two rabbinic contemporaries Rabbi Alkalai and Rabbi Kalischer, symbolize two types of Zionists who were to follow: Hess and, after him, Herzl had ignored their Jewish identity and had to rediscover and reclaim it, while Rabbi Alkalai, Rabbi Kalischer and the observant Jews who later followed in their footsteps, had to demystify their traditional messianism.

Herzl himself presents another paradox in the history of Zionism. This movement had a considerable history, both intellectual as well as actual Jewish settlement in Palestine, before Herzl appeared as an adherent of the Zionist idea who wished to concertize it in political

[Cont'd. on page B 7]

FURS BY
AL GELFANT LTD.
425 Adelaide St., Ste. 400
Best wishes to our customers, relatives and friends for a Happy, Healthy & Peaceful New Year
AL & JULIA
and FAMILY

Councillor & Mrs.
Michael Feldman
wishes all his constituents in Ward 7
and all residents in the City of North York
a Healthy and Happy
New Year

Richman's Bakery
Wishing all our customers, family & friends a happy and a healthy new year.
שומר שבת • קמח ישן
Bagels
Kaisers
Rolls
Pumpernickel
Bulkas
Danish
Tortes
Wedding cakes
Bar/Bat Mitzvah cakes
Whole wheat
Pies
Rye bread
Chala
Tarts
Muffins
4119 Bathurst Street (at York Downs)
(416) 636-9710

ROBERT C. CHELIN
Doctor of Podiatric Medicine
And Staff
235 St. Clair Ave. W.
Suite 101
921-8444
wish all our patients a Happy & Healthy New Year

58 CHICAGO 58
WISHES ALL THEIR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS A VERY HEALTHY & HAPPY NEW YEAR
DISTRIBUTORS AND MANUFACTURERS OF THE FINEST QUALITY DELI & APPETIZER PRODUCTS.
MR. & MRS. HAROLD BERNHOLTZ
MR. & MRS. MAX REIKEN
MR. & MRS. SID STARKMAN
MR. & MRS. M. AMI
MR. & MRS. T. BERNHOLTZ
MR. & MRS. D. HIBBERT

EDGEPORT
HOME CORP.
wishes the Jewish Community a happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year

FERN LINDZON

Pianist • Vocalist • Bandleader Great music
for all occasions
Wishing all my clients a Happy New Year
(416) 445-9780

Zionism after 100 years

Rational action

[Cont'd. from page B 6]

form. Earlier Zionist thinkers, such as Rabbi Alkalai, Rabbi Kalischer, David Gordon, Peretz Smolenskin, M. L. Lilienblum, et al, were much more deeply rooted in Jewish life and possessed much greater knowledge of Judaism, Jewish history and culture than Herzl did. Even the Russified Dr. Leon Pinsker had been more involved in Jewish communal life than Herzl, and it was Pinsker who, in response to the pogroms of 1881, set down the basic principles of political Zionism in Autoemancipation, 1882. Herzl acknowledged that had he known of Pinsker's Autoemancipation, he would not have written Der Judenstaat. Yet it was the alienated, relatively assimilated, secular Western Jew, Herzl, who is credited as the founder of political Zionism.

There is little that is original in Herzl's Zionist writings. Most of his ideas had been presented earlier and in greater depth and with more Jewish knowledge. What Herzl succeeded in doing was to take Zionism beyond the domain of the traditional rabbis and the fledgling Jewish nationalist intellectuals who debated Zionism on the pages of tiny Hebrew periodicals read by small numbers of eastern European Jews, and place it in the arena of international politics. This was Herzl's greatest accomplishment.

Thus Herzl convened the first World Zionist Congress in Basel Aug. 29 to 31, 1897. He was intent upon bestowing this assembly with the character of a Jewish parliament and he cast himself in the role of a major political leader or even a head of state. Herzl made every effort to accentuate the political character of the Zionist movement which he was revitalizing and reshaping.

In assessing Herzl's greatness, it is particularly important to remember the universalist and humanist vision of the Jewish state as depicted in Altneuland. Herzl warned of the danger of a chauvinistic nationalism in the Jewish state but he believed that the healthy new Jewish society would reject such an attitude. Contradicting his own statement that the best form of government for the Jewish state would be "an aristocratic republic," in Altneuland Herzl presents the picture of a democratic cooperative commonwealth, a progressive society based on pluralism and tolerance.

The past 100 years of Zionist history suggest that Zionism's greatest success has been the result of transmuting the impetus of Jewish messianism into rational political action.

Professor Orenstein is the chair of the Department of Jewish Studies at McGill University.

Collectors' Postcard

This postcard became a collectors' item. It includes a panorama of some of the leaders of the Zionist movement. Clockwise from the top: Theodore Herzl, David Wolfsohn, Nahum Sokolow, Lord Arthur James Balfour, Herbert Samuel, Menachem Usishkin, Max Nordau, and in the centre, Dr. Chaim Weizmann.

[From Ariel, 1996]

GORDON LANDON
Regional Councillor

CAROLE BELL
Deputy Mayor
Regional Councillor

DONALD COUSENS
Mayor

FRED COX
Regional Councillor

BILL FISCH
Regional Councillor

Best Wishes to you and your family for a Happy and Healthy New Year from the Town of Markham Mayor and Council

BILL O'DONNELL
Councillor, Ward 1

STAN DAURIO
Councillor, Ward 2

GEORGE McKELVEY
Councillor, Ward 4

RALPH ASELIN
Councillor, Ward 5

RON MAHEU
Councillor, Ward 6

RANDY BARBER
Councillor, Ward 7

ALEX CHIU
Councillor, Ward 8

MARKHAM

Note: Ward 3 currently vacant

101 Town Centre Blvd. • (905) 477-7000

Zionism after 100 years

So much to be accomplished

Theodor Herzl's Opening Address to the First Zionist Congress

Fellow delegates: As one of those who called this Congress into being, I have been granted the privilege of welcoming you. This I shall do briefly, for if we wish to serve the cause, we should economize the valuable moments of the Congress.

There is much to be accomplished within the space of three days. We want to lay the cornerstone of the edifice which is one day to house the Jewish nation. The task is so great that we may treat it in only the simplest of terms. So far as we can now foresee, a summary of the present status of the Jewish question will be submitted within the coming three days. The tremendous bulk of material on hand is being classified by the chairmen of our committees.

We shall hear reports of the Jewish situation in the various countries. You all know, even if only in a vague way, that, with few exceptions, the situation is not cheering. Were it otherwise, we should probably not have convened.

The homogeneity of our destiny has suffered a long interruption, although the scattered fragments of the Jewish people have everywhere undergone similar ills. It is only in our days that the marvels of communication have served to bring about mutual understanding and union between isolated groups.

And in these times, so progressive in most respects, we know ourselves to be surrounded by the old, old hatred. Anti-Semitism—you know it, alas, too well—is the up-to-date designation of the movement. The first impression it made upon the Jews of today was one of astonishment, which gave way to pain and resentment. Perhaps our enemies are unaware of how deeply they wounded the sensibilities of those of us who may not have been the primary object of their attack. The very part of Jewry that is modern and cultured, which has outgrown the Ghetto and lost the habit of petty trading, was pierced to the heart. We can assert it calmly, without opening ourselves to the suspicion of appealing to the sentimental pity of our opponents. We have faced the situation squarely.

From time immemorial, the world has been misinformed about us. The sentiment of solidarity with which we have been reproached so frequently and so acrimoniously was in process of disintegrating when we were attacked by anti-Semitism. And anti-Semitism served to strengthen it anew.

We returned home, as it were, for Zionism is a home-coming to the Jewish fold even before it becomes a home-coming to the Jewish land. We, the children who have returned, find much redress under the ancestral roof, for some of our brothers have sunk deep into misery. We are made welcome in the ancient house, for it is universally known that we are not actuated by an arrogant desire to undermine that which should be revered. This will be clearly demonstrated by the Zionist platform.

Zionism has already brought about something remarkable, heretofore regarded as impossible: a close union between the ultra-modern and the ultra-conservative elements of Jewry. The fact that this has come to pass without undignified concessions on the part of either side and without intellectual sacrifices is further proof, if such proof be necessary, of the national entity of the Jews. A union of this kind is possible only on a national basis.

There will doubtlessly be discussions about an organization, the need for which is recognized by all. Organization is an evidence of the reasonableness of a movement. But there is one point which should be clearly and energetically emphasized in order to further the solution to the Jewish question: we Zionists desire not an international league,

[Cont'd. on page B 9]

Happy New Year from
Quick Silver Express Inc.
Courier Service
RADIO DISPATCHED • HAND DELIVERED
1 HOUR • 2 HOUR • SAME-DAY • OVERNIGHT
FAST • EFFICIENT • RELIABLE • INSURED
665-6670

Randall Starr
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANT
Happy & Healthy New Year
to all my clients, relatives & friends
27 Millgate Crescent
Willowdale, Ontario M2K 1L5
Tel.: (416) 224-0082 Fax: (416) 250-1586
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY

The Sacks Partnership
Chartered Accountants
Wish all our clients and friends a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year
(416) 444-1500 לשנה טובה תכתבו

Supreme Quilting (1970) Ltd.
6 Noble Street, Toronto
Herb, Glenna and Steven Finkelstein extend best wishes to customers, friends and relatives
for a happy, healthy New Year

Glenforest cleaners
Dora & Robert Klein extend best wishes for a year of Peace, Health & Happiness
3309 Yonge St. 488-6717

The Dentists of ALPHA OMEGA FRATERNITY
TORONTO ALUMNI CHAPTER extend greetings for a Healthy and Happy New Year

A Happy and Healthy New Year
MYRIAD
PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
125 Norfinch Drive
Downsview, Ontario M3N 1W8
Neil Goldenberg (416) 667-9930 Scott Paris

Ritché
Bridal Experts for over 40 Years
WISHES OUR CUSTOMERS,
FAMILY AND FRIENDS
A HAPPY NEW YEAR
1662 AVENUE ROAD
(416) 789-4378

Zionism after 100 years

A people can be helped only by its own efforts but international discussion. Needless to say, this distinction is of the utmost importance in our eyes. It is this distinction which justifies the convening of our Congress.

[Cont'd. from page B 8]

There will be no question of intrigues, secret interventions and devious methods in our ranks, but only of unhampered utterances under the constant and complete supervision of public opinion. One of the first results of our movement, even now to be perceived in its larger outlines, will be the transformation of the Jewish question into a question of Zion.

A popular movement of such vast dimensions will necessarily be attacked from many sides. Therefore, the Congress will concern itself with the spiritual means to be employed for reviving and fostering the national consciousness of the Jews. Here, too, we must struggle against misconceptions. We do not have the least intention of yielding a jot of the culture we have acquired. On the contrary, we are aiming toward a broader culture. As a matter of fact, the Jews have always been more active mentally than physically.

It was because the practical forerunners of Zionism realized this that they inaugurated agricultural work for the Jews. We shall never be able, nor shall we desire, to speak of these attempts of colonization in Palestine and in Argentina with anything other than genuine gratitude.

But they spoke the first, not the last, word of the Zionist movement. For the Zionist movement must be greater in scope if it is to be at all. A people can be helped only by its own efforts, and if it cannot help itself, it is beyond succor. But we Zionists want to rouse the people to self-help. No premature, unwholesome hopes should be awakened in this direction. This is another reason why publicity of procedure, as it is planned by our Congress, is so valuable.

Herzl on his way to the first Congress meeting

Those who give the matter careful consideration must surely admit that Zionism cannot gain its ends other than through an unreserved understanding with the political units involved. It is generally known that the difficulties of obtaining colonization rights were not created by Zionism in its present form. One wonders what motives actuate the narrators of these fables.

The confidence of the government with which we want to negotiate regarding the settlement of Jewish masses on a large scale can be gained by frank language and upright dealing.

The advantages that an entire people is able to offer in return for benefits are so considerable that the negotiations are vested with sufficient importance a priori. It would be an idle beginning to engage in lengthy discussions today regarding the legal form which the agreement will finally assume. But one thing is to be adhered to inviolably: the agreement must be based on rights and not on toleration. We have had enough experience of tol-

[Cont'd. on page B 10]

(905) 731-4440
The Batner Bookstore
BOOKS FOR EVERYONE
We wish all our customers a Happy & Healthy New Year
180 Steeles Avenue West
Steeles Square Plaza

Helen & Seymour Zweig
Grace, Gary & Tali Zweig of Reingewirtz
Paint Store Ltd.
107 BALDWIN STREET
TORONTO
(416) 977-3502
extend New Year Greetings to family, friends & customers
Benjamin Moore paints

We wish our relatives, friends, and clients a Happy and Healthy New Year
BRIEF ROTFARB WYNBERG CAPPE
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
3845 Bathurst Street
Suite 402
Downsview, Ontario
Canada M3H 3N2
Telephone: (416) 635-9080
Internet: www.brwc.com

FIREHALL SPORTS
WISHES THEIR CUSTOMERS & FRIENDS A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
170 Main Street, Unionville, Ontario Tel: 905 479-0442

SB FINANCIAL GROUP
&C SHERR BERGSTEIN & CRACKOWER
Best wishes to all our clients, friends & family for a Happy & Healthy New Year
272 LAWRENCE AVE. WEST, STE. #203 (416) 787-5763

BAGEL HAVEN BAKERY CAFE
Susanne, Louis, Rob, Galia, & all of the staff wish all their customers, relatives & friends a Happy, Healthy & Peaceful New Year
800 Steeles Avenue West
(at Bathurst St.)
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
905-738-5673
BAKERY – RESTAURANT – CATERING

For A "Sweet New Year"
Apples "n" Honey
For the holidays, enjoy the delicious flavor of Billy Bee Honey
100% pure
No additives
Premium quality and certified Kosher
COR 30
billybee HONEY
THE GROSSMAN FAMILY WISHES ALL OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
BILLY BEE HONEY PRODUCTS LTD.
68 TYCOS DR., TORONTO 789-4391

The Medicine Shoppe®
The Pharmacy That's All About Your Health™
Wishes all their customers a Happy and Healthy New Year
Stan Swartz 4256 Bathurst St. (416) 398-9898

We would like to extend our wishes for a Happy & Healthy New Year to our customers & friends
MARTIN DANIEL INTERIORS
2663 STEELES AVE. WEST
2 Blocks E. of Keele St.
667-0080

Wishing All Our Friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
CORSON TRAVEL SERVICE (1993) LTD.
491 EGLINTON AVENUE WEST
TORONTO, ONTARIO 482-2440

Harold Brown	Renee Goldhar
Fran Auld	Murray Heifetz
Donna Elkind	Sandi Grossman
Janis Goldberg	Cecile Tjoa
Sandie Corson	Bradley Brown
Sam Andrews	Marnie Toben
Sylvia Solish	Gary Swayze
Anna Khaykin	Carole Walters

Jeniva Berger

HAPPY NEW YEAR
CENTERPOINT
The Point of it All
YONGE & STEELES
THE BAY, CANADIAN TIRE, SUPERCENTRE, ZELLERS, PLUS OVER 100 OTHER STORES & SERVICES
REVENUE PROPERTIES COMPANY LIMITED

Let it be worthy of our past

[Cont'd. from page B 9]

eration and "protection" which could be revoked at any time.

Consequently, the only reasonable course of action which our movement can pursue is to work for publicly legalized guarantees.

The results of colonization as it has been carried out so far were as satisfactory as its scope permitted. It confirmed the much-disputed fitness of the Jews for agricultural work and it established this proof for all time, as the legal phrase has it. But colonization in its present form is not, and cannot be, the solution of the Jewish question. And we must admit unreservedly that it has failed to evoke much sympathy.

Why? Because the Jews know how to calculate; in fact, it has been asserted that they calculate too well. Thus if we assume that there are nine million Jews in the world, and that it would be possible to colonize ten thousand Jews in Palestine every year, the Jewish question would require nine hundred years for its solution. This would seem to be impracticable.

On the other hand, you know that to count on ten thousand settlers a year under existing circumstances is nothing short of fantastic. The Turkish government would doubtlessly unearth the old immigration restrictions immediately, and to that we would have little objection. For if anyone thinks that the Jews can steal into the land of their fathers, he is deceiving either himself or others.

Nowhere is the coming of the Jews so promptly noted as in the historic home of the race, for the very reason that it is the historic home. And it would not have been by any means in our interest to go there prematurely.

The immigration of Jews signifies an unhoped-for accession of strength for the land which is now so poor; in fact, for the whole Ottoman Empire. Besides, His Majesty the Sultan has had excellent experiences with his Jewish subjects, and he has been an indulgent monarch to them in turn. Thus, existing conditions point to a successful issue, provided the whole matter is cleverly and felicitously treated.

The financial help which the Jews can give to Turkey is by no means inconsiderable, and would serve to obviate many an internal ill from which the country is now suffering. If the Near East question is partially solved together with the Jewish question, it will surely be of advantage to all civilized peoples. The advent of Jews would bring about an improvement in the situation of the Christians in the Orient.

But it is not solely from this point of view that Zionism may reckon upon the sympathy of the nations. You know that in some lands the Jewish problem has come to mean calamity for the government. If it sides with the Jews, it is confronted by the ire of the masses; if it sides against the Jews, it may call disagreeable economic consequences down upon its head because of the peculiar influence of the Jews on world business affairs. Examples of the latter may be met with in Russia.

But if the government maintains a neutral attitude, the Jews find themselves unprotected by the established regime and rush into the arms of the revolutionaries.

Zionism, or self-help for the Jews, points to a way out of these numerous and extraordinary difficulties. Zionism is simply a peacemaker. And it suffers the usual fate of peacemakers, in being forced to fight more than anyone else.

But should the accusation that we are not patriotic figure among the more or less sincere arguments directed against our movement, this equivocal objection carries its own condemnation with it.

Nowhere can there be a question of exodus of all the Jews. Those who are able or who wish to be assimilated will remain behind and be absorbed. Once a satisfactory agreement is concluded with the various political units involved and a systematic Jewish migration begins, it will last only so long in each country as that country desires to be rid of its Jews. How will the current be stopped? Simply by the gradual decrease and the final cessation of anti-Semitism. Thus, it is that we understand and anticipate the solution of the Jewish problem.

All this has been said time and time again by my friends and by myself. We shall spare no pains to repeat it again and again until we are understood.

On this solemn occasion, when Jews have come together from so many lands at the age-long summons of nationality, let our profession of faith be solemnly repeated.

Should we not be stirred by a premonition of great events when we remember that at this moment the hopes of thousands upon thousands of our people depend upon our assemblage?

In the coming hour, the news of our deliberations and decisions will fly to distant lands, over the seven seas.

Therefore, enlightenment and comfort should go forth from this Congress. Let everyone find out what Zionism really is; Zionism, which was rumored to be a sort of thousand years' wonder, is a moral, lawful, humanitarian movement, directed toward the long yearned for goal of our people. It was possible and permissible to ignore the spoken or written utterances of individuals within our ranks. Not so with the actions of the Congress. Thus, the Congress, which is henceforth to be ruler of its discussions, must govern as a wise ruler.

Finally, the Congress will provide for its own continuance, so that we may not disperse, once more ineffectual and ephemeral. Through this Congress we are creating an agency for the Jewish people such as it has not possessed heretofore, an agency of urgent needs.

Our cause is too great to be left to the ambition or to the discretion of individuals. It must be elevated to the realm of the impersonal if it is to succeed.

And our Congress shall live forever; not only until the redemption from age-long suffering is effected, but afterwards as well. Today we are here in the hospitable limits of this free city — where shall we be next year?

But wherever we shall be and however distant the accomplishment of our task, let our Congress be earnest and high-minded, a source of welfare to the unhappy, of defiance to none, of honor to all Jewry. Let it be worthy of our past, the renown of which, though remote, is eternal!

City of Vaughan
Best wishes to our Jewish community for a
Happy and Healthy New Year

Lorna D. Jackson Mayor	Tony Carella Councillor, Ward 2
Michael Di Biase Regional & Local Councillor	Bernie Di Vona Councillor, Ward 3
Joyce Frustaglio Regional & Local Councillor	Mario G. Racco Councillor, Ward 4
Peter L. Meffe Councillor, Ward 1	Bernie Green Councillor, Ward 5

Zionism after 100 years

Hebrew was never abandoned

By DINA RIPSMAN EYLON

On August 29, 1897 the First Zionist Congress took place in Basel, Switzerland, marking the beginning of political Zionism and the initiation of a new era in Jewish history. From that point developments in the history of Zionism moved rapidly. The State of Israel has now been a reality for nearly half a century and Hebrew has been accepted as its national language.

REVIVAL OF HEBREW

It was widely maintained that Hebrew ceased to function as an everyday spoken language at the time of the last Jewish revolt against the Romans in 135 CE. However, it would be a misconception to assume that Hebrew became a "dead language," confined merely to the synagogue walls. Never actually abandoned, Hebrew survived as a "living language," and was used as the primary language for prayers, halachic and midrashic literature, philosophical works, fiction, poetry, plays and history books. The immense corpus of Hebrew writings was comparable to the Greek and Latin literatures which were composed during the same period. Moreover, Hebrew as a spoken language continued to be used in religious schools and yeshivot throughout the Diaspora, and served as a communication tool, in commerce for instance, between Jews of different origins and backgrounds.

School children demonstrate at Bergen-Belsen.

A corpus of Hebrew

Maimonides (1135-1204), who lived during the Golden Age of Spain when the Jews produced numerous religious and secular writings in Hebrew was in fact the first to rule that the study of Hebrew was a major religious duty (mitzvah). He himself wrote his philosophical and halachic works in both Arabic and Hebrew.

Interestingly, figures such as the false messiahs Eldad Ha-Danni (ninth century), David Ha-Reuveni (16th century) and Shabtai Tzevi (17th century) conversed and studied in Hebrew. Furthermore, Hebrew has prevailed as a spoken language in the different Jewish communities of Eretz Yisrael and North Africa since the third century

[Cont'd. on page B 12]

Wishing all of our clients and friends a Happy New Year.

GC GOODMAN AND CARR
BARRISTERS AND SOLICITORS

Na'amat Canada

extends Rosh Hashanah Greetings to all its members, friends and supporters.

May 5758 herald an era of understanding, tolerance and lasting peace for the State of Israel and its people to ensure a future of progress and prosperity.

May Jews everywhere be blessed with freedom,. happiness and fulfilment in their lives.

Erika Bloom National President
Vivian Reisler National Executive Director

Shanah Tovah

Best wishes for Health and Happiness at Rosh Hashanah and throughout the year

Tropicana PURE PREMIUM®

ISRAEL'S GLOBAL FINANCE LEADER WISHES YOU

A HAPPY NEW YEAR

BANK HAPOALIM
http://www.bankhapoalim.co.il

Montreal La Tour Xerox 1, Place Alexis Nihon, 3400 de Maisonneuve Blvd, West. Suite 1470, Montreal, Quebec H3Z 3B8 Tel: (514) 935-1128 Fax: (514) 935-1129
Toronto 3910 Bathurst Street, Suite 303, Downsview, Ontario M3H 5Z3 Tel: (416) 398-4250 Fax: (416) 398-4246
Head Office- 50 Rothschild Blvd.Tel Aviv, 66883, Israel. Tel:(03)5673333 Fax: (03) 5607028. And 334 branches of the group in Israel.

Official language in early years was German

[Cont'd. from page B 11]

CE. During the later days of the 19th century, following the growth of modern Zionism, Hebrew began to be taught in secular Jewish Schools in pre-state Israel even though it could not then be classified linguistically as a pure spoken language.

It is worth noting that the official language of the early Zionist congresses was German. Eventually, two camps formed within the Zionist movement: one followed Ahad Ha'am's (1856-1927) viewpoint that advocated Hebrew as the national language of the future Jewish state, and the other supported the Orthodox-Zionist party which believed that Yiddish should predominate. Following heated debates during the Zionist Congress of 1909, Hebrew was officially declared as the "Language of Zion," but controversy between Hebraists and their opponents lasted until the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948.

Two figures played a pivotal role in implementing the ideas of the return to Zion and the return of Hebrew as an everyday functional language. Theodore Herzl (1860-1904) and Eliezer Ben-Yehuda (1858-1922).

In an attempt to prevent unnecessary conflicts, Herzl made the official position of the Zionist organization on the issue of the Hebrew language "as vague as possible." Herzl grasped the limitations of Hebrew as a modern language: its restricted vocabulary and limited everyday usage rendered it awkward for communication between Jews. Years later, Herzl changed his view and realized that only Hebrew could be the national language of Eretz Yisrael.

Erroneously considered an assimilated Jew, Herzl intermittently tried to learn Hebrew. Furthermore, he hired Hebrew tutors for his children, and one of them, Trudy, was reported to converse in Hebrew quite fluently. Through the Zionist congress Herzl arranged financial assistance for Eliezer Ben-Yehuda's historical dictionary. On his last visit to Jerusalem, Herzl expressed regrets for his inability to speak

[Cont'd. on page B 13]

Eliezer Ben-Yehuda (1858-1922)

לשנה טובה תכתבו

Happy New Year

Faigie and Rubin Zimmerman

The Canadian Zionist Federation
La federation sioniste canadienne and our regional offices:

Atlantic ❖ Eastern ❖ Central ❖ Midwest ❖ Western ❖Pacific

The Aliyah Department WZO
&
The Department of Education WZO wish our members, friends and supporters

Happy New Year - שנה טובה
May you be inscribed in the book of life
גמר חתימה טובה

לשנה טובה

Best wishes for Peace, Happiness and Prosperity in the New Year

The Seagram Company Ltd.

Zionism after 100 years

Flowering Hebrew Culture

[Cont'd. from page B 12]

Hebrew, but promised to master the language by his next visit. Alas, he died prematurely at the age of 44, leaving behind a myth, perpetuated by historians, that he had no appreciation for the Hebrew language.

Herzl's contemporary, Eliezer Ben-Yehuda, was a revolutionary turned Zionist. For a while he swayed between the ideas of the Russian Revolution and his love for the Hebrew language. Ben-Yehuda understood that Hebrew should be the connecting link between Jews of different origins. He also believed that due to the increased assimilation of European Jews, Hebrew could not survive in the Diaspora. In 1881, upon arriving in Eretz Yisrael, he acknowledged the importance of reviving Hebrew as a spoken language and not just as a literary or religious tongue. Ben-Yehuda's predictions proved him to be a great visionary who followed his heart's desire with an unequivocal determination. The following anecdote related by his oldest son Itamar Ben-Avi (1882-1943) illustrates the point.

Boris Schatz (1866 - 1932)
Founder of Bezalel

Ben-Avi who has been called "the first Hebrew speaking child since Hebrew ceased to be a spoken language," recalled: "[Ben-Yehuda] was called to the Russian post office...and was notified that a sum of 100 shekels had arrived which would be turned over to him only upon signing his old name [Perlman] on the envelope. My father had of course adopted the clear Hebrew name "Ben-Yehuda." On your life! How he needed those 100 shekels at the moment! All his salary at that time, as an associate editor of the Havatzelet, was four shekels a month — laugh if you want — and with these four shekels he had to support himself, his wife and his "uneducated" son [Itamar, who was ridiculed for speaking only Hebrew]...Can you imagine the kind of greatness and heroism dis-extend best wishes for a happy and healthy New Year to members, supporters and friends.

[Cont'd. on page B 14]

CANADIAN MAGEN DAVID ADOM FOR ISRAEL

Magen David Adom, (MDA) providing Israel's emergency medical, ambulance and blood services.

ARTHUR LEVITT
National President

SHIRLEY MOSCOVITCH,
National Executive Director

Best Wishes for a Happy New Year

ZIM

ZIM ISRAEL NAVIGATION CO. (CANADA) LTD.

MONTREAL
1155 René Lévesque West
Suite 2110
Tel. (514) 875-2335
Fax (514) 875-2746

HALIFAX
Halterm Terminal
Pier "C"
Tel. (902) 422-7447
Fax (902) 429-1515

TORONTO
555 Richmond St. W.
Suite 1001
Tel. (416) 703-7301
Fax (416) 703-7310

Wishing All Our Friends A Happy Rosh Hashanah

Comfort Inn

Comfort Inn, Pointe-Claire
700 Boul. St-Jean
Pointe-Claire, Québec
H9R 3K2
(514) 697-6210

Quality Suites

Quality Suites, Pointe-Claire
6300 Transcanada Highway
Pointe-Claire, Québec
H9R 1B9
(514) 426-5060

Best Wishes to Our Clients and Friends for a Healthy and Happy New Year

Price Waterhouse

bank leumi le-Israel b.m. בנק לאומי לישראל בע"מ

MIAMI AGENCY
800 Brickell Ave., 14th Floor
Miami, Florida 33131

With a global network of more than 329 branches and offices on 5 continents we provide our customers with unparalleled service for all their banking requirements.

INTERNATIONAL BANKING
Letters of Credit
Trade Finance
International Payment Processing

COMMERCIAL BANKING
Loans
Equipment Leasing

PRIVATE BANKING

Give one of our banking professionals a call at (305) 377-6500 and find out for yourself.

Ofer Koren
First Vice President & Manager

WE WISH THE JEWISH COMMUNITY A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR

Zionism after 100 years

Ben-Yehuda saw importance of Hebrew language

[Cont'd. from page B13]

played by his decision to return from the post office empty-handed, without signing his Russian name, without getting this desired money?! But as he entered his gloomy apartment, exhausted and shaken, he could look his small family straight in the eye and utter proudly: I chose to return to you as poor as I was yesterday, but loyal and dedicated to my people — a new Jew, one of a kind."

Scholars argue whether Ben-Yehuda was the first to suggest the revival of the Hebrew language. But as Prof. Shlomo Morag, a noted linguist, concluded, Ben-Yehuda was "a steersman and man of action, wedded to his objective and unceasingly preoccupied with reconditioning a vocabulary to meet the needs of the moment..." Apparently, Ben-Yehuda's great linguistic skills were far more significant than his social activism. Indeed many other teachers, thinkers, writers and politicians dedicated their lives to the revival of modern Hebrew in other ways: C. N. Bialik, S. Y. Agnon, Y. C. Brener, M. Y. Berditshevski, A. D. Gordon, Y. M. Pines, A. M. Luncz, and lesser known David Yellin, Nissim Behar, Yoseph Meyuchas, Eliyahu Sappir, Itzhak Epstein, David Yuddelevitch, Simcha Wilkomitz and Yehuda Grazovski (Gur). The contribution of the many thousands of immigrants who flocked to Eretz Yisrael during the first half of the 20th century was not always acknowledged. They were the ones who sent their children to Hebrew schools; they were the ones who discarded their mother tongue in favor of the holy language, Hebrew.

In his weekly publication, Ha-Tzevi, Ben-Yehuda listed his newly coined words and authored an array of articles and essays concerning Zionism and the implementation of modern Hebrew. He was instrumental in choosing the Sephardi pronunciation over the Ashkenazi, and was the founding member and the leading voice of various associations, such as the "Pure Language Society" (1890), and the Language Council [also known as the Hebrew Language Committee] which in 1953 became the Academy of the Hebrew Language. All were devoted to the advancement of modern Hebrew and to seeing it encompass all facets of Jewish life, particularly in Eretz Yisrael.

Spiritual zeal

The spirit of Herzl and Ben-Yehuda, whose visions and dreams were fulfilled almost to the letter, was eloquently described by Daniel Perski (1887-1962), an acquaintance of Ben-Yehuda: "I know of only two Jews in the last generation who imprinted their spiritual zeal and their strong will on the course of the life of our people in the present and for the future — Theodore Herzl and Eliezer Ben-Yehuda. What one had done for the political revival of Israel, the other had done for its cultural revival. The common element between them is the fact that both 'made' history, both caused our national resurrection."

Dina Ripsman Eylon is a PhD candidate in Post-biblical Hebrew Language and Literature and an instructor of modern Hebrew at the University of Toronto. She is the editor of Women in Judaism: A Multidisciplinary Journal [http://www.utoronto.ca/wjudaism].

CANADIAN HADASSAH-WIZO

Wishes its members, friends and families
a Happy New Year.
May it be a year of peace, prosperity and health for all.

שתהיה השנה הבאה שנת ברכה

Patricia Joy Alpert, National President

CHAI KOSHER POULTRY

A Product of Quality. . .
. . . A Respect for Tradition
Ontario's only strictly Kosher (COR 218) Poultry Processor
Federally Inspected

NEW YEAR IS A TIME FOR REMEMBERING

We wish all our relatives, customers and friends

לשנה טובה תכתבו

May you be blessed with a happy, healthy & prosperous New Year

Chuck Weinberg & Family

115 Saulter Street South
Toronto, Ontario M4M 3K8

416-462-1313
Fax 416-462-1758
1-800-561-8132

Our Best Wishes to All
for a Happy and Healthy New Year

RICHTER, USHER & VINEBERG

CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS

2 Place Alexis Nihon
Montreal, Quebec H3Z 3C2
Telephone: (514) 934-3400

90 Eglinton Avenue East
Toronto, Ontario M4P 2Y3
Telephone: (416) 932-8000

A member of Summit International Associates, Inc

שָׁנָה טוֹבָה

MAY WE ALL BE INSCRIBED IN THE BOOK OF LIFE

FOR A HEALTHY, HAPPY, PROSPEROUS AND PEACEFUL NEW YEAR.

bank leumi בנק לאומי

Head Office - Israel 35 Yehuda Halevi St. Tel-Aviv, Israel. Mr. Ephraim Chamiel. Tel: 03-514-8670.
New York 564 - 5th Avenue New York, N.Y. 10036. Mrs. Michaela Klein. Tel: 212-626-1051
Toronto 100 Yonge St. Toronto, Ontario M5C 2W1. Mr. Mordecai Lipschitz. Tel: 416-594-0681.
Montreal 1 Westmount Square Montreal, Quebec H3Z 2P9. Mr. Eli Raz. Tel: 514-931-4457.
New York • Zurich • Geneva • London • Manchester • Channel Islands • Paris • Strasbourg • Montreal • Toronto • Los Angeles • Encino • Chicago • Miami • Frankfurt • Luxembourg • Cayman Islands • Montevideo • Puna del Este • Panama city • Buenos Aires • São Paulo • Santiago • Mexico City • Caracas • Melbourne • Hong Kong • Johannesburg

Zionism after 100 years

Hebrew writers of the second aliyah (from left) Y.H. Brenner, A.Z. Rabinowtiz, D. Shimonowitz, S.Y. Agnon. Agnon received the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1966.

Will there yet come

Will there yet come days of forgiveness and grace,
When you walk in the field as the innocent wayfarer walks,
And the soles of your feet the clover leaves caress,
Though stubble will sting you, sweet will be their stalks.

Or rain will overtake you, its thronging drops tapping
On your shoulder, your chest, your throat, your gentle head bowed.
And you walk in the wet field, the quiet in you expanding
Like light in the hem of a cloud.

And you will breathe the odor of furrow, breathing and quiet,
And you will see mirrored in the gold puddle the sun above,
And simple will be these things and life, permitted to touch,
Permitted, permitted to love.

Slowly you will walk in the field. Alone.
Unscorched by flame
Of conflagrations on roads that bristled with horror and blood. Again
You will be peaceful in heart, humble and bending
Like one of the grasses, like one of man.

by Leah Goldberg

Leah Goldberg, one of Israel's foremost poets, is of the generation of Abraham Shlonsky, Uri Greenberg and Natan Alterman.

Copoloff Insurance Agencies

Extend their very best wishes to all their associates & clients for a healthy & happy New Year

Sydney & Lottie Copoloff & family

CANADIAN FRIENDS OF CALI & AMAL
Health Care and Education in Israel
Incorporating: Canadian Association for Labour Israel, and Canadian Friends of Amal

Wishes everyone a Happy and Healthy New Year

Harry J.F. Bloomfield, Q.C.
National President - CALI

Josef Krystal
National Chairman - AMAL

Fran Kula
Executive Director

Montreal • Ottawa • Toronto • Winnipeg • Vancouver

Best wishes for a healthy and happy New Year

REFORM

Reform Party of Canada
833-4th Ave., S.W. Suite 600
Calgary, Alberta T2P 0K5
1-888-REFORM-1 www.reform.ca
Fax: (403) 269-4077

Schwartz Levitsky Feldman
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS, SENC
MONTREAL, TORONTO, OTTAWA

SLF

a tradition of excellence since 1935

A HAPPY AND HEALTHY NEW YEAR TO OUR FRIENDS AND CLIENTS

L'SHANA TOVAH

MEMBER OF BLB INTERNATIONAL

A Happy and Prosperous New Year

TD Your Bank. Your Way.®

UPON THY WALLS JERUSALEM, I HAVE SET WATCHMEN

We wish all our friends and supporters in Canada
A HAPPY, HEALTHY AND PEACEFUL NEW YEAR.
We pray that every IDF Soldier be inscribed in the Book of Life for 5758

THE ASSOCIATION FOR THE SOLDIERS OF ISRAEL
L'ASSOCIATION DES SOLDATS EN ISRAEL
788 Marlee Avenue, # 201, North York ON M6B 3K1 (416) 783-3053 toll free outside greater Toronto area - 1-800-433-6226
5255 Ferrier St. # 300, Montreal QC H4P 1L7 (514) 738-2858

HELP MAKE THEIR LIVES A LITTLE EASIER

Best Wishes for a Happy, Healthy and Peaceful New Year

Cadillac Fairview

"partners in building value"

Zionism after 100 years

Poetry by Rachel Blaustein endures forever

The poet Rachel Blaustein (1890-1931) was known affectionately and simply as Rachel of the Jezreel Valley. She lived too briefly, but her poetry endures to this very day, inspiring young and old alike through the sometimes tender, sometimes painful truths of her songs

Rachel was born in Saratov, on the Volga River in south Russia. She moved to Palestine in 1909 and soon established herself as the poet of the second aliyah, the transitional writer between the generation of Bialik and that of Shlonsky and Alterman

In his essay about the poet, Prof. Sholom Kahn says her poetry was associated with adolescence and with the pioneers who developed the kibbutzim and kvutzot of the Jezreel Valley.

"Rachel was the first whose lyric poetry was written entirely in modern Hebrew, and in the Sephardic pronunciation," Kahn writes.

"She was the the pioneer who first, spontaneously and naturally, described the experiences of a generation returning to the Land of its Fathers and to a life which included agricultural labor on its soil.

"She first gave expression to certain intimate human realities of the pioneering experience, its conflicting moods and profound frustrations. The immediacy of her appeal sprang from the personal note in her lyricism. Yet the chords she struck resounded deeply and are of universal interest and power."

And Perhaps

And perhaps it was only a dream after all?
And perhaps
I never really went forth with the dawn to toil with the sweat of my brow?

Can it be on those flaming and endless days
when we reaped,
that I never gave voice to a song as I rode on a cartful of sheaves high-heaped?

That I never did bathe in the perfect and placid blue gleam
of Kinnereth, my sea, ah Kinnereth, my own,
were you real, then, or only a dream?

Dawn

A jug of water in the hand, and on
My shoulder – basket, spade, and rake.
To distant fields – to toil – my path I make.

Upon my right, the great hills fling
Protecting arms; before me – the wide fields!
And in my heart, my twenty Aprils sing...

Be this my lot, until I be undone:
Dust of thy roads, my land, and thy
Grain waving golden in the sun!

Translated by A.M. Klein

[Cont'd. on page B 17]

Delicious, Kosher COR 83D

BREYERS

All Natural Ice Cream
& Complete Ice Cream Desserts

Shana Tova
Our very best wishes for the New Year

Breyers®

Available at your favorite supermarket

®Registered trademark of Good Humor-Breyers
Burlington, Ontario L7R 3Y5. Used under Licence

Groupe Steilmann's Team And Product Line

Would Like To Wish You

A Happy "Rosh Hashanah."

steilmann KS. SELECTION

L'Shana Tova

We extend to the Jewish Community our greetings for a happy, healthy and prosperous New Year.
May the coming year bring peace to Israel.

Canadian Friends of Bar-Ilan University
Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University
Canadian Technion Society
Canadian Friends of Tel Aviv University
Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science

Zionism after 100 years

[Cont'd. from page B 16]

To My Country
I've not sung of my country,
I've not praised its name for the booty or glory that battle yields;
just a tree – my hands planted
by Jordan's still waters, just a path – I have traced through the fields
Very poor indeed – I know it, Mother, very poor indeed
is your daughter's offering:
just a shout of joy
when morning brightens, just tears in secret
for your distress.
Translated by Sholom J. Kahn

The Echo
This I remember:
The steep wall of mountain – mountain without end;
From peak to stony peak I call,

"Hedad! To youth! May youth live long!"
And then the echo answers strong,
"May youth live long!"

The years have levelled height and hill,
But one thing I remember still:
The high clear echo ringing when
The mountains called and called again
I hear as then.

O well for him who for the day
Of anguish somehow stored away
The shining shadow of a ray
A touch, an image fleeting by,
Or but a cry.
Translated by Marie Syrkin

Rachel Blaustein

After another successful summer...

Canadian Young Judaea

and its affiliated camps...Camp Biluim, Camp Hatikvah, Camp Kadimah, Camp Kinneret, Camp Shalom, Camp Solelim and all of its Israel programs

Wish all its members and staff,

shana Tova

Register now for our Canadian Young Judaea activities across the country

Remember our 80th Anniversary celebration on November 2nd.
Please call (416) 781-5156 for tickets.

Jewish Women International of Canada wishes you a year filled with peace, health & happiness.

Anna Lee Gould National President
Penny Krowitz Executive Director

Start Your New Year Right ... Call Today ...
To Learn ...
To Laugh ...
To Make New Friends!

416-630-9313 • 514-487-2330 • 204-338-8229

L'SHANA TOVA
from
UNITED DISTILLERS

Our Very Best Wishes For The New Year

Quality Kosher Products (MK)

Zionism after 100 years

Wishing all of our valued customers and friends a very

HEALTHY & HAPPY NEW YEAR

May you be blessed in 5758.

SHOPPERS DRUG MART®

Everything you want in a drugstore®

Wishing you and your family a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year!

Bathurst & Frontenac	Sheppard & Bathurst	Eglinton & Hilltop	Bathurst & Steeles
Toronto	Downsview	Toronto	Willowdale
789-7915	635-8210	787-4961	222-5498
Mena Caparelli-Torrice	Carol D'Avolio	Kris Ramachandrian	Mary Sisco
Branch Manager	Branch Manager	Branch Manager	Branch Manager

Bank of Montreal

IT*is* POSSIBLE®

לשנה טובה תכתבו

EZRIEL REICHMAN
HARRY HANDELSMAN
ALBERT YEHROS
& THE STAFF OF
TIC TOC TOURS
&
GALAXY TRAVEL

May You AND Yours Be Inscribed In THE BOOK OF LIFE
With The Blessings Of Peace, Health And Happiness For The Year 5758

PROSPERITY

PEACE

TIC TOC TOURS
2823 BATHURST ST.
(at Glencairn)
Toronto M6B 3A4
(416) 789-7272

GALAXY TRAVEL
30 DREWRY AVE.
Willowdale
M2M 4C4
(416) 222-2507

Alternative Zionism:

By MICHAEL BROWN

Perhaps after World War II it is only natural that we have come to look upon Zionism as a movement dedicated to the renewal of Jewish political life and as the answer to anti-Semitism. To any who had doubted before, the disadvantages of powerlessness became patently clear during the Nazi era, as Hebrew University scholar Yehuda Bauer has pointed out. Never again, most Jews vowed after 1945, would the Jewish people be left entirely at the mercy of other nations. And since then, of course, the State of Israel has provided a much needed haven, not only for Holocaust survivors, but also for Jews from Arab lands and from the former Soviet Union and other countries of eastern Europe. It has taken them in, protected them from hostility, and allowed them to rebuild their lives in the new Jewish society, as Theodor Herzl had envisioned a century ago.

Its Literature

But Zionism was not born fully formed from the head of its putative father. Even before the arch-assimilationist newspaperman and playwright, Herzl, was reborn as a Zionist, other visions of Jewish national renewal had emerged with alternative — or ancillary — goals to the creation of a Jewish state. The most prominent proponent of a different Zionist vision during Herzl's own lifetime was Ahad HaAm (nee Asher Ginsberg). The latter was a not very successful businessperson (for some years he was the London representative of the Wissotzky Tea Company) who was also a somewhat cranky but very articulate and thoughtful essayist and critic. He saw in Zionism chiefly a means for the renewal of Jewish culture and the Jewish spirit.

But HaAm was also not the first of his line. His notion of spiritual Zionism was based on the Jewish cultural renewal that had its roots in the late 18th century in central Europe. That renaissance, which we know as the Haskalah or Enlightenment, moved gradually eastward into the European Jewish heartland during the 19th century.

In many ways parallel to developments among other European peoples, the Haskalah spurred a number of radical changes in Jewish society and culture. These included the transformation of Hebrew into a secular medium of communication and the creation of a modern Jewish literature in both Hebrew and Yiddish, as well as attempts to suffuse the Jewish economy with transcendent values.

Renewal of Jewish culture

During these years the hold of religion on the peoples of Europe was slackening. To a degree, the place of religion was taken by the newly secularized or partly secularized national cultures. As happened with other nations, the Irish, for example, the literary flowering fanned the fires of nationalism among the Jews. And, as with the German-speaking peoples before they turned to "race" as a unifying principle, language provided the adhesive for tying together a scattered nation no longer united by religion.

Yiddishists gave birth to Bundism and autonomism. These two ideologies, which enjoyed their hour upon the stage of history between the world wars, sought to

[Cont'd. on page B 19]

NASA

WINDOWS & DOORS INC.

Manufacturers & Insallation of
ALUMINUM & VINYL THERMO WINDOWS & DOORS

Wishes our customers & friends a Happy & Healthy New Year

Tel: (905) 761-6272 Fax: (905) 761-6274

Zionism after 100 years

Rekindling the Jewish spirit and its culture create a national life for the Jewish people in Europe based on the Yiddish language. Along with their proponents, these approaches to Jewish nationalism were extinguished by the communists and especially the Nazis. Hebraists gave birth to Zionism which set its sights on the land of Israel.

[Cont'd. from page B 18]

The relationship between culture and nationalism proved to be reciprocal. As noted, renascent Jewish culture sparked national sentiments. On the other hand, religious thinkers and secularists concerned with the fate of Judaism in the modern world looked to nationalism as a means for revitalizing the antique culture. Early leaders of the Conservative Movement in the United States, such as Solomon Schechter and Mordecai Kaplan, and a few in the American Reform Movement, such as Rabbis Judah Magnes and Stephen Wise, looked to Zionism to breathe life and a modern spirit into the ancient religion.

So, too, did the Orthodox Rabbi A. I. Kook, the first Ashkenazi chief rabbi of Palestine, as it was then known. Rabbi Kook hoped that a return to the land of Israel would cause the enlargement of Judaism which, he believed, had been too long and inappropriately confined within the narrow parameters of ritual. Kook looked forward to bringing once again under the umbrella of Judaism social policy, labor law, politics, culture, all those aspects of life over which Jews — as Jews — could exercise no control in the Diaspora. He found a willing ear among Labor Zionists who served some of his goals. HaAm was a secularist, who remained passionately rooted in Jewish culture and sought to create through Zionism a civil religion which would make the tradition viable for unbelievers and believers alike.

Chaim Nachman Bialik, "the poet laureate of the Jewish People," was yet another, essentially secular, person, who viewed Zionism as an instrument for nurturing Jewish cultural development and for reviving the Jewish spirit, which he regarded as petrified. Bialik's works reflect acute awareness of the breakdown of the traditional foundations of Jewish life at the turn of the century. Language, he believed, was the only possible replacement for religion in a post-religious age, and Hebrew was the only language that could "serve as the foundation and root" of Jewish civilization in the future.

Bialik's first homeland was Jewish Russia, particularly Odessa. Shortly after the unusually violent pogroms in Odessa and elsewhere in 1905, the poet wrote to his friend, Sholem Aleichem, that "no country was as good (for Jews) as Russia, no city as good as Odessa." Although both men were known for their humor, Bialik's statement was not a joke. What he meant was that nowhere else in the world were there both a Jewish cultural and intellectual elite and a reading public comparable to those of Russia. Only there did the two authors have a ready-made audience.

The destruction of the eastern European Jewish communities during and after World War I forced Bialik to reorient his thinking. He knew that under the communists Russian Judaism was unlikely to survive in any recognizable form. Polish Jewry had been devastated economically by war and revolution and was now endangered politically. The poet turned in two directions at once: to America and to the land of Israel.

Earlier, Bialik had shown little interest in the United States. Now, however, he realized that the Americans had the potential for providing the necessary material support for Jewish culture. He became adept at searching "for the Golden Fleece," as Chaim Weizmann puckishly referred to Zionist fundraising in the United States in a letter to the poet. More significantly for Bialik, America had become home to a considerable number of Hebrew writers and readers. He came to look upon that country, at least sometimes, as less than "total compensation for the destruction of our life in other countries of the Diaspora, but [certainly] partial compensation." Yet he remained ambivalent about the New World — he never visited Canada — for a variety of reasons which are beyond the scope of this essay.

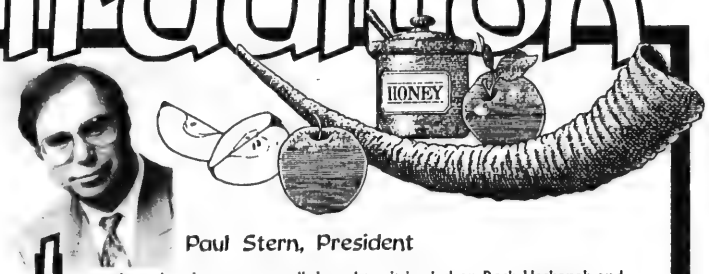
Although Bialik's early poems exhibit interest in the land of Israel, only after World War I did that country become his spiritual, as well as his political, homeland. He left Russia in 1921 with the aid of the writer, Maxim Gorky, and after a sojourn in Berlin, made aliyah three years later. In 1927, the erst-

[Cont'd. on page B 20]

Ahad Ha'am

Best Wishes for a
Very Happy & Healthy New Year
Coopers & Lybrand
145 King Street West
Toronto, Ontario M5H 1V8
(416) 869-1130
5160 Yonge Street
North York, Ontario M2N 6L3
(416) 224-2140
201 City Centre drive
Mississauga, Ontario L5B 2T4
(905) 273-4611
*Coopers & Lybrand is a member of Coopers & Lybrand International a limited liability association incorporated in Switzerland

Tradition



Paul Stern, President

I remember when I was very small, I used to sit in shul on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur snuggled up to my Saba. I'd listen to Kol Nidre mezmorized by the beauty of the words and the music . . .

And when it was time for the Shofar to sound, I'd close my eyes and puff out my cheeks and pretend that it was me blowing . . .

And there was nothing more delicious than my mother's chicken soup or my Aunt Clara's desserts.

After all these years, all the familiarity, I still look forward to Yom Tov with great excitement. Now I celebrate these times with my family and I know these traditions will carry on.

In this changing world hold on to the things you can rely on

Wishing you and your family a very Happy, Healthy, Prosperous New Year.
Thank you for making us one of your family traditions.

Paul Stern, President

PARKWOOD CENTRAL
2400 YONGE ST.
(NORTH OF EGLINGTON)
488-2400
•CHEVROLET •OLDSMOBILE
•GEO •CADILLAC

TORONTO CHRYSLER
321 FRONT ST. E.
(Where Front Meets Eastern Ave.)
368-7000

From the Partners and Staff of KPMG

Warmest wishes for a
Happy and Healthy
New Year

KPMG

Declaration of faith

[Cont'd. from page B 19]

while agnostic poet proclaimed the land of Israel to be "the single, central location towards which God has pointed His finger." It was a declaration of faith in the future of Jewish culture, and especially of the Hebrew language in that country.

Whatever might be said of America, its cultural future lay in the English language. Jewish culture there would inevitably be derivative and translated, like his own poetry which appeared in both English and Yiddish translations in the United States in these years. In fact, Bialik recognized by the mid-20s, that there would probably never again be a Diaspora as "supportive" of Jewish cultural autonomy as turn-of-the-century Russia. The best long-term hope for the Hebrew writers of the United States, the poet asserted, was that they "become rooted...in the land of Israel." Only there, he felt, was an original, creative Jewish culture in Hebrew likely to prosper. (In contrast to the United States, Bialik's own writings — in Hebrew — became basic texts of Israeli education and culture.) For that reason, he energetically supported the Zionist Movement and even agreed to participate in fundraising campaigns, an activity he generally considered beneath his dignity.

Interestingly, one of the most powerful and persuasive expositions of Spiritual and Cultural Zionism was offered in English by a Canadian — A. M. Klein, the poet laureate of Canadian Jewry from the late 1930s to his death in 1972. Klein, a Zionist activist from his school days, wrote his allusive, poetic novella, The Second Scroll, in 1951 after a visit to the new State of Israel. In it he explored the meaning of the state for the Jewish people and ultimately for all humanity.

At one level, The Second Scroll is the story of the narrator's uncle, who bears the messianic name, Melech Davidson. The latter's spiritual and physical odyssey takes him from the shtetl through the Bolshevik Revolution and the Holocaust to Rome (Christianity), Casablanca (Islam), and finally Israel, where he is murdered by Arab terrorists soon after his arrival. At another level, the novella is the story of the narrator seeking not only his uncle but also the meaning of his uncle's life and of Judaism. At yet another level, the book is an attempt to take the comparative measure of communism, Christianity, Islam, traditional Judaism, and the Zionist vision embodied in the new state. And at still another level it is about art, literature, and language, especially Hebrew. It is Klein's view of Israel which is of most interest here.

The beginning of redemption

In The Second Scroll, Israel is, first of all, the place of physical redemption for persecuted Jews. Uncle Melech is a Holocaust survivor looking for a safe haven in the Promised Land. Perhaps in traditional Jewish terms the state represents just "the beginning of redemption," since Davidson finds death there, rather than safety. Others, however, fare better. Jews are reborn, as it were. The dry bones of Ezekiel's messianic vision spring to life following the epic, if metaphorical, war of Gog and Magog (the Holocaust).

More significant for Klein than the physical rebirth of the Jewish people is their spiritual revival in

[Cont'd. on page B 21]

Chaim Nahman Bialik (left) and Uri Zvi Greenberg

Zionism after 100 years

The true beauty of words in our everday uses

[Cont'd. from page B 20]

Israel. He sees the state as a laboratory for humanity in which can be realized the exalted Jewish ideal, as opposed to the flawed Christian, Islamic, and communist ideals, to say nothing of the evil Nazi ideal. In Rome, according to The Second Scroll, the highest achievement of society is Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel. In Casablanca, it is architecture. In both places, however, beauty is attained through the degradation of human beings, most notably the Jews.

Traditional Judaism denigrates art for art's sake and any art which depicts human forms; and the Israel of Davidson and the narrator is, in that sense, artless. More acceptable than representational art from a Jewish point of view is literature, the artistry of words. This art form abounds in Israel, although Klein depicts Hebrew literature at the beginning of the '50s as derivative, insular, reactionary, and even self-hating. The true beauty of words he unexpectedly finds in everyday uses: in street names and shop signs which make of Hebrew a living language in the most immediate sense.

Klein appears to consider the only really legitimate art form to be life itself. The Messiah of Zionism has come, The Second Scroll suggests, leading his ancient people back to their homeland from a modern genesis in the shtetl, through a new exodus and a new desert wandering. In the Promised Land, they can engage once again — if allowed — in their task of making an art of life, of creating the beautiful and the good in their quotidian personal and communal lives and their everyday language. The reborn Israel is a country of Davidsons: exiles from Eden, wanderers risen from the dead come home to fashion a new life. It is a country of "metamorphosis and rejuvenation," of making "Aught from Naught."

In Israel, Melech Davidson is reflected in many people. He is a painter, a farmer, a bootblack; he is 36 refugees whose righteousness sustains the world. He is a Moroccan Jew, a German Jew, a South African Jew, a Bulgarian Jew. Melech is no man and everyman; he represents human possibility. He personifies the fulfilment of the most exalted vision of spiritual and cultural Zionism: "the divinity of humanity."

Klein's vision is inspiring although not very down-to-earth, unrealistic even as a portrait of Israel in its heroic age. But it should not be dismissed as the mere musings of a cockeyed optimist. Better, it should be seen as a utopian prism refracting the notions of cultural and spiritual Zionism expressed earlier and more soberly by Bialik, HaAm, Rabbis Kook and Magnes, and others. Most of these thinkers sympathized with Herzl's goals and appreciated the need to rescue Jews. (None of them foresaw the Holocaust; nor, for that matter, did anyone else.) But all of them dreamt of a Zionism that would uplift individual Jews and the Jewish people, as a whole, through the revitalization — in different ways — of Jewish culture, Judaism, and the Hebrew language. In setting out their goals for Zionism, they all kept in mind Hillel's question: "And if I am for mine own self, what am I?"

Michael Brown is professor of Humanities and Hebrew and director of the Centre for Jewish Studies at York University. His most recent book is The Israeli-American Connection: Its Roots in the Yishuv, 1914-1945.

A.M. Klein delivering his first speech about his trip to Israel at a Canadian Jewish Congress meeting in 1949. The trip resulted in his writing The Second Scroll.
Photos taken from Like One That Dreamed, Usher Caplan, (McGraw-Hill Ryerson, 1982)

HDA
Best wishes to our clients and friends for a Happy & Healthy New Year
Hendler Dubyk & Associates Inc.
Property Management
139 Devon Road, Unit No. 3, Brampton, Ontario L6T 5L8
Tel. (905) 790-1222 Fax (905) 790-1249

SHOPPERS DRUG MART
Happy New Year to all our customers
221 Wilmington Ave. (416) 633-8778

The Floral Studio Limited
"From Stunning Simplicity to Recreating Versailles"
&
Marie Séguin
Wish their customers a
Happy & Healthy New Year
504-1850 Fax 504-1849 504-0384
2 Stewart St. Toronto, Ontario

Art Eggleton
M.P. YORK CENTRE
My best wishes to the Jewish Community for a Peaceful, Happy & Healthy New Year
Tel: (416) 638-3700 Fax: 638-1407

TRIDEL®
wishes you a Very Happy and Healthy New Year

Zionism after 100 years

New Year Greetings
from
Mr. & Mrs. B. Javasky
ACME & AIR LITE LUGGAGE
24 INGRAM DR. 249-7165

Happy and Healthy
New Year
to all our Clients and Friends
SPRINGER & LUCAS
Chartered Accountant
Telephone (416) 488-4309

NORMAN BURNS INSURANCE
SANDY BURNS TRAVEL
Best Wishes For A Healthy, Happy New Year
416-493-4800

WISHING YOU
THE Sweetest
of NEW YEAR'S DUFFLET PASTRIES
(416) 504-2870

Enrico
BEAUTY SALON
CATHY and her staff wish all their clients
A HAPPY NEW YEAR
468 Eglinton Ave. W.
482-8055

The Klerers & Staff of HarKel
Office Furniture Ltd.
Wish their clients and friends good health, happiness and peace for the coming year
4267 Steeles Ave. West
North York
665-1461

Mr. & Mrs. Lou Gurza
and Family
of
M. GURZA
CUSTOMS BROKERS
260 Galaxy Boulevard
Rexdale, Ont. M9W 5R8 wish all their customers, relatives & friends a Happy & Healthy New Year

A Happy and Healthy New Year
FIRST SERVICE BROKERS
for all your insurance needs
180 Steeles Ave. West, Ste. 207
Thornhill
Paul A. Brown
(905) 731-5177

TES
The Employment Solution
Frank & Judith Wilson
and
Ray & Rosalie Moscoe would like to extend warm
New Year Greetings
to all their family, clients & friends
(416) 482-2420
Toronto • Mississauga • Burlington • Ottawa • Dallas

VIDEO PRODUCTIONS
by Josh
A Happy, Healthy & Prosperous New Year to all my Loyal Clients, Friends and Trade Associates. Sincere thanks for your great support.
JOSH ISRAEL
(416) 630-5558

By CHAIM N. BIALIK

THE ZIONIST DELEGATES
(to the First Zionist Congress at Basel)

Woes of your people summon you from far
Corners of exile, and their bitter cry
Has roused you; great the wonder brought to pass;
The tear breaks from its faithful fount — the eye,
Big with sweet pearls and warm, 'tis seen
Unburdened, after vigil keen.

Sure now the thronging waters stifle breath,
Evil has gained the eye's own lodgement place,
Our cry has rent the very heart of Heaven,
The grave is calling by our side for grace …
Whose heart leaps not in dread to greet
You, bless from far the hour you meet?

From ends of earth no anthems have you brought
But ancient dirges, new upon each morn,
To shew your people in the sight of sun
Tossed in their blood as waves on water borne;
They rise, they fall from trough to crest,
Whose heart with dread shall not be stressed?

'Tis good our tears in unison should fall,
Flow from the ends of exile to one urn;
Redemption fails, but our Redeemer liveth,
To come with that great hour for which we yearn:
Last left for dust shall then discern
You pioneers of our return.

And in our annals, full with tales of grief,
Shall be a treasured pearl — your sacred tear;
Who hinge the doors and set the gables, they
Will know whose hand has laid the head-stone here.
Your mem'ry in dark hours shall rest
A ne'er fading sun to the oppressed.

Translated by L.V. Snowman

MAC MOR
OF CANADA LIMITED
EXCLUSIVE CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS AND DISTRIBUTORS OF MEN'S SPORTSWEAR
London Fog
366 ADELAIDE STREET WEST, TORONTO
WISHES THE JEWISH PEOPLE EVERYWHERE A VERY HAPPY NEW YEAR
Morris & Rose Glick Max & Greta Glicksman

SHANA TOVA
YITZ'S
CATERING SERVICE
346 Eglinton Avenue W, Toronto 487-4506 Open 7 days a week

UNION
ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO. LTD.
1491 Castlefield Ave, Toronto
652-2200
Union Electric Lighting Company Limited would like to wish everyone a Healthy and Happy New Year

Zionism after 100 years

Early tensions between Zionism and religion

By PROF. MARTIN LOCKSHIN

Ask any North American Jewish fundraiser today and I'm sure he or she would agree: "If you want to put together a list of possible supporters of a Zionist project, a good place to start would be by getting a list of synagogue members." The converse is probably equally true: "If you want to start a new synagogue or a new chavurah today, start by finding a list of people who buy Israel Bonds or otherwise support the State of Israel."

RELIGIOUS RESPONSE

Proud, active Jews today in Canada are, more often than not, active both in the Jewish religion and supporters of the Zionist enterprise. To us today the combination seems perfectly natural. But this was not always the case. For the first 50 years or so of Zionism — basically from the first Zionist Congress in 1897 until just before the creation of the state — it was very likely that regular synagogue attendees in North America were cool or even inimical to Zionism, and Zionist activists, for the most part, were unmoved by and perhaps even disdainful of Jewish religious practices. It is only for around the last 50 years that Zionism and religion have been successfully wedded to each other here.

In the context of 19th century Jewish history, the tensions between religion and Zionism are understandable. Jewish intellectuals a hundred years ago generally believed that there was a "Jewish problem" in the western world and that Judaism was at least partly at fault for creating that problem. Many leaders felt that if Judaism would simply redefine itself in a way that was more appropriate for the modern world, anti-Semitism would quickly disappear.

Zionism was seen as one obvious solution to the Jewish problem. Many Zionists — from Herzl to Ben-Gurion — had no interest in or respect for institutional Jewish religion. They argued that if Judaism were to manifest itself in the standard manner of other nationalist identities, the Jewish problem would disappear.

At the same time, many or most Jewish religious leaders were claiming that Jewish identity should not be seen as a nationalistic identity. Jews of Germany were to see themselves as German nationals; Jews of France as French nationals. Their religious identity was Jewish but not their national identity.

In our modern western world those two approaches, though clearly mutually exclusive, both seem to have a certain logic. The western world knows of few group identity patterns that encompass both nationalism and religion. The anomalous nature of Judaism was seen, by non-Jews and by Jews, as a clear source of problems. Judaism, they argued, had to be "normalized" — either as a religion or as a national self-determination movement, not as both.

Accordingly, early Zionist leaders often made fun of religious practices as relics of outdated "medieval" Judaism. And religious leaders often had very strong words of criticism for Zionism. Such critics came from both Reform and Orthodox rabbis. Reform and Orthodox criticism of Zionism were not identical, but they did have much in common. (An intelligent discussion of the issues can be found in a collection of Hebrew articles entitled Zionism and its Jewish Opponents, edited by Haim Avni and Gideon Shimoni in 1990.)

Both Reform and modern Orthodox Jews of 100 years ago were convinced that the best strategy for Jews was to work hard to become loyal and trusted citizens of the countries where they lived. They saw the Zionist enterprise as counter-productive for it implied that the Jews were not and could not become true Germans or true Americans.

Just over 100 years ago when the Fourth of July fell on the Sabbath that follows the Jewish fast day of the 17th of Tamuz, the Reform Rabbi Kaufmann Kohler (who a few years later would be appointed the president of the Hebrew Union College) delivered a speech entitled Palestinian or American Judaism? at Beth-el Congregation in New York City. In that speech he argued that America represented the true future of Judaism and the true manifestation of such Jewish values as freedom and dignity.

"We [Reform Jews] behold in Jerusalem's overthrow, not a fall, but a rise to a higher glory. For us Zion stands for the fulfilment of humanity's keenest hopes and loftiest ideals ...and every "city of Brotherly Love" forms a part and link of the same. We recognize in the Fourth of July the offspring of the Sixth of Sivan....Why then should we lament over the fall of the old?"

Judaism's 'most dangerous enemy'

At a time when Jewish hopes and aspirations were being realized in the New World, Rabbi Kohler argued that it would be "a blasphemy and a lie" to pray for — or presumably to work towards — a return to Jerusalem.

Just a few years later in 1918, one of the leading neo-Orthodox thinkers in Germany, Rabbi Isaac Breuer, published his book Judenproblem in which he described Zionism as Judaism's "most dangerous enemy" ever to arise. Rabbi Breuer should not be seen as an enemy of modernity with a haredi world view. He studied law, philosophy and history in various German universities and he was employed as a lawyer. He was a spokesperson for the Orthodox school of Torah im Derekh Eretz, of a commitment to combining halachic Judaism with involvement in western culture. But being involved in western culture for Rabbi Breuer meant being a loyal German, just as being involved in western culture for Rabbi Kohler meant being a loyal American. They both saw Zionism as opposed to the political-religious goals that they had for the Jews of their countries.

Both the Orthodox Rabbi Breuer and the Reform Rabbi Kohler — whose visions of Judaism were very different one from the other — claimed to be continuing in the spirit of Rabbi Samson Rafael Hirsch, the founder of the Torah im Derekh Eretz philosophy. Rabbi Hirsch's writings left little room for

[Cont'd. on page B 24]

Zionist Conference at the Biltmore Hotel, New York in 1942.

Bath n' Bedtime
CLEARANCE CENTRE
Wish all their customers, family and friends a Happy Healthy New Year
Larry & Shawnna Minarsky
Lawrence Plaza
(Lawrence & Bathurst)
781-8600

Finkelstein, Bossin
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives, friends, clients and the people of Israel.
2 Lansing Square, Suite 703
North York, Ontario M2J 4P8
Telephone (416) 492-8484 Fax (416) 492-8798

שנה טובה
The Partners and Staff of Rosenberg Smith & Partners
Chartered Accountants
Wish their clients and friends A HAPPY, HEALTHY and PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR
Norman Rosenberg
Perry Smith
David Colodny
Henry Icyk
Stephen Rosenberg
Morry Nosak
Solutions for today – strategies for tomorrow!
2000 STEELES AVENUE WEST
SUITE 200
CONCORD, ONTARIO L4K 3E9
BUS. 416-798-4997 FAX 905-660-3064
E Mail: rsp@rsp.ca

Zionism after 100 years

Most Orthodox Jews rejected early Zionist movement

[Cont'd. from page B 23]

Zionism; he saw the Diaspora as a positive development in Jewish history that was helping the Jews accomplish their goals in the world. Rabbi Hirsch argued that land was never anything more than a means to an end in Judaism and that the Jews of the world were united by religious values, not by land. He expressed these opinions in the context of arguing in favor of Jews seeking full equal rights in Germany. (See Rabbi Hirsch's Nineteen Letters, letter 16.)

The opinions of Rabbi Kohler and Rabbi Breuer are by no means the only religious Jewish opinions at the turn of the 20th century. "Religious Zionism" existed then just as it has existed throughout history. In fact, two of the earliest modern Zionist thinkers and writers, Zevi Hirsch Kalischer and Yehudah Alkalai, were Orthodox rabbis. The Mizrachi movement, founded in 1902, insisted that true Orthodoxy should and would support the nascent Zionist movement. Conservative Judaism, from its inception, had a positive attitude to Zionism. In the Reform movement as well, the Zionist idea had its strong supporters. Even in the last years of the 19th century, the prominent Reform Rabbi Stephen Wise had already begun an illustrious Zionist career. The Reform Rabbi Judah Magnes, an active Zionist in the United States at the turn of the century, later moved to Eretz Yisrael and became the first chancellor of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Still the dominant viewpoint both within Orthodox Judaism and Reform Judaism was not that of Rabbis Kalischer, Alkalai, Wise and Magnes. The opinions of Rabbi Kohler and Rabbi Breuer predominated. Most Orthodox Jews — even "modern" Orthodox Jews — rejected the Zionist movement and were suspicious or even hostile towards the avowedly secularist chalutzim who were trying to rebuild the land. And the unambiguous official position of Reform Judaism here in North America, as expressed in the Pittsburgh platform of 1885, was that "We consider ourselves no longer a nation, but a religious community and therefore expect neither a return to Palestine ...nor the restoration of any of the laws concerning the Jewish state."

The situation in the Diaspora ba-

[Cont'd. on page B 25]

Refugee children at the port of Haifa.

Wishing our customers, family and friends A Happy Rosh Hashanah
Henry, Carol & David Szymkowicz
H&C CARPET CLEANING
(416) 499-9534

BEST WISHES FOR A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
ESTEE LEVINE
MAKEUP ARTISTRY
(905) 660-3228

H & L SECURITY SYSTEMS
AIPCO SECURITY SYSTEMS
AID SECURITY SYSTEMS
CANADA ALARMS
wishing all our customers, relatives and friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
SEMON JACOBSON
JACK SHORE
416 - 226-1161
905 - 508-7739
416 - 755-7600

Best wishes for a happy & healthy New Year to all our customers and friends
Imperial Coffee Services™ Inc.

Wishing the Jewish Community a very Happy New Year
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY
SERVICE (NATIONWIDE) INC.
WWW.TORONTODRIVEAWAY.COM
5803 Yonge Street, Suite 101 (in the Newtonbrook Plaza at Yonge-Cummer)
Willowdale 225-7754
Operating since 1959.

WHERE THE PARTY STARTS!
Times Square Entertainment Group
INTERACTIVE DJ's MC's DANCERS
LIVE BANDS PYRO LASER LIGHTS
BAR / BAT MITZVAH SPECIALISTS
WEDDINGS
CORPORATE EVENTS
RICK LEVINE 905 881-6400
happy healthy new year

Best wishes for a Year of Peace, Health & Happiness to our friends & customers from The SHELL Family and the staff at shellX COURIER SERVICE

TZ TRUSTER ZWEIG CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Best wishes to our clients and friends for a Happy and Healthy New Year
111 Granton Drive, Suite 210, Richmond Hill, Ontario L4B 1L5
(416) 222-5555 Fax: (905) 707-1322

COMFORT ALARMS
Best Wishes to all our clients, relatives & friends for a very Happy & Healthy New Year
WE'RE ALREADY PROTECTING PEOPLE YOU KNOW
905 - 886-0073

frankel's
FINE FURNITURE
Our best wishes for a Happy and Healthy New Year
Rachelle & Peter Frankel
98 DONCASTER AVE.
(905) 886-0730

Air Treatment HEATING & COOLING
NORTOWN AIR
The Experts in Mechanical Systems since 1956
We wish our Customers and Friends a Happy, Healthy and Peaceful New Year
BERNIE LITTLE • MEL LITTLE
ROBBIE LITTLE • STEVEN LITTLE • BEV LITTLE
49 DENSLEY AVENUE • NORTH YORK

Shana Tova
Heartfelt wishes for a Happy & Healthy New Year from Dr. Howard Winston, Dr. John Goldsand & Staff
CLSM
THE CENTRE FOR HEALTH & SPORTS MEDICINE
2790 Bathurst St. at Glencairn • (416) 789-2476

Rabbi Kook

[Cont'd. from page B 24]

sically mirrored what was going on in Israel. Most of the Zionist leaders — not only those from the Labor movement — felt indifference at best or hostility at worst to religion. For them, religion was a relic of the galut, and had little place in the new modern country that they were trying to build. Their feelings of disdain for religion and for religious Jews were also reciprocated. The grand majority of religious Jews in Eretz Yisrael in the early 20th century were opposed and often openly hostile to the Zionist enterprise.

Tireless worker

To be sure, a character like Rabbi Abraham Isaac Kook (who died in 1935) stands out as a tireless worker towards the goal of reconciling Zionism and religion. Rabbi Kook was not alone; he gathered around him a number of other impressive rabbis and commanded much respect among disparate groups of Jews in Eretz Yisrael and beyond. But in fact, during his lifetime his own movement of religious Zionism was very small. He had many admirers, but very few disciples or students. He had grand dreams: the full name of the yeshivah that he established — commonly known as Merkaz Harav — is Ha-Yeshivah Ha-Merkazit Ha-Olamit, The Central Yeshivah of the World. But it was not until many years after his death that any significant number of students came to study there.

Jewish thinking about the relationship of Zionism and religion has undergone very serious changes — all for the good, to my mind. Today, particularly here in the Diaspora, religious Jews — whether Reform, Orthodox or any other denomination — are almost always supporters of Zionism. It is very hard now to find a Reform Jew who would follow Rabbi Kohler's negative approach to Zionism. In the North-American Orthodox world the situation is more complex since there are still Orthodox Jews — Haredim — who do not support Zionism. But the approach of the neo-Orthodox, anti-Zionist Rabbi Breuer has very few supporters these days. Haredi anti-Zionists are usually people who reject modernity and Western culture in addition to rejecting Zionism. It is difficult today to find Orthodox Jews who take a willing part in Western culture and still reject the Zionist idea. Even Rabbi Breuer himself eventually moved to Israel to escape from Hitler's Germany and became active in the Poalei Agudat Yisrael political party, a party that is generally considered pro-Zionist or, at the very least, a "fellow traveller" of the Zionist movement.

[Cont'd. on page B 26

גמר חתימה טובה
Dr. George Adam, his family and staff
Wish All Our Patients A Happy & Healthy New Year
701 Sheppard Ave. E., Ste. 202
Willowdale, Ont. Tel. (416) 221-6464

Best Wishes for the New Year
FRANCINE BIRKEN artist in make-up
(905) 881-5527

The Staff at
MINNIE KARRAS HAIRSTYLISTS LTD. wish all of you a
HEALTHY, HAPPY NEW YEAR

Atlas Rug Co. Ltd.
A Happy and Healthy New Year to all our clients and friends
Tibor Fischer and Family
1014-16 Bathurst St. • Tel. (416) 534-4300 or 533-9002

PORTHMEOR SECURITIES INC.
New Year Greetings to our Friends and Clients
Paul K. Bates
President
(416) 361-1511

Metro Councillor
HOWARD MOSCOE
GLORIA MOSCOE
and their family
wish everyone health and peace in the New Year

MEPHISTO®
THE ULTIMATE WALKING SHOE • MADE IN FRANCE
1177 Yonge St. (Yonge & Summerhill) 968-7026
50 Bloor West (Concourse Level) 966-2568
182 Main St., Unionville 905-940-0865
לשנה טובה תכתבו

A happy & healthy New Year to our clients & friends
SOLOMON • GROSBERG
Barristers & Solicitors
Trade Mark Agents
55 University Avenue, Suite 1704, Toronto, Ontario M5J 2H7
TELEPHONE: (416) 366-7828 TELECOPIER: (416) 366-3513 CABLE ADDRESS: "LAWCAN"

DRAPERIES - SHUTTERS - BLINDS - FRENCH STRINGS
FABRICS - HARDWARE
Happy New Year to all our Clients, Family & Friends
LERNER INTERIORS
The Window Fashion Experts
(905) 475-1302
BEDSPREADS - UPHOLSTERY
INTERIOR DECORATING - VALANCES - SHADES

SPEEDY AUTO & WINDOW GLASS at SPEEDY we care
Have a Happy and Healthy New Year
FREE MOBILE SERVICE
Radio Dispatch
Call 1•800 • 434•5091

THE ROSENBERG & GLEBERZON FAMILIES & THE STAFF AT Heritage FINE CLOTHING wish all their customers, friends & relatives a happy & Healthy New Year

The partners of
Starkman, Salsberg & Feldberg
Chartered Accountants
1600 Steeles Avenue West, Suite 316
Concord, Ontario L4K 4M2
Telephone: (905) 669-9900
Fax: (905) 669-9901
Wish all their clients and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year

Klausz DENTAL LABORATORIES LTD. would like to wish you and yours a very Happy & Healthy New Year
THE KLAUSZ FAMILY

The Lawyers and Staff of Cummings, Cooper, Schusheim & Berliner
Barristers and Solicitors
Jeffrey L. Cummings
Howard G. Cooper
Ellen R. Marr
Evelyn R. Schusheim
Jeffrey H. Berliner
Catherine G. Barbaro
wish all their clients and friends a very Happy & Healthy New Year
Suite 510, 4110 Yonge Street, North York, Ont. M2P 2B7
Telephone (416) 512-9500 Facsimile (416) 512-9501

ROBINS APPLEBY & TAUB
BARRISTERS & SOLICITORS
We extend best wishes to our clients and friends for a healthy and prosperous New Year
130 Adelaide Street West, Suite 2500, Toronto, Ontario M5H 2M2
Tel. No.: (416) 868-1080 Fax No.: (416) 868-0306

Zionism after 100 years

Henrietta Szold, founder of Hadassah and director of Youth Aliyah, welcomes the "Teheran Children."

Still, some tensions

[Cont'd. from page B 25]

The situation in Israel today is much harder to analyse. The tensions between religion and Zionism there, are exacerbated by political tensions since there is no separation of "church" and state in Israel. But even in Israel there has been great progress in patching up the relationship, at least on the philosophical level, between religion and Zionism. Most religious Jews in Israel today are Zionists. Seventy-five years ago that was not the case. And anti-religious sentiment among secular Zionists just isn't what it used to be either. Although many secular Zionists are very angry about religious coercion issues in Israel, few of them feel as negatively disposed to the ideas of religion as they once did.

What caused the essential rapprochement between religion and Zionism? Why are Jews today, especially in the Diaspora, comfortable calling themselves both synagogue-goers and Zionists? When and why did the change take place? To be sure, at least within the Reform movement the changes were gradual and a pro-Zionist position evolved over time. By 1937, the Reform "Columbus Platform" had rejected the anti-Zionism of the "Pittsburgh Platform" and purposely took a neutral approach to the issue of Zionism. Still it may be possible to isolate some event or events that led to today's state of affairs, where almost all religious Jews advocate a Zionist position.

It may be that the turning point was the Shoah or the events that led up to the Shoah. How could a religious Jew reject the idea of Zion as the "safe haven" when a safe haven was so sorely needed? Or perhaps the major factor in the change was the creation — and the most impressive success — of the state. Arguably it was much easier for a religious Jew to oppose Zionism when Zionism was a risky, uncertain proposition. It makes less sense to oppose an enterprise that is as great a success as the State of Israel is.

Shoah was turning point

But I would propose that the major change in Jewish attitudes to Zionism and religion is a result of the fact that few of us really believe any more that there is such a thing as a "Jewish problem." Anti-Semitism to be sure still exists, but most of us feel that anti-Semitism is the problem of anti-Semites. We no longer feel that our behavior in some way causes anti-Semitism. We, thank God, no longer ask what we can do to "normalize" Judaism to make it more palatable to the non-Jews.

This new found Jewish self-confidence is positive for many reasons. One of the major benefits is that we Jews no longer feel a need to redefine our identity in a way that would not be perceived as "anomalous." True, our combination of religion and nationalism is not common in the modern West. But it is the traditional approach of classical Judaism and we should be very happy that now there is no shame and no danger involved in saying that we are religious Jews, of whatever denomination, and that we are also Zionists.

Prof. Lockshin teaches at York University in Toronto.

The Chmielniker Society and the Sisterhood extend best wishes to our members and friends for a happy, healthy and peaceful
New Year

The Wierzbniker Friendly Mutual Benefit Society and Ladies' Auxiliary wish all their members, friends and families
a Happy New Year.
Howard Kleinberg, President
Howard Chandler, Harold Feldman, William Kirshenblatt, Vice-Presidents

זכור

The Canadian Society for Yad Vashem extends good wishes to the entire Jewish Community
for a
Happy and Peaceful New Year

We will be holding a MEMORIAL SERVICE
at the
Yad Vashem Holocaust Memorial
Earl Bales Park, North York
2:00 P.M., SUNDAY, OCTOBER 5

All organizations, schools, synagogues and Landsmanshafts are invited to participate.

For further information and participation in above Service, call (416) 785-1333

From generation to generation . . . . . We shall remember

שנה טובה ומבורכת

THE KASHRUTH COUNCIL OF TORONTO
and
THE RABBINICAL VAAD HAKASHRUTH
Affiliated with Vaad Harabonim of Toronto
Jewish Federation of Greater Toronto
Canadian Jewish Congress

Send greetings and best wishes to the Jewish community in Canada

We hope and pray that the New Year will bring peace and success in all our endeavours

We hope and pray that the New Year השנה החדשה will be a
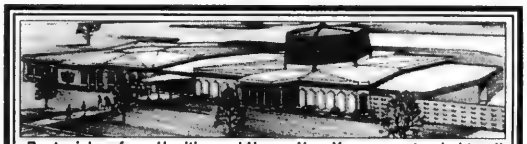
שנת שפע ואושר לכלל ולפרט
כתיבה וחתימה טובה

Yitz'hak Feldman, Q.C., Chairman, Kashruth Council
Harry Magder, Vice-Chairman
Rabbi Yitzchok Kerzner, Chairman, Rabbinical Vaad Hakashruth
Rabbi Mordechai Levin, Executive Director



Best wishes for a Healthy and Happy New Year are extended to all members and their families, and to the Jewish community by the

Pride of Israel Synagogue

Aaron Flanzraich, Rabbi — Charles Weinberg, Cantor
Steven Schonblum, Ritual Director

BOARD OF GOVERNORS
Chairman: Jack Gelber

SICK BENEFIT SOCIETY
President: Steve Goldwasser

SISTERHOOD
President: Donna Lindo

As a traditional Conservative Synagogue, we now offer a range of programs for the ENTIRE family, including •Story Hour for children on Shabbat mornings
•B'nai Brith Youth Group •Bar/Bat Mitzvah Program
•Junior Service •Singles Groups •Adult Education Classes
We are proud to welcome Caterers York (Glatt Kosher)
(under supervision of the Kashruth Council, Jewish Federation of Greater Toronto)
JOIN OUR FAMILY - CALL FOR MEMBERSHIP
Please call us for Service details or further information - 416-226-0111
L'SHANA TOVA TIKATEVU

Zionism after 100 years

Beginnings that came together

By EUGENE ROTHMAN and DAVID AZRIELI

BEGINNINGS

What constitutes the beginning of a movement? In the case of Canadian Zionism, was it the rise of a visionary leader such as Clarence de Sola? Was it the establishment of the Canadian branch of Hovevei Zion in 1887 in Montreal by Alexander Harkavy and Lazarus Cohen? Or, was it the formal foundation of a Canadian Zionist organization, Agudath Zion in 1898?

CANADIAN RESPONSE

In the end, none of these may have been the birth moment of Canadian Zionism. What is important, though, is the fact that about 100 or so years ago many beginnings came together to give shape to a century of Canadian Zionism. It is difficult to point to the exact moment of creation for this movement as an expression of Jewish national identity in Canada. But more significant is the fact that it made its rich and varied century-long journey parallel with the growth of the Canadian Jewish community and with the evolution of Canada itself.

By the end of the 19th century, Canada's Jewish community had been transformed. The early Jewish settlers in Canada came from western or central Europe and reflected these origins in their culture and outlook. However, after 1882, the arrival of thousands of poor Yiddish-speaking Jews from eastern Europe, who were generally Orthodox in their religious expression and always exuberant in their cultural expression, changed the face of Canadian Jewry.

These newcomers were the products of a culturally rich eastern European existence that emphasized religion and community. They also were refugees from a region that persecuted them and emphasized their otherness, their alienation. Combined, these formed in Europe the crucible of a Jewish national identity and the expression of that identity — Zionism as the Jewish national movement.

However, if some Jews in eastern Europe turned to the past for a Messiah who would organize the perfect Jewish world, many secular Jews looked to the rebirth of Hebrew, the remembering of Jewish history and the revival of Jewish culture as the way of achieving a more perfect Jewish condition. Still, even if secularists and traditionalists did not share a totally common view, many Jews did share a belief in the possibility of a better world for Jews, one that saw the realization of Zionism's dream — the rebuilding of a Jewish home in Palestine.

Zionism had its followers in Canada. The earliest organizational efforts were in 1887 by the scholar Alexander Harkavy, who tried to establish a Zionist presence 10 years before the First Zionist Congress in Basel, Switzerland. Even prominent Canadian non-Jews were supporters. In 1854, Henry Wentworth Monk called for the establishment of a Bank of Israel and appealed to Queen Victoria for a Jewish home in Palestine. Reverend J. W. Beaumont petitioned Benjamin Disraeli in 1872 to support "Judea for the Jews."

However, the founder of Canadian Zionism was the charismatic Montreal communal leader,

[Cont'd. on page B 28]

Golda Meir (then Myerson) visited Labor Zionist colleagues in Montreal in 1929. [Photo from Canadian Jewish Congress Archives]

CHENSTOCHOVER AID SOCIETY

Best wishes to our sisters and brothers and families for a happy, healthy and peaceful New Year. Peace in Israel.

Philip Skovronek - President — Ben Waisberg - Vice-President
Hyman Fishman - Recording Secretary

The Pultusker Landsmanshaft of Toronto wish all our members and Jews everywhere

Le Shonah Tovah Tikatevu.
May the New Year bring peace and prosperity to the State of Israel

Pinchus Rywiec, President and The Executive

Canadian Friends of Akim

wish all their members and supporters a very happy, healthy and successful New Year

The Ostrovtzer Independent Mutual Benefit Society extends best wishes to our members and friends for a

Happy, Healthy and Peaceful
New Year

FARBAND OF LITHUANIAN JEWS
MASADA CHAPTER
IN TORONTO

wish their members, friends and families
a Happy, Healthy and Peaceful New Year, and Shalom for Israel.

Israel Klaczkowski & Fay Druck, Presidents

The Board of Directors and Staff
of
Jewish Family & Child Service

Wish their clients, volunteers and Friends of JF & CS
a Healthy, Happy & Peaceful New Year

לשנה טובה תכתבו

Supported by Jewish Federation of Greater Toronto and the United Way

Moshe & Malka Chaimovitch and Family of MOSHADE
905-886-2352
wish their customers, relatives & friends
a Happy & Healthy
New Year

The Officers of the Shedlover Young Men's Society would like to wish all their members and their families
a Healthy and Happy New Year
L'Shanah Tovah

President: Martin Fruchtman
Secretary: Harry Wolfson

Bialik Hebrew Day School of Toronto its Board, Administration and Staff wish you and yours

שנה טובה ומאושרת
שנת שלום, בריאות ושגשוג
א גוט און גענדונט יאר

Zionism after 100 years

'Words cannot paint scene'

[Cont'd. from page B 27]

Clarence de Sola. In 1899, he was chosen the first president of the Federation of Zionist Societies in Canada and held that position until 1919.

In 1900, de Sola travelled to London for the Fourth Zionist Congress. He reported that "Words cannot paint the scene. Only those who have been to a Zionist Congress can realize the strength of the movement and the absolutely overwhelming enthusiasm that is at the back of it." In December, Canada's new Federation of Zionist Societies held its first Convention in Montreal with a membership of 828.

During his presidency, de Sola ensured that Zionist activity centred around three pillars: negotiations, fundraising and education. The Jewish Colonial Trust and the Jewish National Fund were causes which were successfully addressed. Other efforts were directed towards establishing Hebrew Schools and Jewish organizations across Canada while at the same time encouraging aliyah to Palestine. Zionist educational efforts were enhanced by the growth of Jewish publications throughout these years.

However, the shadow of the Great War in Europe overtook the success of the Canadian Zionist movement. The terror of 20th century warfare was unleashed in August 1914 and the most vulnerable, the Jews, suffered the greatest, particularly in Tsarist Russia.

Canadian Zionists allied themselves to the British Empire. In return, at a convention on Nov. 16, 1915, Canadian Zionists formally expressed the desire that after victory the British should help the Jewish people establish a Jewish homeland. Thus, in 1918, 500 volunteers to the Jewish Legion were recruited from Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg and points west. Together with U.S. volunteers, which included David Ben Gurion, they received military training at Windsor, Ontario and York Redoubt.

The war years also witnessed the achievement of a major steppingstone towards the realization of a Jewish homeland — the Balfour Declaration. On Nov. 2, 1917, Britain pledged to give active support to the establishment of a national home in Palestine. This pledge made the Jewish people a belligerent ally of Britain.

JNF certificate for the purchase of two trees, issued in Montreal in 1919 to Reverend Joshua Dubitsky, the chazan sheni at Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue. [Photo from Canadian Jewish Congress Archives]

De Sola was informed by the British Foreign Minister, Arthur Balfour, of the intentions of the British cabinet during the spring of 1917. On May 29 in a three-hour meeting between de Sola and Balfour at the Government House in Ottawa, the plans for a Jewish homeland in Palestine were first discussed. De Sola, along with the Canadian prime minister, Arthur Meighen, gave their support to the Declaration, which led them to believe that Britain would assume the task of setting up a Jewish homeland.

BUILDING THE YISHUV: THE INTERWAR YEARS

During the 1920s and 1930s, the Yishuv, the Jewish community in Palestine began to grow dramatically. In 1920, there were 50 agricultural settlements in Palestine. By the end of the decade this number had increased to 110. The population had multiplied almost three times to 160,000 by 1930. By 1929, there were 2,500 Jewish industrial enterprises with approximately 11,000 workers, and the value of their products totalled 2.5 million pounds sterling annually.

Back in Canada, on Jan. 19, 1919, Arthur Jacob Freiman, then the age of 38, was chosen chair of the Federation of Zionist Organizations. His wife, Lillian Freiman, 33, was named chair of Hadassah Organization of Canada. Together, as the unquestioned leaders of the Canadian Jewish community, they guided the Canadian Zionist movement throughout the interwar years.

The Canadian Jewish Congress of 1919 set out the Zionist agenda for the entire Jewish Community. The Congress declared its solidarity with the establishment of a Jewish home and called on "the

[Cont'd. on page B 29]

IGA Hometown Proud!
Wishes their friends and customers a very Happy and Healthy New Year
ROSEBURY SQUARE IGA 145 Marlee Ave., Toronto

A Happy Healthy New Year to all our customers, clients & friends
ROYAL TAXI
777-9222
Corporate Accounts Available • Wheel-Chair Accessible
Advance Reservation Accepted • Reliable Service

HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
to our customers and friends
CANADA WALLCOVERINGS CORPORATION
49 Underwriters Rd., Toronto (Scarborough) Ont. M1R 3B4 (416) 752-0000
The Isenberg Family http://www.inforamp.net/~canwall

ALAN & GLENN GELMAN
GLENNALAN MOTORS
65 BRISBANE ROAD
A Happy & Healthy New Year to our Customers, Friends and Relatives
apa Tel: (416) 665-6230

A Happy & Healthy New Year from CARS BY Kieffer
2899 STEELES AVENUE WEST
BONNIE HAYMAN NORTH YORK 416 - 650-1313 RUDY KIEFFER

BEATTIES
Wishes the Jewish community a Happy and Healthy New Year
Men's and Boys Clothiers
430 Eglinton Avenue West
Toronto, Ontario
one block west of Avenue Road
Tel: 481-4459

The Zaglembier Society of Toronto wishes all its members, their families and friends
a Happy and Healthy New Year
לשנה טובה תכתבו

Aid to Disabled Veterans of Israel
Beit Halochem Canada
We thank you for your generous support during this past year and Wish you a happy, healthy and prosperous New Year.
For them the Battle hasn't ended .....
THE NEED IS ALWAYS THERE
3101 Bathurst Street, Suite 400, Toronto, Ontario M6A 2A6
Tel.: (416) 787-8950 Fax: (416) 787-1097
Toll-free: 1-800-355-1648
E-mail: bhcan@interlog.com
Web site: www.interlog.com/~bhcan

CJC set agenda

[Cont'd. from page B 28]

peace conference to recognize the aspirations and historic claims of the Jewish people in regard to Palestine...and the development of Palestine into a Jewish commonwealth."

This was followed by a burst of organizational activity. The Canadian Ahdut Avoda was founded in Toronto in 1921. By 1922, it had branches in Montreal, Windsor, Hamilton, Winnipeg and Calgary. The Labor Zionist movement, led by M. Dickenstein, was established in 1924. In 1925, a women's division, later the Pioneer Women's Organization of Canada, was founded. Finally, under Freiman's leadership, Hadassah chapters were organized across the country.

Anti-Semitism in Canada was never far below the surface

In 1924, A. J. Freiman founded the Canadian Keren Hayesod Campaign. This educational campaign was destined to revolutionize the concept of Zionist fundraising. The campaign's objective was to build the foundation or infrastructure for Palestine's ability to absorb the halutzim or pioneers who arrived on its shores. It also became one of the most intense educational programs in Canadian Jewish history, personally linking tens of thousands of Canadian Jews with the experience of rebuilding a Jewish home.

As the 1920s ended and the 1930s began, the condition of the Jewish people throughout the world began to change, largely for the worse. Liberal ideas and institutions appeared to be losing their capacity to deal with the economic and political problems Europe was facing. These were some of the causes for the rise of fascist states, most prominently in Italy and Germany, and for unleashing of dark forces elsewhere.

Anti-Semitism in Canada was never far below the surface. Now, it violently and publicly emerged. In an attempt to bridge the gap between Jews and non-Jews, A. J. Freiman made a nation-wide radio address. Joining him was Bennett, who declared that in Palestine: The historic and ancient homeland some time again settled by the descendants of dispersed and conquered people, faith triumphs over doubt, hope over despair, with confident belief that the promises will surely be fulfilled. Such is the story of the Jews.

However, in the years that followed, Bennet's "confident belief that the promises will surely be fulfilled" were belied. The Nazis began to prepare the ground for the destruction of European Jewry; Arabs rioted in Palestine against Jewish immigration; and, in Canada, government immigration policy with respect to Jews fleeing persecution was characterized by the phrase — "none is too many."

FROM HOLOCAUST TO RENEWAL

The Holocaust was the ultimate outcome of 1,500 years of Euro-

[Cont'd. on page B 30]

New Year Greetings
to our many Jewish customers

Vito & Sam's
MEN'S HAIRGROOMING SALON

2788 BATHURST
(at Glencairn)
782-3936

TRIPLAST

Ben & Freda
Paula
Alan & Bethany
Sheldon & Susan,
Samantha and Sydney
Bokser
wish all their clients, relatives & friends a happy and healthy New Year

PUBLIC TIRE
SALES AND SERVICE LTD.

ADAM & ZELDA HARRIS
PAUL & ANNA WEINGARTEN
and Staff
Wish all our customers and friends a happy and healthy New Year
946 Lawrence Ave. W.
(at Dufferin)
Toronto, Ont.
Tel: 787-1475
Fax: 787-1072

Dr. Michael Bederman
And Staff
extend best wishes to our patients & friends for a Happy & Healthy New Year
21 Imperial Street
(416) 487-1880

L'Shana Tova
The Partners & Staff wish all our clients & friends
a Happy & Healthy New Year

SILVER GOLD GLATT & GROSMAN
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS

Murray A. Silver
Randy L. Gold
Richard E. Glatt
Sharon Grosman
James K. Angus

45 St. Clair Ave. West
Suite 200
Toronto, Ontario
M4V 1K6
Tel: (416) 967-3444
Fax: (416) 967-4945
email: silvergold@sidus.net

Members of the Board of Directors and staff of Reena and Reena Foundation
Wish all our friends and supporters in the community

Shana Tova.
May you be inscribed for a full and healthy life.

REENA
FOUNDATION

Toby and Henry Battle Developmental Centre
927 Clark Avenue W, Thornhill, Ont. L4J 8G6

Towards a better future ... integrating people with developmental handicaps into the community.

A & B PLASTIC CO. LTD.
Mr. & Mrs. Andrew Adler and Family
WISH THEIR RELATIVES AND FRIENDS
A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR

Dr. Earl Haltrecht and Dr. Daniel Pollit
and Staff
wish all our patients and friends a
Happy and Healthy New Year

LES ODES LEASING
 Corporate and Private Cars **
wishes all his clients and friends
a very Happy and Healthy New Year
1111 Finch Ave. W., Suite 110
Downsview, Ont. M3J 2E5 (416) 667-0990

COR 367 כשר
HARTMAN'S GLATT KOSHER MEATS
We wish our customers, family, friends, and the Jewish community a year filled with peace, good health & much happiness.
5974 Bathurst Street
(at Cedarcroft)
663-7779

Raisyl & Richard Saunders
of Redstone Pictures wishes you
שנה טובה
and thanks for all your support over the last year
75 Roberta Drive, North York • (416) 256-4666

Joe Volpe M.P.
Parliamentary Secretary for the Minister of Health
Riding Office: 787 Lawrence Ave. W. (416) 781-5583
May your New Year be filled with health, happiness and peace.

Adath Catering Company
Adath Catering Company
Best wishes for a happy and healthy
New Year
to all our friends
Linda Goldstein Sugar
Family & Staff
(416) 638-6522

Zionism after 100 years

Canadian Zionist agenda: immigration, statehood

[Cont'd. from page B 29]

pean and Christian anti-Semitism and the final violence with which it was put into effect by Nazi Germany. Initially, a successful war effort was the main objective for the Zionist movement. However, as the knowledge of the atrocities committed against European Jews filtered out of Europe, the Zionist agenda changed. The 1942 Biltmore Program now constituted the new thrust of the Zionist movement — the establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine.

Despite the horror of the Holocaust, few countries accepted European Jews. So the Yishuv tried to force open the gates in Palestine. In mid-1945, the first boats began to arrive in Palestine with survivors. Immigrants also arrived by land through Syria. They were violently opposed by British military authorities.

The twin thrusts of immigration and statehood also set the Canadian Zionist agenda. Following the deaths of the Freimans, leadership of the Jewish community passed to Samuel Bronfman, Harry Batshaw and Saul Hayes. They were supported in their efforts by the writer, A. M. Klein.

Both Bronfman and Hayes attended the initial conference of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945, an organization that would be crucial to the establishment of the State of Israel. In Ottawa, political and bureaucratic change in Canada created a friendlier environment. Lester Pearson was appointed deputy minister at the Department of External Affairs and his part in the negotiations was fortuitous for the Zionist movement. This was because of his strong childhood attachment to the Holy Land; his deep sympathies for the survivors; and, as one of the United Nation's founders, his commitment to its role as peacemaker.

Minority status

Later Pearson wrote that "It seemed imperative, moreover, after the annihilation of six million Jews in various centres in Europe, that arrangements should be made in at least one country in the world for the Jewish people to be definitely freed from the limitations and the fears imposed by minority status."

Another Canadian, Supreme Court Justice Ivan C. Rand, made a major contribution to the establishment of Israel. He became Canada's representative to the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine (UNSCOP). The committee was established to investigate all issues relevant to Palestine.

Rand convinced other committee members to give the Jews autonomy in their own territory. His views carried weight because as a judge, his impartiality was unquestioned. He successfully swayed the majority to call for partition and the establishment of a Jewish home.

Israel's War of Independence resulted in feverish activity in Canada. Ben Dunkelman and Ben Adelman led the recruitment of men to fight in the war. A Canadian Jewish Haganah steering committee tackled two tasks: the creation of a recruiting network among the more than 18,000 Canadian Jews who served in the War; and raising the funds needed to send Canadian volunteers to Palestine.

Enthusiasm was high. All across Canada, Canadian Jews contributed to the recruiting effort. These included Lionel Druker, D. Louis Harris, Sam Zacks, Sydney Shulemson, Moshe Myerson, Ben Adelman, Leon Crestohl, Hy Cristall, Harry Freeman, Arthur Goldberg and John Sector to name but a few.

The Canadian recruiting was financed locally. Thanks to the efforts of Sam Bronfman, Sam and Ayala Zacks, Moe Myerson, Sydney

[Cont'd. on page B 31]

Best Wishes
For a Healthy
& Happy New Year
from
INFINITI.
Welcome to visit our showroom to view our selection of I30 · Q45 · QX4
INFINITI OF YORKVILLE
100 Davenport Rd., Toronto.
Tel: (416) 975-2623

Barry Shulman
Sales Manager

SHELLEY SHIFMAN
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANT
May your New Year be Happy, Healthy and Prosperous
לשנה טובה תכתבו
Shelley & Helene Shifman
Joyce Tarek
Suite 218, 1210 Sheppard Avenue East,
North York, Ontario M2K 1E3
Telephone 416-491-6300 Fax 416-491-3975
E-mail shelleys@Istar.ca

Wishing our Clients, Friends, & Relatives a Happy, Healthy, & Successful New Year.
Evelyn Bornstein & the staff of:
EXPLANATIONS UNLIMITED EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION
(416) 730-9323
IN-HOME PRIVATE TUTORS SINCE 1980.

Happy Rosh Hashanah
from the partners and staff of Doane Raymond
לשנה טובה תכתבו
Doane Raymond
Chartered Accountants
Management Consultants
Canadian Member Firm of Grant Thornton International
Offices across Canada including:
TORONTO (416) 366-0100
MARKHAM (905) 475-1100
MISSISSAUGA (905) 568-4260

The Partners, Associates and Staff of BIRNBAUM
PRENICK
STEKEL & CO.
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
INPACT INTERNATIONAL AFFILIATE
Wish their many clients and friends
A Happy & Healthy New Year
Gerald I. Prenick
Morris Langer
David Chung-Ki Hui
Harvey G. Taraday
Mark Klingbaum
Demetria Chios
David Fluss
Suite 600, Sheppard Centre
2 Sheppard Avenue East
North York, Ontario
Canada M2N 5Y7
Telephone (416) 224-2000
Fax (416) 224-2376

ROSH HASHANAH GREETINGS

From your friends at...
Scarborough
LEXUS TOYOTA
The Leadership Dealership
2000 Eglinton Ave. E.
(Just East of Warden)
751-1530

Canadian Jews risked lives

[Cont'd. from page B 30]

Shulemson and Harry Batshaw and other sympathizers, the fundraising was an overwhelming success.

Armaments were also needed for the Yishuv. The arms and equipment procured in Canada were sent to Israel on board a schooner bought by Sam Zacks. It subsequently became the very first vessel in Israel's yet-to-be-born navy.

Finally, Canadian Jews made the ultimate sacrifice in the support of Israel: they risked their lives. Hundreds of war veterans volunteered to fight. Awaiting them in Palestine was Ben Dunkelman, a World War II veteran, who had won the DSO, for bravery at Hochwald and had reached the rank of Major with the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

One of Dunkelman's most valuable contributions was to alert the High Command to the importance of mortars in support of advancing infantry. As a result, the army's first mortar battalion was created, and it played a decisive role in many battles, particularly the capture of Tzfat.

Eventually, hundreds of Canadians joined MAHAL (Volunteers from Abroad units). And they participated actively in the drive on Nazareth; Operation Hiram in Meron; in Northern Galilee; Operation Lightning against strategic bases in Ashkelon, Ashdod, Bet Daras and Bashit; the capture of Lod Airport; the battle at Auja-el-Hafir; and, the assault on El-Arish.

Men like Joe Weiner, Zwi Zur, Dov Aldoubi, Murray Cappell, Lionel Druker, Arthur Goldberg, Irving Kaplansky and Moe Dankovy, Norman Levy, and Leo Heaps served in the land defence of Israel. Others such as Eddie Kaplansky and David Panar joined the Israeli Air Force. Many non-Jews volunteered as pilots, including George F. Beurling, John McElroy, and Ben Sturrey.

Death did not distinguish between Jew and Gentile. Among those who fought and died were Wilf Cantor, Willie Fisher, Fred Stevenson, and Ralph Moster, to name only a few.

Ben Dunkelman as a young volunteer in Palestine. Photo from Dual Allegiance, B. Dunkelman, (Crown Publishers Inc., New York, 1976)

BEYOND STATEHOOD: THE NEW CHALLENGES

The establishment and recognition of the State of Israel led to a new Zionist program. There was the need to nurture close ties between the governments of Israel and of Canada. Israel's efforts at nation-building required massive support. A new relationship between the Diaspora and the Jewish State had to be defined. These were the challenges.

The Canadian Jewish community worked tirelessly to bring both countries closer. Its material contributions from the beginning was among the highest in the world. On a per capita basis, Canadian Jewish support for Israel was twice as great as that of the American Jewish community.

Canadians in Israel made their mark as well. Asher Ben Natan was prominent in the defence establishment and then the Foreign Service. Bernard Joseph Dov Yosef, took on the unenviable responsibility for guiding Israel through the tsena, the "austerity" period. Later, this Canadian lawyer became Israel's minister of justice.

Virtually every area of endeavor was marked by collaboration and mutual support — culture, education, tourism, trade, commercial ventures. And most of all Canadian Jewry continued to give its children, as Israel shaped the identity of Canadian Jews and gave new meaning to their existence.

But for Canadian Zionists, the fulfilment in 1948 of the 50 year-old dreams harbored by a few Jews who came out on a wintry night in 1898 to establish a Zionist society, did not mean that the end of days was in sight. Work remained to be done, if the Jewish state was to flourish and serve the needs of Jews everywhere. This, then, would be the challenge of the next 50 years.

This article is based on the authors' soon-to-be-published Canadian Zionism: A Celebration.

Esther Bouganim
Investment Representative
Member CIPF
(905) 707-7789

EdwardJones
Serving Individual Investors
"PERSONALIZED INVESTMENT ADVICE"
GIC'S • BONDS • STOCKS • MUTUAL FUNDS • RRSP'S • RRIF'S
"Best wishes to all our clients & friends for a very Happy New Year" 7077 Bathurst Street, Suite 200, (Just N. of Steeles)

future BAKERY & CAFÉ
Best Wishes for a Happy & Healthy New Year
1535 YONGE STREET (416) 944-1253
St. Lawrence Market (416) 366-7259
483 Bloor Street (W. of Spadina) (416) 922-5875
735 Queen St. W. (W. of Bathurst) (416) 504-8700

Cheryl & Sam from The CENTRE STREET DELI
Wish all their friends & customers a Happy & Healthy New Year
Open 7 days a week - 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.
905 - 731-8037
1102 CENTRE STREET
(between Bathurst and Dufferin)

TWINS PHOTO & VIDEO
(905) 660-7385 OR (905) 669-0863
Wishes our Customers a Happy New Year
VISIT OUR WEBSITE
WWW.TWINSPHOTO.COM

SMART HOUSE
KITCHEN APPLIANCES AND MORE wish our customers
A Happy and Prosperous New Year
1140 Sheppard Avenue West, Downsview
(416) 636-2255

Best wishes to all our customers & friends for a happy & healthy New Year
All in the Cards
(Sheppard Plaza at Bathurst)
LARGE SELECTION OF JEWISH NEW YEAR CARDS
Hallmark CARDS & GIFTS Sheppard Plaza Postal Outlet

DR. HART J. LEVIN
DR. HAROLD A. BERENSTEIN
DR. DANIEL ISAKOW
Prosthodontists
& Staff would like to wish all their patients
HEALTH & HAPPINESS FOR THE NEW YEAR
לשנה טובה תכתבו

Harold Brief & Associates Limited
Trustee in Bankruptcy
Wishes Peace, Health and Happiness for the New Year.
Offices in North York, Etobicoke, Brampton, Kingston and Brockville.
(416) 635-7337
(800) 372-7337

Zionism after 100 years

A revolution in Jewish life

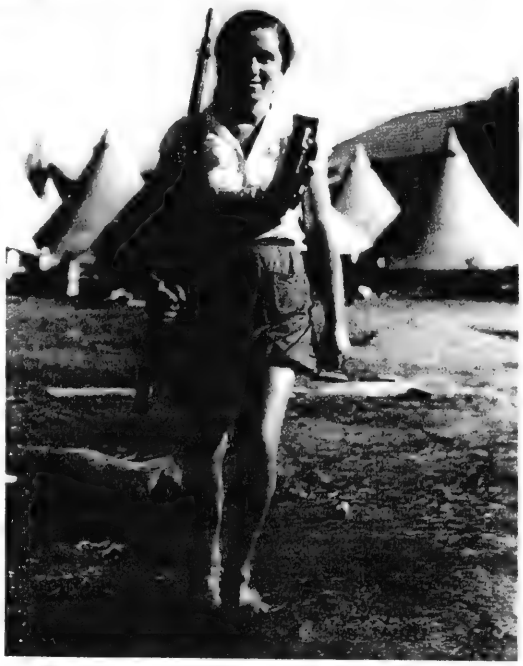
By HAROLD M. WALLER

As we mark the centennial of the founding of the Zionist movement by Theodor Herzl, it is fitting that we assess the impact of Zionism on Jewish life in the 20th century. Zionism, of course, provided the intellectual and ideological framework for the process that led to the establishment of a Jewish state in the traditional homeland. But Zionism did far more than enable the Jews to renew their sovereign existence. Indeed it represented a significant departure from patterns of thought that had prevailed for millennia, challenged key religious assumptions, led to the revival of the Hebrew language as a modern means of communication, and gave new meaning to our notions of Jewish identity and Jewish peoplehood. As Shlomo Avineri has argued, it truly represents a revolution in Jewish life.

Perhaps the most substantial accomplishment of Zionism had to do with the Jewish people's approach to history. What the early Zionists were saying was that it would no longer be sufficient for the Jews to await messianic redemption in order to resolve their political problems. Rather they were prepared to take history into their own hands and act to achieve their political goals. They would no longer be buffeted by societal currents, but instead would act independently. This was a key point that made many Orthodox Jews uncomfortable with the direction of the movement. And it is precisely for this reason that Zionism represents such a radical departure from past practice.

Its Success

Zionism proclaimed that Jews were now prepared to act collectively in history in pursuit of their political objectives rather than assuming a passive posture while awaiting redemption. Zionists wanted to make things happen. Those Orthodox Jews who perceived religious meaning in such a stance were welcome to participate. This challenge led to splits within Orthodoxy, the effects of which are still being played out in Israel and, to a lesser extent, the Diaspora.



A member of the Haganah during the 1936 riots.

Although some revolutions signify a radical and nearly total break from the past, others retain some continuities. Zionism's appearance on the Jewish scene in fin de siecle Europe did transform much of Jewish life there and ultimately throughout the parts of the world where there were Jewish communities. But it also evoked a profound connection with Jewish history, without which it might well have failed. That connection was the focus on Eretz Yisrael as the place where the Jewish national home would be established. Since much of the impetus for the Zionist movement was to find a way to resolve the acute problems of European Jewry, especially in eastern Europe, there was an understandable emphasis on physical safety and rescue, i.e., Zionism as a response to anti-Semitism.

As a result, the meaning of the movement in terms of the larger issues of Jewish history was often overlooked. Consequently, serious consideration was given to establishing the homeland in some place other than Eretz Yisrael (the Uganda option) and a spirited debate on the subject took place at the Zionist Congress in 1903. The decision to

[Cont'd. on page B 33]

FLAX SPITZEN & LEWIS
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Capital Centre,
1 West Pearce Street, Suite 405,
Richmond Hill, Ont. L4B 3K3
Telephone: (905) 771-9200
Fax: (905) 771-1277

WISHING ALL OUR CLIENTS AND FRIENDS A HAPPY, HEALTHY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

Deanna Schaffer
OF
MALMAR FINE FOODS & CATERING
and
Tastefully Yours
FOOD WITH A FLARE
Wishing all our customers, family and friends a Happy New Year
(416) 638-0091
COR 116 GLATT KOSHER

Best Wishes For A Happy New Year
The Paul Zurin Band
905 - 770-3084

The David Duncan House
FINE DINING
The Management & Staff of The David Duncan House wish all their customers & friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
125 Moatfield Drive 416-391-1424

A Happy & Healthy New Year from
Mercedes-Benz
Canada Inc. Retail Division
761 Dundas Street East at Bayview (416) 947-9000
228 Steeles Avenue West Thornhill (905) 886-6881
3120 Lakeshore Blvd. West Etobicoke (416) 255-1132

Soberman Isenbaum & Colomby
Chartered Accountants
L'Shanah Tovah
Best wishes to our staff, clients and friends for a Healthy & Happy New Year
Two St. Clair Avenue East
Toronto, Ontario M4T 2T5
Phone(416)964-7633; Fax(416)964-6454
An independent member of BKR International, principal cities world-wide

Parentbooks
Best Wishes for a Happy & Healthy New Year
201 Harbord St. Toronto Tel: (416) 537-8334 Fax: (416) 537-9499

Zionism after 100 years

Traditional symbol

[Cont'd. from page B 32]

retain the objective of returning to the Land of Israel was critical to the long-term success of the movement because it appropriated a traditional symbol and maintained continuity with long-standing Jewish values, thus serving as a unifying factor for the Jewish people as a whole.

The Jews of Europe in 1897 were in transition from the largely self-contained communities of the pre-Emancipation period, when Jews in most countries lacked the normal rights and opportunities of citizens, to a situation where they could aspire to equality in their respective countries, if not achieve it. But they also faced opposition to these aspirations, an intensification of anti-Semitism, and the dilemma of the so-called Jewish Question.

As nationalism intensified in Europe in the latter half of the 19th century, the place of Jews in their various host societies became a critical issue for both Jews and non-Jews. The increasingly desperate plight of the Jews in the Russian Empire in particular led to the search for radically different solutions, of which Zionism proved to be the most successful. But in order for Zionism to succeed it had to convince Jews to think of themselves in a new way that entailed an emphasis on peoplehood above all.

Desperate plight of Russian Jews

The idea of Jewish peoplehood per se was hardly a novel one. After all, it goes back to biblical times. But in traditional Jewish life, peoplehood and religion were inextricably linked. Members of the Jewish people practised Judaism, and individuals who professed the Jewish religion were part of the Jewish people. The connection between peoplehood and religion meant that concepts of political redemption, i.e., a return to the land from which the Jews had been exiled, were linked to religion and were difficult to articulate independently. If God was going to send the Messiah to redeem the Jews, it would only be when He was ready for it to happen.

What the Zionists did was to separate the religious and national dimensions. They promoted the view that the Jews were a people like other peoples in their quest for a normal national existence and that the Jewish people had historical rights to a homeland. The basis for those rights may have been the experience of the Jews living independently in Eretz Yisrael in the biblical and post-biblical periods, but it did not depend on any religious recognition. It followed that individual Jews were part of the Jewish people for historical reasons without the necessity for anything more than a nominal religious commitment.

In practice, this was a way to integrate what had become a disparate Jewish people in religious terms, particularly because of the emergence of large numbers of secular Jews who had given up many or even most of the elements of religious observance that they had learned from parents and grandparents. Thus Zionism provided Jews with a way to be a full member of the Jewish people without having to be religiously observant by re-

[Cont'd. on page B 36]

Jewish refugees in 1938.

BAGEL PLUS
Bakery & Restaurant
"Completely Smoke-Free Environment"
634 Sheppard Ave. W. 635-9988
Wish all their customers, family and friends a Very Happy and Healthy New Year

MR. R. KUSHNIR & FAMILY
of
York Fish Co. Ltd.
795 Alness St., North York • 661-1895
Wish the Jewish Community a Happy New Year

Baskin 31 Robbins
Wishes all their customers a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year
L'Shana Tova
644 Sheppard Ave. West (416) 630-0747

Have a safe and posperous New Year
GOLAN ALARM

UNITED BAKERS DAIRY RESTAURANT
YOUR BASIC FAMILY RESTAURANT
From the Year gone by through the Years to come, our best wishes to all our Customers and Friends
לשנה טובה
from Toronto's finest traditional dairy restaurant
LAWRENCE PLAZA • TORONTO, ONTARIO
789-0519
BAKED GOODS · CATERING · RESTAURANT · TAKE-HOME

ST. HELEN'S MEAT PACKERS LIMITED
Marsha, Ben
The Bielak Family
The Gold Family
The Dadouch Family
The White Family
wish all our Customers, Family & Friends A Healthy, Happy New Year

A Happy & Healthy New Year to the CANADIAN JEWISH COMMUNITY
Proctor-Silex Canada Inc.
7300 Warden Avenue, Suite 201
Markham, Ont. L3R 9Z6
(905) 513-6222

WARREN · HOFFMAN INTERIOR DESIGN INC.
L'Shanah Tovah
Wishing all our clients and friends a healthy & Happy New Year
198 Davenport Road, Toronto
(416) 944-2380

DAVIS & TURK
Barristers and Solicitors
347 Bay Street, Suite 1002
Toronto, Ontario, M5H 2R7
Wishing Our Families, Friends, Clients and Colleagues a Happy and Healthy New Year
GLENN R. DAVIS (416) 363-1941
STEPHEN M. TURK (416) 363-1043

Zionism after 100 years

TIMELINE INTO HISTORY

A ZIONISM TIMELINE

1882-1904 — The First Aliyah brought 25,000 immigrants from Eastern Europe, Russia, Romania and Yemen.

Feb. 14, 1886 — The publication of Old/New Land, containing Theodor Herzl's vision of the future Jewish State. Public reaction prompted Herzl to convene the First Zionist Congress.

Aug. 29, 1897 — The First Zionist Congress was convened in Basel and the WZO was created with Herzl as president. The Basel Program was endorsed as the official Zionist platform, defining the goal of Zionism as the establishment of a national homeland for the Jewish people in Eretz Yisrael, secured by public law.

Dec. 29, 1901 — Keren Kayemet LeYisrael (JNF) was founded, with the primary purpose of purchasing land for Jewish settlement in Eretz Yisrael. After the creation of the State of Israel, JNF was the main force behind afforestation and development programs.

Jan. 28, 1902 — Shaare Zedek Hospital, the first hospital outside the Old City walls, was founded in Jerusalem.

Feb. 26, 1902 — The Anglo-Palestine Bank was founded in London as the financial arm of the World Zionist Organization. In 1951, it became Bank Leumi le-Israel.

Aug. 23, 1903 — Theodor Herzl submitted the "Uganda Program" to the delegates to the Sixth Zionist Congress, causing a storm of protest in the Congress hall. Originally proposed by the British government, it was meant to provide a temporary solution to the plight of the Jews by establishing a Jewish colony in Uganda. (The program was rejected by the Seventh Zionist Congress in 1905.)

July 3, 1904 — Theodor Herzl, author, journalist and the father of modern Zionism, died.

1904-1914 — The Second Aliyah brought 40,000 immigrants to the country, mostly from Russia.

Oct. 22, 1905 — Herzliya Gymnasium, the first Hebrew school where classes were conducted entirely in Hebrew, was founded.

Jan. 16, 1906 — The Bezalel school for arts and crafts was established by Boris Schatz in Jerusalem. Today, it is Israel's leading academy of art and design.

1908 — The World Zionist Organization, responsible for developing Jewish settlement in the country, creating a Jewish economic structure, and collective settlement,.opened a Palestine office in Jaffa.

April 11, 1909 — Tel Aviv was established as a Jewish suburb of Arab-populated Jaffa.

Oct. 28, 1910 — Degania Aleph, Israel's first kibbutz, was established on the eastern bank of the Jordan river.

1910 — Eliezer Ben-Yehuda, the reviver of the Hebrew language, published the first Hebrew dictionary. In his efforts to make Hebrew the daily spoken language in Eretz Yisrael, he established the Hebrew Language Academy, founded newspapers for adults and children, and published a number of textbooks and readers.

The founding of Tel Aviv in 1909

April 11, 1912 — The Technion, the first institute of technology in Eretz Yisrael, was established, with classes conducted entirely in Hebrew.

Nov. 2, 1917 — The Balfour Declaration was issued in the form of a letter from the British Foreign Secretary to Lord Lionel Rothschild. It expressed support for the "establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people."

1918 — The Habimah Theatre was founded, now the national theatre of the State of Israel.

1919-1923 — The Third Aliyah brought 35,000 immigrants to Israel, mainly from Russia and Romania, including Jews who had been stranded overseas by World War I.

Dec. 9, 1920 — The Histadrut, Israel's trade union movement, was created to "arrange all the communal, economic and cultural affairs of the working class" and to "build a labor society in Eretz Yisrael."

1920 — The Principal Allied Powers decided to award the Mandate of Eretz Yisrael to Great Britain, with the responsibility of maintaining a normal life for both Jewish and Arab inhabitants.

1920 — The Haganah, an underground military organization active in national defence, settlement, clandestine immigration, and the struggle against the British Mandatory authorities, was founded.

April 1, 1925 — The inauguration of the Hebrew University on Mount Scopus, Jerusalem. It was later evacuated in the 1948 War of Independence; the reunification of Jerusalem in 1967 enabled the Mount Scopus campus to be reconstructed and reopened on April 25, 1976.

1924-1928 — The Fourth Aliyah brought 67,000 immigrants to the country, mostly from Poland, but also other Eastern European countries.

Aug. 11, 1929 — The Jewish Agency was established to act on behalf of the Jews of Eretz Yisrael. Its aims were to promote Jewish immigration, absorption, housing, welfare, health, education and settlement.

1930-1939 — The Fifth Aliyah brought over 250,000 immigrants to Israel, mostly refugees from Nazi Germany, Poland and Central Europe.

March 28, 1932 — The first Maccabiah was held in Tel Aviv, with Jewish delegations from 21 countries participating.

Dec. 1, 1932 — The publication of the first issue of the Palestine Post (now known as the Jerusalem Post).

Dec. 26, 1936 — The first concert of the Palestine Orchestra (now known as the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra) was held in Tel Aviv. Arturo Toscanini conducted, and Bronislaw Huberman, the orchestra's founder, was the soloist.

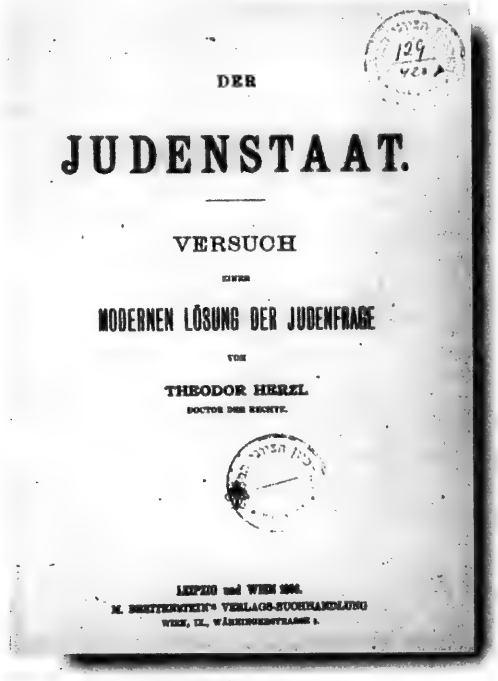
May 17, 1939 — The British White Paper on Palestine was published, recommending the establishment of a bi-national state in Palestine, and restricting Jewish immigration and land sales to Jews.

Sept. 7, 1947 — The 4,500 passengers of the illegal immigration ship, Exodus, were captured by the British on their way to Israel and returned to Europe.

May 14, 1948 — David Ben-Gurion announced the establish

[Cont'd on page B35]

Pioneers in the Jezreel Valley



DER

JUDENSTAAT.

VERSUCH

EINER

MODERNEN LÖSUNG DER JUDENFRAGE

VON

THEODOR HERZL

DOCTOR DER RECHTE.

LEIPZIG und WIEN 1896.

M. BRUNZEL'S VERLAGS-BUCHHANDLUNG

The Jewish State

Zionism after 100 years

TIMELINE INTO HISTORY

[Cont'd from page B34]

ment of a Jewish state in Eretz Yisrael, to be called the State of Israel.

May 15, 1948 — The termination of the British mandate in Palestine. The same day, armies from neighboring Arab countries invaded Palestine, beginning Israel's War of Independence.

May 31, 1948 — Prime minister David Ben-Gurion announced the establishment of the Israel Defence Forces (IDF).

May 11, 1949 — Israel was admitted as a member of the United Nations.

Nov. 8, 1949 — Operation Magic Carpet brought 50,000 Yemenite Jews to Israel by air.

Dec. 13, 1949 — Jerusalem was proclaimed the capital of the State of Israel by the government of Israel.

Feb. 4, 1949 — Israel's Knesset (parliament) was convened.

July 20, 1949 — The War of Independence ended.

Nov. 2, 1949 — The inauguration of the Weizmann Institute of Science, devoted to research and teaching of the natural sciences.

1950 — Army radio began broadcasting.

1951 — Operation Ezra and Nehemia brought over 130,000 Iraqi immigrants to Israel. The first transit camp was set up, consisting of tents and other temporary structures. Between 1950 and 1953, more than 100 camps were erected throughout the country.

July 5, 1950 — The Law of Return was enacted by the Knesset, giving every Jew the right to immigrate to Israel, unless he presented a danger to public health or security.

1953 — Yad Vashem, dedicated to perpetuating the memory of the martyrs of the Holocaust and to its research and documentation, opened on Mount Herzl in Jerusalem.

Sept. 8, 1954 — Mass aliyah from Morocco, Tunisia and other North African countries brought 161,000 immigrants to Israel.

Aug. 7, 1955 — Bar-Ilan University, an academic institution with religious orientation, was established.

Oct. 29, 1956 - Nov. 5, 1956 — The Sinai Campaign broke out between Israel and Egypt in response to the ongoing Egyptian blockage of Eilat and the Gulf of Aquaba, increased terror against Israel, and the establishment of Egyptian and Syrian joint military command. Within 100 hours, the Egyptian forces had been completely routed.

June 9, 1958 — The Rubin Academy for music and dance opened in Jerusalem.

1960 — The Hadassah Ein Kerem hospital opened.

May 30, 1963 — Haifa University was founded.

June 11, 1964 — Israel's National Water Carrier was completed, making it possible to expand and develop industry and agriculture in arid areas of the country.

1964 — Pope Paul VI visited Israel.

May 11, 1965 — The Israel Museum in Jerusalem was inaugurated.

June 5-11, 1967 — The Six Day War was fought against Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian troops. Jews worldwide celebrated the victory.

1970 — The University of the Negev, the forerunner of Ben-Gurion University, opened in Beersheva.

David Ben-Gurion declares the creation of the State of Israel.

The famous picture of Herzl looking toward the future from his hotel room in Basel.

1971 — The Jerusalem Theatre was dedicated.

1972 — The presidential residence in Jerusalem was dedicated.

Sept. 5, 1972 — Eleven Israeli sportsmen were killed in an Arab terrorist attack in the Olympic village in Munich.

Oct. 6, 1973 — The Yom Kippur War broke out when Egyptian and Syrian forces attacked Israel on the holiest day of the Jewish year.

July 4, 1976 — Israeli and Jewish hostages held at Entebbe Airport in Uganda were rescued by soldiers from elite units of the IDF in a daring military operation.

1977 — Egyptian president Anwar Sadat came to Jerusalem.

May 15, 1978 — The opening in Tel Aviv of Beth Hatefutsoth, the Museum of the Jewish Diaspora, as a research and exhibition centre of Jewish life through time.

Dec. 10, 1978 — Prime minister Menachem Begin received the Nobel Prize for Peace.

March 26, 1979 — A peace treaty with Egypt was signed at Camp David by Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin.

July 30, 1980 — The ninth Knesset passed the Basic Law: Jerusalem, Capital of Israel, which states that Jerusalem is the capital of Israel and the seat of the President of the State, the Knesset, the Government, and the Supreme Court. It also guarantees the sanctity and protection of all holy places and promises free access to their holy sites for members of all faiths.

April 25, 1982 — Israel completed its final stage of withdrawal from Sinai as part of the peace treaty with Egypt.

June 6, 1982 — In defence of the northern settlements, Operation Peace for Galilee erupted as a result of the PLO's growing strength in Lebanon, the Katyusha shelling of northern Israeli settlements, and intensified terrorist infiltration.

Sept. 4, 1985 — The New Israeli Shekel (NIS) was minted.

1984 — Operation Moses brought 7,000 Ethiopians to Israel by air.

Sept. 19, 1988 — The Lavion Satellite was launched into space.

Jan. 15, 1991 — The Gulf War broke out when Israel was attacked by Scud missiles from Iraq.

May 24/25, 1991 — Operation Solomon brought 14,500 immigrants from Ethiopia to Israel in a dramatic round-the-clock airlift.

1989 — Massive wave of Russian aliyah begins, bringing to Israel several hundred thousand immigrants.

Sept. 13, 1993 — The Oslo agreement's Declaration of Principles was signed between the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization. The signing marked the beginning of the process whereby various powers would be transferred from Israel to a Palestinian Authority to be established in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza District.

Oct. 26, 1994 — Israel and Jordan signed a peace treaty in an official ceremony held in the Arava Desert. Jordan received control of 400-square-kilometres in the Arava to be leased back to Israel, and Israel undertook to supply Jordan with millions of cubic metres of water annually.

Nov. 4, 1995 — Yitzhak Rabin was assassinated at the conclusion of a peace rally in Tel Aviv. His assassin, Yigal Amir, shot the prime minister three times at point-blank range.

1995 — Chechen and Yugoslavian families caught in the war zones were rescued and brought to Israel.

May 29, 1996 — In Israel's first direct election for Prime Minister, Benjamin Netanyahu of the Likud defeated incumbent Shimon Peres of the Labor party. (WZPS)

Zionism after 100 years

Choices available to European Jews were clear

[Cont'd. from page B 33]

placing a religious identity with a secular one. In terms of the history of the Jews, this was probably Zionism's most radical accomplishment.

By the first decade of the current century, the choices available to European Jews regarding their relationship to the Jewish people had become clear. One could be a Jew in a religious sense without embracing modern Jewish nationalism, an option espoused by both Orthodox and Reform Jews for different reasons, a nationalist Jew without a substantial commitment to religious practice, or a religious Jewish nationalist. The latter two types were the mainstay of the Zionist movement while the members of the first category opposed Zionism. There were other options too. Some Jews assimilated and relinquished any connection with the Jewish people. Among them were Marxists who rejected any form of nationalism as a matter of principle and ideology. Another alternative was to conceive of a Diaspora-centred Jewish nationality, as articulated by the Bund.

Why then was Zionism so successful in garnering support? Aside from the timing and meeting the needs of the Jewish masses, Herzl and his colleagues articulated a new kind of Jewish identity that was very inclusive, especially with regard to both Orthodox and secular Jews, and which maintained continuity with Jewish history and tradition by stressing the importance of the Land of Israel for Zionist aspirations. This one could relate to Jews and Judaism in a new way while at the same time holding on to a central concept in Jewish history: return to the traditional homeland. Although it is unlikely that the Zionist leaders developed their ideology with that as a primary consideration, it certainly proved helpful in their efforts to attract adherents. Moreover, as Jacques Kornberg has shown in a recent biography, Herzl's contribution to ideology and political organization was motivated in large part by his grappling with his own issues of identity.

During the half century between the first Zionist Congress and the founding of the state, Zionism enjoyed a great deal of success because it provided a novel way to organize the Jewish people on an international basis. In the post-Talmudic period, Judaism itself was organized largely on a local basis. There really was no mechanism for institutions that had more than a regional focus. Zionism, with its frequent congresses, brought Jews together from many different countries and with its institutions that operated between the congresses. This was an innovation in Jewish life, giving Jews in a collective sense an international presence. Although it could not speak for all Jews in a literal sense, it did claim successfully to speak on behalf of the Jewish people and received international recognition as such.

The other major accomplishment of the Zionist movement during this period was the rebuilding of the homeland in a way that brought different kinds of Jews together. The collaborative effort to establish an organized and authoritative Jewish presence in Mandatory Palestine demonstrated how the Jewish people, or at least a significant part, could be mobilized on behalf of a cause. This too was an innovative development in Jewish life. And finally, the fact that Zionism eventually was able to establish the State of Israel, bringing to fruition 50 years of incredible effort in the face of great adversity and worst tragedy in Jewish history, is perhaps the surest proof of the revolutionary

[Cont'd. on page B 37]

Norman Gardner
Metro Councillor
extends best wishes to constituents & friends for a Happy and Healthy New Year

AVLI
401 Danforth Avenue • (416) 461-9577
HAPPY NEW YEAR
TO ALL OUR CUSTOMERS & FRIENDS

DEL Property Management Inc.
We wish you a Very Happy New Year

WILKS, TWARD, SPIEGELMAN & BINDER
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Wish all our Clients and Friends a Happy and Healthy New Year
620 Wilson Avenue, Suite 500 (416) 638-6767
Toronto, Ontario M3K 1Z3 FAX (416) 638-2011
email: wtsb@castlecom.net

Heather and I wish you a Happy & Healthy New Year
JIM PETERSON, M.P.
WILLOWDALE
5799 Yonge Street, Suite 806,
223-2858

Jerusalem Restaurant
Wish all our customers a Happy and Healthy New Year
Corner of Finch & Leslie (416) 490-7888
955 Eglinton Ave. West (416) 783-6494

Spergel Silver Mandelbaum
Bringing Your Financial Affairs Into Focus Chartered Accountants
Best wishes to our clients and friends for a Happy and Healthy New Year
505 Consumers Road, Suite 200, North York, Ontario M2J 4V8
Telephone: (416) 497-1660 Telefax: (416) 494-7199

Best Wishes
on the occasion of
ROSH HASHANAH
May you have a Healthy, Happy and Successful New Year!
Horwath
HORWATH ORENSTEIN
Chartered Accountants
595 Bay Street, Suite 300 • Toronto, Ontario M5G 2C2
(416) 596-1711 • (416) 596-7894 Fax
www.hto.com
A member firm of Horwath International with affiliated offices worldwide

The Consultants of ZSA Legal Recruitment wish all of their clients a happy, healthy New Year.
ZSA
Christopher Sweeney • Warren Bongard • Natalie Jenner • Michelle Gage
Scotia Plaza, Suite 4900, 40 King Street West, Toronto, Ontario M5H 4A2
Tel: (416) 777-0700 Fax: (416) 777-0708
Canada's leading specialist legal recruitment firm
LONDON • HONG KONG • NEW YORK • TORONTO

A HAPPY NEW YEAR

RHONDA MATERNITY
110 CUMBERLAND ST., TORONTO
(416) 921-3116

Zionism after 100 years

A place of refuge

[Cont'd. from page B 36]

character of Zionism. Less than 50 years after the creation of Israel, it is still early to try to assess its full significance in the long sweep of Jewish history. But there can be little doubt that Israel is transforming the nature of Jewish life worldwide, even as the force of Zionist ideology in the society may be waning.

When talking about Zionism in the period after 1948, it is difficult to distinguish between the achievements and effects of the ideology and those of the state. Still it is clear that Zionism enabled Jews around the world to relate to Israel, not just as a place of refuge for Jews in danger, but also as a source of inspiration and renewal of Jewish life. For Jews in the Diaspora who have chosen not to make aliyah, Zionism enables them to connect with Israel, to be part of its destiny, to have a stake in its future, and to have the opportunity to formally join the Jews of the Jewish state should they change their minds. Thus it is a unifying force, perhaps the strongest such force in the contemporary Jewish world. A hundred years after Herzl convened the first Zionist Congress, Zionism remains the most effective means of articulating a collective Jewish political interest.

A source of inspiration

Any reflective examination of Zionism since Herzl would have to recognize that it does not have a history of unbridled success, most notably the inability to save the Jews of Europe from the Nazis, the persistence of anti-Semitism, and the failure to unite the Jews of the world to the fullest extent.

Nevertheless there is little doubt that the situation of the Jews of the world has been transformed since 1897 and that Zionism was the chief engine driving that transformation. The outlook for the Jewish people now is fundamentally different than it was at the turn of the century. In the wake of the terrible losses of the Holocaust, Zionism and the Israeli state have provided a means for the continuity of the Jewish people in an era when religious affiliation is not attractive for many Jews.

As Zionism enters its second century, it is instructive to remember that revolutions can run out of steam as societies find it increasingly difficult to generate the energy that propelled the revolution in the first place. Zionism is no exception. Life in Israel has become routinized as the society matures. Elements of the population, notably and ironically often in the religious sector, continue to be motivated by Zionism's lofty ideals. Yet on the other hand, in some secular parts of the society, a post-Zionist value system seems to be taking hold. As for Diaspora communities, Zionism has become largely an organizational phenomenon rather than a revolutionary movement. But perhaps the most serious question about Zionism that we might contemplate is whether in the long run it can function successfully as an ideology that will maintain the continuity of the Jewish people or whether the question of religious self-identification must be re-examined. In any event, the Zionist revolution succeeded beyond the dreams of its leaders and has had a truly momentous impact on Jewish history.

New immigrants at home in their new land

A Happy & Healthy New Year
from
Dr. Michael Brickman
Chiropractor
and the staff of
Downsview Chiropractic Centre
552 Sheppard Ave. W.
(416) 635-1818

Dairy Queen
Our best wishes to all for a Happy & Healthy New Year
ART, MARILYN, SHANE GOLDSTEIN AND STAFF
9025 YONGE STREET (1st North of Sheppard)
(416) 222-0979

HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL AND A VERY SPECIAL THANKS FOR YOUR PATRONAGE
Jolanta THE HAIR ROOM and Associates
Full Service Salon
4862A YONGE ST. NORTH YORK
226-2206

Appliance Canada
The Nation's Largest Appliance Distributor serving The Apartment Building Industry
Appliance Canada
Wishing All Our Clients and Friends A Happy & Healthy New Year
8701 Jane Street
Concord, Ont. L4K 2M6
Tel: (905) 660-2424 Fax: (905) 660-4335
1-800-FRIDGES (374-3437)

Bill Graham
MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT
TORONTO CENTRE - ROSEDALE
Wishes the Jewish Community a Happy & Healthy New Year Constituency Office at:
365 Bloor Street East, Suite 1703
Toronto Tel: 954-2222

Best Wishes for a Happy, Healthy & Prosperous New Year
OSLER, HOSKIN & HARCOURT
BARRISTERS & SOLICITORS
PATENT & TRADE-MARK AGENTS

REZITRON INC.
(416) 635-7640
Brian Stal & family
Wish all our clients, friends and relatives a Happy and Healthy New Year residential & commercial electronic systems

CDs • CASSETTES VIDEOS & MORE
Edward's Record World
MORE ♫ -♫ ... for LESS. EVERY DAY!
2359 Yonge St., Toronto, Ont., Phone/Fax: (416) 489-1144 (2nd block north of Eglinton)
ANNOUNCING OUR NEW STORE
replay
Come in and see our large selection of new and "as new" CDs, Videos, DVDs and CD ROMs
762 Yonge St., Toronto
(just south of Bloor St.)
Tel. (416) 513-1144
FIRST IN PRICE • FIRST IN IMPORTS
FIRST IN SELECTION • FIRST IN SERVICE
WANTED USED CDs and VIDEOS for INSTANT CA$H or CREDIT
EDWARD, CLAUDIA, JORDANA, JONATHAN & BEAR
Wish All Their Family, Friends & Customers a Healthy & Happy New Year

RIMROCK CORPORATION
Best wishes for a happy and healthy New Year from the staff at the Rimrock Corporation www.rimrock.com
GREAT PLAINS SOFTWARE Microsoft Certified Solution Provider

Today's date is greatest in our history

Address by David Ben-Gurion at the Jerusalem Jubilee Celebration on Rosh Chodesh Elul 5707, Aug. 17, 1947.

David Ben-Gurion.

Delegates to the First Congress, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Since we went into exile, we have had many dates in our calendar which will not be expunged from our memory for decades, and maybe centuries to come. But the anniversary of the event to commemorate which we have assembled here today does not resemble them.

The other anniversaries mark things that happened to us. They are a record of persecution, decrees, expulsions, massacres and destruction. Today's date however, is the greatest in our history since the destruction of our political independence following the defeat of Bar-Kochba.

It has two distinctive features. The first is that it is a date made by ourselves, not by anyone else. The second is that it made us into a nation once more.

The First Congress did not make a nation of us out of nothing. There had always been a Jewish nation, even when we were dispersed in exile and the world as a whole did not know of our existence as a nation; but we were only a potential nation. That day, 50 years ago, made us; and on that day we turned ourselves into a nation in reality.

The First Zionist Congress, in 1897, saw the regeneration of a Jewish people conscious of its nationhood and proclaiming its aspiration to become once again a people like other peoples, and to lead an independent existence in its own country.

The man mainly responsible for this date — Theodor Herzl — made an entry in his diary which seemed overbold and exaggerated. He wrote: "Today I founded the Jewish State," to which he added: "If I stated it aloud, there would be universal laughter, but perhaps in five, certainly in 50 years' time, everyone will see the truth of that statement."

This was no outburst of enthusiasm on the part of a dreamer, or an illusion that immediate success would follow, but the expression of a profound historical intuition. On that day, the Jewish State was indeed founded, for a State is founded first in the hearts of the people.

The alternative periods given by Herzl — five years or 50 — are interesting. For here, too, is evidence of the deep intuition and historical greatness of the Zionist leader. He fully believed that within a few years, the Jewish State might come into being; and it is doubtful whether he could have done what he did without his belief that the project was feasible and that it could be speedily accomplished.

It would indeed be a sign of a warped judgment to say, in retrospect, that Herzl was wrong. For he was not so wrong: it was not utterly impossible for the Jewish State to have come about within a short time…There are many instances in history of probabilities that do not achieve realization.

[Cont'd. on page B 39]

ROSEWATER SUPPER CLUB
Best Wishes to all our Patrons for a Happy & Healthy New Year
19 Toronto Street
Toronto, Ontario
(416) 214-5888

PRE-LOCK SECURITY SERVICES INC. ™
"REAL SECURITY UNDER LOCK & KEY"
•RESIDENTIAL & COMMERCIAL
•ACCESS CONTROL & C.C.T.V.
•HIGH SECURITY LOCKS
•LOCKSMITHS & HARDWARE
Paul and Karen Seidman
Wishing all a Happy & Healthy New Year
WE SELL & INSTALL medeco® LOCKS!!
CALL 905 PRE-LOCK 773-5625 OR (416) 736-8383

Home Grown Happiness for Rosh Hashanah

Many years ago, if you wanted flowers in the shule, you asked certain members who were "famous" for their gardens.

As, if by magic, glass milk bottles, canning jars and borscht bottles appeared filled with prized Dahlias, Marigolds, Snap Dragons and perhaps Gladiolas depending on how early the holidays were.

Somehow the bees came too, which made shule all the more interesting.

Who knew from florists?

INVENTIVENESS. A JEWISH TRADITION.
IT'S THE WAY WE SEE INSURANCE.

PAISLEY PMI MANOR
— INSURANCE BROKERS INC. —
1446 Don Mills Road, Suite 110,
North York, Ontario, M3B 3N3
Tel: (416) 510-1177 • Fax: (416) 510-1179
• Business • Home • Auto • Life • Group •
Happy New Year to our Friends & Clients

GREENWIN
PROPERTY MANAGEMENT INC.
Yonge-Eglinton Centre
20 Eglinton Avenue West, Suite 1600
TORONTO, CANADA M4R 2H1
Telephone: (416) 487-3883

Zionism after 100 years

We see the prophecy has not yet been fulfilled

Defence position at the Jaffa– Tel-Aviv border.

[Cont'd. from page B 38]

Nevertheless, they are probabilities; and the man of vision recognizes them as probabilities and strives to bring about their realization. But not all projects that are planned succeed; and it was not because Herzl was a poor prophet that the Jewish State did not arise. For he indicated a second alternative, — 50 years, which means that he foresaw the possibility of hindrances and deferments. And now, 50 years after the event, we see that the prophecy has not yet been fulfilled. The professional wiseacres say, "Behold the result of fantasy." But they would do well not to pass hasty judgment.

This semi-centennial — commemorating the greatest event in our history in exile — is being celebrated at the most critical juncture in generations. We have just witnessed a destruction the like of which has not been experienced for centuries. The first, and only, nation to proffer help to us has become our opponent. Heavy clouds are gathering in the Palestinian sky, — I say this, not because I am under the influence of the events of the past week, which may prove transient: I would have said the same thing a fortnight ago as well.

Finally, we are faced with a terrible threat from within. At no time previously have there been such destructive elements in our midst as at present. Anyone beholding the crises and dangers, both external and internal, might say: "The man was a dreamer. His dream remains unfulfilled, not only after five, but after 50 years; while the little that has been achieved stands in grave jeopardy."

Yet Herzl was no dreamer. The past 50 years were not merely a period of fearful crisis in the history of our movement: they have also paved the way to the future. We now stand on the threshold of the establishment of the Jewish State. I do not necessarily refer to the work of the committee now in progress in Geneva or to the United Nations Assembly. For it is a fact that our State is in the making in Palestine. What we have today are the beginnings of a Jewish State, and by virtue of them we shall surmount the grievous crises we are now undergoing.

We have been confronted with England's fight against Zionism, — a fight which, by reason of its inner logic, is being transformed into a war against the Jews.

There is a direct connection between the White Paper and the disturbances in Liverpool. The fight against Zionism is of necessity an anti-Jewish fight. We are the only people that for a period of 1,800 years has thwarted all the designs harbored to compass its destruction.

In addition, we have before us the threat of internal disruption. If, despite those various dangers, we stand, not without anxiety — for complacency at this juncture would be an unforgivable sin —, but without fear and assured of our ability and our future, it is because we have in fact established the beginnings

[Cont'd. on page B 40]

Uptown Spa
Wishes all our customers and friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
(416) 449-4044

SAM WASSER C.E.O.
AND ASSOCIATES
of
IMPACT
INSURANCE BROKERS INC.
Wish All Their Clients, Family & Friends
A Happy & Healthy New Year
1600 STEELES AVENUE WEST, SUITE 214
CONCORD, ONTARIO L4K 4M2
LOCAL (905) 660-6170
TORONTO (416) 492-5335
FAX (905) 660-6175

MENORAH NURSERY
NOW 2 LOCATIONS
4300 BATHURST ST. (at Reiner Road across from Earl Bales Park)
18 REINER RD. (in Beth Radom Synagogue)
We wish our families
A Happy, Healthy New Year
CARING FOR YOUR CHILDREN SINCE 1982 • 638-6910

MASTERCRAFT SHUTTERS
• Manufacturers of high quality custom wood shutters
• Professionally installed by bonded Mastercraft staff
• Lifetime Guarantee
Quality Products and Workmanship
Call for a FREE Shop-at-Home Service
Colour brochures available
MONTREAL (514) 938-1333
TORONTO (416) 748-1333
RESIDENTIAL-COMMERCIAL

Happy New Year
Have a safe and happy holiday
Al Palladini, M.P.P.
York Centre
1118 Centre Street, Suite 207
Thornhill, Ontario L4J 7R9

Wishing all our clients and friends a Happy and Healthy New Year
STERN COHEN CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
ROBERT SHIER ASSOCIATES INC
STERN COHEN WOLMAN
45 St. Clair Avenue West, Suite 1400
Toronto, Ontario, Canada M4V 1L3
Tel: 416-967-5100 Fax: 416-967-4372
STERN COHEN LEUNG

Zionism after 100 years

We stand on the threshold of the Jewish state of the Jewish State in Palestine. Whatever the verdict of the United Nations Committee may be, no committee or section of world opinion that directs its gaze to Palestine can fail to see that there it beholds, not just another Jewish community, but a Jewish nation, — a nation with the attributes of statehood like any other independent nation.

[Cont'd. from page B 39]

There is something else which stands revealed in a most tragic manner, and that is that all the few achievements we have made, and in fact the entire range of Jewish creation from its beginnings down to the present day, are the fruits of tragedies that have overtaken our people.

Our people has a unique quality in that it can turn disaster — be it ever so great or overwhelming — into a source of new strength, creativeness and self-assertion; it does not give in. This is proved by the men and women called Displaced Persons or "illegal" immigrants. Even those who can claim some acquaintance with Jewish history and poetry and with the Jewish faith and who are aware of the Jewish people's connection with its country, had no idea how deep that connection was until confronted with the terrible grandeur of the spectacle of "illegal" immigration.

No people in the world has displayed such a powerful connection with its country as that now being displayed by the "illegal" immigrants, and no one in the world can fail to see it. The nations of the world were unable to understand the mystery of a people which had left and been made to leave its country — for it partly left of its own volition as well as being forcibly ejected — and yet which retained its connection with that country. Many refused to believe it. They thought it was a façon de parler, a meaningless dogma. Today, however, no one can doubt this connection in view of the mighty force of what is called "illegal" immigration, and at the sight of the immigrant ship "Exodus 1947."

But this does not comprise the full measure of the force that Herzl wished to harness and apply, the utilization of which he rightly saw, by means of his profound intuition, as the beginnings of the Jewish State.

This is only the motive force. Everyone, even a blind man, is bound to see that there already exists in Palestine, a Jewish State in embryo form, and not just another Jewish community; and that there are Jews in other parts of the world — in Germany and Poland — whose ties with Palestine are literally "strong as death," as the Bible puts it.

This, however, is only the visible form of that force. What we have today was a latent urge only two generations ago; but it would not have emerged if it had not been latent. The latent Zionism is greater than the visible. But I doubt whether the world today can, or whether it would if it could, see more than the visible forces that are actually before its eyes.

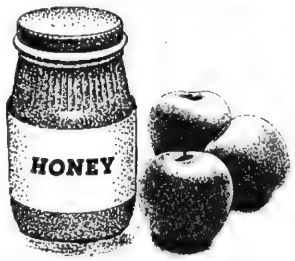
It is my belief that we stand on the threshold of the Jewish State. It is not the State as conceived in the age-old dreams of the Jewish people or even as seen in Herzl's vision. It is the first stage of a State determined by the measure of visible power that has been generated in Palestine and that is forcing a path by means of "illegal" immigration.

There is no cause for fear in the fact that this may be only the first stage and determined by the measure of visible power. For this power, before it came into operation, was also latent. But this stage will not prove the last in the realization of the vision: it is the first stage; we are standing on the threshold. Herzl's prophecy is being fulfilled. After 50 years — and this is no arbitrary period — we are approaching the establishment of the Jewish State in its first stage.

Let me end by saying a word to those few in our midst — many are no longer with me, others are scattered throughout the world — who were vouchsafed the unique privilege necessarily restricted to only a few, of being present at the great occasion which saw the regeneration of the Jewish people and the birth of the Jewish State in its heart.

Yours was a great privilege, and one which we and those who come after us cannot, in the nature of things, experience; for it was the privilege of the first-comers. You have added a great date to the Jewish calendar, a date that has transformed Jewish history. I hope that you will live to see the establishment of the Jewish State, and I utter this hope in the belief that its fulfilment may be imminent.

National Trust
A Member of the Scotiabank Group
Irv Handler, Manager
3050 Bathurst St. at Lawrence
(416) 784-9950
Erv Brewda, Manager
628 Sheppard Avenue West
(416) 638-1955
Rose Dilecce, Manager
350 Eglinton Avenue West
(416) 487-4684
Alan Davis, Manager
Centrepoint Mall
(416) 223-6420



לשנה טובה תכתבו
Wishing you a Happy & Healthy New Year

HAPPY NEW YEAR
to our valued customers & friends
CONCORD FOOD CENTRE

OUR SINCERE GOOD WISHES
FOR A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
FROM ALL OF US
SHELLEY FREMONT ROSEN
SARA PACHTER
HARRY PACHTER
JUDY LEPOFSKY
DOROTHY HAYDON
JUDI ALTER
MARILYN YUNIS
LINDA BRADY
LAURA HENRY
DEBBI AHARON
FAMILY VACATION SPECIALISTS
• BAR/BAT MITZVAH TOURS • CRUISES
• ADVENTURE HOLIDAYS
FISHER-FREMONT TRAVEL LTD.
535 Eglinton Ave. W., Toronto M5N 1B3
Tel. (416) 481-3323 Fax: (416) 481-1219
e-mail flyaway@ican.net

PITCH/WOLLE ASSOCIATES
(FINANCIAL SERVICES)
IRVIN PITCH & ASSOCIATES
Would Like to Wish their Clients & Friends A Happy & Healthy New Year

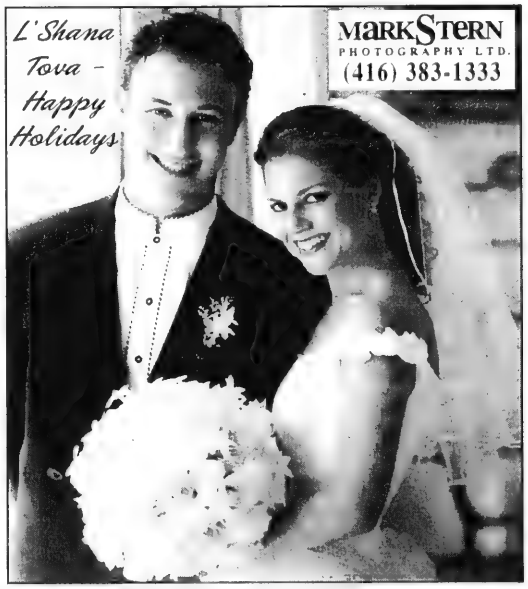
HARRY WOLLE

IRV PITCH, CLU
לשנה טובה

RAYMOND PITCH, LLB.

ALLEN WONG, BBA
Insurance Services:
Business, Partnerships, Life, Group Benefit Packages, Disability & Estate Planning, RRSP, Annuities, Structured Settlements, Mutual Funds
Irvin Pitch & Associates Insurance Agency Ltd.
Pitch/Wolle Associates (Financial Services)
NEW ADDRESS: 675 Cochrane Drive Suite 510, Markham, Ont. L3R 0B8
Tel.: (905) 946-8987 or (905) 946-8995 Fax: (905) 946-8533

L'Shana Tova - Happy Holidays
MARK STERN PHOTOGRAPHY LTD.
(416) 383-1333



Zionism after 100 years

A deliberate intervention in human history

By YEHEZKEL DROR

Zionism is one of the most heroic successes to have come from an attempt by human beings to shape their collective future through deliberate intervention with history. Zionism brought about a radical shift in the situation of the Jewish people by moving nearly one-third of all the Jews who survived the Holocaust to Israel and establishing there a strong state for the Jews. And this transformation in Jewish and global history was brought about very quickly, relative to the magnitude of the deed.

THE NEXT 100 YEARS

Equally amazing – and most unusual for history-changing endeavors – was the fact that the outcomes of the Zionist revolution were faithful to the intentions of its founders. However, the Zionist revolution is far from over.

With all its might, Israel's physical, long-term survival in a turbulent Middle East increasingly saturated with hi-tech weapons is far from assured. More insidious, but in many respects even more dangerous, is the possibility that Israel will be a thriving "state of the Jews," but not a "Jewish state," in any meaningful pluralistic sense. Instead, an "Israeli nation" may crystallize, as proposed by the so-called "post-Zionists" (who, in substance, are mostly "anti-Zionists"). Such a development may well spell the end of the Jewish people and of Judaism, both in Israel and in the Diaspora.

To realize the true nature of this danger, it is necessary to understand correctly the true character of the Jewish people: Jews are not a "nation" in any reasonable meaning of that term. We are different inter alia in the unique fusion between being a "Jew" in the religious-traditional sense and belonging to the Jewish people. Neither is the Jewish people a religious community in the

[Cont'd. on page B 42]

Weizmann is welcomed at Rishon Le-Zion.

GARY SILBERT
AUTO SALES
EVERYTHING IN NEW — THE BEST IN USED!
Wishing My Friends and My Many Customers & Their Families Happy & Healthy New Year
110 TYCOS DR. 783-9666
1 MAJESTIC CRT. 787-0024

Visioneering
Manufacturer of Lighting Equipment
Good wishes for health and happiness through the coming year
The Wiener Family

A Happy & Healthy New Year to our Customers & Friends
BIO-ESTHETICS INSTITUTE
Dora Taler, B.A.
1638 Bathurst Street
(416) 787-2402

Steeles Bakery
6235 Bathurst St. (S.E. corner Bathurst & Steeles)
Norman and Gail Gardner & Staff wish our Customers & friends a Happy, Healthy New Year for the best in Appetisers
• Cheeses • Prepared Foods
• Low Fat & No Sugar Added Cakes available
We use the finest raw materials to give you the finest in TASTE • FRESHNESS • QUALITY
Phone Orders Accepted: 416-223-8776

The Tradition of Quality
Cooper Bros. UPHOLSTERY CO. LTD
... Continues
Best Wishes for a Happy and Healthy New Year

1185 Roselawn Ave.
Toronto, Ontario
(416) 789-7671

Premier Mike Harris, his Ministers and Caucus
Extend Sincere Best Wishes for a Happy and Healthy New Year

Premier Mike Harris
M.P.P. Nipissing
325-1941

Charles Harnick
M.P.P. Willowdale
733-7878

Isabel Bassett
M.P.P. St. Andrew/St. Patrick
413-1894

David J. Johnson
M.P.P. Don Mills
752-2005

Al Palladini
M.P.P. York Centre
905-886-6748

Bill Saunderson
M.P.P. Eglinton
482-2480

David Tsubouchi
M.P.P. Markham
905-305-1935

David Turnbull
M.P.P. York Mills
445-4040

Zionism after 100 years

New Zionist tasks

[Cont'd. from page B 41]

usual sense. We are different in the central role for us of the Promised Land as a polity and in the social-political dimensions characterizing the Jewish people.

In contrast to nations and religious communities, the Jewish people is a "civilization" embedded in the "Holy Land" which serves as its cradle and existential basis.

This fundamental nature of the Jewish people and of Judaism are often ignored, thanks to Western language games that are limited by the concepts of "nations" and "religions" as shaped by European history. Indeed, most contemporary discourse on the Jewish people in Israel continues incorrectly to proceed in terms of "nationality," as adopted by classical Zionist thinkers under the influence of national movements of their time. And most discourse on the Jewish people in the Diaspora, especially in North America is very ambiguous: to view the Jewish people as a "nation" is not convenient; and to view Judaism as a religion is inadequate. Thus modern thinking about the Jewish people and Judaism remains a "hollow shell" as it were, with much harm to understanding its problems and developing adequate treatments.

Understanding the essential nature of the Jewish people and of Judaism as a people and as a civilization with unique characteristics, such as the central role of Eretz Yisrael, is crucial for evaluating the present situation and for reflecting upon great tasks still facing Zionism. If the Jewish people were "only" a nation, most of the aims of Zionism would have been achieved with the establishment of the State of Israel and its tremendous achievements. The remaining tasks would be "more of the same"; Haredim.
continuous aliyah and strengthening of the state. Alternatively, if the Jewish people were "only" a religion, the very idea of Zionism might be regarded as a mistake, as indeed is claimed by many of Haredim.

However, when one accepts the view that the Jewish people and Judaism are a "civilization," then the nature of the problems which must be faced becomes clearer, posing novel missions for Zionism.

A strong identity

The major danger facing us is the possibility of losing our Jewish identity, both in Israel and in the Diaspora. This would condemn the Jewish people and Judaism to declining and ultimately to disappearing. One can understand the danger more clearly when one considers that the factors which assured our survival during the many generations of exile no longer apply.

Diminishing numbers of the Jewish people adhere to a "religious" way of life. Anti-Semitism no longer builds walls around Jews. Assimilation is an increasing phenomenon. True, the trauma of the Holocaust strengthens remembrance as a survival factor and the existence of Israel provides a strong identity factor. But these cannot be relied upon to ensure the long-term meaningful survival of the Jewish people and of Judaism: Israel can lose its Jewish character and the

[Cont'd. on page B 43]

bottega bertolucci
Clothes for living
HAPPY NEW YEAR!
875 Eglinton Avenue West (At Bathurst) • (416) 783-7896

The PICKLE BARREL BLOOMSBURY cafe
The Partners and Management wish all their customers a Happy and Healthy New Year

The Management and Staff of ALWAYS SO GOOD swiss chalet FOR SO LITTLE swiss chalet would like to wish all their patrons a Happy and Healthy New Year
The Bayview Mall
3253 Bayview Avenue
(at Cummer)
Willowdale
416 - 250-0050
Bring this coupon to either of these locations and receive a FREE Soup or Salad with purchase of any entrée
Promenade Mall
7700 Bathurst Street
(at Centre)
Thornhill
905 - 771-7666

Jewish retirement living that's close to the heart.

Located in the heart of North Toronto's Jewish community, Terrace Gardens offers the comforts and amenities you deserve, and care geared to your needs. Attention to individual needs and personal well being are a priority at Terrace Gardens. We offer exemplary health care at all levels. At Terrace Gardens you'll enjoy the privacy and comforts of home, the companionship of neighbours and the care of our warm staff in this unique community.
We offer a fully Kosher kitchen under C.O.R. supervision.
Best wishes for a year of peace, health & happiness to our relatives & friends and the People of Israel.

Terrace Gardens
3705 Bathurst St.
789-7670
Member of the Ontario Residential Care Association ORCA

ALCAN
ALCAN Foil Products
Best Wishes For A Healthy & Happy New Year

BoN · LiEu
890 Yonge St. 963-4322
Wishing all our Customers and Friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
PiTiT · PiEu
890 Yonge St. 963-5925
2651 Yonge St. 322-6067

EXCLUSIVE PAINTS LTD.
Distributors of Pratt & Lambert
Sico & Selectone Paints
Wish our customers, relatives & friends a Happy, Healthy New Year
284 College Street
Toronto, Ontario M5T 1R9
(416) 921-5751

Happy New Year from All of Us at MARLIN MIRROR
2600 John Street, #110
Markham
(905) 475-2400

Zionism after 100 years

Israel can become more of 'normal' nation-state

[Cont'd. from page B 42]

Diaspora may disappear.

Israel can easily become more and more of a "normal" nation-state with an Israeli identity but with an evolving "Israeli" nationality increasingly detached from Judaism on the one hand and from the Diaspora on the other.

The thriving of Jewish people requires creativity

In the Diaspora, the "Israelization" of the state of the Jews and the resulting loss of "deep" contact with it by Diaspora Jews might reduce Judaism to a faith with a number of different versions of deteriorating content which have the allegiance of a decreasing number of adherents. Together, these two trends may lead to the "unthinkable" but sure transformation of the Jewish people and Judaism into a "living museum," as predicted by Arnold Toynbee.

Zionism has succeeded in overcoming Jewish "enslavement to other nations." Jews in the Diaspora enjoy unprecedented freedom and prosperity. However, these very successes may paradoxically lead to Jewish "enslavement to other cultures." In the longer run, this may finish off "the Jewish people and Judaism from within, much more than militant anti-Semitism, and even the Holocaust, ever did from without. In addition to the physical security of the State of Israel, dealing with the long-run threat is the critical challenge facing the Jewish people, Judaism and Zionism in the foreseeable future.

Therefore, I propose the following categoric imperative for Zionism over the next 100 years: Assuring and strengthening the meaningful existence and the thriving of the Jewish people and of Judaism, including a strong, "high-culture" Jewish State of Israel and a viable Diaspora.

Meaningful existence and the thriving of the Jewish people and of Judaism are an organic whole which cannot be severed: without thriving Judaism there can be no thriving Jewish people, and without a thriving Jewish people, demographically, socially and politically, there is no basis for Judaism.

But neither the thriving of Judaism nor the thriving of the Jewish people can be achieved without "civilizational" creativity, in matters of culture, religion, values, styles of life, social structures and more. In a rapidly changing humanity, living only on the basis of remembrance of the past will not be sustainable for long; and merely "doing more of the same" will not work. Indeed, it is my view that peak, Jewish, pluralistic creativity is not only a moral imperative, but is also essential for the survival and

[Cont'd. on page B 44]

Workers in Ein Harod in 1924

McDONALD'S
RESTAURANTS OF CANADA LTD.
McDonald's
McDonald's
EXTEND THEIR GOOD WISHES
FOR A HAPPY NEW YEAR

Happy New Year
Macdonell photography
416-481-4600

ARPI
COUTURIER
wishes all our clients and friends a Happy, Healthy & Prosperous New Year
(416) 964-6706

GOLDEN CARE LTD.
People you trust taking care of people you love.
We've grown and can serve your needs better than ever!
Wishing our clients, their family & friends, health & happiness in the New Year.
Honey Hecker
(416) 665-4229

THE PARTNERS OF
HARENDORF, LEBANE, MOSS
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
with their Friends, Relatives, Staff and Clients a Happy and Healthy New Year
לשנה טובה תכתבו
Yonge - Sheppard Centre
2 Sheppard Avenue East, Suite 1400
Willowdale, Ontario M2N 5Y7
Tel: (416) 730-1171 Fax: (416) 730-1139
For over 30 years, warmth and personal service has been the cornerstone of our success.
Irvin W. Harendorf, C.A.
Herb G. Lebane, C.A.
Maurice A. Moss, B. Comm., C.A.

Michele Stal
Fashions
(416) 488-7825
Wishing all our clients, friends and relatives a Happy and Healthy New Year

BENDIX
FOREIGN EXCHANGE
B
לשנה טובה
Wishing our Jewish friends & clients
A Very Happy New Year
366-9000
366 BAY STREET
TORONTO, ONTARIO
The People You Know ... The People You Trust

HOFFMAN & PASTERNAK
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Specializing in Canadian and U.S. Taxation extend Best Wishes to their clients & friends, for a Happy, Healthy & Prosperous New Year 7030 Woodbine Ave., Ste. 102
Markham, Ont. L3R 6G2
(416) 324-3242

Nina
HAUTE COUTURE
1898 Avenue Road
(416) 787-7133
Wishing all our customers and friends a Happy & Healthy New Year

Creativity essential

[Cont'd. from page B 43]

the thriving of Judaism and the Jewish people, both in Israel and in the Diaspora.

Creativity is essential, given the diminishing role of adherence to Orthodoxy as assuring the future of the Jewish people and of Judaism. Within a non-Orthodox perspective, the development of meaningful secular content for Judaism as a civilization is also essential. In Israel, the crisis of secular Judaism is pronounced. It leads to indiscriminate adherence to western values and to the proliferation of "Israeli" cultural elements lacking any basis in Judaism. In the Diaspora, the scope of assimilation testifies to the difficulties of providing substitutes for Orthodoxy.

Therefore, without new pluralistic and largely non-religious "civilizational" content for Judaism based on an unbroken chain of generations but fitting a new world, Israel is likely to "assimilate" into western and perhaps Middle Eastern cultures as another "nation state;" and the Jews in the Diaspora are likely to assimilate into their surrounding cultures, with only narrow enclaves of "Judaism as religion" remaining.

A further step in this analysis is to realize the present paradoxical situation of the Jewish people and Judaism in the world. Never before has the Jewish people possessed so much political strategic power; but seldom before has Judaism as a "civilization" been so unimportant in terms of humanity as a whole. This civilizational weakness cannot but weaken the meaningfulness of Judaism in the eyes of the Jews themselves, especially in the younger generation, and this will lead to a decreasing will and ability to continue to be Jews and to have their descendants be Jews as well.

Pride in strength is justified and useful, but in a small people, it cannot for long substitute for a sense of "meaning." Therefore, renewed peak Jewish creativity, which would also be of benefit on a wider basis, is urgently required.

Zionism aimed to intervene with history to assure the survival and thriving of the Jewish people and of Judaism. During the first 100 years of Zionism, the emphasis – rightly so – was on saving Jews and re-establishing the state of the Jews in the Promised Land. Cultural creativity was recognized as essential; much was achieved, such as the revival of the Hebrew language with all its "civilizational" significance. However, "cultural Zionism" was pushed aside. Priority was given to

[Cont'd. on page B 45]

There was a feeling within the Yishuv that all Jewish history had been directed toward this moment, Nov. 29, 1947

Zionism after 100 years

Renewed Jewish creativity urgently required building up the Jewish homeland and saving Jews.

[Cont'd. from page B 44]

Indeed, this task is not over. Israel continues to need strengthening through aliyah, both as a norm and as an existential need. However, the time has come to "refound" Zionism.

The time has come to refound Zionism

This proposal involves a radical shift from political Zionism to a new version of "cultural Zionism," as originally proposed by Ahad Ha'am and later by Mordecai Kaplan. Aliyah and strengthening Israel will continue to be main values of Zionism. But the emphasis must shift, in part, to a broader view aimed at ensuring the thriving of the Jewish people and Judaism, encompassing "Jewish civilization."

I propose four major values of Refounded Zionism which must be added to the values of aliyah and strengthening of the State of Israel:

• The Jewish nature of the State of Israel must be a "Jewish State," not only a "State of the Jews." Unless Israel is uniquely a "Jewish State" within pluralistic meanings, Zionism, despite all its tremendous achievements, may fail, with dismal consequences for the Jewish people and Judaism as a whole.

• While the Jewish State of Israel will be central to the Jewish people, we must increase efforts to strengthen the meaningful existence and the thriving of the Jewish people and of Judaism in the Diaspora as well.

• Strengthening the Jewish people and Judaism, and pursuing unity are major tasks for both Israel and the Diaspora. Hence, there is a need for a Jewish people policy, in which the State of Israel fulfils a pivotal role, but which would be a matter for the Jewish people as a whole in full partnership between all its parts.

• The encouragement of Jewish pluralistic creativity is a must. Jewish education, both in Israel and the Diaspora, has little hope of strengthening Jewish identity unless its content is innovatively developed on the basis of tradition, but also cognizant of the concerns of the young in their rapidly shifting world.

For the sake of the future, the revitalization of Zionism, the movement of the Jewish people, is needed as much now as it was in the past. But, to do this, Zionism itself must undergo renewal. This involves the painful, "constructive destruction" of what is obsolete and the creative development of values, missions and tasks.

I may be wrong with my substantive proposals. But there is no doubt in my mind that despite all the tremendous achievements, the meaningful survival of the Jewish people and of Judaism is not assured. This is true because of the physical dangers facing Israel in the foreseeable future, even if the peace process proceeds very well. It is also true because of the "assimilation" dangers facing the Jewish people in Israel and in the Diaspora.

Therefore, great challenges continue to await Zionism in its second hundred years. It is up to all of us to participate in refounding Zionism so that it meets new challenges and continues its heroic successes.

GRINGLER ISKOV LERNER
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
We wish our Clients and Friends a Happy, Healthy & Peaceful New Year
110 WEST BEAVER CREEK RD., UNIT 1
RICHMOND HILL, ONT. L4B 1J9

HAIR CARE PLUS
Serving the Jewish Community for the past 37 years
The Management and staff wish all their clients a Happy and Healthy New Year
654 Sheppard Ave. West
Downsview (416) 636-3263

THANK YOU
FOR RENTING YOUR
YOM TOV NEEDS
FROM US
We wish our customers a Happy & Healthy New Year
Higgins (416) 241-8564
PARTY RENTALS

NYMAN INK
The Newsletter Specialist
wishes all our clients and friends a happy and healthy new year.
L'SHANAH TOVA 5758
226 Lonsmount Drive
Toronto ON M5P 2Z1
Tel 416. 653. 4698
Fax 416. 653. 9912

GCSE
Green • Chencinski • Starkman • Eles
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Extends best wishes to our Clients and Friends for a Happy & Healthy New Year
2 Sheppard Avenue East, Suite 606,
North York, Ontario M2N 5Y7
(416) 512-6000

GREEN BROS. FURS
Best Wishes For
A Happy & Healthy New Year
To All Our Customers, Friends and Family
Henry and Jerry Green

ROSE LAZAR CATERING SERVICES LTD.
633-0344
We wish our customers & friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
The Lazar Family

THE BAGEL
"A tradition of Great Home Style Cooking"
Happy New Year
To All Our Customers
285 College St.
Toronto, Ont.
Tel: (416) 966-7555
Come Home to THE BAGEL

Famous in Israel and Canada
ONE MAN BAND
BORIS NEIMAN
Singer, Musician
Shana Tova to all my clients & friends
Live & DJ music for all occasions (905) 889-3643

DR. RICK KOCHMAN
would like to wish all my Patients & Friends
a Happy & Healthy
New Year

The Management and Staff of Sheppard Celebrity Travel wish all their friends & clients
שנה טובה
4915 Bathurst St., Ste. 221
(Bathurst/Finch Plaza)
Open Sundays 10-1
250-1234

A Happy & Healthy New Year to our Clients & Friends
KRAFT, ROTHMAN, BERGER, GRILL
SCHWARTZ & COHEN
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Accounting, Auditing, Taxation, Microcomputers and Business Planning, Valuations and Bankruptcy Consulting
3160 STEELES AVENUE EAST, SUITE #300, MARKHAM, ONTARIO L3R 3Y2
TEL: (905) 475-2222 TORONTO LINE (416) 365-6161 FAX (905) 475-9360

Lipton Wiseman Altbaum & Partners
Chartered Accountants
Wishing our Clients, Staff and Friends A Very Happy & Healthy New Year
L'Shanah Tova
Suite 600, 245 Fairview Mall Drive
Toronto, Ontario, Canada M2J 4T1
Tel.: (416) 496-2900 Fax: (416) 496-0559
Member of Jeffreys Henry International

Zionism after 100 years

Avraham Burg

From generation to generation: The next 100 years

By AVRAHAM BURG

One hundred years after the First Zionist Congress, we now celebrate the unparalleled triumph of the Zionist movement in bringing a majority of the world's Jewish people home to their own strong sovereign nation in the Land of Israel. The ingathering of the exiles is largely complete, and Hebrew has been developed not only as a living language but as a cultural bridge that links world Jewry with generations of both the past and the future.

Ironically, just as the physical rescue of the Jewish people is being completed, an ample cause for celebration, the threat of our spiritual destruction looms ominously on the horizon. Assimilation: an enemy with no face, no leadership, no ideology, no organization and no resources, is claiming a large number of our brothers and sisters throughout the world.

THE JEWISH AGENCY

Here in Israel, we confront the no less pressing need for societal reform. Reform that will allow Jews to live with Jews, despite their differences. Reform that will build and unite a more moral, tolerant, pluralistic society. The threat being faced in Israel is no longer one of immediate existence, but rather of the existential content we will be able to pass on to our children, and they to theirs. Men and women, secular and religious of all streams, the wealthy and the needy of varied ethnic background — all must be made partners in a human and ideological bridge to a better Israeli future.

Both of these challenges — the fight against assimilation in the Diaspora and the struggle for unity in Israel — grew out of the successive chapters of the Zionist dream. The first chapter was that of pure vision. The second was of realization, translating the vision into a strong and powerful reality. The third chapter will be that of shaping the moral content of our lives — in Israel, in the Diaspora and between us all as partners in the mosaic of Jewish peoplehood.

Theodor Herzl envisioned this phase a century ago when he wrote: "I believe that even after attaining our land, Zionism will not cease to be an ideal, because Zionism, as I understand it, includes not only the yearning for part of the Promised Land for our oppressed people, but also the yearning for moral and spiritual wholeness."

Today's Zionist is someone who has the commitment to confront these challenges. A Zionist is someone who has the strength to dream and the passion for fulfilment in Israel. A Zionist is someone who has the readiness to sacrifice on behalf of collective Jewish continuity and the whole Jewish people. He or she is proud of these traits, never tires and already dreams the next dream, that which our grandchildren will fulfill. Because it is for them we truly toil, in the certainty that they will do the same for their children.

Avraham Burg is the chair of the Jewish Agency for Israel and World Zionist Organization.

A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
荣果园
Young Lok
Celebrating our 28th Anniversary!
NORTH YORK
Madison Centre
4950 Yonge St., Tel. 225-8818
Free Validated Parking
Next door to Ford Centre for the Performing Arts

PROFESSIONAL COURT REPORTERS INC.
NORTH YORK • MARKHAM • OSHAWA
Wish all of our clients a Happy, Healthy & Prosperous New Year

To all our friends
Have a Happy and Healthy New Year
from
Greg A. Dean and Staff
Signature PHOTOGRAPHY

A Happy and Healthy New Year to all of our Customers & Friends
The ultimate driving experience
MOSHE GRUBER MASHA APTEKAR
New or Preowned
Sales, Leasing and Fleet
TOWN & COUNTRY
7200 Yonge St. (at Steeles) (905) 886-3100
We Lease all Makes and Models

לשנה טובה תכתבו
A Happy and Healthy New Year
To all our family and friends
Pearl and Sol Zucker

The Partners and Staff of
DAREN, MARTENFELD, CARR, TESTA AND COMPANY
Chartered Accountants
Michael Daren
Marvin Martenfeld
Sheldon Carr
Enzo Testa
Robbie Rotin
Harry Blum
Phillip Wiener
wish all their clients and friends a very Happy & Healthy New Year
20 Eglinton Avenue West, Suite 2100
Toronto, Ontario, M4R 1K8
A member of Midsnell Group International

ב"ה
To all our friends, family, clients, associates and the entire community, we extend our warmest wishes for a happy, healthy and prosperous New Year
Compliments of: Laurie and Alan Gutmann
TORONTO A&J MAILING SERVICES INC. ONT
Tel: (416) 247-2629
Fax: (416) 247-9211

MARLA'S DOMESTICS
RECEIVE THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
(live-in/out nannies, housekeepers)
Wish all our clients & friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
Marla Goldman, family & staff
226-4325

Zionism after 100 years

Basel Delegates

A list of the people who attended as delegates at the First Zionist Congress in Basel, Switzerland.

Dr. D. Alcalay, Belgrade
Mrs. Alcalay, Belgrade
L. Amtschislawsky, Elisabethgrad
R. Asarch, Zurich
E. Attali, Constantine
I. Bahar, Paris
Mrs. Blanche Bahar, Paris
W. Bambus, Berlin
M. Banyas, Tolna
B. Barbasch, Brussels
F. Beer, Paris
Prof. Zvi G. Belkowsky, Sofia
H. Benjaminowicz, Korobkow
I.L. Berger, Pinsk
Dr. M. Berkowitz, Vienna
Dr. J. Bernstein-Kohan, Kishinev
H. Birkenstein, Frankfurt a. M.
Dr. N. Birnbaum, Vienna
Dr. E. Blumenfeld, Jaroslav
Dr. M.J. Bodenheimer, Cologne
R. Brainin, Berlin
M. Braude, Freiburg
R.A. Braudes, Vienna
S. Bromberg, Tarnov
I. Buchmil, Montpellier
Dr. Z. Bychowski, Warsaw
J. Caleb, Sofia
Gustav G. Cohen, Hamburg
J. Cowen, London
I. Davidsohn, Bartfeldt
E. Davidson, Berlin
A. Donreich, Vienna
S. Drujan, Basel
Dr. M. Ebner, Czernovitz
Dr. M. Ehrenpreis, Diakovar
Mrs. Ehrenpreis, Diakovar
I. Eljaschoff, Berlin
B. Epstein, Heidelberg
Dr. D. Farbstein, Zurich
H. Farbstein, Warsaw
H. Feinberg, Basel
B. Feiwel, Brno
Dr. B. Fernhof, Buczacz
N. Finkelstein, Brest-Litovsk
E. Fried, Vienna
Lazarus Friedmann, Mayence
Leon Friedmann, Mayence
M. Gelis, Berne
A. Ginsburg, Liverpool
A. Ginzberg (Achad Haam), Odessa
G.S. Gitelewitz, Mariapol
Mrs. S. Gitelewitz, Mariapol
Dr. I. Gleisner, Jamnitz
I. Goitein, Frankfurt a. M.
I.L. Goldberg, Vilna
W. Gross, Jaffa
Dr. S. Gruen, Vienna
B. Guenzburg, Welisch
I. de Haas, London
A. Hausmann, Lemberg
P. Heinrich, Heidelberg
C. Herbst, Sofia
Dr. Th. Herzl, Vienna
I. Hirschensohn, Jassy
Miss Klara Hirschensohn, Jassy
L. Horodischz, Brest-Litovsk
L. Huppert, Friedeck
M. Ibidrichim, Petersburg
E. Ish-Kishor, London
M. Jacobsohn, Basel
L. Jaffe, Heidelberg
A.S. Jahuda, Jerusalem
I. Jasinowsky, Warsaw

[Cont'd. on page B 48]

swiss chalet chicken + ribs
Wishing all our guests a Happy and Healthy New Year
1881 Leslie St.
Don Mills
(416) 447-0286

The Incredible Printing Group of Companies
Simply Incredible since 1972
A Happy & Healthy New Year To All
30 ST. REGIS CR. NORTH, NORTH YORK (416) 630-5200

Tresses Salon
"the complete beauty centre"
We Wish Our Friends and Customers a Happy & Healthy New Year
Open Sundays
1923 Avenue Road
North York, Ontario M5S 4A2
416 - 787-0141

MED CARE Health Centre
Wishes all their clients and friends A Very Happy & Healthy New Year
Shops on Steeles & 404, 2900 Steeles Ave. E. (at Don Mills) (905) 881-6667
Main Exchange Plaza, 800 Steeles Ave. W. (at Bathurst) (905) 738-6699
Thornhill Square, 300 John St. (at Bayview) (905) 731-7077

Shaatness. Lou Myles.
And a good Year.
לשנה טובה תכתבו
Lou Myles DISEGNATORE
Exquisite ready-to-wear and custom tailoring that meets your Shaatness requirements
Gene Bialys (905) 738-3333
380 Millway Avenue, Concord (W. of Jane, N. of Hwy. 7)

HAPPY ROSH HASHANAH FROM YOUR FRIENDS AT LAWRENCE PARK MOTORS.

At 912 Mount Pleasant Road, meet Jay Goldberg, Volvo Sales Specialist. Call him at (416) 485-7601.
Lawrence Park Motors
Drive Safely. Buy Wisely.
VOLVO

BEST WISHES FOR A HAPPY, HEALTHY NEW YEAR FROM

Ontario Liberal Leader
Dalton McGuinty
and Members of the Ontario Liberal Caucus

David Caplan
Oriole

Annamarie Castrilli
Downsview

Mike Colle
Oakwood

Joseph Cordiano
Lawrence

Monte Kwinter
Wilson Heights

Tony Ruprecht
Parkdale

Zionism after 100 years

First Congress participants

[Cont'd. from page B 47]

I. Jelna, Mohilev
Markus Kahan, Homel
Dr. A. Kaminka, Esseg
E.M. Kann, The Hague
J.H. Kann, The Hague
P. Katzenelsohn, Bobruisk
E. Katzmann, Montpellier
J. Klausner, Heidelberg
Dr. N. Klugmann, Vienna
S. Kohn, Brno
N. Kopelowitz, Homel
A. Korkis, Lemberg
Dr. M. Kornblueh, Freistadt
Mrs. Kornblueh, Freistadt
H. Korobkoff, Mstislavl
M. Kramer, Misslitz
B. Kraus, Friedeck
J. Kremenetzki, Vienna
L. Kunin, Berne
E. Lamm, Berlin
Dr. S.R. Laudau, Vienna
I. Lazarus, Fiume
Mrs. S. Lewiasch, Berne
Dr. K. Lippe, Jassy
Dr. H. Loewe, Jaffa
M. Losinsky, Bobruisk
G. Lourie, Pinsk
S. Lourie, Pinsk
A. Lubarsky, Oddessa
S. Lublinsky, Berlin
A. Ludwipol, Paris
Dr. I. Lurie, Warsaw
Dr. D. Malz, Lemberg
Dr. S. Mandelkern, Leipzig
Dr. M. Mandelstamm, Kiev
B. Margulies, Bucharest
A. Markus, Podgorze
Mrs. B. Markus, Merano
T. Markus, Merano
O. Marmorek, Vienna
I. Massel, Manchester
I. Melnik, Heidelberg
Dr. A. Mintz, Vienna
I. Mirkin, Montpellier
J. Mohilewer, Bialystok
H. Mordkowitsch, Rowno
M. Moses, Katovice
L. Motzkin, Berlin
A. Munk, Vienna
Dr. D. Neumark, Rakovitz
A. Neuschul, Vilna
Dr. M. Nordau, Paris
M. Orschansky, Charkov
M. Padua, Paris
A. Perlis, Vilna
S. Pewsner, Berlin
L. Picker, Czernovitz
J. Pickard, Basel
M. Pikarski, Vienna
S. Pineles, Galatz
Dr. S. Poznanski, Warsaw
M. Rabinovitz (Ben-Ami), Odessa
S.P. Rabinovitz, Poltava
N. Rappoport, Smolensk
Miss M. Reinus, Zurich
I.A. Rivkin, Heidelberg
Dr. I. Ronai, Balaszfalva
S. Rosenbaum, Minsk
S. Rosenbaum, Vienna
A. Rosenberg, New York
I. Rosenblum, Darmstadt
Dr. S. Rosenhek, Kolomea
L. Rosenthal, Bialystok
S.B. Rubinstein, London
A. Sachs, Dvinsk
S.I. Sachs, Dvinsk
B. Safrin, Monasterzyska
Dr. A. Salz, Tarnov
F. Schach, Cologne
Dr. S. Schaffer, Baltimore
Dr. I. Schalit, Vienna
L. Schalit, Riga
Prof. Dr. H. Schapira, Heidelberg
Mrs. Schapira, Heidelberg
Dr. Schauer, Bingen
S. Schiller, Lemberg
Mrs. E. Schlaposchnikow, Charkov
Dr. M. Schlaposchnikow, Charkov
Dr. I. Schnirer, Vienna
M. Ch. Schornstein, Paris
I. Schur, Karlsruhe
E. Schwager, Tarnov
I. Seff, Kostantinov
J. Seidener, Vienna
Dr. I. Seligmann, Stockholm
I. Silbermann, Crajova
S. Singer, Kolomea
Miss M. Sokolow, Warsaw
N. Sokolow, Warsaw
E.M. Solowei, Vitebsk
Mrs. Sonnenschein, New York
B. Spira, Cracow
A. Stand, Lemberg
H. Steiner, Vienna
M. Swidrichin, Basel
N. Syrkin, Berlin
M. Teitelbaum, Rechovoth
W. Temkin, Elizabethgrad
Miss H. Tomaszewsky, Berlin
D. Trietsch, New York
I. Turoff, Berlin
M. Uriassohn, Grodno
M. Ussischkin, Ekaterinoslaw
Dr. E. Valentin, Montpellier
E. Vas, Szegedin
N. Wasilewsky, Poltava
I.I. Weil, Basel
Dr. S. Werner, Iglau
Dr. H. Wertheimer, Jamnitz
Dr. L. Wilensky, Krementschug
B.L. Wittes, Basel
D. Wolffsohn, Cologne
Ch. Wortmann, Zurich
I. Zangwill, London
Miss A. Zimmern, Ashford
Dr. Th. Zlocisti, Berlin

Guests
Col. C. Bentinck, London
Rev. Hechler, Vienna
Baron Manteuffel, St. Michele

Presidents of the World Zionist Organization

1897-1905 Theodor Herzl
1905-1911 David Wolffsohn
1911-1921 Otto Warburg
1921-1931 Chaim Weizmann
1931-1935 Nahum Sokolow
1935-1946 Chaim Weizmann
1946-1947 David Ben-Gurion
1956-1968 Nahum Goldman
(After the 27th World Zionist Congress, held in Jerusalem in 1968, the position of president was no longer filled.)

Chairmen of the Zionist executive

1920-1931 Nahum Sokolow (called president of the executive)
1921-1923 Menachem Ussishkin, chairman of the Eretz Israel executive 1931-1932 In this period F.H. Kisch chaired the meetings of the executive in Jerusalem, but did not generally use the title of chairman
1933-1935 Arthur Ruppin
1935-1948 David Ben-Gurion
1948-1956 Berl Locker and Dr. Nahum Goldman
1956-1961 Zalman Shazar
1961-1965 Moshe Sharett
1965-1973 Louis Pincus
1973-1974 Arye L. Dulzin
1974-1975 Pinhas Sapir
1975-1976 Arye L. Dulzin (acting chairman)
1976-1977 Josef Almogi
1978-1987 Arye L. Dulzin
1987-1994 Simcha Dinitz
1994-1995 Yehiel Leket (acting chairman)
1995- Avraham Burg

LEVY'S CATERING
would like to wish all their friends & customers
שנה טובה
(416) 256-7886

New Years Greetings
JB clothes Since 1948
80 Spadina Avenue
5th Floor, Toronto
703-2351
Fine Custom Tailors

Shana Tova
to my family, clients & friends
STUART MOSCOE PHOTOGRAPHY
866 Eglinton Ave. W. Toronto www.smphoto.com
416-784-3686

Wishing you Health and Happiness in the New Year
BAD BOY
NOBODY'S BETTER...NOOOBODY!

Henry Rotberg Steel
CONSTRUCTION LIMITED
Wishing you and your family a Happy and Healthy New Year
לשנה טובה
55 Credistone Road
Concord, Ont. L4K 1N3
Tel. (905) 669-1916
Fax (905) 669-6173

UMM
Howard Ipp, Barry Rapps and Dave O'Halloran
of
UNITED MESSENGERS LTD.
Rush Couriers
Extend their Best Wishes to their clients and friends for a Happy and Healthy New Year
270 Drumlin Circle
Concord, Ontario L4K 3E2
(905) 738-6447

Samuel Kleinberg Jewellery Limited
29 YEARS OF RELIABLE QUALITY, WORKMANSHIP & VALUE
WE WISH ALL OUR CUSTOMERS, FAMILY & FRIENDS A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
3130 Bathurst St. (at Lawrence)
2nd Fl. Lawrence Plaza
(N.W. Corner)
789-7557

A Happy & Healthy New Year to our Clients & Friends
KRAFT, ROTHMAN, BERGER, GRILL SCHWARTZ & COHEN
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Accounting, Auditing, Taxation, Microcomputers and Business Planning, Valuations and Bankruptcy Consulting
3160 STEELES AVENUE EAST, SUITE #300, MARKHAM, ONTARIO L3R 3Y2
TEL: (905) 475-2222 TORONTO LINE (416) 365-6161 FAX (905) 475-9360

SYLMAN PHOTOGRAPHY
Elliot & Stephanie Sylman wish all their clients, family and friends a happy and healthy New Year
495 Champagne Dr.
North York, Ontario M3J 2C6
Tel: 635-6749

Zionism after 100 years

Demise of Zionism highly exaggerated

By RABBI DOW MARMUR

Since the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948, it has been fashionable to argue that Zionism has come to an end, for its objective — a sovereign Jewish state — has been achieved.

OPINION

tive — a sovereign Jewish state — has been achieved.

It is my view however, that the demise of Zionism is highly exaggerated. Taking stock on its 100th anniversary should be seen as an opportunity to point to its possibilities in the next century.

Moreover, it is important that we do so, because after all, we are trying to make sense of our Judaism while living in a Diaspora that sees unprecedented personal and collective freedom, with almost boundless individual opportunity, in considerable prosperity, but which, at the same time, must face assimilation with all its ramifications.

The questions that concern us are: What does Zionism mean to us today, a century after its inception? How can commitment to Judaism strengthen our bonds with our people and our God through the link with Zion?

As a first attempt at an answer, I draw your attention to a book by Ari Elon, From Jerusalem to the Edge of Heaven, published by the Jewish Publication Society.

Elon takes frequent trips to the Diaspora. But his most frequent excursions to the Diaspora are made without having to leave the borders of Israel. "Everyday I take off from Israel to Pumbedita," he writes. Pumbedita was the place in Babylonia of long ago where one of the great academies of the Talmudic period had its seat.

By studying and teaching Talmud, Elon says that he is transporting himself into a world that is fundamentally different from the world of modern Israel. I understand Elon to say that he is trying to live both in the world of perennial Judaism and in the world of contemporary Israel.

"We need our national home as a place to come down to, and come down in, so that we can once again take off skyward with renewed strength," writes Elon.

A less poetic way of saying the same thing might be to suggest that, in order to be authentic Jews we need both Pumbedita and Jerusalem, Toronto and Tel Aviv, the world of Judaism as it has evolved through the ages and the state of the Jews, as it has emerged in our time. And that both can be in the same place, at the same time.

To describe the two interconnected worlds of his Jewish existence, Elon plays with two similar sounding Hebrew words. He distinguishes between rabbani, the world shaped by Rabbinic Judaism and ribboni, a word that can be translated as "sovereign."

To be a Jew today, one has to be committed both to the world of the rabbis and to the sovereign State of Israel. The Zionism of the next century must find a way of bridging gaps and avoiding dichotomies, of enabling us all to live in Pumbedita and Jerusalem, Toronto and Tel Aviv, at the same time. But how to get there is a laborious process

Martin Buber taught that Judaism has at least three components: the faith of Israel, the people of Israel and the land of Israel. The challenge for us is to find a way of placing ourselves in the centre of the triangle that these components form with equal access and equal commitment to all three corners.

That's how I understand the nature of the covenant that the God of Israel makes with the people of Israel: If the people obey God's commandments, God will take the people to the land of Israel. Each of the three elements is essential and each is contingent on the others.

The first century of modern Zionism could never integrate this truth. It could never combine more than two of the three elements. Zionists were divided between secularists and religionists: The secularists linked people to land and left out faith; the religionists linked faith to land, and even though they did not repudiate people, they tended to see the role of the people primarily in the land, not outside it — like Ben Gurion. As we are moving into the second century of modern Zionism, the division between religious and secular has lost its meaning.

Until modern times, the faith of Israel was so strong and the people of Israel so cohesive that it was enough to imagine the land of Israel without actually being there. And imagine Jews did! Our festivals have always been celebrated according to the climate of the land of Israel. My favorite example is Tu b'Shvat. Try to plant a tree anywhere in Canada in January or February, when Tu b'Shvat occurs.

Similarly our synagogues are so built that worshippers face Jerusalem. Even the dead are buried according to the same orientation.

[Cont'd. on page B 50]

L'SHANA TOVA
HAPPY NEW YEAR 5758
from
TED BERGER
Candidate for Councillor
Ward 4 - Vaughan
"Your support is appreciated"
(905) 660-1848

BARBUTI
BAYVIEW VILLAGE (416) 730-9944
SHANAH TOVAH

Wishing the Jewish Community
of the City of Vaughan sincere best wishes for a happy, healthy and prosperous New Year.
שנה טובה
Joyce Frustaglio
Regional Councillor

ORIGINAL IMPORTS
Ruth Lanys and the staff wish all their customers, family and friends
a year filled with peace, good health and happiness.
3091 Bathurst St. (416) 781-2221

HAPPY NEW YEAR
TO ALL OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS

CHEZ CATHERINE
Hazelton Lanes, Lower Concourse • (416) 967-5666

WISHING ALL OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS A HAPPY NEW YEAR

GRAND TOURING AUTOMOBILES
740 Dupont St. 530-1880

The partners of Fogler, Rubinoff
would like to extend Holiday Greetings
to their friends & clients
FOGLER, RUBINOFF
BARRISTERS & SOLICITORS
SUITE 4400, P.O. BOX 95, ROYAL TRUST TOWER
TORONTO-DOMINION CENTRE
TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA M5K 1G8

SF & PARTNERS CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Solursh Feldman & Partners
Wishing our Clients, Staff and Friends
A Very Happy & Healthy New Year
L'Shanah Tova
The Sheppard Centre
2 Sheppard Avenue East, Suite 1800
North York, Ontario
Canada M2N 5Y7
Tel: (416) 250-1212 Fax: (416) 250-1225
E-mail: general@solfeld.com
Website: www.solfeld.com
Harvey H. Solursh, CA
Irving Feldman, CA
M. Theodore (Ted) Korn, MBA, CA
Stanley I. Rapkin, B.Com, CH, CA
Darryl L. Hennick, BSC, CA
Bradley Waese, B.Com, CA
Hugh Herman, BSC, CA
Mark B. Wainman, B. Comm (Hons), CA
Steven Goldberg, BBA, CA, CIP

לשנה טובה תכתבו
Best Wishes for a
Happy and Healthy New Year
Dr. Carolyn Bennett, MP
St. Paul's
1650 Yonge Street, Toronto
Tel: (416) 952-3990
Fax: (416) 952-3995
E-mail: bennec@parl.gc.ca

ב"ה
Martin W. Lipworth
The Practice of Life Insurance
Happy & Healthy New Year to All My Valued Clients & Friends
11 Allstate Parkway, Suite 200
Markham, Ontario L3R 9T8
Tel. (905) 940-9200 Ext. 342 Fax (905) 940-9207
Licensed in Accordance with Ontario Law

Leslie Bakery
Quality Above All Else
All Natural Ingredients. No Preservatives
לשנה טובה תכתבו
Wish our customers, family & friends a Happy & Healthy New Year
5859 Leslie Street (416) 493-6740

Chapman's
Fine FOOD Show
We would like to extend our sincere appreciation for your patronage, and wish you a Happy and Healthy New Year

BEST WISHES FOR A HAPPY, HEALTHY NEW YEAR
FROM EVERYONE AT MIX99.9FM

Shanah Tovah
the Rabbi Sheldon Steinberg Memorial Library Advisory Board

This palliative care and bereavement counselling library is open and continues to grow. Donations in honour of all occasions allow us to continue to build and maintain a first-rate collection.

For information about using the library or making a donation, please call the Mt. Sinai Division of Palliative Medicine at (416) 586-4800, extension 6776.

Then came the Enlightenment

[Cont'd. from page B 49]

Thus, what is nonsense in geometry has happened in Jewish history The triangle existed even though the third corner and the third side were missing. The force of the other two, as it were, projected enough energy to make up for the absence of the third.

Then came the Enlightenment.

Whenever it reached Jewish communities, it tended to shatter their faith. As a result, the people of Israel was gradually weakened through defection and indifference. In the wake of the Enlightenment came also modern anti-Semitism. It brutally weakened the people of Israel. As a result there was no longer enough force in the faith and in the people to keep the triangle together.

The Holocaust was the culmination of this process. Hitler might have got what Emil Fackenheim has called his "posthumous victory," had not the State of Israel been established.

Israel's existence and the struggle for its existence,helped to restore the triangle of faith, people and land. The movement that brought about Israel started half-a-century before the state was actually created; but it is the creation of Israel that brought it all together.

Only then were the people and the faith renewed. Despite our memories that haunt us and the scars that can never heal, Judaism has been restored. It is impossible to understand this restoration without recognizing the role that modern Israel has played in it.

Zionism in the next century must be a celebration of our new condition. Therefore it must not only recognize the place of Israel in contemporary Jewish history, but also establish a new relationship between it and the Diaspora.

To recognize the significance of the land of Israel for the people of Israel is also to acknowledge new challenges. The interaction between the corners of faith, people and land has created new realities for Jewish life.

Israel made hope real

The interaction between the renewed faith and the restored people has brought hope back to Judaism. The national anthem of Israel is called, Hatikvah, hope. For though hope is inherent in all Judaism, it was only now that it became possible for Jews to root their hope in political reality.

The return of the people of Israel to the land of Israel not only revived the people and reclaimed the land, but it also made hope real. We could sing with conviction the words of the Hatikvah, "Od lo avda tikvatenu, our hope has not yet vanished."

The return of the people of Israel to the land of Israel has also given rise to Jewish power. To be sovereign means to have power. Israel has become a source of power to be reckoned with in the region and on the international arena, and Jews as individuals and as communities have gained influence in the world. The sovereignty of place has brought influence. To be a Zionist is to recognize it and to act accordingly.

Along similar lines, the interaction between the faith of Israel and the land of Israel has made it necessary for us to live as a people by the principles of righteousness that we have been taught by prophets and sages. As a rabbani people we were only able to preach righteousness; as a ribboni people we are called upon to practice it. The Jewish state, worthy of that name, must also be a testing ground for Jewish teachings.

Each of hope,power and righteousness, positive forces though they are, also have negative sides to them.

Hope can easily deteriorate into false Messianism and that's precisely what is happening before our eyes.

Similarly, the use of power can be both positive and negative. That is why we are called upon to heed Irving Greenberg's plea to use power "with the memory of powerlessness."

This last point deserves to be stressed: We must never forget that having been "strangers in the land of Egypt," we must treat strangers as if they were our brothers.

What has been said about power can also be said about rightcousness. Zionist education demands that we show the way to righteous means that lead to righteous ends. It is a task that Israel and the Diaspora share. Its realization calls for a new partnership.

Another aim of Zionist education is to help ourselves and each other to affirm that, with the return to the Land and the re-establishment of the triangle, Judaism has undergone a paradigm shift.

Zionism came into being when the prevalent Jewish paradigm was survival. It was the Judaism of the Diaspora to which Zionism tried to offer the solution — survival through sovereignty. The majority of Jews rejected it. They believed that they could survive by staying put in their involuntary exile, or choose another exile. The Holocaust vindicated the Zionist solution and proved the others wrong.

Having been proven right and having made Jewish survival possible, the next task of Zionism is to assure what we have come to call continuity. If survival was the response to the threat from without, continuity is the effort to counteract the danger of erosion from within.

Thus, we turn to the new, Zionist paradigm for direction. Those who insist that Zionism is dead think only in terms of the old survival paradigm.

[Cont'd on B 51]

CANADIAN TIRE
We wish all our customers & friends A VERY HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
CANADIAN TIRE STORE
700 Lawrence Avenue West
(corner of Allen Expressway & Lawrence Ave.)
Service: 787-1206
Parts: 787-1204
Store: 787-1203

ROYAL LIGHTING
Best wishes to all our valued customers, friends & relatives for a Happy & Healthy New Year
1549 Avenue Road (at Lawrence) 782-1129

Israel is central

[Cont'd. from page B 50]

Those who see the dawn of a new era in Zionism after the establishment of the Jewish state reckon with the new stress on continuity.

The new "post-modern" Zionism will no longer be concerned with the dichotomy between Diaspora and homeland, where Diaspora spells disaster and homeland spells survival because both will have been integrated into the joint quest for continuity.

The challenge now is how to relate to the three components of the second triangle of Judaism. How to make hope real? How to exercise power with the memory of powerlessness? How to practice righteousness, not only preach it?

In response, I offer the following platform.

- Israel is central. It is the only place in the world where a total Jewish experience is possible.
- Israel and the Diaspora are interdependent. The task of Zionism is to establish the most viable line of communication between them.
- There must be religious pluralism, human rights and social equality for Jews and non-Jews alike.
- Hebrew education must be emphasized. Through Hebrew the rabbani world and the ribboni world can, literally, speak the same language.
- Aliyah is a mitzvah incumbent on all Jews. One ought to observe the mitzvah in the best way one can including through "partial", or incremental aliyah.
- Failing full aliyah to Israel, one ought to experience pilgrimage to Israel as a way to deepen our understanding and love of Israel and to reinforce our sense of Jewish solidarity.
- Financial support should not be neglected.
- Zionism of the next century will mean a much more vigorous debate about the relationship of Israel to its neighbors. Of course, Israelis and Israelis alone are to vote on what kind of government they want, but because Israel is not only the state of its citizens but also the state of the entire Jewish people, Zionist debate must have a voice, even when it cannot have a vote.

In following this prescription, we will show that the slogan, "Long live the State of Israel" can only ring true if it is preceded by the statement, "Long live Zionism." And in the same way as we can say, "Long live Israel" because of the sacrifices made by the pioneers, builders and citizens of the State, so will we only be able to say, "Long live Zionism," if we will make the effort. The time is now.

Rabbi Marmur is the spiritual leader of Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto.

Marcello Tarantino
SHANAH TOVAH
17 HAZELTON AVENUE (416) 925-2464

COR 47 CENTRAL EPICURE COR 7
THE DAITER & NADLER FAMILIES
Wish all their customers, friends and relatives a Healthy and Happy New Year
Central-Epicure Food Products Ltd.
501 Garyray Drive, Weston, Ontario M9L 1P9
Phone: (416) 745-4323 Fax: (416) 745-5297

My Best Wishes to the Jewish Community for a year filled with Peace, Good Health and Happiness
ELINOR CAPLAN, MP
THORNHILL
7670 Yonge St.
Tel (905) 886-9911
Fax (905) 886-5267
Canada

Our Best Wishes for a Happy, Healthy & Prosperous New Year to our Clients & Friends
COMMERCE
CUSTOMS BROKERS & FREIGHT FORWARDERS LTD.
STEPHEN DUVINER • GILBERT DUVINER • ROSE SHULMAN
5255 Yonge St., 11th Floor, North York, Ont. M2N 6P4
221-4550
WINDSOR, ONT.: (519) 256-7874 • NIAGARA FALLS, ONT.: 364-4727
FORT ERIE, ONT.: 1-382-2522

A Happy and Healthy New Year to all our Customers & Friends
Allen Ohana
Tom & Elaine Ungar and Children
MOTOROLA Authorized Two-Way Radio Dealer
MiKE
Across Canada Mobile Communications Inc ACM
Tel: 905-475-6235
Fax: 905-475-6951

DR. RICK KOCHMAN
would like to wish all my Patients & Friends a Happy & Healthy
New Year

A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR TO OUR CLIENTS AND FRIENDS
KESTENBERG, RABINOWICZ & PARTNERS
CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
Harvey Kestenberg, Ralph Rabinowicz, Marshall Egelnick, Hartley Cohen, Harris Kligman
2797 John Street
Markham, Ontario, L3R 2Y8
Tel. (905) 946-1300 Fax (905) 946-9797

TAYAR TRAVEL INC.
672 Sheppard W.
631-9000
Hymie Lebowitz, & his Staff at Tayar Travel Inc.
wish all their families, friends & clients a very happy, healthy & most prosperous New Year
"THIS YEAR IN JERUSALEM"

Astoria "Toronto's Original Shish Kebob House"
Chicken & Lamb Souvlaki • Fish • Greek Appetizers
Moussaka • Chicken filet • Greek salads
390 Danforth at Chester Subway
463-2838

WE WISH ALL OUR VALUED CUSTOMERS A VERY HAPPY NEW YEAR

KRG Insurance Group
KRG Management Inc.
KRG Insurance Brokers Inc.
KRG Life Insurance Agency Inc.
Data Capture Systems Inc.
Wishing our clients a very healthy and happy New Year
For all of your insurance needs.
555 Wilson Avenue, North York ON M3H 5Y6
Tel: (416) 636-4544 Fax: (416) 636-5555
Toll Free: (888) 888-6667
HTTP://WWW.KRG.COM

A's . . .

Ralph & Faye Arnold
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Barry & Eleanor Appleby
Zale & Harley
Wish their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Nathan & Rina Arback
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Tom & Sharon Adler
David, Adam & Brandon
Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Honey & Roy Agar
Michelle, Blair, Sarah & Maggie
Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Esther Axelrod
Wishes her precious children, grandchildren, relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year

Walter & Edie Arbib
Stephen & Dana
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. Marvin Altman
68 Blueforest Drive
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

The Apelowicz Family
wishing our family and friends
a Happy and Healthy New Year

Keith, Sheila & Denise Alexander
Debra, Gordy, Jaime & Courtney Verk
Donna, Jason & Chloe Berns
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.
193 The Bridal Path

B's . . .

Susan, Fred & Ricki Birnbaum
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Esther Birnbaum & Family
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Samuel & Janet Berger
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Larry & Helen Bossin
Brian & Helen
Melanie & Robbie
Wish all our relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. Sam Brand
Bonnie, Barry, Morris and Grandchildren
Wish their relatives, friends & neighbours a happy and healthy New Year.

"The Benyovits Family"
Miriam & Ted
Amit, Patti & Jamie,
Ronit, Dale & Joshua
Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year

Zionism with roots

By SISSY BLOCK
Special to The CJN

On Tu b'Shvat this year, Israel's official tree ceremony commemorated the centennial of the first Zionist Congress in Basel, Switzerland, in 1897. It is fitting, therefore, that the ceremony was held at the Jewish National Fund's (JNF) Herzl Forest in Hulda, located in the Shfayla Hills between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

Named for the founder of Zionism, Theodor Herzl, the Herzl Forest has played a vital role throughout Zionist history. "Zionism may have started in Basel, but as far as I'm concerned, Zionism in Israel started here in the Herzl Forest," said Ami Hirsch, JNF press liaison.

The JNF was established at the Fifth Zionist Congress in 1901 in Basel for the purpose of raising money from Jews worldwide to purchase land in Israel and help Jews settle there. At this time, however, Israel was under Turkish rule, and land purchased but "not put to good use" was unilaterally repossessed by the Sultan. "The Zionists decided to plant trees on its newly purchased land to stake their claims," said Hirsch.

During the Sixth Zionist Congress in 1903, it was decided to use JNF money to plant olive trees in Israel. "The land," said Hirsch, "was to be used to grow a commodity that could be sold and whose profits would be reinvested in the JNF towards the purchase of more land." In addition, the intension was to use the olive oil in Jewish households everywhere for kindling the Sabbath candles in order to strengthen the relationship between Jews in the Diaspora and those in the land of Israel.

In 1904, upon Herzl's death, the first olive tree forest was planted in his name. Some 800 dunams of land were purchased from Arabs in Hulda, and by 1905, the first olive trees were planted in the Herzl Forest.

In 1908, the building that came to be known as Herzl House was built on the forest grounds to house its manager and workers. The original manager was not a Zionist and was quite happy to hire local Arab workers to plant the olive trees. In protest, Zionist pioneers in nearby communities came and pulled the seedlings from the ground. The manager was subsequently fired and

[Cont'd. on page B 53]

The "Love Tree" behind Herzl House, a favorite spot for young Zionists, where they used to go to kiss. [WZPS photo by Flash 90]

Herzl Forest is a lush, proud symbol

[Cont'd. from page B52]

then only Jewish labor was used at Hulda.

However, the olive trees failed to flourish, and in 1912 the JNF decided to plant other types of trees at Hulda: trees that produced inedible fruit but which grew fast and strong, such as pine, eucalyptus, cypress and evergreen. This set a precedent for the kind of trees that the JNF would plant throughout the land of Israel; it was the beginning of a countryside afforestation program.

Herzl Forest also became the site of the first national training farm. Newly arrived young pioneers came to Hulda to learn both agricultural skills and those required for living and working in a group. After their training was completed, they were sent to inhabit and develop other settlements throughout the country. The farm's U-shaped compound, which included a laundry, bakery, cow shed and water reservoir, was built alongside Herzl House. The pioneers lived in tents in the centre.

In 1929, during the Arab uprising that swept through Israel's Jewish settlements, the pioneers of Hulda fought a heroic battle in its defence. However, the forest was eventually burned and all but the compound's reservoir was destroyed. Herzl House was badly damaged and the community's leader, Efraim Chizik, was killed.

In the aftermath, British authorities forcefully evacuated the rest of the pioneers from the forest, though they were allowed to return to bury their leader. Chizik's grave in the forest lies alongside a large monument of Jerusalem stone sculpted by Batya Lishensky The sculpture, Labor and Defence, depicts Zionist images of physical labor and the defence of the land of Israel.

Determined to honor the defenders of Hulda, the JNF decided to replant Herzl Forest in 1931. In the same year, Kibbutz Hulda was established by members of the Gordonia Zionist movement. "The kibbutz was at first based in Herzl House," says Hirsch, "but in 1937 moved two kilometres to a higher hill which was considered easier to defend."

Members of Kibbutz Hulda fondly recall a childhood spent playing in Herzl Forest. One woman, Avigdora, spoke of the "Love Tree," where Zionist youth would go to kiss. "It is down to the right, behind Herzl House," she said, laughing a little at the thought.

Another reminisced about her husband Ya'akov who lived in the bottom floor of Herzl House until the age of three. "I just remember him telling me about the light shining in the beautiful stained glass windows of the building," she described with a smile.

In 1948, with the outbreak of the War of Independence, the forest changed quickly from a peaceful "playground" to a supply base, the site of a shooting range, and the point from which soldiers set out from Hulda to battle for besieged Jerusalem. An alternate water pipeline, to replace the one destroyed by the Arabs, was also constructed there.

Now, nearly 50 years later, Herzl Forest stands as a lush and proud symbol of how much the Zionist idea has blossomed in Israel. Its shady trees shelter picnic tables where Israeli families and school children come to enjoy the forest. What's more, Herzl House is now undergoing renovations and will eventually become a museum with exhibits depicting the site's historical role.

Golda Meyerson (Meir) at Kibbutz Merhavia.

Ben Blidner
Alan Lerman, Dana, Amy & Neely
Mark & Joan Blidner
Dov, Ilana & Rebecca
Bunnie & Howard Schwartz, Noah, Arlee & Samantha
Best wishes to all our relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Abe & Freda Blankenstein, children & grandchildren
Wish all their relatives and friends a Happy, and Healthy New Year.

Sharon & Syd Bojarski
Michelle & Michael
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Manning & Marie Baker and Family
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Molly & Bert Bainerman
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Arthur Birnbaum and Susan McCallum
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Anne & Allan Bank
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Kalman & Cynthia Bielak, Yakov & Pamela, Simcha & Barbara, Shneur, Gideon & Shlomo
Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Abe & Dorka Blady
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
Soorah Borovoy
Ruth, Chris & Alexander
Barry & Lori & Joshua & Lorne

David and Sandy Bleeman
Amanda-Beth, Marni and Jesse
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.
Rick, Brenda, Daniel, Jeremy & Natalie Bornstein

Bella Brand and The Hennick Family
Barry, Sylvia, Eleanor and Karen
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Dr. & Mrs. Alan Bobkin
Erin and Alyssa
wish their patients, relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Renee & Jack A. Blustein
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Rita & Manny Brykman
Natalie, Bobby, Kyle, Jennifer & Michelle
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Michael & Lynda Birnbaum
Shera, Daniel & David
Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Nancy Blackstien & Family
Best wshes for a happy, healthy and peaceful New Year.

Leo & Sara Beliak
Marlin & Michelle Bendayan,
Chaim, Chava & Shoshana Beliak
Robert, Tamara, Samantha,
Dexter & Joshua Beliak
Murray, Stacey, Matthew & Shannon Beliak
Arnold, Ruth, Elliot, Faye
& Bryan Kravetz
Wish their relatives, friends and neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

C's . . .

Wayne and Ann Caplan
Elana & Dayna
wish their parents, relatives and friends a very happy and healthy New Year.

Mrs. Fannie Caplan
Sid & Nancy Caplan
Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year

Mr. & Mrs. Daniel Cheslow
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Lydia & Sam Charyk
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Ted and Joli Chester and Family
Wish their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Howard & Elsa Chandler and Family
Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Isaac & Nancy Claitman
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Fred & Celia Chapnick
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

D's . . .

THE DAITER FAMILY
Ronnie & Rene
Joel & Cindy, Aaron, Liane & Carey
Stephen & Tammy, Alexis & Nicole
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Morris & Gloria Dadoun
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

E's . . .

Sam & Sara Eker and Children
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

F's . . .

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.
Allen & Miriam Finklestein
Perry, Matthew & Jeremy

Henry & Molly Finkelstein
David & Rachel & Matthew
Wish all our relatives & friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year

Bridging the religious divide

By KATIE GREEN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

As the religious secular divide widens, different groups across the country attempt to bridge the gaps. It's a Tuesday night in Tel Aviv, and Kapulsky's cafe at 47 Allenby St. is buzzing with conversation. But this is not the normal coffee-drinking crowd and the cafe's owner, Yehuda, has put up the "closed" sign on the door. All the tables and chairs have been pushed to one side and a group of about 30 people are sitting in a circle. These are ordinary Israelis between the ages of 20 and 40, but a closer look establishes that they come from a mixture of backgrounds – non-observant, Orthodox and haredi.

The subject for the evening's discussion is education, and although the debate is sometimes heated, there is no shouting, pointing or hostility. Everybody here has come to listen as well as to talk.

The meeting has been organized by Mahane Meshutaf, Common Denominator, a non-profit, non-political movement dedicated to the unification of the Jews of Israel. Founded two years ago by Rabbi David Geffen, its record in promoting discussion between politically and religiously disparate Jews over the last two years has been impressive.

In 1996, it organized more than 350 seminars for over 10,000 participants, as well as workshops for many kibbutzim. It ran courses for the Israeli Air Force. The Meretz party sent representatives to Mea She'arim for weekday and Shabbat programs.

The organization has more than 100 non-observant, Orthodox and haredi volunteers working throughout the country.

Rabbi Geffen's determination to set up Common Denominator was motivated by his experiences in the army. During his reserve duty stints he noticed that soldiers of different backgrounds and beliefs could be "very unpleasant" to one another and he decided to try to put into effect the rabbinical training he received at Jerusalem's Aish HaTorah Yeshiva, where he was taught to love all Jews, no matter what their beliefs.

"If I sit next to a stranger on the bus, then I care about him, and I respect him," says Rabbi Geffen. "I don't have to bash him over the head with religion. I don't have to lecture him on what he should be doing, or try and force him round to my point of view. I listen to what he has to say. I gently explore the things we have in common. I extend towards him friendship and courtesy. That is how you build bridges."

And the bridges need to be built. The conflicts that beset Israel's religious and secular communities have cut so deeply into the bedrock of Israeli society that people from different backgrounds feel irreconcilably estranged from one another. The result: division, prejudice and violence.

In 1996, The Geocartography Institute (a public-opinion polling organization) conducted a poll among Jewish Israelis in which participants were asked about this polarization; 47 percent said they believed the situation would deteriorate into civil war.

Common Denominator is not the only organization that promotes understanding between religious and secular Jews. The well-established Gesher organization, which was set up in 1970 for this very purpose, has become known for its informal education seminars and weekends throughout the country. It also publishes textbooks for religious and state schools.

Dr. Daniel Tropper, one of Gesher's founding members and its present director, feels that the situation over the last 37 years has worsened.

"Religious communities are moving farther and farther to the right while secular communities are becoming ignorant of Jewish tradition," Tropper says. "The key is to reintroduce Jewish culture and history back into state schools, so that secular people feel that Judaism once again belongs to them. Otherwise we lose our commonality."

[Cont'd. on page B 55]

Yemenites of the second aliyah around 1909.

Zionism after 100 years

People have central concern in common

[Cont'd. from page B 54]

"We are witnessing a spontaneous, grassroots growth of both formal and informal groups of people who want to reverse the trend. People may meet in classrooms, community centres or private homes, but they all have a central concern in common and they've taken on the responsibility to do something about it."

One such group is the Rosh Pina Mainstreaming Network, founded in 1992. Chana Zweiter, a former American with experience in school integration programs, started the network with other parents and academics who designed joint after-school activities for fit and disabled children. The idea was to encourage social interaction between the two groups and to discourage stereotyping. The programs were so successful that Zweiter and her team realized they would be able to use similar techniques for religious and non-observant children.

"We live in segregated worlds, and the children from each world have very little to do with each other," Zweiter says. "Our challenge is to treat this separateness and teach new behaviors."

Rosh Pina's idea was received enthusiastically by Jerusalem city hall. A program started at two neighboring schools, one general school and one state religious school, in the Pisgat Ze'ev neighborhood.

"There was rock throwing, anger and animosity between the pupils," Zweiter recalls. "We introduced two sport and two drama programs as after-school electives, which were attended by children from both schools. Over the year, relations between the pupils drastically improved."

As an end-of-year project, the children worked together to paint two huge murals, one for each school. In the wake of this success, Rosh Pina plans to extend its electives to other schools.

Rosh Pina's work has dealt with one of the major questions that must be treated when considering the secular-religious equation: If religious and non-religious children are to be schooled in two separate systems, what opportunities will there be for communication and growth in the future?

"Children don't have to be schooled together to be taught tolerance," maintains Moti Chabert, one of Common Denominator's directors. "The important thing is for tolerance to be on the agenda in every single classroom."

Chabert is not alone in his assessment. Almost all the bridge-building groups are working towards the introduction of cognitive programs into the school curricula that will enable kids to explore it properly.

Authorities tend to differ in their analyses of what must change in our society before we ourselves can change. Harvey Goldberg, professor of anthropology at Hebrew University, feels there are two key factors to be considered.

"First, peace with our Arab neighbors might be an important step," he argues. "At the moment, so many societal and human resources are tied up in the effort to solve our problems with our neighbors that peace within our own camp does not get our full attention. Once Israeli-Arab relations are more or less settled, then more talented people will be able to apply themselves to the secular-religious problem."

But the second factor is a more controversial one. "Eventually we are going to have to separate religion and state," Goldberg emphasizes. "Each must be independent of the other in order to thrive."

Whatever the magical formula required to make Israelis love and respect one another, the proliferation of new organizations indicates that some talented individuals have already taken the step predicted by Goldberg. Perhaps they feel they do not have the luxury of waiting until there is peace with the Arabs before coming to grips with the serious business of our own disharmony.

"The bottom line," says Tropper, "is that we're a family and as in any family, the fights and arguments cause us great anguish. We could split into different groups forever and go our separate ways, but at some fundamental level we know we must stay together and communicate. This is critical for Israel's survival."

[Cont'd. on page B 56]

Grape harvest at Rishon Le-Zion, 1912.

Darryl, Michelle Aaron & Sidra Fisch

Wish their family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Joe, Marlene, Melanie & Jason Flicht Elyse, Ron& Zachary Goldkind

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Jerry & Helen Fishman Mark & Doreen, Aimee, Haley, Stacey & Shane Fishman Gary & Sheryl, Robbie, Raquel & Alexander Rubinoff Len & Marcy & Ryan Susman

Wish all their relatives, friends & neighbours a happy and healthy New Year.

Allan & Pat Friedland Jeffrey & Marla

wish their relatives and friends - a happy and healthy New Year

Sylvia & Edward Fisch and family

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Phil & Rochelle Feldberg Jeff & Waleuska, Robyn & Adam

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

שנה טובה

Mr. & Mrs. Bernard Fox and Charise

Felicia & Warren Spiegelman and Samantha

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy Shana Tova

Jerry, Miriam, Tamara Sharona, Ronit, Meir Faivish

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Philip & Cyla Fiksel Nathan, Miriam, Jaimie & Stacie Birnbaum

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Chaim & Eda Feinstadt

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.

Betsy, Lou & Marla Fruitman Pamela & Howie Gould Lisa & Dan Belzowski

Phyllis & Irving Feldman Jonas & Brandon

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

G's . . .

David & Gert Goldberg children Jill, John & Sydney

64 Carscadden Drive

Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Norm & Joyce Goldstein Ilaina, Jaimie & Joshua

34 Garnier Court

Wish their relatives, friends and neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel

Ruth Gilad and Family

Anne Gottlieb Marc, Beth, Brian & Stephanie Gottlieb

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy Shana Tova.

Ruth & Ernest Goldsmith
543 Fairlawn Avenue
Wish their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

MORI, ANABELA & RACHEL GOLDLIST
wish family & friends a healthy, happy and prosperous New Year.
Special wishes to daughter & sister
JORDANA

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel
Max and Guta Glicksman
19 Misty Crescent

Felice Gropper
Best wishes to my children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Regina and Charles Goldfinger and Family
Best wishes to our children grandchiidren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.
Beatrice, Hymie & Alyssa Guttman

Wishing all my family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.
Selma Goldstein

Sam & Gitta Ganz Children & Grandchildren
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Morris & Ada Rose Glick
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
Moishe & Mania Gruda

Joseph, Nina & David Glincman
Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
Mr. & Mrs. Israel Goldgrub and Family

Mr. & Mrs. Jack Gladstone and Neil
Dr. & Mrs. Terry Davis and family
Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Leo and Sarah Goldstein & Family
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Annie Goldlist
Best wishes my children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
Sarah & Nathan Goldlist

Rae and Sam Goldberg
Debbie, Sol & Esther
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Aim was to enable all Israelis to study

[Cont'd. from page B 55]

Nobody would agree with him more than Ruth Calderon Ben-Shahar, founder of the the Elul organization and winner of this year's Keren Avi Chai prize for furthering close relations between Israelis of different backgrounds. Ten years ago Ben-Shahar set up Elul, an informal learning program where Israelis could study the Jewish sources in depth.

"My aim was to enable all Israelis, whatever their background, to study the texts that are their heritage," she explains. "And it's not as difficult as one would think. They already have the language, which is a big start.

"Let's not pretend that we can resolve all our differences by sitting in a room learning Talmud," she concedes, however. "We Israelis come from many different cultures; so our relationship to one another is complex. But what we can achieve is a kind of gentle connection. The studying provides an objective third medium through which we can communicate indirectly."

But exactly whose responsibility is it to promote this communication?

Moshe Peleg, one of the directors of Common Denominator, is a Chassid living in Mea She'arim. He cites numerous Jewish sources which underline that Jews are halachically required to care about one another. He quotes the best-known source: Ve'ahavta lere'echa kamocha (Love your fellow as yourself) (Leviticus 19:18). "Isn't that supposed to mean something?" he asks.

"And what about "Kol Yisrael areivim zeh bazeh (All Jews are responsible for one another)," which is mentioned in the Talmud?"

Rabbi Geffen tells the following story: "We read in the Torah that when God sees the children of Israel worshipping the golden calf, He decides to destroy all of Israel and start a new nation from Moses. Moses pleads to save the nations and God relents. When Moses comes down from the mountain, he sets about identifying the culprits. Three thousand people are found guilty and executed.

Our sages ask: Why was God prepared to put an end to the entire Jewish people when only 3000 people – a small percentage of the whole – committed the sin of the golden calf? After all, righteous men such as Joshua and Caleb were among those who would have been destroyed. The answer is that God held the righteous responsible for the sins of the nation. To hold themselves back from idolatry was right, but by standing on the sidelines they were evading their responsibilities.

Rabbi Geffen adds: "When Judgment Day comes, we religious people will have a lot to answer for. Right now we point our fingers at the secular community, blaming them for so many of our national and cultural problems. We say, 'It's all their fault.' We don't communicate. We don't explain. We don't share. What has happened to our sense of responsibility?"

Despite the fact that the onus might lie with those following the precepts of the Torah, Peleg finds discrimination can make the work hard: "In my work at Common Denominator I meet many secular people – kibbutzniks, politicians, professionals – who have never come across Haredim before. Yet their perceptions of how Haredim live and think are denigrating in the extreme. They have a picture of Haredim as violent, narrow, inward-looking, parasitical and selfish; the women second-class citizens; the children neglected and dirty. How can you believe these things about people you have never met? From the television screen? From the newspapers? It that what is going to define how you feel about me?"

When challenged that the Haredim are not receptive to other Jews, Peleg denies it. "Many chassidic sects, including the Bostoner and Belzer Chassidim, organize Shabbatot for secular people," he argues. "The atmosphere during these events is unbelievable. You don't believe me? Let me fix you up for a weekend."

Despite the deterioration of the last three decades, Tropper is encouraged by the flowering of many small, bridge-building organizations in the last few years.

Ze'ev Jabotinsky (1880-1940).

Holy Days East and West

By RABBI JONATHAN CHIPMAN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

When my late father, a Polish-born American Jew, came on aliyah nearly 25 years ago, he became a regular worshipper at the local congregation of Jews from North Africa in the then-small moshav Omer, near Beersheva. Notwithstanding the different accent and melodies, he found the service familiar enough until the High Holy Days. Then he felt totally lost. At the end of Yom Kippur, he told me later, he felt as if he had not really davened.

His experience was of course not unique. Many Ashkenazim, regardless of land of origin, find participation in High Holy Day services in a synagogue of Oriental Jews a bewildering experience. Where is the haunting melody of Kol Nidre, sanctified with centuries of Jewish longing and suffering, that opens the evening service for the holiest day of the year? Where is the stirring "U'netaneh tokef," one of the high points of the Musaf service on all three of the High Holy Days, with its dramatic description of the heavenly hosts trembling in fear and anxiety at the coming of the Day of Judgment — a prayer which, in the typical Ashkenazi synagogue, is the high point of the cantor's dramatic musical rendering of the liturgy?

Where is Hamelech, the "official" opening of the morning service, with the cantor chanting "Ha-ah ah-ah-ah-ah-ah" in gradually rising tones as he approaches the reader's stand, symbolizing the fear and trembling with which we approach the Divine King of Kings from a great distance, until he concludes with the mighty shout of "Ha-MEH-lech?"

And where are all of the special melodies for the different Kaddishes, and the opening section of the Shemoneh Esray/Amidah, used universally throughout the Ashkenazi world — the melodies reputedly originating at the time of the giving of the Torah at Mount Sinai?

The answer is that all these moments, emotionally charged and evocative as they may be, are not essential parts of the ancient core of the holiday liturgy. That core — the basic Amidah text for each of the High Holy Days, the three special middle blessings added to the Musaf of Rosh Hashanah, the vidui [confession] added after each prayer of Yom Kippur, and the shofar ceremony on Rosh Hashanah, all of which are mentioned in the Mishnah or other sources — are essentially the same in all the liturgies.

The other features mentioned, important and beloved as they may be, are communal customs that developed differently in the various communities, most of them a "mere" 700 to 1,000 years old.

What customs most shape the Sephardi and other Oriental High Holy Days, distinguishing them from Ashkenazi practice? The difference can already be felt at the beginning of the month of Elul preceding Rosh Hashanah. Whereas Ashkenazim only begin the recitation of the Selichot [penitential prayers] from the Saturday night preceding Rosh Hashanah for only four days, Sephardim and other Oriental Jews start Rosh Chodesh Elul [the first of the month of Elul].

Unlike their Ashkenazi brethren, who usually recite the Selichot just before the weekday morning service, often well after daybreak, Sephardim generally rise before dawn to recite their Selichot during

[Cont'd. on page B 58]

Aaron David Gordon (1856-1922)

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
Fay Goldlist
Marlene & Sam Hait
Barry & Randee Goldlist
Rochelle & Seymour Frydrych and Families

Irving & Faye Gold
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Jack & Ruth Gutholc
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy and peaceful New Year.

Irving & Paula Goldhar
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

H's . . .

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year
Sonia & Yehudi Hendler,
Jeff & Fran
Sindi, Joel, Fern, Marissa & Mark Kachuck

Max and Mary Hain
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year

Gusta Hefner
Jerry, Lynda, Glen & Andrew Hefner
Wish all their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

I's . . .

Larry & Bunny Iskov
Howie & Rachel
wish their family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Paula & David Ingber
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

J's . . .

Isaac & Basia Jesin & Family
& Sonia Slawin wish all our friends & extended families a Happy, Healthy & Prosperous New Year.

Wolfe & Miriam Justein
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

K's . . .

Leonard & Joyce Krieser
Ryan, Shawn & Cody
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Lou & Betty Kestenberg and Sharon & Barry Kaufman and family
Wish all their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Bernyce & Marvin Kalifer
Ronnie, Nancy & children
Debbie, Wayne & children
Ellen, Gerry & children
Wish their friends & families a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year
לשנה טובה

Blossom Klein & Family
Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel

KAY & KELLY KLERER wish all their children
Shawn & Marsha, Howard, Joel & Pamela grandchildren
Marc, Seth, Daniel & Elyse
Jonah & Brandon
family and friends
a Happy, Healthy and Peaceful coming year.

Mrs. Rose Krieser and Family
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year

Izak & Regina Kozlowski and Family
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Marilyn Kostman
Elayne & Roberto Slimak
Sasha, Jonathan & Noah
Arny, Jesse & Tyler Kostman
Best wishes for a year of Peace and Serenity, Health & Happiness to all our Friends

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year
Susie & Murray Klein
David, Robbie & Jamie

Mr. & Mrs. Leo Kon
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Mara & Eugene Katz
Linda, Leon, Michael, Aaron & Daniel Katz
Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Nancy & Howard Kleinberg
children & grandchildren
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

FAYE & MARTIN KELLERSTEIN
REBECCA, JEREMY & DAVID
Wish their relatives & friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year

Mr. & Mrs. Harry Kranc and Family
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Best wishes to our children grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year
שנת שלום
Betty & Izzy Kirshenbaum

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year
Ruth Kerbel and daughter Donna

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
The Koltun Family

Rita, Tom & Brandon Kolin
Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Dora, Harry, Andrew & Jonathan Kichler
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Harry & Lucy Kreitzman
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Selichot silence broken by blasts of shofar

[Cont'd. from page B 57]

the "night watch," while it is still dark. In some old non-Ashkenazi neighborhoods — such as Nahla'ot, Bukharim, and Knesset Yisrael in Jerusalem — it is still customary for the synagogue sexton to go from house to house, knocking on the door with a special wooden hammer to wake the people to come to synagogue. As the bleary-eyed worshippers come in, the sexton offers each arrival a hot cup of strong tea or Turkish coffee, which they sip as the chanting of the hymns begins.

The Selichot themselves differ on two major points. First, unlike the Ashkenazi liturgy, in which a different group of liturgical poems are recited each day, the Sephardi Selichot are uniform for each of the 26 weekdays of Elul, with special additions only on the morning of Rosh Hashanah eve, and thereafter during the Ten Days of Penitence [between Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur].

Second, in the Sephardi Selichot, the silence of the night is broken by blasts of the shofar each time the Shelosh Esray Midot, [the Thirteen Qualities of Divine Compassion] (Exodus 34:6-7) are recited. Ashkenazim, by contrast, suffice with one short set of shofar blasts throughout Elul, not during Selichot but at the very end of the weekday morning service. The reason for this is rather simple: unlike the Sephardim, who begin Selichot on Elul 1, for the Ashkenazim there is no integral connection between the "preparatory" shofar blowing of Elul and the period for reciting the Selichot.

A second Sephardi custom, adding much color to Rosh Hashanah, is the "seder" on Rosh Hashanah night, a custom that is also observed among some chassidic groups, and in recent years has gained increasing popularity in Ashkenazi yeshivah circles. Whereas Ashkenazim most often open the festive repast with an apple dipped in honey, accompanied by blessings for a sweet year, most Jews of Oriental origin, following the advice of the Talmud in Keritot 6a, open the Rosh Hashanah dinner with an elaborate series of dishes whose names in Aramaic are considered to augur a good year. Thus, for example, gourd or squash/kera is eaten, together with a prayer entreating God to "tear up —kra —any evil decrees against us." And so on.

The ritual of eating apple with honey, squash, black-eyed beans, leeks, beets, dates, carrots, pomegranates, dates, and a sheep or fish head, each with its own special prayer-with-a-pun, may last the better part of half an hour, and possibly leave the participants with little appetite for the other dishes of the festive meal.

A third major difference is in the structure of the liturgy itself. The Ashkenazi ritual is filled with piyutim [liturgical poems] inserted in the cantor's repetition of the Amidah, swelling the repetition to three or four times its original length. Many of these piyutim — particularly those by Rabbi Eliezar Hakallir, the father of what became the Ashkenazi piyut — are written in ornate, even convoluted, medieval Hebrew, filled with unconventional grammatical constructions and learned midrashic allusions.

As a result, even many Jews well versed in the tradition find the piyyutim difficult to understand. The Sephardim, by contrast, use piyyutim in the framework of the Amidah very sparingly: the Amidah for Rosh Hashanah, at least in the popular machzor [High Holiday prayerbook] based on the custom of Baghdad, has no piyyutim at all; on Yom Kippur, they appear only in the Kedushah and in one place set aside for Selichot preceding the long confession.

Part of this objection may hark back to the polemic over piyyutim during and after the lifetime of Maimonides. Maimonides took exception to the use of piyyutim on two grounds: first, the halachic problem involved in interrupting the statutory text of the Amidah with extraneous material; second, the theological contents of many of the piyyutim were considered objectionable.

In the Sephardi liturgy, the piyyutim are placed in other, halachically less central parts of the service; and the ornate and difficult liturgical poems of Hakallir give way to the clear and sonorous classical Hebrew of Rabbis Yehuda Halevi and Shlomo Ibn Gvirol, and other authors of their class.

Finally, of course, there are the melodies. The haunting melodies of the Ashkenazi liturgy were composed by the Maharil (Rabbi Yaacov ben Moshe Halevi Segal (Moellin), the 14th century compiler of Ashkenazi custom, rabbi of the great Rhineland community of Mainz.

The melodies of the Sephardi and Oriental Jews, by contrast, are rooted in the Oriental musical traditions of North Africa and Asia Minor, replete with trills and based on maqamim (scales) including musical intervals (quarter-notes and the like) that are foreign to western ears.

To return to the initial question: all we can hope is that our Ashkenazi worshipper in a Sephardi or Oriental synagogue, longing for the familiar Hamelech, Unetaneh Tokef, Kol Nidre, and all the rest may learn to thrill to the sound of a full-throated congregation singing Adon Haselihot [Master of Forgiveness], remembering that all are the voices of the Children of Israel crying out to their Heavenly Father.

Zionism after 100 years

A fertile peace good for business

By JENNIFER FRIEDLIN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

Long before Israel and Jordan signed a peace agreement, Refaat Marrei Zahran knew the value of Israeli produce.

Years ago, the Jordanian farmer and industrialist managed to smuggle two Israeli grape stems over to his farm near Amman. From them he developed healthy, fruit-bearing vines.

Sitting outside his farmhouse recently, serving the plump green grapes to a handful of visiting Israeli farmers, Zahran said he longs for more than just a couple of vines.

Like many Jordanian businesspeople, he is hoping that a fertile peace between the two neighboring countries will help cultivate increased bilateral business agreements, joint ventures and trade.

"It's time our countries started to work together to build peace and business," said Zahran. The 24-year-old, heir to his father's industrial conglomerate, was one of several Jordanian industrialists to host the Israelis during a recent trip across the border.

The trip was organized by Zvi Shorer, a Beit She'an-based businessperson and founder of Lahav She'an, an organization that works to promote peace with Jordan by encouraging and developing joint academic and business projects. The Jordanian and Israeli delegates were meeting to discuss the possibility of integrating Jordan's cheap labor, natural resources and access to the Arab countries with Israel's know-how and Western market mentality.

"It's a natural combination," said Shorer, whose organization receives financial backing from American and European individuals and institutions.

At least 10 Israeli textile companies, including Delta Galil Industries and Castro, have already set up shop in Jordan, where labor costs about $150 per month per worker, compared to nearly $1,000 in Israel. Now smaller, independent businesspeople and farmers are looking to see what opportunities lie across the river.

Squatting and rubbing Zahran's soil through his farm-worn fingers, Johanan Maoz, general manager of Valley Farmers Centre in Migdal Ha'emek, said he was impressed by the potential the Jordanian's land offers. Not only does Zahran have 500 dunams of undeveloped land, he also has water, scarce and expensive in Israel. It courses under the soil and is fully controlled by the Zahran family.

"The land looks good," said Maoz, as he packed up arid soil and water samples to take back to Israel for quality checks.

Jordan's cheaper resources and access to the Arab world could be a boon for the troubled Israeli agriculture industry. And the knowledge of people like Maoz, a specialist in herb growing, could enable Zahran to grow high-quality foods for export.

"It could take us 100 years to get to the technological stage the Israelis are at," said Zahran. "By finding Israeli partners, we can reduce this time."

Other Jordanians, such as Isaa Matalka, would then be interested in transporting the goods between Jordan, Israel and the Arab countries. Already, Matalka said, his trucks are entering Israel, picking up goods in Haifa and bringing them back across the border before setting out for other Arab states. Several Arab countries already import Israeli high-tech and pharmaceutical products via Jordanian channels.

Since Jordan's industrialists tend

[Cont'd. on page B 60]

The defenders of Tiberias in 1921

Helen Krieser
Robert & Regina
Alisse, Jodi & Brian Lee

Wish their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. Israel Koplowitz

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy and peaceful New Year.

BEST WISHES FOR A YEAR OF PEACE AND SERENITY, HEALTH AND HAPPINESS TO OUR CHILDREN, MACHATONIM, RELATIVES AND FRIENDS AND THE PEOPLE OF ISRAEL.

Joe & Jean Kichler

L's . . .

Sarah & Simon Laski

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Yetta Lanys
Marty & Sandy Lanys
Shawn & Jana
Shane & Patricia Lanys
Tiffany & Lori

Wish all our relatives and friends a Happy, Healthy & Peaceful New Year

Vicki & Syd Lanys
Sandra & Michael Lanys
Sheryl, Sheldon, Lindsay and Sean Cheskes

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Fela Lichtblau and Family

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year

Anne Landau,
Doris Rothenberg

Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Max, Shirley, Shaun & Rozanne Lacob

I wish my family and friends a happy and healthy New Year

Mary Levitt

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.

Teddy & Lorraine Libfeld and Family

Jack & Rose Lipszyc

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Sonia & Ben Lant

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Shelly & Marilyn Little
Adam, Jeremy & Sari

Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year

Marilyn, Bruce, Erin, Michael & Brian Lubelsky

M's . . .

Mr. & Mrs. David Mendlowicz
Simon & Deborah Mendlowicz
Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year
Alex & Paula Mishevski
Lucien & Audrey
Barry & Susan and families

Carl & Sylvia Mahler
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year

JOE & HELEN MORGAN AND FAMILY
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

The families of
Sid & Sandy Moshenberg
Wish their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. Max Moneta
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Alice & Morris Macarz
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Dr. & Mrs. Seymour Moskovitz and Family
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Wishing all pur family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.
Lil & Lou Melamed and Family

Mr. & Mrs. Harry Melnik
children & grandchildren
Wish all their relatives, friends & neighbours a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. Seymour Marcus
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

N's . . .

Ben & Karen Nightingale and Family
Kitchener-Waterloo
Wish their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Chaim & Sarah Neuberger and Family
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

O's . . .

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
Mr. & Mrs. Sam Orlan

Matthew, Shawna & Lewis Orzech
Best wishes to our family and friends for a happy, healthy and peaceful New Year.

Looking for Israeli partner with expertise to have a wide range of holdings, one business connection can sprout into a number of ventures. Take Matalka: For him, transporting goods across the Sheikh Hussein passageway is just one aspect of the relationship he hopes to develop with Israel. He is also interested in a joint venture with an Israeli fruit-juice and concentrate manufacturer.

[Cont'd. from page B 59]

"We're looking for an Israeli partner with expertise," he said, "and in exchange, they will own a stake in the company and produce juices under their own name." Such an arrangement, he added, is not only a good business proposition, but an auspicious opportunity to strengthen the relationship between the two countries.

"We've been fighting with each other for the last 50 years," Matalka said. "Now it's time to contribute what we can, and make peace."

Peace via economic integration has always underscored discussions on how to create harmony in the Middle East. During the Lahav She'an group's day-long visit to Jordan, the theme emerged with regularity. Talking to each other like members of a family who have reached the conclusion that, like it or not, their futures are inextricably linked, the Jordanians and Israelis tried to steer clear of politics and evaluate the positive things their former enemies now have to offer.

Yet much as people on both sides would like to combine Israel's intellectual property with Jordan's physical assets, political problems and psychological barriers still threaten the blossoming relationship.

Jordanian red tape is frustrating at best and insufferable at worst, dissuading some Israeli entrepreneurs from entering the market. Border delays, for example, have caused shipments of produce to rot. And farmers in Israel fear that cheaper, Jordanian-grown produce will compete with Israeli goods on local supermarket shelves. They also worry that they will lose control over their know-how.

During one of the Lahav She'an meetings, a Jordanian businessperson began talking about some Israeli onions he had received through back channels via the West Bank. As it turned out, one of the Israeli delegates, farmer Jeremy Haham, had developed the high-tech onion, which is used to spawn crops. Realizing what had happened, the Jordanian promptly offered Haham 1,000 dunams to grow his onions — plus all the profits for the first year.

Haham was caught in a bind. While such a deal would help him exercise control over his know-how in the future, Haham, who speaks fluent Arabic, admitted that his uncertainty about the Jordanians' motives taints his attitude toward working with them.

"This is the Negev the way it was 50 years ago," he said. "If he gives me the desert, why should I develop it for him?"

For many people the answer is clear: Money.

"If it's not Yankel farming in Jordan today, it'll be Moshe doing it in two weeks," said Zvi Avner, agricultural research and development manager from the Beit She'an Valley Regional Council.

And so, despite the bureaucratic difficulties and geopolitical fears, Israel's Yankels and Moshes are developing business ties with Jordanians. Entrepreneurs such as Otniel Schneller, general manager of Comgro, feel that the combination of Jordan's resources and proximity and Israel's know-how means sure-fire success.

"This could be the Middle East's

[Cont'd. on page B 61]

In the fields of Moshav Kfar Yehezkel

Zionism after 100 years

Wider regional opportunities

[Cont'd from page B 60]

Silicon Valley — and not just in high-tech," said Schneller, who operates trade offices in Jordan and participates in joint ventures in infrastructure. "I don't think either side is doing enough to exploit this potential."

Foreign corporations are also sitting up and taking notice of the regional potential. Nissho Iwai, Japan's sixth largest conglomerate and the 13th biggest worldwide, will begin conducting feasibility studies for a railway line running from the Israeli side of the Dead Sea to the Red Sea via Jordan.

For other conglomerates the wider regional opportunities are the only reason to invest in Israel. During a recent visit here, Westinghouse/CBS President Jack Tymann expressed his concerns about the stalemate in the peace process. For U.S. companies, he said, Israel is only interesting if it can serve as a springboard to the wider Middle East.

"To get into markets we need economies of scale," he said. "For [the Middle East] market to become one of the emerging markets of the 21st century, it must reorganize."

Political wheels may turn more slowly than local and international businesspeople would like, but there are definite signs of improvement in the commercial relationship between Jordan and Israel.

Last year, bilateral trade with Jordan totaled $13.8 million. In the first six months of this year, two-way trade was $12.7 million

"Trade is certain to grow as people on both sides get to know each other better," said a Ministry of Industry and Trade representative from the Middle East desk.

And people like Lahav She'an organizer Shorer, who returned to Israel with a $40,000 joint-venture deal to establish a turkey farm in Jordan, said that even with all the starts and stops, the two countries will continue to deepen and strengthen their business ties. As a result, peace will flourish. "There's no alternative," he said.

On guard duty.

Mark & Barbara Obar
Children & Grandchildren

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

P's . . .

Rose & Sam Pacht
Children & Grandchildren

Wish all their relatives, friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.
Moniek & Genia Prusznowski

Isaac, Minny, David, Barbara, Sammy & Alyssa Peters
Morris, Marsha, Michelle & Jennifer Goldstein

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
Mr. & Mrs. Martin Pearl
Melvin & Rhonda, Jordan
Michael, Zane & Samantha
Jack, Sigal, Tommy, Mickie & Tal

Leib and Fanny Pillersdorf and Family
83 Collinson Boulevard
Toronto, Ontario

Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Zalman & Pola Pila
199 Clanton Park Road

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Dorothy & Ben Pinkus
Wendy, Ernie, Bev, Stacy, Michael & Shawna

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

SADIE PEREL
ARNOLD & HYLA PEREL
STEVEN, CHANA MIRIAM, BRYNA & YOSEPHA

wish their relatives and friends a Peaceful, Healthy and Happy New Year

Isaac & Sylvia Peck
Ryan, Jared & Samantha

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Sam & Dora Prince

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

R's . . .

Max & Sabina Rosenbloom
Joseph, Lee, Sheera, Avi, Adina & Eli Minkowitz

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Martin, Lena, David & Joshua Rauchwerger and Helen Rauchwerger

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Genia & Henry Rakowski

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Helen Reich
52 Evanston Dr.

Best wishes to my children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Zionism after 100 years

Jack & Hedda Rothman

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. P. Rechtsman and Family

Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year

Morris & Dena Rozen Eryn & Daniel

Wish their family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Willie & Bertha Rosengarten & Family

672 Briar Hill Avenue.

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Nathan & Heddy Rydel

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Sam & Eva Rotholc

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Lily & Mike Rosenberg children & grandchildren

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Paul & Phyllis Rosengarten

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Ralph, Yona, Jesse, Danielle, Joanna, Kari Rabinowicz & Mrs. Bell Rabinowicz

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Ryan & Fay Rotstein

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Mike & Sally Rosen

31 Denmark Crescent

Wish all their relatives, friends and clients a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Jack & Mary Rapoport

147 Almore Ave.

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Adele & Jan Rolin

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy and healthy & peaceful New Year.

Myer & Miriam Rosenberg

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

S's . . .

Wishing our parents, family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Henry, Susyn & Carl Smith Lisa & Derek Frankfort

Belle Shub

471 Coldstream Avenue

Wish my relatives, friends and neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. Karl Sanders and family

Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Christians of Jerusalem caught in the middle

By JUDITH SUDILOVSKY
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

The elderly guard at the Jerusalem church responded quickly when he spied three Muslim men trying to steal a camera from a tourist. He chased them out of the compound and thought he was rid of them. But later that evening they returned.

"One [of the Muslims] put a knife to my throat and said he would kill me, but I was not afraid, because I believe in God. God helped me," says George, 67, a Palestinian Christian living in eastern Jerusalem.

When he complained to the Israeli police, he says, they did not take him seriously and told him to come back the next day with the priest of the church. Frustrated, he never went back.

George recalls the incident, which occurred last year, as he sits in the courtyard of his house drinking tea with his wife, Mariam, 64, and their neighbor, Diana, 70. They are the only Christians in their immediate neighborhood, and although the couple have cordial relations with all their neighbors, only Diana is like family. All three asked that their real names and the location of their homes not be used. Like other Christians interviewed who requested anonymity, they say they fear retribution for speaking out.

For Ibrahim Wahbieh, a 34-year-old Catholic resident of Jerusalem who works at the Church of St. Peter in Gallicantu, the incident at George's church is a perfect example of how Muslim youths feel free to harass and pick the pockets of Christian pilgrims at Christian holy sites. It's something they wouldn't dare do at Al-Aksa Mosque, he says.

But problems with the Muslim community aren't the Christians' only concerns. George still recalls that 20 years ago he was stopped by a group of Border Police as he was on his way to the Central Post Office on Jerusalem's Jaffa Road. They were checking identity cards and he was made to wait, along with a group of Palestinians, while the cards were checked. The police eventually let him go, but George still remembers the humiliating incident with anger.

"To the Israelis we are Palestinians and to the Palestinians we are Christians, Crusaders," says Mariam with a sad laugh, referring to the conquerors of Jerusalem from whom the Muslim hero Saladin liberated the city in 1187.

Christians are a small and shrinking minority in Jerusalem. According to the Jerusalem Institute for Israel Studies, a public policy research institute, they numbered some 15,800 in 1995 (the last year for which there are end-of-year statistics) out of a total population of 591,400. But these figures include expatriate Christians.

Using independent data, Dr. Bernard Sabella, a Bethlehem University sociology professor, determined that when expatriates are excluded from the count, the number of local Christians is only 10,800, down from 28,000 in 1945. According to Sabella, about 2,500 Christians have left the city since 1967.

Members of the dwindling Christian community say they are increasingly finding themselves caught between the larger Jewish and Muslim communities, as both those groups become more entrenched in their own religious and national identities. Yet their destiny as Palestinian Christians is inextricably connected to that of the Muslims, as it has been for hundreds of years.

On the one hand, Christians say they are allied with Muslims in the same nationalist struggle. But in a society that is becoming more Islamic and looks toward Saudi Arabia and Syria as role models, many Christians feel like outsiders. They are more likely to identify

[Cont'd. on page B 63]

Hebrew writers in Tel Aviv (Standing) Ben-Ami and Bialik. (Seated) Ravnitzky and Ahad Ha'am.

Zionism after 100 years

Disputes are often related to family clans

[Cont'd. from page B 62]

with Europe and the west, and in some ways even with the liberal community of Israel. In this, the Christians say, they face the same dilemma as the more secular Muslims.

Even George says that Christians and Muslims are united in their political struggle, but concludes that it is not easy being a Christian in Jerusalem; Diana concurs.

During the intifadah, two Muslim women tried to rip the crucifix from around the neck of a Christian friend, Diana recalls as the sound of the muezzin calling the faithful to prayer rings out in the background.

In another incident during the same period, Mariam adds, somebody threw an egg at her sister in the Old City because she was wearing a cross.

"For sure these things don't happen every day and not everybody sees it, but in our daily life it does happen," Diana says. "We are a minority and we feel threatened. If my children weren't here I certainly wouldn't stay."

Young Christian women talk about being unable to dress as they please. Some Christian men lament the fact that they don't always feel free to drink alcohol or eat during Ramadan, and they recall that during the intifadah, liquor stores in the Old City that are owned by Christians were torched. Even the Christian Quarter is now Christian in name only, since most of the shops have been bought by Muslims from their Christian owners, many of whom have emigrated.

Anxious to present a united front against a common enemy, many Palestinian Christians – especially those in leadership positions – are defensive, viewing with suspicion as politically motivated any media attempts to separate them along religious lines. Arab society in general does not like to air its dirty laundry in public, and interfaith relations are no exception.

"Christians and Muslims in Jerusalem have no animosity toward each other," says Ibrahim Kandalaft, Palestinian Authority (PA) deputy minister for Christian religious affairs and a member of the Greek Orthodox Church. "On the contrary, we believe we are one nation with the same destiny and the same aspirations." If there are disputes, they "are on an individual basis, not on a wide scale."

One young Palestinian Christian says with annoyance that asking questions about Christian-Muslim relations is "provocative," because it labels people and creates an issue where none exists. "We are trying to distance ourselves from these labels," he says. "The West comes and reinforces these ideas of Christian and Muslim, and the idea that the Christians are oppressed by the Muslims, but this is not true."

"There is more sexual tension here than religious tension," interjects his friend, a Christian businessman.

According to an Armenian resident of the Old City, only outsiders see the disputes as related to religion, when in fact they are between family clans.

"I never heard of a case in the Old City where Christians and Muslims began fighting because of religion," he insists. He recalls with nostalgia the period when he was growing up, when relations among the various groups were closer.

"I had Muslim friends, Christian friends, Jewish friends and Armenian friends. We would go to each other's houses. I knew which mother made which food the best. I miss these things even now."

But if there is any unity among Palestinians, it is only because they have a common enemy, the Israelis, Wahbieh says. If that enemy didn't exist, the problems between the Muslims and Christians would be even worse than they already are.

[Cont'd. on page B 64]

Celebrating youth aliyah

Larry & Pam Shapiro
Jodi & Robyn
Mark, Lori & Jordan Shapiro
Annie Okun, Syd Shapiro

Wish their relatives, friends and neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Nathan & Helen Shiff
Martin, Michelle, Mitchell & Jaimie Shiff
Jeffrey, Aviva, David & Tatum Shiff
Adam, Barbara & Matthew Altberg

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy & healthy New Year.

David & Luba Smuschkowitz and Family

Wish all their relatives & friends a year of peace, good health and happiness

Anne & Joe Steinberg
Bella, Elliot, Jason, Adam & Daniel Sinukoff
Wendy, Stuart, Zachary, Cory, Matthew & Michael Himmel
Evy, Elliot, Hailey & Carly Sugar

Wish their relatives, machatunim & friends a happy & healthy New Year.

52 Green Acres Road

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.

MINKA SMITH
IAN & TOBE TWEYMAN
SHELDON, KAREN & AUBREY

Derek & Jill Stern

100 MacArthur Drive
Thornhill

Wish their relatives, friends & neighbours a happy and healthy New Year

Best wishes for a Happy & Healthy New Year to all our relatives, clients & friends

Mr. & Mrs. Milton Snow
Mr. & Mrs. Stephen Snow & family
Mr. & Mrs. Allan Schwartz & family
Dr. & Mrs. Stephen Cohen & family
Mr. & Mrs. Leo Snow

Zanvel & Sylvia Stern and Corinne

37 Steele Valley Road
Thornhill

Wish their relatives, friends & neighbours a happy and healthy New Year

Leon & Bela Sniatowski

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Max & Dorothy Stern

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Nachum & Lea Shore

23 Fanshawe Dr., Richmond Hill

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Isaac and Mary Szames

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Harold Sayles

471 Coldstream Avenue

Wish my relatives, friends and neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Jack, Lola, Rose-Mary Sylman
Sid, Evelyn, Madison & Tyler Rochwerg

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.

Mrs. Pauline Sporn

Rosita & David Salomon

Wish their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Alter & Helen Steinfeld

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year

Rachelle, Lisa, Mindy & Jessica Salamon

Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Dorice & David Silverman & Family

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Oscar & Florence Shainhouse

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Morris & Yetta Sternberg and Family

90 Overbrook Pl.

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. Jack Szmeiser
Leora, Steven, Robyn & Justin Hazan
David, Shelley & Tabitha Star

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

The Steinman Family

6 Barclay Court

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Mr. & Mrs. Louis Szikla & family
Fay Kolinsky

Mr. & Mrs. Jack Stork and Family

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Laury & Evy Snow

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy and peaceful New Year.

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year

Mr. & Mrs. Sigmund Schmidt
3900 Yonge St., PH. #3

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.

David Scheer & Naomi Weinfeld and their children

T's . . .

Mr. & Mrs. G. Thaler and Family

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Morris Teper & family

Mr. & Mrs. Joseph Tenenbaum
Sid, Judy, Ari-Lev, Elie & Avichai
Gary, Louise & Josh
Uli & Tamara Friedman

Wish their relatives, friends & neighbours a happy and healthy New Year.

Norm & Ruth Trachter

Best wishes to my children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Neighbors have become more fanatical over time

[Cont'd. from page B 63]

"There is a threat for sure because of the [growing Muslim] fundamentalist movements," he says. "We read what they write and it is threatening. They don't understand about 'the other' living in this country."

Rim, a Christian woman who lives with her husband, Aimad, and their child in a largely Muslim neighborhood, says that over the past 10 years her neighbors have become "more fanatical. The [women] started wearing the long Islamic dress and hair covering. Now when Muslim men see a Christian girl, they think she is the same as an American or European girl," that is, sexually and socially liberated.

When Rim and Aimad come home from work, they lock the door to their house and close out the Muslim world surrounding them. They feel truly comfortable only with their Christian neighbor, Aimad says, and most Christians would rather live under Israeli authority than risk living under another Muslim regime. But Israel has yet to take notice of the Palestinian Christians living in its midst.

"When Arafat talks about the Christians here, he is just doing it to win over the United States and Europe," Aimad says.

In fact, according to Aimad, because the political situation between Israel and the Palestinians is so bad, Christians are afraid to speak openly. And even if they speak freely on condition of anonymity, once their complaints are published and Muslims demand proof of their claims, they will retract their statements to avoid trouble. "They will say, 'We are Arabs. We like Islam and we live in peace with you.'"

Moreover, he adds, many of the incidents between Christians and Muslims are never reported to the police. The Christians fear that if they turn to the Israeli authorities they will be labeled by the Muslims as collaborators.

Even when Christians do turn to the Israeli police, their problems are not dealt with in the same manner as a dispute in western Jerusalem would be handled, they say. In fact, they claim, the Israelis seem to want to keep the embers of dispute among the Palestinians burning, as part of a divide-and-rule policy.

In the most recent confrontation involving Christian and Muslim holy sites, two rooms in the Greek Orthodox Patriarchate were taken over in April by the neighboring Hanke Mosque. This incident illustrates how Muslims are trying to do everything in their power to push the Christians out of Jerusalem, says Father William (not his real name), a member of one of the smaller Christian denominations.

But Greek Orthodox Metropolitan Timothy phrases his comments diplomatically, careful not to offend anyone.

"This incident is one of the numerous problems of different kinds that the Christian community is facing every day in their lives. Similar incidents take place everywhere, not excluding the Christian states, but we are stressing that in Jerusalem, in the Holy Land which is the birthplace of Christ, Christians should have secure rights."

Such incidents always "cause tension," he says, but he prefers to consider the takeover as the ill-advised act of "the sheikh and his advisers in this specific mosque," rather than as a matter of Muslim policy.

The infraction, though serious, is a result, not of Christian-Muslim strife, but of political frustration, says Father Naim Ateek, canon of St. George's Episcopal Cathedral.

"It is wrong and we must address it," he says, "but I believe it is a reflection of the general mood of injustice [and] we can't conclude that Islam is the enemy or that the Christian community is being

[Cont'd. on page B 65]

Menachem Begin hiding under the alias of Rabbi Israel Sassover. Pictured here with his wife Aliza and their son.

Extremist Muslims not only source of trouble

[Cont'd. from page B 64]

threatened by Islam, because many Muslims are with us in fighting these trends of extremism."

Israel would like to see the problems taken out of context by the media and other observers, to avoid facing its own responsibility to address the deeper issues in the conflict, he maintains.

Meanwhile, the Greek Orthodox Patriarchate has turned to every authority possible – Israeli, Palestinian, Jordanian and even Greek – in an attempt to have the rooms returned, but more than four months later they remain in the hands of the mosque. The patriarchate, along with the Armenians and the Franciscan Custodians of the Holy Land, also view with trepidation the building of bathrooms on the roof of the mosque overlooking the Franciscan monastery adjacent to the church.

In an incident last year, PA security forces kidnapped Abed Salem Hirbawi, a Muslim businessman in the Old City, and took him to Ramallah, where he was pressured to drop a lawsuit against the Coptic Church over a property claim. In response, Israel imposed a curfew on Ramallah, lifting it only when Hirbawi was released, Wahbieh notes. The case is now awaiting trial.

Extremist Muslims are not the only source of trouble for Palestinian Christians. They have also had confrontations with Jewish extremists. Besides arson attempts at Jerusalem churches by Muslims, there have been torchings by Jews, including a series of church fires in eastern Jerusalem some two years ago set by an IDF soldier also convicted of shooting up a Catholic church in Jaffa.

One priest says that sometimes Jewish children spit at him and his colleagues as they walk by in the Old City, and that the situation has worsened in the almost 17 years since he first came to Jerusalem.

"Fanatic Jews throw eggs and yogurt at our houses which have the signs of the cross on their doorways," says John, 38, a member of the Syrian Orthodox community, whose neighborhood in the Old City borders the Jewish Quarter.

But he is troubled most by the relationship between Christians and Muslims, which he says "is in critical jeopardy."

As Father William puts it, the situation is "getting worse and worse."

Despite all this, friendships among members of the two faiths flourish, neighbors visit and gossip with one another, children study in the same classrooms and they share in each other's lives.

In the neighborhood of Shuafat, 26-year-old Tania Nahhas, a Catholic, and her best friend, Jumana Abu Zayyad, 27, a Muslim, chat on the phone making plans to go out with a group of their friends – young Muslims and Christians. Nahhas and Abu Zayyad, who lives in Isawiya, have been fast friends since they studied together at the Hebrew University six years ago.

The issue of religion never came up as their friendship grew, Nahhas says. "We are so close because we deal with each other as friends. I am invited to her house on Ramadan. We celebrate our holidays together. I have another good friend who wears a veil," says Nahhas, who is the office administrator of an organization that runs social programs for Palestinians in Jerusalem and in the territories. "On Christmas the [Muslim] children in my neighborhood come to our house to give us gifts."

The older generation of both religions tends to be more insular and fanatic, says Nahhas, but there are also young people who are becoming fanatical in their religious beliefs, especially among the Muslims. In certain areas of Jerusalem like E-Ram near Ramallah, the few

[Cont'd. on page B 66]

The Kieselstein family of Hebron following the riots in 1929

Mrs. Rose Tenenbaum

Best wishes to my children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Norm & Sandra Turk and Family

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Dina & Willie Tenenbaum

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy and peaceful New Year.

U's . . .

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of israel

Harry & Yetta Ungerman

W's . . .

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.

Victor & Klara Wise

Mr. & Mrs. Hy Weinrib Marla, Risa, Shane, Lauren & Jamie Fine

Wish their relatives, friends& neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

Leonard, Gloria & Barbara Wiseberg Azriel & Sigal Har Lavan and recent arrivals

Nitzan and Dafna

wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and muchatonim friends, and the people of Israel.

Harry & Rose Wolfe

43 Kennard Avenue

Harry & Ida Weisleder & Marsha Mark, Jodi & Hillary Louis, Marlene & Joshua Anne & Sam Himelfarb Adam & Eric wish their relatives, friends and neighbours a peaceful happy and healthy New Year.

Sylvia & Henry Waks

Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Ted & Perlan Waxman & Family

83 Stonedene Blvd.

Wish all their relatives, friends & neighbors a happy and healthy New Year.

David & Ruth Warsh Family

Wish their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Blanche & Sidney Wolbrom

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Sarah & Abe Wertman

Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy holiday and a healthy and Peaceful New Year.

Leslie & Miriam Wise

38 Nevada Ave.
Willowdale, Ont. M2M 3N6

Wish their relatives, friends and customers a happy and healthy New Year

Zionism after 100 years

Lou & Helen Wronzberg
Rick, Debbie, Alexis & Danielle
Larry, Darlene, Lynsey & Tarah
Randy, Debbie, Jordan, Ashley, Dustin & Melissa
Donna, Jonah, Nechama, Chaim & Shmuel
Wish all their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Norman & Sonia Wagner and Family
344 Hillhurst Blvd.
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Dr. & Mrs. Joseph Weinstock
David, Moss, Mark & Daniel
Wish their relatives, friends & neighbours a happy and healthy New Year

Jack & Anne Weinbaum & Family
Wish all their relatives and friends a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

Albert & Helen Waisglass
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Ted, Annette
Madison & Eden Wine
wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

Y's . . .

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
The Yermus Family

Hy & Ruth Young
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Z's . . .

Morris & Tamara Zeitman extends best wishes for a Happy & Healthy New Year to our children & Friends Dr. Henry & Paula Zeitman & Children in Dallas, Texas
Jack & Lilly Bitton & Sons
in Toronto
and to our family and friends in Toronto, Paris & Israel

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year.
Mr. & Mrs. Nathan Zajdner

Wishing all our family and friends a happy and healthy New Year
Abe & Margot Zukerman

Edith, Jack & Jo-Anne Zeidenberg
Michael, Marla & Family
Wish their relatives and friends a happy and healthy New Year.

The Canadian Jewish news

Please Note: The office of The Canadian Jewish News will be closed on the following days:

Thursday, October 2nd
Friday, October 3rd
Monday, October 13th
(Thanksgiving)
Thursday, October 16th
Friday, October 17th
Thursday, October 23rd
Friday, October 24th

Palestinain society is not an idyllic one

[Cont'd. from page B 65]

Christian families are uncomfortable because of the growing population of Muslim fundamentalists, she says.

On the other hand, in Sheikh Jarrah, where she used to live, relations between the Muslim majority and the Christians are extremely friendly. Her family now rents a house in Shuafat from another Muslim who was more than happy to rent to Christians, she says.

"There is some friction [between Christians and Muslims]. I am not denying it and sometimes it is severe, but that goes on all over Jerusalem, west and east," she says, noting that even in western Jerusalem where the vast majority of the residents share the same religion, there are nevertheless conflicts between secular and religious Jews. "It's something you find everywhere...sometimes you have clashes and sometimes you find very good friends."

Palestinian society is not an idyllic one, says Father Rafiq Khoury of the Latin Patriarchate, and so while there are occasional differences between the religions, it should not be the focus of attention when looking at Palestinian society or used as a basis for saying the Christian presence is under threat in the Holy Land.

"Naturally we have differences which exist between minorities and majorities, but...we have our own oriental way of meeting together and trying to resolve all questions," Khoury says. "You cannot judge Arab society according to the frame of Western society."

But for Father William, this type of complacency and apologetic attitude on the part of many of the Christian church leaders must be corrected. The church leaders are trying to dabble in politics, he says, when "as Christians they should first deal with the problems the Christians are having and then after that they can also help the Muslims."

Some lay Christians say the clergy's view of the issue is clouded by the simple fact that they don't live in daily contact with Muslim neighbors. They interact mainly with the Islamic religious leaders, and on that level, the relations between Christians and Muslims are amicable.

"But we are living [with the Muslims], so we see a lot of discrimination," says John, the Syrian Orthodox Palestinian.

Some church leaders quite simply fear for the safety of their flocks and so feel compelled not to speak out about problems, Aimad adds.

The main challenge, Khoury counters, is to keep religious fanaticism – Muslim, Christian and Jewish – in perspective and not allow it to take over the society.

"It is the same problem in France, in Israel," he says. "We are a real society with some tensions in politics, economics and even religious life, but you have to look at it in the framework of the evolution of Palestinian society and not isolate it. That is not fair to our Palestinian society."

An infant boy – the only survivor of the Slonim family in Hebron, 1929. Arab mobs killed 66 Jews with knives and hatchets.

Zionism after 100 years

The new front line volunteers

By NECHEMIA MEYERS
Special to The CJN

The admission fee for immigrant groups entering Israel society is apt to be paid in blood. For newcomers are more readily accepted by veteran Israelis once their fellow immigrants are numbered among the dead and wounded in this country's unending battle for survival.

By this token, both the Ethiopian and the Russian immigrants have paid their admission fee, over and over again. For example, two of the five soldiers of an elite Golani unit who were burned to death several weeks ago in Lebanon had come here from Ethiopia as children. And shortly thereafter, when two young men from the same unit were killed by a roadside bomb laid by the Hezbollah, one of them, media reports revealed, was born in the former Soviet Union.

The situation is no different when terrorism strikes in the city. One of the five young people killed by the suicide bombers in the Ben Yehuda mall was a newcomer from what was once the USSR, and there were several such immigrants among the victims of the Machane Yehuda bombing.

There is, of course, a difference between the people who just happen to be around when a bomb goes off and those who volunteer to serve in continuously dangerous front-line units. And many immigrants are to be found among the latter.

If olim in the miliary were looking for excuses to avoid volunteering, they could easily find those excuses. The Russian immigrants could argue that they have no reason to put their lives in jeopardy at a time when many of their fellow Israelis see them as a collection of crooks, prostitutes and non-Jews. And the Ethiopians' image suffers from color-linked prejudice and from the prevalence of serious diseases among them.

Nevertheless, a disproportionate number of young people from both immigrant groups volunteer to serve where the bullets are flying.

Also worthy of note is the fact that most Ethiopian boys come from poor families and could ask for an exemption from military service in order to help support their parents and siblings. But the overwhelming majority refuse to make such a request.

The reason was given in a recent Ma'ariv interview by Barkan, a Golani infantryman: "I couldn't do that without losing my self-respect," he said. "Moreover, I know that being a 'fighter' will help me to gain acceptance in Israeli society."

Barkan admitted that some of the boys in his neighborhood, outraged at the fact that Ethiopian blood donations were discarded because of the relatively high incidence of AIDS among immigrants from Ethiopia, told him: "They don't want us here. If our blood isn't good enough for them, why should we join their army?"

"Yet strange as it may sound," said Barkan, "there were a lot of us who decided to volunteer for front-line service just because of that disgusting incident. We wanted to prove to them that our blood is just as good as theirs."

That they have done!

Youngsters from Ethiopia and the flag of their new country. [UIA photo]

NEPTUNE'S COVE
Fine Seafood Dining
BAYVIEW VILLAGE • 221-7766
Wishing You a Happy & Healthy New Year

Liss Gallery
formerly Affairs of the Art
978 Eglinton West • 787-9872
Tues.-Wed. 10-6 • Thurs. 10-8 • Fri. 10-6 • Sat.11-5 • Sun. 12-5
שנה טובה
WISHING YOU A HAPPY, HEALTHY, AND PEACEFUL NEW YEAR

BRIAN DOV BELMONT
Barrister & Solicitor
Carrying on the General Practice of Law with an emphasis on Estates, Corporate and Real Estate Litigation
Wishes all his clients, family and friends a Happy and Healthy New Year
1600 Steeles Avenue West, Suite #222, Concord, Ontario L4K 4M2
Tel: (905) 669-6931 Fax: (905) 669-7403

AL SHINER'S NOVA SOUNDS
ENTERTAINMENT GROUP
wish you a year filled with Good Health, Happiness & Peace EXCELLENCE — ENERGY — EXPERTISE
(416) 926-1918

Vaughan Councillor
BERNIE GREEN
wishes you a Happy and Healthy New Year

Nu Mode
DRESS COMPANY LIMITED
The Greenberg Family
Wish all their relatives, friends & customers a peaceful, happy and healthy New Year.

SGA
SANDER GLADSTONE ARCHITECT
CANADA – ISRAEL
Wishing You Health in the New Year
Residential • Cottage • Retail • Commercial • Industrial 1492 Avenue Road, Suite 2, Toronto, Ontario, Canada M5N 2J1
Tel: (416) 482-5100 Fax: (416) 482-3096 email: rktect@yorku.ca

Wishing all of our customers a Happy and Healthy New Year
Seashell Seafood Restaurant & Fish Market
5197 Yonge St. 225-1895

SYNERGY HOME SYSTEMS
Robert, Kellie, Carlie Campol and the Staff of SYNERGY HOME SYSTEMS
wish their relatives, clients and friends a Happy & Healthy New Year

Spa Elancé
Specialists in Non-Surgical Body Contouring and Facial Rejuvenation for Men & Women
WISHING YOU A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
ANNE VANDETTE & STAFF
(416) 783-1148 • 1214 EGLINTON WEST

DALEY DOORS
M. J. DALEY
MANUFACTURING CO. LIMITED
425 Comstock Road
Scarborough, Ont. M1L 2H4
416 - 752-2030
Fax: 416 - 752-6002
Wish all our customers, family and friends A Happy & Healthy New Year
MORRIS KORMAN
President

LEATHER CLUB CHAIR

Sit or recline in our tufted club chair designed for comfort.

Covered in hand-rubbed antiqued leather on all wearing surfaces.

Now just $1495

De Boer's

It's a comfort to know we're here

Open Mon. to Wed. and Sat. 10am-6pm, Thur. and Fri. to 9pm, (College Park to 6pm)

MISSISSAUGA 2255 DUNDAS ST. W (905) 828-7950 · NORTH YORK 5051 YONGE ST. (416) 226-3730
PICKERING .BROCK & 401 (905) 683-9660 · COLLEGE PARK 444 YONGE ST. (416) 596-1433
OTTAWA 1050 BAXTER RD. (613) 828-9682

Happy New Year to our friends in the Jewish community

From Woodbridge to Brampton, from Downsview to Thornhill people all across the GTA are asking

WHAT IS A MEGALOT?

The Megalots are a revolutionary idea in home ownership. You get a fully-serviced lot at least twice as big as the average 50' lot for the same price! Check out this diagram! Imagine what you could do with all that land! Especially the walkout lots!

Where are the Megalots located?
The Megalots are located just minutes from Highway 400 in the established town of Maple. These homes are surrounded by the lush greenery of the Oak Ridges Moraine and are bordered by the prestigious Maple Downs Golf Course. It dosen't get any better than this for families who enjoy nature!
Okay, I get the idea, the lots are big. But what about the homes themselves?
This is one of the best parts! The Megalots are brought to you by three respected GTA builders, Country Homes, Regency Heights Homes and Monmar Homes. All three builders have packed these bungalows and two storey designs with luxury upgrades like 9 ft. ceilings, circular oak staircases, stone, stucco and brick facades and so much more. Plus you get innovative, unique designs that you can never get on a 50' or even a 60' lot. You have to see it to believe it!

Maplewood

I've heard from my friends that over 100 people have bought Megalots in just a few months. Does that mean all the good lots are gone?

There are almost 200 Megalots in all and none are less than 75 ft. wide! There are no bad lots... only better lots and best lots. Plus, all three builders have just announced a new release this weekend of better and best lots and new designs!

These homes must cost millions!
Surprisingly, while they last, the Megalots start from the incredible

Low $300,000s* to over $400,000 for an elegant woodland home on a 75' X 150' typical lot.

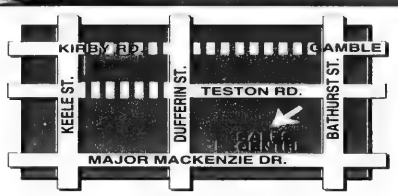
The Builders of Maplewood would like to wish the Jewish Community a happy and healthy New Year.

Maplewood, a community by three respected builders:

REGENCY HEIGHTS H·O·M·E·S

COUNTRY HOMES

Monmar Homes Est. 1971



SALES OFFICE HOURS:
Mon. - Thurs. 1 p.m. - 6 p.m.
Sat., Sun. & Holidays 11 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Closed Fridays.

*Some lot premiums apply. Prices and information correct at press time. Map not to scale. Artist's concept. E. & O.E.

DINING PLEASURES

25 YEARS

Seafood

Captain John's
HARBOUR BOAT RESTAURANT AND BANQUET FACILITY

Weddings, Bar Mitzvahs & Special Senior Citizens' Discount

"TORONTO'S FOREMOST SEAFOOD RESTAURANT"
Sumptuous Sunday Brunch "all you can eat" only $14.75
Bring this ad and you get two Dinners for the price of "One"

1 QUEEN'S QUAY W. (Foot of Yonge St.) • 416 - 363-6062

Our Sincere Good Wishes for a Happy and Healthy New Year to all our customers & friends

O MEI
SPECIALIZING IN SEAFOOD, SZECHUAN & PEKING CUISINE
618 SHEPPARD WEST 635-5050
248 STEELES WEST 889-8282
5150 YONGE STREET 222-2300
420 HIGHWAY 7 EAST 881-8188

ANY DISH 1/2 PRICE
with regular-price food purchase of $15 or more (not including beverages, liquor or specials) before taxes. Cannot be combined with other offers. Limit two half price dishes per table. Dining room only.
VALID TO OCTOBER 31 / 97 AT STEELES AND YONGE LOCATIONS ONLY
RINGO IP & STAFF WISH YOU A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR

Mr. GREEK
SHISH KEBOB RESTAURANT
Specializing in Authentic Greek Cuisine
• Chicken • Seafood • Salads • Lamb
9218 Yonge Street (at 16th Avenue)
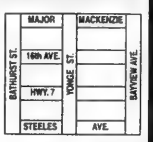
(905) 709-9800



WE WISH ALL OUR CUSTOMERS & FRIENDS A VERY HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR

Basil
Restaurant & Grill
15% off with coupon Monday to Thursday - Food Only
We specialize in lamb, pasta, fish, chicken and beef – all delicately prepared in the Mediterranean style.
We offer a selection of kid's pasta for only $5.95
Come in and get to know us and take advantage of our great selections.
Open for Lunch & Dinner
We know you'll be back!
514 Eglinton Avenue West
Reservations: (416) 485-5310
All items available for take-out

THE LOBSTER TRAP RESTAURANT
New Year Greetings to all our customers & friends from
The Lobster Trap Restaurant
The Original Lobster House serving Torontonians for over 30 years
1962 Avenue Road • (416) 787-3211
(5 blocks South of 401)

Lunch - Monday to Friday
11:30 - 2:30 p.m.
OPEN FOR DINNER
5 p.m. - 10 p.m. Daily
7 Days a Week
• Ample Parking • Wheel Chair Accessible

CUISINE OF INDIA
The Best of India Is Here Now
Offering A Wide Array Of VEGETARIAN & TRADITIONAL DISHES
HAPPY NEW YEAR
to all our customers & friends
Daily Lunch Buffet, Fine Dining & Catering
Party Room Available
5222 Yonge St. (S. of Finch)
Parking available
229-0377

NCSY trip brings teen closer to his Jewish roots

By ADAM EISNER
Young People's Press

TORONTO — When my grandparents told me that they had arranged for me to go to Washington, D.C. with the National Conference of Synagogue Youth (NCSY), I was indifferent.

Guest Voices

It was a tense beginning. After being on the road for half an hour, one of the trip's senior advisers announced we would be saying a prayer for a safe journey. As everyone began reciting the prayer in Hebrew, I hadn't the faintest idea what they were saying.

As the trip continued, I felt more and more like an outsider. Although my family had been somewhat religious when I was younger, I only had a vague idea what to say during the prayers. People around me traded "remember when?" stories of previous trips this group had been on. I stayed quiet most of the time.

My unwillingness to learn and my bad attitude did not get me very far. I refused to attend our optional daily prayers, wore my kippah as little as possible and avoided as many of the religious aspects of the trip as I could.

Yes, I was being stubborn but I was afraid of being embarrassed. I was sure I would get peculiar looks for not knowing what I was doing during prayers and ever more frightened to be caught doing something ridiculous in my attempt to "fit in."

Most of the advisers were university students or recent graduates, and all were religious. The females wore long skirts, and the males always wore their kippot and their tzitzit (fringed prayer garment). They led the prayers and made sure that we didn't break any rules. The advisers made an effort to get the secular Jews like myself to take part in the discussions, the prayers and more of the activities. After a while, I concluded I should at least listen to what they had to say.

I began attending prayers, which were held three times a day, and turned to one adviser in particular for advice. We discussed my viewpoints on Judaism and my feelings toward religion. It turned out the woman I became closest with hadn't even begun to get involved with Judaism until university. "I had spiked hair in high school," she said.

The two of us chatted about religious and non-religious lifestyles, dating, marriage, NCSY and more. If I had a question regarding the Jewish faith she could answer it, or could point me in the direction of someone who could. I found her journey back to religion inspiring.

When we learned about the persecutions during the Holocaust, I felt as if I had suffered that same pain. It was a very strong feeling. Toward the end of the trip, an activity was arranged where we burned thousands of matches, each representing one Jewish life. It was a powerful experience.

Before the trip, I had convinced myself that I would regret going and would be wasting my time. In retrospect, I would do it again. Because of the depth of the advisers' knowledge, because of the incredible history of the Jewish people, I gained insight into both my history and myself.

When the trip ended, I realized how involved in Judaism I had become. My skepticism toward my religion had disappeared, and for the first time I gave religious involvement some thought. I returned to Toronto with the knowledge that I had opened new doors.

Come and share a One Night Gala Concert with globally-acclaimed cellist

OFRA HARNOY

Wednesday, November 26, 1997
8 o'clock pm
at Temple Sinai, 210 Wilson Avenue

$ 135. tickets
are Reserved seating and include an invitation to the Post-Concert Reception.
(A maximum allowable tax receipt will be issued)

$ 55. tickets
are General Admission seating and do not include the Post-Concert Reception.

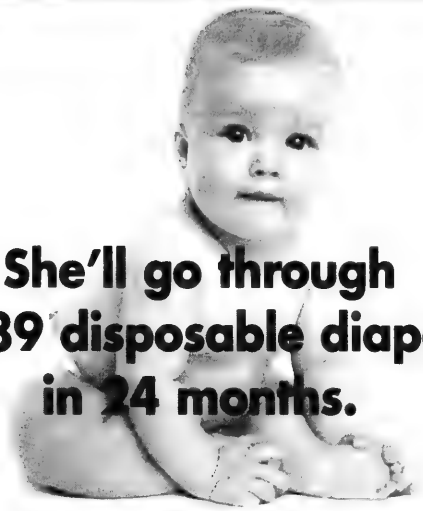
TICKET HOTLINE (416) 425-1963

CLASSICAL 96.3 FM · Aetna · BMG · MEDIA GROUP INTERNATIONAL · DOCS GROUP · Remedy's · CHRIS · COMMUNICATIONS GROUP



She'll go through 5,289 disposable diapers in 24 months.

And not one will go to a landfill site.

Join the Diaper Club for convenience.

Brand-name disposables delivered right to your door. Choose from top brand-name diapers, including HUGGIES and Pampers. You'll never run out again!

Make the call. Let us do the rest. Once a delivery date is arranged, all you have to do is put out your soiled diapers. You don't even have to be at home!

Join for peace of mind.

Soiled diapers picked up for recycling. We drop off a fresh supply and pick up your soiled disposables.
Diapers are then recycled into paper and plastic products by Knowaste™ Canada, recognized by the Recycling Council of Ontario.

Join today! (905) 564-1737
1-800-566-9278

The Diaper Club
A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER

® Registered trade-mark of The Diaper Club. ™ Trade-mark of Knowaste, LLC. *Up to a maximum value of $13.95.

Serving families throughout the Greater Toronto Area.

Rosh Hashanah 5758

Celebrating High Holy Days with the celebrities

By JOYCE SINGER
Special to the CJN

TORONTO — At this time of year, we wondered how the celebrities observe the High Holy Days, and discovered that they are just as diverse as the rest of us.

Sara Waxman, chair of the 1997 Opera Ball (Oct. 4), says that while her husband actor/director Al Waxman is currently wowing audiences at Stratford in Death of a Salesman, it's in his contract that he gets to come home for the holidays. Not so for their son Adam, who is far away, teaching in Japan.

"We go to the Kiever Shul in Kensington Market. I think it's where Al had his bar mitzvah," she says. "And every year, we've been invited to our friends Valerie and

Sara and Al Waxman

Jack Fine. This year is very sad for us, as she was killed in an automobile accident recently. He owns Bowlerama. She was on the board of Mt. Sinai Hospital and many charitable organizations.

"This year we are invited to the home of Senator Jerry Grafstein and his wife Carole. They are very observant, with the honey, challah and apples to break the fast. It's a lovely traditional closing [to the Yom Kippur] service."

For the second year in a row, Simcha Jacobovici and his partner Elliot Halpern have won an Emmy for their extraordinary documentaries. This year's award was for their production of The Selling of Innocents.

Jacobovici is the president of his shul Beit Yosef, which is named after his late father, at the Riverdale Community Centre.

"I would call it modern Orthodox," he says. "We've been running it for three years. First it started in my living-room; then we were in a Greek Restaurant for the High Holy Days; now we have our permanent site at 179 Danforth Ave.

Simcha Jacobovici

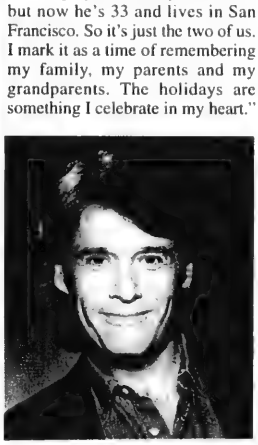
"There are a lot of people from the arts in this area. And as we're far away from the mainstream community, we get some people who haven't been to a shul in their lives. We're very non-threatening... we're in a former Tai Chi studio!"

Lois Lilienstein, of Sharon, Lois and Bram, says, "I'm from Chicago. When my grandparents were alive, Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kipper were the holidays of the year. My grandmother did the cooking for when you broke the fast. My grandfather was an elder of the shul, which was right across the street from us. And everything was as it should be in Jewish family life. But when my grandfather died, my grandmother came to live with us and all the customs fell away.

Lois Lilienstein

"While our son David was growing up it was a special time, but now he's 33 and lives in San Francisco. So it's just the two of us. I mark it as a time of remembering my family, my parents and my grandparents. The holidays are something I celebrate in my heart."



Ralph Benmergui

Ralph Benmergui of Benmergui Live/Newsworld, jokes that he's always wondered what would happen if he wore his kippah on television. "What will they do?

"One day, I think that's how my career will end. I'll just put my kippah on, and that will be that."

As for the holidays, "We, my wife Catherine Beet and my kids Jonah and Chas, belong to the First Narayever Congregation egalitarian shul. It's a good shul. It's very funky. For the High Holy Days, they take over the Bloor JCC downtown. I like to go there with my family, so that we can see our 'High Holiday' Jewish friends, who only show up three times a year. So we end up going to 'the big show.'"

EXPERIENCED CAMP DIRECTOR

For Mon. to Sat., 8-week summer day camp program at Balfour Beach (Keswick), Lake Simcoe.
During the year, hire staff, plan activities, assist in recruiting campers, work with camp assoc. Live on site in summer. Fax resume and references to:

CAMP KATONIM
Fax: (416) 226-0531

PAGING
► Motorola & Panasonic pagers
► Friendly & experienced staff
FROM $4.95 a month*
(416)410-6933
or 1-888-AXXESS-3 DANIEL PLECHAC
7370 Woodbine Ave. Unit 7. 3 lights north of Steeles Ave.
*Axxess Cellular Inc. reserves the right to modify or discontinue offer.

CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE FISH, CHEESE
VEGETARIAN AND KOSHER FOOD DEPOT
OPEN 7 DAYS TO STORES, CATERERS • 161 DENISON ST. (905) 470-
PRE SLICED B.C. RED PACIFIC SMOKED SALMON 9.99 lb. GOLDEN HARBOR HALF PRICE
FREE BUY ONE JAR OF FLAUM DILL PICKLES OR SAUERKRAUT MIX AND MATCH SAVE 2.99 GET ONE FREE
FREE BUY ONE 56g PKG SMOKED BAGELOX SAVE 2.99 GET ONE FREE
FREE BUY ONE 142g IRISH-STYLE RED PACIFIC SLICED SMOKED SALMON SAVE 8.99 GET ONE FREE
FREE BUY ONE 250g PKG COD FILLETS SAVE 4.69 GET ONE FREE
FREE BUY ONE 250g PKG SOLE FILLETS SAVE 4.69 GET ONE FREE
FREE BUY ONE 250g PKG RED SNAPPER FILLETS SAVE 4.69 GET ONE FREE
LOWEST PRICE IN CANADA SLICE YOUR OWN LOX AND NORWEGIAN STYLE SMOKED SALMON SAVE 4.00 5.99 lb.
HERITAGE BORSCHT 99¢ NO FAT. NO CHOLESTEROL MADE FROM FRESH BEETS. VEGETARIAN. COME TASTE
HERITAGE - 6 PIECE - 24 oz WHITE FISH AND PIKE GEFILTE FISH SAVE 2.00 3.99
HERITAGE DAILY MATZOS UNSALTED POPPY SEED. LIGHTLY SALTED 1.49
HERITAGE TORDESIT TIN CANDLE 29¢
HERITAGE 72's BULQ CANDLES 2.99
HERITAGE ONE POUND MATZOS 69¢
STREITS EGG MATZOS 69¢ whole unsweetened
EMPIRE CHICKEN NUGGETS 5.99
SAUCHE LOUISE RICE MEDLEY & SHIITAKE CRAB CALAMARI SCALLOPS 2.99 200 g
SEACHEZ DELICIOUS TUNA PATTIES TUNA SCHNITZEL TUNA BURGER 3.99
CENTRE HOUSE INSTANT CHICKEN SOUP 1.49
HADAR TEA BISCUITS 39¢
STREITS CELLO SOUP MIX 69¢
OLD FASHIONED FARFEL 49¢
KING KOLD HAND MADE BLINTZES 2.79 CHEESE, BLUEBERRY, ETC.
STREITS NOODLES 89¢
RICE CAKES 69¢
CERES JUICE 1.89
MANHATTAN SOFT PRETZELS 1.49
BILLY BEE SQUEEZABLE HONEY 1.97 500 g
CHEESE SLICES 2.49 340 g
PERL'S GEFILTE FISH LOGS 5.99 680 g
PERL'S LARGE SALAMI 6.99
PERL'S BEEF WIENER KNACKERS 3.49
PERL'S PATTIES BEEF 8's 5.99 CHICKEN 8's 6.99
STIX 2.49
ZOGLO'S VEGETARIAN CHOICE
VEGETARIAN PRODUCTS WHOLESALE
A CHOLESTEROL-FREE NATURAL PROTEIN VEGETARIAN DELICACY
NO PRESERVATIVES • HUGE SELECTION AVAILABLE AT WHOLESALE PRICES!
VEG. CORN NUGGETS, VEG. CAULIFLOWER NUGGETS, VEG. SPINACH NUGGETS, VEG. POTATO NUGGETS, VEG. MIXED VEG. NUGGETS, VEG. BROCOLLI NUGGETS 1.99 200 g
VEG. CHICKEN PATTIES, VEG. BEEF PATTIES, VEG. CORN SCHNITZEL, VEG. CAULIFLOWER SCHNITZEL 2.99 300 g
ALL 800 g NUGGETS 8.99
ALL 1 KILO PATTIES 9.99
FIRST COME FIRST SERVE WITH AD
CENTRAL FISH COD 42 SMOKED FISH 99¢ lb
SMOKED CISCOES 5.99 lb
SMOKED CHUBS 5.99 lb
SMOKED CARP 4.99 lb
SMOKED WHITEFISH 4.99 lb
ABERDONIAN SCOTCH KIPPERS 1.99
ABERDONIAN PEPPER MACKERAL 1.99
WORLDLY SOUPS 2.79
LAKERDA SHAD IN OIL 3.99
SWORDFISH STEAKS 5.99 lb
FREE SHOUTORS WITH CHEESE PURCHASE IN THIS AD
ENGLISH STILTON 7.99 lb
BLUE CHEESE 4.99 lb
HAVARTI CHEESE 3.99 lb
FRENCH BRIE 5.99 lb
PARMESIAN REGGIANO 15.99 lb
GRATED ROMANO CHEESE 1.99 HALF PRICE
FEATURE HORSERADISH 1.19
TUNA STEAKS 6.49 lb
HALIBUT STEAKS 6.99 lb
ASIAGO 6.99 lb
LAPPI CHEESE 3.99 lb
DELICREAM CREAM CHEESE (all flavours) 3.99 lb
SWISS GRUYERE 4.99 lb
SWISS EMMENTHAL 5.99 lb
OKA CHEESE 6.99 lb
PARAMOUNT FLAKED LIGHT TUNA 69¢
CLOVER LEAF FLAKED ALBACORE WHITE TUNA 1.99
B.C. SALMON ROAST 2.29 lb
COHO STEAKS 5.99 lb
SUPER HALF PRICE HAOLAM CHEESE
SLICED MUENSTER 1.99
SLICED SWISS 1.99
SLICED CHEDDAR 1.99
SLICED GOUDA 1.99
SLICED JALAPENO JACK 1.99
3 YR OLD CHEDDAR 4.99 lb SAVE 50¢
SARDINES IN WATER 89¢
RIVERSIDE SOLID WHITE ALBACORE 3.99
FREE 2 SLICES GOLDEN HARBOR LOX
HAGEN DAZS ICE CREAM 3.49 500 ml ALL FLAVOURS
LACTEEZE LACTOSE FREE ICE CREAM 3.49
LACTEEZE LACTOSE FREE 2% YOGURT 3.29
TOFFUTTI CUTIE SANDWICHES 3.29
TOFFUTTI DAIRY DESSERT 2.99 500 ml
KOUNTRY EGGROLLS 3.99
TRIPLE CHEESE SHREDDED 3.99
SMOKY LIVER MAPLE CHEESE 3.99
RIVERSIDE CHEESE CARAWAY 3.99
FREE BUY 1 PKG. PARMESIAN GRATED CHEESE GET ONE FREE SAVE 4.99
LOX BITS 3.79 lb.
TROPICANA ORANGE JUICE 99¢
TROPICANA HOMESTYLE - PURE ORANGE JUICE 1.89 APPLE JUICE 1.89 1.89L
EVERYDAY WHOLESALE GROVESTAND 2.69
JARLSBERG REG. OR LIGHT 5.99 lb
GOUDA OR 3 CHEESE 3.99
SAVE 4.99

MIRROR, MIRROR ON THE WALL...
Medici Cosmetic Surgery & Skin Care
* Fat removal
* Nose reshaping
* Lip enlargement
* Vein injections
* Breast enlargements/reduction
* Tummy Tuc
* Face lift & wrinkle removal
* Removal of moles and age spots
* Permanent eye liner/brow, lipliner
* Eye lid surgery
* Facial hair removal by radio laser (permanent)
* Facials, Glycolic Peels
HAIR TRANSPLANTS $5/Graft
For a free consultation call:
(905) 764-7444
7700 Bathurst St. at Centre, Thornhill
(Promenade Village Shops)
Medici Cosmetic Surgery & Skin Care

★★★ CENTRE HONDA ★★★
INTRODUCTORY OFFER 1998
CIVIC SEDANS FOR LEASE
LIMITED TIME OFFER
Love that Lasts
At a Rate that Won't
CIVIC LX SEDAN $218* PER MONTH 48 MONTHS
♥ 5 speed
♥ Dual air bags (SRS)
♥ AM/FM Stereo
♥ Tilt Steering
♥ Remote Trunk Release
♥ Dual Remote Mirrors
♥ 14" wheels with covers
♥ And more
CIVIC EX SEDAN $268* PER MONTH 48 MONTHS
♥ Auto Trans. ♥ Tilt Steering
♥ Air Conditioning
♥ ABS ♥ Dual air bags
♥ Cruise Control
♥ Power Windows
♥ AM/FM Stereo Cassette
♥ Dual Power Mirrors
♥ And more
*Based on new 1998 Civic Sedan LX/Civic Sedan EX. $218/$268 per month for 48 months. Down payment or equivalent trade of LX $740, EX $995 required plus 1st monthly payment and security deposit. Freight, PDI, taxes & license and insurance extra. OAC. Option to purchase at lease end. Zero downpayment plans also available. Car shown may not be exactly as shown.
CENTRE HONDA
SERVING YOU FOR OVER 30 YEARS
354 RICHMOND ST. E. (416) 364-1116
HONDA
E-Mail Address: sales@centrehonda.com Web-Site Address: www.centrehonda.com
BUILT WITHOUT COMPROMISE.

Your Jewish Community Chapel STEELES 70 years of traditional service MEMORIAL CHAPEL (905) 881-6003 (416) 733-2000

International

Israel & the Jewish World

Your Jewish Community Chapel STEELES 70 years of traditional service MEMORIAL CHAPEL (905) 881-6003 (416) 733-2000

Iran missile program said near completion

By STEVE RODAN and ARIEH O'SULLIVAN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — With massive aid from Russia, Iran is on the verge of completing its development of ballistic missiles that can strike any part of Israel, according to Defence Minister Yitzhak Mordechai.

But the United States and Israel disagree over how to pressure Russia to immediately stop its aid to Tehran before the Islamic republic achieves the ability to independently manufacture such missiles. The Clinton administration wants to concentrate on quiet diplomatic efforts, while Israel is lobbying Congress to cut off U.S. aid to Moscow.

In an interview with the Jerusalem Post, Mordechai said the United States and Israel have received intelligence information over the past few months that has led both countries to conclude that Tehran has progressed faster than previously thought in both its medium-range ballistic missile and its nuclear weapons programs. The most impressive progress was in Iran's missile program.

"Iran is on the verge of achieving capability of producing long-range missiles that have strategic dangers to Israel, as well as to U.S. interests in the region," he said.

Mordechai said that, at Iran's current pace of development, Tehran will be able to manufacture missiles that can hit Israel, the Gulf states, Asia and parts of Europe by 1999. He said Iran also wants to increase its chemical weapons and produce biological and nuclear weapons.

Western intelligence officials say Iran has embarked on three missile programs. One has a range of 1,500 kilometres, which can hit Israel, the Gulf states and Asia. Another has a range of 3,000 km, which can hit much of Western Europe. A third is a program to develop a missile of 5,500 km., believed to be largely aimed at striking U.S. targets in the Pacific.

Mordechai said U.S. intelligence officials now have a more alarming assessment than that of their Israeli colleagues of how close Iran is to achieving its goal.

The new intelligence, Mordechai said, shows that Russia has violated months of pledges to stop aid to Iran's missile and non-conventional weapons programs.

"We tried all ways – through the Americans and also directly to the Russians," Mordechai said. "There were [Russian] people, including ministers, who promised to stop [sending] technology and capability to Iran. They promised that to the president of the United States, [to U.S. Vice-President] Al Gore, to the prime minister [Benjamin Netanyahu] and to others who visited Russia.

"We were surprised to learn that the opposite took place: that Russia and Russian companies have accelerated the process; that Iran can achieve independent capability in these areas as fast as possible."

Mordechai said Israel has concluded that it must increase diplomatic efforts to stop the Iranian effort. As a result, officials have lobbied their colleagues in Europe, Russia and the United States to stop the transfer of technology to the Islamic republic.

But the Clinton administration opposes the use of U.S. economic aid as a lever to stop Russian aid programs to Tehran. Mordechai acknowledged that U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright is opposed to a cutoff of American aid to Russia.

Russia received $95 million in U.S. economic aid in 1997. The Clinton administration is asking Congress for $225 million for 1998.

The U.S. House Appropriations Committee, however, has pressed for a $12.3-billion foreign operations bill for 1998 that ends all aid to Russia unless Clinton specifies that Moscow is not aiding Iran's missile and nuclear weapons programs.

Russia, however, continues to deny that it is helping Iran's ballistic missile program and says its aid to Tehran is limited to building a civilian nuclear reactor.

IDF trains for war with PA

By ARIEH O'SULLIVAN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Israeli troops reportedly staged a series of military exercises near Jenin last week aimed at reconquering Palestinian-controlled areas and battling PLO fighters assaulting Jewish settlements.

According to Israel Radio, soldiers practised recapturing a Jewish settlement that had been overrun by the Palestinian Police. In the drill, the IDF succeeded in its mission, but suffered a great number of casualties, the radio said. Other units carried out manoeuvres, including operations in Palestinian areas, the radio said.

The exercise took place one year after the bloody riots that followed the opening of an exit to the Western Wall Tunnel. It was seen as sending a message to the Palestinian Authority that the IDF has learned the lessons of last year and is preparing for the possibility of an all-out war with the Palestinians.

A journey of 5,000 years begins with one single click.

JEWISH.COMMUNITY

Thousands of people visit Jewish.Community Online every day to discover their heritage, teach their children, and schmooze with other Jews. Come join them.

On AOL Canada Keyword: JEWISH CANADA

For a start-up kit call 1-800-729-4499

...and read Canadian Jewish News at keyword: JEWISH NEWS

AOL CANADA

A Cruise Long To Be Remembered ...

Celebrity Cruises

Experience A Happening

A Festival of Jewish Music at Sea "Jerusalem 3000"

Glatt Kosher, Cholov Yisroel Cuisine, O.R.C.

January 11-18, 1998

Cruise One of Celebrity Cruise Lines' New Five Star Fleet Ships The Mercury

A one week cruise ... departs Sailing from Ft. Lauderdale to Key West, Cozumel, Montego Bay, and Grand Cayman Festival Program: Chassidic, Cantorial, Yiddish, Sephardic-Ladino music and Klezmer concerts. Daily services and Shiurim, all ship amenities, activities, entertainment and lectures are included.

Festival Entertainers:

Wi Albrecht, Cantor Beth Tefiloh Baltimore, MD

Naftali Hershtik, Cantor The Jerusalem Great Synagogue

Avraham Fried, The King of Chassidic Music

Chaim Adler Chief Cantor of Tel Aviv

Moshe Schulhof, Cantor The Concord Hotel N.Y. and Ventura H

Arie Brown Lt. Col. Chief Cantor of the Israeli Army

Aaron Ben Soussan, Cantor Long Island, New York

Israel Rand, Cantor Hampton Synagogue New York

Raymond Goldstein, Pianist The Jerusalem Great Synagogue

Accompanied by The Geulah Klezmer Band

Do Not Miss This Special Opportunity!

For more information and reservations contact Sheryl Bernstein

American Express® Travel • 330 Biscayne Blvd. • Miami, FL 33132

Local : 305-358-7350 Toll Free: 800-635-9870 Fax: 305-358-3932

(International collect calls accepted)

Sponsored by

American Express Travel — Chabad Lubavitch of Florida — The American Society for the Advancement of Traditional Arts, Inc. Miami Beach, FL

Israel resumes talks with Palestinian Authority

By MICHAL YUDELMAN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Israel and the Palestinian Authority (PA) have decided to resume direct talks in the framework of the Oslo accords, the Prime Minister's Office indicated last Sunday.

An official announcement of the resumption of the working group sessions was expected at the meeting in New York of Foreign Minister David Levy, PA Chairman Yasser Arafat's deputy Mahmoud Abbas and U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said at last Sunday's cabinet meeting that the resumption of talks, which have been stalled since February, was made possible by the discussions held in Washington between an Israeli delegation headed by Cabinet Secretary Dan Naveh and the PA, and by the security steps taken by the Palestinian authorities.

"The main thing is to make clear to the other side that we want to go forward with the process, but that they must fight terror," Netanyahu told Channel 1. "There is a change in the past few days. I think that finally something has sunk in."

Netanyahu also said he had given instructions to transfer to the PA half of the funds which Israel has withheld since the Machane Yehuda attack. The Finance Ministry said that NIS 59 million would be handed over. That represents about half the original sum withheld. One-third, NIS 40 million, was transferred last month.

Netanyahu noted that he made the decision to release the funds after receiving reports of the PA's first measures against terrorism, stressing that these steps must be continuous, systematic and consistent.

Industry and Trade Minister Natan Sharansky suggested the funds not be transferred to Arafat's personal account, due to PA financial corruption. But his motion was rejected because the deal with the PA stipulates the funds be deposited directly into Arafat's account.

The IDF also announced another easing of the closure. An additional 8,000 Palestinians will be allowed to enter Israel, bringing the total number of workers allowed in to 29,000.

The Palestinian welcomed the government's decisions to release funds and resume negotiations.

The issues before the committees include the opening of Gaza air and sea ports, a "safe passage" between the West Bank and Gaza, and the release of Palestinian prisoners held by Israel.

At the opening of the cabinet session, General Security Service head Ami Ayalon briefed the ministers on security issues and reported on the investigation that led to the identification of four out of the five suicide bombers responsible for recent attacks in Jerusalem. Ayalon said there are indications that the PA has begun taking steps against the terror infrastructure.

Going South for the winter?

Planning to be away from home for an extended period of time?

If your plans include being away for an extended period of time, you'll enjoy Bell's Seasonal Service.

Whether you're away for three months or six months, Bell's Seasonal Service is a convenient and economical way to retain your current phone number and directory listing(s), without having to go through the inconvenience of canceling your phone line and the expense of reconnecting it when you return. One fee protects your service...

With Seasonal Service, we'll disconnect and restore your service on the dates that you choose. One call does it all...

You can also continue to use your Bell Calling Card and accumulate Real Plus Extra™ Savings and Rewards.

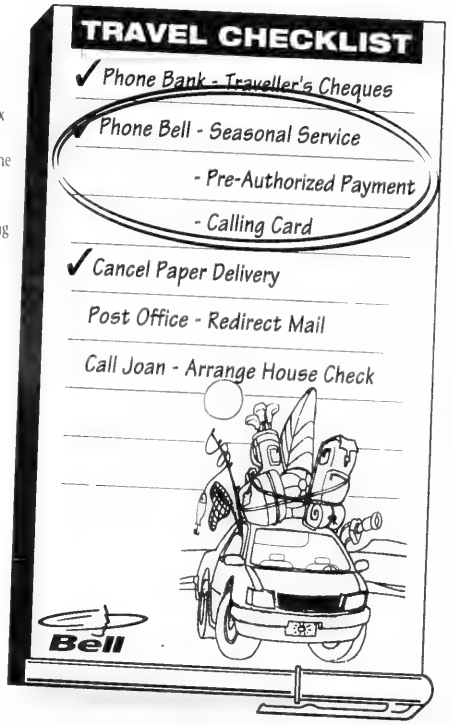
During the time your service is held, a message will tell callers the number they have dialed is not in service. For a small monthly fee you can request for Bell to intercept calls and provide your callers with the number where you can be reached.

All billing will be sent to an address of your choice and as an added feature you can pay for your Bell account or your Calling Card long distance charges through Bell's Pre-Authorized Payment Plan.



TRAVEL CHECKLIST
✓ Phone Bank - Traveller's Cheques
✓ Phone Bell - Seasonal Service
- Pre-Authorized Payment
- Calling Card
✓ Cancel Paper Delivery
Post Office - Redirect Mail
Call Joan - Arrange House Check
Bell

"We appreciate your confidence in us and wish you a safe and happy trip!"

For more information, or to subscribe to Bell's Seasonal Service, call 310-BELL and speak to a Bell representative.

*This service is available in Ontario and Quebec only.

Bell

Two bearers of Canadian passports held in Jordan

OTTAWA — Canada's Foreign Affairs Department has confirmed that two individuals "bearing Canadian passports" are being held in jail in Jordan after "an altercation" with at least one Jordanian national.

Monday's confirmation came on the heels of reports that two Canadians are in custody in Amman in connection with a mysterious attack on a senior leader of Hamas.

The Jordanian government said two Canadians were captured recently by the bodyguards of Khaled Meshal, who was attacked in broad daylight while strolling with his children in Amman.

Meshal, 41, head of Hamas' political bureau, is in hospital with a neurological ailment that hampers his breathing, Jordanian media reported.

Hamas said Meshal's assailants aimed a device at his head.

In published media reports, Hamas leaders accused Canadian Jews of collaborating with the Israeli government and its secret service, the Mossad.

A Hamas statement said the alleged Canadian attackers are "terrorists" sent by Israel.

Rodney Moore, a spokesperson for Foreign Affairs, told The CJN that Canada's embassy in Amman is in contact with the Canadians, and has offered consular aid.

Moore said the two turned down the offer of help, and have insisted their names not be released.

He said the embassy is in touch with "senior Jordanian officials" in an effort to unravel the mystery.

The reports said that security has been stepped up at the Canadian embassy and at the Intercontinental Hotel, where the Canadians checked in about two weeks ago.

Jordan's information ministry said the Canadians were arrested after they were found scuffling with Meshal's bodyguards.

The story has received wide coverage in Jordanian media. One theory said the Canadians may be the victims of mistaken identity, who were confused with Meshal's real attackers.

Hamas said it would exact revenge for the attack, but did not specify whether it would be against Israel or Canada.

The MAZON CANADA

"Justice Shall You Pursue" Teen Poster Competition

The purpose of the juried poster contest is to offer young people the opportunity to express a personal, political or religious message through art with regard to hunger in Canada

All Entries Must Reflect One or Both of the Following Themes:

THE TRAGEDY OF HUNGER AND POVERTY IN CANADA
THE TRADITIONAL JEWISH VALUE OF TZEDDAKAH

Open to All Teenagers Ages 15 - 19

Two-Dimensional Works and Applications must be submitted by:
Monday, December 1, 1997
at
788 Marlee Avenue, Suite 206, Toronto

For an application form, please call:
(416) 783-7554 or (514) 931-6000

"There is a simple truth. . .Israelis will not choose the path of peace if their blood continues to be shed. Palestinians will not choose the path of peace if their land continues to be appropriated."

Amos Oz

An Open Letter To Benjamin Netanyahu and Yasser Arafat

Dear Sirs,

We, the undersigned, write to you as Canadian Jews in support of the many Israelis who fear for the future of the Oslo peace process. US Ambassador to Israel, Martin Indyk, has said:"The core-bargain of Oslo has broken down. Israelis were promised security; Palestinians were promised self-government and a credible pathway to negotiating their rights in a final status agreement." Neither of you has followed through satisfactorily on your fundamental Oslo obligations.

Mr Arafat: The Palestinian Authority (PA) has created a permissive atmosphere for terrorism inside Israel as well as violence on the West Bank. The PA has failed to disarm and dismantle extremist Palestinian military organizations responsible for the suicide bombings. It has released known terrorists from jail and has contributed to the incitement to violence against Israelis. Israelis need to see the fullest commitment by you to consistent security co-operation before they can have confidence in the peace process.

Mr Netanyahu: You are right when you say that violence and terrorism are never excusable. But Oslo also means negotiating in good faith. Palestinians do not have any confidence that your government will ever accept a demilitarized Palestinian state in a viable bloc of territory in the West Bank and Gaza. Your minimal redeployment concessions reinforce this perception. Unilateral actions such as the construction in Har Homa, while technically legal, are provocative and undermine Oslo.

Sirs: The future is in your hands. Israelis and Palestinians are destined to live side by side forever. There is no alternative to good faith negotiations. Oslo struck a "core-bargain" which obligates both of you to negotiate a reasonable and secure peace. This must be respected. The alternative is chaos and probably, catastrophe. We look forward to better days.

Nira • Joyce Abracen • Stephane Acel • Stephen Acker • Rabbi Ron Aigen • Hy Alper • Rose Alper • Deborah C. Anschell • Erez Anzel • Heath Applebaum • Prof. Sidney Aster • Gordon Atlin • Sandy Atlin • David Attis • Margaret Attis • Paul Bain • Corinne Baumgarten • Hillel Becker • Mitzi Becker • Mitchell Beer • Dr. Michael Benazon • Mort Bercovitch • Nancy Bercovitch • Dr. Bernardo Berdichewsky • Dr. Howard Bergman • Dr. Franklin Bialystok • Morris Biderman • Rabbi Arthur Bielfeld • Sam Blatt • Penny Bloch • Rhona Bloomfield • Ann Bobker • Ron Bobker • A. Bonder • Prof. Sandford Borins • Allan Borodin • Harriet Brav-Baum • Shirley Braverman • Mimi Brody • Myer Brody • Edward Bronfman • Marsha Bronfman • Jonathan Brookman • Toby Brooks • M. Brotman • Yael Brotman • Marianne Brown • Prof. Robert J. Brym • Carla Burshtein • Ben Burston • Maggie Burston • Bill Byers • Miriam Byers • Dr. Shalom Camenietzki • Bernice Caplan • Neil Caplan • Art Chapkin • Frances Chapkin • Harold Chapman • Mary Chapman • Marlene Cherun • Myron Cherun • Jack Chisvin • Phyllis Chisvin • Earl Choldin • Anna Clarke • Mintzy Clement • Dr. Gerald M. Cohen • Dr. Howard S. Cohen • Salomon Cohen • Dr. Judith S. Coldoff • Arthur I. Cole • Dr. Ester Cole • Meryl Cole • Don Colt • Ro Cook • Robert Cook • Paul Copeland • David Copelin • Shelley Corrin • Jakob Cukier • Hon. Barney Danson • Dov Mark Davies • A. Ephraim Diamond, O.C. • AC Dolgin • Marc Dolgin • Laura H. Doliner • Dr. Michael Dworkind • Eva Echenberg • Myron Echenberg • Elliott Eisen • Wendy Eisen • Ellen Eisenberg • Robert Eisenberg • Robert Engel • Rabbi Lawrence A. Englander • Rose Enkin • Dr. David Etlin • Malka Ettinger • Zave Ettinger • Michael Fainstat • Ruth Fainstat • Libby Fine • Saul Fishbein • Joseph Flamer • Frieda Forman • Dr. Allan J. Fox • Merle Wolofsky Frankel • Fred Freedman • Mark Freeman • Boris G. Freesman, Q.C. • Rabbi Mark D. Friedman • Eileen Garber • Ralph Garber • Margaret Garbig • Miriam Garfinkle • Leona Garmaise • Steven Yaron Garmaise • Rabbi Steven H. Garten • Cheryl Gaster • Nili Gayer • Susan L. Gerhard • Maynard Gertler • Prof. Benjamin Geva • Prof. Esther Geva • Laurence Gilman • David H. Gladstone • Davida Glazer • Roslyn Glickman • Dr. Nora Gold • Ari Goldberg • Mark Goldblatt • R. Fern Goldman • Gertrude Goldring • Dr. Margie Golick • Gabriella Goliger • Rabbi Paul Golomb • Ellen Goodman • Edwin A. Goodman • Henry G. Goodman • Morris Goodman • Rosalind Goodman • Wolfe D. Goodman • Kenneth Goodwin • Martin Gordon • Sheldon Gordon • Deborah Gorham • Calvin Gotlieb • Phyllis Gotlieb • Hadassa Gottheil • Jack Gottheil • Gordon Gottlieb • Rabbi Daniel Komito Gottlieb • Al Green • Barbara Green • Irving Green • Malka Green • Sandy Green • Mark Grossman • Gerry Grossmann • Dr. Frederic Grunberg • David Gurin • Faige Gutherz • Dr. Frank Guttman • Dr. Herta Guttman • Irwin Guttman • Mark Guttman • David Hamovitch • Ethel Harris • Milton Harris • Barbara Haskel • Teena Hendelman • Walter Hendelman • Larry Hollander • R. Ilieff • Karen Irving • Arnold Issenman • Jack Jacobson • Lev Jaeger • Ronnee Jaeger • Aubrey Joel • Rae Joel • Donna Kagan • Hillel Kagan • Nathan Kalichman • Gerry Kane • Bernard Katz • Gilda Katz • Joan Katz • Miriam Kertzer • Harold Kirzner • Bonnie Klein • David B. Klein • Leslie M. Klein • Martin A. Klein • Suzanne Silk Klein • Michael Klein • Prof. Jacques Kornberg • Jonathan Krehm • Barbara Kunigis • Dovid Kunigis • Barbara Lampcov • Harold Lampcov • Reva Landau • Betty Lang • Eric Lang • Sherryn Lang • Miriam Laurence • Charles Law • Harriet Law • Harold Lederman • Shirley Lederman • Sharon Leiba-O'Sullivan • Rabbi Leigh Lerner • Ellen Levine • Gilbert Levine • Stephen Levine • Shirley Levinsky • Jerry Levitan • Gary Levy • Karen Levy • Kurt Levy • Lesley Levy • Carol Libman • Sidney Libman • Myrna Librach • Charlie Lior • Karen Lior • J. Stephen Lipper • Arnie Lipsey • Jennie Switzman Litvack • Israel Lyon • David Magder • Edna Magder • E. Malton • Andrea Margles • Barbara R. Markovits • Yehuda Marle • Rabbi Dow Marmur • Amnon Allan Medad • Lenn Melamed • Zelda Melamed • Eric Mendelsohn • Lillian Mendelsohn • Lillian Messinger • Jack Micay • Eric Miller • Ruth Miller • Sheila A. Miller • Michael Mindel • Elaine Minsky • Sam Minsky • Rabbi David Mivasair • Michal Mivasair • Norman Monas • Mina Moscovitch • Na'amat Vancouver Council • Issie Nachshen • Margaret Naslen • Samuel Nisenboim • Shawn Nisenboim • Alma Norman • Honey Novick • Charles Novogrodsky • Myra Novogrodsky • Dov Okouneff • Lea Okouneff • Dr. Jack J. Parlow • Ellen Passmore • Jerome D. Pauker • Roslyn Pauker • Dr. William Paul • Dr. Gary Pekeles • Dr. Shawna Perlin • Catherine Plaw • Gilbert Plaw • Joseph Podemski • Saul Podemski • Gail Posen • Eric Poznansky • Vivian Pullan • Uri Ravel • Sue Rebick • Esther Saks Rine • Shula Robin • Morrie Rohrlick • Ruth Rohrlick • Barrie Rose • Brina Rose • Carol Rose • Toby H. Rose • Soryl S. Rosenberg • Fanny Rosenblum • Dr. Norman Rosenblum • Simon Rosenblum • Henry M. Rosenthal • Carol Rosenthall • Stan Rosenthall • Corey Ross • Honey Ross • Oscar Ross • Rotenberg Family • Lipa Roth • Ruth Grunzweig Roth • Ben Rothman • L.J. Sanders • Sandra Scheinberg • Prof. Stephen Scheinberg • Lionel Schipper • George L. Scott • Herschel Segal • Leah Segal • Sol Segal • Yom-Tov Shamash • Abe Shenitzer • Allan Shiff • Helaine Shiff • Saul Ship • Viviane Ship • Mel Shipman • Shirley Shipman • Dr. G. Shochat • Barry Shockett • Bess Shockett • Martin Shulman • Reuven Shultz • Frank Shuster • Ruth Shuster • Michael Sidlofsky • Dr. Albert W. Silver • Dorete Sivkin • Rafi Skrzydlo • Elaine Slater • James Slater • Dr. Anita Small • Dr. Jack B. Sniderman • Av Sohn • Dit Sohn • Randi Sokolsky • Herbert Solway • Dr. S. Sourkes • Dr. T. Sourkes • Liliane Spector • Stephen A. State • David Steinberg • Beverley Stern • Kay Stockholder • Gloria Strom • Harold M. Strom • Jacqueline Swartz • Herb Taller • Ida Taller • Miriam Tarder • Elaine Waddington • Edward J. Waitzer • Arieh Waldman • Vallry Waldman • Dr. Barry Walfish • Sam Warner • Paul Weinberg • Judith R. Weisman • Rabbi Dr. David Weiss • Murray Winkler • Jack Wolofsky • Kay Wolofsky • Frances Yalonetsky • Harvey Yalonetsky • Carole Yellin • Beryl Zackon • Ed Zackon • Dr. Joseph Zatzman • Joel Zelikovitz • Judi Caplan Zelikovitz • Prof. Fred Zemans • Rabbi Irwin A. Zeplowitz • Debby Zweig • Helen Zwig • Walter Zwig

This ad is sponsored by Canadian Friends of Peace Now. Copies have been sent to both Prime Minister Netanyahu and President Arafat. For further information call 905-764-3997 or fax 905-764-3408.

Israel & the Jewish World

Barak apologizes for party's treatment of Sephardim

By HERB KEINON
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Labor party leader Ehud Barak seemed the uncertain groom on Sunday, as he again extended his hand in an offer of union to a long sought-after but reluctant bride — the country's Sephardim.

For the second time in four days, Barak — speaking in Netivot to a special session of the Labor party convention — apologized in the name of the party for indignities caused to the Sephardim during the early years of the state.

This time he answered directly those critics who questioned his sincerity.

"There was a never a government in the history of the state that did more for the poor neighborhoods or the development towns then the government of Yitzhak Rabin and Shimon Peres," said Barak.

Despite that, he said, 85 percent of the votes cast in Netivot in last year's election went to Netanyahu, and only 11 percent went to Peres.

"What does this say? It says that actions are not enough when there's a deep emotional divide that reaches down into the stomach and into the chambers of the heart. Without the ability to touch this, talk about it, discuss it and tell the truth, there is no way to move forward, even with all the best actions."

Ehud Barak

Barak told the delegates that he's been saying this for months, even before his election as party chair in June, but only now is it coming to the attention of the media.

"An honest look at the past will give us the strength to link arms and move forward in the future," he said.

Barak's apology was similar to what he had already said except that this time he stressed the positive aspects of the early days of the state — apparently internalizing criticism that he had focused too much on the "sins" without due appreciation of what was achieved.

"We are all proud of the Labor movement's great achievements in building the yishuv, establishing the state, ingathering the exiles, and building up the people of Israel in the Land of Israel. This is a great achievement, fills us with pride and could not have happened without the activities of thousands of veterans.

"In the process, complete communities were uprooted, and were directed to development towns, moshavim and tent cities. Tradition was broken. The internal fabric of the community and the family was broken, and caused real suffering that remains in the hearts of people and their children and even their grandchildren," Barak said.

"We know it was done unintentionally, but suffering was caused. And it is in identification with the suffering and the pain, and those who carry it, that I ask forgiveness in my name and in the name of the Labor party."

The hall emptied out after Barak's speech, and only filled up again partially when Shimon Peres took the podium, amid anticipation that he would take issue with Barak's recent pronouncements. He didn't.

At the very outset of his speech, Peres said, "I didn't come here to scuttle the attempt to get back into the government or back on the path of peace.

"But with that," he said, "I want to do a personal reckoning."

His personal reckoning was to speak of the achievements of the state over the past 50 years, and included his recollections of what Ashdod — which was established together with Netivot in 1956 — was like back then, and what it is today.

Peres, in his 15-minute address, neither apologized nor related to Barak's apology.

But Yehuda Aloush, a community activist from Beersheba, held up a sign at the entrance to the hall that read "Barak, we forgive you."

Aloush said "It doesn't matter if you're saying these things because you need our votes, because in the final analysis, someone who says he needs you is also saying you are equal."

700,000 Israelis strike to protest gov't policy

By GIL SEDAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM — Some 700,000 Israelis went on strike for eight hours last Sunday to protest privatization plans and pension cuts. The action was called for by the Histadrut Trade Union.

Israel's National Labor Court gave permission for the strike, which was called after negotiations between Histadrut and Finance Ministry officials failed to reach an agreement on a dispute over pension plans.

Too costly to finance

The previous Labor government had approved a pension plan some three weeks before last year's national election, but the current government has maintained that it cannot finance a plan that would cost more than $570 million annually over the next 20 years.

Histadrut officials said the strike was also called to protest the government's ongoing privatization process.

The strike paralyzed all major public services, closing down Israeli schools, Ben-Gurion Airport, banks and utilities.

More than one million students enjoyed an unexpected holiday, but like other Israelis, they were forced to deal with unpleasant odors, because garbage workers were also on strike.

After the strike ended, Histadrut chair Amir Peretz met again with Finance Minister Ya'acov Ne'eman. Histadrut officials then said they would give the government another chance to resolve the differences.

They said they would not consider another strike until the end of the High Holy Days.

Our best wishes for a year of good health, peace and happiness.

6:38 P.M.

SUNNYBROOK

• THE KOSHER SPECIALISTS •

Weekend Super Saver

TROPICANA PURE PREMIUM ORANGE JUICE 2.44 1.89 L.
Limit 1 per customer with minimum $5.00 purchase (excluding the Weekend Super Saver)
Available Sat., Oct. 4th & Sun., Oct. 5th only at both locations! After limit price is 2.99

FLORIDA RED OR WHITE GRAPEFRUIT 8/1.99
PRODUCT OF ONTARIO RED BELL PEPPERS .79 lb/1.74 kg
ONTARIO MacINTOSH APPLES 1.99 3 lb bag
ONTARIO CARROTS .99 3 lb bag
PRODUCT OF ONTARIO ONIONS 2.99 10 lb bag
PRODUCT OF U.S.A. SWEET POTATOES (YAMS) .79 lb/1.74 kg

KELLOGG'S CORN FLAKES 1.99 675 gr. box
GREAT CANADIAN CHEESE STICKS 2.49 227 gr
SEALTEST SOUR CREAM .99 500 ml
EMPIRE BLINTZES 2.69 pkg of 6
MOTHER'S MARGARINE 1.49 1 lb
POP-INS PUFF PASTRY DOUGH 1.49 1 lb box

KOSHER RIB ROASTS 6.99 lb/15.41 kg
KOSHERRIFIC FISH STICKS 6.49 pkg of 40
MANISCHEWITZ PREMIUM GOLD GEFILTE FISH 8.99 large 64 oz.
SUNPAC PURE APPLE JUICE .99 48 oz tin

241 WILMINGTON AVE., (Bathurst Manor Plaza)
Sun. 9-5 • Mon.-Tues. 9-7 • Wed. 9-9
Thurs. 8-9 • Fri. 8-7 • Saturday 9-6

305 FINCH AVE. W., (Finchurst Plaza)
Sun. 10-5 • Mon.-Fri. 9-9
• Saturday 9-6

Specials effective Wed., Oct. 1st to Fri., Oct. 10th.

We reserve the right to limit quantities to normal family requirements. Limited quantities on some items. We reserve the right to correct printer's errors.

CREATING THE SYMBOLS OF JEWISH GENEROSITY

DONOR WALLS • TREES OF LIFE
BRONZE & ALUMINUM PLAQUES
YAHRZEIT TABLETS • ENGRAVING
WISHING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY
SHANA TOVA! לשנה טובה
LOOKING FORWARD TO MANY MORE YEARS OF SERVICE

SHIM ENTERPRISES
(514) 738-7446
5484 ROYALMOUNT, T.M.R., QUEBEC H4P 1H7

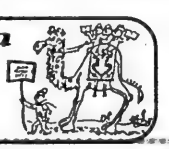
1st International MOHEL Training Course

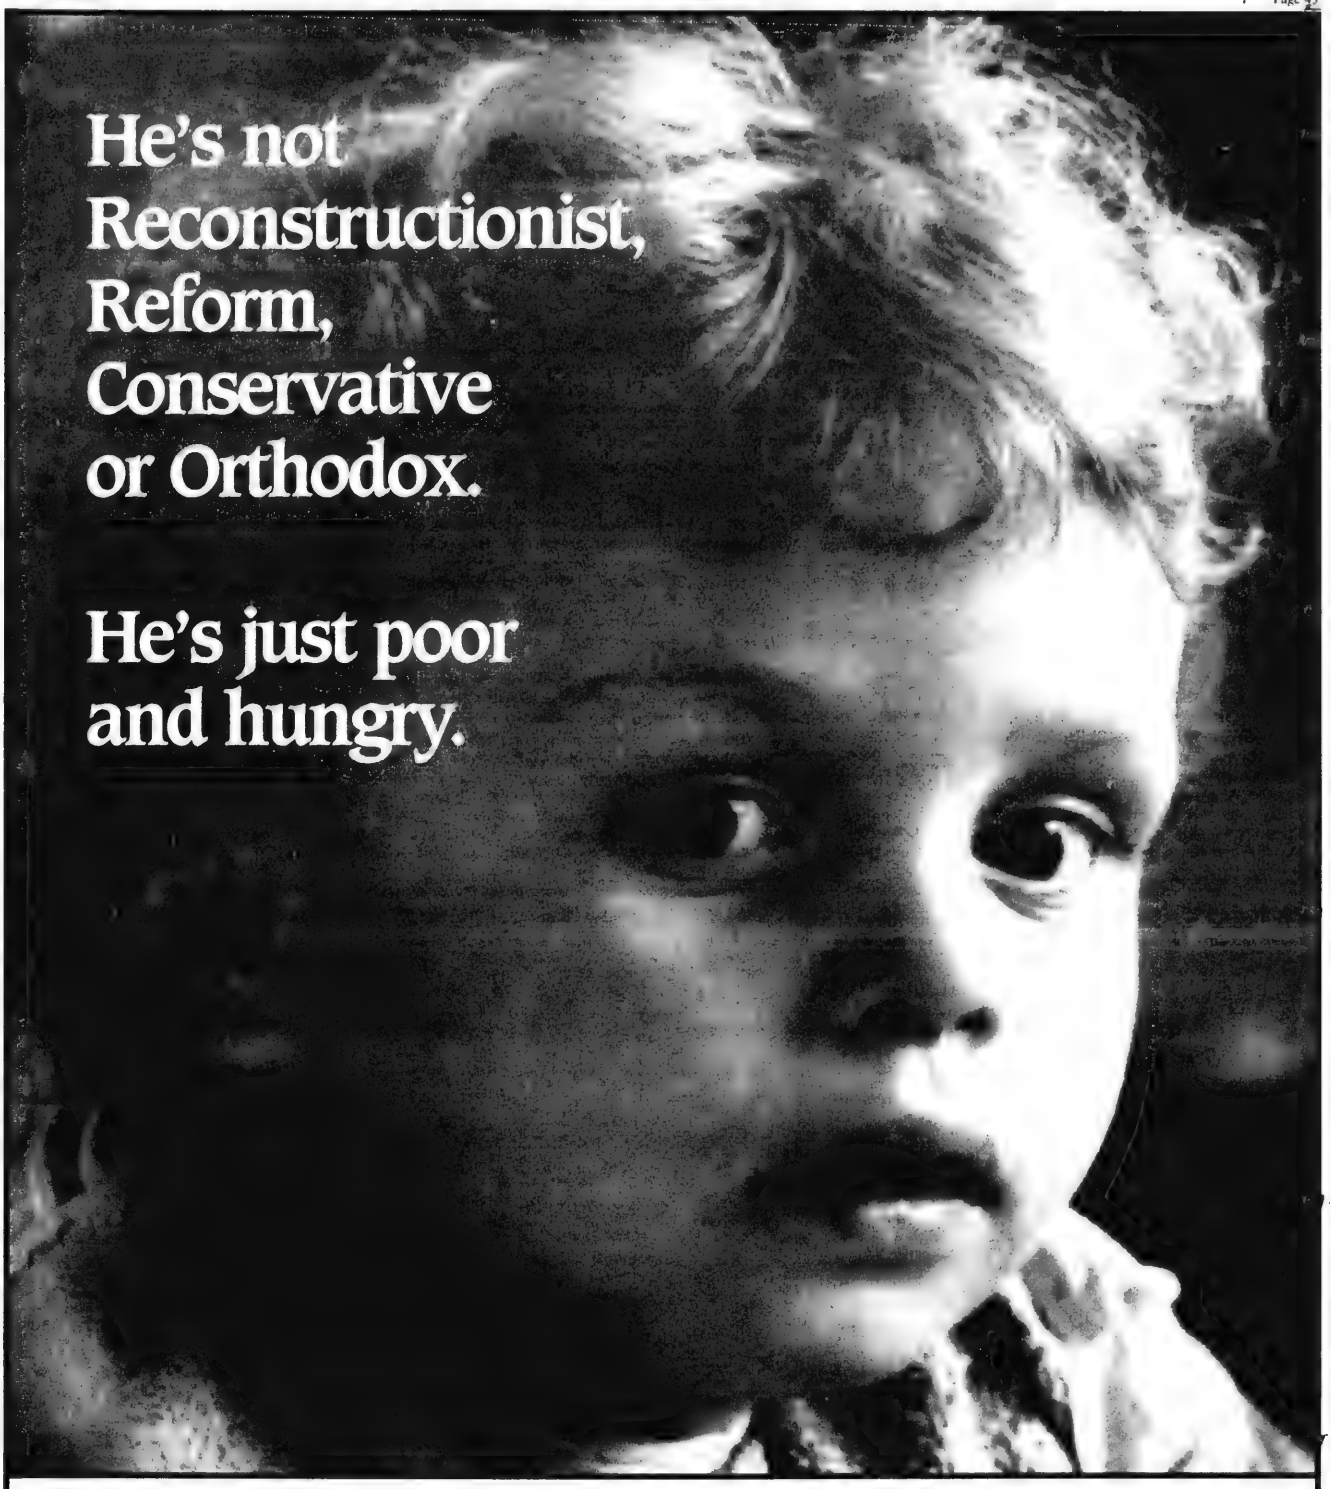
Brit Milah is one of the most fundamental precepts of the Jewish religion.

Dr. Neil Pollock is a Mohel, medical doctor and Director of the Circumcision Clinics of Vancouver. Pollock is now offering a comprehensive course encompassing the important surgical and academic aspects of Brit Milah as well as his highly effective pain control techniques. Dr. Pollock's techniques and expertise have been highlighted in several medical journals and nationally televised programs.

Limited Registration
Phone (604) 231-4444
Fax (604) 526-6545

HEBREW OR ARABIC IN ISRAEL – At Ulpan Akiva
Language Study + Cultural activities + Room and Board
For a free brochure: Ulpan Akiva POB 6086, 42160 Netanya, Israel
Tel: 972-9-8352312 Sun-Thu 9-2 Fax: 972-9-8652919
E-mail: ulpanakv@netvision.net.il http://www.ulpan-akiva.org.il





You can give him a label or you can give him help. Wherever you stand on the debate about religion in Israel, he's not the enemy. Your support for UJA/CJA Campaigns is among the most forceful statements you can make this coming year. By helping to rescue the imperiled and care for the vulnerable, you can ensure a Shana Tova for hundreds of thousands in need. With love, instead of labels.

Thank You and Shana Tova.

United Israel Appeal of Canada
Council of Jewish Federations Canada

Israel & the Jewish World

Israeli president makes plea for alleged espionage agent

By GIL SEDAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM — President Ezer Weizman is looking to succeed where Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has failed.

During a visit last Sunday to Egypt, Weizman obtained a promise from President Hosni Mubarak that he would look into "constitutional ways" to pardon an Israeli citizen recently sentenced by a Cairo court on charges of espionage.

At a joint news conference, Mubarak said he would examine whether he could pardon Azam Azam as part of general amnesty granted to other prisoners.

Weizman told reporters that extensive coverage of the case, which has strained Israeli-Egyptian relations, had not helped resolve the problem.

Netanyahu said earlier this month that he expected Mubarak to pardon the 35-year-old Druze man.

Mubarak later rebuffed the request, saying that Netanyahu had insulted the Egyptian judicial system when he called the verdict in the case "twisted."

In a seven-page letter to Netanyahu, Mubarak said that Netanyahu's high-profile efforts made it virtually impossible for Mubarak to do anything on Azam's behalf.

Azam, a mechanic at an Israeli-Egyptian textile plant in Cairo, was convicted Aug. 31 of spying for Israel and sentenced to 15 years in prison with hard labor.

Azam, who was arrested last November in Cairo, was charged with giving women's underwear soaked with invisible ink to an Egyptian national, Emad Abdel-Hamid Ismail, who then used the ink to write messages to Israel about the state of Egyptian factories.

The Cairo court sentenced Ismail to life imprisonment for being an accomplice.

Israeli officials have insisted that Azam was not a government agent.

Olmert cleared of fraud charges

By GIL SEDAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM — A court decision this week may have left Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu with a strong contender for leadership of the Likud party.

Soon after the Tel Aviv District Court cleared Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert of charges of campaign finance fraud, Israeli analysts were speculating that Olmert would begin his quest to replace Netanyahu as the Likud candidate for prime minister in the national elections scheduled for the year 2000.

Olmert, 51, has attempted to portray himself as a more hardline defender than Netanyahu of Israel's claim to Jerusalem.

A year ago, Olmert was on hand at the opening of a new entrance to an archeological tunnel near the Western Wall. The move sparked three days of Palestinian rioting that left 15 Israelis and 61 Palestinians dead.

Olmert, who was elected Jerusalem's mayor in 1993, has also been a staunch defender of Israel's right to build a new Jewish neighborhood at Har Choma in southeastern Jerusalem.

The start of that construction in March led the Palestinian Authority to suspend all negotiations with Israel.

In last Sunday's decision, the court found Olmert innocent of charges that he had engaged in financial irregularities in the 1988 election campaign, when Olmert was treasurer of the Likud party.

Olmert said his only mistake was that he signed financial reports without double-checking them.

The Wexner Foundation

Proudly Announces Its Tenth Class of Graduate Fellows

Fellow	Graduate Program	Career Area
Jeremy Bandler	Brandeis University	Jewish Communal Service
Mara Benjamin	Stanford University	Judaic Studies
Marla Berkowitz	Jewish Theological Seminary	Jewish Education
Beth Finger	J.T.S./Columbia University	Jewish Communal Service
Michelle Fisher	Jewish Theological Seminary	Rabbinate
John Fishman	Hebrew Union College–JIR	Rabbinate
Laura Gold	Jewish Theological Seminary	Rabbinate
Dina Gerber Huebner	Jewish Theological Seminary	Jewish Education
Julie Stern Joseph	Yeshiva University, Revel/Drisha	Jewish Education
Jon Levisohn	Stanford University	Jewish Education
Regina Lewald	Hebrew Union College–JIR	Jewish Education
Rafi Rone	Columbia University	Jewish Communal Service
Joanna Samuels	Jewish Theological Seminary	Rabbinate
Lisa Schlaff	New York University/Drisha	Jewish Education
Elisheva Septimus	Harvard University	Judaic Studies
Jennifer Sherling	Hebrew Union College–JIR	Rabbinate
Jan Uhrbach	Jewish Theological Seminary	Rabbinate
Amy Zabb	Columbia University	Jewish Communal Service
Chaim Zakheim	Yeshiva University–RIETS	Rabbinate

The Wexner Foundation was created by Leslie H. Wexner, the founder and chairman of The Limited Inc., and his mother, Mrs. Bella Wexner. The Foundation is committed to the recruitment and enhancement of Jewish leadership.

The Wexner Graduate Fellowship Program is designed to encourage the most promising and talented Jewish men and women to pursue full-time graduate studies leading to careers in professional Jewish leadership. The program provides full academic tuition, generous living stipends and annual Foundation-sponsored institutes and learning experiences. Fellowships are awarded to outstanding candidates who demonstrate the potential to assume major leadership positions in the fields of Jewish Education, Jewish Communal Service, the Rabbinate, the Cantorate and Jewish Studies.

The Wexner Foundation welcomes inquiries about its fellowship program as well as about career opportunities in professional Jewish leadership. For more information, please write to:

The Wexner Foundation Graduate Fellowship Program
158 West Main Street, P.O. Box 668, New Albany, Ohio 43054

THE NATIONAL ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN MOHALIM/OT (NOAM)
takes pleasure in announcing that the following of its members are available to perform Berit Mila

STEVEN BLACK, M.D.	Mississauga	(416) 676-4200
BARRY S. BORDEN, M.D.	Toronto	(416) 494-7442
ELIE CASS, M.D.	Toronto	(416) 966-2277
STUART M. EIGER, M.D.	Toronto	(416) 621-2220
ANTHONY MacFARLANE, M.D.	Hamilton	(905) 525-9430
RHONDA WILANSKY, M.D.	Toronto	(905) 278-4606
MICHAEL ZAJDMAN, M.D.	Mississauga	(905) 569-9798

NOAM extends its best wishes for a HAPPY ROSH HASHANAH

A Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $5.00 per month.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa or Mastercard before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please call Janice at 416-391-1836, allowing a minimum of two weeks notice.

No government has the right to decide how someone should lead a Jewish life.

Not even the Israeli Government.

Until a few years ago, there were several governments that still put restrictions on how their Jewish citizens could lead a Jewish life. Today, only one government issues such decrees. The Israeli Government.

Although religious freedom is flourishing throughout the world, the government of Israel still recognizes only one form of Judaism. Orthodoxy. The State recognizes only those marriages and conversions in Israel that are performed by Orthodox rabbis. Conservative and Reform rabbis in Israel, whose Judaism represents the vast majority of world Jewry, have no legal right to officiate in these capacities.

And now, the religious parties in Israel are demanding new laws to further limit the religious freedoms of non-Orthodox Jews in Israel. Their goal is to overturn key Supreme Court decisions that had begun to open the way for diverse expressions of Judaism in the Jewish State. Laws like these will only encourage Israel's religious extremists, alienate hundreds of thousands of Israelis from Judaism, and drive a wedge between Diaspora Jews and Israel.

Some religious extremists are already taking matters into their own hands, in ways that desecrate Jewish tradition. On Shavuot and again on Tisha B'Av, hundreds of Reform and Conservative Jews, including many North Americans, were violently evicted from the Western Wall plaza in the midst of prayer. The "provocation?" Men and women were praying together, contrary to Orthodox ritual.

Such actions poison Judaism for Israel's non-Orthodox majority. They also strike at the core of fundamental civil rights upon which democracy is based. They challenge basic freedoms, while forcing Israelis to choose between submitting to Orthodox authority or turning their backs on Judaism altogether.

The struggle for religious freedom in Israel is an uphill battle, but if you care about its outcome, then you should know about the New Israel Fund. The New Israel Fund is a partnership between Israel and the Diaspora. In the 18 years since the Fund was established, it has become the preeminent source of support for democracy, pluralism, tolerance, and social justice in Israel. For further information on these issues, please contact us for our free brochure, "The Struggle for Pluralism and Religious Freedom."

Call 416-781-4322 or e-mail us at info@nif.org.

New Israel Fund
הקרן החדשה לישראל

Happy New Year
to all our customers
& friends
שנה טובה
WINNERS

SHANA TOVA

Best wishes to our friends and customers for a happy, healthy & prosperous
NEW YEAR

Samuelsohn
The way to say fine tailoring

windsor
THE SALT OF THE EARTH®

SHANA TOVA

Our very best wishes for Health & Happiness

THE CANADIAN SALT COMPANY, LTD.
TEL.: (514) 630-0900

Arafat under attack

By SHELDON KIRSHNER

These are not the best of times for Yasser Arafat, president of the Palestinian Authority (PA) and chairman of the PLO.

Mideast Analysis

Three and a half years after arriving in the Gaza Strip from exile in Tunisia to preside over the fortunes of the newly created Palestinian autonomous areas, Arafat's administration is under attack. Critics, including Palestinians, describe his regime as corrupt, arbitrary, brutal and inefficient, a dictatorship in the making despite the trappings of a democratic system.

In addition to his domestic woes, Arafat faces a grave external challenge. Due to his dilatory approach in combatting terrorism carried out by Islamic fundamentalist forces opposed to the Oslo peace process, his relations with Israel and the United States have sharply deteriorated, compounding his problems at home.

With the signing of the Declaration of Principles four years ago last month, Palestinians in Gaza and the West Bank could look forward to a new era of self-determination and freedom from Israeli military occupation.

But the idyll did not last long. In November 1994, six months after Arafat's triumphal arrival in Gaza, PA policemen opened fire on Islamic militants, killing 14 in an incident which shocked Palestinian sensibilities.

It has not gotten much better since then. The PA, bolstered by an array of intimidating security forces directly answerable to Arafat, has closed dissenting newspapers arbitrarily, detained journalists and human rights activists without charges and broken a teachers' strike. And 14 Palestinians have died in PA prisons, presumably having been tortured to death.

Corruption is rampant. In May, a PA committee reported that $326 million (US) of the PA's $800 million 1996 budget had been squandered through graft and mismanagement. This revelation prompted the democratically elected legislative council to call on Arafat to replace his tainted cabinet of political appointees with squeaky clean technocrats. There have been several resignations, but Arafat, who has managed to remain above the fray, has not instituted sweeping reforms.

As well, a rift has developed between the functionaries who accompanied Arafat to the autonomous territories and the mass of ordinary Palestinians who never left. The latter accuse the former of conspicuous consumption and of loose living at a time when per-capita income has declined and unemployment has risen. Such is the parlous state of the economy that the PA's deputy industry minister recently acknowledged that the Palestinians are worse off now than they were under Israeli rule.

The grim situation has been greatly exacerbated by Israeli actions taken in response to suicide bombings: closures, which cut off Palestinians from their jobs in Israel, and economic sanctions.

The spectre of terrorism, combined with Israel's unilateral building program in eastern Jerusalem and its expansion of settlements in the territories, has sown mutual mistrust and a crisis of confidence between Arafat and Benjamin Netanyahu. This, in turn, has led to a virtual collapse of the peace process, the only route through which the Palestinians can attain a real measure of sovereignty and independence.

As the impasse has deepened, the United States has strongly urged Arafat to deal with terrorism once and for all, lest U.S. assistance be severed. As a result of suicide bombings, there has been an upsurge of congressional support for suspending aid to the PA. The Middle East Peace Facilitation Act, which enables the United States to channel funds to the PA, recently expired, and its chances of renewal are slim if Arafat fails to crack down on terrorism.

Arafat has his work cut out.

Holt Renfrew extends its warmest wishes for a happy New Year
to all our Jewish friends

HOLT RENFREW

Quebec • Montreal • Ottawa • Toronto
Winnipeg • Calgary • Edmonton • Vancouver

The Week in Israel

Sept. 22

• Two staff members of the Israeli Embassy in Jordan were shot and slightly injured near the embassy. Several arrests were made.

• A businessman, Ya'acov Schwartz, 63, who disappeared earlier in the month, admitted that he had fabricated the story of his kidnapping.

• Yad Mordechai, a kibbutz in southern Israel has developed a bumblebee 15 times the usual size. The super bee will be used for pollinating crops.

Sept. 23

• Czech President Vaclav Havel arrived in Israel on an official visit aimed at deepening trade ties between the two countries.

• Former Israeli prime minister Shimon Peres announced the establishment of a peace centre in his name which will work to advance regional cooperation and peace efforts.

Sept. 24

• Israel security forces identified four out of the five terrorists who were believed to have carried out the two suicide bombings in Jerusalem earlier in the month.

Sept. 25

• Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu pledged to build 300 new homes in Efrat, one of the communities in Gush Etzion founded immediately after the Six Day War. Palestinian leaders warned that the announcement could trigger more suicide bomb attacks.

• Media reported that joint Israeli, Turkish and American naval exercises scheduled to take place in November have been postponed at Israel's request.

Sept. 26

• The committee investigating the failed commando raid in Lebanon that led to the deaths of 12 soldiers said that it would summon six naval officers for second questioning. The officers received warning letters that focused on the planning of the raid.

With files from the JTA

ACTION PLAN NEGEV נגב של צמיחה

Imagination turns into reality

Action Plan Negev is a mammoth plan to green the Negev.

Plant Trees in the Jubilee Forest in honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary.

As part of this incredible project and in honour of Israel's significant milestone link your family members with Jews around the world to green the desert.

Change the desert horizon - Fight desertification*
Create environmental greening*

Planting a tree is a symbol of the "Circle of Life"
A sapling grows roots and branches and multiplies into a forest.
What can be a more tangible expression of who we are?

*From all of us at the Jewish National Fund of Canada

Shana Tova

Naomi Frankenburg
Naomi Frankenburg
National President

Avner Regev
Executive Vice-President

Call your local JNF office and join the 50th Anniversary Club today !!!

NATIONAL OFFICE Tel: 514-934-0313	MONTREAL Tel: 514-934-0313	HAMILTON Tel: 905-527-5516	LONDON Tel: 519-432-2139	WINNIPEG Tel: 204-947-0207	CALGARY Tel: 403-255-0295
HALIFAX Tel: 902-422-7491	TORONTO Tel: 416-638-7200	OTTAWA Tel: 613-789-9047	WINDSOR Tel: 519-969-8733	EDMONTON Tel: 403-481-7881	VANCOUVER Tel: 604-257-5155

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Your meaningful connection to a changing Israel

Mark a special occasion or holiday with

CARDS AND CERTIFICATES

that help fund scholarships, research and academic excellence.

Montreal:	514-932-2133
Toronto:	416-485-8000
Winnipeg:	204-942-3085
Calgary:	403-640-2250
Vancouver:	604-257-5133

All other locations please call:
1-888-HEBREWU (432-7398)

The Labour Zionist Alliance of Canada
Yitzhak Rabin Memorial Conference:
Creating a Progressive Zionist Future

You are cordially invited to attend a

Dinner Forum

with

J. J. Goldberg
Author, Jewish Power Inside the American Jewish Establishment

"The Challenge of Jewish Education"

Saturday, October 18th, 1997 at 8:00 p.m.

Borochov Cultural Centre
272 Codsell Avenue
(Sheppard W. & Wilson Heights)

Couvert: $25.00 R.S.V.P. before October 9th
For more information please call: (416) 630-9444

ROOTS

Wishing all our customers and friends a very Happy and Healthy New Year

לשנה טובה תכתבו

No talks held with Hezbollah

[Cont'd. from pg. 1]

CJN: It seems that the Arabs think that if they protest loudly and long enough you will always capitulate. Is there a danger of setting a precedent?

NETANYAHU: There is indeed such a danger. We are trying to work out something else that will satisfy our policies and avoid that predicament.

CJN: Is there any progress in the negotiations to have the Hezbollah return the bodies of IDF soldiers?

NETANYAHU: Not yet. We are not, by the way, negotiating with Hezbollah. We are dealing with the Lebanese government. We see them as the responsible party in Lebanon. I have been talking to several leaders including President Chirac and Madeleine Albright on this matter and I hope that there will be a satisfactory solution that means bringing the body of Sgt. Maj. Itamar Iliya (one of the 11 commandos killed in an abortive raid into Lebanon on Sept. 5) for a decent burial in Israel.

We also have good reason to believe that Ron Arad is alive. We have a good basis to believe that. Also as far as the other MiAs are concerned, we are not considering anything other that they are living. We are constantly seeking new information in all the cases.

CJN: In your speech following your election victory, you said that you saw yourself as the prime minister of all the people. Today, Israeli society is very fragmented across political, religious and social lines. Do you still see yourself as the prime minister of all the people?

NETANYAHU: I certainly view myself as the prime minister of the citizens of all of Israel. It is true that some on the left cannot forgive me for winning the election and they refuse to accept the democratic decision of the people of Israel. But that is their problem more than mine. I view this as unfortunate because I always regarded the democratically elected government as my government, even when I was in opposition or just a plain citizen. That is the standard I expect from everyone else. Indeed the standard of recrimination in Israeli society is high, too high, and we tend to focus on the things that divide us rather than the things that unite us across the board. I don't think that the divisions between secular and religious Jews, Ashkenazim and Sephardim, and between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, as the proverbial division has it, are nearly as great as the differences between us and the neighborhood we live in.

CJN: Can we ever have a normal peace with security with our Arab neighbors?

NETANYAHU: We should not delude ourselves as to the nature of the peace — it cannot be a western-style peace, because we are not facing western-style societies or democracies. They are not regimes that are daily and continually accountable to the population. If we understood that, we would foster greater unity among ourselves, because the expectations of some of us for peace are unrealistic. As a result, we vent our frustration on each other.

We must not give up hope. I believe that peace with security is achievable, but only if we insist on our right not to be killed; not to make impossible concessions as opposed to realistic ones for the sake of not being killed.

We have every right to expect our partners for peace to police their own areas against terrorism. That was the crux of the deal signed by the late Yitzhak Rabin and Arafat, and it has not been kept. The only way it will be kept is if we insist on it being kept. I think that these are principles we can unite by. With persistence and solidarity, we can achieve most of our goals. Weakened and divided we will achieve nothing.

CJN: If it is not going to be a western-style peace what kind of peace will it be?

NETANYAHU: I have just read a brilliant book by Prof. Samuel Huntingdon called The Clash of Civilizations. He describes the emergence of the post Cold War world into a world that has seven or eight main civilizations. We are clearly part of the western civilization, of course, enthused by our own unique Jewish values and Jewish heritage.

Most of the problems with our neighbors derive from deep cultural differences and we are the meeting ground of these two cultures — the western culture and the Muslim culture. We seem to think that if we will do only this, that we will have a western type of peace. We seem to blame one another for the structural problems of making peace.

One of the things we should do is tailor down our expectations of what peace can be like. For example, we have had peace for over 20 years with Egypt. It is not a western-style peace — it is a cold peace — a great deal better than a hot war. It is not the full- fledged exchanges that we dreamed about when we signed the Camp David accords.

I don't think the normalization is going to provide the rosy future we all talk about. Normalization between us and our Arab neighbors is always reversible. Witness what has happened with Azzam Azzam. It is reversible, malleable and fragile. One thing that has been kept in our peace agreement with Egypt is our durable security agreements; they have been the foundation of the peace agreement between the two countries. Therefore, I believe it is possible to achieve with our other neighbors as well, agreements that are built on solid security foundations.

CJN: How do you see Iran and Iraq fitting into this equation of peace and normalization.

NETANYAHU: Iran and Iraq are two radical regimes who have been feverishly trying to arm themselves over the last decade with ballistic missiles and unconventional warheads, with the aim of destroying us. A final peace settlement with the Palestinians and possibly with the Syrians and by extension the Lebanese as well, will not materially effect the danger that Iran poses to Israel; it also will not sway Iraq to become less radical. Indeed, if Iran acquires ballistic missiles with the unimpeded help of Russian technology, this will create a change in the power balance of the Middle East; it will begin to erode the existing and new peace agreements that we will sign.

Just remember how certain small countries that are friendly to Israel gravitated to Saddam Hussein's orbit when he loomed large before he was defeated in the Gulf War. Think of what enormous power and sway Iran would have so that it would affect countries that have signed peace treaties with us and those that will in the future. It will affect Hamas and Hezbollah and will embolden them.

This is something that has to be stopped now. We have turned to the United States to help us, to persuade the Russians to stop this flow of technology, which we believe is a danger to Russia as well. I think that these are realistic assessments of what the situation is like. Peace is achievable with our neighbors. I think it would be a durable peace. It will not be a peace of western Europe — we are not in western Europe.

The interview with Prime Minister Netanyahu will continue in next week's issue.

THE HOLIDAYS ARE HERE!
Call your family and friends in
ISRAEL
FOR 57¢ per MIN.
with Audioguide's PREPAID CALLING CARDS
Call Israel from anywhere in Canada and the U.S.
Ask for Audioguides prepaid calling cards at most Toronto Judaica stores or call
TORONTO (416) 636-3111
MONTREAL (514) 282-4171

The News in Brief

Orthodox Unite Against Pluralism

NEW YORK — In their strongest and most unified public stance to date about religious pluralism and Jewish unity, four major American Orthodox organizations have issued a joint High Holiday statement condemning those who have challenged Israel's religious status quo.

In the statement titled A Heartfelt Message to our Fellow Jews, the four groups — Agudath Israel of America, the National Council of Young Israel, the Rabbinical Council of America and the Orthodox Union — confirm their commitment to a single halachic standard in Israel and implore all Jews "to shun unworthy political posturing, as well as political, economic and social pressure."

Lithuanian Jews Compensation

MOSCOW — A German province is planning to compensate and lobby for Lithuania's Holocaust survivors.

The Brandenburg parliament has already earmarked several thousand dollars to compensate Jews living in the Baltic nation, and it intends to ask the German government to further compensate these survivors, according to Herbert Knoblich, chair of the province's parliament.

Knoblich made the comments in a meeting with the leadership of Lithuania's Jewish community in Vilnius, the country's capital.

Vandals Deface Tombstones

NEW YORK — Community leaders and elected officials are taking steps to improve security at a Jewish cemetery and counter bias on New York's Staten Island.

Some 150 headstones were overturned and about seven were defaced with swastikas between the evening of Sept. 13 and the afternoon of Sept. 14. It was the seventh apparent bias attack on the grounds since June, according to cemetery superintendent Raphael Bochbot.

New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani has issued a $10,000 reward for information leading to an arrest.

Five Million Tourists Expected in Year 2000

JERUSALEM — Although Pope John Paul II has said that celebrations for the year 2000 are to take place simultaneously in Rome and the Holy Land, Israel has been unable to obtain any schedule of events or plans for the year from the Roman Catholics, said tourism ministry Director-General David Litvak.

Litvak said that Israel had been in contact with many Christian bodies, including Protestants from the U.S. Bible belt and Russian Orthodox from the former Soviet Union. He added that despite the problems, the Roman Catholics were nonetheless the most organized of the Christian bodies involved in preparing for the Christian jubilee year, during which hundreds of thousands of Christian pilgrims are expected.

He said he hoped that as many as five million visitors would come during the year, compared to the present annual influx of about 2.5 million. If that number did come, he added, the country would be able to accommodate them.

As a Jewish state, Israel did not want to dictate to the Christians how they should organize their celebration, Litvak said. At the same time, he added, it was necessary to identify the bottlenecks and prepare for them so that the pilgrims would indeed be able to have a meaningful visit.

Peres Creating New Peace Institute

JERUSALEM — Former Prime Minister Shimon Peres has announced the creation of an institute aimed at advancing regional peace efforts.

The Peres Peace Centre, which will be inaugurated next month, plans to initiate regional projects focusing on economic, technological and educational cooperation.

The centre will work to identify strategies for regional agricultural development, and it plans to host dialogues between Israelis and Arabs.

Israelis Return Home From Jericho

JERUSALEM — Ten homeless families have returned to Israel after spending nearly a month in Jericho, where they had sought — and received — asylum from the Palestinian Authority.

The families had sought refuge in the Palestinian self-rule area after being evicted from the Jewish Agency's absorption centre in Mevasseret Zion, where they had illegally moved in with other families. Palestinian Preventive Security Service head Jibril Rajoub had welcomed them, and set the families up in a Jericho hotel.

However, the arrangement seemed unsuitable to Gesher Knesset member Maxim Levy, who, in the reconciliatory spirit of the upcoming holidays, urged the families to return to Israel.

Sunkist®

Delicious, Kosher U

100% Pure, Not - From - Concentrate Premium Juices

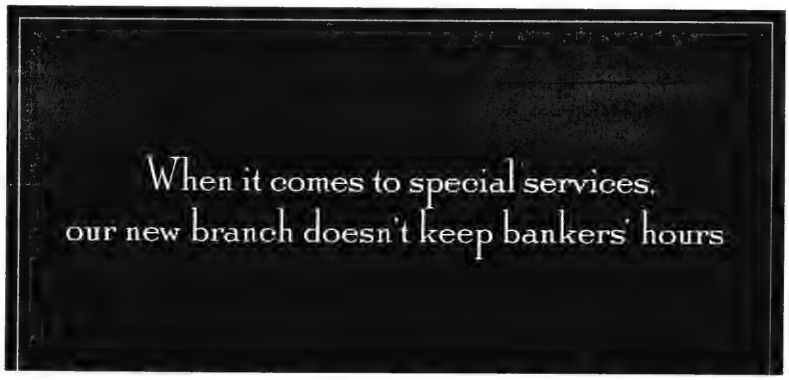
Shana Tova

Our very best wishes for the New Year

Sunkist
100% Pure, Not - From - Concentrate Premium Juices

Available at your favorite supermarket

Sunkist is a registered trademark of Sunkist Growers Inc.



Discover one of Jerusalem's treasures – the brand new personal service branch of the Bank of Jerusalem. It's located just minutes from your hotel.

Here you will discover an English speaking world of quality service, professionalism and absolute discretion.

A conversation with one of our financial services experts will demonstrate just how different the Bank of Jerusalem is. And why our 35 year reputation stands behind every transaction in tax-free investments and dollar mortgages (not to mention your financial security).

Our new personal service branch is ready to serve you Sunday to Thursday from 8:30AM to 6:00PM

Because, when it comes to personal service, ordinary bankers hours just won't do.

I look forward to greeting you personally.

Stuart Hershkowitz
Head of International Division

BANK OF JERUSALEM
A Capital Bank

BANK OF JERUSALEM LTD. INTERNATIONAL DIVISION
18 KEREN HAYESOD STREET • JERUSALEM 92149 • P 972-2-5671761 • F 972-2-5671601

The Year 5757 in Review

A difficult year for Israel...

Tishrei (Sept./Oct.)

EVENTS

• Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, Palestinian Authority (PA) Chairman Yasser Arafat, Jordan's King Hussein and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak meet in Washington at President Bill Clinton's invitation to resume peace negotiations.

• The opening of an exit of the Western Wall Tunnel into the Muslim Quarter of the Old City of Jerusalem triggers days of violent clashes in which dozens are killed and hundreds are wounded.

• Hundreds of Palestinian police and armed demonstrators storm Joseph's Tomb, killing six Israeli soldiers and wounding eight.

• The 137-year-old Dohany Street Synagogue in Hungary, the largest synagogue in Europe, reopens after extensive renovations.

• Holocaust survivors in New York file a $20-billion (US) class action lawsuit, claiming Swiss banks are refusing to return money and other assets belonging to victims.

PEOPLE

• Canadian Jewish filmmakers Simcha Jacobovici and Elliot Halpern win an Emmy Award for "outstanding investigative journalism" for their documentary, The Plague Monkeys.

• Jim Keegstra is fined $3,000 and ordered to perform 200 hours of community service as punishment for promoting hatred against Jews. Charges against him were laid in 1984.

• David Sultan, Israel's new ambassador to Canada, arrives in Ottawa.

• Nava Mizrachi, 17, of Vancouver, is elected international president of B'nai Brith Girls of B'nai Brith Youth Organization, the world's largest international Jewish youth organization.

• Rabbi Raphael Soloveitchik, leader of the Brisk community of Lithuanian Haredim, dies at age 70.

Cheshvan (Oct./Nov.)

EVENTS

• Israel and the world Jewish community mark the first yahrzeit of Yitzhak Rabin.

• Israel's High Court of Justice rules that women are entitled to equal worship at the Western Wall, allowing the group Women of the Wall to read from the Torah and wear tallitot while praying there.

• The Hungarian parliament approves a government plan to partially compensate Hungarian Jews for property confiscated during the Holocaust.

• Prime Minister Netanyahu calls for the resumption of peace talks with Syria and warns them against any further attacks.

PEOPLE

• Chen Ivri, chargé d'affaires, becomes counsellor at the Israeli Embassy in Ottawa on Oct. 17.

Kislev (Nov./Dec.)

• Canada's Supreme Court rules against public funding of Jewish day schools in Ontario after a 12-year fight by the Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC).

• The High Court of Justice of Israel rules that rabbinical courts do not have the right to impose sanctions on religious Jews who refuse to accept the rulings of civil courts.

• The World Jewish Congress (WJC) plans a protest against the government of Poland regarding the Polish policy on restitution of properties of Holocaust victims.

The wreckage of the helicopter crash at Shaar Yishuv.

• An Ethiopian airliner crashes into the Indian Ocean after being hijacked; seven Israelis are reported missing.

• Israel and Turkey sign an accord to continue defence cooperation in 1997.

• The Chesed Avot Charity Centre, the largest Jewish relief centre for Holocaust survivors in the former Soviet Union, opens with proceeds from restituted property in Germany.

PEOPLE

• Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert is indicted for fraud offenses pertaining to the 1988 Knesset elections.

• Steve Rambam, an American investigator who interviewed 62 alleged Nazi war criminals living in Canada, plans to give his list to the CJC, who will forward it to Canadian law enforcement officials.

• Peter Bronfman, 67, dies the day before he is to be presented with the Order of Canada for patronage of the arts, charities, hospitals and universities in Toronto and Montreal. The award is presented posthumously.

• Irit Waidergorn is appointed Israeli consul to Toronto and Western Canada.

Tevet (Dec./Jan.)

EVENTS

• Montreal's Orthodox Jews get their own emergency medical response service, Hatzoloh.

• IDF reveals that a special forces unit known as Egoz has been operating against Hezbollah guerrillas in southern Lebanon for over a year.

• The Canada-Israel Free Trade Agreement (CIFTA) is passed by Parliament. It takes effect on Jan. 1, 1997.

• The International Committee of the Red Cross releases documents from World War II showing they knew about the persecution of Jews in Nazi death camps, but claimed they didn't know what action to take.

PEOPLE

• Etta Tzur and her 12-year-old son Ephraim are killed in an ambush by three Palestinian terrorists near their home in Beit El. Her husband and her four daughters are wounded in the attack that comes on the 28th anniversary of the founding of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP).

• Rabbi M. Mitchell Serels, director of the Sephardi community programs at Yeshiva University, is the first rabbi to be knighted by Spain's King Juan Carlos I.

• Prof. Karl Skorecki, senior nephrologist at Rambam Hospital in Haifa, announces the results of a study showing that Jews of the priestly tribe (kohanim) share a variation of the Y chromosome.

Shvat (Jan./Feb.)

EVENTS

• Natan Sharansky, Israel's minister of industry and trade, visits Moscow for the first time since he was freed from a Russian jail in 1986.

• Two bombs explode near Tel Aviv's central bus station, injuring at least 13 people. No one claims responsibility.

• Israel signs an accord establishing IDF redeployment from Hebron and the next phases of redeployment from the West Bank. In three instalments, Israel will hand over all of Judea and Samaria, excluding the desert area. Arafat declares Hebron liberated and announces that Israel has made peace with the Palestinians and Palestinians should not confront Hebron's Jews.

• Israel's population hits 5.764 million, 80.8 percent Jewish and 14.6 percent Muslim.

• Switzerland agrees to establish a fund to compensate Holocaust victims and their heirs for assets that disappeared into the Swiss banking system during the war.

• Seventy-three Israeli soldiers were killed when two helicopters in which they were being transported, collided over Shaar Yishuv in northern Israel.

PEOPLE

• Jerusalem District Court Judge Elyakim Rubinstein becomes attorney-general.

Adar I (Feb./Mar.)

EVENTS

• Israel and Mexico sign an agreement to fight drug trafficking between the two countries.

• Israel and China agree to increase their trade and economic cooperation.

• Poland's parliament approves a bill that allows its surviving Jewish communities (estimated at 3,000 to 5,000 people) to recover property lost during and after the Holocaust.

• The Lubavitch movement seeks to reclaim documents and properties in Russia that once housed Lubavitch facilities and were associated with the Lubavitcher rebbes.

• Israel breaks ground for the construction of the Jewish neighborhood of Har Choma in south-east Jerusalem, despite worldwide opposition.

• Canadian federal authorities identify the ninth and 10th suspected Nazi war criminals in Canada who will face deportation proceedings.

• Seven hundred people, mainly women, convene in New York City for the first International Conference on Orthodoxy and Feminism.

PEOPLE

• David Tenenbaum, a Detroit Jew, is accused of spying for Israel.

• Maurice Lucow, former editor of The CJN, dies at age 78.

Adar II (Mar./Apr.)

EVENTS

• Seven Israeli schoolgirls are killed and five others and their teacher wounded, when a crazed Jordanian soldier opens fire at them as they tour the Island of Peace in the Jordanian Valley.

• A suicide bomber detonates a three-kilogram bomb packed with nails and pieces of metal in the packed Apropo cafe in Tel Aviv on March 21, Purim eve, killing three women and injuring 48.

• The Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada issues a formal ruling condemning the religious practices of Conservative and Reform Judaism, claiming that under Jewish law these branches are invalid.

• The Israeli cabinet bars the legal recognition of Conservative and Reform conversions performed in Israel.

• Israel's attorney general decides not to bring charges against Prime Minister Netanyahu in connection with allegations of improper conduct in the "Bar-On affair."

PEOPLE

• Prime Minister Netanyahu visits Russia for the first time since taking office. This is also his first meeting with Russian President Boris Yeltsin.

Nissan (Apr./May)

EVENTS

• A poll reveals that most Palestinians favor bombings over the peace process.

• The Howard Johnson hotel chain comes to Israel.

• The High Court of Justice overturns the decision to close Rehov Bar Ilan to traffic during prayer times on Shabbat and holidays.

• Israel rejects Syria's offer to renew peace talks, because of the Syrian stipulation that Israel must agree beforehand to a full withdrawal from the Golan Heights.

• Two Israeli hikers, Hagit Zavitz and Liat Kastiel, are murdered in Wadi Kelt.

• Rabbi Yisrael Meir Lau, Israel's Ashkenazi chief rabbi, visits Vancouver.

PEOPLE

• Chaim Herzog, Israel's sixth president, dies in Tel Aviv. He was 79.

• Nechama Leibowitz, one of Israel's most revered teachers of Torah study, dies in Jerusalem. She was 92.

• Accused Nazi war criminal Joseph

[Cont'd on page 51]

...more terrorism and withering of peace process

[Cont'd from page 50]

Nemsila dies. Ottawa had been trying to deport him. He was 84.

Iyar (May/June)

EVENTS

• A coalition of Canadian religious leaders meets with Justice Minister Allan Rock to press for increased efforts in the pursuit of alleged Nazi war criminals.

• A combat pilot is the first Israeli chosen to train as an astronaut for a possible NASA shuttle mission.

• The trial of Wasily Bogutin, accused of war crimes in Ukraine, begins in Toronto.

Herb Gray becomes Canada's deputy prime minister.

• Sixteen Jewish federal civil servants lose their bid for paid leave to observe Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. The Canadian Federal Court of Appeal rules that the government's policy of paid time off does not discriminate against Jewish employees by not giving these days off.

• Israel's Labor party formally endorses the Palestinians' right to a state with limited sovereignty.

• The $265-million (US) fund established by banks and businesses in Switzerland for Holocaust survivors becomes operational.

• Rehov Bar-Ilan closes for 7½ hours during prayer times and is open to traffic the rest of the day without incident, after a decision by the government to close the street during prayer times on Shabbat and Jewish holidays.

• Former Israeli Justice Minister Ya'acov Ne'eman is acquitted of perjury and obstruction of justice charges.

• Farid Bashiti, an Arab real estate agent who sold land to Jews, is murdered and denied a Muslim burial after Arafat orders security forces to prevent land sales to Jews.

• Eduards Podins, 78, becomes the 11th man in Canada facing deportation for his war crimes in Latvia.

PEOPLE

• Kurt Rothschild receives the 1997 Jerusalem Prize for Jewish Education in the Diaspora.

Sivan (June/July)

EVENTS

• Violence erupts in Hebron when hundreds of Palestinians throw stones and firebombs at Israeli troops; Palestinian police do not intervene. This comes after the U.S. House of Representatives passes a resolution calling on President Clinton to reaffirm that Jerusalem must remain the undivided capital of Israel.

• The last existing children's house, a kibbutz home where all children are raised together, is closed on Kibbutz Baram.

• A thief averts a bomb attack on an Israeli beach by stealing the bag holding the bomb.

• Ehud Barak is elected leader of the Labor party.

PEOPLE

• Naomi Frankenberg is elected as president of the Jewish National Fund (JNF).

• Herb Gray is sworn in as Canada's first full-time deputy prime minister.

• Steven Rambam, who compiled a list of Nazi war criminals residing in Canada, ends his pursuit of suspected war criminals because, he says, he lacks the support of Canada's Jewish community.

Tammuz (July/Aug.)

EVENTS

• Violent clashes between Palestinian protesters and Israeli soldiers spread throughout Hebron after a Jerusalem woman distributes fliers depiciting the prophet Mohammed as a pig stomping on the Koran.

• The architecture faculty, students and alumni of University of Waterloo and Clark University in Massachusetts develop a proposal to reconstruct the state museum at Auschwitz-Birkenau.

• Italy announces it will return to Jews five sacks of valuables plundered by the Nazis. The sacks were recently discovered in a Treasury vault. In related developments, an Italian court gives reduced sentences to two former Nazis, SS Capt. Erich Priebke and SS maj. Karl Hass.

• A bridge collapses at the opening ceremonies of the 15th Maccabiah Games in Ramat Gan, Israel, killing five Australian team members and injuring over 60 other Australians and some Austrians.

• Canadian athletes bring home 80 medals from the Maccabiah games.

• Two Canadians are stabbed by a Palestinian in an attack in a sidewalk cafe in Jaffa.

Chaim Herzog passed away in Nissan.

• The Swiss Bankers Association publishes a list on the Internet and in a number of newspapers world-wide of 1,872 names linked to 1,756 dormant bank accounts from the World War II period.

• Fifteen people are killed and more than 150 wounded in a double suicide bombing in the Machane Yehuda marketplace in Jerusalem. As a result, Israel suspends peace talks with the Palestinians.

• Three people are arrested in a Brooklyn, N.Y., apartment for possessing bombs and explosives and planning an attack related to the bombings in Israel.

PEOPLE

• Ya'acov Ne'eman is appointed as finance minister by Prime Minister Netanyahu.

Nehama Leibowitz passed away in Nissan. Photo from the Jerusalem Report

• Mamertas Rolland Maciukes, 73, is named as the 12th man facing deportation from Canada for his alleged participation in war crimes in Lithuania during World War II.

• Prime Minister Netanyahu announces that he is opposed to a proposed housing project in Ras al-Amud in east Jerusalem.

• Joel Kamnitzer, 18, of Toronto, wins a silver medal at the 28th International Physics Olympiad.

Av (Aug./Sept.)

EVENTS

• Israeli police disperse a crowd of egalitarian worshippers on Tisha b'Av from the plaza of the Western Wall, prompting outrage from the group, who had a permit to be there.

• Canada's Foreign Affairs Minister Lloyd Axworthy sends a letter to Arafat, urging him to act more forcefully in combatting terrorism.

• A genetic mutation that predisposes Ashkenazi Jews to colon cancer is discovered at Johns Hopkins University in Maryland.

• Four IDF soldiers are burned to death and six others wounded when caught in the middle of a brushfire, following a gun battle in southern Lebanon.

• Israeli soldiers and Palestinian police hold a first-ever joint exercise, simulating a car-bomb attack. The IDF praises its success.

PEOPLE

• An immigration tribunal rules that Konrad Kalejs is accountable for his wartime crimes. He is ordered deported immediately and leaves Canada within hours of the judgment's being rendered.

• Roelof Vis, who immigrated to Canada in 1981, is honored by Yad Vashem as a Righteous Person Among the Nations for his activities during World War II.

• Maj. Daniel Okev, an Israeli soldier, admits to murdering two British tourists, but offers no motive for his crime.

• Ladislaus Csizsik-Csatary, an alleged Nazi war criminal, is stripped of his Canadian citizenship, paving the way for his deportation.

Elul (Sept./Oct.)

EVENTS

• Five people are killed and more than 200 injured when three suicide bombers detonate themselves in the Ben Yehuda pedestrian mall in Jerusalem.

• David Levy, Israel's foreign minister attends the opening of North America's largest Sephardi centre in Vaughan, Ontario. The 93,000-square-foot Sephardic Kehila Centre houses the Or Haemet Sephardic School, the Abir Yaacov synagogue, a banquet hall, a swimming pool, underground parking, a mikvah, offices and other amenities.

• Madeleine Albright makes her first visit to the Middle East as U.S. secretary of state. She meets with Prime Minister Netanyahu and Chairman Arafat, urging them both to make the "hard" decisions necessary to get peace talks back on track. To Netanyahu she says Israel must avoid authorizing any new settlements; to Arafat she says the Palestinian Authority must pull out all stops to fight terror.

• A botched raid into south Lebanon by an elite squad of Israeli navy seal commandos leaves 11 dead and one missing, presumed to be dead. The IDF immediately sets up an inquiry into the failed raid.

• Calls are renewed for Israel to investigate allegations that babies from Yemenite immigrants were stolen in the late '40s and early '50s and given to survivors of the Shoah. The calls were prompted after a grave of an infant was opened and found to be empty.

• The 100th anniversary of the modern Zionist movement is celebrated in Basel, Switzerland, in the hotel where Theodor Herzl convened the founding conference.

• Archeologists near Caesarea find ruins of rooms probably used by the Roman secret police for torture of their prisoners.

PEOPLE

• Vancouver dentist, Sherri Wise, 27, is one of the hundreds of people injured by the suicide bombers on Ben Yehuda Street.

• Canadian filmmakers Simcha Jacobovici and Elliot Halpern win an Emmy Award for the second year in a row for excellence in investigative journalism. The Emmy is awarded for The Selling of Innocents, a film about the sexual exploitation of young girls in India.

The Year in Review was compiled by Reva Kaiser one of The CJN's summertime student interns.

Travel, Arts & Business

Poor script makes espionage 'thriller' a bore

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

You'd think a feature film about one of the world's most notorious terrorists, Carlos (The Jackal) Sanchez, would make one's adrenaline run. But The Assignment, which is loosely inspired by the manhunt for Carlos, is strangely flat.

In theory, The Assignment, now playing in theatres here, should engender a mounting sense of excitement. The story line is full of twists and turns. Bombs go off. Car chases and shootouts fill the screen. The locales — Paris, Jerusalem and Tripoli — are colorful, if not exotic. There is a stellar cast.

And yet this film, starring Aidan Quinn, Donald Sutherland and Ben Kingsley, falters.

Directed by Christian Duguay, The Assignment turns on a clever conceit: the physical resemblance between Carlos and Annibal Ramirez, an American naval officer. If Ramirez can be recruited by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and the Israeli Mossad, Carlos' days may be numbered.

The movie opens as a terrorist bomb, planted by Carlos, explodes in a Paris cafe. The scene then shifts to Vienna, where Carlos and his cohorts kidnap ministers attending a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Having established Carlos' credentials as a ruthless terrorist, Duguay cuts to an Arab neighborhood in Jerusalem. Ramirez (Quinn) is enjoying the sights when, suddenly, several swarthy men start chasing him. He is caught, taken to a safe house and interrogated by a Mossad agent named Amos (Kingsley), who has clearly mistaken him for Carlos.

With profuse apologies, Amos releases Ramirez. Enter Jack Shaw (Sutherland), a manipulative CIA counter-intelligence specialist. "You are the only one who can get The Jackal," he says, trying to flatter him. Reluctantly, Ramirez — a fine family man — signs on to impersonate Carlos (Quinn) and to draw him out of hiding and into a trap.

Before he embarks on this quest, he is put through a series of harrowing exercises to test his mettle. Passing these with flying colors, he is sent to Libya to abduct Carlos, a man who has a weakness for the pleasures of the flesh, as several steamy and exploitive scenes suggest.

The plan does not unfold as expected, and Ramirez fails to snare Carlos. This is followed by a tragic incident in London and a bit of gun play in East Berlin.

The cast is acceptably good, though Sutherland's smirk is hardly endearing. The trouble lies with the script, which is less than compelling, and with the pacing, which is uneven. Consequently, this espionage thriller tends to be more boring than gripping.

Ben Kingsley

It's really a pity. What could have been a scintillating movie is lost in the telling.

מזל טוב Mazel Tov

We cannot guarantee the date a picture will appear. Please limit all greetings to 25 typewritten words. We reserve the right to edit all items and condense any that are longer than that.

Label the back of all photos and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return. Send all your photos to The CJN, Mazel Tov, 1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont., M3B 3K4.

Karen Shaw and Debora & Nahum Watkin happily announce the engagement of Maria to Ori. Proud grandparents are Helen & Saul Kravetz, Pnina & Baruch Watkin.

Mazel tov to Edward Disenhouse, son of Sid & Regina Disenhouse, on his recent bar mitzvah in Toronto.

Mazel tov on the birth of Max Dakota Lee to Evan Lee & Debra Snider, grandparents Marilyn Snider, Gary Snider, Patti & Jerry Starr and Marvin Lee.

Mazel tov to Tara & Gidon from parents Sybil & Barry Berenstein, Pnina & Uri Lenga, grandparents Leah Berenstein, Annette & Eric Exton and Bella Rochwerg.

Mazel tov Elisa & Mark on your engagement. Proud family are Sam and the late Helen Feig, Ronald & Lil Jacobson, Zaydes Sam Krone and Sam Leibovici.

Congratulations to Karen & Bill Faith on your 25th anniversary from Andrew, Jessica, Sheryl, Lucille & Manny Faith, Sam Salsberg and Molly – and Sunny.

Congratulations to Lucille & Manny Faith on your 50th wedding anniversary from Bill & Karen, Terri & David, Andrew, Jessica, Sheryl, Sam Salsberg and Molly Walker.

Mazel tov to Ibi & Sandor Weiss on your 50th wedding anniversary. Many more in good health. Love, Joel, Sophie, Robyn and Jeffrey.

REGENCY INTERIORS 2000 INC.
MANUFACTURERS OF CUSTOM FURNITURE FOR HOME OR OFFICES SINCE 1970

Make your dreams a reality - join our loyal and happy customers by adding a custom dining room to your home

CUSTOM FURNITURE
• Bedrooms • Occasional Tables
• Wall Units for Surround Sound

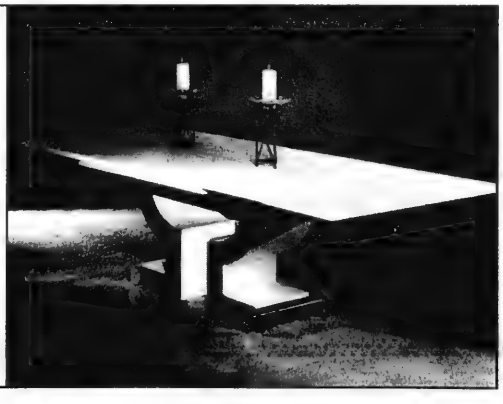
RENOVATIONS
• Basements • Bathrooms
• Recreation Areas

Max Kingston, Sal DiMeglio and Families extend our best wishes for a peaceful, healthy and happy New Year

4700 DUFFERIN STREET (416) 661-9100
(JUST NORTH OF FINCH, NEXT TO THE GRAND & TOY SUPERCENTRE) OPEN WEEKDAYS 9-6, SAT. 10-5, SUN. CLOSED

An original Regency designed Dining Room Table:

Available in "Regency" finishes and colours, this unique table features built-in leaf extensions and base trimmed with brass cylinders.



Travel, Arts & Business

Documentary focuses on teacher's unique fight against prejudice

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

Jane Elliott is a brusque, outwardly mean and controversial figure. She's an American educator who has been fighting prejudice for the past 30 years through the medium of "diversity training."

Elliott, a former Grade 3 teacher in a small insular town where discrimination against blacks was the norm, developed the concept for her students after the assassination of black civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. She wanted them to understand the implications of King's crusade and death.

Arbitrarily dividing her class into two groups – "blue-eyed" and "brown-eyed" – Elliott drove home the point that prejudice is ugly and based on ignorance.

Her courageous efforts caused an immediate backlash, resulting in her social ostracism (she was branded a "nigger lover"), in her family's financial ruin and in her ultimate banishment from a community in which she had been raised.

Elliott, a true subversive, persisted, and today her methods are widely considered enlightened. Indeed, some of her students have been profoundly influenced by diversity training, which inspires tolerance and empathy.

On Oct. 8 at 10 p.m., she will be the focus of Blue-Eyed, a German documentary that kicks off TV-Ontario's Human Edge series.

Elliott claims that the U.S. education system is culturally biased in favor of whites, and that racism is perpetuated by well-meaning people who do nothing about it.

In the spirit of turning the tables on the smug majority, Elliott divides a class into "haves" (brown-eyed) and "have-nots" (blue-eyed). Her objective is to make whites feel what it is like to be black, gay or disabled in America.

"I want them to be uncomfortable," she says, hardly mincing her words.

Jews are excluded from Elliott's broad category of the oppressed. But she recalls that a Jewish student once observed that her workshop reminded her of what it was like to be a Jew in Nazi Germany.

As Bertram Verhaag's film illustrates beyond any doubt, Elliott is a hard-eyed taskmaster who occasionally reduces her students to tears. But Elliott knows exactly what she is doing – breaking down barriers that cause divisions in society.

Women of Reform calendar

Let the New Year and its Blessings Begin (right) is the name of a tapestry designed by Czech-born artist and Holocaust survivor Marta Hauer, now living in Toronto.

The painting is on the cover of the newest calendar put out by the Women of Reform Judaism.

The title of the painting comes from a medieval poem written by Rabbi Abraham Chazan recited on the first day of Rosh Hashanah.

It is one of seven paintings by the artist in the pocket-size calendar for 5758.

The calendar lists weekly Torah and Haftorah portions, Jewish, American and Canadian holidays, and provides space for appointments.

Other paintings in the calendar include a ceremonial Passover matzah pouch with a pomegranate design; an abstract ink-embossed collage called Beresheet and a silk collage challah cover depicting a dramatic Shabbat night sky.

Hauer survived the Teresienstadt concentration camp and moved to Israel after the war. After living in California, she moved to Toronto where she became well-known among Canadian and U.S. interior decorators for her hand-painted wallpapers and hangings. She has published two books with illustrations of her designs.

For information on the calendar call 212-650-4050.

ISRAEL BEST AIRFARES
AIR CANADA
THE TRUE ALL-INCLUSIVE BAR/BAT MITZVAH FAMILY TOURS TO ISRAEL
See Israel as you've never seen it before!!
SPECIAL PROGRAMS CELEBRATING ISRAEL'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY
NEW 1998 DEPARTURES
WINTER Dec. 21/97-Jan. 4/98 • Limited Space
SPRING BREAK '98 March 11-23
SUMMER '98 June 28-July 12, July 5-19, July 12-26, Aug. 2-16, Aug. 9-23, Aug. 16-30
WINTER '98 Dec. 20/'98-Jan. 3/'99
REGISTRATION IN PROGRESS FOR ALL TOURS
DON'T WAIT - OUR TOURS ARE FILLING UP VERY QUICKLY
Don't book with anyone until you speak to us!
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
905-886-5610
OUT OF TOWN CALL 1-800-294-1663

MANOR TRAVEL
— WE'VE MOVED!! —
Visit us at our new location
1450 CLARK AVE. W., #7
(Duffenn & Clark - Loeb's Plaza, Thornhill)
1997 GROUPS with STANLEY
•Dream Cruise. Dec. 21 From$1119 Cdn. Kids Cruise FREE
•Ft. Lauderdale. From $389 incl. tax (Long Stays)
•New Year's Eve Getaway Dec. 31-Jan. 2
•Singles Club Med Jan. '98
•Cruise Jan. 17 NEW! 1 week from Ft. Lauderdale
OUR BEST WISHES FOR A HAPPY, HEALTHY NEW YEAR
Tel. (905) 669-1347
1-800-763-4769

Shipping Vehicles To The U.S.A., Canada & Europe Since 1952
AUTO DRIVEAWAY LTD.
6120A Yonge St. W., Suite 2
(North of Cummer, West Side)
For Insured, bonded, reliable door-to-door service
Call: (416) 222-4700 1-800-668-1879

Carrocel Restorations
WE CUSTOM BUILD
Happy & Healthy New Year
We specialize in Antique and Fine Furniture, Sales and Restorations
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES • BEDROOM SUITES • DINING SUITES • REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
3115 - 14TH AVENUE, UNIT 4 • (905) 475-6942

FISHER-FREMONT TRAVEL LTD.
535 EGLINTON AVENUE WEST
TORONTO, ONT. M5N 1B3
(416) 481-3323 FAX (416) 481-1219
Ont. Reg. 1061998 email flyaway@ican.net
SARA PACHTER
ESCORTED BAR/BAT MITZVAH FAMILY MISSIONS including SPECIAL EVENTS for Israel's 50th Anniversary 1998
All 2 week tours may be extended
WINTER/HANNUKAH Celebration tour — Dec. 17-31/97
SPRING BREAK Celebration tour — Mar. 11-23/98 & Mar. 12-24/98
NEW SUMMER DEPARTURES Celebration tour — July 2-16, July 16-30, Aug. 6-20, Aug. 20 - Sept. 3/98
WINTER/HANNUKAH Celebration tour — Dec. 16-30/98
REGISTRATION AND INFORMATION ON ALL TOURS NOW AVAILABLE
EXCITING ITINERARIES FOR REPEATERS - This includes an EXTRA SPECIAL INDEPENDENCE DAY TOUR, departing TORONTO on April 26 for 2 weeks, returning May 10/98. This will be the Dream-Trip of a Lifetime DON'T MISS IT!

HITLER'S SILENT PARTNERS
FROM AWARD-WINNING CANADIAN JOURNALIST
ISABEL VINCENT
SWISS BANKS, NAZI GOLD, AND THE PURSUIT OF JUSTICE
HITLER'S SILENT PARTNERS
ISABEL VINCENT
A brilliant, intimate investigation into one of the few remaining mysteries of WW II.
This shattering story reveals how "neutral" Switzerland bankrolled the Nazi regime, the clandestine role they played in Hitler's "Final Solution", and their reluctance even now to make restitution to the Jews who safeguarded their money in Swiss Banks. And Vincent's engrossing focus on the Viennese family of the Hammersfeld's – who moved to Toronto – brings the tragic story unforgettably to life.
KNOPF CANADA
1997 CBA Trade Publisher of the Year
MEET ISABEL VINCENT...
TORONTO JEWISH BOOK FAIR, Nov 13, 8 PM (416) 636-1880 EXT 281
HOLY BLOSSOM TEMPLE, TORONTO, Nov 17, 7 PM (416) 777-9477
JEWISH PUBLIC LIBRARY, MONTREAL, Nov 24, 8 PM (514) 345-2627
DIFFERENT DRUMMER BOOKSTORE, BURLINGTON, Nov 25, 7 PM (905) 639-0925
INDIGO BOOKS & MUSIC, TORONTO, Nov 27, 7 PM (416) 364-4499

Travel, Arts & Business

40 years of service
aufgang travel
789-7117

"Autumn in Washington"
Deluxe Coach Trip
Oct. 26-30, 1997.
Fully Escorted by Henry Wiseberg
Trip Includes: Deluxe coach transportation. Four nights hotel accommodation. Four breakfasts. U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum tour. Smithsonian Institution. Arlington Hall and much, much more. Kosher food available throughout tour.
$459.- p.p.d.o. $579.- p.p.d.o.
Please call David or Henry at
(416) 960-1393
Talk Of The Town Travel Ltd.

Travel Talk

by Bill Gladstone

JEWISH MONTREAL A FLAVORFUL EXPERIENCE

Having once lived briefly in Montreal, I still feel a special attachment to the city's European ambience, its old quarter, its staid park on Mount Royal, its historic architecture – and yes, its churches.

With its twin bell towers and magnificent interior, the Notre Dame Basilica (designed 1829) draws more visitors than any other site in Montreal.

From the 626-foot inclined Olympic Tower, one may easily study the Montreal skyline, referring to the labelled photographs and diagrams to identify major buildings and bridges. During the same outing, one might also visit the nearby Biodome, a vast environmental museum housing four distinct ecosystems; and the Insectarium, with its multitudes of assorted bugs.

For culture, the Museum of Fine Arts is celebrated; for history, the Point-A-Callière Museum deserves equal fame. Situated in the old city, Point-A-Callière illuminates Monfreal's past on the very ground where it was founded in 1642, and shows a short but brilliant multi-media presentation into the city's history.

Although the downtown Jews have largely departed to suburbs like Snowdon, Hampstead and Côte Saint-Luc, signs of their former presence are evident in the neighborhood around St. Laurent north of Sherbrooke, now populated by a mix of Portuguese, Greeks, Italians and Asians.

St. Laurent, the central boulevard also known as The Main, still roughly divides Montreal into two solitudes, French to the east and English to the west.

But smoked meat speaks its own language, which explains the popularity of Schwartz's, the famous deli at 3895 St. Laurent.

Another famous eatery, Moishe's Steakhouse, is a few doors north at 3961. "This neighborhood is traditionally where immigrants first settled in Montreal," says Moishe's co-owner, Leonard Lighter.

"This is where the Jewish immigrants arrived in the early part of the century. Then they moved uptown."

At St. Laurent near Sherbrooke, the Just For Laughs Museum occupies a former brewery once owned by the Jewish Ekers family, while the gray mansion at Clark and Sherbrooke is the former home of William Notman, a 19th-century Jewish photographer who was the Yousuf Karsh of his day.

Designated an architectural monument, the row of buildings at 3660 St. Laurent once held a Yiddish theatre, while Theatre Quatsous at Pine and Coloniale occupies a former synagogue.

Beth Shlomo, a small Orthodox synagogue at Clark and Bagg, dates from the 1920s and is the last operational shul in the neighborhood; services are still held on Saturday mornings.

At 4251 St. Urbain is Baron Byng, the former high school whose alumnae include David Lewis, A.M. Klein, Irving Layton and Mordecai Richler.

Wilensky's (34 Fairmount Ave.) is the unreconstructed restaurant featured in Richler's The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz.

Famed for their distinctive taste, Montreal's bagels owe their renown largely to the ovens of two modest bagel bakeries, the Bagel Shop at 263 St. Viateur W. and Fairmount Bagels at 74 Fairmount W.

"We use the old style of baking to produce about 25 dozen an hour, up to 1,000 dozen a day," says Fairmount proprietor Irwin Shlafman.

An extraordinary community of chassidic Jews – Orthodox followers of the 18th-century Baal Shem Tov and his spiritual heirs – is centred in the Fairmount area and neighboring Outremont. The largest groups are the Satmar and the Belz; the Lubavitchers are centred in Snowdon.

All told, there are some 12,000 Yiddish-speaking chassidic Jews in the area – including a group of more than 100 families, followers of the Tosher Rebbe, who live in outlying Boisbriand near St. Jerome.

The Cummings Building at 5151 Côte Ste-Catherine, across from the Saidye Bronfman Theatre, houses several important organizations and institutions of the present-day community. Here you'll find the Montreal Holocaust Memorial Centre and the Jewish Public Library, whose 100,000-volume Judaic collection is one of the best of its kind in Canada.

Before your next visit to Montreal, contact the Jewish Information Referral Service (514-737-2221) for a free list of synagogues, kosher restaurants, Jewish bookshops and other points of Jewish interest.

On my numerous business trips to Montreal, I've travelled from Toronto by Via Rail and stayed at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, adjacent to the train station in Montreal. I've found it a convenient combination, getting me comfortably from one downtown to the other in as little as four hours.

FREE WHEEL BALANCING ONLY*
on your Mercedes-Benz•BMW•Porsche•Audi•Volkswagen

*with this coupon and any service $75.+
Please call for an appointment
Euro Auto Union Co.
20 Harlech Crt., Thornhill
905-881-6164
Offer expires Oct. 31/97
General repairs to other makes

Art Rockert & the staff of
HOLIDAYS UNLIMITED
wish to inform their clients that it is business as usual after the fire.
Come Fly With Us Again!
HOLIDAYS UNLIMITED
325 Lonsdale Road
(416) 485-9453

SEND YOUR CAR
FLORIDA, CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA
& ALL POINTS ACROSS CANADA AND RETURN
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY
SERVICE (NATIONWIDE) INC.
5803 Yonge Street, Suite 101 (In the Newtonbrook Plaza)
(N. of Finch, at Cummer) Willowdale, Ont. M2M 3V5
For Quotations..... (416) 225-7754
If Long Distance 1-800-561-2658
E-Mail.....www.torontodriveaway.com
Serving the Public & Especially the Jewish Community since 1959

Co-sponsored by Austrian Ministry for Foreign Affairs
and
Austrian Federal Chancellery (Cultural Affairs)
Spotlight Productions
MARIA CASTANON and CHAIM AVRON
proudly present
A FREIE BÜHNE WIEDEN PRODUCTION
DIRECT FROM VIENNA
UNDER THE DISTINGUISHED PATRONAGE
of
His Excellency Walther Lichem
Ambassador of Austria
3 PERFORMANCES ONLY
GALA OPENING
•SAT., NOV. 1, 1997, 8:00 P.M.
•SUN., NOV. 2, 1997, 8:00 P.M.
"THE GALICIAN WOMAN"
(in English)
A Monodrama with Music
based on
The Life of Eva Deutsch
and
• SUN., NOV. 2, 1997, 2:00 P.M.
"WEIT VON WO"
Cabaret in Exil
A Journey into Nostalgia
Yiddish/Deutsch in Words & Songs
AT THE
Leah Posluns Theatre
4588 Bathurst Street, North York, Ont.
Box Office: (416) 636-1880 Ext. 368
THE LEGENDARY
TOPSY KÜPPERS

For Advance Tickets & Discounts for Groups of 15 or more Call (416) 222-0234
Tickets $40.00
On Sale at Ticketmaster
•(416) 870-8000
AND
•Matana Judaica
248 Steeles Ave. W.
Thornhill, Ont.
(905) 731-6543
No Credit Cards

MORTGAGE SPECIALIST
6.10% 5 years*
4.45% 6 months* (convertible)
Commercial, Industrial, Residential - Lenders Welcome
*Residential, Free transfers. Rates + terms subject to change.
Art Appelberg, M.B.A.
President
(416) 969-8130 Ext. 224
NORTHWOOD MORTGAGE LTD.
10225 Yonge St.
Richmond Hill

MOROCCO 1997 Plus Taxes
UNIQUE ONE WEEK TOUR OF MOROCCO
HIGHLIGHTING JEWISH SIGHTS
* Round Trip Airfare
* 5 Star Hotel
* 5 Days Sightseeing
* Daily Breakfasts, 2 Dinners
* Special Events
* Four Departure Dates: November, December, January and February
For further information and details please call:
Toronto
Tic Toc Tours
2823 Bathurst St.
Toronto, Ontario
(416) 789-7273
Montreal
Excel Tempo
4784 Van Horne # 110
Montreal, Quebec
(514) 735-4535

THINK THIN
Includes:
3 meals, massage, exercise, diet and friendly staff
From $62 U.S.
Daily per pers. dbl. occ. to Dec. 19
$68 U.S.
Dec. 20 to Jan. 20
Lido Spa
4019 ISLAND AVE. MIAMI BEACH FL 33139 HOTEL
TOLL FREE: 800-327-8363

Eye on Arts

by Bill Gladstone

PEOPLE OF THE BOOK

As we turn the page into the New Year of 5758, Eye On Arts presents its annual survey of what some people in the literary community are reading

Matt Cohen as he was last seen by The CJN in 1988.

Toronto writer Matt Cohen, whose latest novel Last Seen is now out in paperback, has been reading The Projectionist by Michael Helms (Douglas & McIntyre), which, he says, "is quite dazzling. I think it'll redefine Prairie writing just as Sinclair Ross and Rudy Wiebe did in the 1950s and the 1970s.

"It's about a man at the crossroads of his life in various ways, someone who lives in a small town almost being forced out of it by his own behavior. I'm in the middle of reading it and pretty curious to know how it will end. It's a first novel and very impressive."

Ellen Seligman, editorial director of fiction at McClelland & Stewart, doesn't always have time for the luxury of reading published works, so she cites a book still in manuscript form: Childhood, a first novel by Andre Alexis that tells the life story of a southern Ontario man.

It's slated for publication by McClelland & Stewart next spring.

"It's a difficult love story with the past," says Seligman. "The fulcrum of the narrative comes when the estranged mother comes and takes the 10-year-old boy with her to Ottawa…The intelligence and lucidity of the prose and the subtle way that Alexis angles into things is quite extraordinary. It's really a remarkable journey."

The Tunnel by William H. Gass (Knopf) is "a high modernist novel, a stream of consciousness kind of thing without any straight-line plot," says playwright-humorist Michael Wex, who finds it "extremely hard reading but very good."

The book centres upon an academic in the American Midwest who has written a "vast rambling meditation on guilt and innocence in Hitler's Germany. He's one of these academics with a love affair with German culture who can't quite figure out how all these terrible things happened."

Writer Libby Scheier, director of the Toronto Writing Workshop, is reading "two books, both of which are associated with the Jewish Renewal movement – with a capital 'R,'"

The first is The Jew in The Lotus, by Rodger Kamenetz (HarperCollins). "a wonderful book about a group of Jews, ranging from Orthodox to Reform, who go to visit the Dalai Lama. It's a non-fiction travel book full of spiritual beauty."

The second is On Being A Jewish Feminist, a collection of essays edited by Susannah Heschel. "She's the daughter of Abram Heschel, the great spiritual thinker. So it's interesting to see someone who grew up in that environment putting it together in a feminist framework."

Phillip Roth's American Pastoral (Houghton Mifflin) "is Roth's best novel in years," according to publisher Malcolm Lester, head of the recently launched Malcolm Lester Books.

"The writing is exceptionally powerful and the theme is also quite compelling; namely, how an ordinary virtuous man has been betrayed by the values that he tried to live up to. In a way it's an indictment of the '60s counterculture."

Lester also mentioned The Secret Book of Grazia dei Rossi by Jacqueline Park (Simon & Schuster), "a new book that deals with the Jewish community in Renaissance Italy in the 16th century. It's for anyone who likes historical fiction. Park is a Canadian who lives in New York. She's in her 70s and this is her first novel."

Translator-writer Hindy Nosek-Abelson is currently reading two Canadian bestsellers, Fall Down On Your Knees by Ann-Marie MacDonald (Vintage) and Fugitive Pieces by Anne Michaels (McClelland & Stewart).

MacDonald's book "is really interesting, it's kind of like [John Irving's] The World According to Garp" while Michaels' "is a great work of poetry – I'm hanging onto every word."

However, they are, in a way, "opposite" to each other, Nosek-Abelson notes: "Michaels is lyrically magnificent in an uplifting way and MacDonald is lyrically magnificent in a very dark way."

Reached in Fredericton, where he recently started teaching creative writing and literature at the University of New Brunswick, writer Norman Ravvin praised The Simple Truth, a book of poems by Philip Levine (Knopf).

"He tells totally crafted stories and does beautiful character portraits of more or less average people."

Ravvin is also reading Sleeping Weather, a new novel by Toronto writer Cary Fagan (Porcupine's Quill). "It's a good Toronto story with a haunting, suspenseful power to it. Again, it's about very average lives. It's a very private story about a family's life together on a Toronto street."

Fabulous
HARVEY SEIGEL BAND
A Very Happy, Healthy New Year
(416) 782-9202

★ Big Band ★ Swing
★ Klezmer
HARVEY SEIGEL'S (other band)
SPEAK-EASY JAZZ BAND
(416) 256-4123
"Band Size to Suit Your Budget"

ATTENTION SNOWBIRDS!
FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS AND RETURN
www.torontodriveaway.com
CALL (416) 225-7754
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St. #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

BUSINESS CLASS
AIRFARE TO:
ANY DESTINATION IN THE WORLD
• AUSTRALIA
• SOUTH AFRICA
• ISRAEL
$2500. (RETURN)
CALL (416) 944-8944

Does Your Self Image Hold You Back from Reaching Your Goals?
Join a women's Self Esteem Group!
To register call 416 - 390-3047 today!
Facilitator: Kim Finkelstein, M.B.A., M.A. COUNSELLING
Dates: Wednesdays, starting Oct. 8 for 8 weeks,
Time: 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.
Cost: $150.00 per person - (Group limited to 12 people)

MUSICAL REVUE
From Broadway To Klezmer
FEATURING
• Professional Singing Sensations
• Virtuoso Violinists
• Hilarious Comedy Routine
• Amazing Dance Team
• Impersonations of Well Known Stars
Paul Mathew
Producer and Musical Director with His 9 Piece Show Band
LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE
4588 Bathurst Street
Sunday, October 19th, 1997
1:00 pm and 7:00 pm
Tickets: $10.00 in advance $12.00 at the door
Tickets Are Available at: Lasting Impressions
Wilmington Plaza: 1 Hour Photo 635-0720
Pro Shop: Bathurst Jewish Centre 636-1880 ext. 235
Wheelchair Accessible

THE TRAVEL NETWORK
A Treasury of JEWISH HERITAGE & CULTURE
PRAGUE • VIENNA • BUDAPEST
VISIT THE HISTORICAL, CULTURAL AND JEWISH QUARTERS IN THESE THREE IMPERIAL CITIES
May 5th - 17th, 1998
Escorted by Pnina Zilberman, Director of the Holocaust Education and Memorial Centre of Toronto
TOUR HIGHLIGHTS
Historical Prague • Jewish Quarter • Terezin Concentration Camp • Elegant Vienna • Vienna Woods • Schoenbrunn Palace • Vibrant Budapest • Castle District • Danube Bend excursion
Tour includes: • British Airways flights (from Toronto) • Classic 4 star Hotels, 4 nights Prague, 3 nights Vienna, 4 nights Budapest • Full breakfast daily • 3 dinners, plus farewell "Czarda" dinner in Budapest • Deluxe airconditioned motor coach • All touring including entrance fees
CULTURAL PERFORMANCES AT THE FAMOUS OPERA HOUSES / CONCERT HALLS
$2,999.00 CAD. based on double + $499.00 tax and service charge $650.00 Single supplement
Tour limited to maximum 45 people. For more information please call:
Bonnie Horowitz or Vivien Rethazy 416 - 789-3271 or toll free 1-888-666-8747
THE TRAVEL NETWORK CORP.
1920 Avenue Road, Toronto

Business Profile

The Prince Arthur — Minto's $100 million venture

Greenberg's Yorkville condos promise luxury

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Social-trend mavens these days are telling us that after years of penny-pinching, restraint and belt-tightening, it may be time to kick back and pamper ourselves.

Alan Greenberg is banking on that, and his project in the heart of Yorkville will be a monument to the good life.

The Prince Arthur, a $100-million luxury condominium complex, is the latest offering from Minto Developments, the Ottawa-based real estate company headed by the Greenberg family, who are among the Ottawa Jewish community's leading fundraisers and activists.

The first condo project to be built in trendy Yorkville in a decade, the Prince Arthur hopes to epitomize urban elegance with its 161 luxury units, ranging from just under 800-square-foot pied-à-terres, to sumptuous, 4,000-square-foot penthouses.

The ambitious project will sit on one of the last developable sites in the area, and will stretch for a city block, from Prince Arthur to Lowther avenues, on the west side of Avenue Road. It will doubtless contribute to the rejuvenation of Yorkville.

"It's quite a large project, even by Toronto standards," says the 36-year-old Greenberg, Minto's vice-president. "And we've been thrilled with the response."

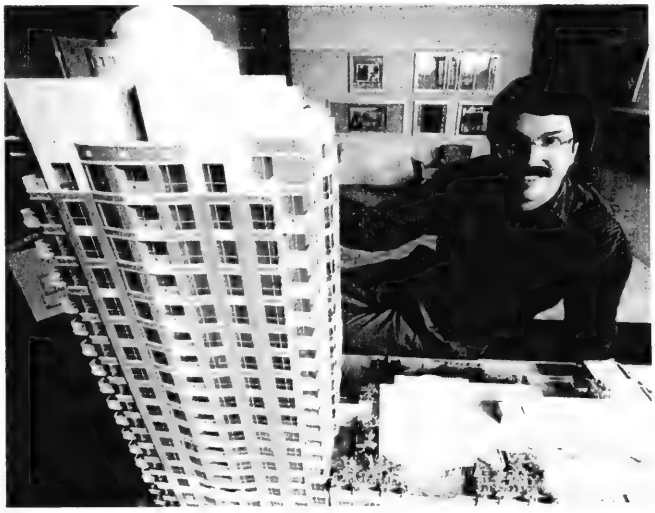
Even though groundbreaking is months away and the whole project won't be finished for another two years, about 40 percent of the units are already pre-sold, most of them in the $550,000 to $900,000 range.

Other units are being snapped up. The penthouses, which go for between $1.4 million and $1.9 million, are selling well, as are the pied-à-terres, which start in the mid-$200,000 range. Four of the 11 Prince Arthur Collection units, which feature the best appointments and finishes, have been sold.

The project is geared toward empty-nesters, Greenberg says, especially those coming from large homes.

Although it's a condo, all units are airy and will make maximum use of space, with standard nine-foot ceilings and outsized 6 foot 8 inch tall windows. It's all designed to accommodate large-scale furniture.

"What we're saying to people is, 'You can move your furniture here from your home. You don't have to get apartment furniture,'" Greenberg says.



Alan Greenberg and a model of The Prince Arthur: Forty percent of units are sold.

Focus groups conducted by Minto last winter concluded that high-end condo buyers these days want quality, value and services. The accent will be on all three at the Prince Arthur, Greenberg promises.

A major luxury feature will be direct access elevators. Fifteen elevator shafts will carry people from the lobby directly to their front door. Eighty percent of the units will be served by them. "It's just like coming right home," says Greenberg.

A three-storey arch will serve as the main entrance. A circular driveway will lead to a hidden garden and private lobby entrance to several units. Valet parking and 350 underground parking spots will take care of most vehicular needs. Other concerns can be handled by a 24-hour concierge and door attendants.

In the meantime, buyers will deal with a manager of client services, who will serve as the single point of contact for purchasers from the time they buy until after they move in.

Once inside, the choices the buyer faces are dizzying. Picking a floor finish alone can take hours. Will it be granite, marble, limestone, slate or one of a dozen hardwoods? Perhaps an ankle-deep carpet? Kitchens will be more or less standard: European cabinetry and top-of-the-line appliances all around.

Suite designs include conservatories, multi-media and family rooms, breakfast rooms with bay windows, and his and her master baths. Extra thick windows will shut out the hub-bub. His and her walk-in closets will feature built-in shelving. Balconies with planter urns, French doors and roof-garden terraces have been incorporated into the design.

The ultra-posh West Penthouse promises to be the project's high-water mark. It will take up a half a floor of space and will offer a stunning wraparound view of the city.

The "dusk to dawn" suites will feature both eastern and western exposures. Living space will face Avenue Road, while sleeping quarters will overlook the more quiet Annex.

There will be a fully equipped health club and two entertainment suites, including a 30-person dining room.

"We listened very carefully to the buyer," Greenberg says.

Founded by four Greenberg brothers in 1955 (Alan is the son of Gilbert, one of the founders), Minto has built over 43,000 homes, mainly in the Ottawa-Carleton region. The company came to Toronto during the real estate boom in the mid-'80s, and hasn't looked back.

Local Minto projects include Optima on the Park in Scarborough, Bayview Hills on the Rouge in Richmond Hill and Legacy in Markham. Minto has teamed up with IBM to redevelop country clubs in Richmond Hill and Markham. In downtown Toronto, the company developed and manages 38 Elm Street (the Minto Plaza), a 434-unit small suite luxury condo.

In Ottawa, Minto owns and operates the well-known Minto Suites Hotel.

And in the capital, the Greenberg name is synonymous with philanthropy and activism. Alan's cousin Lawrence is past president of the Vaad Hair, the Jewish community's umbrella organization. An uncle, Lorry, was Ottawa's first Jewish mayor. And Alan's brother Roger has raised millions for Ottawa's new central Jewish Community Campus.

How did Minto acquire, a year ago, one of the most desirable pieces of land in Toronto?

"We listened," Greenberg says, especially to four local ratepayer groups, who were uncomfortable with large, looming towers in the neighborhood. Thus, after negotiations with local politicians and residents, final plans call for the Prince Arthur to cascade from a 24-storey tower down to nine floors, and then eight, seven and six. "We were able to satisfy all concerns," Greenberg says.

The area fronting Avenue Road has not been forgotten. The ground floor will feature 9,500 square feet of retail space for upscale service and fashion shops.

Enthuses Greenberg, "the location, the attention to detail, the services...this is going to be a very desirable place to live."

Sonny Goldstein, CLU,CH.F.C.
President

PLANNING FOR RETIREMENT?

Edie, Michelle and Sonny Goldstein, their family and staff want to wish all of their family, friends and clients a happy, healthy and prosperous new year. L'Shana Tova!

Make this the year you plan for your financial future.

We offer a full range of mutual funds, including products from

TRIMARK MUTUAL FUNDS · Templeton · Mackenzie Building Financial Independence

DYNAMIC MUTUAL FUNDS Your Partner for Dynamic Performance · CI MUTUAL FUNDS

For a free consultation with no obligation, call (416) 221-0060

Mutual Funds and Bonds provided by Trillenium Investor Services Inc.

Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Michelle Goldstein
Vice-President

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
ZOGLO'S VEGETARIAN
Beef or Chicken Patties 300 g $2.99
Spinach, Corn, Potato, Broccoli, Mixed Vegetables, Cauliflower Nuggets $1.99
Cauliflower or Corn Schnitzel 332 g $2.99
Until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK – 161 DENISON ST. W. – (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Health

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
Free Buy One 56g Pkg Pink Euro-cut
SMOKED BAGELOX
Get One FREE was 2.99
GOLDEN HARBOR PRE-SLICED
RED PACIFIC SMOKED SALMON $9.99/lb
with ad
Valid until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK – 161 DENISON ST. W. – (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Researchers discover gene in familial Mediterranean fever

By JUDY SIEGEL
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Two competing research consortia — one based in the United States and the other in France, both including Israeli teams — have announced the discovery of the defective gene that causes familial Mediterranean fever (FMF). The hereditary disease affects tens of thousands of people around the world, especially Jews of North African (most commonly Libyan) origin, and to a lesser extent Arabs, Turks, Armenians, and Druse.

There are 4,000 to 5,000 FMF patients in Israel — the largest concentration of the disorder anywhere.

Inheriting the gene from one parent makes the child a symptomless carrier, but if one has the double gene, the disorder is characterized by recurrent and severe attacks of fever, abdominal pains, and pains of the joints and the pleura covering the lungs, usually lasting from one to four days.

Untreated, it can cause amyloidosis, in which proteins called amyloids concentrate in the kidneys and cause them to fail, requiring dialysis and shortening life expectancy.

But 25 years ago, a Boston physician, Dr. S.E. Goldfinger, discovered by chance that an anti-gout drug called colchicine cuts the attacks short, but does not eliminate the trigger for them and failed to help five percent of FMF patients.

In a recent press conference Prof. Mordechai Pras of Sheba Hospital said that he and his colleagues at the U.S. National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases (in Bethesda, Md.) were the first to discover the defective gene, which they dubbed Pyrin (the Greek word for fire). A scientific article describing the discovery was published in the August 22 issue of Cell.

Simultaneously, Prof. Eldad Ben-Chetrit and Prof. Micha Levy of the internal medicine department at Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Centre in Jerusalem's Ein Kerem, who worked with a French team, claimed to have made the discovery "first."

Although that consortium, which named the defective gene marenostrin ("Our Sea," a Roman phrase for the Mediterranean), had discovered only half the base pairs in the gene, Ben-Chetrit said that "the remaining pairs are not significant and we were first." His team's article is appearing in Nature Genetics.

Ben-Chetrit said that the disease has even affected some Ashkenazi Jews.

"When they married only Ashkenazi Jews, some were carriers but it was very unusual for two carriers to marry. However, when in Israel they began to marry Jews of North African origin, it was more common for offspring to inherit two defective genes," he explained.

Pras said it will now be possible to conduct a blood test and know for certain whether a person suffers from FMF or is a carrier. Since the symptoms of the disease are not always clear from the outset, colchicine treatment can begin immediately.

Touro College heads West with new medical school

By LORI EPPSTEIN
Jewish Bulletin of Northern California

SAN FRANCISCO — Determined to remedy a shortage of primary-care physicians in rural and disadvantaged areas, the Orthodox Jewish group that operates Touro College in New York has opened its first osteopathic medical school.

The nonsectarian San Francisco College of Osteopathic Medicine opened this week with a class of 66 students.

From obstetrics and gynecology to orthopedics and surgery, doctors of osteopathy practice in the same areas of medicine as allopathic doctors and receive the same medical training.

However, osteopaths are most often primary-care physicians who place an emphasis on holistic disease prevention and manipulation of the spine and joints.

Chiropractors also align the spine and joints, but they do not enjoy the same medical privileges as osteopaths, who prescribe medication and have greater access to hospitals.

The New York-based Touro College opened the school to expand the practice of osteopathy on the West Coast, where it is not widely recognized, said the dean, Dr. Bernard Zeliger.

Across the United States, osteopaths, who number about 45,000, comprise little more than five percent of all physicians.

The practice was developed by a frontier doctor in Missouri late in the 19th century.

But until it was recognized by American medical associations, the military and the courts in the 1950s and 1960s, osteopaths struggled to become legitimate in the eyes of hospital administrators and other medical groups, Zeliger explained.

Osteopathy once thrived in California, but when the California Osteopathic Association merged with the California Medical Association in 1962, all osteopaths became medical doctors.

A small group of loyal osteopaths eventually won back their osteopathic licenses in a 1974 California Supreme Court ruling, but osteopathy never really bounced back here, Zeliger said.

DR. ADAM DWOSH, M.D., C.C.F.P.
Family Physician
Has joined Dr. J. Bart and Dr. S. Baum
at the
Bathurst Steeles Health Centre
6257 Bathurst St., 2nd floor, North York, Ont. M2R 2A5
(S.E. Corner of Bathurst St. at Steeles Ave.)
Now accepting new Patients. Walk-ins welcome
Available to do house calls on own patients
Call (416) 223-9791 for Appointments

Does your copy of The Canadian Jewish News go home with your children every week?
Why not order the perfect gift...
for you and them.
Their own CJN subscription.

The Canadian Jewish news
1500 DON MILLS ROAD, STE. 205
NORTH YORK, ONTARIO M3B 3K4
TELEPHONE: (416)-391-1836
FAX: (416)-391-0949

I would like to subscribe to The Canadian Jewish News ❑

Please complete details below:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____

CJN SUBSCRIPTION RATES
$54.95* 2 YRS. CANADA ❑
$29.95* 1 YR. CANADA ❑
*G.S.T. IS INCLUDED
G.S.T. #R105201149
$60.00 U.S. 1YR. U.S.A. ❑
$75.00 U.S. 1YR. FOREIGN ❑

PLEASE RETURN WITH YOUR PAYMENT.
AMOUNT ENCLOSED$ _____
CHEQUE ENCLOSED ❑
OR VISA ❑
OR MASTERCARD ❑
NUMBER _____
EXPIRY DATE _____
TELEPHONE NO. _____

kitchen table
HAPPY NEW YEAR
לשנה טובה
389 SPADINA RD.
During this festive holiday, we thank all our Jewish customers for your valued patronage throughout the year.
For your shopping convenience we offer:
HOLIDAY PREPARED FOODS
• Soups • Appetizers • Main Courses • Desserts
• Buffet Munchies • Imported Israeli Dry Goods
• Chocolates & Fresh Produce • Fresh Cut Flowers
IT IS OUR PLEASURE TO ASSIST YOU WITH ANY SPECIAL ORDERS...
JUST CALL AHEAD 484-7787
WE ALSO DELIVER
OPEN UNTIL MIDNIGHT SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
ASSORTED GROCERY PRODUCTS ARE ALSO AVAILABLE AT OUR FIRST CANADIAN PLACE STORE

CJ Kids

HALLOWE'EN IS COMING!

KIDS COSTUMES
BY MOSTLY DOLLS
COSTUMES FOR ALL OCCASIONS
•Creative Custom Made •Large In Stock Selection
•Accessories & Make-up
353 Eglinton Ave. W.
West of Avenue Rd. 484-1940

FREE VIDEO ARCADE • FREE MOTORCYCLES • LOOTS
• DRAMA CLASSES • FREE PINBALL •
PLAYLAND
INDOOR PLAYGROUND & CHILDREN'S PARTY PLACE LTD.
Wishing all our clients, friends and relatives a Happy & Healthy New Year
601 MAGNETIC DR., UNIT #33
LOOKING FORWARD TO SERVING YOU.
(416) 667-PLAY (7529)
AEROBICS FOR MOM & TOT • HUGE BALL PIT • ARTS & CRAFTS

"Peace of Mind Childcare"

Why go with a licensed Home Child Care Agency when you can go to the lady down the street?

Peace of mind is what J & F Home Child Care Services Incorporated with 18 years of Excellence offers when you leave your children with our trained, experienced caregivers in their safe, licensed supervised homes.

Our caregivers create a warm, caring, nurturing & learning atmosphere. Attention is given to every child with a low child/caregiver ratio. Our Child Care consultants make unannounced visits with follow up reports to the parents on a monthly basis; helping with programming, nutrition, safety issues and meeting the needs of children, parents & caregivers.

Our Child Care Consultants are always there to help!

For Peace of Mind and Quality Home Child Care at its best, call us at:
(416) 494-5898

Happy & Healthy New Year from the staff of J & F Home Child Care Services Incorporated
Serving the North York, Scarborough, Richmond Hill and Thornhill areas since 1979

"We care about children...especially yours"

THE YORK SCHOOL
Celebrating More Than Thirty Years of Excellence!

IS MOVING TO
1320 YONGE STREET, TORONTO

We offer:
- a co-educational environment
- rigorous university-preparatory curriculum
- small classes and individual attention
- excellent teachers
- development of essential academic skills
- computers across the curriculum
- excellent extra curricular arts and athletics

Creative Montessori Pre-School Programmes also available

For more information call
Marilyn Andrews, Director of Admissions
The York School 483-0541
65 Sheldrake Boulevard, Toronto, Ontario M4P 2B1
Member of the Conference of Independent Schools (Ontario) and the Canadian Association of Independent Schools

L'Shana Tova

From MENDY® and his Family

May You Be Blessed With Peace, Health and Happiness Through The New Year!

By Barry Grossman & Stan Goldberg

TEST YOUR KNOWLEDGE

Circle the best answer!

1. Rosh Hashanah & Yom Kippur are known as:
   a. fun days off from school
   b. difficult words to spell
   c. The High Holy Days

2. On the Jewish New Year, we:
   a. go to Time's Square
   b. ask G-D to forgive our sins
   c. get extra allowance

3. When people say, "L'Shana Tova," they are saying:
   a. turn your clock back an hour
   b. don't swim after eating a big meal
   c. have a happy and healthy New Year

4. When we hear the Shofar blow, it reminds us:
   a. not to snooze in Temple
   b. that we are hungry
   c. of the Holiness of the season

5. On Yom Kippur we must:
   a. not do any work
   b. fast (only if you are 13 years or older)
   c. pray real hard
   d. A, B, & C

EXCITED ABOUT THE NEW YEAR!
Netivot Hatorah preschoolers went apple picking in preparation for Rosh Hashanah.

CJ Kids

Cycle of Holidays celebrated

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

The cycle of Jewish holidays will be starting this week with Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, and Sukkot is not far behind. This is a great time to read a book that talks about all the holidays Jews celebrate during the year.

You are sure to enjoy Milk and Honey; a year of Jewish holidays, by Jane Yolen (Putnam, 1996). It is full of interesting and useful information about the holidays, from Rosh Hashanah to Shavuot. The last chapter talks about Shabbat, which is, Yolen explains, a holiday we enjoy every week.

What is especially enjoyable about Milk and Honey is that each chapter includes stories and legends about the holiday, songs and poems. The chapter about Purim even has a play that you can put on telling the story of Mordechai, Esther and Haman.

I liked the Yom Kippur story of the rabbi who was late for the service, because he stopped to comfort a crying baby. "It is right," he said "that on the day of repentance adults should weep when they think of their sins. But children, who have not sinned at all, should not be left to cry."

A poem called Sounding the Shofar teaches that even the shofar must wait until one is sure that one's animals are properly fed.

The illustrations are beautiful. Louise August uses bright, cheerful and lavish colors to show Biblical stories or to explain a point. She even uses humor – in the picture of Moses leading the Jewish people through the Red Sea, the crowd is led by baby chicks, supervised by their anxious mother chicken.

Milk and Honey is not just fun to read, but is great for those times mothers and fathers take the time to read to their children.

6600 SQUARE FEET OF ORGANIZED CHAOS!
THE MADHATTER'S TEA PARTY
26th ANNIVERSARY CANADIAN OWNED & OPERATED SINCE 1971
Complete Party Packages! For Kids Ages 4 -12
A Full 2 Hour Private Party!
Maze, Pillow Room, Games Room, Food, Ice Cream & Lots More!
Call (905) 475-2854 • 7676 Woodbine Ave, Markham
$5.00 off with coupon. Mention ad at time of booking. Bring coupon at time of payment.
One coupon per party. Not Valid with other promotions / coupons

Discipline A+ Attitude A+ Confidence A+ Martial Art Curriculum:
1. Respect for parents and authority figures
2. Guidance on setting and achieving goals
3. Training to say "NO" to unhealthy peer pressure
4. Exciting self defence techniques
5. Instruction on child emergency situations
6. Advice on : HOW TO DEFEAT THE BULLY WITHOUT FIGHTING!
Parents are welcome to watch classes!
Call Today! THE SAMURAI CLUB 905-771-7976
FREE KARATE UNIFORM and 40% Discount on Membership Fees*!
*Time limited offer. For new customers only. Be sure to call or visit within the next 48 hours. Must bring this ad!

Academy of Artisans
490 Eglinton Ave. West, 2nd Floor
2 Blocks West of Avenue Road
Daily Preschool, Children, Teen & Adult Courses
Birthday Parties ~ Workshops
Cooking & Baking, Painting & Sculpture, Jewellery, Stained Glass, Pottery, Papier Maché, Cartooning, Soap Stone Carving Photography, Sewing, Serging, Knitting, Embroidery, Weaving, Flower Arranging, ... And Many More!
Shana Tova - Happy & Healthy New Year
For information call: 322-9997

DEAR-BORN BABY EXPRESS
LEGACY
NEW JUST ARRIVED
THE GYMINI 3-D ACTIVITY GYM $59.99
Baby Trend THE SNAP-N-GO LITE
Stroller Frame (Car seat not included) $59.99
DEAR-BORN BABY EXPRESS
Store Hours Mon., Tues., Wed., Sat. 10-6 Thurs., Fri. 10-9 Sunday 12-5
72 Doncaster Ave. Thornhill
905-881-3334
YONGE DONCASTER STEELES

MENDY in Rosh "Ha Ha" Shanah
ROSH HASHANAH IS THE TIME TO REFLECT ON ALL THE MISTAKES WE'VE MADE DURING THE PAST YEAR!
FRIEDMAN GOLDBERG

GRAPHIC DESIGN BY ERIC L. GROSSMAN

Copyright © Mendy Comics 1997

SERVICE DIRECTORY section

345 ACCOUNTING

Accounting, bookkeeping services available at reasonable rates. Call Michael (CGA), 416-781-5718.

395 ELECTRICAL

Air Conditioning, Electrical Contracting, licensed, repair services, reasonable, guaranteed. 905-882-5474.

350 APPLIANCES

SOBIE'S
SERVICENTRE & APPLIANCE PARTS
Look for our ad under APPLIANCES in the Yellow Pages™ Directory

Specializing in repairs to
JENN-AIR • SUBZERO
THERMADOR, etc.
We install and repair
APPLIANCE SHABBAT SWITCHES
(416) 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave., Willowdale

 KELNER'S APPLIANCE SERVICE
Repairs to washers, dryers, dishwashers and stoves. 2 yrs warr. Same Day Service. FREE est.
Zvi (905) 731-5950

Ahlfeld Appliance Ltd. Very reasonable and reliable service to your dishwasher, fridge, stove, washer, dryer & air conditioning. We pride ourselves on honesty. Free est. (905) 709-3393.

355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/ SALES

Jacob Repairs All TV's, VCRs Computers. 416-661-6798.

395 ELECTRICAL

Electrician seeks small jobs only. Lic #E-329 Call 636-5732.

370 CATERING

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) (416) 787-0309

Milk 'n Honey
THE DAIRY RESTAURANT
*BRIT MILAH *SHIVA MEALS
*BUSINESS MEETINGS
*BAR/BAT MITZVAH PARTIES
*SHEVA BROCHOS
*FULL COURSE MEALS
SHORT NOTICE & SAME DAY SERVICE • DELIVERY AVAILABLE
789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.

חתונה. ברית מצוה
Weddings • Bar Mitzvahs
Tri✡Elm Catering
3 Banquet Halls • For Elmalch
Glatt Kosher 631-7322 COR 200
e-mail:trielm@pathcom.com

372 CHUPPAHS

Aviv-Floral Design. Chuppah and aisle runner rentals. We specialize in wedding flowers. Call 416-256-2554

CHAI CHUPPAH Let us create a special, unique chuppah or Bar/Bat Mitzvah signing board. Rental also available. 905-882-0059.

375 CLEANING

SPARKLING TEARS
CHANDELIER & FIXTURE SPECIALISTS
We offer top service in cleaning & maintaining your Chandeliers & Fixtures
Call for a FREE estimate today!
(416) 438-5848

Adanac Maintenance cleans stores, offices, factories, bldgs. Fully insured. 694-2065.

390 DRIVING

ATTENTION
FLORIDA SNOWBIRDS!!!
AFFORDABLE. AUTO DELIVERY
RELIABLE. COURTEOUS DRIVERS
DOOR TO DOOR SERVICE
BOOK BOTH WAYS NOW & SAVE $$$
INTERNATIONAL DRIVEAWAY SERVICES
888 765-0666
When It Comes to Service We'll Deliver

405 FURNITURE

Furniture restoration and refinishing. Touch-ups & small jobs done on your premises. Free estimates. 416-654-2430.

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touch-ups. Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 654-0518.

410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS

Acryllic nails, $15., full set & fills, evg. appt's. 416-663-8691.

Pnina, 15 mins. electrol. $13., man.+ ped. $25. 416-667-8012

Professional Hairstylist available at your home for special occasions/private sessions, on Sun., Mon. & evgs. Call Loula at (416) 499-6453 for an app't.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS

BATHTUB REGLAZING Sinks, tiles from $199. & up. FREE Estimate. 416-753-3097.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission (416) 392-3000

CESTA CONTRACTING, all types of home improvements, since 1981, no job too small. Call Carmen 249-4143.

City East Hardwood Flooring. Sand, stain, finish. 839-0733.

Electrician - master license, res., ind., comm. Experience, reasonable rates- prompt service. Call 403-1480 or 743-7692.

HANDYMAN 638-5488 Improvement/Repairs, Ephram.

Home Services. Painting, plaster, carpentry, plumbing, electric, ceramic, tiling. 736-1179.

Perry's Handyman Service. All types of repairs, reas. (416) 429-2728, pgr. (416) 374-5718.

420 INVITATIONS/ PRINTING

ELEGANT INVITATIONS Beautiful selection of U.S. & Canadian invitations for all occasions. Discount Prices. FREE Calligraphy with any invitation order. Expiry: 12/31/97 Call Marla Kamin at (416) 963-8813

Invitations for all. Unbeatable price, selection & service. Call Mark, A & D 905-731-5864.

427 JUDAICA

Women's talits: Unique handcrafted talit sets by a Jerusalem artist. 905-886-4969.

Miriam's Fine Judaica has avail. a child's Lulav set, consisting of 1 fresh Palm Branch, fresh Hadassim & fresh Arovot. Etrog not incl. $15.00. Suitable for ages 4-6. Call 781-8261.

438 LOCKSMITH

LOCKS - DEADBOLTS, 1 for $85, 2 for $160 installed. Fast service, Moshe, 416-445-6438.

445 MOVING

AROMA Moving,any size truck + 2 men,$35/hr. & up. 450-0381

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Homes, offices, apts. Family busnss. Reasonable. 274-6144.

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 738-4030, 663-0630.

S&M Movers. Short notice. 1 man $35/hr, 2:$50.,3:$65. 16' & 30'. Metro/surr. Insur. 747-7082

449 PEST CONTROL

Magical Pest Control will make your problems disappear. Gov't. lic. & approved. Call Moshe Joseph at 416-784-0220

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPERING

Benjamin & Moore painting & gen. improv. needs. Prof. workmanship. Comm./Res. 905-761-1542, pgr. 416-379-3082, Ben.

David Painter. Prof. Workmanship. Jewish, Hebrew, Hungarian, Romanian. 905-660-7794.

Exp. painter/ plasterer/ vinyl tile flooring. Best prices. Free est. Guaranteed. Bill, 638-9249.

Harry's Painting, for painting & wallpapering needs. 755-2021.

Prof. painting/paperhanging, Jacob 667-9869, no shabbos calls.

Bargain Painter, apts, houses, offices. Mikhilov, 633-5973.

452 PARTY SERVICES

Caricatures by Don. Quality caricaturist works at parties, Bar Mitzvahs, etc. Book now, high Demand! Don, 416-538-4100.

420 INVITATIONS/ PRINTING

Call Gilda Lefton for your invitations & accessories. Weddings, Bar/Bat Mitzvahs - Cdn., U.S., & custom. (905) 881-5588.

Barbara Morufield
INVITATIONS
Best wishes for a Happy and Healthy New Year to family, friends and clients
(905) 738-1232

455 PHOTOGRAPHY/ VIDEO

 STARDOM * .... we can't promise you; just excellent Videos. Our Bar/Bat Mitzvah coverage from $395 and our "unique" PHOTO PUZZLE as an alternative to the candlelighting ceremony. SPOTLIGHT VIDEO 905-886-3210

PRESERVE THOSE PRECIOUS MEMORIES. YOUR Stories; YOUR memoirs...and more. YOUR "BIOGRAPHY" on VIDEO Movies, Slides and Photos transferred to VIDEO. Fred Nelson 905-866-3210.

VIDEOCCASIONS proudly presents for BAR-BAT MITZVAHS, PHOTO-VIDEO Service, under $1,000. Call Andy (905) 737-6800.

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Rabbi avail. to perform weddings. 416-787-4455.

477 SECOND HAND STORES

Amelia's Deal Ya
consignment company
MOVING? DOWNSIZING?
We sell •FINE FURNITURE •ACCESSORIES •ANTIQUES
PRIVATE IN-HOME CONTENTS & ESTATE SALES.
(416) 789-6350
2788 Bathurst St. (at Glencairn)

477 SECOND HAND STORES

The Contents Connection Ltd.
HOME CONTENTS LIQUIDATORS
"WE SELL AT YOUR PLACE OR OURS"
416-256-3566
3321 BATHURST STREET
SALES UPDATE 905-660-7717

483 SKIING

THE GEORGIAN PEAKS CLUB
A unique opportunity to join Ontario's Premier
Private Ski Club
For Only $12,500
(Save $7500) Limited Time Offer
Call Rick Trumble
1-800-461-9723

490 TABLE COVERINGS

Made To Measure
TABLE PADS
Dover Pad. Finest quality since 1950. Heat resistant to 600°F. Many colours. Home service, no obligation.
1-800-354-4445

Artege Table Pads Custom-made, top quality, heat resistant. Wide selection, courteous home service. 745-2711.

500 TUTORING/ LESSONS

Cert. exper. Hebrew teacher avail., (all levels), incl. Bar/Bat Mitzvah. (416) 633-6185.

Hebrew lessons by an exper. teacher. Call 787-8503.

500 TUTORING/ LESSONS

Guitar Lessons - all styles & levels. Experienced, patient teacher makes learning fun and progress fast. Bathurst/ Sheppard. Also piano and computer music (MIDI) instruction. Call 416-633-9181 Also Bathurst/Clark location

Hebrew lessons for all ages, M.A.,Tel Aviv Univ., 6 yrs. Cdn. exper. Progress through fun Call Z'ev, 416-730-9113.

Hebrew Lessons. Exp. teacher. Reading, writing, conversation,Jewish Traditions. All ages Bath./Centre. 905-771-0500.

Need a tutor? Exper. teacher in Bath./Egl. area with elem./secon./special ed. background will work with students from elem to Univ., on language, math, organiz. & study skills. Excell. rates. Call David Zeldin, 416-784-4318

Private lessons in Hebrew
- Children and Adults
- Competitive Rates
- Certified by the Board of Jewish Education's Teachers Seminary (Midrasha)

Call Hillel at (416) 638-6411

510 UPHOLSTERY

Arctic Custom Upholstering Free est. Let us beautify your yesterdays furniture. Free armcovers, free toss pillows with every 2-piece suite. 665-3445.

530 WINDOW CLEANING

Jay's Cleaning Services, int./ext. windows, eavestrough maint. for firs. & gen. cleaning Low Rates. 416-633-2862.

CLASSIFIED/SERVICE DIRECTORY — CUSTOMER SERVICE —

The CJN requires that advertisers check their advertisement upon publication, as The CJN will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion, and there shall be no liability for non-insertion of any advertisement. Liability for errors in advertisements is limited to the amount paid for the space occupying the error. All copy is subject to the approval of the management of The CJN. The CJN reserves the right to classify all advertisements.

The Canadian Jewish news

CLASSIFIED/SERVICE DIRECTORY

PLEASE NOTE: EARLY DEADLINES FOR THE FOLLOWING ISSUES:

OCTOBER 15
Deadline
Tuesday, Oct. 7th, 3pm

OCTOBER 22
Deadline
Friday, Oct. 10th, 1pm

OCTOBER 30
Deadline
Monday, Oct. 20th, 3pm

The Canadian Jewish News office will be closed on the following days:
Thursday, October 2, Friday, October 3, Monday, October 13 (Thanksgiving), Thursday, October 16, Friday, October 17, Thursday, October 23 and Friday, October 24.

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Forest Hill

Real Estate Inc. Realtor

(416) 488-2875 (416) 226-1987

FOREST HILL REAL ESTATE INC. WISHES THEIR CLIENTS AND FRIENDS A WONDERFUL, HEALTHY, HAPPY AND FRUITFUL NEW YEAR

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

NEW PRICE! APPROX. 3800 SQ. FT.!
5 bdrm., 5 bath, SOLD lot! Reesa Sud* 488-2875

"GRAND NEW!" BATHURST & LAWRENCE
4+1 bdrm., all the trims. Howard Rensler* 488-2875

TIMBERLANE DR. - RARE OPPORTUNITY $690,000
On breathtaking 80'x310' ravine lot. Patti Pollock* 226-1987

BEST VALUE IN UPPER VILLAGE!
Gracious 4 bdrm., 4 bath, won't last. Reesa Sud* 488-2875

BATHURST/EGLINTON $579.000
Superb custom home! 4 bdrms., 4 baths. F. Sversky 488-2875

BATHURST/SHEPPARD - REDUCED TO $439,000
New & beautifully custom built on 251' lot. P. Pollock* 226-1987

AVENUE RD./WILSON $369,000
3 bdrms. + 3 baths, fin. bsmt. C. Sniderman* 488-2875

BATHURST/LAWRENCE - JUST $279,000
Renovated 1.5 storey home. Faithe Sversky 488-2875

NORTH PROPERTIES

WESTMOUNT MANSION! NEW PRICE!
Gorgeous 5 bdrm., priced to sell! I. Weisz* 488-2875

JUST LISTED! GREENLANE/LESLIE $479K
"Power of Sale" custom home, 4 bdrms. F. Sversky 488-2875

ARNOLD AVE./AREA - ATT: BUILDERS
Choice of lots $269K - $759K. Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

ATKINSON & CLARK - 3 BR. DET. - $259,900
Main fam. rm., 2 car gar. & more. Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

ATT: 1ST TIME BUYERS NOW $203,000
3 br. on cres., huge kit. & more. H. Zaionz* 226-1987

CONDOMINIUMS

ST. CLAIR 3 BEDROOM CONDO $449,000
A must see won't SOLD all Mark Cowan* 226-1987

1ST AD GRANITE PLACE "STUNNING!"
$379K. 2 bdrm., huge balcony. Mary Warsh* 488-2875

SKYMARK "ZENITH" - SUPERB - MUST SEE
2 bdrm., 2 baths, fam. rm. & sol. S. Train* 226-1987

Associate Broker *Sales Representative

Paul Slavens

REAL ESTATE INC. REALTOR

RESULTS RESULTS RESULTS

483-4337

FINE HOMES

CEDARVALE - JUST LISTED
$225,000. Great starter home. 3 bedrooms, eat-in kitchen, finished lower level w/side entrance. Private drive & garage. Don Wagman.

• • •

ARBOUR GLEN - 1ST AD
$229,000. Nestled in the heart of Rosedale, this 2 bedroom suite has ultra modern white kitchen & lovely living rm. with marble fireplace. A must to see! *Marlene Federman.

• • •

CASTLEHILL - $649,000.
This magnificent townhome overlooks Casa Loma. Unique & spacious centre hall plan. 4+ bdrms. spacious principal rms. + lower level family rm. Private elevator & attached garage. *Carol Cotton.

• • •

LOWER VILLAGE - $749,000.00
Handsome Tudor. 4 bdrmns., 4 baths. Main floor family rm. w/built-ins. Finished lower level. Secluded garden. Private drive & garage. *Edith Weiss.

• • •

ARMOUR HEIGHTS - $379,000.
Updated centre hall. 3 bdrms., main floor den + powder room. Fin l/lvl w/extra bdrm., rec rm., office & bath. Superb lot on quiet tree-lined street. Dble. garage. *Marlene Federman.

• • •

YONGE / EGLINTON - $275,000.
Two storey, 2 bdrm. condo townhome in exclusive complex. Marble foyer, kitchen floor & fireplace. CAC. W/O to patio. Minutes to downtown. *Barbara Kaplan.

• • •

YONGE / ST. CLAIR - $208,000
Stunning 2 bdrm. condo with w/o to balcony. Insuite laundry. Beautiful east view. Parki SOLD security. Fabulous location. Natalie Schacter.

• • •

YONGE / FINCH - $168,800.
Superb 1,100 sq. ft. suite SOLD + 2 baths. Tastefully upgraded. Majestic view. Increa location & amenities. *Heather Sherman.

• • •

HEATHCOTE / HARRISON
Beautifully reno'd 4 bdrm SOLD bungalow. Generous principal rms., family room. Privat landscaped garden w/pool. 100' x 125' grounds. *Leslie Dennis

• • •

(416) 483-4337

* Sales Representative Associate Broker

LET US GET RESULTS FOR YOU

SERVING YOUR REAL ESTATE NEEDS SINCE 1969

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

HK

HARVEY KALLES

REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR

Celebrating our 40th Year!

Harvey, Elise & Michael Kalles along with their entire staff wish all their friends, family & clients a very Happy & Healthy New Year

AVENUE RD./WILSON - 40' LOT!
Cozy 2 bdrm. bungalow on sunny south lot! F/place, sep. side entrance, fin. rec. rm. & more. Ellie Parker

1ST AD! SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
446 Glencairn! $395K! Fab. Alexandra Wood 40'x150'!

LOCATION! LOCATION!
Cedarvale 4 bdrm.! Large LR/DR, Eat-in kit., sep. side entrance, Fin. rec. rm. Only $429,000. Ellie Parker

1ST AD! BUNGALOW $529,000
Denlow area SOLD nd. Beautifully renovated, 3 bdrm., fam. rm., great b mt. Marilyn Feldman*

SOLD! SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
12 Alexandra Wood • 23 Kelway Blvd. • 56 Regina
212 Carmichael • 43 Elm Ridge • 260 Heath #1105
72 Dell Park • 268 Greer Rd. • 1360 Avenue Rd.
1818 Bayview #406, #407, #411, #502, #505 • 2 Codsell

SOLD! SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
15 Strathallan Blvd. $567,890! Reno 4+1 bdrm., 4 bath, rnn. den O/L's I/G pool! Impeccable move in cond!

SOLD! SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
46 Bowring Walk • 202 Lauder • 178 Upper Canada
277 Cortleigh • 400 Brooke • 3555 Bathurst #307
247 Patricia • 45 Riderwood • 132 Glenvale Blvd.
333 Glengrove • 39 Kilbarry • 162 Hillhurst Blvd.

FOREST HILL RD./HEATH
Very special home in wonderful location! 40'x126' lot, 3+1 bdrm., 4 baths, mod. amenities. J. Solomon

* Sales Representative  Associate Broker

A percentage of all our sales will be donated to "Turning Point Charity" supporting Homeless Youth.

(416) 441-2888 www.harveykalles.com

"WE OPEN DOORS FOR YOU"

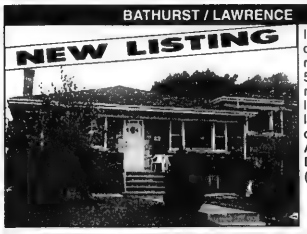
DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED

787-1712

Wishing You a Happy and Healthy New Year

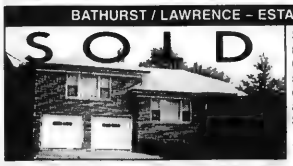
שנה טובה ומתוקה

BATHURST / LAWRENCE



Immaculate, spacious 3 + 1 bedroom bungalow, 50 ft. lot, separate entry to in-law suite, fabulous location, only $369,000. ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / LAWRENCE – ESTATE SALE



Spacious 3 bdrm. ranch bungalow on 60 ft. lot, quiet street, fab. location, doubl SOLD rage above grade, only $379,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / HILLHURST

Spacious 5 bedroom side-split, 59 x 128 ft. lot, prestigious location, priced to sell at only $439,000. ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / SHEPPARD — REDUCED
Charming 3+1 bedroom bungalow, huge 63' lot, renovated eat-in kitchen, separate entry to in-law suite, WON'T LAST at only $229,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

BATHURST / HILLMOUNT – REDUCED $70,000
3,700 sq. ft. (approx.) + finished basement. Bright open concept, 5 bedrooms, 4 baths, hardwood floors, Jacuzzi, sauna, hot tub, only $429,000! ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — EXCLUSIVE
Luxurious 5 bedroom, custom-built, 4,000 sq. ft. (approx.) + finished basement, loaded with upgrades, main floor fam. room, library, asking $699,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

GLEN PARK — SPACIOUS EXECUTIVE HOME
4 + 2 bedrooms, modern family-style kitchen, family room, separate entry to in-law suite, double garage (above grade), asking $519,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

CLANTON PARK — REDUCED
Charming 3 bdrm. on 50 x 150 ft. lot, close to shuls, park, highly desirable location, family values. Great buy at only $289,000! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / VIEWMOUNT – ARCHITECTURAL GEM!

Custom built, stunning quality craftsmanship + finishes. 4200 sq. ft. (approx.) + fin. bsmt. 9 1/2 ft. ceilings on main floor, Neff designer kitchen. Live your dreams NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

SHANA TOVA

FROM ALL YOUR FRIENDS AT SUTTON GROUP-TOWNE CENTRE REALTY INC.

Alexander, Patricia
Atkins, Jason
Ben-David, Hedva
Benegbi, Ron
Benegbi, Sharon
Berman, Bea
Berman, Howard
Bitton, Joseph
Braun, Hanita
Brownstein, Paul
Burg, Mordie
Byk, Lana
Cadeau, Michelle
Cass, Anna
Ching, Elizabeth
Cohen, Harriet
Cohen, Mike
Dailey, Byron, W.
Drabik, Peter
Eastwood, Joseph
Friedman, Hazel
Ghahari, Behzad
Goldfinger, Eva
Goldfinger, Joe
Hadida, Leon
Henry, Sid
Horovitch, Brenda
Horovitch, Marty
Howkins, Vy
Kaganovsky, Tony
Kenigsvain, Riva
Kerbel, Stephen
Korda, Eva
Korda, Ivan
Krasnov, Rita
Kubik, Peter
Lipovetsky, Mikhail
Lipton, Cheryl
Macey, Mike
Macey, Terry
Maiato, Julie
Mayert, Gina
Mishan, Batya
Mitnik, Elena
Nagy, Gorete
Papas, Steve
Popovic, Donna
Reiz, Igor
Shuster, Iris
Sibilia, Ora
Simone, Ahuva
Smolyar, Marina
Smolyar, Mark
Socket, Anna
Waters, Phil
Wexler, Terry
Wolman, Adam
Wong, Maurice
Yip, Billy
Zeltser, Matvey

Associate Brokers

Ahuva Simone
President

Sutton Group-Towne Centre Realty Inc.
AN INDEPENDENT MEMBER BROKER
Sutton GROUP
5 Glen Cameron Rd., Thornhill
(416) 222-2003

BRENDA ABRAMSON

(Sales Representative for over 19 years)

Celebrating our 40th Year!

2145 Avenue Road
Toronto, Ontario
(416) 441-2888

Extends best wishes to all her clients, relatives and friends for a very healthy, prosperous and happy New Year.

OPEN HOUSE - OCTOBER 5th - 2-5 P.M.
27 MCMORRAN CRES. – THORNHILL

Bathurst-Steeles area. - Detached, 2 storey all brick. 3 large bdr. 3 1/2 baths, prof. fin. bsmnt with bdr., rec. rm & wet bar. Parquet floor, new ceramics. Direct entry from gar. $304,900.

Call ROSE PRINTZ
Re/Max Realtron Rlty. Inc. (905) 764-6000

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Larry, Darlene, Lynsey and Tarah Wronzberg

ALAN NEWTON
REAL ESTATE LTD. REALTOR

From my Family to your Family. Wishing all my clients, friends and family a very happy, healthy and prosperous New Year! Thank you for your support throughout the year!

לשנה טובה תכתבו

Wishing all of our clients, family and friends
SHANAH TOVAH U'METUKAH
Michael Harari
Countrywide/Amrax Real Estate
(416) 218-5566

NORMAN HILL REALTY INC.

Wishes All Our Clients & Friends a Happy & Healthy New Year

NORMAN HILL REALTY INC.
THE BEST ADVICE IS THE right ADVICE
40 YEARS OF EXPERIENCE

416 - 226-5515

COLDWELL BANKER

PINNACLE REAL ESTATE
100 Steeles Avenue West
Thornhill, Ontario
(905) 707-8001

To all our friends, customers and clients

May the promise of the New Year be bright with hope and blessed with peace and happiness.

Barbara Raber - Associate Broker/Manager

ALAN NEWTON

REAL ESTATE LTD. REALTOR

Alan Newton & Staff would like to take this opportunity to wish all their Clients, Friends & Relatives
a Happy, Healthy
and Prosperous
New Year

HOMELIFE FIRST CHOICE

LOU SHAPIRO and LES SPELLMAN
and the staff of
HOMELIFE/FIRST CHOICE REALTY INC.
would like to wish their clients, families and friends a very Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year 1945 Leslie Street (just north of York Mills)
(416) 383-1828
HomeLife/First Choice . . . Your best Choice!

SEIDMAN

REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR
633-7373

ABE, DONNA & STAFF WISH THEIR RELATIVES, FRIENDS & CUSTOMERS
A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR

Service at it's finest, always!

HOMELIFE
HOMELIFE/BAYVIEW REALTY INC.
STEVEN GREEN
Sales Representative
PLATINUM AWARD WINNER
416-324-2822

Happy Rosh Hashanah to all my clients, relatives & friends. Wishing all of you a very happy & healthy holiday & a year filled with much mazel & naches.

Susan MACARZ

Associate Broker

Wishing all my clients, friends and family a very happy, healthy and prosperous New Year. Shana Tova.

RE/MAX Ultimate Realty Inc. Realtor
(416) 487-5731
P.O. Box 35528, 2528 Bayview Ave., North York, Ont. M2L 2Y4 • Fax: (416) 733-2778

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

COLDWELL BANKER

PINNACLE REAL ESTATE
(905) 707-8001

Mollie Rothman

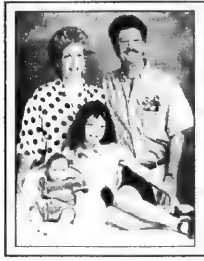
Best Wishes to all for a Happy & Healthy New Year

I specialize in helping Singles & Families buy & sell homes

BRIDLEPATH
PROGRESSIVE REAL ESTATE INC REALTOR

Wishing all our clients & friends a Happy & Healthy New Year

CAROLYN FELDMAN, ELEANOR LONDON, BARBARA JACOBS, ELIZABETH BERNARD
Bridlepath Progressive Real Estate Inc. Realtor
449-0090



"The Waisglass family, Perry, Tina, Jenna & Noah would like to wish everyone a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year."
PERRY WAISGLASS

ALAN NEWTON
REAL ESTATE LTD. REALTOR
(905) 764-7200

PARTNERS REALTY INC.
229-4454

HOMELIFE HIGHER STANDARDS

We extend our warmest wishes for a Happy & Healthy New Year

ALLAN KROCH & BEVERLEY WISE
"YOUR PARTNERS IN REAL ESTATE"
HomeLife/Partners Realty Inc.

COLDWELL BANKER TERREQUITY REALTY
Expect the Best

Residential and Commercial

Wishing all our customers and our friends A Happy and Healthy New Year Shana Tova

Meir Sharvit Associate Broker
211 Consumers Road, Suite 105 Willowdale, Ontario M2J 4G8
Tel: 416-496-9220 Fax: 416-756-3287

HOMELIFE CIMERMAN R.E. HIGHER STANDARDS

HOMELIFE/CIMERMAN REAL ESTATE LTD.
226-9770
28 DREWRY AVE. WILLOWDALE, ONT.

PAUL WINSTON, Sr. Vice-President
and the staff of
HOMELIFE/CIMERMAN R.E. wish the Jewish Community a Happy & Healthy New Year

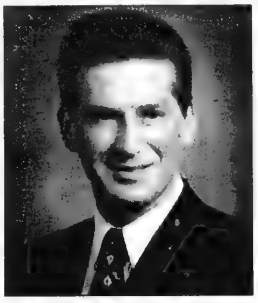
5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Maxine Povering
Associate Broker, B.E.S.

HARVEY KALLES
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR
Celebrating our 40th Year!

Wishing all my clients, friends and family a very healthy, happy and prosperous New Year.

2145 Avenue Rd.
Toronto, Ont., M5M 4B2
(416) 441-2888



HARVEY KALLES
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR
Celebrating our 40th Year!

A happy and healthy New Year

BUS: 441-2888
RES: 785-9917

SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, M.S.W.
Vice-President, Associate Broker
#1 in number of PROPERTIES SOLD '96 at HKRE

CUSTOM BLT. BEST VALUE
BATHURST-LAURELCREST AREA
• 5 bdrms. & baths, huge lot, classic beauty, child safe street ONLY $489,900 Also Available:
BATHURST YORK DOWNS AREA
• 5 bdrms. & baths ABSOLUTELY GORGEOUS, very quiet street ONLY $629,000
• 3 bdrms., 2 baths, bungalow, marble & ceramics ONLY $319,900
• 3 bdrms., 1 1/2 storey, 50>66 x 125 ONLY $239,000

ANNETTE ROSENTHAL
wishes Shana Tova to all
416-633-6666 or 416-704-1471
HOMELIFE/5 STAR LTD.

RUTH HALPERIN
Sales Representative
ReMax Ultimate Realty Inc.
Top 1% Internationally
Re/Max Hall of Fame
Member of Platinum Award Club

Bathurst/Glencairn - Gorgeous New Home!
$549,000 - Fab. 4 bdrm., 5 baths, 9' ceilings! 3100 sq. ft. plus fin. bsmt. with walk-out and nanny ste., beautiful deep lot, dble gar. - all the bells and whistles - best value in the area!

Avenue/Lawrence - Kimbark Otter area
Now $369,000 - Special family SOLD 5 bdrms., m.f. fam. rm., c/air, deep 150' lot. Won't last now!

Bayview/Sheppard - All the "I Wants"
$449,000 - Br. and new 4 BR, maples kit., with granite counters, fin. bsmt with walk-out, interlocked driveway, quiet street! SOLD

I HAVE SERIOUS PURCHASERS LOOKING FOR HOMES - CALL ME TODAY FOR A FREE/NO OBLIGATION MARKET EVALUATION OF YOUR PROPERTY.

Wishing all my clients, friends and family a Happy and Healthy New Year

RE/MAX Ultimate Realty Inc. Realtor
(416) 487-5131
24 hour pager

SEIDMAN
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR
633-7373

FINCH WILMINGTON
Cust. built, 4 bdrm. split lvl., 3 bths, huge liv. & din. comb., fam. rm., w/out, rec. rm., ravine lot. dble. gar.

• • •

BATHURST STEELES
4 bdrm. bung., 3 bths., sep. liv. & din., mod. kit., fin.w/out bsmnt., steps to all.

• • •

ALLEN RD. SUBWAY
Tri-plex, fully rented, good income, balcs, bths ensuite, A-1 buy!

• • •

SHEPPARD WILMINGTON
Store + apt., well-maint. building, ideal for many uses.

• • •

A. & D. SEIDMAN 633-7373

10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE

Bath./Lawr,55',spac lrg 3 bdrm bung,bright,upgrades,new deck & kit,fin bsmt. Private. 782-1984

24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY

York Mills/Bayview,No agents Private. 416-948-5555.

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

The SKYMARK Specialist
NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY.
Today's price is tomorrow's bargain.

ZENITH & ELEGANCE - 2 well-priced listings. 2 bdrm. + fam. + sol., 2 pk. Flexible poss. For our updated inventory, call Santee Leung, E.R.I.

Santee Realty Inc.
(416)
441-2003
(24 hrs.)

BATHURST-CENTRE
Ask $219,900 - 3 bedroom, 3 baths, close to Promenade Mall, synagogue, schools.
BATHURST-TORRESDALE
Just listed! End unit condo over 1600 sq. ft., family rm., gorgeous, upgraded, must be sold.
SALLY ROSEN
(905) 884-4425
CENTURY 21 SMITH LTD.

THORNHILL
• 3+2 on pk., sauna, 4 baths, $339K
• 3 bdrms., new kit. brdlm., wdws., $234K
Call David Burstyn, Sutton Group Admiral Realty, 739-7200

30 CONDOMIONIUM FOR SALE

DENISE ABRAHAM
Coldwell Banker
Pinnacle Real Estate
416 - 485-2299

WISHING ALL MY CLIENTS A VERY HAPPY, PEACEFUL, HEALTHY & PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR.

I would like to thank you all for making 5757 the No. 1 Year in my real estate career. HAPPY 5758.

Lawrence W. Subway $285,000. Just Listed 3 Bdrm. Bung., In-law Apt., 50'x103' Lot. Call Denise Abraham.
Glencairn W. Subway 2-3 Bdrm. Condo, Fab View, Pool, Sauna, Parking, From $110,000 to $139,000. Call Denise Abraham.
Bathurst/Glencairn 2 Bdrm + Den, Security, From $174,900. Call Denise Abraham.

COLDWELL BANKER PINNACLE REAL ESTATE

Gideon Waichenberg
Sales Representative
(416) 520-5700
Re/Max Venture Realty Corp.

Happy New Year to everyone

60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION

2 bdrm to share, Bath./Lg., pref. young prof/grad student, kosher. Jonathan, 783-5928.

75 APARTMENT FOR RENT

BATHURST/SHEPPARD
Very lg 1, 2, 3 Bdrms, ample closets, some 1½ baths & 2 balc; roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, ind. pkg., 6 apts per flr. From $850.
960-3238 - Bus.
631-9377or 631-0388 - Super

80 SHORT TERM RENTAL

Clark/Hilda, 2 bdrm, 2 bth, 2 pkg, rec. centre, Dec. 1-Mar. 31 (flexible). 905-889-4382.

82 ROOM FOR RENT

Bath./Steeles, for a male student, kitchen privileges, share bthrm. Call 416-661-3838.

125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE

The Hemispheres. Beautiful 2 bdrm., fully furnished, completely renovated, on ocean, parking included. 416-488-0442.

125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE

HOLLYWOOD BEACH - 2 oceanfront, furnished efficiencies, $38,000 U.S. each or $70,000 U.S. for 2 adjoining units. 1-888-907-2837.

Luxury 2 stry. det. home, fully furn. in exclusive country club community in Boca Raton, exc. facil. Discount on golf equity,3 bdrms,3 bths,2 car gar, pool, jacuzzi,$359K U.S. 416-927-1773

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

QUADOMAIN, HOLLYWOOD, FLA. Spectacular oceanview, 2 bdrm. convertible on beach for rent, fully furnished, Kosher. 633-4141.

3 bdrm, 2 full bth condo in Coconut Creek,newly decorated, will sleep 8, rent for winter season. 410-484-0835, after 6pm.

Arlen House, facing south, 6th flr., 1 bdrm, 1 1/2 bths,beautifully furn,min 3 mos,all you need is your clothes. 416-780-1551.

Delray Beach, beautiful condo., 2 bdrms., 2 baths, screened porch, garden, furn., 3 pools, tennis, close to shul., 3 mos., Million $$ Club. 905-886-4930.

Hallandale, 1 bdrm conv., 2 bths., for Dec.-March, on intercoastal, across the St. from ocean, highrise bldg., gorgeous view, fully furn. & equip. $1500./mo. U.S. + util. + taxes. 732-247-6744.

Highland Lakes area, beautif. furn. 1 bdrm. apt, att. to home, on a lake, gated comm., grnd flr. apt, pool, priv. entr., avail. Nov.-Mar. Robin, 305-935-6252

Palm Aire, 2 bdrm., 2 bath, newly furnished, main flr., 3 mos. min., beginning Jan. '98. Call 416-496-2900.

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

FLORIDA PROPERTIES!!
Looking to Buy or Sell in Florida??
HOMES • CONDOS • COMMERCIAL
• RELOCATION SPECIALISTS •
Call your "CANADIAN CONNECTION"
MARSHALL POLLOCK, Realtor
Prudential Wites Realty, Inc.
Toll Free 1-888-907-2837 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. - 7 Days
(referral fees paid Canadian Realtors)

ANBER MOVERS
(LOCAL MOVING)
SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO ↔ VANCOUVER
NEW YORK ↔ FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE

North Miami Beach, Coastal Towers, 2 bdrms, 2 bath condo. $1,300/mo. U.S. or purchase $79.9K U.S., avail immed. 416-223-7147.

Palm Beach condo., oceanfront, 2 bdrms., 2 baths, furn., immed. occup. 416-504-4267.

140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Palm Aire or Boca, furn. 2 bdrm, Dec. 20-Feb. 20 (flexible), n/smkrs, n/pets, responsible couple. 905-771-1988.

175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Moving to Israel from Toronto. Looking for a furn 2-3 bdrm apt between Jaffa to just north of Herziliya, pref. with a seaside view, for a 6 mo. - 1 yr. period. Only 1 tenant.Please call David, 416-785-0108. P.S. Willing to share upon your visits to Israel.

215 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT

GREAT SPACES INC.
PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
1987 to 1997
Professional and Affordable
You can relax . . . We do it all
Wishing all our customers and our friends
A happy and Healthy New Year
Shana Tova
MEIR SHARVIT
1865 LESLIE ST. #204, DON MILLS, ONT. M3B 2M3
416 - 445-4286 Fax: 416 - 445-4010

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Help wanted for a Jewish bookstore.Must have solid Jewish education,able to read & speak Hebrew,some sales exper,well read. F/T pos. to start immed.Please call either Jodi Segal or Izzy Kaplan, 256-2858.

Secretary, exper. in Property Management, typing, car essential. Established R.E. Co. Fax résumé to: 416-421-8803.

247 DAY CARE

Carla's kids Castle, 10 mos.-3 yrs., pre-school nursery, learning centre, Sun.-Thurs., flex. hrs. Carla, 244-4172. Keele/ Wilson area.

Day Care in safe, warm, home, exper. ECE teacher + assistant, F/T, kosher nutritional meals, Bath/Centre area.905-771-0500

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

An Orthodox Israeli girl (27) who keeps Shabbat & Kashrut is looking for a job to take care of an elderly lady or children. Please contact me: 011-972-3-6185122 (after 9pm Israeli time)

I will keep your home clean & tidy on a regular basis (small offices also) at reas. rates. Call Angie 780-9874, after 5 pm.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

GOLDEN CARE LTD.
People you trust taking care of people you love.
We have live-in and live-out caregivers. We specialize in helping seniors, and people afflicted with Stroke, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's.
LOW RATES WITH THE BEST PERSONAL SERVICE
Honey Hecker
(416) 665-4229

NEED A NANNY?
APPLE DOMESTICS
• No Fee to Employer
• Professionally screened, Qualified, Live-in Nannies available for sponsorship.
• Choose from Nurses, Midwives, Teachers
• We prepare all documents for you.
• We have a 100% Approval rate!
(416) 730-0127

MARLA'S DOMESTICS
RECEIVE THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
Live-in/out nannies, care for the elderly, cleaning. Bonded, references.
Call MARLA
226-4325

Harvscott Domestic Services
"Five stars above the rest"
Available: prof. cleaning ladies, nannies, housekeepers,party helpers. Exper. with refs. & legal. 905-771-7882.

 Need Help For the High Holidays? Top Agency will provide prof. support from serving to preparation of foods, cleaning & child care. Relax & enjoy your special holiday with the assistance of No. 1 Domestic Service. Call today to book an appointment. Please refer to this advertisement when you call.
(416) 630-0674 or 224-9907

Kosher cook/cleaner avail. 1 day/wk., top refs. Liz, 534-8247.

Mature, exper, caring companion (live-in/out), for elderly person, cooking, homecare, outings, appt's, errands, meds. Outstanding refs. from former employer. Call Rexi, 696-6513.

Nannies, housekeepers, companions for elderly, cleaning ladies, live-in or out. Sponsorship from overseas. No fee for the Sponsor. Excellent Placement Agency, 222-4912.

Palm Aire - Cypress Bend Buying, Selling or Renting. Call us for all your Real Estate needs.
Wieder Realty Inc.
(954) 978-8300

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

Cleaning lady avail. for offices/homes,reas. fees. 252-1013.

Cleaning lady, exper, Polish, Russian, English speaking (refs. avail.) 416-239-8227,Aggi

Cleaning with pride at afford. prices.Res./Comm. FREE Est. Insured, Bonded. 905-507-9654

Experienced babysitter available, refs. 416-412-3240.

Frustrated by trying to find a suitable nanny? Let us help you. We have dependable, caring nannies who are thoroughly qualified, personaly interviewed & pre-screened. All refs. are checked. Some are CPR trained. Low finders fee.
Wee Care Placement Agency
416-789-3070

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

High quality house cleaning. Call Dora, 736-1179.

European cleaning lady looking to clean your home,exper., refs. Call 416-516-1730.

Polish cleaning lady, housekeeper avail.,exper. 266-7208.

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

MNS
MILLENNIUM NURSING SERVICE
• Offers competitive rates
• Provides 24 hour on-call service
• Performs follow-up service
RN'S • RPN'S • HCA'S
(905) 785-7285

Certified HCA seeks job in home/institution, exper., refs. 246-9863 or 782-7203.

Woman looking to work with elderly for companion, caregiver, 6 days/wk. 416-862-5563.

Young woman, HCA, seeks f/t job to care for elderly. 463-6959

260 BUSINESS PERSONALS

JEWISH SINGLES--please call 416-633-2343. Connect Now.

Soulmates Worldwide Jewish Introduction Service! The last Service you'll ever need! Hundreds of upscale clients.
Call Evelyn 905-709-3868
www.soulmates.net

Bringing People Together. Ruth guides you to choose from over 1000 personally interviewed members.905-731-5204

Full JSR membership for sale, very good disc. 905-881-4691.

Jewish Singles Registry. Photos/Bios. Toronto's Largest with over 1450 registered. Ask about our Guarantee. 483-4151

The Jewish Dating Network, Money-Back Guarantee, 1-800-263-6831,Fax: 1-800-293-6297. www.jewishdate.com

264 SOCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

Barbara & Perry Bender and Sheila & Harvey Leopold are delighted to announce the engagement of their children, Lisa and Andrew. Proud great-grandmother is Anna Charloff, and happy grandparents are Vera and Barney Morrison, Frankie Bender, Ben & Ruth Sand, and Max and Dina Himmelfarb (Leopold).

WILSON-ELLIS. Frank & Judith Wilson and Don & Olive Ellis are delighted to announce the engagement and the upcoming marriage of their children, Evan and Tracey, on March 7, 1998. Proud grandparents are Jenny Wilson of Delray Beach, Florida, & Julius & Elizabeth Winter of Miami, Florida.

265 PEOPLE SEARCH

Mailech Welcman is looking for Emanuel Welcman. Please call 905-882-1074, ask for Ted.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED

I have a fine, considerate, reliable, indep. brother, 41, who has a slight learning disability & dreams of meeting a caring, sensitive woman for a long term relationship. 221-4714.

Man, 85, would like to meet a Jewish woman for marriage and company. 416-781-1611.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED

Attr. Jewish man (secular), intell., athletic, honest, romantic, loyal, humourous, down-to-earth, fin. secure, 42, 175 lbs., 5'8", separated, seeking a woman friend, confidante, travel/life mate. You are a n/smkr., under 35, slim & very attr, eclectic, adventurous, intell., romantic, compassionate & witty. You enjoy travel, nature hikes, physical activity, dining out/in, dancing, music, quiet evgs. Friends first, more if the chemistry is right. karle@cyberdude.com or CJN Box 6972.

Heimish mentsh, male, 54, n/smkr, tall, young, multi-talented, loves to dance, walk in the park, big band jazz, latin music, warm, sensitive, down-to-earth, funny, speaks Hebrew, Romanian, Yiddish & Hungarian, seeking slim, attr. lady, with all the above interests, for a meaningful relationship, possible marriage. Shana Tova. CJN Box 6970.

Hi guys! I'm an attr. 27 yr. old Jewish female, 5'6 1/2", light brown hair, hazel eyes. I'm large framed, but not too large. I enjoy sports (but not all sports), travel, movies, different varieties of music, long walks & esp. the outdoors in the hot summer weather. I'm honest, down-to-earth & family oriented. I'm a n/smkr. & have never married. I'm seeking a man for a serious relationship leading to marriage & family. CJN Box 6973.

PRETENTIOUS? Not me - a widow, 50, (reform) from Hamilton. Instead of the tangibles, I treasure family, loyal friends, compassion & integrity. I'm a nurturer, free-spirited, slightly off the wall & benignly eccentric. If you think you may be my Jewish male counterpart, please elaborate when responding to CJN Box 6963.

Prof. male, 50's, with many interests, including sports, theatre, travel & just socializing, would like to meet similar female. CJN Box 6976.

Replying to a Companion ad with a CJN Box Number?
Address your mail to:
Box #_____
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ontario
M3B 3K4

310 ARTICLES/ SWAP/ EXCHANGE

MONEY EXCHANGE. Ca$h to Ca$h. Up to US $7,000. (or equiv.) per transaction. Delivered to your home or workplace. 905-889-2093.

330 OBITUARIES

313 BOATS

N. Miami Beach, Mystic Pt boat-slip, very reas. at a great price. 905-707-9777.

330 OBITUARIES

GOODBAUM, Vivah - on Sept 11, 1997, late of 9 Purdon Dr.
HEIT, MURRAY - on Sept. 11, 1997, late of 270 Martin St.
SOREN, Rose - on Sept. 11, 1997, late of 400 Walmer Rd., #2125.
GOLDSTEIN, Maximilian - on Sept. 12, 1997, late of 21 Vaughan Rd., #904.
WEISBAUM, David - on Sept. 12, 1997, late of 135 Antibes Ave., #1704.
MILLER, Seymour - on Sept. 13, 1997, late of 128 Wentworth St.
CHARAD, Rose - on Sept. 14, 1997, late of 1035 Eglinton Ave. W.
KATZ, Frances - on Sept. 14, 1997, late of 7 Banquo Rd.
NAINUDEL, Julia - on Sept 14, 1997, late of 6250 Bathurst St., #1215.
SAX, Al - on Sept. 14, 1997, late of 531 Spadina Rd., #1.
SMITH, Abbott - on Sept. 15, 1997, late of 25 Glencedar Rd.
WEIL, Candy - on Sept. 15, 1997, late of 12 MacPherson Ave., #4.
LANDIS, Gloria - on Sept. 16, 1997, late of 448 Glencairn Ave.
KLEINBERG, Rose - on Sept. 17, 1997, late of 35 Canyon Ave., #1110.
SIEGEL (Hoffman), Joy - on Sept. 17, 1997, late of 1131 Steeles Ave. W., #1101.
SILVER, Anjou - on Sept. 18, 1997, late of 3000 Bathurst St., #1603.

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

KORMAN, Harry - on Sept. 15, 1997.
SCHWARTZ, Grace Rachelle - on Sept. 15, 1997, late of 10 Senlac Rd.
SENDEROVICH, Herman - on Sept. 15, 1997, late of 105 Tanjoe Cres.
RISMAN, Pauline - on Sept. 16, 1997, late of 35 Cedarcroft Blvd.
KROVBLIT, Sofia - on Sept 17, 1997.
SIMONS, Julia - on Sept.18. 1997.
LEVINE, Nellie - on Sept. 19. 1997, late of 569 Sheppard Ave. W.
ZARETSKY, David - on Sept 19, 1997, late of 4455 Bathurst St.
ZILBERMAN, Fanya - on Sept. 19, 1997, late of 1131 Steeles Ave. W.
CHWAIEWSKY, Genia - on Sept. 20, 1997, late of 205 Hilda Ave.

Steeles Memorial Chapel

Jewish Funerals.
We care about your loss.
We care about the dignity of your loved one.
We care about Jewish tradition.
The Simple Alternative
A non-profit community service organization
When a death occurs or to plan in advance,
please call Harvey Poch at (416) 441-1580.
275 Lesmill Road, North York, at Leslie and the 401

330 OBITUARIES

ICRF
Israel Cancer Research Fund
Your help will find a cure for cancer!
Donation cards for all occasions
Phone: (416) 487-5246
A friend of ICRF

335 UNVEILINGS

Yad Vashem monuments
(416) 782-8995
UNVEILINGS for SUNDAY, OCT. 5

ANNE PEARLSTONE ע"נ	Mount Sinai Workmen's Circle 11:00 a.m.
SOLOMON (SAM) PELC ז"ל	Pardes Shalom Community (DDD) 11:00 a.m.
MURRAY ZEIDENBERG ז"ל	Bathurst Lawn Beth Torah (46) 12:30 p.m.

5758
We pray that finally this year:
"בלע המות לנצח
ומחה ה' דמעה מעל כל פנים..."
"May He swallow up death forever; may Hashem wipe away tears from every face..."
(Isaiah 25:8)
Yad Vashem monuments
Serving Your Community For Over 18 Years

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
SARAH ELKIND ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 5th, 12:45 p.m.
Dawes Road Cemetery
Linitzer Society Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late Mary (Heiber) Lover ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 5th, 12:30 p.m.
Dawes Road Cemetery
First Narayever Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
LOUIS HERMALIN ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, October 5th, 11:00 a.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Beth Emeth Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late IRVING ROSEN ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 12th, 11:00 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Court Topaz Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

335 UNVEILINGS

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
JULES UNGAR ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 5th, 11:00 a.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Community Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

TO PLACE AN AD IN THE SERVICE DIRECTORY CALL (416) 391-1836 FOR ADVERTISING RATES AND DEADLINES

CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY

Call 391-1836
for information on rates

INDEX

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
18 FURNISHED HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
38 FURNISHED CONDOS FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
78 FURNISHED APARTMENTS FOR RENT
80 SHORT TERM RENTAL
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED
85 APARTMENT WANTED
90 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE
95 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR RENT
98 FURNISHED DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR RENT
100 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE/RENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
112 FURNISHED COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
118 FURNISHED COTTAGE FOR SALE/RENT
120 COTTAGE WANTED
123 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
125 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
128 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
138 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
139 FURNISHED FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
148 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMMODATION WANTED
147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY SALE
180 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 FURNISHED ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
168 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
169 FURNISHED ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
182 FURNISHED OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
188 FURNISHED OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTIES
192 FURNISHED VACATION PROPERTIES
195 PROPERTIES WANTED
198 VACATION PROPERTIES-SWAP/EXCHANGE
199 SPACE FOR LEASE
200 OFFICE SPACE
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
205 INDUSTRIAL/COMMERCIAL SPACE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE/LEASE
215 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
217 RETAIL OPPORTUNITIES
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 FINANCIAL OPPORTUNITIES
238 PROGRESSIVE POSITIONS
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
246 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE
248 CAMPS
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
265 SOCIAL ANNOUNCMENTS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
279 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
310 ARTICLES/SWAP/EXCHANGE
312 BRIDAL
315 BOATS
315 CARS FOR SALE
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE/YARD SALE
330 OBITUARIES
331 IN MEMORIAM
332 MONUMENTS
335 UNVEILINGS
338 SHIVA CATERING

SERVICE DIRECTORY

345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO/VISUAL REPAIRS/SALE
357 AUTOMOTIVE
360 CABINETS
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING
377 CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
385 COMPUTER
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
398 ELECTRICAL
399 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
408 FURNITURE
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS
411 HEALTH THERAPIES
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LANDSCAPING
432 LAWN CARE
433 LEASING
434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
451 PROMOTIONS
452 PARTY SERVICES
458 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
479 SENIORS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIDING
483 SKIING
484 SNOW REMOVAL
485 TABLE COVERING
493 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING/LESSONS
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
517 WATER TREATMENTS
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
545 WORD PROCESSING
580 WORKSHOPS

Hamilton UJA campaign begins

By MOURA WOLPERT
CJN Correspondent

HAMILTON — The stories of three women who immigrated to Israel from different corners of the world were the highlight of the recent 1997-98 Hamilton United Jewish Appeal (UJA) campaign launch at Beth Jacob Synagogue.

U.S.-born Shira Ozery made aliyah in 1973 and has since been involved in bringing Jews from Syria and Iran to Israel.

In addition to telling her own story, Ozery acted as interpreter for Yardena Fanta and Sarah Pachanec.

Fanta left her native village in Ethiopia when she was 12. She told of how she carried her 2-year-old sister on her back, and with her parents, 10 brothers and sisters, nephews, nieces and 100-year-old grandmother, walked at night for one month, until they reached Sudan.

They spent 11 months in a crowded refugee camp there. Conditions were so bad, Fanta said, that 4,000 people died, including the little sister she had carried and several other family members.

"We found courage for our journey only because we believed we would reach Jerusalem," she said.

Their arrival in Israel was very emotional, Fanta said. "I have no words to describe the feeling."

Today Fanta, who knew no Hebrew and had only one year of school when she came to Israel, has a BA in sociology and criminology from Bar-Ilan University, is working on a master's degree in educational counselling, and is a counsellor for young Ethiopian olim.

Pachanec's story began in Sarajevo during World War II, she said, "17 years before I was born." Her family was Muslim, but they had many Jewish friends.

As conditions for Jews worsened, her mother, Zaynaba, saved many Jews from deportation and death. Zaynaba is the only Muslim designated as Righteous Among the Nations ever to have had a tree planted in her honor at Yad Vashem.

Fifty years later, when fighting raged in Sarajevo and Pachanec's family needed help, the Jews remembered and arranged for them to join a refugee transport to Israel. Zaynaba, Sarah, her husband (who was Christian) and their daughter, arrived at Ozery's absorption camp.

Sarah, her husband and daughter became attracted to Judaism and converted, becoming Sarah, Moshe and Esther, instead of Aida, Vladimir and Stella.

In 1994, Yitzhak Rabin conferred honorary Israeli citizenship on the family, who are now proud members of the Jewish nation.

The evening concluded with remarks from general campaign chair Al Rams. Women's Division co-chair Sandy Morris opened the program. Bonnie Loewith, co-chair, thanked the guest speakers and reported on the United Israel Appeal mission to Azerbaijan, and the Chai community choir, under the direction of Leon Karan, entertained.

The Canadian Jewish news

CLASSIFIED/SERVICE DIRECTORY

PLEASE NOTE:
Early Deadlines for the following issues:

OCTOBER 15
Deadline Tuesday, Oct. 7th, 3pm

OCTOBER 22
Deadline Friday, Oct. 10th, 1pm

OCTOBER 30
Deadline Monday, Oct. 20th, 3pm

OFFICE CLOSED
Due to the various holidays, The CJN offices will be closed Oct. 2, 3, 13, 16, 17, 23, and 24.

R.R.S.P. R.R.I.F. ANNUITY
BEST AVAILABLE RATES
For Personalized
Planning Strategies
Call (416) 787-4517
SB SHERR, BERGSTEIN & CRACKOWER

Sports

R.R.S.P. R.R.I.F. ANNUITY
BEST AVAILABLE RATES
For Personalized
Planning Strategies
Call (416) 787-4517
SB SHERR, BERGSTEIN & CRACKOWER

Soccer pro looks ahead to sports promotion

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

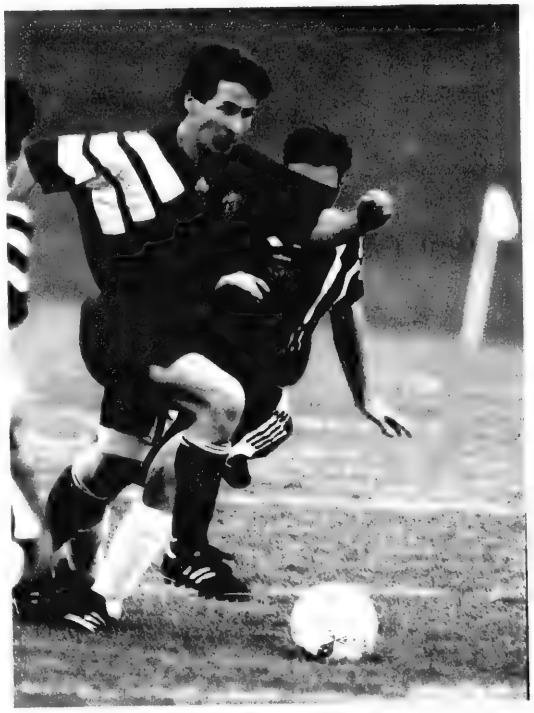
TORONTO — Irv Studin is pretty candid about his professional career with the Toronto Lynx Soccer Club. Though it's a great way to spend the summer, it isn't a lifelong dream come true.

Sure, he can make good money for the school year ahead and it can open doors among the movers and shakers in the corporate soccer world, but earning a living as a professional soccer player was never uppermost in his mind. A 21-year-old student, Studin is more interested in being the entrepreneur who brings the World Cup to Canada than in actually playing in it.

"My career goal after soccer is sports promotion" he says.

Studin is entering the third year of a business administration program at York University, which he combines with events promotion. Last April, he got his feet wet in his chosen field when he promoted the indoor three-on-three High School Soccer Classic.

A soccer player since he was five, Studin is no slouch when it comes to the fine art of passing and playmaking. He's a valuable member of the Lynx and the York Yeomen soccer team. In the late summer, their seasons overlap and recently Studin had the tiring task of practising with the Lynx in the morning before heading to an afternoon workout with the Yeomen.



Irv Studin of Toronto Lynx heads upfield as defenders close in.

Studin recently completed his first year with the Lynx in the A-League, a 24-team loop that includes teams in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver. After racking up a 14-14 record, which included a 10-win mid-season hot streak, the Lynx cooled off towards the end of the summer. They were eliminated in the first round of the Northeast Division playoffs in early September, losing a home and away series with the Montreal Impact.

A midfielder, Studin's role on the team was to help coordinate offensive attacks and score some goals himself. "I'm a better playmaker actually, but I'm trying to get more into scoring. There's more glory there," he said.

In fact, it was his ability to bulge the twine that got him noticed by a professional team in the first place.

Two years ago, while Studin was visiting relatives in Israel, his cousin suggested they talk to his friend, the coach of Hapoel Ashkelon, a Premier Division club. Studin, who's won city championships in Toronto and was on teams that twice advanced to the Ontario Cup finals, was offered a tryout. He was inserted in the lineup of two exhibition games against a Second Division team, and scored twice in each game. He quickly turned the coach's skepticism into admiration.

Studin was offered a pro contract with the team, but, relying on the advice of his parents, who are both sports-minded, he turned it down and returned to Toronto to continued his education.

Back in Toronto, Studin played for the Spartacus Soccer Club in the Ontario Soccer League's Under-21 division. He scored 15 goals in 20 games and was named league MVP.

That got him noticed by the Lynx, who encouraged him to try out. For Studin, making the Lynx on his first attempt and playing in the premiere league in Canada was gratifying. His enjoyed the season, though he was somewhat embarrassed by the Lynx's quick exit from the playoffs.

The Lynx, who play at Varsity Stadium, permitted Studin to take a leave of absence in midseason and join the Canadian team that competed in indoor soccer at the Maccabiah Games in Israel. The Canucks finished sixth out of 16 teams behind Russia, Israel, Brazil, Mexico and Argentina. Studin says those squads are about as good as the Lynx, with the Canadian Maccabiah team at about the same level.

The Canadians should be even better in the years ahead with lots of good young talent coming up, Studin says.

Though he was born in Italy, Studin's family were originally from Odessa in the former Soviet Union. His parents, Yuri and Sima, are both athletically inclined. Yuri loves soccer (more than he does, Irv says) and serves as president of the Spartacus club. Sima obtained a master of sport in rhythmic gymnastics in the Soviet Union and both of Irv's sisters, Rebecca and Sophia, are avid participants in the sport. Rebecca, the older of the two, is nationally ranked, Irv says.

As for Irv, he figures he may return to Israel one day to again try his hand at the elite league. "I wouldn't mind going to Israel and playing there for a year or two. I think I could succeed." But he adds, "I'm a good Jewish boy so I'm not aspiring to be a pro athlete."

Bet you never thought you could have the Stanley Cup at your Barmitzvah.

Well, at the Hockey Hall of Fame you can!

The Hockey Hall of Fame is a spectacular venue for any function, but particularly for a batmitzvah/barmitzvah. Elegantly catered by Al Salomon, Stephen Field and the team at Marigolds & Onions, your event is sure to be truly unforgettable. For a FREE guided tour and more information call Janice Barrina of the Hockey Hall of Fame at (416) 360-7735 or Al Salomon of Marigolds & Onions at (416) 256-4882 today!

The Stanley Cup, circa 1893.

2700 Dufferin St.
Unit 20, Toronto
Fax: (416) 256-7733

MARIGOLDS AND ONIONS LTD CATERING

30 Yonge St.
BCE Place, Toronto
www.hhof.com

Marigolds & Onions and the Hockey Hall of Fame.
The right team for your special time.

Israel out of World Cup

TORONTO — It was a good run while it lasted, but members of Israel's national soccer team will watch the 1998 World Cup from the comfort of their living room, just like the rest of us.

Israel was eliminated from contention in the prestigious international soccer extravaganza following a 1-0 lost to Bulgaria in a game played in Sofia. The loss drops Israel to third place Group 5 among World Cup qualifiers.

After playing eight games, Israel posted four wins, three losses and one tie, with nine goals for and seven against, good for 13 points. It has no games remaining.

Meanwhile, Bulgaria leads Group 5 with 15 points, followed by Russia, with 14. Only the top team qualifies for the World Cup, while the second place finisher has a chance to qualiiy as a wild card. Bulgaria and Russia will play each other twice in a home and away series.

Israel's fate was sealed following losses to Russia and Bulgaria during the summer. On June 8, Israel lost 2-0 to Russia in a game played in Moscow and then on Aug. 20, it lost to Bulgaria 1-0.

LAST WEEK'S CROSSWORD ANSWERS

J	P	S		M	R	S		A	S	A		F	E	D
A	L	E	F	B	E	T		R	E	D		A	L	A
M	A	R	R	A	N	O		M	A	L	A	M	U	D
E	N	V	Y		D	N	A		R	E	B	E	L	S
S	E	E		B	E	E	R		O	R	E
			P	A	R		C	P	A			H	A	H
O	R	B	I	T		T	H	E	D	A	B	A	R	A
B	O	O	T	H		A	I	R		R	O	Y	A	L
I	S	R	A	E	L	I	T	E		M	A	M	B	O
T	E	E			A	L	E		M	E	R
			A	Y	N		C	L	A	D		D	O	R
M	A	S	H	E	D		T	I	S		H	E	R	O
E	D	A	S	N	E	R		B	A	N	A	N	A	S
R	A	M		T	R	I		E	D	O	M	I	T	E
F	M	S		A	S	P		L	A	W		M	E	N

The Inside Back

הרב ישראל לנדא
רב קהילת הישראלים - חב"ד

Shanah Tovah

הימים נוראים ואנו מעמידים פנים?

יש אומרים שהנהירה המונית של עם ישראל לבתי הכנסת ביום הכיפורים יש בה משום העמדת פנים. ובאמת מה לו לאוכל טריפות לבוא להכות על חטא ביום הכיפורים? וההוא שבכל שבת מתעלם לגמרי מיום מנוחה הקדוש לעם ישראל, והנה פתאום מתעטף בטלית ועושה עצמו לצדיק וישר?

והנה פלוני שכל עסקיו מבוססים על הונאה ותרמית, גם הוא כאן בין הצדיקים? המתחזים?

אבל הם באים, יהודים מכל השכבות ומכל המעמדות מכל העיסוקים ואורחות החיים מכל ההשקפות ואמונות הפרטיות. כולם מתאספים בבתי הכנסת מתעטפים בטליתות ומתאחדים עם כלל ישראל השופך שיח לפני ריבון העולמים. ארשת פניהם רצינית ומיוסרת ואילו יכולנו רק להציץ במתרחש בתוך סגור לבם היינו מגלים שם הרבה היטהרות ואמונה.

למעשה ימים אלו ראש השנה ויום הכיפורים, חושפים את הצביעות ואת העמדת הפנים שבחיינו.

לא ההליכה לבית הכנסת ביום הכיפורים היא הצביעות.

האדישות שרבים מאתנו מגלים בכל ימות השנה לענייני יהדות ואמונה - היא הצביעות והיא העמדת פנים. האחד מגדיר עצמו חילוני, השני מצהיר "אני לא מאמין" שלישי קוצף נגד חוקי הדת, הנה כאן נמצאת העמדת פנים גדולה.

כשמגיע יום הכיפורים הוא מסיר את המסווה מעל כל ההצהרות המפוצצות הללו. היום הזה כאילו אומר לנו אל תתרגשו, אין זו אלא הצגה כלפי חוץ, סתם העמדת פנים. הביטו וראו את כל היהודים שמסביב, כל אלה שהפגינו את אדישותם וחוסר האכפתיות שלהם לענייני יהדות, ראו עכשיו איך הם משילים מעליהם את המסווה, מסירים את מעטה הציניות והלגלוג, ומגלים את הלב היהודי המאמין שבקרבם.

יום הכיפורים אינו יוצר שום דבר חדש, אלא מגלה את האמת הפנימית שבנו, זו שאולי נשכחת בימי החול האפורים. פתאום בלי כפייה, בלי חוקים ובלי אזהרות, שובת כל בית יהודי מפעילותו, שוממים הכבישים במדינתנו, המוני בית ישראל מתעניים וממלאים את בתי הכנסת. תחושה נפלאה של אחדות והיטהרות ממלאת את הלבבות, נראה שזה עם אחר אבל זהו העם האמיתי שלנו.

הלב היהודי משול לחבית חומר דליק. בימים רגילים היא עלולה להיראות כבדה ומסורבלת, ואולי אף חלודה במעט אבל רק נשלח בה ניצוץ אחד, ותראו איזו עוצמה אדירה גלומה בה, איזו להבה ענקית תפרוץ ממנה. כזה הוא הלב היהודי. פעמים מקיף את עצמו בשכבות של ציניות וקשיחות, אבל בפנימיותו הוא מלא אהבת ה', אהבת ישראל ואהבת התורה, רק תנו לו הזדמנות להתבטא.

הלב היהודי מתגלה בעתים מיוחדות, כולנו מכירים את תחושת האחדות שמפעמת בעת מלחמה.

וגם ביום הכיפורים אנו מגלים את האמונה שבלבנו ואת התחושה היהודית החזקה של כולנו. זו בעצם האמת האמיתית שלנו.

האתגר הגדול הוא לשאוב מן הרוח שמתגלה ביום הכיפורים על כל ימות השנה. לתת ביטוי לאמונה שבלבנו גם בימים רגילים ואפורים. לא להסתפק בכך שהלב מלא ונדוש אמונה ואהבת ה' אלא ליישם את האמונה בחיי היום יום השיגרתיים. אולי יום הכיפורים הזה יתן לרבים מאתנו את העוז להתנער לגמרי מן המסיכות הקשוחות של כל השנה ולהצהיר בגאון - כן אני יהודי מאמין!

RICE KRISPIES KUGEL

THIS RECIPE BROUGHT TO YOU BY...
HERB CAPLAN
1111 Weston Road (S. of Eglinton) 767-1655
WE SELL Whirlpool FOR LESS

Break the fast with this easy to prepare kugel. No one guesses that the secret ingredient is rice krispies.

3 cups rice krispies
2 cups cottage cheese
fresh sliced onion rings
3 eggs
a few tblsps. of onion soup powder

Mix all ingredients (except onion rings) together and pour into greased 9"x9" pyrex. Lay sliced onion rings on top. Bake 1 hr. at 350°F.

MARTIN & FRAN CAPLAN EXTEND BEST WISHES FOR A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR

YOU CAN NOW SEND YOUR LETTERS THROUGH E-MAIL!
The CJN e-mail address is TorCJN1@aol.com

About jobs

Dear Lisa,

I have had several interviews, but no job offers yet. I'm starting to think the reason has something to do with how I act in the interviews. Can you think of any tips that might help me?

Dear Reader,

Be sure to dress for success. Clothing should be clean and wrinkle-free. Hair and nails should be well-groomed. Teeth should be checked for a crumb that may be stuck in a spot sure to capture an interviewer's attention.

Maintain a distance of at least three-quarters of a metre away from your interviewer. Research indicates that in North American society, we require this amount of "personal" space.

When you take a seat, sit upright. Use your body to emphasize your words. Maintain eye contact, yet shift your eyes occasionally, maybe when you are thinking about an answer. This will make you look thoughtful. Tilt your head sideways to convey interest. Smile to indicate warmth.

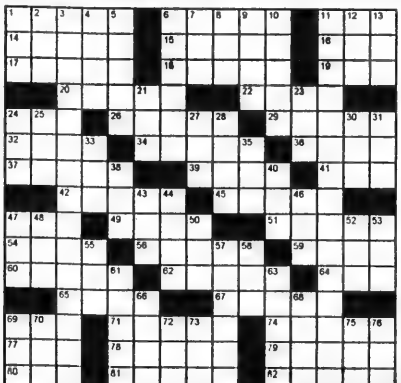
The trickiest part of the interview is what to say. Personal history questions are easier to answer. Opinion questions require tact and thought. If you are asked about your age or health, the question is trying to establish your ability to perform the work.

If you are asked about marital status, the interviewer may be asking if your social status resembles that of other employees, or if your spouse is transferred, whether you will go too.

Yes, these types of questions are illegal; however, some of the time the interviewer wants to see how you react to questions, rather than hear what you have to say.

Job Search is a monthly column by career educator Lisa Galet Klug. Readers are invited to send any questions they have for Lisa to The CJN.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE



Across

1. "__Pass" (Uris)
6. Sound of Kristallnacht
11. Existed
14. Jacob's boy
15. First minor prophet
16. Literary initials
17. Nazarite no no
18. David's boy
19. Cobb or Grant
20. Shmatah (Eng)
22. Comic Mort
24. Tay-Sachs carrier
26. Schmutz (Eng)
29. Grogger emanation
32. Uzis
34. Dangerfield's hope
36. Jerusalem entry
37. Rosenbergs?
39. "High tref"
41. Damage
42. Imitates Moses
45. Teva offering
47. Golfer Alcott
49. Israeli judge
51. Prepare for rituals
54. Isaac's stand in?
56. Fang
59. Moses' camouflage
60. Methuselah's dad
62. Asherites or Gadites
64. Taxmen
65. Appear
67. The Heights
69. Noodge (Eng)
71. "Bonanza" dad
74. Make Aliyah
77. Literary initials
78. Gompers' cause
79. Give a tenth
80. Shamsky was one
81. Death notices
82. Ted Key comic strip

Down

1. Matriarchs
2. Sort of? (ending)
3. Singer novel
4. Producer Norman
5. Dart
6. She's no Jew
7. Group for Bugsy Siegal
8. Biblical sign of mourning
9. Dead and Red
10. Abram's brother
11. Chess champion
12. Fortas, casually
13. Haifa to Hebron (dir)
21. White Sox' Abrams
23. Chazzer (Eng)
24. "__Kapital" Marx work
25. Political Party
27. Mikveh
28. Freud inventions
30. Depot (abbr)
31. Ever to Bialik
33. Prophesize
35. Laughing sound
38. Pouch
40. Act the gonif
43. Makes a "fey" a "pey"
44. End like Rabin
46. Hamantasch?
47. Shikker's choice?
48. Sixth day creation
50. Neither's partner
52. That one
53. Cantor and Goldman
55. Prior to Christians
57. Greenberg's team
58. Movie channel
61. American shalom
63. First Israeli ambassador to USA
66. Lot's son-in-law
68. Roberta Peters' solo
69. Belief: comb. form
70. Pastrami on ___
72. Sid Gordon's stat
73. Never
75. That woman
76. Wiggling tref fish

These puzzles are the work of Kathi Handler of Waterbury, Connecticut.

(Last week's answers are on page 66.)

What's hot in Toronto's haute-est neighbourhood?

Cactus Table, Marc Lalique Design, 1951 – Lalique

Suite V, 2,345 sq.ft., with Direct Access Elevator – The Prince Arthur

Style and quality are the cornerstones upon which all truly exceptional, world-class products are designed and crafted. The Condominium Mansions at The Prince Arthur are no exception to the rule.

Ideally located in fashionable Bloor-Yorkville, with neighbours like Cartier, Chanel, Prada, Armani, Tiffany and the like, The Prince Arthur is a stunning collection of exceptional one-of-a-kind residences.

Suite V, shown above, is our decorated model suite. It is the ideal new home for those people wishing to simplify their life while maintaining their lifestyle after selling the "family" house.

Suite V provides exceptional living space. There is direct elevator access into an elegant foyer, a spacious living/dining area with oversize windows, two bedrooms each with sumptuous ensuite facilities and a library/home office.

Complimenting the lifestyle ambiance of this suite are spectacular views, west overlooking the tree-lined avenues of the East Annex and east overlooking the dazzling lights of fashionable Bloor-Yorkville.

A Poggenpohl kitchen with a large breakfast room, extravagant walk-in closets, sumptuous bathrooms with your choice of marble throughout, and abundant ensuite storage rooms complete the lifestyle plan of this one-of-a-kind Condominium Mansion at The Prince Arthur.

THE PRINCE ARTHUR

Exclusive resident services at The Prince Arthur include private valet parking, doorman and 24 hour concierge desk.

For information on this or any other one-of-a-kind residences, or for a personal appointment and private showing of our model suite call 416-920-0038 today. Visit our web site at www.mintohomes.com/princearthur.

- Pied à terres from the mid $[illegible]
- Two bedrooms from $379,900
- Two bedrooms with direct elevator access from $[illegible]
- Two bedrooms & library with [illegible]
- Two storey Patio Homes from $729,[illegible]
- Penthouses and Terrace Suites from $1,400,000 (unfinished)

poggenpohl SUB-ZERO

THE PRINCE ARTHUR CONDOMINIUM MANSIONS · 1 ARTHUR ROAD · TORONTO ONTARIO M5R 2S2 · TELEPHONE 416.920.0038

Bell offers great October savings to call overseas.
For details, call
1 800 668-BELL(2355)
Bell
www.bell.ca

The Canadian Jewish news
44 Pages | Thursday, October 9, 1997 | Tishrei 8, 5758 | 75¢
L'SHANA TOVA

This Week

Greater Toronto Area

Iran's quest for non-conventional weapons endangers Israel's existence, former Mossad head tells CJN. Page 3

Jewish Vocational Service has gone through many changes over its 50 years. Page 14

Kosher FoodFest offers plenty to sink your teeth into. Page 20

National

Ontario court rejects appeal by synagogue to refer a lawsuit to beit din. Page 23

Arts

Folk-rocker David Broza takes time out from his busy schedule to talk to The CJN. Page 34

New documentary chronicles the critical years prior to Israel's independence. Page 36

Index

GTA	3
Editorials and Letters	8
Perspectives	9
Opinions	10
The Kirshner File	11
Jewish Life	12
Yiddish Corner	19
On Campus	22
What's New	24
Coast to Coast	26
International	27
Travel, Arts & Business	34
Health	37
Classified	38
Sports	42
Ask Ella	43
Crossword	43

Shabbat: Yom Kippur
Candlelighting: 6:26
Tishrei 9, 5758
Fast ends: 7:31

Levy promises passport inquiry

Israel expressed 'very deep regret': Axworthy

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

OTTAWA — Israel has promised Canada that it will hold an inquiry into how Israeli security agents obtained forged Canadian passports in the bungled assassination attempt of a Hamas leader, Foreign Affairs Minister Lloyd Axworthy said on Monday.

Axworthy, with Canada's recalled ambassador to Israel, David Berger, standing next to him at a packed news conference, said he spoke to Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy last Sunday, and that Levy agreed to hold a "full inquiry" into the forged passport affair, as well as to cooperate with Ottawa's own probe.

Axworthy said Levy "expressed his very deep regret" at the fact that two alleged Mossad agents who botched an assassination attempt against Hamas leader Khaled Meshal in Amman held faked and doctored Canadian passports.

Axworthy said his Israeli counterpart is "prepared to undertake a full examination" of the affair, and "is prepared to work with us on ours" in an effort "to put an end to this practice."

He said Canada "is still very much concerned" over the events and has expressed those concerns to Israel, "but we also want to get some practical results out of it. The practical results are that it won't happen again."

He said Levy's remarks were "an indication that the Israeli government is treating this matter very seriously."

Canada "will wait to see whether commitments made will be lived up to. That's what we will be determining over the next several days. I think actions will speak louder than words."

Axworthy said the inquiry's terms of reference have to yet to be determined.

"It's the beginning of dialogue. That's all it is, and that's what we want to maintain," he stated. "I don't think that you want to rush to judgment. I think we should take [Israel's] willingness to cooperate with us as a useful step. And we'll determine whether engaging in a dialogue on broader consular passport issues can also result in positive steps. The important thing is to get results."

He said Levy admitted no official responsibility in the affair. The discussion, he said, did not extend to guarantees that using Canadian passports would not happen again.

Continued on page 2

Even in the midst of the current tension in relations between Israel and Jordan caused by the events of the Meshal Affair, there was time for Israel's new ambassador Oded Eran to formally present his credentials to King Hussein at the royal palace in Amman on Oct. 5. [RNS/Reuters photo]

Yassin back in Gaza

Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Sheikh Ahmed Yassin, the founder of Hamas, returned this week to the Gaza Strip after eight years in an Israeli prison.

Jordanian officials flew Yassin to Gaza in King Hussein's helicopter. Upon his arrival in Gaza, Yassin said that Hamas will not stop its attacks on Israel until Palestinians have their own country.

His return to Gaza was accompanied simultaneously by the release from Jordan of the two alleged Israeli agents involved in the attempt two weeks ago on the life of Hamas organizer Khaled Meshal.

At the same time, Israel also released 22 Palestinian Hamas prisoners held in its jails.

The 61-year-old Yassin had been serving a life term for issuing orders to kill Israeli soldiers and Palestinians who collaborated with Israel.

Yassin was freed in response to an appeal from King Hussein last week, amid widespread speculation that the release was aimed at appeasing the monarch after the botched attempt to assassinate Hamas official Meshal.

Yassin was taken directly to Jordan, where he was hospitalized. Hamas and Palestinian Authority (PA) Chairman Yasser Arafat, who had appeared embarrassed to have been caught unaware by the release, had been demanding Yassin be allowed to return to Gaza.

Israeli security sources, meanwhile, said they will not allow the PA to take advantage of Yassin's release by reopening Hamas institutions shut down last month on Arafat's orders.

Continued on page 2

INSIDE

For a chronology of the events in the "Meshal Affair" please see page 28.

MAY 2N9
TORONTO ON XXPJ
P0 BOX 972 STATION F
MCLAREN MICROPUBLISHING LTD
D MCLAREN DUB
CJN0000896004 63 0BNOV97
*CR MIXEDMAY

Israel's prestige damaged: former ambassador — please see page 27

Israel & the Jewish World

Israel to hold passport inquiry

[Cont'd. from page 1]

Axworthy said Canada "went to substantial effort to clarify that there was no Canadian complicity" in the assassination attempt.

Canada received the facts surrounding the case just last weekend, and is sifting through them, the minister indicated. He said the Canadian embassy in Tel Aviv "has been in contact" with the two Canadians whose names appeared on the passports, Shawn Kendal and Barry Bitnun. Kendal works at the United Israel Appeal office in Jerusalem.

Axworthy said the two passports are back in Ottawa undergoing forensic tests.

He played down the fact that the whole affair has hurt the peace process.

"We want to keep the peace process going and we also want to raise concerns with a country we've had very good relations with for half a century.

"Everybody recognizes that the volatility in that region will create sometimes very serious bumps or glitches. But we shouldn't lose sight of [our] long-term interest, which is to get a peaceful agreement in the Middle East."

He said the three-way release of prisoners on Monday between Israel, Jordan and the Palestinian Authority — triggered by the passport affair — speaks for itself.

It's not known when Berger will return to Israel. He was recalled by Ottawa in protest over Israel's use of the forged Canadian passports.

Commentators observe that the entire affair has plunged Canada-Israel relations into one of their frostiest periods in recent memory.

And the resulting political storm in Israel has reached the highest levels, embarrassing the Mossad, as well as the governments of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, Jordan and the Palestinian Authority.

In this country, the matter has brought about one of the most serious crises in relations between Israel and Canada in years, given Berger's recall.

And last week, David Sultan, Israel's ambassador to Canada, was called in by senior foreign affairs officials to express this country's anger at Israel's use of forged Canadian passports.

Prime Minister Jean Chretien denounced Israel's use of the passports as "completely unacceptable," while the opposition Reform party is calling for sanctions against Israel.

Rob Ritter, national executive director of the Canada-Israel Committee, said the whole affair was made worse by the fact that the two countries were unable to communicate because of the High Holidays.

Ritter said Canada-Israel relations have been "very profound" in the past and that the two nations will weather this latest storm.

"In the long run, it will be okay."

Israel's embassy in Ottawa was tight-lipped. A statement read to The CJN said "Canada and Israel are working on this matter to find a solution [to] all aspects. So far, contacts between the two foreign ministers and others have been very constructive."

In the wake of the affair, Ottawa has issued warnings to Canadian travellers in Israel and several Mideast countries to be extra careful and not to travel late at night or in dangerous areas.

David Viveash, acting charge d'affaires at the Canadian embassy in Tel Aviv, said there had been incidents in the past which "had been linked to the government of Israel," in which Canadian passports had been used.

"We've protested this in the past," Viveash said, noting that Canadian officials had made it clear to their Israeli counterparts "that we take great exception" to such use of Canadian passports.

Yassin back in Gaza

[Cont'd. from page 1]

"Arafat started out well and Hamas is nervous," a senior security source said. "If Arafat continues, this will be good. He has completed the arrests and is now investigating the suspects. We are following this up to ensure that the pressure on Hamas continues."

Meanwhile, U.S. peace coordinator Dennis Ross arrived in Israel on Monday and was scheduled to confer in Ramallah with Yasser Arafat and in Jerusalem with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

Netanyahu briefed cabinet ministers last Sunday about the Meshal Affair, amid reports of mutual recriminations among the heads of the security services. Officially, the government refrained from commenting on the media reports concerning the affair.

At the cabinet meeting after the special meeting of the security cabinet, Netanyahu blasted the opposition for attacking the government over the Meshal Affair for partisan political reasons.

A statement issued by cabinet secretary Dan Naveh denied the Sunday Times report.

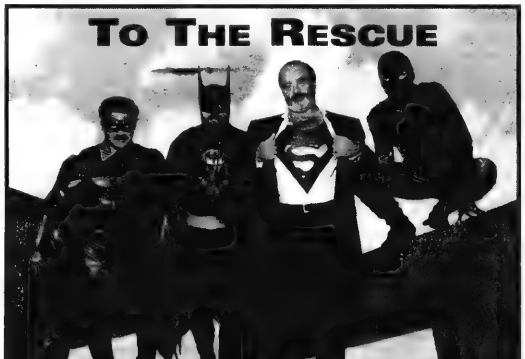
"It must be known that the decision-making process in Israel is such that the relevant security and intelligence branches bring their recommendations to the forum of their heads and then the recommendation is brought for the prime minister's approval, and on no account is there a reverse process of coercion," Naveh said.

"It is the government's duty to protect its citizens and fight against terrorism," Netanyahu reportedly said at the cabinet meeting. "We are witnessing irresponsible attacks on the government from within, a large part of which derives from base partisan political motives, while spreading lies and distorting the facts and endangering vital interests of the State of Israel."

The statement issued by Naveh after the session names Meshal as the No. 1 figure in Hamas, responsible for the murder of innocent Israelis.

Referring to "the irresponsible attacks from within on the government," Naveh said: "False charges are being published, cynically exploiting the fact that the government is refraining from comment at present."

MK Dalia Itzik, who heads the Labor party's response team, joined MK Shimon Peres in demanding that Netanyahu resign, stating that if even half of what was published is true, he must go.



NATHAN DISENHOUSE • ZALE NEWMAN • GORDON BERGER • JACK POLLAK

OVERTAXED?

PANFINANCIAL TO THE RESCUE ... If your taxable income is $150,000 or more, we have innovative yet conservative tax reduction strategies to help you retain more of your hard-earned income.

By Oct. 15, some of most beneficial tax-assisted investments will no longer be available. There still is a limited quantity available. Call today to schedule a meeting.

WE'LL SHOW YOU SOME SUPER TAX REDUCTION STRATEGIES.

PANFINANCIAL
Tel: (416) 499-4222
Leading Edge Tax Reduction Strategies

Design: Mitch Stone

THE 1998'S ARE HERE!!
LEASE A BRAND NEW 1998 VOYAGER
MAGIC WAGON

$245 PER MONTH

Be the first to place your order or take one from incoming inventory. Equipped as follows: air conditioning, pr. steering, pr. brakes, rear wiper/washer, floor mats f/r, am/fm stereo radio, 7 pass seating, tinted glass, rear window defroster, dual sport mirrors, roof luggage rack, dual air bags.

DOWNSVIEW Jeep Eagle
CHRYSLER PLYMOUTH (1964) LTD.
ON ALLEN ROAD. JUST NORTH OF SHEPPARD
199 RIMROCK RD., NORTH YORK, ONT. M3J 3C6

Call Mel Wise
635-1660

TERMS: Lease price is based on a 30 month term, OAC with $2,500.00 down payment or trade required. Freight, licence and all taxes extra. Security deposit required.

The Canadian Jewish news

Vol. XXXVIII, No. 24 (2,870)

An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Gary Laforet
General Manager

Mordechai Ben-Dat
Editor

Vera Gillman
Advertising & Assistant General Manager

Carol Jamieson
Controller

Jeff Rosen
News Editor

Joseph Serge
Travel, Arts & Business Editor

Janice Arnold, Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner, Frances Kraft, David Lazarus, Elias Levy, Paul Lungen, Ben Rose, Lelia Speisman
Staff Reporters

Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Emil Fackenheim, Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone, Miriam Herman, Shira Herzog, Martin Himel, Justin Korda, Dr. Gidi Koren, Shel Krakofsky, Sam Lipshitz, Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut, Viva Press, Morton Weinfeld
Columnists

Stephen Bindman, Joel Jacobson, Myron Love, Wendy Schneider, Judy Shapiro, Moura Wolpert
Canadian Correspondents

Edgar Asher
Israel Correspondent

Leslie Kinrys
Chief Copy Editor

Carolan Halpern
Copy Editor

Ella Burakowski
Assistant Advertising Manager

Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen, Barbara Ferguson, Ruth Goldsmith, Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman, Honey Mahl, Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig
Sales Representatives, Toronto

Lisa Freid
Classified Advertising Representative

Doris Perez
Office Manager

Alma Delory, Karen Syptak
Office Staff, Toronto

Janice Atkinson
Circulation

Brian Stoneman
Composing Room Manager

Rasma Brants, José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel, Britta Petersen, Nick Radelja, Larry Tremblay
Production Staff

Charles Bronfman, Donald Carr, Q.C. George A. Cohon, Steven Cummings Murray Koffler, Julia Koschitzky Albert J. Latner, Lionel H. Schipper Robert Vineberg, Rose Wolfe Rubin Zimmerman
Directors

Ray D. Wolfe
Founding President (1971-1990)

Head Office: 1500 Don Mills Rd., Ste. 205, North York, Ont., M3B 3K4
Tel: 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949
Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829
E-MAIL: TorCJN1@aol.com

IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives
POB 7195, Jerusalem, Israel
Tel. 02-252-933, Fax. 02-249-240

CIRCULATION
Average circulation per issue: 46,711 copies.
Average net paid circulation per issue: 45,109 copies.
Publisher's sworn statement March 7, 1997.

SUBSCRIPTIONS
Canada: $29.95, 1 yr. incl. GST. $54.95, 2 yr. incl. GST.
U.S.A.: $60 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $75 U.S. funds, 1 yr.

Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.

Postage Paid at Toronto Publication Mail Registration #1683

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper.
Acceptance of advertising does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News.
The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

YOU ARE HERE
Kolel Educational
Yom Kippur Services
led by Rabbi Elyse Goldstein
and
Rabbi Jeremy Schwartz
at the Bathurst Jewish Centre, 4588 Bathurst St.
905-764-1329

This Week

Greater Toronto Area

Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future?
Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals.
Call SONNY GOLDSTEIN
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Sonny Goldstein, CLU, ChFC
President
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Iran's quest for weapons said to endanger Israel

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Iran's quest for non-conventional weapons endangers Israel's security and very existence, warns the former director of the Mossad, Israel's foreign intelligence agency.

"Iran is pursuing non-conventional military capabilities — nuclear, chemical, biological and long-range, surface-to-surface missiles," said Shabtai Shavit in an interview.

"If this problem is not taken care of, in a few years Iran will be a major threat to the security and even the survival of Israel."

Iran is also a potential menace to neighboring Arab countries and foreign nations dependent on Persian Gulf oil, warned Shavit, who headed the Mossad from 1989 until 1996 and who now directs the Maccabi Health Fund, Israel's second largest health insurance company.

He called on the United States, western Europe and Japan to exert influence on Iran to change its national priorities. Iran, he said, should divert its resources away from a non-conventional military buildup and toward the resolution of its internal problems.

Here to deliver lectures on the current situation in the Middle East on behalf of State of Israel Bonds, Shavit said that Iran's conventional forces do not pose a danger to Israel.

Shavit said he saw no possibility of a rapprochement between Israel and Iran as long as it is governed by Islamic fundamentalist clerics.

Shavit, 58, said that Yasser Arafat, president of the Palestine Authority (PA), can deal with terrorism "if he wishes to do so."

But, he added, "fighting terrorism is not like buying an insurance policy. No one can give you a 100 percent assurance that it can be eliminated completely."

Shavit believes it is possible for Israel and the PA to renew security cooperation at the highest levels. But Israel's security should not hinge on Palestinian promises. "Israel does not have to depend on the PA and Arafat. It would be a mistake to depend only on them. This is not the answer."

He disagreed with assessments that Israel's intelligence-gathering capabilities have been eroded by the Oslo peace process.

"Israel has always been able to gather intelligence, and we're doing it now. It's correct to say that Oslo created a new situation. Our security services have had to adjust. But we're doing pretty well."

He is "cautiously optimistic" that Israel and the Palestinians will revive their stalled peace negotiations. "What is the alternative?"

Shavit does not rule out the possibility of a limited war pitting Israel against Syria. Syria, he said, may initiate hostilities to break the present political impasse over the fate of the Golan Heights, much like Egypt did in 1973 when it launched an offensive to recapture the Sinai Peninsula. "One must be prepared at all times for any eventuality."

Syria, however, labors under two disadvantages: its army is inefficient and it is burdened with old equipment.

Shavit said Syria's often tense relationship with Iraq has improved of late. But, as regional and ideological rivals, Damascus and Baghdad remain deeply suspicious of each other. "I don't expect more than a brief marriage of convenience, let alone a military alliance."

Turning to Iraq, Shavit said that its military capabilities have been "drastically curtailed" since the 1991 Gulf War and the imposition of Western economic sanctions. But Iraq will be in a position to rebuild its armed forces once the sanctions are lifted.

He said that Israel was wise not to have become embroiled in the Gulf War, even after Iraq fired Scud missiles at Israeli cities. "It was the smartest decision for Israel not to be involved." The anti-Iraqi coalition might well have collapsed had Israel retaliated in response to Iraqi aggression.

On southern Lebanon, he observed: "Either we stay there and continue to fight Hezbollah on Lebanese territory, or we withdraw back across the border into a defensive mode. This is our dilemma. I believe that our decision should be determined purely by military and not political considerations."

Shavit said Hezbollah's own leaders have acknowledged that Israel's destruction is their ultimate objective.

Shifting to Israeli domestic politics, Shavit expressed concern about the secular/religious divide.

"This split has already caused a lot of harm to Israeli society," he said. And if fundamental changes are made to the so-called status quo, the unwritten compromise governing the bounds of religious observance in the country, Shavit fears that the consequences could be disastrous.

"It could drive a wedge between Israel and the Diaspora."

The family of the
MYER DORN ז"ל
Wish to thank their countless relatives and friends for their condolences and contributions at a time of very great loss of a very special, kind and loving tzadek.

MUTUAL FUNDS
* NO DEFERRED SALES CHARGES
* NO COMMISSIONS
* All The Great Funds (over 1,000)
* RRSP & General Investing
FOR ON-GOING FREE PERSONAL CONSULTATION CALL
MILES HERSHBERG
1-800-668-2821
M. HERSHBERG CAPITAL LTD.
ST. CATHARINES

Funding IN ACTION
UJA FEDERATION

Good food and good friends. Two reasons why The Hot Kosher Lunch Program at the Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living has been such a success for over 10 years. Anne and Hymie Samelson, both in their 80's, take advantage of the lunches, subsidized by UJA Federation, twice a week. "I could not prepare a meal like the one we receive. We are thankful there is a place where we meet friends and get delicious food," says Anne.

GOOD HEALTH
The daily lunches supply nutritious food to those who might not be able to shop for and prepare a healthy meal on their own. "It is difficult for us to go and buy the food, prepare a meal, and then do the clean up," says Hymie. "The Bernard Betel Centre makes our lives easy because we know we will be provided with a good hot meal."

"For many seniors, kashrut is essential," adds Sharon Zeiler, Director of Wellness and Community Support Services for the Centre. "On average, 50 people enjoy a hot lunch each day. We provide a full meal – soup, bread and vegetables, a main course and dessert, all for $5.75."

A GOOD BUY
Not only is the food tasty, but the price is right as well. "I would not be able to prepare a beautiful Shabbos meal each week for the price we pay at the Centre," explains Anne. "This is a wonderful way to enjoy a lunch – among friends. It is especially important for those who may be living alone."

A registered dietitian approves each meal ensuring that special dietary requirements for Hymie and others are met.

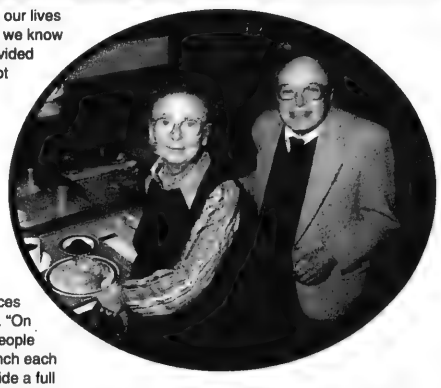

Photo Zephyr Studios Inc.

Several studies indicate that well nourished seniors enjoy better health and a better quality of life than those who are poorly nourished. The Hot Kosher Lunch Program, committed to maximizing the quality of life for seniors in the community, is another example of UJA Federation Funding in Action.

Greater Toronto Area

Guest Voices

Iron Guard left a bloody imprint in history

By SORIN FINCHELSTEIN

A tiny – and likely to go unnoticed – piece of news in a recent Saturday edition of the Globe & Mail brings back agonizing memories of the war period. The reader learns that in one of Romania's sea resorts, followers of the Iron Guard, "a Romanian group that killed tens of thousands of people during the Second World War, have built a monument to fascism."

For anyone who knows the European political scene before and during World War II, the information as published by the Globe is vague, to say the least. For it does not mention an essential detail: Who were these "thousands of people" and why were they killed? Some historical facts should be remembered.

To describe the Iron Guard as merely a "group" can induce the average reader into thinking of Bonnie and Clyde or of the Jessie James bunch. It must be said here that the Iron Guard was neither a "group" nor a gang. For almost two decades, the Legionnaires – as they liked to call themselves – were a Romanian political organization of national standing. Their beginnings, in the early '20s, even predated Hitler's Beer Hall Putsch of 1923.

The Iron Guard's political doctrine and message, while neither novel nor original, were clear, unequivocal, steadily professed and, at that time, appealing to many: Romania had to be rid of the pest that infested its culture, political and economic climate – the dirty Jew.

The "kamarades," as they would address each other, were not only politicians but also men of action. Through anti-Semitic agitation in newspapers, in schools and on campuses, through "punitive" raids into Jewish neighborhoods across the country, and through heinous crimes against the Jewish population and "Judeo-masonic conspirators" of Romanian origin, the "Legion" left its indelibly shameful and bloody imprint on Romania's history.

By employing sheer terror and racist demagoguery as political tools, the Iron Guard rose to prominence and in the summer of 1940, was called upon to be part of Marshal Ion Antonescu's government, thus gaining full political legitimacy. At that time, the "Legion" was one of the prominent fascist movements of Eastern Europe, along with the Croatian Ustasha, the Hungarian Arrowed Crosses and the Hlinka Guards in Slovakia.

Among the victims of the "green shirts," one can certainly mention the octogenarian professor Nicolae Iorga – a historian of European fame – dragged brutally from his home, taken to a nearby forest and pumped with bullets; or then-prime minister Armand Calinescu, executed Mafia-style, in broad daylight in downtown Bucharest.

Yet, the Guard's chief, obstinately pursued target was the Jewish segment of the population. Continuously harassed and abused, beaten savagely, thrown off moving trains or out of highrise windows and balconies, their dwellings and businesses pillaged, Romanian Jewry had nowhere to turn, as anti-Jewish legislation that mirrored the Nazi model was enacted increasingly on an almost daily basis.

Employed sheer terror and racist demagoguery

In January 1941, the Iron Guard felt strong enough to rebel against Antonescu, whom they accused of being "too soft" in dealing with those who opposed the "Legion." For three days and nights, the country faced acts of unthinkable atrocity. Gangs of green shirts armed with death lists prepared long in advance broke into houses and killed with a vengeance. Jewish quarters were looted and set ablaze while the inhabitants were viciously tortured, raped and murdered on the spot. Hundreds of Jews, including children and elderly people, were impaled and left hanging from meat-hooks at Bucharest's abattoirs. Soldiers were doused with gasoline and set aflame.

Finally, the rebellion was quashed by the army, while the German Embassy secured safe passage out of the country for the Iron Guard leaders. Of the rank and file who stayed behind, only a handful were brought to justice. However, the legionnaires' mission was far from finished. During the ensuing war, they were to play a major role in the little known, yet nonetheless abominable, Romanian Holocaust: the deportation to camps east of Nister (Transnistria) and the consequent slaughtering of half a million Romanian Jews.

Eventually, and most significantly the legionnaires' "political expertise" was largely used by the Communist party to ensure that they would "win" the first post-war elections. Later, during the early '50s, many "reformed" green shirts could be found acting as either tormentors or informers within many a Romanian political prison.

Back to the Globe & Mail: "The group was allowed to erect the monument after they built a stairway to the beach. 'From a civic point of view, I am delighted by their activity,' said the deputy mayor."

"From a civic point of view," I felt strongly compelled to let the truth be known. We owe this to the innocent victims of the Iron Guard. Yet the awareness is not important only from a historical perspective. Taking advantage of this country's traditional tolerance, or of our political naivete, some older or younger zealots have long been advocating the revival of the Legion's "spirit" on Canadian soil.

In conjunction with other disquieting developments, such as the worldwide resurrection of right-wing "nostalgia," the relative success of racist and xenophobic political platforms in France, Russia and Austria, or the gruesome ethnic cleansing in Bosnia, Rwanda and Zaire, these facts should increasingly drive us to study, understand and, most important, remember history, an undertaking in which the media must play a considerable and responsible role.

I am fully aware that the above piece of news as published by the Globe, or as relayed from Associated Press, could not have included all this information. I maintain, however, that the addition of two more pieces of information – who the victims were and why they were killed – would have helped the average reader to better grasp the issue, an issue which can be expressed by paraphrasing John Donne, "To whom are the monuments built?"

As for the stairway to the beach, I would rather be crawling through dirt, on all fours.

Sorin Finchelstein is a writer, mathematician, and engineer who lives in Toronto.

From the editor's desk
WILL RETURN NEXT WEEK

To see Broza in concert is to be mesmerized!" The New York Times ברוזה broza is Back!
With special Guest
two-time Juno Award Winner
Marc Jordan
songwriter for Rod Stewart, Chicago and Amanda Marshall.
October 12, 8 p.m.
Music Hall
147 Danforth Ave. at the DVP
(416) 870-8000
Matana Judaica (905) 731-6543
Aleph Bet Judaica (416) 781-2133
Yaffa's Judaica (416) 921-6996
Presented By Corey Ross Productions Inc.
"A cross between Jimmy Buffet and the Gypsy music!" Washington Post
"Dynamic Performer!" Toronto Star
"Broza's live performances are the stuff of a legend!" P.A.R Picks
"Broza writes better melodies than just about anybody!" Pulse Magazine

YEAR END CADILLAC CLEARANCE.

1997 DEVILLE SALE $3,000

It's the Cadillac event you've been waiting for. The lowest price so far this year on the 1997 DeVille. Equipped with: • 4-wheel ABS • dual front air bags • PASS-Key® II theft-deterrent system • powerful 275 HP V8 Northstar engine • air conditioning • cruise control • Tilt-Wheel™ steering column.

PURCHASE $39,995*

EXCLUSIVE 4-YEAR NO-CHARGE MAINTENANCE PROGRAM

1997 SEVILLE STS

The flagship of the Cadillac line-up combines cutting-edge performance with Cadillac style. Equipped with: • 4-wheel ABS • dual front air bags • PASS-Key® II theft-deterrent system • powerful 300 HP V8 Northstar engine • road sensing suspension • full-range traction control • air conditioning • leather reclining front bucket seats.

PURCHASE $50,328* $498* per month

LIMITED TIME OFFER. SALE ENDS OCTOBER 14, 1997

THE CADILLAC DEALERS OF TORONTO

You should know this: †Based on a 36 month lease. A minimum down payment or trade of $4,500 and/or $575 security deposit are required. Annual kilometre limit: 20,000 km. $0.08 per excess kilometre. Other lease options available. *†Freight $895, licence, insurance and taxes not included. Dealer may sell or lease for less. Offers apply to 1997 Seville STS, or 1997 DeVille, new or demonstrator models, equipped as described, purchased or leased from dealer inventory. Applies to qualified retail customers in Ontario only. Limited time offers which may not be combined with other offers. Limited quantities available. See your Ontario Cadillac dealers for conditions and details.

Greater Toronto Area

Daf Yomi Siyum Hashas draws over 4,000

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Over 4,000 men, women and children at the Toronto Convention Centre joined people around the world last Sunday to celebrate the 10th Daf Yomi Siyum Hashas, the completion of a cycle of studying the entire Talmud.

They were joined by satellite hookup to similar celebrations in New York's Madison Square Gardens, Nassau Coliseum in Los Angeles, and Melbourne, Australia, where it was the next morning.

Programs were also held across the United States, in Montreal, Israel and Europe.

In the daf yomi program, which was begun by Rabbi Meir Shapiro in Lublin, Poland, in 1923, people undertake to study a page of Gemarah every day, for 2,711 days in a row.

There are at least 17 organized daf yomi classes in Toronto, as well as programs such as Dial-A-Daf, where participants can phone in for a daf yomi shiur.

Master of ceremonies Mordechai Mandlebaum noted that people from all segments of the Orthodox community took part in the experience. Participants might wear "black hats, payes or kippot sruga [the knitted kippah of the Central Orthodox], but they all study the same Torah," he said.

A young boy recites Tehillim, Psalms, during the 10th Siyum Hashas of Daf Yomi celebration at the Metro Convention Centre in Toronto. [Barry Shainbaum photo]

Rabbi Baruch Taub, spiritual leader of Beth Avraham Yoseph Congregation in Thornhill, had Hadran, the honor of the concluding portion and blessings of the previous cycle, and Rabbi Shlomo Miller of Kolel Avreichim began the new cycle, the honor called Haschasas Hashas.

Greetings were brought by Rabbi Mordechai Ochs, spiritual leader of Torath Emeth; Rabbi Yitzchok Kerzner of Clanton Park Congregation; Rabbi David Schochet of Lubavitch of Toronto, who offered special thanks to the wives of the participants; and Rabbi Yaakov Hirschman of Kolel Avreichim.

Greetings and addresses were presented via satellite from Rabbi Yaakov Weinberg, rosh yeshivah of Ner Israel of Baltimore; Rabbi Elya Svei, rosh yeshivah of the the Talmudical Yeshiva of Philadelphia; and Rabbi Avraham Pam, rosh yeshivah of Torah Vadaath, among others.

Prayers for the sick of Jewish communities everywhere were said, as were special prayers for those ill in Toronto. Kaddish and K'El Maleh Rachamim were recited for the victims of the Holocaust by Moshe Nussbaum and Rabbi Moshe Burak respectively.

In a dramatic turn of events, proceedings were stopped to say special Psalms for a young woman in the community badly hurt in an accident.

Guest speaker Rabbi Aaron Dovid Dunner of Kehilas Chareidim in London, England, urged the audience to dedicate themselves passionately to the study of Torah.

Musical interludes were presented by the Toronto Siyum Hashas Boys Choir, under the direction of Yehuda Gilden, and by Abie Rotenberg, Shlomo Simcha and the Toronto Adult Daf Yomi Ensemble.

Seven and a half years of daily study of Talmud ended that Sunday night. And Monday morning, in small groups all over the world, the cycle began again.

From the postcard collection of the Jewish Theological Seminary Library.

OPEN MOTZI SHABBOS
COR
RECESS
1 GLATT KOSHER
An oasis of Glatt Kosher dining pleasure
7117 Bathurst St. (905) 764-2558
DINE IN OR TAKE OUT • PRIVATE PARTY ROOM FOR UP TO 40 PEOPLE

12 oz. Rib Steak Dinner	~~$15.95~~	$11.99
1/4 B.B.Q. Chicken Dinner	~~$9.25~~	$6.95
8 oz. Double Beef Burger with fries	~~$5.95~~	$4.95
4 oz. Chicken Burger with fries	~~$4.95~~	$3.35
4 oz. Beef Burger with fries	~~$3.95~~	$2.95
Beef or Chicken Kebab Dinner	~~$12.95~~	$9.95
Lunch Special (Soup, Salad, Main Course)		$7.95
Dinner Special (Soup, Salad, Main Course)		$12.99

Valid Monday to Friday until October 31/97
OUR PARTY ROOM IS PERFECT FOR YOUR SHEVA BRACHOT & ALL SPECIAL OCCASIONS THAT REQUIRE A PRIVATE, INTIMATE SETTING.

The Sukkah Project™
Thou shalt dwell in sukkot seven days... ...בסכת תשבו שבעת ימים
Build your own sukkah this year
(and fully experience the joyful festival of sukkot)
☺ Easy & fun to build ☺ LOW COST - affordable by all
☺ Roomy: sizes up to 8 x 12 ft. ☺ Durable: will last for decades
The only tool required is a screw-driver!!! Price of kit $95.00!!!
To place your order for sukkah kits, lulav and etrog, as well as many other seasonal items, come to ISRAEL'S... the Sukkot Centre
897 Eglinton Ave. W. (416) 256-1010 441 Clark Ave. W. (905) 881-1010
Out of Town call: 1-800-449-5918 E-mail: contact@israelsjudaica.com http://www.israelsjudaica.com or for samples click http://www.sukkot.com

A Matter of Great Interest
5.84%*
Royal Bank Callable June 4, 2007

CORRINE SPIEGEL
Investment Advisor
(416) 928-1616

LIANNE DiROCCO
Investment Advisor
(416) 928-0400
1 800 924-0558
22 St. Clair Ave. East, Suite 1605, Toronto, Ont. M4T 2S7
NB NESBITT BURNS
*as of Oct. 1, 1997. Rates subject to change and availability (assumes investment is held to maturity). Member CIPF

Greater Toronto Area

ICJW president calls for women to help others

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Maybe it's the British accent, but June Jacobs sounds so refined that her activist advice not to be too polite can be disconcerting to a Canadian ear.

"Then it's a double whammy," noted the president of the International Council for Jewish Women (ICJW) in a recent interview here, not displeased with the effect.

Jacobs was in town as a keynote speaker at the 29th biennial convention of National Council of Jewish Women of Canada (NCJW), held at the Inn on the Park hotel.

"One of the important things for Jews to do in the world is to [help] and be seen to be helping communities less fortunate than ourselves, usually new immigrant communities," she told The CJN. "We know what it was like to be immigrants. We can help others and in so doing strengthen our own community."

She has been an executive ICJW member since 1977, when she became chair of its Soviet Jewry committee.

At the NCJW convention opening, she warned that members must not allow Israel to become a "patriarchal theocracy." Although ICJW, with almost 50 affiliates in

June Jacobs

44 member countries, doesn't have a policy on the issue, "many people are concerned that the religious right is becoming much too strong," she said in the interview.

In Israel, women face dress restrictions in certain areas of Jerusalem, and marriage and divorce are overseen by rabbinical courts in which only men can be judges, she noted.

Sporting two pins in her lapel – one an ICJW menorah, the other a dove of peace, she said the peace process would be "in much safer hands" if more women were involved. In a non-ICJW role, she has been involved in dialogue with Palestinian women in England for years.

Before her trip to Toronto, Jacobs attended an ICJW administrative committee meeting and European women's interfaith conference in Brussels. Her dream, she said is to have an ICJW world women's interfaith conference, hopefully in Jordan.

Now approaching the midpoint of her three-year term as president, Jacobs has travelled in her ICJW role – among other places – to South Africa and Australia, where local affiliates are involved in their own volunteer projects. In Johannesburg, with its recent rise in violence, Union of Jewish Women members are helping rape victims. In Australia, there is more emphasis on fundraising for Israeli institutions and help for the elderly.

In the United Kingdom, the community is preoccupied with the question of "Will our grandchildren be Jewish?" Jacobs said.

On a trip to Subotica on the Yugoslavian/Serbian border in 1995, she spoke with women from assimilated and intermarried families. "They're part of us," she said.

ICJW dates back to 1912, but faltered during the two World Wars before getting off the ground in 1948, when women from 12 countries met in Paris.

"We used to be an umbrella of like-minded affiliates doing social work and voluntary work, and supporting Israel as our centre," said Jacobs.

"Now I feel it's got to be more proactive, and it is." Among the ICJW committees established in the past 18 months are a committee on women's health and medical ethics and a lawyers' committee to fight on behalf of agunot.

The status of women in Jewish law merits a stronger response from the community, she believes. "I think the rabbis lack courage, lack will and unless they prove themselves otherwise, they lack ability." Almost 1,000 years ago, they were able to ban polygamy, she noted.

She advises women to become more informed about Jewish law. "The only women who can really fight for women's rights in Jewish law are learned."

City of David prompts town hall

VAUGHAN — The presence of the City of David Messianic Synagogue in a Thornhill mall is just the tip of the iceberg when it comes to efforts to convert Jews to Christianity, a town hall meeting heard last week.

There are over 700 so-called messianic Jewish groups worldwide, with some 50 operating in southern Ontario, officials from Jews for Judaism told a large audience at the recently opened Sephardic Kehilla Centre.

The extent of Christian groups' proselytizing of Jews is "much bigger" than most people imagine, said Jews for Judaism director Julius Ciss.

The meeting was prompted by the recent controversy over City of David, which opened last month in the Main Exchange Plaza at Bathurst and Steeles. Jewish groups charged it would seek to convert Jews to Christianity by teaching that Jesus is the Jewish messiah.

At the meeting, Canadian Jewish Congress praised the owner of the plaza, Aetna Canada, for removing one large sign for the congregation, and changing another that described it as a synagogue.

Aetna VP Pat Smith said Aetna will "continue to explore various legal options" against the congregation, and welcomed Jews for Judaism to its new location, right next door to City of David.

FORTINOS
Your Supermarket with a Heart!
LAWRENCE SQUARE

Tradition Noodle Soup .75 ea. 70 g pkg.

Tirosh Grape Juice 3.99 ea. 1.5 L

Glatt • Kosher Stewing Beef 6.11 lb. 13.47/kg

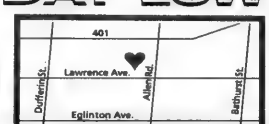
Fresh Atlantic Salmon Fillets 6.49 lb. 14.31/kg
Fresh Atlantic Salmon Steaks 5.49 lb.

Fresh Ontario Broccoli .69 ea. Product of Canada

Del Monte Golden Ripe Pineapples 3.99 ea. Product of Costa Rica

EVERYDAY LOW PRICES

Prices effective Sunday Oct. 5 thru Saturday, Oct. 11, 1997.
We reserve the right to limit quantities.



STORE HOURS

Monday to Wednesday	8 a.m.-9 p.m.
Thursday & Friday	8 a.m.-10 p.m.
Saturday	8 a.m.-8 p.m.
Sunday	9 a.m.-6 p.m.

30 YEARS SPECIALIZING IN MUTUAL FUNDS
0% Commission - 500 Funds
LEVINE FINANCIAL GROUP
1200 Sheppard Ave East, 2nd Floor
Toronto, Ontario M2K 2S5
(416) 494-7100
➢ No Purchase Fees (No FEL)
➢ No Exit Fees (No DSC)
ACI
BPI
Fidelity
Mackenzie
O'Donnell
Templeton
Trimark
Min. $50,000

Sara used to cook for friends.
Now friends cook for her.
Senior Care
makes it possible.

Homemakers • Housekeepers • Personal Care
Volunteer & Social Work Services
Caregiver Relief • Kosher Meals on Wheels
Safe, Professional, Experienced. 24 hours a day - 7 days a week.
Senior Care
Call us at 416-635-2860
A non-profit agency - 24 years of leadership in the provision of quality home services.
UJA Federation

Greater Toronto Area

Growth of religious, secular groups seen as leading to rift

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — Any past agreements between religious and secular Israelis were based on misconceptions, says the chair of the department of Jewish Thought at Hebrew University.

Their biggest mistake, said Prof. Aviezer Ravitzky, was that each group believed the other would become weaker and eventually disappear.

Ravitzky was the keynote speaker at a recent Evening of Thanks, sponsored by Canadian Friends of Hebrew University. His topic was Religious and Secular Israelis: A Cultural War.

In the last few years, he told the capacity crowd at the Royal Ontario Museum, each group realized that the other was flourishing.

"This is the beginning of a new recognition that they have to live [with each other.] Tension is created in one group, when the other group flourishes."

Polarization exists, he said, when the status quo is not efficient any more. "When the situation and facts change, but the written words have not, there is tension."

When secular Israelis accepted the fact that yeshivah boys would be exempt from military service, there were only about 500 to 800 yeshivah students in Israel, said Ravitzky. "They did not foresee that a vast part of the population would be exempt. The reality did not fit their expectations."

On the other side, he said, when it was agreed that private cars could travel the roads on Shabbat, but buses could not, there were not many drivers in the country. "Today, about 60 percent of Israelis own cars. That is not what was expected about 40 years ago."

A third reason that classical agreements between religious and secular Jews are not efficient, he said, is that Israel was created right after the Holocaust when Jews were not as confident as they are now.

"Collectively, Jews today do not feel that they will [cease] to exist."

The danger of polarization is illustrated, said Ravitzky, by an interview he once had with an Israeli matzah baker:

"The baker said that each year, there was a two percent decrease in the amount of matzah sold. One percent, said the baker, was because of newly married couples who did not buy matzah for Passover. The other one percent was due to the young couples who would not buy matzah baked by machine. They were losing from both sides."

Hartman wants an end to Israel's Chief Rabbinate

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Israel's Chief Rabbinate should be abolished "because state religion is a total failure," says Rabbi David Hartman.

Speaking to 400 people recently at Holy Blossom Temple, Rabbi Hartman drew applause with his call for abolishing Israel's Chief Rabbinate.

A former Montreal rabbi, he is director of the Shalom Hartman Institute in Jerusalem and is considered one of the world's leading Zionist thinkers.

Rabbi Hartman was the first of four speakers in the series Zionism on the Threshold of its Second Century, sponsored by Gerald Schwartz and Heather Reisman.

Israel has not reached its potential of giving a face to the Jewish people because religious Zionists are using the secular instrument of the Knesset to control society through a political coalition, Rabbi Hartman said.

"State religion is controlled by a bureaucracy," he said. "State religion is destroying Judaism."

On the issue of a Knesset bill that would make only Orthodox conversions legal in Israel, he said,: "You can't say that half the synagogues are treif in Israel and kosher in North America.

"The Conservative and Reform rabbis did not create the secular world. They did not create intermarriage. It was the open universities that did it," he said.

Rabbi Hartman said it was painful for him to take a negative view of events in Israel because, as a rabbi for 20 years and a teacher for 45, he believed Israel was on the way to fulfilling both its biblical and its talmudic legacies

"In Israel today there is a regression to the shtetl, an opposition to modernity. They say Jews can't survive without a ghetto. So far, we haven't proven that we can."

In the discussion period, Rabbi Hartman said the "conversion crisis" in Israel centres around 200,000 Russian immigrants who are not Jewish.

"Can we bring them into the Jewish fold? The Orthodox rabbinate is creating impossible conditions."

For one people. Forever.
For UJA Federation, rescue is more than a cause. It's the bridge between Tashkent and Toronto.
Offering immigrants, regardless of their background, a fresh start represents our responsibility as Jews to each other.
That's why UJA Federation has helped over 800,000 Jews escape war, crisis and anti-semitism in places like Sarajevo, Chechnya and other parts of the former Soviet Union.
And when they move to Israel we're there as well. At UJA Federation, what we have in common counts for more than what sets us apart.
We believe in one people.
That's how we provide hope for Jews around the world.
UJA FEDERATION

WEST ISLAND
Quality Suites
Pointe-Claire (Qc)
6300 Trans Canada Hwy
(514) 426-5060
1-800-228-5151
"YOUR HOME" Away From Home
Special Corporate, Group & Weekend rates
*free access to "Y" for guests

Editorials and Letters

The Canadian Jewish news

Publisher and Proprietor:
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital.
Head Office:
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

The passport affair

There has been no official explicit confirmation from the government of Israel that the men who attempted to kill chief Hamas operative Khaled Meshal two weeks ago in Jordan were Israeli agents carrying phony Canadian passports. Nor will there be. But there has been implicit official confirmation.

The attempt failed. The two agents were caught. And thus was set in motion a scandalous spiral of intrigue, anger, accusation, denial, scandal and embarrassment.

The government of Canada was justifiably angered at the use of Canadian passports as part of the covert operation in Amman. The integrity of the passport's reputation was damaged and with it, the reliability of its use by Canadians travelling abroad, if only for a brief period of time. Moreover, in an area of the world known for its fanaticism, it is not overstating the matter to say that the use of Canadian passports in a plot against a powerful fanatic, may have even put Canadians at risk.

In the circumstances, therefore, the federal government was correct to act demonstrably and vocally, deploring the use of the passports, denying any involvement in their use, summoning Israel's ambassador in Ottawa, and recalling temporarily its ambassador in Israel. The government has demanded explanations from Jerusalem and according to reports, those explanations have been forthcoming.

But there are other circumstances in this affair, now cynically known as the passport affair, which also must be examined.

All democracies understand Israel's right to protect its citizens from terrorists and murderers. The democracies also understand that such a right must allow for taking all reasonable measures in the circumstances to strike at the planners and the perpetrators of terrorism before they strike at vulnerable, civilian populations.

Whether the Amman operation was, indeed, reasonable in the circumstances – having regard to the location of the action, the operational risks involved and the consequences of failure – is not for us to judge. The Israeli media have been scathing in their criticism of their government and of the security establishment for authorizing the Amman operation. Some have even referred to it as the worst blunder in the history of Israeli intelligence. Presumably, they are in a better position than we are, to judge.

We can judge, however, and fully support, Israel's right of operational freedom against the masterminds of grisly murder and wanton terror. Khaled Meshal is one such mastermind. He is not merely a political opponent or the leader of a competing faction or a "freedom fighter." He is rather, one of the acknowledged Hamas planners of suicide and other terror. And it must also be remembered that Hamas terror is not aimed exclusively at Israel. Israel is but the sovereign, political embodiment of their target. Their credo advocates "violence against Jews everywhere." The day of judgment will not come about until Muslims fight Jews and kill them." (Article 7 the Hamas Charter promulgated in 1988)

But if we support the right of Israel's operational freedom against terrorists, we do not support all manifestations of that freedom. Like all freedoms, even that one is qualified.

Israel has always prided itself, and rightfully so, on the "purity of arms" that it has employed since its birth, in its own defence. In addition, it has never asked any friendly country to send their nationals to fight its battles and help defend its borders. This has been an issue of high principle with Israel and a source, again rightfully so, of great pride for a small country that has been under siege since the day it was born.

In keeping with these standards and with this tradition of self-sufficiency, it is imperative therefore that Israel not jeopardize the nationals of a friendly country. The use of Canadian passports did precisely that. We imagine an apology to the government of Canada has already been extended. Certainly, one is warranted.

WISDOM OF THE AGES
"We can know the time of our departure, but not of our arrival."
Yiddish proverb

This Week in Canadian Jewish History
Born October 9, 1812, Dr. Aaron Hart David was the first Canadian-born Jew to practice medicine in Canada. He established his practice in Montreal in 1834.(Canadian Jewish Congress Archives)

French helpful to Quebec immigrants

Re: the article on the theme of Citizenship Week, (CJN, Sept. 18 Montreal edition only), I want to clarify certain remarks attributed to me on Quebec immigration policy and notably the suggestion that I view as "legitimate" the favoring of French-speaking immigrants.

I maintain that allotting more points for immigrants who speak French as compared to those who speak English is not racist; however, I stated that there was a "legitimate" debate as to whether such provisions were discriminatory. In fact, one might conceivably argue that points offered for knowledge of any language represent a form of discrimination. Of course, there are many other aspects of immigration policy that might be considered discriminatory, for example, in the areas of economic and educational achievement.

Ideally, prior to immigrating to Quebec, potential candidates, independent of their origin, should be made aware of the language situation and be advised that among other things, the acquisition of French will enhance their ability to function in the Quebec marketplace. In that way, immigrants can make an informed decision about whether they wish to come to Quebec.

Jack Jedwab
Executive Director, Quebec Region
Canadian Jewish Congress

Our shuls are not strip malls

Can anything be done about the number of signs mushrooming outside every Jewish institution in town, invoking us to remember our roots, our bond, our oneness, our land, our future, our past. What an eyesore! Tzedakah is important, but enough signage already. Do we really want our shuls to resemble strip malls?

Donnie Friedman
Toronto

Israel asks: Where are the others?

During the recent United Jewish Appeal (UJA) Prime Minister's Mission, participants had the opportunity to perform the mitzvah of bikur cholim, visiting the sick, at Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem. In this case, the sick included several of the victims of the two recent bomb attacks at Machane Yehuda and Ben Yehuda Street. It was a very emotional visit, and very difficult – but one which each of us was proud to make as Jews, as individuals and as leaders of UJA.

Daniella, age 14, remains in critical condition in Hadassah's intensive care unit (ICU). Her mother stands by her bedside around the clock. However, when she heard that we had come to offer our support and our prayers, she came out of the ICU to greet us, to pray with us and to be comforted. It was the meaning of Kol Yisrael arevim zeh bazeh — All of Israel is responsible for one another.

In the burn unit, we met with the mother of 16-year-old Noam, who also stepped away from her son's bedside. He is doing much better and his wounds will heal. However, the emotional scars will last a lifetime. She said that knowing we had come to visit will help Noam. She asked us to pray for his speedy recovery and for the other victims and their families.

Throughout our visit to Israel, everyone we met asked us the same question: Where are the others? They want to know why more Jews do not come to visit Israel. We tried to explain, but we all know that there is no satisfactory answer. We could only say that we were there and that we represented all of you who stand in unity and solidarity with the people of Israel.

The streets of Jerusalem are not what you would expect. They are not busy; they are not crowded. At night, as we passed by the hotels, we saw only a few lights, with many more rooms dark and empty.

This means that now, more than ever, we have to redouble our efforts to visit Israel. The people of Israel are looking to us for support in these trying times. We must show them that we care, not with hollow words of solidarity but with our feet. We must continue to come and visit!

Elliot Karp
Associate Vice-President
Major Donors, UJA
New York

Arafat's kiss is a wake-up call

Your editorial, "Death's straight line," forcefully condemns Yasser Arafat, not only for Israel's concern that he has a secret agenda, but for the company that he keeps in public and for all the world to see. The Toronto Star, Aug. 31, showed a most revealing and incriminating photograph of Arafat kissing Abdel Aziz Rantisi, co-founder of the militant Islamic opposition group Hamas.

That Yasser Arafat would form a partnership with someone who considers the very creation of the State of Israel as illegal is ominous and frightening in its implications. This is especially so when Rantisi calls for the liberation of Haifa, Tel Aviv and Jerusalem. This kiss should act as a wake-up call to the Israeli government that the intention in the PLO Charter calling for the destruction of Israel is alive and well and there is no intention on the part of either Arafat or his cohorts to rescind or amend it. For its own survival, Israel must demand the disarmament of all terrorist groups and the imprisonment of their leaders as a condition precedent to any further implementation of the Oslo accords. To do otherwise, would be to commit national suicide.

Bert Raphael
President
Jewish Civil Rights Educational Foundation of Canada

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures.

Perspectives

The pure sweet prayer

I know, of course, that there are very few entirely righteous people who never sin, whether it is a sin against a fellow human being personally or in monetary matters or by causing physical harm; whether by deed or by speech.

And my heart is pained.

Yom Kippur does not provide atonement for a sin committed against one's fellow human being until the injured individual forgives the one who committed the sin.

I am heartbroken; my bones ache, because even the day of one's death does not provide atonement.

Therefore dear God, to You do I direct my plea. Have mercy on me that You and everyone else may look upon me with favor, with kindness and with mercy.

I extend complete, total forgiveness to anyone who has ever sinned against me, whether in a physical manner or monetarily; to anyone who may have gossiped about me or may even have slandered me...

Let no one be punished on my account.

And even as I have forgiven all those who may have sinned against me, please enable them to look upon me favorably so that they, in turn, will find it in their hearts to grant me complete forgiveness.

Excerpted from the Tfillah Zakah the Pure, Sweet Prayer, a confessional recited before Kol Nidre on the eve of Yom Kippur. The prayer was written by Rabbi Avraham Danzig (1714 -1820).

Yom Kippur
Jacob Weinles (Polish, born 1880)

Opinions

Lack of judgment

By YOSEF GOELL
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

How should true patriots, public figures profoundly concerned with the security and well-being of their country, behave when it becomes evident that one or more of their top leaders has acted so irresponsibly as to endanger that country and that people?

I am referring to the Likud and their leader, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, in the wake of the irresponsibly conceived and botched-up Khaled Meshal assassination affair.

National Infrastructure Minister Ariel Sharon and lesser government spokespeople were correct last weekend in calling for restraint in public criticism, so as not to further prejudice attempts to free the two Mossad perpetrators from captivity in Jordan. Labor leader Ehud Barak, as opposed to some of the other party spokespeople, was indeed admirably restrained with that consideration in mind.

But such restraint can legitimately be demanded only if it is clear that there are concurrently at least a few courageous souls in the Likud itself who are determined to put country ahead of party.

Only a fortnight ago, Netanyahu was taking personal credit for the success of the General Security Services (GSS) in finally identifying the Palestinian perpetrators of the Machane Yehuda market and Ben Yehuda mall suicide-bombings. Whether he deserved the credit or not is a moot point. The fact remains that the prime minister is solely responsible for the operations of the GSS, as he is of the Mossad.

Netanyahu's irresponsibility does not lie in the determination to hunt down and kill as many political and operational heads of Palestinian terrorist gangs as possible. They fully deserve such treatment. Self-proclaimed terrorists must be given to understand that sooner or later they are dead men. All the more so when such pinpoint retribution is the clearly preferable alternative to collective punishment against large parts of the Palestinian public, even though some are knowing abettors of the terrorists among them.

The irresponsibility and abominable lack of judgment lie in the prime minister's failure to consider all the complex and dangerous implications, according to Jordanian reports, of killing Meshal in Jordan in the present circumstances and the price that Israel would have to pay, not only in the case of a botched-up job, which can never be ruled out, but even for success.

These considerations and the weighing of gains against irreparable harm to Israel have kept that arch-terrorist Yasser Arafat alive and immune from such Israeli actions.

Peace with Jordan has been Israel's greatest achievement in recent years. But it is no secret that peace is so far primarily with King Hussein, the Hashemite family and their immediate supporters. Large parts of the Jordanian public are opposed to peace with Israel and continue to wish our destruction and the disappearance of the king and his family.

The Hamas in Jordan is part of that very large opposition to the king and his relations with Israel. King Hussein tolerates Hamas because he feels he has no choice, realizing that opposing them head-on, rather than by subterfuge and guile, could deluge his country with Egyptian-style terrorism, or worse, reduce Jordan to another Algeria.

It is highly unlikely that King Hussein could weather such a terrorist storm as well as Egypt's Hosni Mubarak or even the Algerians. Any Israeli prime minister who does not understand that or who cannot resist the temptation of playing James Bond in Amman is the epitome of irresponsibility and does not deserve to remain in office.

In our half-century of confrontation with Arab enemies, our deservedly vaunted intelligence services have had their share of stinging failures and mishaps. In an 1954 security mishap, when an equally irresponsible action was mounted by IDF intelligence against American institutions in Cairo, a reputedly namby-pamby prime minister, Moshe Sharett, sacked the all-powerful defence minister, Pinhas Lavon and the head of IDF Intelligence, Benjamin Gibly.

In the mid-1980s then-premier Yitzhak Shamir, foreign minister Shimon Peres and defence minister Yitzhak Rabin refused to accept responsibility for the enormous lack of judgment and control behind the use of Israeli spy Jonathan Pollard in the heart of the American intelligence establishment.

By this collective shirking of responsibility they caused grievous harm to Israel's interests in the United States. Is it too much for us today to expect the patriots in the Likud to seek to emulate Sharett rather than the Pollard trio, who preferred to have Pollard languish in jail rather than accept supreme political responsibility?

Knesset reacts to "Meshal Affair"

By LIAT COLLINS AND MICHAL YUDELMAN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Several parties — ranging from Moledet to Meretz — have gathered the necessary 30 signatures for a special recess session of the Knesset to discuss the Meshal affair. The session has been scheduled for next week.

However, Sunday night, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu cancelled the meeting of the Knesset Foreign Affairs and Defence committee scheduled for Monday. The decision was made together with committee chair Uzi Landau (Likud) apparently to avoid providing another focus for media attention.

The Knesset subcommittee on secret services did meet with the prime minister Sunday to receive a report on the affair. No details were released.

Moledet was first to ask for a special Knesset session with a motion titled "The war against Hamas," while Meretz filed a motion on "A profile of the prime minister as a decision-maker on fateful issues."

Meretz whip Haim Oron said he would ask speaker Dan Tichon to ensure that Netanyahu is present and that he addresses the Knesset at the session "to explain to the nation his decision on the action in Jordan."

Labor also asked for a special session on "the functioning of the prime minister."

Likud whip Meir Sheetrit accused the opposition of seeking political gain, even though details of the affair have not been fully investigated and said the country cannot stop fighting terror.

Landau said Sunday he does not support appointing a commission of inquiry to investigate the affair. He said such commissions have been over-used and their value has eroded.

The CJN's columnists will return next week.

"We [the Foreign Affairs and Defence committee] will demand a full report and after we have heard it, we will have to see what needs to be done. All the handling of the affair — and we have to remember it is not over yet — at this stage should be such that the media coverage will not hinder those who are trying to bring about its swiftest possible end."

Third Way MK Alex Lubotzky called on Netanyahu to establish a National Security Council, a clause in the Basic Law: The Government. He said his party had demanded the council be established as part of the conclusions drawn on decision-making processes after the Bar-On affair earlier this year. He said such a council would have been able to draw up proper plans and consider all the possible consequences of such an action.

Former prime minister Shimon Peres told Israel Radio that the premier is ultimately responsible for the affair, if the press reports are true.

Meretz leader Yossi Sarid said the Knesset subcommittee for secret services, of which he is a member, should investigate "the prime minister's hasty and reckless decisions concerning the action in Jordan."

He recalled that the subcommittee had acted as a commission of inquiry under Abba Eban investigating the Jonathan Pollard affair.

Ran Cohen (Meretz), a former chair of the subcommittee, placed the responsibility fully on the prime minister and said Netanyahu had broken the rule that countries do not act in a way that could harm friendly states.

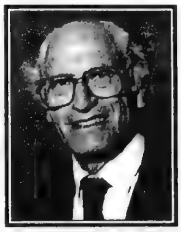
MK Avner Shaki (National Religious Party) called for restraint and unity, particularly since all the details are not known.

"It is an especially sensitive issue and it is our duty not to speak out against a person or institution until all the details are known, and they will be known," he said.

MK Dalia Itzik, who heads Labor's response team, said that even if only half the reports turn out to be true, Netanyahu should resign.

Too many seniors?

Increasingly, senior citizens are seen by many of their younger contemporaries as a drain on the public purse. Subconsciously the complaint reflects an idea rooted in ancient human history: the old should go away, and the sooner the better.



By Rabbi Gunther Plaut in Toronto

Some officials of the Canadian government apparently agree, probably subconsciously as well. Proof: social insurance cards for ordinary, "normal" people (i.e. those not yet ready for the ash heap) feature our Parliament buildings in bright, pleasant daylight. Old age cards are very similar, but with one great difference: the daylight is gone and Parliament is pictured in the dark, with but one light still shining.

I know of no other public document as explicit as this. Gone is all pretense. "Buzz off!" the plastic says to me: "Your lights are going out, but you insist on hanging around. You're costing us money; so, be a good citizen and oblige the public. Besides, we're trying to balance our budget and you and likes of you are making it difficult for us."

Anyway, that's the message I read, and I am not amused. It is true that in some respects I am a drain on the public purse, seeing that in Ontario my medical needs are generally met from taxpayers' moneys (though I too pay taxes and therefore share in the cost; but given the benefits I receive, I am way ahead).

I have long been of the opinion that social entitlements should at least to some degree be related to people's financial capacity, and those well-off should continue to carry their own weight. But successive governments have been loath to incur the displeasure of us older voters.

Meanwhile, the number of those feeding from the common trough gets larger every year. Putting off retirement and keeping the older citizens on the labor roster would alleviate some of the burden. Even so, and especially because of our low birth rate, Canada's population pyramid will become distorted or even inverted. The aged may some day become more numerous than the young, yet the latter will have to supply old-age benefits to the former if the present policies go unchallenged. Treating the pyramid as if all were well is bound to bring on a future national economic disaster, and even for this reason alone, the limit of 65 should be changed.

Benjamin Disraeli once said that youth is a blunder, manhood a struggle and old age a regret, and a medieval Jewish writer judged old age to be a natural illness. I have never felt that way, and in my mother I had a better model to emulate. Quite clearly, biological age and chronological age need not coincide.

We cannot all be as lucky as she. We need the right kind of genes, a bit of luck and above all, the will to keep mind and body alert. Old is not always good, but it often is, and more often than people realize.

(The substance of this article was excerpted from Rabbi Plaut's new book, More Unfinished Business [a sequel to his earlier autobiography], to be published by University of Toronto Press on Nov. 5.)

The Kirshner File

Malcolm Lester is back with a vengeance

Malcolm Lester is back. The man known as the "phoenix of Canadian publishing" has embarked on yet another venture as a publisher of quality books for serious readers. His Toronto-based firm, a limited partnership backed by 14 investors, is called Malcolm Lester Books.

By Sheldon Kirshner

Since 1973, when he established his first company, the former rabbinical student has presided over the fortunes of Lester & Orpen, Lester & Orpen Dennys and Lester Publishing.

And now, about a year after the demise of his last company, which he liquidated for personal reasons, Lester has returned to the fold.

"We have a very good shot at being successful," he said in an interview in his spartan office adjacent to a parking lot off Yonge Street.

A self-described "entrepreneur of ideas" who sincerely believes that reading is good for the soul, he is sanguine for two reasons. He believes that the books which bear his name will be on the intellectual cutting edge, and hence, appealing. And he is confident that his company, which has been funded to the tune of about $300,000, can break even within two years and turn a profit by the third, despite the new media technologies — the Internet and CD-ROMs — vying for the public's time and money.

"The marketplace remains viable and rich in opportunities," observed Lester, who has published approximately 400 works of non-fiction and fiction during his career.

Lester, 59, hews to the view that the publishing business may be on the cusp of a golden era, in which books are once again the focus of North American culture. As evidence of this, he cites the rise of the super bookstore.

Lester, who plans to publish his first volume in the spring of 1998, contends that the electronic media cannot replace books. Rather, they generate an interest which can only be fully satisfied by a book. "We are the people of the book, not of the CD-ROM," he said jocularly. "Technology notwithstanding, there will always be a substantial audience demanding serious books."

He plans to publish six books in his first operational year, leading off with The Ghosts That Haunt Us, a collection of Jason Schwartz's photographs of Holocaust survivors. It will be followed by the still-untitled memoirs of Arthur Schaller, who escaped from the Warsaw ghetto at the age of 13 and found refuge in the countryside.

Lester also intends to reprint two of Morley Torgov's prize-winning novels, The Outside Chance of Maximilian Glick and A Good Place to Come From.

A stickler for fine prose, he hopes to publish upwards of 15 books annually in the not too distant future. In addition, Lester plans to publish "sponsored" books with corporate participation, without compromising his integrity, he claims.

To keep overhead costs as low as possible, Lester, the only permanent employee,will use freelance editors, designers and production coordinators. Raincoast Books in Vancouver will handle distribution and marketing,

By happenstance, all 14 of his investors are Jewish. "A lot of the publishing I do falls into the broad realm of Judaica, and they wanted to see that kind of publishing thrive."

Among the members of the consortium are Jerry Shapiro, a book and magazine wholesaler; Jerry Grafstein, a Canadian senator; Lionel Schipper, the former chair of the Toronto Sun; David Rothberg, a mutual fund executive; Malcolm Coven, founder of the Byway chain; Merle Kriss, a banker; Henry Campbell, a CD-ROM manufacturer; and Annette Cohen, a filmmaker.

In all probability, they supported Lester because they were impressed by his track record. He has doubtlessly brought out some of the finest books in the annals of Canadian publishing:

• None is Too Many: Canada & the Jews of Europe, 1933-1948, by Irving Abella and Harold Troper, changed the way in which Canadians perceived Canada's immigration policy. It sold 75,000 copies.

• The Story of Canada, by Janet Lunn and Christopher Moore, was probably the first illustrated book of its kind for young readers. It racked up sales of more than 100,000, a record for Lester.

• The Illustrated History of Canada, edited by Craig Brown, was one of the first popular books of the genre for adults.

• Rites of Spring: The Great War and the Birth of the Modern Age, by Modris Eksteins, explored the relationship between mass culture and armed conflict.

• Chretien: The Will to Win, by Lawrence Martin, was a seasoned reporter's biography of Canada's current prime minister.

• In the Sleep Room: The Story of CIA Brainwashing Experiments in Canada, by Anne Collins, won the Governor-General's award for non-fiction.

• Vengeance, by George Jonas, related Israel's efforts to track down and assassinate the Palestinian masterminds of the massacre of Israeli athletes at the 1972 summer Olympic Games in Munich, Germany.

In 24 years, Lester has published 50 Judaica titles. Apart from None is Too Many, those which immediately come to mind are The Atlas of the Holocaust by Martin Gilbert, The End of Days: A Story of Tolerance, Tyranny and the Expulsion of the Jews from Spain by Erna Paris and A Coat of Many Colors: Two Centuries of Jewish Life in Canada by Irving Abella.

In selecting a manuscript for publication, Lester must not only be drawn to the topic, but to its stylistic presentation. "Good writing," he said with a touch of regret, "is hard to come by."

A voracious consumer of books, magazines and newspapers, Lester was born in Toronto, the son of Zelma and Lionel, 20th Century Fox's sales representative in Ontario.

As an undergraduate, he majored in mathematics at the University of Toronto. Pursuing his MA at the U of T, Lester, a Reform Jew, studied philosophy, and was influenced by the likes of Martin Buber, Emil Fackenheim and Abraham Heschel.

"I decided to be a rabbi to understand my Jewish heritage from a philosophical perspective," explained Lester, an intense, small-L liberal wary of "absolute truths with a capital T.".

In his third year at Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, a personal crisis loomed when he realized he had grave doubts about religion. "I felt I couldn't continue. It was pretty traumatic."

Emerging from the trauma after four months of soul searching, Lester resolved to find a vocation where ideas and business were in harmony.

"I knew nothing about publishing," he said of his plunge into it. "I went through the Yellow Pages."

Leafing through the phone book, he called Holt, Rinehart & Winston, which had an opening for a math editor. Lester was hired on the strength of his background in mathematics. He spent seven years there, rising to managing editor. In 1971, he became general manager of Coles Publishing.

Teaming up with Eve Orpen, a marketing and promotion specialist, he formed Lester & Orpen. "It was a very big step to open up your own company," he recalled. But he and Orpen hit it off, and their partnership ended only with her death.

Now, almost 20 years later, Lester has come full circle, ready and eager to meet the demands of discriminating readers who expect nothing but the highest editorial standards from the phoenix who has arisen from the ashes.

Spies galore

Spies can determine the fate of nations, as Ernest Volkman's illuminating book, Spies (John Wiley & Sons), attests. In this fascinating volume, he tells the stories of more than 40 top-drawer agents, some of whom were Jewish.

One of the greatest was Leopold Domb, a Polish Jew and a Communist who was recruited by Soviet intelligence after being deported to France by Poland in 1928.

From his base in Brussels, Domb built a top-flight espionage organization throughout Western Europe known as the Red Orchestra. In the spring of 1941, he warned the Soviet Union of an impending German invasion, but Josef Stalin disregarded the alarm. In post-war Poland, Domb grew disillusioned with communism. He settled in Israel in 1974, and died in Jerusalem nine years later.

Israel Beer was a Soviet mole in Israel. Born in Austria, he fought for the Loyalist side in the Spanish civil war. During Israel's War of Independence, he was the Haganah's chief of operations in the upper Galilee. Subsequently, he wrote an official history of the war for the Ministry of Defence.

By virtue of his friendship with David Ben-Gurion, Israel's first prime minister, Beer was privy to state secrets. He was arrested in 1961, tried and convicted of espionage and sentenced to 10 years in prison. He died in jail in 1966.

Volkman also chronicles the careers of Gabor Peter, a Hungarian Jew who passed secrets to Moscow in the 1930s and 1940s, of Israeli spies Eli Cohen and Wolfgang Lotz, whose feats have been duly documented, and of master spy Markus Wolf, who headed East Germany's foreign intelligence agency for 34 years.

17TH ANNUAL

HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK

OCT. 30 - Nov. 9, 1997

If you missed the brochure detailing the full program in the September 25th issue of The Canadian Jewish News, please call (416) 631-5689 to order your copy or visit our web site at www.feduja.org

Opening Night

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30
8:00 PM
LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE
4588 Bathurst Street

"Exodus 1947: A Look Back"

Marking the 50th anniversary of the voyage of the Exodus, the most famous of the Aliyah Bet ships attempting to bring Holocaust survivors to Palestine, the evening's program will feature:

• screening of a new documentary "Exodus 1947"

• NAT NADLER, one of the original crew of the Exodus

• PROFESSOR MEIR SCHWARTZ, an Israeli Haganah commander who accompanied the survivors to Palestine

• several passengers of the Exodus now living in Canada

REMEMBER זכור

Holocaust Education Week is coordinated by the Holocaust Remembrance Committee of UJA Federation

UJA FEDERATION

TIRED OF RUNNING YOUR OWN BUSINESS?

THINKING OF RETIRING A FEW YEARS DOWN THE ROAD?

I MAY BE YOUR ANSWER

I am a 35 year old (former Montrealer), with 16 years of experience in the LADIES APPAREL INDUSTRY. I have run a domestic manufacturing plant, worked with a network of contractors, and was the Import Manager for a large Toronto menswear company. I am a bright, energetic, hardworking person, who is seeking an opportunity in an established business where over time I can acquire an equity position.

Reply in confidence to David at 416-566-9033.

STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS

SUNDAY OPENINGS

970 Lawrence Avenue West, Suite 502
(416) 789-3351

For your convenience
State of Israel Bonds
will be open on the following Sundays

October 19 & 26 - November 2 & 9

from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

ONE FAMILY - TWO HOMES

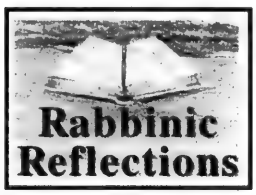
A new 3 session series for families experiencing separation or divorce

Children will attend age appropriate groups while parents participate in workshops dealing with topics including:

- Keeping kids out of the conflict
- Changing family relationships
- Overview of new family law legislation with presentation by a family law lawyer

Thursdays, October 30, November 6, and 13
6:00 - 8:00 p.m.
Forest Hill Library, 700 Eglinton Ave. W.

For fee information and registration call Pat Lieberman at Jewish Family and Child Service, 638-7800, ext. 215.



Judaism always offers us a Plan B

By RABBI LEIGH LERNER

The federal government's approach to national unity proceeds on two fronts. Plan A and Plan B. Plan A seemed to be "more of the same." Plan B, perhaps tougher, perhaps more realistic, was chosen after lack of positive results from the first.

Similarly, Yom Kippur comes to suggest that regardless of the Plan A we have chosen, there's a Plan B that might work better.

Judaism always offers Plan B. Judaism never stops suggesting that we move on to a better life, a superior ethic, a higher meaning, a deeper spirit. Judaism has never been "more of the same." It cries out for us to reach for Jerusalem, a city of holiness, a world of holiness. When we stop having Plan B, we'll stop being Jews.

Emotion is part of Judaism's Plan B. Synagogues can be places to hide emotion, a place to be cool, calm and collected. Mustn't become too joyous. Not cool. Mustn't sway with the music. Not calm. Mustn't shed a tear of sorrow or joy. Not collected.

Plan B gives permission to have emotion in synagogue. To weep at Yizkor, to bring fist to heart during al chet, to accept the shofar's blast at Neilah as a balm of comfort — these are ways to be more of a human being and to feel that we are accepted by others with forgiveness at the same time. Jewish life shapes and directs emotion toward holiness. If it's taboo to express emotions in a Jewish context, how can that happen?

Plan B also calls for devotion.

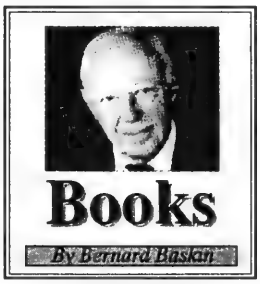
Rabbi Larry Hoffman points out that across North America, the ethnicity of Jewishness is wearing thin. If synagogues can no longer be temples of ethnicity, they must return to their original purpose, places of prayer and study, mitzvah and Torah, and Jews who want to remain Jewish must either devote themselves to developing their faith or lose purpose.

Yom Kippur, with its Torah readings, its recounting of worship in First Temple days, its martyrology of rabbis, points toward devotion. It calls us to restore the study of Jewish texts and their inspirational power to our personal agenda.

Plan B needs locomotion. It needs an engine in front to pull and power behind to push. These days, the engines that drive change in organizations are not committees: they are teams, people working hand in hand with unified purposes, depending on each other's strengths, knowledge, and commitment — trusting each other. Congregations and whole communities need each of us on the team, on side, working with other Jews toward great goals.

For sins against God, Yom Kippur atones. For sins against people, it does not atone until we have gone to them and asked forgiveness. Atonement requires a new plan of action, a changed life. Plan B calls us to love God with all our heart, our soul, and our might — with all our emotion, devotion and locomotion.

Rabbi Lerner is spiritual leader of Temple Emanu-El-Beth Sholom in Montreal.



Countering some myths

The Myth of Rescue*, by William D. Rubinstein (Routledge $25 US).

In this revisionist and controversial book the author argues that the rescue of significant numbers of Jews during the war by the democratic countries was impossible. Those historians who argue otherwise, he states, have misconstrued the tragic situation faced by Jews in Nazi-occupied Europe.

Rubinstein, professor of history at the University of Wales, Aberystwyth, attempts to counter what he considers to be widespread myths about the democracies: that they closed their doors to Jewish refugees prior and during the Holocaust; that they could have bombed Auschwitz or other death camps; that they failed to negotiate with the Nazis with the aim of bartering for Jewish lives; and that they turned their back on Jews because of anti-Semitism or anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States and Great Britain.

The author indicates that there were few barriers to the emigration of German Jews during the years 1933 to 1939. Over 70 percent of German Jewry, escaped, including 83 percent of German children and youth. When the war broke out 140,000 Jews still remained in Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia. Many of these failed to leave because they were sure the Nazi madness would pass.

Could the railway lines into Auschwitz, or the camp itself, have been bombed? The author asserts that David Ben-Gurion and other Jewish leaders opposed the idea which would have killed large numbers of prisoners and left the survivors to the retaliatory fury of the Nazis.

Moreover, the bombing of Auschwitz or any other camp in eastern Europe was impossible for Allied bombers before December 1943 when the Foggia airbase in Southern Italy was captured. Rubinstein asserts that advances in photography that can now reveal details such as victims being forced into gas chambers did not exist in the 1940s.

The various "negotiation" offers of the Nazis including the famous "blood for trucks" ransom proposal were not, suggests Rubinstein, serious or practical. The Nazis continued to murder Jews at the very time that Joel Brand was desperately trying to secure financial backing for the "offer." In any case the number of Jews saved would have been lamentably few.

It was necessary to concentrate all of the Allied resources in winning the war as quickly as possible. The historian Gerhard Weinberg, has written, "Consider how many more Jews would have survived had the war ended even a week earlier — and conversely, how many more would have died had the war gone on seven days longer. In each case, the answer is in the tens of thousands…We should realize with certainty that the number saved by winning the war as quickly as possible had to be vastly greater than the total number of Jews who could be saved by any rescue efforts proposed by anyone from 1941-45."

The author's conclusion is definite: "Neither the West's Jewish leaders in late 1942, or the American government, had the slightest power to stop Hitler's genocide, and knowledge of the Holocaust in the West did not — and could not — have halted or diminished the death toll, given Hitler's psychotic monomania…it cannot be emphasized too strongly that the responsibility for the Holocaust lies solely and wholly with Adolf Hitler, the SS, and their accomplices, and with no one else. In searching for a rational explanation of modern history's greatest crime, it is important that we not assign guilt to those who were innocent."

One of the book's significant revelations is that the much praised U.S. War Refugee Board did not save the lives of 200,000 Jews as often indicated. The actual number was closer to 20,000.

This well-researched book can be challenged on several grounds. Commonwealth countries were not eager to accept Jews. The author agrees that Canada was "subject to extreme nativist and even anti-Semitic pressure especially from Quebec."

Jewish Life

Diplomatically Speaking
By JEHUDI KINAR

Jewish community prepares for Israel's 50th

Of course the reader will have the same experience as I that the older you get the faster time seems to pass by. A couple of months ago I pointed out that in the coming year we will celebrate the 50th anniversary of Israel. We are now in the midst of our High Holidays which many of the readers spend at home and others in Israel or elsewhere. The next Jewish holiday will be Chanukah. It has been decreed that the night on which we shall light the first Chanukah candle (this year on Dec. 23) will also be the date to start the many celebrations around the world.

We plan to invite the different political leaders of the world to light the candle in their respective capitals. It would be wonderful if all the national organizations, as well as the local organizations of Canada's Jewish communities, could send their representatives to be present at the lighting of the chanukiah in Ottawa. At the same time, on the local level, the beginning of the 50th anniversary festivities will also be celebrated. "Israel at 50" celebration committees have been set up or are being set up all over the country.

The committee in Toronto, chaired by Julia Koschitzky, has met numerous times and is making tremendous progress. All ideas and suggestions are welcome and all are being considered. The preparatory work being done in Toronto is not for the benefit of that city alone but we hope that other cities can also enjoy the fruits of the efforts made there.

Nearly 100 organizations have joined the committees working with the central celebration committee and this body could be an example for other cities. The national "Israel at 50" committee will also meet soon and will give its recommendations to the different federations of the Jewish communities in Canada.

An important instrument for the success of the program will be the community calendar established by the organizing committees. This is needed so as to avoid duplication of events and to enable different organizations to join forces. All of us are, of course, looking forward to the events of December 23rd and of Yom Ha'atzmaut (Israel Independence Day) which will be celebrated April 30, so keep these days free.

We as a consulate will only participate during the year of the 50th anniversary at those events which have been organized in coordination with the committees. This, of course, does not mean that members of the consulate will be able to attend every one of the many events which have already been planned for the occasion. We will, however, do our best to respond positively to all requests.

As a last point, I want to stress that a visit to Israel is a must during the coming months. At these times when there is again a small decline in tourism to Israel, the way to show one's solidarity is by going there. There are many Canadian Jews who have never even visited Israel. Do not wait for another 50 years to celebrate with us! Be with us here and in Israel.

G'mar Chatimah Tovah.

The Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem
Toronto Chapter

wishes to extend a Happy New Year's greeting and Mazal Tov to all those families celebrating a Bar or Bat Mitzvah this coming year.

We at the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University would like to present every Bar & Bat Mitzvah with a $360.00 scholarship towards a year of study at the Rothberg School for Overseas Students at the Hebrew Univesity of Jerusalem.

For more information on the educational experience of a lifetime and on how you can receive this scholarship please contact Miriam at the CFHU at 416-485-8000.

Reunion
80 years of Canadian Young Judaea
Sunday, November 2, 1997
7:00-10:00 p.m.
788 Marlee Avenue

Solelim '70 Biluim '78 Shalom '65 Biluim '89

We are updating our Alumni list. please call and add your name

Call (416) 781-5156 for your ticket!

Yom Kippur's really a joyful day

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

We are now in the closing days of the Aseret Y'mei Tshuvah, which culminate with Yom Kippur on Friday night. Since Yom Kippur is the most famous date on the Jewish calendar, its traditions may seem very familiar. But a trip down the Jewish Highway can put some old rituals in a very new light.

Virtual Jerusalem's excellent summary of Yom Kippur customs starts by challenging us to rethink how we view "the most misunderstood day of the year." [http://www.virtual.co.il/city_services/holidays/yomkippur/]. Yom Kippur's special observances might make you think it is oppressive. Actually it is a joyful day when G-d performs spiritual operations on us that prepare us for the year ahead.

For more Virtual Jerusalem links, see [http://www.virtual.co.il/city_services/holidays/rosh/yomkip.htm]. There, you'll find The Yom Kippur Survival Guide, a Yom Kippur for Kids section and stories about the day.

Yom Kippur starts with the celebrated Kol Nidre. But Eliezer Siegel asks, "Why should a legal ritual for the annulment of vows be inserted into the beginning of what is supposed to be a day of intense prayer? Why, for that matter, should vows be annulled at all? Should they not simply be fulfilled?" For the answer see The Kol Nidre Controversy [http://www.ucalgary.ca/~elsegal/Shokel/910906_Kol_Nidre.html. More Eliezer Siegel essays on Yom Kippur can be found at [http://www.ucalgary.ca/~elsegal/ Shokel/Calendar_Index.html# YK].

Perhaps the focal prayer of the High Holy Day services is the extremely moving Unetaneh Tokef.

"On New Year's Day the decree is inscribed. And on the Day of Atonement it is sealed How many shall pass away and how many shall be born? Who shall live and who shall die?"

For a moving history of the prayer traditionally attributed to Rabbi Amnon of Mainz, see the Orthodox Union's Cyber Home of Torah [http://www.ou.org/chagim/roshhashannah/unetaneh.html]. This prayer gained popular status when it was adapted by Leonard Cohen as Who by Fire in 1974. You can find the lyrics and an audio excerpt at [http://www.music.sony.com/Music/ArtistInfo/LeonardCohen/whobyb.html].

According to the singer/poet, Cohen volunteered to sing before the Israeli troops during the Yom Kippur War after which he was moved to write his version [http://www.itsystem.se/guitar/who.by.fire.html].

For more traditional music and lectures about Yom Kippur, take a listen at 613.org [http://www.613.org/roshyomkippursuccot.html#y]. You'll find everything from a recital of the Book of Jonah Yom Kippur Haftorah to Rabbi Shalom Tendler on Love is Always Having to Say You're Sorry.

In Heroic & Humble: Our High Holy Days, Ourselves, Rabbi Harold M. Schulweis of Temple Valley Beth Shalom in Encino, Calif., looks at the dual nature of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur and finds the essence of these holidays reflected in ourselves [http://shamash.org/reform/uahc/rjmag/997hs.html].

Jewish Theological Seminary Chancellor Ismar Schorsch ponders just what we are praying for with such fervor on Yom Kippur. Surprisingly not eternal life, but just a slight extension [http://www.jtsa.edu/pubs/parashah/5756/yomkippur.html].

Until next week when we look at the joyous festival of Sukkot, I'd like to wish all my readers and their families a Gmar Chatimah Tovah.

* * *

Mark Mietkiewicz is a television producer in Toronto with an interest in the Internet. He can be reached at [mdm@inforamp.net].

שנה טובה

KING SOLOMON'S CATERING
COR

is proud to announce affordable elegant catering to the Sephardic and Ashkenazi communities.

Be first to book your Wedding or Bar/Bat Mitzvah (100–600 capacity) at Toronto's Newest & Finest Glatt Kosher Banquet Hall

Call Joe Elmaleh, C.A. (416) 630-0303

The New SEPHARDIC KEHILA CENTRE
7026 Bathurst Street (at Steeles) Thornhill

Greater Toronto Area

Jewish Vocational Services reflects on 50 years

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Few aspects of Canadian society have changed as much over the past 50 years as employment, in its nature, purpose or even existence. So it follows that few Jewish organizations have changed as much as Jewish Vocational Service of Metro Toronto (JVS).

JVS had humble beginnings in 1947, with a makeshift office in the headquarters of Tip Top Tailors, at College and Spadina. It was established by leaders of the garment industry to help Jewish war veterans and Holocaust survivors find work, mainly in the needle trade. One of the agency's founders, the late clothing manufacturer Max Enkin, worked feverishly to get Ottawa to boost its quota of immigrant Jewish tailors.

He and the other founders probably wouldn't recognize today's JVS, now in a large building in the Dufferin-Lawrence area. Bristling with new programs and the latest in technology, the front-line service not only finds jobs for new arrivals, it trains, rehabilitates, counsels and works to boost self-esteem for anyone who needs its help.

That's one reason the agency has chosen the topic of emotional intelligence (EQ) as the theme for this, its 50th anniversary year.

In addition to events throughout 1997 and '98, JVS plans a day-long symposium on the topic, on Nov. 18. Slated to attend is Dr. Reuven Bar-On, the Israeli psychologist who developed the now world-famous test that can accurately gauge a person's emotional intelligence, or EQ.

Unlike conventional IQ test, the EQ quiz charts a wide range of attitudes, like happiness, optimism, empathy and ability to deal with stress. Bar-On's test has been used on soldiers in the Israeli army and is currently employed by several Fortune 500 companies on prospective employees.

Job placement rate of 85 percent

Results have found that people can have high IQs and still be poor navigators of their emotional selves, while those with lower IQ scores can be happy and even-keeled.

JVS plans to use the test one day, and another one currently being developed for children. Meanwhile, the agency offers nearly 30 programs and services to keep up with an employment situation that is fluid and, warn some, even imperiled.

One indicator of how key JVS has become in the community is its budget: In 1993, the agency ran on $3.4 million. Today, it needs $5 million a year, provided by governments, the United Way and United Jewish Appeal.

JVS serves about 12,000 clients a year, says agency president Michael Miller, including 4,000 students in Toronto's Jewish day school system who benefit from psycho-educational counselling. About 70 percent of clients are Jewish.

While career counselling, testing and job placement still form JVS' central core, services range from help with brushing up interviewing skills and a resume, to actually getting small businesses off the ground.

The Start Smart program, funded by Ottawa, hears ideas for new business start-ups, and helps create marketing plans. Over the past year, the program has helped some 120 individuals.

JVS also teams with other community organizations, such as Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, Reena and Jewish Family and Child Service, to help in such areas as English language training, working with the brain injured, and most recently, helping to train and place those whose welfare payments are supplemented by subsidies from the community.

JVS also runs a sheltered workshop at the Baycrest Centre.

Innovation has helped JVS keep up with the times. Its Women in New Roles (WINR) program helps women who have difficulty entering or re-entering the labor force, while the Health Sector Training and Adjustment Program helps those laid off or "downsized" from work in the health care system.

Overall, the agency boasts a job placement rate of 85 percent, not "McJobs," says Miller, but steady and well-paying work. And over the past year, the agency has helped 200 clients with developmental and physical disabilities find work.

The agency is doing outreach to large hotel chains seeking workers, as well as continuing to put out the word to all employers that JVS can function as an employment agency, at no cost. Employers can tap JVS to fill vacancies and co-op placements, and furthermore get a government subsidy.

The agency can look to the future with confidence, knowing that the Canadian economy's biggest growth lies in small and medium-sized businesses. JVS plans not only to supply them with workers, but to show businesses how to use the Internet to advertise and buy supplies.

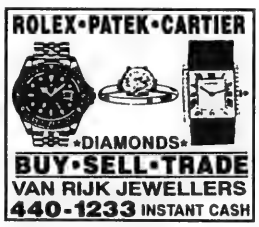
It also plans to set up training programs to develop skills in computers and software, projected as a major growth area over the next 20 years.

To accommodate its growth, the agency is looking to move into a 27,000-square-foot facility in the Finch-Yonge area, and is hoping to open an office in York Region.

In all, it's come a long way from beating the bushes for jobs for tailors and seamstresses.

The 50th annual general meeting of JVS will take place Oct. 14 at 6 p.m. at Beth Tzedec Congregation. Guest speaker will be Elaine Todres, president of the Baycrest Foundation.

NER ISRAEL YESHIVA
8950 Bathurst St.,
Thornhill, Ont. L4J 8A7
Provides for
KADDISH SERVICES and OBSERVING YAHRZEIT and MEMORIAL PLAQUES
Please invest in the future.
Remember Ner Israel in your will.
CALL (905) 731-1224



JIAS TORONTO Jewish Immigrant Aid Services 75th Anniversary UJA Federation in cooperation with

"CELEBRATING OUR HERITAGE"
GALA CONCERT
starring
THERESA TOVA
Star, author & winner of
4 Doras for "Still the Night"
MARK SKAZINETSKY
Assoc. Concertmaster, TSO
IGOR GEFTER
Cellist
MARINA SURGAN
Pianist, National Ballet
ARMAND MOYAL
Cantor
YEFIM ADLER & BEN STEINBERG
Composers

Monday October 27, 7:30 p.m.
GEORGE WESTON RECITAL HALL
Ford Centre for the Performing Arts
TICKET PRICES: $18, $36, & $75.*
*$75. TICKET INCLUDES POST CONCERT RECEPTION

for the time of your life call today!
FOR TICKETS & INFORMATION CALL: (416) 697-0613

STEELES
MEMORIAL CHAPEL
TORONTO'S JEWISH COMMUNITY CHAPEL
Over 69 years of Traditional Service

A MANY-SIDED APPROACH TO MEETING YOUR NEEDS

We live in an age when the Jewish community finds confidence and support in having a choice. We recognize that you as individuals appreciate seeing alternatives in matters which deal with the heart and family ties.

Because of that keen awareness for your needs, Steeles Memorial Chapel wants you to know that we always endeavour to provide you with helpful options in your funeral arrangements.

We are able to deal with your needs in ways that provide the fullest service, handling every detail that arises. Or we can show you some very affordable arrangements which are more modest, in keeping with your requirements and preferences.

Our many years of service to our community has shown us that empathy and flexibility in setting out the most appropriate arrangements for your needs are key elements in our widely based service. We are near, guiding you through the complexities, giving you workable options and making life a little easier, a little more comforting.

350 Steeles Avenue West, Thornhill, Ont. L4J 1A1
Tel: (905) 881-6003 • (416) 733-2000

Greater Toronto Area

Dorn was leader at Shaarei Shomayim

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — Myer Dorn, former executive director of Toronto's Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue and a dedicated community leader, died recently after a lengthy illness. He was 79.

Obituary

Myer Dorn

Born in Montreal, Dorn attended McGill University. He joined the Israeli armed forces in 1947 and served for two years. On his return to Canada, he moved to Windsor, Ont., where he was active in many community organizations, including the Windsor Jewish Community Council and the city's Jewish Community Centre.

In Windsor, Dorn served as secretary of Congregation Shaar Hashomayim. He was a president of Windsor Lodge, B'nai Brith, and chair of the Bicentenary of Canadian Jewry. He was active in interfaith work, received the Brotherhood Humanitarian Award in 1962 from the Windsor Brotherhood Committee and was a member of the mayor's committee studying hospital bed shortages in Essex County.

In 1962, he became executive director of the Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue, which was then located on St. Clair Avenue West.

Dorn was involved with every facet of the synagogue during its period of major growth, including the negotiations and development of the current synagogue at 470 Glencairn Ave. He also headed the synagogue's endowments project.

The congregation's membership was 500 families when Dorn became executive director and grew to 1,300 families during his leadership. To accommodate the members, he listed his home phone number on the synagogue stationery so that he could be reached at any time, day or night.

Dorn, who was known for his kindness and caring, knew most synagogue members by name and congregants say that he made his work a labor of love. Although he could be found at the synagogue at 7 a.m. and often remained until midnight, he made it a rule to be at home with his family for meals.

He often said his goal in life was to save up mitzvahs. He could be found at simchahs, sad occasions, and helping a needy person or family.

He leaves his wife Laura Sharpe Dorn, children Judy Phillips of New York, Gilbert Sharpe of Toronto and Dr. Howard Sharpe of Houston, and grandchildren, Geoffrey, Daniella and David Phillips.

KOL NIDRE

From the postcard collection of the Jewish Theological Seminary Library.

Jewish National Fund of Toronto

is proud to invite the Toronto Community to the

1997 Negev Dinner Tribute

in honour of

Edward Bronfman

in recognition of excellence in communal leadership and dedication to Israel

Sunday, December 7, 1997 at the Sheraton Centre, Toronto

Reception: 5:00 p.m. Dinner: 6:00 p.m.

Tickets to the Dinner are $107 per person with a minimum contribution of $360 (for which a tax receipt will be issued)

DINNER CHAIRMAN
DONALD CARR, Q.C.

CAMPAIGN CO-CHAIRMEN
ARNOLD L. CADER
DONALD CARR, Q.C.

A special project will be initiated on the occasion of Toronto's 1997 Negev Dinner Tribute saluting Edward Bronfman. Proceeds from the Dinner will be used for land reclamation and project development at Kibbutz Neot Semadar, in the southern Arava region of the Negev Desert. The young pioneers of Neot Semadar require our assistance to help ensure economic stability and a bright future for them and their children in a very barren area of the wilderness known as the Arava, just north of Eilat.

In saluting Edward Bronfman, the Jewish National Fund will assist Neot Semadar in reclaiming hundreds of dunams of land for agricultural use, help develop an Artists Centre, develop roads to the Kibbutz and within the Kibbutz, and assist the construction of a fifty thousand cubic metre reservoir. A resort area to promote tourism will also be developed. This undertaking will surely be a source of great pride to all who will have participated in this very worthy project. Together, we can all help to make the desert green.

For further information contact
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF TORONTO
4600 Bathurst Street, Suite 238
North York, Ont. M2R 3V3
PHONE: (416) 638-7200 FAX: (416) 638-7345

Turning 69, 70 or 71 this year?

You must convert your RRSP into a Retirement Program by DECEMBER 31. Allow me to structure a plan to meet your specific needs.

H. AB NISKER C.A.
Over 45 years as a Financial Advisor
(905) 479-6670
COSBURN, GRIFFITHS & BRANDHAM FINANCIAL SERVICES INC.

Craft & Gift Sale

MONDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1997
10 A.M. - 5 P.M.

BAYVIEW VILLAGE SHOPPING CENTRE
SHEPPARD AVE. E. & BAYVIEW AVE.
North York, Ont.

Free admission Free parking

Under the auspices of: CLUB BEERSHEBA
NA'AMAT CANADA

GROUP PROGRAMS FOR YOU AND YOUR FAMILY

✔ PARENTING

Learn new techniques, discuss realistic expectations, discipline, and coping strategies.

- The Pre-schooler Thursday, October 30
- The School Age Child Thursday, October 30
- Living With Teens Wednesday, October 29
- Step Parents Wednesday, October 29

✔ BEREAVEMENT

Benefit from the support and validation of others who have experienced loss.

- Adult Children Losing Parents Thursday, October 30
- Young Widows/Widowers Thursday, November 6
- Losing a Spouse Wednesday, October 29*

✔ PERSONAL

Improve interpersonal skills and develop insights and opportunities for personal growth.

- When Relationships Hurt Tuesday, October 14*
- The Self Confident Woman Wednesday, November 5
- The Challenge of Anger Monday, November 3* Thursday, November 6
- Social Skills for Adolescents Tuesday, October 14
- Social Skills for Children Monday, October 20
- One Marriage: Two Religions Thursday, November 20

✔ SEPARATION & DIVORCE

Learn new coping strategies and adjust to different life circumstances.

- One Family: Two Homes* Thursday, October 30 groups for parents & children*
- Single Again Monday, November 3
- Separation & Looking Ahead Tuesday, October 21
- Single Parent Challenge Wednesday, October 29

Most groups run 6 or 8 weeks and meet in the evening.
 Daytime course*

For fee information & registration call Pat Lieberman at Jewish Family & Child Service (416) 638-7800 ext. 215

Prof. still committed to peace

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Last year Michael Keren was shaken by the death of one of his graduate students, the victim of a terrorist bomb in Dizengoff Square, but the Tel Aviv University (TAU) political science professor has refused to yield to pessimism about the Middle East peace process.

"The peace process has very profound roots which allow an optimistic note even at times when it seems the process is dead," said Keren in an interview.

The 53-year-old sabra was in Toronto recently to speak on New Politics: Between Populism and Democracy at the TAU North American conference held here. He has been in Canada since July as part of the Canada-Israel Foundation for Academic Exchange and is teaching at the University of Calgary for the year.

Keren is a past chair of TAU's political science department, with books on both politics and the media to his credit. He was recently named director of its Institute for Study of the Jewish Press.

He believes the peace process is contingent neither on daily occurrences nor on the leaders in power.

Both Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat are very much part of their respective communities' elites which have "a vested interest in the peace process," he said.

Both leaders have made crucial mistakes with respect to terrorism, Keren believes.

"Arafat's great mistake has been that he apparently did not understand enough the effect that Palestinian terrorism would have on the process, and I think that Netanyahu made a mistake in that he made terrorism the main strategic issue on the agenda...Two nations engaged in historic reconciliation cannot let terrorism dominate the agenda, neither by allowing it to occur nor by presenting it as the major constraint of the process."

It was clear from the beginning the process would have ups and downs, said Keren.

Although there are "always elements for whom reconciliation is a betrayal," Keren believes there is a global trend favoring "down-to-earth interests" over "maximalist views and desires. Ideology plays less of a role."

It is from this trend that he derives his optimism. Although it may seem that maximalists have the upper hand, he said, he thinks their victory is temporary. "I think in the long run compromise is going to be the name of the game, at least in our lifetime."

Although it's difficult for people to be patient when they're hungry or out of work, or when bombs are exploding, people need hope, he said.

What Keren finds disturbing is spokespeople on both sides who "in the name of some maximalist vision are willing to take away the hope of reconciliation" by denying that the other side must be considered.

When Israelis and Palestinians work together, the rest of the Middle East has to follow suit, he believes.

Michael Keren

"I don't think I'm a naive optimist, [but I do] think we're in one of the great moments of despair."

In his conference address, Keren discussed "new politics" as a global trend which has reached Israel.

The trend encompasses the declining influence of political parties, the increasing influence of the media, and the rise in power of an academic, military and business elite.

Netanyahu's "relative detachment from his own Likud party, and direct access to the media, made it relatively easy for him to yield to pragmatic considerations opposed to his supporters' preferences," Keren contended.

BLOWING SHOFAR

Nina Kagan, 9, a Grade 4 student at the Toronto Heschel School hones up on her shofar-blowing skills. [Barbara Silverstein photo]

The Toronto Heschel School
An arts-based, multi-sensory Jewish Day School

We are pleased to announce that we now accept applications for a new SENIOR KINDERGARTEN class in the 1998/99 school year.

We also have a limited number of openings in Grade Two.

Our commitment to a student-teacher ratio of 2 teachers per 20 students (2 teachers per 18 students in pre-school) remains unchanged.

Please call 416-635-1876 or fax 635-1800.

גמר חתימה טובה

The Torah should be used to bring the Jewish people together.

Not pull us apart.

The Torah has been the great unifying force that has held us together as a people for centuries. In diverse communities throughout the world, we studied the Torah and often arrived at different meanings and insights. In Babylonia the rabbis created one Talmud, from the perspective of a Diaspora. In Jerusalem, other rabbis created a different Talmud, from the perspective of ancient Israel. In France, Rashi created one commentary. In Spain, Maimonides created another. And still today we delve into the raging controversies which took place between the great rabbis Hillel and Shammai, honoring their divergent views.

Deep belief and involvement with its words. Diversity of opinion. Multiple interpretations. Continued study and debate. This way of life has kept the Torah timeless and alive, inspiring us as a people to be vibrant, creative and connected until this day.

Or until recent times. When Israel placed unprecedented power in the hands of the ultra-Orthodox (Haredi) establishment, allowing them to coerce Jews into living a Jewish life according to a single interpretation of the Torah. Theirs.

As a result, the government of Israel recognizes only one form of Judaism. Orthodoxy.

Which means that Israel recognizes only marriages, divorces and conversions performed by Orthodox rabbis. Conservative and Reform rabbis in Israel, who represent the vast majority of world Jewry, have no legal rights to officiate in these capacities.

And now religious parties are demanding new laws that would in effect overturn Supreme Court decisions that have begun to open the way for diverse expressions of Judaism in the Jewish State. Laws like these will only encourage Israel's religious extremists, alienate hundreds of thousands of Israelis from Judaism, and drive a wedge between Diaspora Jews and Israel.

Ironically, these laws are not in the spirit of the Torah. They are being used to exclude large segments of our population, dividing us into opposing camps. They threaten the diversity of our people, which has been a key to Jewish survival for 2000 years. They stifle debate and open thinking, making the Torah seem archaic and authoritarian.

They also strike at the core of civil rights and democracy upon which Israeli society is based, threatening basic freedoms and fostering oppressive, religious rule.

All Jews own the Torah. Which makes the struggle for religious freedom in Israel a struggle for all concerned Jews everywhere in the world. That is why you should know about the New Israel Fund. The New Israel Fund is one of the most dynamic partnerships today between Israel and the Diaspora. In the 18 years since the Fund was established, it has taken the lead in support of democracy, pluralism, tolerance and social justice in Israel. For further information on these issues, please contact us for our free brochure, "The Struggle for Pluralism and Religious Freedom."

Call 888-988-FUND (3863) or e-mail us at info@nif.org. You can also fax us at 202-659-2789.

New Israel Fund
הקרן החדשה לישראל

Greater Toronto Area

NCJW exhibit coincides with centennial

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — "Don't you love these pictures?" asked a visitor at the recent opening of National Council of Jewish Women of Canada's (NCJW) archival exhibit.

"Not one woman would show up without a hat," she noted, inspecting a 1948 photo taken at a Vancouver luncheon.

The exhibit, entitled Faith & Humanity, coincides with NCJW's 100th anniversary and opened during the organization's recent biennial convention held here. It runs at the Multicultural History Society of Ontario, 43 Queen's Park Cres. E., until Oct. 28.

"We tried to get pictures from across the country and from different eras," said Merle Eisen of NCJW.

Noreen Kasman was surprised to see a group shot of "all the women I knew growing up" in Welland, Ont.

Former NCJW national president Lucille Lorie, now 93, is seen en route to a meeting in a photo from NCJW's current archival exhibit.

But probably the photo that attracted the most attention was a circa-1950s shot of a smiling Lucille Lorie about to descend the stairs from a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane en route to a meeting. Lorie, now 93 and a former national president, received NCJW's Centennial Member Award, honoring her as Volunteer of the Century. (Judge Andrée Ruffo of Montreal and Glenna Kay of Winnipeg received the Centennial Community Award and Centennial Young Leadership Award respectively.)

In 1897, the first section of what would become NCJW Canada was formed in Toronto. A portrait of its first president, Mrs. J.S. Cohen, seen with her bright-eyed daughter, and an 1897 photo of 12 young founding members are the oldest items in the exhibit.

"I'm always interested in social history, and there's not a lot about women in the community. It's phenomenal," said NCJW's new national president, Hinda Simkin of Vancouver.

Frances Mandell, who co-chaired NCJW's archives committee with Gita Arnold, said that "every day was another thrill" as they gathered and organized the material – mostly photographs – over the past two years. Gabriele Scardellato, head historian of the Multicultural History Society of Ontario, curated the exhibit.

Many of the 62 photos depict community service projects, for which NCJW has become known.

"Council's mandate was to start projects that were very important in the community," explained Eisen. Among those seen in the display are Toronto Section's 1964 junior kindergarten program, the forerunner of JK in public schools; a 1937 camp run by Montreal Section for underprivileged girls; London's "Call Police" banner project for drivers; Vancouver's mobile hearing clinic; and Winnipeg's English classes for immigrants.

Speakers at the exhibit opening included Mel Lastman, mayor of North York; Barbara Hall, mayor of Toronto; councillor Howard Moscoe; and Isabel Bassett, parliamentary assistant to the Ontario minister of finance.

"The entire community can celebrate and thank you," said Hall. "You influenced how the community responds to the vulnerable among us. [We can] take energy from what's been done in the past for the challenges that are still ahead of us."

Among the issues discussed at the convention were education, poverty and advocacy.

New member Lisa Boroditsky, 29, of Vancouver, found the meeting inspiring. "The devotion these women have towards each other and towards the continuity of Jewish education makes me feel stronger [about being] Jewish," she said.

New York-based Barbara Leslie, International Council of Jewish Women's representative to the United Nations and a keynote speaker at the convention, mentioned that the "anti-Israel process in the United Nations continues and is a matter of grave concern for us."

Most of her talk, however, focused on the status of women worldwide. "If women are healthy and educated, then families will flourish," she said. "And when families flourish, communities and nations will flourish."

Toronto Remembers

ISRAEL AT 50

Toronto Celebrates
Israel's 50th Anniversary

The Commemorative Book

Israel's 50th Anniversary Committee is creating a Commemorative Photo-History Book published by McClelland and Stewart Inc.
highlighting the personal and unusual stories that link Torontonians to Israel.

WE NEED YOUR MEMORIES AND WE NEED THEM NOW!

- ☐ Where were you on May 14, 1948?
- ☐ Did you volunteer in 1948, 1967 or 1973?
- ☐ Have you lived on a kibbutz? Worked in an Israeli hospital?

Do you have a personal story about your connection with Israel you would like to share?
Have you had an Israeli experience that has touched your life?
We need your story, accompanied by photographs.

Please drop your photos and stories off at one of the following locations:

- Bloor JCC, 750 Spadina Street – Reception Office
- Bathurst Community Centre, 4588 Bathurst St. – Reception Office
- Beth Tzedec Synagogue, 1700 Bathurst Street – Synagogue Office
- Beth Tikvah Synagogue, 3080 Bayview Avenue – Synagogue Office
- Shaar Shalom, 2 Simonston Boulevard – Synagogue Office

...or at any Jewish Day school office.

DEADLINE IS NOVEMBER 10, 1997

Stories and photographs will be selected for publication.

Copies of all photographs will be added to the permanent collection of the Ontario Jewish Archives.

You will be contacted when the photographs are ready for pick-up.

For additional information please call the ISRAEL AT 50 hotline: (416) 635-2883 ext. 705

We want to protect your photos!

- On the back of each photo write lightly in pencil only your name, address and phone number.
- Put your name, address and phone number on the top of your story.
- Put the story and photos in a self-addressed envelope

The Labour Zionist Alliance of Canada extends good wishes to all our Chaverim and their families and the Jewish Community for a Happy and Healthy New Year.

May this year find peace and prosperity in Israel and throughout the world.

Josef Krystal, National Chairman
Harry Froimovitch, Vice-Chairman (Montreal)

Yiddish Corner

ייִדיש ווינקל

רעדאגירט פון ש. לִיפשִׁין

הונדערט יאָר „בונד" פון אהרון פיינער

די גרינדונגס פֿאַראַמלונג פון „אַלגעמיינעם ייִדישן אַרבעטער בונד פון רוסלאַנד, פּוילן און ליטע" איז אפֿגעהאַלטן בעוואַרן אין אַ בחדרם-שטיבל, אין דער ווילנער אַרעמער געגנט, לוקישאָק, אָקטאָבער 1897.

דרייצן דעלעגאַטן זייַנען אַנוועזנד געווען. דאָס זייַנען געווען פֿאַר-שטייערס פון די שוין דעמאָלט עקזיסטירנדיקע קליינע גרופּעס פון רעוואָ-לוציאָנערע, ייִדישע סאָציאַליסטיש-געשטימטע אַרבעטער פון ווילנע, בּיאַליסטאָק, וואַרשע, מינסק און ווִיטעבסק. די דעלעגאַטן פון אַנדערע שטעט האָבן נישט געקענט קומען, ווייל זיי זייַנען שוין געווען אַרעסטירט, אַדער זיך געמוזט אויסבאַהאַלטן פון דער צאַרישער פּאָליצייַ.

ווי האָט דאָן אויסגעזען דאָס ייִדישע לעבן אין צאַרישן רוסלאַנד? אַרייַנגעקוועטשט אין די ענגע ראַמען פון תּחום-המושב, רעכטלאָז און אונטערדריקט האָט דאָס ייִדישע לעבן וועגעטירט, סיי מאָטעריעל און סיי גייסטיק. די הויפּט דעה האָבן געהאַט די „שיגע יידן", גבירים און קהל־לשׂ „פֿאַרזאָרגטע", וואָס האָבן מיט ביטול געקוקט אויף דער אַרע-מער ייִדישער מאַסע.

אין ענער תקופה האָבן אויך די רוסישע סאָלדאַט־מאָסן געלעבט אין דחקות און נויט. די מאָדערנע אינדוסטריע האָט זיך ערשט אָנגעהויבן צו אַנטוויקלען. מער ווי אכציק פּראָצענט פון דער באַפֿעלקערונג האָט זיך פֿאַרנומען מיט לאַנדווירטשאַפט. די נויט אויפן דאָרף איז געווען גרויס, ווייל די ערד האָט געהערט צו די פּריצים. עס האָבן אָנגעהויבן צו אָנט-שטיין רעוואָלוציאָנערע באַוועגונגען, ווי די „נאַראָדניקעס" און די פּוילישע „פֿראָלעטאַריאַט", וואָס האָבן געקעמפט קעגן דער צאַרישער מאַכט. אויך ייִדישע יונגע מענטשן האָבן געהערט צו די באַוועגונגען, אָבער זיי האָבן זיך אָפּגעגרענעצט פון ייִדישן לעבן.

אויף דער ייִדישער גאַס האָבן זיך באַווירן גרופּעס און קרייזלעך פון ייִדישע אַרבעסט־מענטשן, וואָס האָבן זיך בענטמען אַרגאַניזירן און קעמפן פֿאַר בעסערע לעבנס־באַדינגונגן. עס זייַנען אָנגעשטאַנען „אַרבעטער ליט-קאָסעס", קרייזלעך פון „צער־בעלי־חיים־ניקעס" און „בונטאָווטשיקעס". זיי זייַנען געווען די פֿאָרגייערס פון „בונד".

די אָנגעשטיאונג פון „בונד" האָט פֿאַראייניקט די אַלע גרופּעס, פֿאַר-שטאַרקט זייער טעטיקייט און גההויבן זייער מוט. דער „בונד" האָט אַרייַנגעבראַכט אין די פֿאַרשפּאַרטע געסלעך פון תחום־המושב אַ ווייטע פון אַ פֿרייער וועלט, אַן אַנדערע אויר פֿון סאָציאַליזם. אַנטשולדיקונג, אַ סאָציאַליסטישע וועלט. פֿאַסיוויטעט איז פֿאַרוואַנדלט געוואָרן אין אַקטיוויזם, גליבעלטקייט — אין קאַמף פֿאַר אַ בעסער לעבן. די גרינ-דערס פון „בונד" זייַנען אויך געווען מיטגרינדערס פון דער רוסישער סאָציאַל־דעמאָקראַטישער אַרבעטער פּאַרטיי, אין וועלכער זיי האָבן גע-שפּילט אַ גרויסע ראָלע, ביז דער רוסישער רעוואָלוציע פון 1917. דער רוסישער „בונד" איז ליקווידירט געוואָרן דורך דעם באָלשעוויסטישן רע-זשים און די בונדישע טעטיקייט האָט זיך קאָנצענטרירט אין נייַע פּוילן.

דער בונדישער קאַמף פֿאַר ייִדישער גליכבאַרעכטיקונג און די פֿאַר-צווייגטע טעטיקייטן האָבן דערנענטערט דעם „בונד" צו דער ייִדישער שפּראַך און קולטור. די פֿאַרעורונג פֿאַר „נאַציאָנאַל קולטורעלער אויטא-נאָמיי" פֿאַר אַלע מיינדערהייטן איז אויך געוואָרן אַ טייל פון דעם בונדישן פּראָגראַם. דער אידעאַל, אַז אַ ייִדישע מלוכה וועט ליין אַלע פּראָבלעמען פון דעם צעזיינטן ייִדישן פֿאָלק איז זוכהן „בונד" אָפּגעוואָרפן געוואָרן צוליב צוויי סיבות: 1) דער סאָציאַליסטישער גענאָג פון אינטערנא-ציאָנאַליזם; 2) די אומאָפּיע וועגן דער מעגלעכקייט פון אַ ייִדישער מלוכה. די וויכטיקייט פון קלאַסן־קאַמף פֿאַרבינדט מער די ייִדישע אַרבעטער מאָסן מיט אַרבעטער פון אַנדערע נאַציאָנאַליטעטן, ווי מיטן ייִדישן בּיט-גערטום. דאָס איז געווען די סיבה פון קאַמף קעגן ציוניזם, וואָס דער „בונד" האָט געפּירט, ווייל די טעטיקייטן לטובת אַ ייִדישער מלוכה שוואַכן אָפּ דעם קלאַסן־קאַמף, וואָס די ייִדישע אַרבעטער מוזן פירן, האָבן זיי גע־סענה־יט.

די פֿראָפּאַגאַנדע אַרבעט פון „בונד" איז געפּירט געוואָרן אויף ייִדיש. די דאָזיקע אַרבעט האָט דערפּירט צו דער אָנטוויקלונג פון דער בונדי-שער באַוועגונג, און דעם וואוקס פון די קולטור אינסטיטוציעס, וואָס זייַנען געשאַפֿן געוואָרן. עס זייַנען אויפֿגעשטעלט געוואָרן פֿאָלקס־שולן, ביבליאָטעקן, ביכער פֿאַרלאַגן, כאָר, דראַמאַטישע קרייזן און קולטור ליגעס. צו די יונגע אַרגאַניזאַציעס פון „בונד", „צוקונפֿט" און „סקיף" האָבן געהערט טויזנטער יונגעלעכע, וואָס האָבן אויף זיי קרייזן זיך גע-לערנט און קולטורעל פֿאַרבעסערט. די זומער אָנשטאָלטן האָבן געשטאַרקט דעם באַוואוסטזיין פון די יונגעלעכע און זיי דערצויגן אין אַ שטאָלצן, קעמפֿעריש גייסט. דאָס איז געווען אין דער טראָדיציע פון דער בונדישער באַוועגונג זינט די יאָרן פון ערשטן ייִדישן אַרבעטער העלד הירש לעקערט, וועלכער האָט זיין לעבן אויפֿגעגעבן פֿאַרן כבוד פון ייִדישן אַרבעטער.

די בונדישע ועלבסטשוץ האָט פֿאַרטיידיקט די ייִדישע באַפֿעלקערונג פון די צאַרישע פּאָגראָמשטשיקעס. דער „בונד" איז פּונקט אַרגאַני-זירט דעם געגראָל־סטרייק פון דער ייִדישער באַפֿעלקערונג קעגן דער אַנטיסעמיטיש־פֿאַשיסטישער רעגירונג דעם 17־טן מערץ, 1936. די העל-דישע טעטיקייטן פון אונטערגרונדישן „בונד" איז די געפֿאָס פון פּוילן און איז די אימפּאָזאַנט אין וואַרשע, ווילנע און ביאַליסטאָק, און דער קרבן פון אַראָד זיגעלבוימען וועלן קיינמאָל נישט פֿאַרגעסן ווערן.

אין געפֿענגעטע באַוועגונגן, מיט אפֿגעשניטענע כוחות פירט דער „בונד" וויסער אָן מיט זיין טעטיקייט פֿאַרן קיום פון ייִדישן וועלט פֿאָלק.

YOU'LL SEE THE SAVINGS AISLE AFTER AISLE

Now Save More By Miles

Now Earn AIR MILES® travel miles for FREE* travel and more at The Savings Stores. It's easy as 1-2-3!!!

*1 Carry the Card *2 Show the Card *3 Earn Free Rewards

For every $20 you spend You'll receive one Travel Mile* and every week bonus travel miles will be available on hundreds of items.

SIGN UP TODAY!

SEE STORE FOR MORE DETAILS

AIR MILES Travel and More

CHAI KOSHER Fresh Whole Chickens Now! 1.99 lb 4.39 kg

CHAI KOSHER Fresh or Frozen Turkeys Now! 1.99 lb 4.39 kg

GLATT KOSHER Fresh Prime Rib Roasts or Steaks Cap Removed Now! 7.49 lb 16.51 kg

Hebrew National Skinless Franks Now! 3.99 375 g pkg

KOSHER Aaron Best Frankfurters or Knockwurst Now! 3.99 450 g pkg

Fresh Seafood SUBJECT TO AVAILABILITY

FRESH, FARM RAISED Atlantic Salmon Steaks Now! 5.88 lb 1.30 100 g

Fresh Sole Fillets Now! 6.88 lb 1.52 100 g

More Savings Now! ...on all of your Grocery Needs

SELECTED VARIETIES INCLUDING Rippin' Good Chocolate Chip Cookies 300 g - 450 g pkg Now! 1.69

ASSORTED FLAVOURS Ceres Fruit Juice 1 L tetra carton Now! 1.99

Billy Bee Liquid Honey 500 g jar Now! 1.99

SELECTED VARIETIES Goodman's Soup Mix 5 - 6 oz pkg Now! .87

REGULAR OR UNSALTED Rok Snackers 300 g pkg Now! 1.69

POP-INS Puff Pastry Dough 1 lb pkg Now! 1.49

The Savings Stores PRICES EFFECTIVE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS UNTIL SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1997

save a centre FOOD MARKETS 600 SHEPPARD AVE., W. DOWNSVIEW 2760 BATHURST ST., TORONTO

We Save You TIME, MONEY and HASSLES!

Greater Toronto Area

Kosher Foodfest offers plenty to sink your teeth into

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Frances Kraft has covered her share of serious stories during her years as a staff reporter at The CJN. She has written about street kids, victims of Arab terror and agunot. But she recently had a really tough assignment: food judge at Aish Hatorah's Jewish Life and Kosher Foodfest.

The event, the second in what is expected to become an annual event, was held at Centerpoint shopping mall in North York.

Activities included cooking demonstrations (with lots of sampling) and kashruth information; a sofer explaining how mezuzot and tfillin are made; arts and crafts and music for children; and a computer that traced Jewish names.

Booths ranged from Arisal Cosmetics, Chocolate Charm, Chocolate Moose and various caterers, to Jews for Judaism, Strubs, Levitts, and even Terrace Gardens Retirement Lodge and The Simple Alternative.

Show manager Devorah Ohayon told The CJN that there were three times as many exhibitors as there were last year, and "Centerpoint said they hadn't been as busy since Christmas."

Certainly though, the food testing was a highlight of the afternoon, generating great interest and attention, not to mention encouraging cheers.

Kraft said she tested foods in categories such as gefilte fish, appetizers, desserts and pickles, along with fellow food judges Vivian Anhang, kosher cooking instructor and consultant for the Kashruth Council; food-writer Elizabeth Baird; Lisa Friesan and Marty Galin from the Marty and Avrum Restaurant and Food Show; Joan Monfaredi, executive chef of the Park Plaza Hotel; and talk show host Shirley Solomon.

Dairy Treats won in three categories — bagels, general dessert (for its cheesebun) and gourmet dessert, winning for its Belgian chocolate mousse cake.

Other winners were Perls, for sweet gefilte fish; Levitt's pickles; Hermes Bakery challah; E.D. Smith's triple fruit wildberry; Yogènfruz' new strawberry smoothie; Metropolitan Ice Cream's sorbet fruit ice; Chocolate Moose for its chocolate hazelnut cup, and the antipasto plate from Peter Graben caterers.

"I had a great time," enthused Kraft.

CJN* staff reporter Frances Kraft [centre] ponders an ice cream sample, along with fellow judges Joan Manfaredi, executive chef of the Park Plaza Hotel (left) and COR cooking instructor and consultant Vivian Anhang, at the food judging contest at Aish Hatorah's Jewish Life and Kosher Foodfest 97. [Ryan Kraft photo]

Cooking classes set for fall

TORONTO — The Kashruth Council of Toronto, affiliated with the Vaad Harabanim of Toronto, has announced its lineup of fall cooking classes.

Three new classes will be offered and one class will be repeated by popular request.

The demonstrations will be given by Vivian Anhang, a teacher and graduate home economist with many years' experience in presenting food-related programs to all segments of the community.

Vivian Anhang

The classes will be held at the Shaarei Tefillah Congregation on Tuesday evenings at 8 p.m. throughout November. There is ample parking and convenient public transportation. The classes are open to males and females. The fee for each class is $15, and $10 for students under 18 years of age.

The classes include Gourmet Entertaining on a Budget (V46) on Nov. 4; Festive Main Dishes-Meat (V44) on Nov. 11; Less Fat-More Energy (V47) on Nov. 18; and Convenience Meals-Meat (V17) on Nov. 25, a repeat of a highly successful class.

Enrolment is limited, with registration on a first-come first-serve basis.

To register, send your name, address, postal code, phone number (home and work) and a postdated cheque for the day of the class to: Cynthia Gasner, director of Information and Public Relations, Kashruth Council of Toronto, 4600 Bathurst St., Suite 240, Willowdale, Ont., M2R 3V2. If registering for more than one class, please send a separate cheque for each class and for each participant. For more details, call 416-635-9550.

Clarification

A letter to the editor from the Canadian Friends of Yad Sarah in The CJN Sept. 25 should have read that Yad Sarah saves the Israeli economy about $350 million a year with its services.

The CJN regrets the error.

JIAS TORONTO
JEWISH IMMIGRANT AID SERVICES OF CANADA
4600 Bathurst Street, Suite 325
Willowdale, Ontario M2R 3V3
Tel: (416) 630-6481 • Fax: (416) 630-1376
Wish a newly arrived immigrant family a
Shana Tova
by donating good used furniture to the JIAS Community Furniture Bank Program.
Please call: (416) 630-6481 Ext. 51

CONTEMPORARY SINGLES NETWORK INTERNATIONAL
IS PLEASED TO PRESENT A
Calendar Of Events For SINGLES DANCE PARTIES
(Non Denominational)
OCTOBER 1997
MARK THESE DATES ON YOUR CALENDAR
NEXT EVENT
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11TH
Inn on the Park Hotel
1100 Eglinton Avenue East
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18TH
Radisson Hotel - Toronto-Markham
50 East Valhalla Drive
GOLDEN OLDIES DANCE
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25TH
Toronto Marriott Hotel
Eaton Centre
525 Bay Street
*Admission $15.
HALLOWEEN WEEKEND
Admission $12.* Each Party or $20. For Both
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31ST
Inn on the Park Hotel
1100 Eglinton Avenue East
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1ST
Regal Constellation Hotel
900 Dixon Road
OUR PARTIES FEATURE:
Admission $12.00
Great Music, Top DJ
Elegant Ballrooms
Big Dance Floor
CASH PRIZES
DOOR & SPOT PRIZES
GRAND PRIZE DRAW
For Complete Details
Call: (416) 410-6010

FINE ART AUCTION
Tuesday evening,
October 28, 1997
Preview 6:00 p.m.
Guided Art Tour 6:30 p.m.
Auction 7:00 p.m.
ROYAL YORK HOTEL
Imperial Room
Oils, Acrylics, Watercolours, Mixed Media, Lithographs, Serigraphs, Sculpture, Wood Engravings, Etchings and Engravings
ALL WORKS HAVE BEEN DONATED FROM PRIVATE COLLECTIONS
Proceeds to benefit Banff Television Festival
Auction conducted by Rosen Fine Art
"Fine Art for Fine Causes"
ROSEN GROUP
For further information please call (416) 661-0037
ANIKST
APT
AVISEDEK
BARDET
BOUJU
BUFFET
CALDER
CHAGALL
CHEN
COBELLE
DANIELS
DORE
DUBROS
DUFY
DUS
FANCH
FINI
GILLING
HATFIELD
HOLLAND
HUCHET
KNAPTON
MANGUKIAN
MARCIL
MATISSE
MEDVEDEV
MENPES
MINAUX
MIRO
MOROSS
OKSHTEYN
PICOT
PLISSON
RATTNER
REID
RIOPELLE
ROPS
ROUALT
SALE
SOTIRIS-CORZO
TITLE
TOM WHITNEY
YOUNG
ZADKINE

SINGLES EVENTS
Singles Events is an advertising feature of
The Canadian Jewish News
Please see the Classified section of this issue for EARLY DEADLINES for October
For rates or to place an ad, call:
Lisa at (416) 391-1836
The CJN encourages readers to direct any queries they may have on an upcoming event to the event's organizers.

Co-ed Volleyball. MTS Presents...It's 5th Annual Co-ed Volleyball Season.Recreational & Compet. Div. For info. call: 416-222-7111.

NEW IMAGE 50+ SINGLES is having a Mix 'n Mingle*, Sunday, Oct. 12th at Earl Bales Comm. Centre, 7:30 pm. Refreshments. Tapes by Murray. Members $2., Guests $4. AND....Saturday, Oct. 18th, a dance, with DJ Phil Allenbick. Members $5., Guests $7. Free Dance lesson from 7:45-8:15 pm.

A low pressure dating service designed for people with little time for the dating scene. It's Just Lunch. 416- 204-1553

ATTENTION PARTYERS! Receive a FREE Mark & Ari season pass with your membership to A NEW CHANCE Jewish Dating Service. Exclusive Offer. 398-3991

Darren, Mark & Ari invite you to....Long Weekend Bash III, Sunday. Oct. 12th, 9pm, Atlas Bar & Grill, 129 Peter St. (at Richmond). Door prizes, great DJ, dance music, pool tables, enclosed patio bar featuring a complimentary BBQ & complimentary finger foods. Party includes Satellite Lounge! Admission $10. (adv.), $12. (at door). TicketMaster: 416-870-8000, Hotline: 416-733-1419. You're never too old to dance & party - come with a group of friends!

Jewish Singles Registry. Over 1450 registered. Averaging an engagement every 4 wks. 483-4151.

Jewish groups approached with grisly sale offer

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Two leading Jewish organizations say a local individual has approached them with an offer to sell what he said is a bar of soap made of fat from Jewish Holocaust victims.

The organizations say the man wanted $1 million for the grisly artifact.

In the past few months, the individual approached the Canadian Society for Yad Vashem and the Toronto office of the Simon Wiesenthal Centre with the offer.

According to both groups, the man said he represents the seller.

Yad Vashem and the Wiesenthal Centre expressed revulsion at the offer, and turned it down.

"We agreed to meet with him, not to buy the object but to examine this from all sides," said Hank Rosenbaum, chair of the Canadian Society for Yad Vashem. "We were definitely not willing to buy it."

In the end the society's board "decided not to get involved."

Sol Littman, director of the Wiesenthal Centre here, said he wrote the man a letter saying he heard the man had a Holocaust-era artifact for sale that may be of interest to the Wiesenthal museum in Los Angeles.

A few days later, Littman said, the man called, and a meeting was set up.

Littman said the $1 million asking price was not negotiable, and that the identity of the seller was not revealed.

He said the man seemed legitimate and serious.

"He brought a small color photograph of something that looked like a bar, with letters and numbers on it," Littman said.

"I told him that if he's going to be peddling this, he has to show it's genuine. Jewish organizations don't just hand over $1 million."

Littman said there's no historical evidence of soap manufactured from the bodies of Holocaust victims. "The major historians say there was no such thing."

Prof. Jacques Kornberg, a Holocaust expert at the University of Toronto, agreed there's no evidence the Nazis made soap from human remains.

"My understanding is that this was never done," said Kornberg, adding that mainstream historians feel the same way.

However, the Encyclopedia Judaica describes a war-time photograph of human remains in a large vat at a German soap factory in Danzig.

In any event, Littman said the man stressed he was simply a go-between, and implied that the religious community might be interested in the item in order to give it a proper Jewish burial, as prescribed by Jewish law.

In the end, "I told him there's no chance my organization would be interested," Littman said.

When contacted by The CJN, the man, whose identity was confirmed independently by both Yad Vashem and the Wiesenthal Centre, denied all involvement in the matter. "It's not true at all," he said. "Who would have told you that?"

ERWIN AND EDIE KORANYI HONORED BY BGU IN OTTAWA

Seen from left are Myrna Barwin, tribute committee member; Norman Barwin, board member, Ottawa Associates of Ben-Gurion University (BGU); the Koranyis; and Harry Prizant, president Ottawa chapter. Erwin Koranyi, founding president of Ottawa Associates of BGU, and his wife Edie were honored at a recent dinner at the Barwins' home. The couple received the Ben-Gurion Negev Award, and the Dr. Erwin and Edie Koranyi Scholarship Fund was created, honoring their commitment to community and Israel. The Hungarian-born couple, both Holocaust survivors, didn't know anyone in Ottawa when they arrived 27 years ago.

Israel's short history has been marked by incredible change. From a fledgling agricultural state in 1948, Israel has grown into a thriving technological leader and is now among the economic elite of the Western world.

There has, however, been one thing that could never be changed. Israel is the eternal home of the Jewish people.

In order for Israel to continue to be strong, it must continue to grow. Infrastructure – highways, dams, hydro electric developments – are the foundation upon which economic growth is built. Israel Bonds provide working capital for this growing economy.

Israel Bonds are an opportunity for Jews to unite in support of a common vision – that our hope, our dream to be a free people in our land will never be lost. It is a promise that we make to ourselves. It is a proclamation we make to the world.

Support the growth of the Jewish state.
Make yourself part of the Jewish dream.
Invest in the future of the Jewish people.

STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS

our Land
our People
our BOND

CALL TODAY FOR YOUR BOND ~ (416) 789-3351

On Campus

Student leaders get BB Hillel Foundation awards

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Three student leaders were presented with Vancouver B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation Leadership Awards earlier this summer.

Daniella Weber, 1996-97 co-president of the University of British Columbia's (UBC) Hillel (now working as Hillel program director); Noam Dolgin, also of UBC, director of the Hillel play Village of Idiots; and Ron Phillipson of Simon Fraser University (SFU) were the co-recipients.

Vancouver lawyer Rodney Massel, co-president of the Vancouver B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation, said the awards are given annually to students "who go the extra mile, who participate, who innovate, who are leaders.

Phillipson, a recent biochemistry graduate who Massel said did "yeoman's work" in establishing Hillel at Simon Fraser, was the first SFU student to be recognized by the foundation. The campus has about 150 Jewish students affiliated with Hillel, according to Massel.

Phillipson, 22, became involved with the organization during his first year of university after meeting Hillel outreach coordinator David Chivo, he recalled in a recent e-mail from Israel, where he is attending an ulpan in Tel Aviv.

(Dolgin is also in Israel, but was not reachable by press time.)

Phillipson was elected president of SFU Hillel three years ago at the end of his first year of studies. Eventually, the SFU group was "able to achieve greater independence from UBC including having our own Shabbat dinners." Their first one, which included students from UBC, was "a great success" with almost 50 participants.

Weber, 22, a native of South Africa who has lived in Vancouver for the past decade and is completing a degree in Religious Studies/Religion and Literature, has been involved on the Hillel student board every year since she began university. During her third year, when she studied at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, she was one of 15 Hillel scholars from North America who made up the Hillel board for overseas students.

In high school, where she was one of only a few Jewish students, Weber was involved in NLFTY, the Reform youth group. When she entered university, becoming involved with Hillel seemed "naturally the way for me to go," she told The CJN in a telephone interview.

At UBC, there are an estimated 1,000 Jewish students out of a total student population of over 30,000. Hillel membership at UBC is between 200 and 250.

Holding Vancouver B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation leadership awards, from right, are Daniella Weber, Adam Strasberg (accepting for Noam Dolgin) and Ron Phillipson. Aleina Spigelman, centre, presented the awards. At left is Rabbi Ken Kaufman, former executive director of Vancouver Hillel.

Hillel "created a sense of community for me right from the beginning," Weber said.

Before becoming president she was co-chair of Holocaust Awareness Week for three years. She also chaired last year's Israel Week.

UBC Hillel is fortunate to have a centrally-located building, Weber noted. "It's a great place to hang out. People are in there constantly, sitting, chatting with friends, playing ping pong, playing on the computer. It's wonderful to have that."

The biggest challenge for Hillel is meeting students' diverse needs, Weber said. In her first year, she organized a women's seder. "You're not going to get everybody out to every program. You have to try and have a diverse range of projects."

Involvement in Jewish life on campus is "key to ensuring that our generation will be an active Jewish community in the future," said Weber.

Phillipson wrote that he hopes there will be more interaction between Hillel and the Jewish community in the future. "I feel that this will strengthen both of them. It is of utmost importance that Hillel members go to the board of directors' meetings and some representatives from the board of directors attend Hillel meetings."

HAPPY NEW YEAR

KEDEM CONCORD GRAPE JUICE 1.5L Limit of 2 $3.99
STREITS OLD FASHIONED FARFEL 7oz 59¢
ASSORTED CUTS STREITS OR MANISCHEWITZ NOODLES 340gr 99¢
CERES FRUIT JUICES 1 litre Limit of 2 $1.89

MOTHER'S or GOLD'S BORSCHT 946ml $1.29
TRADITION SOUP CUPS 70gr 79¢
GENERATION ZEL POTATO CHIPS 170gr (K) 79¢
GENERATION ZEL SOFT DRINKS 2 litre (K) 79¢

MEMORIAL TIN CANDLES 3/$1
LIBER ASSORTED CANDY 113gr 99¢
MANISCHEWITZ MATZO BALL MIX & SOUP MIX 4.5oz $1.69
SELECT HOUSE PRETZEL 200gr 2/$1

FRESH ATLANTIC SALMON $4.99 lb $11.00 kg
HEBREW NATIONAL CHUB SALAMI 375gr $3.99ea
OPEN WINDOW ASSORTED CAKES 700 to 800gr $7.99ea
MACINTOSH APPLES PRODUCT OF USA FANCY 39¢ lb 86¢ kg

NATURAL HONEY FARMS (100% PURE HONEY) 500gr $1.79
STREITS SOUP CUPS 40gr 79¢
STREITS VEGETABLE SOUP BLEND MIX 170gr 99¢
OPEN WINDOW HONEY CAKE 500gr $4.49ea

PRICES IN EFFECT UNTIL OCTOBER 11, 1997
NO RAINCHECKS

LOEB COULTER'S MILL
1450 CLARK AVENUE WEST, THORNHILL
TELEPHONE: (905) 660-4017

From coast to coast

Ontario court rejects beit din in rabbi's lawsuit

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

ST. CATHARINES — An Ontario court has rejected an application by a St. Catharines synagogue to refer a lawsuit brought by its former rabbi to a beit din (religious court).

The ruling last month by the Ontario Court (general division) clears the way for Rabbi Joseph Ben-David to have his wrongful dismissal suit heard by a secular court.

Congregation B'nai Israel filed a motion with the court arguing the matter should be heard by a beit din because it involves an inter-Jewish dispute.

But Mr. Justice R.J. Sharpe dismissed the argument, saying the synagogue was too late to say the matter should be referred to a beit din.

The judge said the synagogue did not act in a "timely" fashion and that nothing in the rabbi's contract said a beit din would supersede the authority of a court in the event of a dispute.

The judge said he finds it "significant" that the synagogue did not rely on a clause in the rabbi's contract that refers disputes to the United Synagogue of America's Committee on Congregational Standards. The court noted that a beit din is not the same as the committee, which is overseen by the Conservative's movement's umbrella body.

The judge said the synagogue should have argued its case right away instead of responding to the rabbi's charges in a statement of defence. He said the congregation could not pursue both avenues at the same time.

Rabbi Ben-David, 61, is seeking $260,000 in damages. He alleges he is owed severance pay for 27 years of service at the synagogue, which has about 100 family members.

He said he progressed from teacher to cantor to assistant rabbi, and six years ago, to rabbi.

His lawyer, Brian Grosman, said the matter should be heard by a secular court because it is not a religious dispute.

But the synagogue's lawyer, Ronald Greenspan, said the rabbi's first obligation should be to Halachah, which mandates that disputes between Jews must be heard by a beit din.

No trial date has been set.

Vickars honored for Bonds donation

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — For the second time this year, a major Jewish organization, State of Israel Bonds, has honored Winnipeg philanthropists Ed and Marion Vickar. Earlier this year, Ben-Gurion University of the Negev paid tribute to the couple.

Bonds recently presented the Vickars with its La Société Award at a reception at the Assiniboine Park Conservatory, an award given to people who buy $1 million or more in bonds.

"We didn't know anyone was going to make such a big thing about it," says Marion Vickar. "We didn't think anyone else knew about it. We were really surprised."

The Vickars don't just buy bonds. Their usual practice is to buy them and then donate them to another non-profit Jewish organization. In this case, they bought $1 million worth of bonds and donated them to the new Asper Jewish Community Campus.

The Double Mitzvah program – donating the bonds – helps both Israel and the local community, noted Shoshana Shalev-Minuk, manager of the Winnipeg Bonds office.

"We have been contributing through Israel Bonds to the Ben-Gurion University and other Jewish organizations for years," says Marion Vickar.

Originally from rural Saskatchewan, Ed Vickar spent his career in the auto business. He opened his first General Motors dealership in Melfort, Sask., in the 1950s. He and his family moved to Winnipeg in 1963, where he operated Community Chevrolet Oldsmobile until he retired three years ago.

The Jewish Museum of Western Canada and accompanying Holocaust Education Centre at the Asper Campus have been named for Ed and Marion Vickar.

WINDSOR NEGEV DINNER

President and CEO of Chrysler Canada, Yves Landry (second from right), this year's honoree at the Windsor Jewish National Fund Negev Dinner, receives a plaque from Windsor JNF president Carl Cohen (left). Keynote speaker was former Ontario premier Bob Rae and deputy prime minister Herb Grey presented the citation. Also shown here are Elaine Cohen (left) and Henrielle Landry (far right).

She'll go through 5,289 disposable diapers in 24 months.

And not one will go to a landfill site.

Join the Diaper Club for convenience.

Brand-name disposables delivered right to your door. Choose from top brand-name diapers, including Huggies and Pampers. You'll never run out again!

Make the call. Let us do the rest. Once a delivery date is arranged, all you have to do is put out your soiled diapers. You don't even have to be at home!

Join for peace of mind.

Soiled diapers picked up for recycling. We drop off a fresh supply and pick up your soiled disposables.

Diapers are then recycled into paper and plastic products by Knowaste™ Canada, recognized by the Recycling Council of Ontario.

Join today! (905) 564-1737
1-800-566-9278

The Diaper Club

A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER

® Registered trade-mark of The Diaper Club. ™ Trade-mark of Knowaste, LLC. *Up to a maximum value of $13.95

Serving families throughout the Greater Toronto Area.

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA
JNF
Send a traditional greeting for any occasion.....
Say It With Trees!
(416) 638-7200

What's New

By Miriam Herman

CANADIAN SOCIETY FOR YAD VASHEM
has moved to:
534 Lawrence Ave. W.
North York, Ont.
M6A 1A2
Tel: 416-785-1333
Fax: 416-785-4536

HOLIDAY DEADLINES

What's New and About People deadlines:

Friday, Oct. 10 (to 2:30 p.m.) is deadline for Oct. 22 issue.

Monday, Oct. 20, is deadline for Oct. 30 issue.

I receive calls and sort my mail on deadline days only. Phone 391-1836, fax 391-0829.

Sunday, Oct. 12

JEWISH STORYTELLING

Jewish Storytelling on the Danforth, hosted by Alec Gelcer, 7:30 p.m., Riverdale Jewish Community Centre, 179A Danforth Ave. Come listen, come tell. All welcome. $3. 699-8914 or 440-1330.

Monday, Oct. 13

CRAFT AND GIFT SALE

Boutique-style craft and gift sale run by Na'amat Canada Beersheba Club includes handicrafts, boutique items, gifts, plus clowns and balloons for the children and hourly draws, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Bayview Village Mall (Sheppard/Bayview). Free admission and parking. Proceeds go to child care and education, prevention of domestic violence and advancement of women's rights.

Tuesday, Oct. 14

SISTERHOOD MEETING

Beth David B'nai Israel Beth Am Sisterhood opening meeting, Dara Kennedy, North York General Hospital, speaks on Molecular Genetics, the Breast Cancer Connection, 8p.m. $3 non-members.

Wednesday, Oct. 15

LUNCH AND LEARN

Holy Blossom Temple Lunch and Learn in Retirement, Homelessness and Homecoming, speaker Rabbi Dow Marmur. At noon. Bring lunch. $1.

And What Else Is New

LZA CONFERENCE

Labor Zionist Alliance Yitzhak Memorial Conference, Creating a Progressive Zionist Future, Oct. 18 and 19 at Borochov Cultural Centre.

Saturday, Oct. 18: Dinner Forum 8 p.m., guest speaker author J.J. Goldberg.

Sunday, Oct. 19: Education panel 10:30 a.m., Yigal Donyetz of the Jewish Agency; Uri Korin, principal of Bialik School; educator/author William Shaffir, chair, Camp Gesher parent's committee; Lunch guest speaker Daniel Mann, national president, LZA of America, Peace, Progress and Pluralism: Advocacy and Implementation.

Open discussion follows panels and lectures. Reserve. 630-9444.

THE ETERNAL CITY

The University of Toronto School of Continuing Studies six-week course on Jerusalem, Tuesdays, 7-9 p.m. starts Oct. 28. Included are sessions on the history of Jerusalem from biblical times to the modern era, including the Herodian, Roman and Middle Ages periods. Present day Jerusalem will be covered in the course outline. Instructor is Aaron Nussbaum. Register by phone 978-2400, or fax 978-6666.

BEREAVED FAMILIES

A self-help group for parents is being offered by Bereaved Jewish Families of Ontario, an organization that provides support following the death of a child. Groups are held once a week for eight weeks. Maureen Feder, Jewish Family & Child Service, 638-7800, ext. 202.

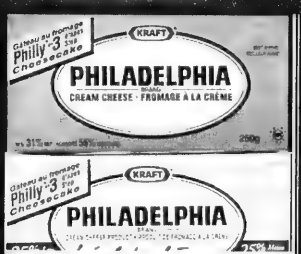
MARATHON FOR CANCER

The 42.2-kilometre Canadian International Marathon Oct. 19 is run in conjunction with the Princess Margaret Hospital Foundation to raise money for cancer research. In tribute to the late Dr. Dan Roncari, professor of medicine at the University of Toronto, colleague Norman Track is participating in the marathon to raise money to name a room at Princess Margaret Hospital in Roncari's memory. (He's hoping sponsors will help him reach the $10,000 goal.)To participate in the Dan Roncari Memorial Fund, call Norman Track at 962-1555 or Malcom Burrows at Princess Margaret 946-2912. Proceeds go to cancer research.

[Cont'd. on page 25]

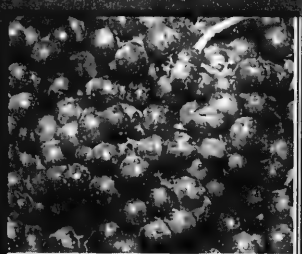
IGA Shana Tova
IGA brings down the cost of keeping kosher
Centre Street
Clark Avenue West
Bathurst Street
Hilda Avenue
Yonge Street
Steeles Avenue
441 CLARK (AT HILDA)

Whole Frozen Turkeys
Kosher
3.95 kg
179 lb.



Philadelphia Cream Cheese
Kraft, Regular or Light
250 g brick
129 each

All Beef Bologna
From the Deli, Levitt's
1.16 /100 g
529 lb.



Christmas Rose Grapes
Product of U.S.A.,
No. 1 Grade, 1.74 kg
.79 lb.

Atlantic Salmon Steak
11.00 kg
499 lb.

Astro Pressed Cottage Cheese
Assorted Varieties
250 g pkg.
149

Blue Bell Cottage Cheese
From the Deli
.99 /100 g
449 lb.

Granny Smith Apples
Product of South Africa
Extra Fancy Grade,
1.52 kg
.69 lb.

Whole Chickens
Fresh Kosher
4.61 kg
209 lb.

Western Sour Cream
Regular or Light
500 mL tub
.99

Our Compliments™ 10" Apple Pies
From The Bakery
Now! 1.25 kg
499

Dinner Rolls
From the Bakery
pkg. of 12
149

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES. PRICES IN EFFECT SUNDAY, OCT. 5 UNTIL SATURDAY, OCT. 11, 1997.

What's New

[Cont'd. from page 24]

BOOK SALE

Great bargains, all subjects, at the annual University College book sale, 15 King's College Circle, University of Toronto. Doors open 10 a.m. (except Sunday – 11 a.m.), Oct. 18-22. 978-2968.

OTTAWA FILM GALA

Benefit gala screening of Fiddler on the Roof, an evening in support of the Hillel Lodge, the Canada-Israel Cultural Foundation, Canadian Film Centre and Canadian Screen Training Centre, Monday, Nov. 3, National Arts Centre. Gala tickets include pre-screening reception with director Norman Jewison, live entertainment, supper buffet, VIP seating for the film, post-screening activities, $118 (tax receipt). 613-789-4720. Film tickets $25/adult, $18/children under 18, box office or Ticketmaster 613-755-1111. Silent Auction before and after screening (to donate items, Marla Spergel 613-596-0115).

THE CHORALAIRS

The Choralairs of North York, a volunteer choir that sings for seniors and disabled persons, welcomes singers of all ages, voices in all ranges. The ability to read music is not a pre-requisite. Rehearsals Tuesdays 8-10:30 p.m., Earl Bales Park Community Centre, Room 2. Repertoire includes pop, Broadway and folksongs. Membership fee $45/person, $70/couple, full tax receipt. Fay Cohen 633-7233 or Judy or Myer Gordon 221-3161.

To book a concert for your facility (nursing home, home for the aged, seniors' apartment) Rose Terrance 633-0433.

TEL-AIDE VOLUNTEERS

Tel-Aide: The Jewish Distress Line needs volunteers to answer the line. 636-9610 for application.

COURSE FOR WOMEN

A Bridging Course for Women, sponsored by Women's Studies Program in cooperation with North York Women's Centre, runs Mondays 1-4 p.m., Oct. 20-Jan. 26, 201 Caribou Rd. Improve reading, writing, speaking skills, explore educational options and potential, prepare for university study. $85 plus books. Marlene Richman 736-2100, ext. 40204.

PROGRAM FOR TEENS

Jewish Family & Child Service and the Learning Disabilities Association of York Region Adolescent Social Skills Group, ages 13-18 for teens having difficulty with relationships. A group to develop improved social skills and self-esteem. Begins Oct. 14, Promenade Mall at JF&CS offices. Pat Lieberman 638-7800, ext. 215.

DRIVERS NEEDED

Make a difference in someone's life by providing escort and/or transportation to the Bernard Betel Centre, programs at Senior Care and medical appointments. Barbara 225-2112 or Arnold 635-2860.

BOWLING LEAGUE

Senior mixed group bowling 10-pin every other Saturday evening has room for more bowlers. Sydney or Judith 633-7305.

JF&CS GROUPS

Jewish Family & Child Service groups: To register Pat Lieberman 638-7800, ext. 215.

Looking Ahead, to discuss feelings, loneliness, new relationships, moving ahead, begins Oct. 21.

Step-Parenting: Coping with His, Hers and Mine, begins Oct. 29

The Self-Confident Woman, discuss self-esteem, stress management, assertive non-aggressive behavior, begins Oct. 14.

Bereavement Group for people who have recently lost a spouse, daytime or evening groups, groups divided by age, begin after the holidays.

FOR SENIORS

LZA Seniors Club registration for 1998 Miami trip, Libby 782-2059. Ladies Folkdancing Thursdays 1:30 p.m. Cultural Discussion Group Tuesdays 10 a.m. Centre is open for socializing Monday to Friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Aluma Canadian Israeli Club meets 7 p.m. Thursdays at 15 Hove St. (B'nai Brith Building). Because Oct. 16 is Sukkot, group meets Oct. 14 for bingo and games. Aaron Dahary 661-4689 or Malka 630-5771.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Washington and Atlantic City Oct. 26-31; seminar with speaker on ABCs of Fraud, Nov. 4, 10 a.m.; shopping in Buffalo Nov. 5; Square One Shopping Centre Nov. 19. Activities include table tennis, shuffleboard, woodwork shop, day and evening trips. 395-7881.

Fall Prevention Clinics to show seniors how to prevent falls and maintain independence at home and in the community conducted by North York Public Health nurses, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.: Tuesday, Oct. 14, Beecroft, 35 Park Home Ave.; Wednesday, Oct. 15, Glenyan Manor, 10 Deauville Lane; Monday, Oct. 20, Sheppard Place, 4455 Bathurst St. Irene 395-7600.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE

Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living, 1003 Steeles Ave. W. 225-2112.

Parkinson's Support Group for people with Parkinson's disease and their caregivers, Tuesday, Oct. 14, 1:15 p.m. Gilda Waltman, occupational therapist at Baycrest Centre presents Tips on Managing Daily Living Changes. Ruth.

Israeli Club Etrog meets 7 p.m. Tuesdays. Programs include movies, lectures, nostalgic singalongs, dances, bingo. Oct. 14 is a lecture. Anna.

Movie, My Fellow Americans, Sunday, Oct. 12, 2:30 p.m.

Dance to music of Creative Band Sunday, Oct. 12, 7:30 p.m.

BLOOR JCC

Bloor Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave. 924-6211.

High Holy Day services with Downtown Reform Minyan and First Nerayever Congregation. Call for information.

Raptor Ball Youth Leagues for ages 7-13, Fridays 5:30-7:30 p.m. or Saturdays 9-11 a.m., 12-week program.

Reserve Oct. 19 for next Books and Bagels with Rick Salutin.

Bloor JCC Seniors Club: Thursday, Oct. 9, afternoon tea at Helen Gardner Whelan Playhouse, 79A St. George St., by invitation of Jewish Students' Union, University of Toronto. Program of storytelling. Walk from Bloor JCC at 2 p.m., or meet there at 2:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Oct. 14, film Blood Money, documentary on Swiss Bank Account Scandal, discussion after. Tuesday, Oct. 21, trip to Niagara Casino, $19 includes $10 refreshment voucher. Must pay by Oct. 9. Judy.

BATHURST JC

Bathurst Jewish Centre, 750 Spadina Ave. 636-1880.

BJC Tai Chi, Mondays, 9:15-10:15 a.m., beginners and advanced beginners; Wednesdays, 10:30 a.m. to noon, advanced and intermediate. Non-members $25. Oct. 29-Dec. 15.

Entertainment '98 books, discounts up to 50 percent off all around town. At Information Desk. $32.

Young Einsteins computer courses for adults and children. For course content, times, fees ext. 378.

Special Needs program begins the week of Oct. 26. Social, physical, recreational programs for children, teens, adults with developmental and/or physical disabilities. Patricia Trojman ext. 265.

TORONTO HESCHEL SCHOOL

Sean Haber and Deborah Mazer, two Kindergarten children at The Toronto Heschel School, prepare to harvest vegetables in time for Sukkot. Seeds were planted in the school's organic garden last spring by many of the students.

BIG PAYOFF

Bernie Abrams (second from left), national president of the Canadian Shaare Zedek Hospital Foundation, presents a $25,000 check to Ken McCord, winner of a hole-in-one contest at the recent Shaare Zedek Hospital/Solursh Feldman & Partners Annual Open. The contest hole was sponsored by Montreal Trust, who donated the funds given to the winner. With them are Evan Sone (left) and Brad Fox (right), co-chairs of the tournament. McCord made a generous donation to the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit at Shaare Zedek Medical Center. Missing from photo is third co-chair Stephen Caffrey.

Bionaire
Moist Air 2 Speed Room Humidifier
no white dust, maximum area 1150 sq. feet
2 gallon output per day Compare at 79.99

$44.99

WORRY FREE!!! BRIDAL REGISTRY

Cayne's The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store

112 DONCASTER AVENUE

OPEN - MON. to WED. 10-6 • THURS. & FRI.10-9 • SAT. 10-6 • SUN. 11-5 • (905) 764-1188

Always 1st Quality • Always Brand Names • Always Warehouse Prices

From coast to coast

Scene in Ottawa

By STEPHEN BINDMAN

Supreme Court shifts out of neutral

OTTAWA — The country's top court finally seems to get it.

In just three long years, the Supreme Court of Canada appears to have dramatically changed its tune about the urgency of prosecuting suspected Nazi war criminals.

In 1994, when it narrowly upheld the acquittal of retired Toronto restaurateur Imre Finta on war-crimes charges, the Supreme Court brought to a screeching halt efforts to try suspected Nazis in Canada as criminals under our criminal law.

(The Criminal Code was amended in 1987, after the Deschenes Commission, to allow for the prosecution in Canada of war crimes committed elsewhere. Usually, Canada can only try people for crimes they may have committed on Canadian soil.)

The contentious ruling reluctantly forced the federal government to switch tracks and try to denaturalize and deport suspects instead of trying them here.

The Finta judgment was severely criticized, not only in Jewish circles but in the legal academic world as well, and was challenged at international legal bodies such as the Inter-American Committee on Human Rights.

Finta was charged with the unlawful confinement, robbery, kidnapping and manslaughter of 8,617 Jews in 1944 at Szeged, Hungary where he was an officer in the Royal Hungarian Gendarmerie, an armed paramilitary police force.

To be fair, the Supreme Court then never actually said it wasn't important to go after suspected war criminals.

Mr. Justice Peter Cory, the Mr. Rogers look-alike who wrote the Supreme Court majority ruling, said such allegations "shock the conscience of all right-thinking people."

But the legal hurdles the top court imposed because of the seriousness of the charges made it unlikely a prosecution would ever be successful, especially more than 50 years after events that occurred a continent away.

"Nothing is ever impossible, but the prospects of successfully prosecuting someone under the Finta regime are so slight as to not really be a rational way of proceeding," said Paul Vickery, the mild-mannered head of the Justice Department's war crimes unit, who recently made a brave appearance before a public forum in Montreal organized by Canadian Jewish Congress.

Fast forward to last month.

The very same court with the very same judges ruled the denaturalization cases against three Ontario men could proceed despite a now much-publicized, but then secret meeting, between the top judge of the Federal Court and a senior federal Justice Department lawyer.

Of course it is significant in itself that the Supreme Court refused to halt the cases despite what it unanimously called a "serious affront" to judicial independence because of the meeting between Chief Justice Julius Isaac and Ted Thompson.

And it is of course significant that the first three cases launched by Ottawa in its new 1995 denaturalize-and-deport strategy are now finally, though tentatively, back on the rails.

But perhaps of much more importance is the powerful language the Supreme Court employed.

First, there was the choice of words used to criticize Isaac and especially Associate Chief Justice James Jerome, whose foot-dragging allowed the cases to languish for more than a year with only a day of legal argument on a procedural matter and whose "dilatoriness defies explanation."

The message is clear that further delays, especially in war crimes cases, will not be tolerated.

But even more heartening is what the Supreme Court had to say about the pursuit of suspected war criminals.

In the 9-0 judgment written in the name of the entire court for added emphasis, the high court said there is a strong public interest in quickly bringing alleged war criminals to justice and having "allegations of the most wicked kinds of criminal activity" dealt with in court.

"The crimes involved rank among the most heinous in history and the civilized world's resolve to apply the appropriate sanctions should not be interfered with lightly," the court said.

"What is at stake here, in however small a measure, is Canada's reputation as a responsible member of the community of nations."

True the legal issues confronting the court in its most recent war crimes foray, having to do as they did with comfortable topics like judicial independence and court delay, were very different from the guilt-and-innocence issues it encountered in the Finta case.

Perhaps when one of the war crimes cases eventually makes it to the Supreme Court on its actual merits, the judges' favor-the-defence orientation will again get the better of them.

But in the meantime, there is still renewed hope for justice.

"I think the Supreme Court was appalled by what its Finta judgment looked like in the light of day," said B'nai Brith's war crimes guru David Matas.

"They just kind of missed the point. I think they got it this time around.

"They see the seriousness of these crimes and the public reaction to it. They said, 'it's not so much that we think these crimes are serious, the world thinks these crimes are serious and we cannot fly in the face of that opinion.'"

Stephen Bindman is the legal affairs correspondent for the Southam Newspapers based in Ottawa.

NOTICE

The Henry Korenblum Family Health & Sports Medicine Clinic remains located at the Bathurst Jewish Centre ("BJC"), 4588 Bathurst Street, North York, Ontario. Although temporarily closed at present, the clinic will soon reopen at the BJC. Dr. Howard Winston, former Medical Director of the Korenblum Clinic at the BJC, and his therapy staff have relocated their Sports Medicine practice to the Centre for Health & Sports Medicine ("CHSM") located at 2790 Bathurst St., North York, Ontario. For appointments at CHSM, please call (416) 789-2476.

Happy Holiday Friends

from

EUROPEAN STUDIO
ANNETTE LUCY PEK

I've moved to
695 Markham Rd. S. #8
(416) 438-3188

Open Window Bakery
Health Bread

over 30 stores to serve you across metro

THIS WEEKEND SPECIAL
IN ALL OUR STORES
From FRIDAY, OCTOBER 10th to SUNDAY, OCTOBER 12th

PUMPKIN PIES $3.29 Reg. Price $3.59
Dome $3.69 Reg. Price $3.99

ASK FOR OTHER IN-STORE SPECIALS

DESTINATION:®
TRAVEL HEALTH PLANS

- No Pre-existing Health Provisions.
- Easy to Understand, Easy to Qualify "Eligibility Provisions"
- Plans Available up to Age 84.
- Standard/ Preferred/New Super Preferred/Daily Rated/Annual Plans Available.
- Loyalty Reward Programs, Leading to Future Reduced Rates.
- Comprehensive Medical Coverage in the U.S.A. and throughout the World.
- Top-ups to Individual as well as Group Plans.

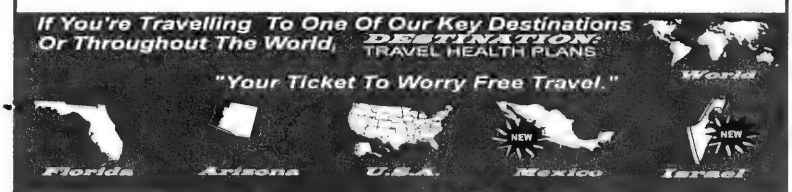
If You're Travelling To One Of Our Key Destinations Or Throughout The World, DESTINATION: TRAVEL HEALTH PLANS

"Your Ticket To Worry Free Travel."



Recommended by: B'Nai Brith

For Information, Or To Receive Our Exciting Detailed Package
Please Call... or fax us at...

Canada Wide	In Toronto	Fax
1-800-337-3532	416 - 499-6616	416 - 499-0656

Insured by: Great-West Life

Great West Life is a Canadian Insurance Company with over 40 billion dollars in assets. It is the largest group insurance underwriter in Canada and serves the financial needs of 5 million people. Great West Life ranks among the highest rated financial institutions in North America and has the strength of a century's experience behind it.

MOVING?

ATTACH LABEL HERE FOR CHANGE OR INQUIRY.
IF YOU ARE RECEIVING DUPLICATE COPIES OF THE CJN, PLEASE SEND BOTH LABELS TO US.
PLEASE NOTIFY US 3 WEEKS IN ADVANCE.

The Canadian Jewish news

1500 Don Mills Road, Suite 205
North York, Ontario M3B 3K4

Your Jewish Community Chapel STEELES 70 years of traditional service MEMORIAL CHAPEL (905) 881-6003 (416) 733-2000

International

Israel & the Jewish World

Your Jewish Community Chapel STEELES 70 years of traditional service MEMORIAL CHAPEL (905) 881-6003 (416) 733-2000

Israel's prestige damaged: former ambassador

By DAVID RUDGE
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — The abortive attack in Jordan on Hamas political leader Khaled Meshal, which has been attributed to the Mossad, has dealt a serious blow to Israel's prestige in the eyes of the international community and has called into question its deterrent capability, former ambassador to Jordan Prof. Shimon Shamir said Sunday.

"More importantly, however, is the damage that this has caused to Israeli-Jordanian relations," said Shamir, who was Israel's first ambassador to Jordan.

"Assuming that we are talking about an operation carried out by an official Israeli organization in Jordan, then this reflects a complete misunderstanding of the essence of peace.

"Peace means that you undertake certain limitations in your behavior on the basis of the fact that you and your [peace] partner are in the same boat. There is inter-dependence, which is the essence of peace.

"The freedom of action that Israel had in the past, during the years of conflict, is terminated by the commitment undertaken by the two sides in a situation of peace. The fact that anybody could contemplate such an action on Jordanian territory, in a way that – even if it had succeeded – would have embarrassed the Jordanian government, shows that there are important elements in our society who have not yet internalized the meaning of peace."

Shamir, who was also Israel's ambassador to Egypt from 1988 to '90, is considered a leading expert on Middle East affairs in general and Jordanian-Israeli relations in particular.

"Had it succeeded, the possible effects of such an operation on our relations with Jordan – even if Israel had denied responsibility – would have been to expose the Jordanian government to accusations from opponents, of whom there are many, that it is not in control of its own territory," said Shamir.

"Furthermore, based on the experience of the past, there would have been many elements in the opposition who would have blamed the king and the government and accused them of cooperating with Israel.

"It is a fact that the Jordanian government is now in a serious situation of competition with the Islamist opposition on the eve of the parliamentary elections next month. This is the biggest domestic issue at the moment, with the Islamists mounting a great challenge to the legitimacy of the parliament and Jordan's political system.

"The opponents would have used the matter to undermine the peace accord by accusing Israel of continuing to act in a high-handed manner in Jordan itself. The damage would have been enormous. What I cannot understand is how anyone could approve an operation which either way would have been very detrimental to the cause of peace and our relations with Jordan."

Shamir maintained that the reported incident appeared to be the latest in what he described as a series of blunders on the part of the government in its relations with Jordan.

"These incidents, from the opening of the Jerusalem tunnel onwards, indicate a lack of sensitivity and insight into the political position of our partner," he said.

"Peace was originally presented by the Jordanian leadership to the people as a great achievement. It was supposed to be the jewel in the crown of Jordanian policy.

"Instead of this becoming a great asset for the Jordanian leadership, it has gradually become a liability since the tunnel affair and due to the failure to demonstrate the fruits of peace. The latest fiasco only makes this more serious.

"There appears to be a common denominator behind a chain of mishandled situations that we have seen and this seems to be based on a lack of understanding of the requirements of peace with Jordan."

To minimize the fallout and help repair the damage to Israeli-Jordanian relations, Shamir said that "what should be done now within the parameters of the Israeli domestic political system is that first the Israeli polity must demonstrate that when it makes a mistake, it has a machinery for correcting it.

"The first action should be to establish who is responsible and draw the necessary conclusions from that. This would show the outside world that we are human and make mistakes and may misunderstand things, but we have a mechanism to repair it.

"Once we have demonstrated that, we should start the long and difficult work of damage control and rebuilding confidence. This cannot be achieved in one day and I'm afraid will be a long process.

"I cannot relate to what should be the end result of any process of inquiry into this matter. The facts have to be established first of all. What is important is that this process should be a very serious, penetrating investigation and that conclusions drawn should be implemented."

five great reasons
to visit your family in Jerusalem this winter

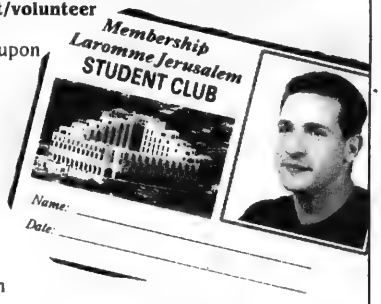
parents of members of the laromme student/volunteer soldier club receive the following benefits:

- upgraded room and home-made chocolates upon arrival.
- student/soldier shares parents' room free with complimentary breakfast.
- stay 7 consecutive nights receive 8th night free, student receives free friday dinner or saturday lunch.

invite your israeli family to visit you during your stay–

- 30% discount on hotel's israeli room rate.
- children (up to 18yrs) receive 50% discount on meals.

applicable Nov. 16, 1997–Apr. 1, 1998 excluding Dec. 20–Jan. 4)
for individual bookings only



laromme jerusalem hotel

your home away from home

For reservations, call your travel agent or the hotel:
Tel: (02) 675-6666 Fax: (02) 675-6777 / (02) 561-0158.
3 Jabotinsky St. 92145 Jerusalem

FORGOT ABOUT YOUR HIDDEN TREASURES? WANT TO SELL THEM?

CALL LISA AT 391-1836

FOR ADVERTISING RATES

CJN Classifieds Really Work!

"MAZEL-TOV"... on your fiftieth wedding anniversary

CANADIAN MAGEN DAVID ADOM FOR ISRAEL
thanks you for sharing your "SIMCHA" with the people of Israel

For more information, contact Shirley Moscovitch. Tel.: (514) 731-4400 or Fax: (514) 731-2490. Toll FREE 1-800-731-2848

CANADIAN MAGEN DAVID ADOM for ISRAEL
Presented to the People of Israel
by
ELAINE AND GERALD COHEN
IN HONOUR OF OUR 50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY
NOVEMBER 2 1947
Montreal, Quebec, Canada

Elaine & Gerald Cohen of St. Laurent accept "Pikuach Nefesh" Award from Paul Saxe, CMDA's National Treasurer and Irwin G. Beutel, Ambulance Chairman

Ruth and Victor David of Montreal proudly present their gift to our friends in Israel.

Chronology of events in the Meshal Affair

• Thursday, Sept. 25 — Khaled Meshal, the political chief of Hamas in Jordan, is attacked and a toxic substance injected into his left ear as he enters his office in Amman. Meshal's bodyguards capture two of the assailants, who were carrying Canadian passports. A third man is reported to have escaped.

• Sept. 26 — The assailants are identified by Jordanian police as Shawn Kendal, 28, and Barry Bitnun, 36. Another man, identified as Guy Eris or Erez, 30, also was named as a participant, but he flees. Hamas says the men are Mossad assassins. The men are taken to jail and refuse Canadian consular aid.

• Sept. 27 — Meshal is treated with an antidote, reportedly provided by an Israeli doctor summoned at King Hussein's request.

• Sept. 28 — A high-level Israeli delegation — including Defence Minister Yitzhak Mordechai, National Infrastructure Minister Ariel Sharon and top defence ministry officials — travels secretly to Jordan to work out a deal for the release of the two "Canadians," according to Jordanian sources.

• Oct. 1 — The IDF announces it is releasing Hamas founder and spiritual leader Sheik Ahmed Yassin and sending him to Jordan. The IDF cites the 61-year-old cleric's ill health as the reason for his release. The army also says Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu recommended Yassin's release.

• Oct. 1 — David Sultan, Israel's ambassador to Canada, is called in by senior Foreign Affairs officials in Ottawa to advise the Israeli government that "any improper use of Canadiah identity documents would be viewed with the utmost seriousness."

• On the same day, Prime Minister Jean Chretien tells the House of Commons: "It is completely unacceptable to this government that anybody authorized by another government would use the Canadian passport to perpetrate any illegal action." Bob Mills, the Reform party's foreign affairs critic, says the affair could put Canadians at risk if there are reprisals from Hamas. Reform calls for visa, trade and intelligence sanctions against Israel.

CSIS denies Spector's claim

As well, Norman Spector, a former Canadian ambassador to Israel and now the publisher of the Jerusalem Post, questions whether "Canadian intelligence authorities were involved" in the operation. The statement draws a terse denial from the head of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS). Ward Elcock said his agency "had absolutely no involvement" in the operation.

• Oct. 2 — Canada announces it is recalling its ambassador to Israel, David Berger, in protest over the use of Canadian passports. Foreign Affairs Minister Lloyd Axworthy calls the move "a fairly serious step," but declines to say what other measures would be taken.

• Oct. 3 — Canadian security officials interview the two assailants and determine they are not Canadian. In Ottawa, Axworthy says "forgery" had been used on one of the passports. In Jerusalem, Israel's foreign ministry says it "regrets" Berger's recall, but promises continued dialogue to repair relations. In Amman, Meshal tells a news conference that his survival "has destroyed the legendary image of the Mossad."

• Oct. 5 — Israeli officials confirm Netanyahu personally approved both the target and the methods of the assassination attempt. Opposition leaders call for his resignation. But at Sunday's weekly cabinet meeting, the government refrains from commenting on the affair, except to say that the decision-making process involved various branches of the security forces which brought their recommendations to the prime minister for final authorization. "Under no circumstances is the process forcibly reversed," a statement said, adding that "false charges are being published, thus cynically exploiting a situation."

• Oct. 6 — Jordan frees the two Israeli assailants; Israel frees 22 Palestinian and Jordanian prisoners and Sheik Yassin arrives in Gaza. In Ottawa, Axworthy says Israel has agreed to cooperate in an official inquiry into the affair.

— By Ron Csillag and JPFS

NOTICE
RE: BY-LAWS APPROVAL

A special meeting of Jewish National Fund of Canada members for the purpose of By-Laws approval will be held on Sunday, November 23rd, 1997 in Montreal at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel at 3:00 p.m. Proposed By-Laws of the corporation will be reviewed and voted on for approval. A copy of these proposed By-Laws is available from the national office to any member of the corporation upon request prior to the meeting.

UNITED ISRAEL APPEAL OF CANADA & CANADA ISRAEL EXPERIENCE CENTRE wish to thank the following individuals and organizations for their generous assistance with the inaugural program of

ROGER NEILSON'S HOCKEY CAMP IN ISRAEL

ORGANIZATIONS

Boston Bruins
Calgary Flames
Canada Centre, Israel
Colorado Avalanche
Dallas Stars
Edmonton Oilers
Florida Panthers
Harper Collins Canada Ltd
Hockey Hall Of Fame
Jewish Agency for Israel, Partnership 2000
Montreal Canadiens
National Hockey League
New Jersey Devils
New York Islanders
New York Rangers
Phoenix Coyotes
Roger Neilson's Hockey Camp
Skor Hockey Sticks
Stark Sport Services
Vancouver Canucks

INDIVIDUALS

Alex Andjelic, Dutch Ice Hockey Federation
Paul Bedford, Lindsay Muskies, OHA
Mike Brewer, former member, Canadian National Team
Howie Budd
Jeff Budd
Alan Cracower
Len Gill
Faye & Howard Gitter
Morris Hackman
Dr. Gerald Halbert
Rachel Lasry
Michael Moscovitch
Roger Neilson, St. Louis Blues, NHL
Bill Lindsay, Florida Panthers, NHL
Avi Rodak, Aufgang Travel
Mark Silverstein
Marshall Starkman, Lindsay Muskies, OHA

Roger Neilson teaches hockey skills to a young Canadian goalie at Canada Centre in Metulla, Israel.

This summer, fifteen Canadian teens and thirty-five Israeli youth took part in Roger Neilson's Hockey Camp in Israel, which combined the finest in hockey instruction with exciting touring in Israel. The 1998 camp is tentatively scheduled to run during the first two weeks of July 1998.

For information on next year's program, contact the Canada Israel Experience Centre at:
tel. (416) 398-6931
e-mail: ciec@jon.cjfny.org

You dreamed your eyes would meet across a crowded room.

But a chat room?

JEWISH.COMUNITY

Our singles area has been responsible for hundreds of matches, weddings & friendships. Between our chat rooms, message boards & personal ads, you just might meet the person of your dreams.

On AOL Canada Keyword: JEWISH CANADA

AOL CANADA™

For a start-up kit call 1-800-729-4499
...and read Canadian Jewish News at keyword: JEWISH NEWS

Bibi speaks to The CJN: part 2

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu gave a Rosh Hashanah interview in his Jerusalem office to Edgar Asher, The CJN's Israel correspondent. The following is the continuation of the interview, which began last week.

CJN: There have been renewed calls in the past few months to widen the inquiry into the fate of the missing children of Yemenite and Oriental Jewish parents who were abducted and sold for adoption in the early '50s. What does the government intend to do about this?

NETANYAHU: It is a deeply emotional issue to think of families who have lost their children or do not know the fate of their children, or for that matter children who do not know who their parents are. These are the most primal issues that affect any human being and therefore one can understand the degree of anxiety to get to the bottom of this issue — this is shared by all of us. For this reason, in the next cabinet meeting, I am going to receive a comprehensive report from minister Avigdor Kahalani on the investigation and recommendations. He was asked to submit an account on the progress of the Cohen Commission and the enquiry in general.

CJN: What is the government's strategy regarding the economic future, particularly as the country is currently riding the top end of its inflation target and the economy is on a slow down?

NETANYAHU: Since 1991, Israel has produced more than 3,000 start-up hi-tech companies, which is more that any other country in the world, with the exception of the United States. This is the second largest Silicon Valley. Our national strategy is very simple. We are combining Israel's hi-tech capability with free market principles — the combination is very powerful and attractive.

A survey in Israel's leading financial daily, Globes, published last week, showed that among thousands of American investment firms, the number 1 country for foreign investment was Israel. The second was Britain, which was half that of Israel. Business communities around the world want to do business with us because what counts in the market place of tomorrow is the speed of innovation.

Our people are great improvisers. Israel has become the storehouse of technology, software and conceptual products. Capital is flowing in. For example, there are 22 joint ventures between Korea and Israel. Hyundai is coming in to join Microsoft, Intel, Siemens and Philips to establish a presence over here. This means that the Israeli economy has a vast potential. It has now the per capita income of average western Europe.

There will be rapid growth if we manage the economy in the right way. Israel will become a wealthy country. For the first time in thousands of years, the majority of the Jewish people will live in Israel and not in the Diaspora. Israel can become the realization of everything we all dreamed about — a Zionist dream. But it has the obligation to foster Jewish identity and Jewish solidarity in the Diaspora. I predict that in a decade all this will come about.

CJN: How can Israel go about renewing its national identity?

NETANYAHU: I would like to see the secular public more acquainted with traditional Jewish values. This is important for our national identity. Many countries are faced with the question of the fragmentation of national identity. We have today a very facile international culture that is sweeping across lands. You cannot stop this; you must counteract this by education. We must be proud of our heritage. I would like to see the haredi communities playing a part in the new technologies. There is a precedent for this.

We must be proud of our heritage

I maintain that Hazal [sages] were great programmers. They had discipline and learned from the talmudic tradition, essentially what you do today in hi-tech. What did they do? They took a problem and looked at its different components from every point of view until they solved it. It was an intellectual exercise, well suited to today's yeshivah-trained citizens.

The first Zionists felt that the only wealth was in the ground; it turns out, 100 years later, that we have come back to the understanding that there is tremendous opportunity in using the intellectual disciplines that Jewish people have had for many, many centuries. I see no reason why many people in the haredi community could not be exposed to this kind of activity and do very well for themselves and for the country.

Because of the rapid growth of Israeli hi-tech industries there is a tremendous shortage of manpower. We have started a program called A Computer for Every Child. This is intended especially for low-income families, which includes haredi families, Arab families, Druze families. I call it simplistically the two "mems" —morashah and machshevim — heritage and computers. If you ask me what the greatest danger is for Israel, it is the formation of two societies — the very rich and the poor, who will get poorer if their children are not brought into the communications age.

CJN: How do you see the relationship between Israel and the Diaspora communities?

NETANYAHU: It requires persistence and the ability to withstand criticism from home and abroad. In general, the Jewish communities abroad have figured out that it is important not to engage too completely in the general debate in Israel. There are always opinions — that's natural — but there has always been a limit to this kind of debate and rancor. I think that should be a continuing guideline. I have no illusions that Jews will express their opinions, its impossible they won't.

Nobody can contemplate a world without multiple Jewish opinions. That is not the issue, but I think that at the end of the day, we should remember that we are part of the same future and the same effort to establish peace, a secure peace, for our children and our children's children and also for our neighbors. I think that we will also see more immigration to Israel from the West — from Argentina for example, where the per capita income is lower than in Israel and from parts of Britain where the same is true. You're seeing it now.

Eventually, if Israel moves up the scale of economic success you will see American Jews moving to Israel to improve their economic lot. I know this seems like pure fantasy, but it is going to happen — I guarantee it.

CJN: Finally Mr. Netanyahu, may I ask you on this Rosh Hashanah for a personal message to the Jewish community in Canada?

NETANYAHU: I have no doubt that in the near future we will achieve peace with security for our country. And I hope that with the help of democracies, like Canada, we will also be able to remove the dangers to world peace posed by the predatory regimes in the region.

But there is more to our security than the physical safety we must have. Security also means preservation of Jewish unity, the nurturing of the bond which ties Jews everywhere. Israel's power is not limited to what we have here. It is the power of a people who may live in all corners of the globe but whose heart is with us in Israel.

We have good reason to be proud of our achievements. But we must not forget the realization of the Zionist dream — the in-gathering of the Jewish people in the Land of Israel is not yet complete.

Our goal for the next decade must be to have a majority of the Jewish people living in Israel. The challenges we face are still formidable. To meet them, we must be united in purpose, strong in resolve and unbending in faith. I wish each and every one of you in the Canadian Jewish community Shanah Tovah — a good new year, a year of peace, security, health and happiness.

YOUR CAR IN ISRAEL

ELDAN אלדן RENT-A-CAR השכרת רכב

FROM US$ 147 PER WEEK UNLIMITED MILEAGE * EXC. 005

USA & CANADA
Toll Free: (1) 800-938-5000
Tel in NY: 212-629-6090
http://www.eldan.co.il/

PAY UP FRONT & SAVE $$$$

HIGH SEASON SUPPLEMENT 20 DEC.97 - 5 JAN.98

TYPE OF CAR OR SIMILAR		LS 26AUG.97 19DEC.97
	MANUAL CARS
A	FIAT PUNTO 3 DR.	147
B	CITROEN SAXO / OPEL CORSA	196
C	DAIHATSU CHARADE P.S	238
C¹	PEUGEOT 306 / MAZDA 323 P.S	266
C²	FORD ESCORT P.S	294
N	KIA BESTA 8 SEATS	490
M	MINIBUS 10 SEATS	630
	AUTOMATIC CARS+A.C
D	KIA PRIDE / SUZUKY SWIFT	266
E	MAZDA 323 1.6 P.S	315
F	* NISSAN ALMERA	350
G	* MAZDA LANTIS	434
K	* GMC VANDURA	735
X	* CHEVROLET CAVALIER	497
XL	* MAZDA 626	581
SX	* CHEVROLET LUMINA	658
KX	* GMC SAFARI	770
VX	* VOLVO 940	721

* POWER STEERING & ELECTRIC WINDOWS

A Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $5.00 per month.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa or Mastercard before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please call Janice at 416-391-1836, allowing a minimum of two weeks notice.

Max Liebermann, "Garden in Wansee," oil on canvas
41X51 cm Estimate $180,000 - 250,000

19TH & 20TH CENTURY
EUROPEAN AND ISRAELI ART

23RD OCTOBER 1997 AT 8:30PM

ON VIEW FROM SUNDAY 19TH OCTOBER

PREVIEW AND SALES AT THE HILTON HOTEL TEL AVIV

SOTHEBY'S

Catalogues are available at the viewing and at Sotheby's offices worldwide. For further information please contact Sotheby's Israel at 38 Gordon Street, Tel Aviv 63414 Tel:(972-3) 522-3822 Fax: (972-3) 522-5454

RRSP MEMBER CIPF RRIF
ONT. NFLD. HQ
Government Guaranteed Securities
7.10%*
minimum $40,000 portfolio
ask about our monthly pay
CALL 416-512-2511 • JOHN KITCHEN
*RATES SUBJECT TO CHANGE • 04/18
TD EVERGREEN WEALTH MANAGEMENT
A Division of TD Securities Inc. A Subsidiary of TD Bank

Orbit Travel
WE GUARANTEE
BEST RATES, QUALITY & SERVICE
We will beat any price out there. Air only, Caribbean Packages & European Vacations. No. 1 for Airfare & Packages to Israel
Every Sunday in Sept. & Oct. to ISRAEL $979.00 + tax
Don't settle for any price until you speak to us first. We GUARANTEE you'll Save!
Call: 905-707-0099
7700 BATHURST STREET SUITE 6, THORNHILL, ONTARIO
ACROSS FROM THE PROMENADE SHOPPING CENTRE (CENTRE & BATHURST)

Heather and I wish you a Happy & Healthy New Year
HON. JIM PETERSON
5799 Yonge Street, Suite 806,
(416) 223-2858

★★★ CENTRE HONDA ★★★
INTRODUCTORY OFFER 1998
CIVIC SEDANS FOR LEASE
LIMITED TIME OFFER
Love that Lasts
At a Rate that Won't

CIVIC LX SEDAN $218* PER MONTH 48 MONTHS
CIVIC EX SEDAN $268* PER MONTH 48 MONTHS
♥ 5 speed
♥ Dual air bags (SRS)
♥ AM/FM Stereo
♥ Tilt Steering
♥ Remote Trunk Release
♥ Dual Remote Mirrors
♥ 14" wheels with covers
♥ And more
♥ Auto Trans. ♥ Tilt Steering
♥ Air Conditioning
♥ ABS ♥ Dual air bags
♥ Cruise Control
♥ Power Windows
♥ AM/FM Stereo Cassette
♥ Dual Power Mirrors
♥ And more
*Based on new 1998 Civic Sedan LX/Civic Sedan EX. $218/$268 per month for 48 months. Down payment or equivalent trade of LX $740, EX $995 required plus 1st monthly payment and security deposit. Freight, PDI, taxes & license and insurance extra. OAC. Option to purchase at lease end. Zero downpayment plans also available.
CENTRE HONDA
SERVING YOU FOR OVER 30 YEARS
354 RICHMOND ST. E. (416) 364-1116
HONDA E-Mail Address sales@centrehonda.com Web-Site Address www.centrehonda.com
BUILT WITHOUT COMPROMISE.

The law cannot seem to reach corruption in high places

By JONATHAN SHIFF

The acquittal of Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert has brought to the fore a dilemma facing the State Attorney in every case which involves charging public figures with white collar crimes.

Olmert was accused of various felonies stemming from his tenure as the Treasurer of the Likud in the 1988 national elections. Israeli law does not allow corporations to deduct contributions to political campaigns.

Some party functionaries had been convicted of setting up phony companies that allowed corporate donors to contribute to the Likud campaign and receive tax receipts. Olmert's co-treasurer was certainly involved. The question was whether Olmert knew this was happening, was personally involved, or remained fortuitously out of the loop.

After several years of investigations and public speculation, the Tel Aviv District Court exonerated Olmert, while criticising some of his behavior (such as signing a blank affidavit, which someone else filled in and submitted to the State Controller). The bottom line was that there was no strong evidence linking Olmert to the misdeeds.

Naturally, this was seen as a great victory by the mayor, and many in politics and the media (including Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu) used the opportunity to attack the legal establishment.

Jerusalem's mayor is thereby added to a long list of public figures who have been indicted in recent years and then found not guilty.

The indictments stemmed, in part, from a general public perception of corruption at the political level and an attempt by the prosecutors to clean up matters by enforcing the law. Now the danger is that they will have achieved the opposite: having lost so many cases, they may hesitate to charge public figures and therefore make politicians feel they have carte blanche to ignore the law.

Politicians may feel they can ignore the law

In retrospect, the judgment vindicates the High Court's ruling that Olmert did not have to step down during his trial. It has become fashionable in recent years for people (often led by the Movement for the Quality of Government) to turn to the court and request all sorts of sanctions against public figures. In this case, the petitioners had argued that an indicted mayor should not continue in office while charged with such serious crimes.

Had the court granted that request, Olmert would have been evicted from office and replaced, only to be found not guilty. The damage to his career might have been irreparable. Eilat Mayor Raffi Hoffman was forced to step down and by the time he won his trial, the city had a different mayor. Clearly this is unjust.

On the other hand, there is a definite sense that public figures feel free to act as they please. The more sophisticated the corruption, the more difficult it is to convict, since no written records are left and those involved often cover up for one another.

All of this highlights one of the major limits of law. Laws can only go so far in modifying behavior, and when overused, the courts can create a boomerang effect, undercutting attempts to change norms and standards.

Indeed, since the Israeli political system has been stalemated for the last 20 years, it is hard to force people out of office for issues other than those dividing the country. This has led certain politicians to feel safe as long as their constituency is concerned with other matters. As a result, the courts have been the only force able to create standards of behavior. Paradoxically, however, the more they are used, the less effective they may become, losing both authority and deterring power.

Without inside information, it is hard to know whether the string of defeats for the prosecution stems from coincidental bad luck or poor judgment. In any case, it may be time for the state attorneys to pick their battles more carefully. Also, investigations should be conducted as quickly as possible, without public leaks that allow officeholders to portray themselves as victims of a vendetta.

The risk is that this approach may allow some corrupt politicians to remain in power. The hope is that if the state wins a few cases, the politicians may realise that at the end of the day, someone may hold them accountable.

THE HOLIDAYS ARE HERE!
Call your family and friends in
ISRAEL FOR 57¢ per MIN.
with Audioguide's PREPAID CALLING CARDS
Call Israel from anywhere in Canada and the U.S.
Ask for Audioguides prepaid calling cards at most Toronto Judaica stores or call
TORONTO (416) 636-3111
MONTREAL (514) 282-4171

Bella & Willy Goldstein
Best wishes to our children, grandchildren, friends and relatives for a happy, healthy & peaceful New Year.

Best wishes for a year of peace and serenity, health and happiness to our children, grandchildren, relatives and friends and the people of Israel.
Rose and Dave Brown

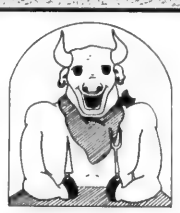
DINING PLEASURES

ACQUA
RISTORANTE E BAR

Best Wishes for a very Happy & Healthy New Year

(416) 368-7171
BCE Place 10 Front Street West

Club Nest
Hungarian Restaurant & Piano Bar
Specializing in HUNGARIAN DISHES
Goulash Soup, Wiener Schnitzel, Cabbage Rolls, Paprikas, Strudels
$10.00 OFF dinner for two with this coupon, Mon. to Fri.
Live music 7 days, 6 pm – 2 am
אנחנו מדברים עברית
1120 Eglinton West
(416) 782-9630



El Cid
Restaurante
The Charm and Grace of Spain in Toronto
WE WISH ALL OUR CUSTOMERS & FRIENDS A HAPPY & HEALTHY NEW YEAR
To start your year off sweetly, we offer a FREE DESSERT with lunch or dinner
2579 Yonge Street
Toronto, Ontario M4P 2J1
(416) 488-7052

25 Seafood
Captain John's
HARBOUR BOAT RESTAURANT AND BANQUET FACILITY
and
KONZELMANN ESTATE WINERY
presents
Wine on the Wharf
Wednesday October 22, 1997
7 Course Gourmet Dinner accompanied by a Variety of KONZELMANN'S Best Wines
$49.95 including taxes • 7pm Champagne • 8pm Dinner
Live Entertainment
Limited Seating Available. To Reservce Call (416) 363-6062

O MEI
SPECIALIZING IN SEAFOOD, SZECHUAN & PEKING CUISINE
618 SHEPPARD WEST 635-5050
248 STEELES WEST 889-8282
5150 YONGE STREET 222-2300
420 HIGHWAY 7 EAST 881-8188
ANY DISH 1/2 PRICE
with regular-price food purchase of $15 or more (not including beverages, liquor or specials) before taxes. Cannot be combined with other offers. Limit two half price dishes per table. Dining room only.
VALID TO OCTOBER 31 / 97 AT STEELES AND YONGE LOCATIONS ONLY

Shorasheem
Jewish/Israeli Restaurant & Night Club
שנה טובה
שורשים
DINNER SERVED TUESDAY – THURSDAY & SATURDAY
Let us make your simcha a success!
• Entertainment on us (live band with international music)
• The fun on us • The decorations on us
BAR/BAT MITZVAHS • WEDDINGS • ANNIVERSARIES
ENGAGEMENT PARTIES • ALL YOUR SIMCHAS
FROM ONLY $25 PER PERSON
398 Steeles West (905) 707-0330

Come Celebrate Our 28th Anniversary
Hot Wok at Young Lok
HOT GRILL TOO!
Young Lok Since 1969
Madison Centre, 4950 Yonge Street, North York
For Reservations 225-8818
Free Underground Validated Parking

Any specialty bread 1/2 PRICE
future BAKERY and Café
Taste why we were chosen best bakers in T.O.
By NOW MAGAZINE & TORONTO SUN Readers
Expires Oct. 31, 1997
Have a FREE Café au Lait
on us, with your purchase of Dessert, or $5.00 off any whole cake.
1535 Yonge St. (N. of St. Clair)
483 Bloor St. W. (at Bathurst)
Expires Oct. 31, 1997

THE DINING GUIDE

ADVERTISING FEATURE

AVLI RESTAURANT

When you come to eat at Avli, you'll be pleasantly surprised. You'll taste echoes of Greek food you've had before; everything will seem familiar and comforting, and yet there will be delicious little differences. Meticulously cooked, tradition-based, mouthwatering and interesting variations of a cuisine which people have loved and craved for 2,500 years.

"Food that is poetry" was how Sara Waxman of The Toronto Sun described Avli's culinary offerings, which include vegetarian specialties, fresh seafood daily, and exquisite main-course pies with an olive oil crust.

Hours: Sun. – Wed. 5 to midnight; Thurs. – Sat. 5 to 2 a.m.
Main floor wheelchair access
Reservations recommended Thurs. – Sat.

401 Danforth Avenue
Phone 416-461-9577

VILLAGE LOFT, EATON'S YORKDALE

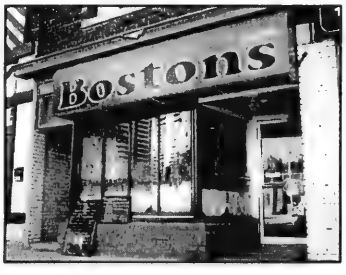
The Village Loft Restaurant at Eaton's Yorkdale is a family dining oasis for both in-store shoppers and the general community. Especially popular is the All-You-Can-Eat Buffet, served daily: $9.95 M to F 11:30–2:30; $13.95 M to W 4:30–8, Thurs. & Fri. 4:30–9; $10.95 Sat. 11:30 to 8 and Sun. 11:30 to 3. The Thurs. & Fri. Night Buffet features an all-you-can-peel and eat Shrimp Festival. Children under 8 eat for half price, children under 4 eat FREE, and seniors enjoy 10% off every day!

Licensed under LLBO, the Village Loft also offers an exciting à la carte menu. Its large, sunny dining room is a cheery destination for all your special occasions, and a private room is available. There is ample free parking and direct subway access.

Hours: Open daily; see hours above
Reservations recommended

Eaton's Yorkdale, 2nd floor
Phone 416-256-5018

BOSTON'S FAMILY RESTAURANT



Bostons has an Eastern European flavor: traditional cabbage rolls, kreplach, latkes, blintzes and bagels with lox and cream cheese set the tone; and proprietor Yolanta recommends the excellent veal schnitzel. The fish menu includes sole, rainbow trout, salmon and gefilte fish. If you're diet-conscious, try the low-fat cheeses and the salads. Yolanta and chef Hugh each have over 10 years' experience in Jewish dairy cooking; and the staff enjoy the home-cooked food they serve. This cozy family-run locale seats 40 guests. It is licensed, and reasonably priced.

Hours: Mon.-Fri 7:00 a.m.-9:00 p.m.
Sat. 8:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m.,
Sun. 8:00 a.m.-8:00 p.m.
Reservations accepted

1958 Yonge Street
Phone 416-932-1913

THE FRIENDLY GREEK

Treat yourself to a Greek holiday without getting on a plane. The authentic decor and the interesting and delicious food will leave you feeling like you've had a mini holiday. Start out with the calamari and maybe some humus. For your main course try the souvlaki available in lamb, chicken or beef accompanied by roasted potatoes, tzatziki sauce and a complimentary basket of garlic bread. End your perfect meal with Greek coffee. Book your parties, or call in for take out or delivery. We will make your evening an enjoyable experience.

Hours: Mon.-Sun. 11:00 am-11:00 pm
Fri.-Sat. 11:00 am-midnight
Wheelchair access

7315 Yonge St. (north of Steeles)
Phone 416-310-4733
905-707-8579

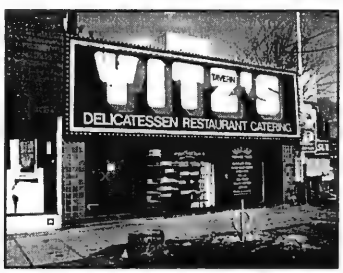
BUMPKIN'S

Bumpkin's, under the same owner since 1971, is situated in a Victorian house with an inviting atmosphere and warm fireplace. The huge menu includes duck a l'orange, quails and breast of chicken; for seafood, try the best-selling Shrimps Bumpkin's, fresh Atlantic salmon, stuffed rainbow trout, or fresh catch of the day. The choice of tender, juicy meat items includes roast beef, sirloin, filet mignon and sirloin butt steak; there are also fine vegetarian dishes, like pasta primavera. Daily specials include tiger shrimp, pasta aux fruits de mer, and surf 'n turf. Appetizers are from $2.95, entrees from $8.95; lunches include soup or salad. Best escargots & mussels in town!

Hours: Lunch Mon.-Fri. 12:00-2:30 p.m., dinner Mon.-Sat. 5:00-11:00 p.m.
Reservations requested for 5 or more persons

21 Gloucester Street
Phone 416-922-8655

YITZ'S DELICATESSEN



A Jewish Deli serving hearty foods prepared fresh daily with many favourites like homemade soups, corned beef, knishes, big salads and bagels. Voted #1 for Chicken Matzoh Ball Soup, Baby Beef, Lemon Meringue Pie and Chunky Chocolate Cookies. Boasts a 'lighten up' low fat menu. Baking on premises all day long. Unique Feature: A well stocked Humidor with the finest Cuban cigars at the city's best prices.

Hours: 10:00 am-9:00 pm
Take Out: 9:30 am-9:00 pm
7 days a week
Wheelchair access to main floor

346 Eglinton Avenue West
Phone 416-487-4506

DI MAGGIOS

The flavors here are Southern Californian and Continental, with Asian touches. Chef Chris Thomas worked for some years in Beverly Hills. The swordfish, sea bass and salmon are all recommended; likewise the rack of lamb or provimi calves' liver; or try a pasta, say, angel hair with black tiger shrimp. There's also fine vegetarian pizzas, soups, appetizers and salads. The striking decor is unique: it features walls and floors painted with classic reproductions of the Sistine Chapel, Mona Lisa, Van Gogh and Matisse. October's Toronto Life gave DiMaggio's an ecstatic review; come for yourself, and see why.

Hours: Mon.-Fri. lunch & dinner,
Sat. dinner only; Sun. closed, but available for private functions.
Reservations, please.

1423 Yonge Street
Phone 416-924-3288

FURAMA HOUSE

Looking for ambience, fine dining and a varied selection of Cantonese and Szechuan cuisine? Look no further than Bobby Peng's Furama House, which boasts all of the above plus the city's most spectacular Dim Sum, available from 10 to 4 seven days a week for your dining pleasure. Ongoing specials include Live Lobster (buy 1 get 1 free, $18.95 eat in or $20.95 take out), and Live Lobster & Whole King Crab, $22.50. Mon. to Fri. except holidays, enjoy 20% off the Dim Sum if paying cash, and 15% off the dinner menu, not including specials.

Hours: 10:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m.,
7 days a week. Dim Sum 10-4 daily.
Eat-in or take out.
Fully licensed. Wheelchair Access.
Reservations recommended.

100 Steeles Avenue West
Phone 905-731-3288

THE DINING GUIDE

ADVERTISING FEATURE

GIRA POLLI

The name means "turning the chickens"; and that's what Gira Polli is all about. The pride of the house, and Cordon Bleu chef Neil Turner, is fresh free-range chicken, roasted on a turnspit over two-year aged oak logs in a tiled, arched oven. The wood-fired rotisserie leg of lamb, marinated for four days, is also excellent; so are the pastas. One of the best appetizers is spicy grilled calamari. Then there are ribs, filet of sole and a vegetable grill, plus salads, sauces and homemade desserts to complete your meal. The ambience is roomy, rustic Italian, with brick arches, ceramic tile and plenty of real, live plants. Entree prices range from $7.95 to $15.95.

288 Eglinton Avenue West
Phone 416-322-9550

Hours: Tue.-Sat. from 5:00, Sun. from 4:30 until the last guest leaves. Call for reservations Fri. & Sat.

RICHMOND GRILL AND CAFÉ

Richmond grill and café

Leslie Kubicek, former principle of Toronto restaurants Pronto and North 44, has opened the casual, easy-going Richmond Grill and Café in the heart of Richmond Hill. Chef Kumar (formerly of Pronto and Jump) heads up the culinary team who's goal is to offer creativity and variety; from pizzas to grilled meats, fish to pastas and daily specials – all cooked to perfection ... of course! Lunches $4.95 and up; dinner entrees starting at $11.50. Take out, catering, private functions and private room available. Ample free parking off Church Street.

10165 Yonge St. (N. of Major Mackenzie)
Phone 905-884-5155

Hours: Open Monday to Sunday
Lunch: Tues. to Fri. 11:30 am to 2:30 pm
Dinner: Mon. to Sun. from 5 pm

HOTHOUSE CAFÉ

The HotHouse Cafe, with 120 menu items and an extensive wine list, takes special pride in its Thin-Crust Pizza, Indonesian Tiger Shrimp, and Linguine Mediterranean. There is a fabulous Sunday brunch with live jazz, and a Wednesday night buffet; the atmosphere is bright, upbeat and elegantly casual. When you plan a corporate party or a simchah, consider that HotHouse has hosted thousands of events, for 10 to 200 guests. HotHouse is in the heart of Toronto, steps from the theatre district, major hotels, the SkyDome and subway; two hours free parking.

35 Church Street
Phone 416-366-7800

Hours: Mon.-Thu. 11:00 am-midnight
Fri.-Sat. 11:00 am-1:00 am
Sun. 10:30 am-midnight
Reservations requested

SPLENDIDO

Splendido blends the best of Californian and Italian cuisine. From amongst their many splendid dishes, the grilled rack of veal with cracked pepper and rosemary crust comes highly recommended. Another good choice is the hardwood-roasted, free-range chicken. Fish lovers won't be disappointed with the tasty sauteed tiger shrimp served with Cajun spices. The atmosphere and service are friendly, the colors and decor inviting and cheery. Splendido has a private room; and on Sundays, the premises are available for outside catering, and for bar mitzvahs, bat mitzvahs and weddings.

88 Harbord Street
Phone 416-929-7788

Hours: Mon.-Sat. 5:00 p.m.-11:00 p.m.
Closed Sun.
Reservations advised.
Wheelchair access.

LOBSTER ROYALE

Seafood and lobster lovers, come and enjoy. Dine at The Lobster Royale where lobsters range from one to three pounds, live from the tank, prepared for you either broiled or steamed. Start your meal with a superb Lobster Bisque or a divine Clam Chowder. Other fine fish delicacies are Alaska King Crab Legs, Orange Roughy and Fresh Atlantic Salmon and the meat menu includes Filet Mignon and New York Striploin. There is a certain tone here, not too formal; smart-casual dress goes well with fine table linen.

7323 Yonge Street
Phone 905-707-0546

Hours: Mon.-Sun. 5:00-10:00 pm
Reservations advised for groups of 4 and up
Wheelchair access

THE FRIENDLY GREEK

For dinner, you'll find your traditional Greek favorites here, like moussaka, chicken souvlaki or the fine roast lamb dinner; there's also a varied fish menu reminiscent of the Greek islands, with dishes like halibut steak and filet of sole. For lunch, sample appetizing dips, and mezedes snacks such as dolmadakia (rice wrapped in vine leaves). This Friendly Greek is small and cozy, decorated in warm, relaxing colors; service is fast and friendly; and as both the lunch and dinner crowd include many regular patrons, you'll know you've come to a place which has earned its high reputation.

4695 Yonge Street
Phone 416-250-7880

Hours: 11:00-mid., Fri. & Sat. till 1:00.
Reservations accepted.
Wheelchair access.

OUTHAI RESTAURANT

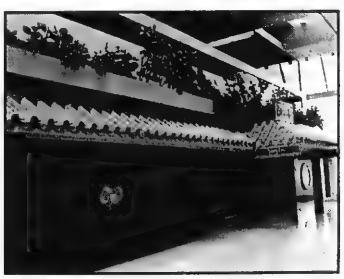
At the vanguard of the "new wave" of Thai restaurants that have taken Toronto by storm, Outhai Restaurant at 1100 Eglinton Avenue West offers all the exotic, piquant Thai flavours you'd expect at exceptionally reasonable prices, served in a warm, friendly, but unpretentious environment. House favourites include the Mixed Seafood Grill, Lemon Shrimp Soup, Mango Salad, and Cashew Chicken, and, of course, Pad Thai; you'll find Outhai's version unparalleled.

Current specials, valid for both dining in and take out, include a 2nd entrée at half price with the purchase of any regular-priced entrée.

1100 Eglinton Avenue West
Phone 416-785-1727

Hours: Mon.–Thurs.11:30– 3:30 and 5–10
Fri. & Sat. 11–11 • Sun. 5–10
Wheelchair access. Fully licensed.

YOUNG LOK



In 1969, Young Lok opened on Spadina Avenue as the first Chinese establishment. Over the years Young Lok has offered consistently good food, meeting diet-conscious diners' demands for delicious nutrition. All dishes are MSG free and cooked with vegetable oil. You can choose from the buffet with over 50 items or order from the famous à la carte menu. Dim Sum brunch is offered on weekends and holidays. Efficient delivery service is available for your convenience. Seniors enjoy a 15% discount on the buffet with presentation of a senior card. Young Lok is located next to the Ford Centre for the Performing Arts, with plenty of free validated underground parking.

4950 Yonge St., Madison Centre
Phone 416-225-8818

Hours: Mon.-Thu. 11:30 am-10 pm,
Fri.-Sat. 11:30 am-12 am,
Sun 11:30 am-10 pm
Reservations recommended / Wheelchair access

Travel, Arts & Business

WE BUY STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS
CALL OR WRITE FOR QUOTES
SIEGEL TRADING CO. OF CANADA LTD
533 EGLINTON AVE. W.
TORONTO, ONT. (416) 481-3515
— HARRY J. PACHTER —
SPECIAL MAIL ORDER SERVICE FOR OUT OF TOWN CLIENTS

David Broza returns to Toronto:

Popular performer is keeping himself busy

By JOSEPH SERGE
Arts editor

NEW JERSEY — David Broza is a busy man. It was with great difficulty that I managed to reach him by phone at his home last week to talk about his upcoming gig in Toronto.

He'd finished a stint in Israel a few days earlier and had flown back from a show in Chicago just before I finally reached him.

"I've been busy mostly playing concerts and writing lots of stuff," he said, a touch of weariness in his voice.

Broza performs over 200 concerts a year and for the past few years has always included a Toronto gig. Fans of all ages who've seen him know exactly what to expect.

"I try to give my audience everything they can possibly want," he said of his concerts. "A 'Best-Of' show plus that night's fusion of whatever's happening on stage." He also finds time to throw in a few of his personal favorites.

David Broza

His one-man show will combine English and Hebrew songs with his unique mixture of urban rock 'n' roll combining Spanish flamenco, blues and '70s-style folk rock.

Also on the bill Oct. 12 at the Music Hall on Danforth Avenue is talented singer/songwriter Marc Jordan, who's scored a few hits of his own in addition to writing for Rod Stewart and Amanda Marshall.

"It will be a long night," Broza promised. "The audience will definately get their's money's worth."

Although he currently makes his home here, Broza grew up in Israel and has performed many benefits there including a memorial concert for Yitzhak Rabin.

"It's a slow march through the valley of death," Broza said of the current political scene in Israel. "But I'm actually a positive thinker and I was never under the delusion that the road to peace won't be a bloody and difficult one."

Which is why Broza returns to Israel to perform as often as he can. "I make people feel better by providing entertainment for them," he said. "It's what I do."

When not performing, Broza has been busy working on a number of projects, including a Spanish album and a story album for children. In Israel he's collaborating with singer/songwriter Peter Himmelman on a project he's calling Israeli Gears (a tie-in to Eric Clapton's progressive blues band Cream.)

For tickets to his Oct. 12 show, call 416-870-8000.

Lawyer takes a shine to miracle polish

BY ADAM BELLO
Special to the CJN

TORONTO — Aspiring entrepreneur Les Kotzer has found a Midas touch that does not turn things to gold, but does make them glitter.

Drawing on his experience in his family-run hardware and paint store, the lawyer-turned-business owner is beginning to make a name for himself in Canadian retail by introducing a versatile American cleaning product that can be used to renew all metal surfaces, from brass menorahs to gold and silver jewelry to the stainless steel kitchen sink.

The product is Maas, an all-metals polishing cream. In the last few years, Kotzer has taken it from the fringe of mail order and home shopping television promotion to the shelves of Canadian Tire, Home Hardware, the Bay and Loblaws. Some call Maas a miracle cleaner. Kotzer calls it an opportunity he could not pass up.

"Whatever direction I went in life, I never lost the entrepreneurial spirit that my family shared," he says, "I knew I wanted to build my own business around bringing a good product to the [Canadian] marketplace, and I recognized this right away in Maas.

"I learned from my father and grandfather to know and understand the quality of a product, which made me want to capitalize on the cream," Kotzer says.

"Most young entrepreneurs make the mistake of not knowing enough about the products and services they offer, and then get in over their heads. The key is to always know the quality of what you are offering – and always deal in quality."

Kotzer, 41, a practising lawyer with Fish & Associates in Thornhill, became involved with Maas in 1991 at a Chicago trade show of hardware goods. He says he realized its potential when he saw his reflection in a brass planter treated with the polish.

"It was amazing how it all happened," Kotzer says. "I used to write a do-it-yourself column in a local newspaper as part of the hardware store's marketing, and someone once wrote in a question about how to choose the right metal polish. This was always a concern when people came to the store looking for a specific metal cleaner. We would spend a lot of time reading the small print on polish tins to find the best one. I felt there had to be a better way.

"When I saw this gleaming brass planter, the memories of the store, the old column and the entrepreneurial spirit all came together; I knew right then and there I had the opportunity I was looking for."

Les Kotzer and his Midas touch.

The Maas polishing cream works on all metal and non-porous surfaces (glass, plastics and Plexiglas, among others). The product has received critical acclaim in the United States for its versatility for home, commercial and industrial use.

Donna Maas, the president of Maas Polishings Systemes said in a telephone interview that Burlington Air Express informed her it is currently testing to determine if the polish will help them save on fuel by effectively reducing the dirt build-up on their airplanes, and thereby reducing wind sheer, the wind resistance faced in flight.

She said the product is also being used in every branch of the American military and in U.S. Department of Defence commissaries.

But while the product has had an impressive track record in America, Kotzer found he needed to build up a reputation for it in Canada.

After acquiring the Canadian distribution rights to the polish through his company, Eglinton Marketing Corporation, Kotzer used word-of-mouth to develop public confidence in the product. Now he has an overflowing binder of thank you letters and hand written orders from satisfied mail order customers.

However, major retail chains wanted further proof that Maas could create in-store demand and Kotzer set out to break into the retail market.

By attending the Home Show and maintaining a continued presence on the Canadian home shopping network, Kotzer slowly began to draw the attention of Canadian media and he learned how to develop new marketing strategies.

Last year, Kotzer sent a tube of Maas to radio personality John Michael of CKTB in St. Catharines. Michael praised the product over the air, triggering a demand from his listeners that gained the attention of Canadian Tire, who has since carried Maas in its stores. The polish has sold well and has been the featured product in two promotional flyers in the past year.

More recently, Kotzer has had success with Loblaws/SuperCentre, which has added Maas nationwide to its cleaning section.

Kotzer says the next challenge is to market a Maas line, with product spin-offs such as polishing gloves and a cleaning gel for automotive and boat use. His current marketing promotion has already led to a product profile earlier this month on the national radio program, the Canadian Achievers.

As a further promotional step, Kotzer is seeking to have the product designated kosher for Passover by next spring.

MANOR TRAVEL
— WE'VE MOVED!! —
Visit us at our new location
1450 CLARK AVE. W., #7
(Duffenn & Clark - Loeb's Plaza, Thornhill)
1997 GROUPS with STANLEY
•Dream Cruise. Dec. 21 From$1119 Cdn. Kids Cruise FREE
•Ft. Lauderdale. From $389 incl. tax (Long Stays)
•New Year's Eve Getaway Dec. 31-Jan. 2
•Singles Club Med Jan. '98
•Cruise Jan. 17 VIA
1 week from Ft. Lauderdale
Tel. (905) 669-1347
1-800-763-4769

SEND YOUR CAR
FLORIDA, CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA
& ALL POINTS ACROSS CANADA AND RETURN
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY
SERVICE (NATIONWIDE) INC.
5803 Yonge Street, Suite 101 (In the Newtonbrook Plaza)
(N. of Finch, at Cummer) Willowdale, Ont. M2M 3V5
For Quotations..... (416) 225-7754
If Long Distance 1-800-561-2658
E-Mail.....www.torontodriveaway.com
Serving the Public & Especially the Jewish Community since 1959

ISRAEL BEST AIRFARES
EL AL AIR CANADA
THE TRUE ALL-INCLUSIVE
BAR/BAT MITZVAH FAMILY TOURS TO ISRAEL
See Israel as you've never seen it before!!
SPECIAL PROGRAMS CELEBRATING ISRAEL'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY
NEW 1998 DEPARTURES
WINTER Dec. 21/97-Jan. 4/98 • Limited Space
SPRING BREAK '98 March 11-23
SUMMER '98 June 28-July 12, July 5-19, July 12-26, Aug. 2-16, Aug. 9-23, Aug. 16-30
WINTER '98 Dec. 20/'98-Jan. 3/'99
REGISTRATION IN PROGRESS FOR ALL TOURS
DON'T WAIT - OUR TOURS ARE FILLING UP VERY QUICKLY
Don't book with anyone until you speak to us!
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
905-886-5610
OUT OF TOWN CALL 1-800-294-1663

Find It In The CJN Classifieds!
CALL LISA
(416) 391-1836
FOR ADVERTISING RATES AND DEADLINES

Travel, Arts & Business

Eye on Arts

by Bill Gladstone

RAGTIME, STILL THE NIGHT SWEEP DORAS

Singer-actor Theresa Tova's original play Still The Night, which won critical acclaim at Toronto's Theatre Passe Muraille last year, came away with four awards, including best new musical in the mid-sized theatre division, at the 18th annual Dora Mavor Moore awards in Toronto last week.

Another big winner was Livent's production of the E.L. Doctorow novel Ragtime, which captured seven Doras including best new musical in the large theatre division.

Still The Night, a two-person musical drama about Jews fleeing the Holocaust, also won in the categories of best musical production, best female performance in a musical (Liza Balkan) and best sound and music.

The awards couldn't have come at a better time for Tova, who both wrote and starred in the highly successful work, and who plans to take it on a cross-country tour, beginning in Calgary Oct. 17.

Tova is also starring in a gala concert for JIAS on Oct. 27 (see next item).

* * *

JIAS Concert: To mark its 75th anniversary, Jewish Immigrant Aid Services (JIAS) is sponsoring Celebrating Our Heritage, a gala concert at the George Weston Recital Hall, Ford Centre, on Oct. 27, 7:30 p.m. The concert features diva, Theresa Tova, TSO associate concert master Mark Skazinetsky, cellist Igor Gefter, pianist Marina Surgan and cantor Armand Moyal.

JIAS intends to use the concert to launch the JIAS Community Heritage Book. The proposed book will feature the well-illustrated stories of numerous waves of Jewish immigration to Canada, highlighting various Toronto Jewish families.

Tickets are $18, $36 and $75 (the latter price includes post-concert reception). 416- 697-0613.

* * *

Hollywood Snub: Billy Crystal is one of four big-name Jewish Hollywood celebrities who have opted out of a celebration of Israel's 50th anniversary set for next April in Los Angeles, the London Jewish Chronicle reports.

The decision not to participate is supposedly a protest over Israel's proposed Conversion Bill and what many American Jews see as a growing intolerance in Israel's Orthodox establishment of non-Orthodox Jews.

The performers were reportedly upset that the proposed Conversion Bill would deny the legitimacy of non-Orthodox conversions performed in Israel, and by a recent incident in which non-Orthodox Jews were heckled by Orthodox onlookers at the Western Wall before being evicted by the police.

Yoram Ben-Ze'ev, the Israeli consul in Los Angeles, said he was not entirely displeased that his cable of the closed-door meeting had been leaked to the Israeli media. "The matter goes beyond the current controversy," he said. "I think both Israel and world Jewry are on a genuine quest for a new identity. We need to redefine ourselves and find a broad common denominator to hold all Jews together."

* * *

Poetry Corner: A Seed in The Pocket of Their Blood is the title of a slide show and poetry presentation by Rafi Aaron, in which he focuses on the moods of contemporary Israel while conveying a sense of its past. Bloor JCC, 750 Spadina Ave., Oct. 28, 7:30 p.m. 416-924-6211.

* * *

New CD: Guitarist Simon Wynberg explores Jewish musical tradition in Songs Of My People, a new CD on the Narada label.

Wynberg, a Scottish-born Torontonian whose parents came from South Africa, has performed with many notable classical groups, including the BBC Concert Orchestra. The CD offers "an exploration and interpretation of Jewish musical traditions in acoustic, contemporary arrangements" led by Wynberg's eloquent acoustic guitar.

* * *

Posluns Monodrama: The Galician Woman, a monodrama with music based on the life of Eva Deutsch, is being performed by Vienna's legendary Topsy Kuppers, Nov. 1 and 2, 8 p.m. at the Leah Posluns Theatre, North York. The Galician Woman is "a unique celebration, a dream of laughter and tears...a cavalcade of Yiddish-Deutsch," co-sponsored by Spotlight Productions and the Austrian Ministry for Foreign Affairs.

Kuppers also performs in Weit Von Wo – Cabaret in Exile: A Journey into Nostalgia, Nov. 2, 2 p.m.

Reservations, 416-636-1880, ext. 368.

* * *

Play Returns: My Mother's Courage, George Tabori's play about the Hungarian Holocaust, returns to Theatre Passe Muraille, Oct. 22 to Nov. 2, courtesy of Theatre Asylum & Olive Eye Productions. $18-$25. 416-504-7529.

Toronto actress delivers message

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Wife abuse is "hidden" in the Jewish community, says Marlene Charney, 39, one of several actors who plays the part of Francine Nicholas, who in real life was shot five times by her husband in front of their six children.

Charney plays Francine in the trial scene, one of the links between the two acts, I Will Not Fall, which played at the Theatre Centre until Oct. 5.

Marlene Charney

A volunteer with Jewish Family and Child Service's telephone support group for abused women, Charney said she gets "even more satisfaction" from playing a role in a message play.

"I think wife abuse is just as prevalent in the Jewish community as it is in general society," she said. "I have seen quite a few women in these circumstances. The subject is not given nearly enough significance in society."

Since graduating in dramatic arts from the University of Windsor, she has had leading roles in other productions during an acting career of 16 years.

The daughter of Auschwitz survivor Morris Charney of Toronto, she is a volunteer as well at the Holocaust Remembrance Committee. An uncle, Michael Charney, of Toronto, was also at Auschwitz

She is on stage during the whole play, either in the role of Francine or as a singer in the chorus.

BOOK EARLY - LAST PRODUCTION SOLD OUT

NATHAN GARNICK PRODUCTIONS presents
The YIDDISH THEATRE SCHOOL ENSEMBLE in

YIDDISH CABARET

Directed by NATHAN GARNICK
Music by Yitzhak Argaman
And variety of feature artists

יידיש קאַבאַרעט

* Comedy, Klezmer, Hassidic, Israeli and Russian Song & Dance
* 50 Performers, including a Youth Cast
* In Yiddish and English - A Delight for All Ages! *

2 NIGHTS ONLY
TUES. & WED., OCT. 28 & 29, 8 P.M.
at LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE
Bathurst Jewish Centre, 4588 Bathurst St.

TICKETS: RESERVED SEATING $10 in advance; $15 at the door

Tickets at Lasting Impressions One Hour Photo,
243 Wilmington Ave., Bathurst Manor Plaza. Inquiries: (416) 635-0720

Fabulous
HARVEY SEIGEL BAND
Super Music — Very Affordable
(416) 782-9202

HARVEY SEIGEL'S (other band)
SPEAK-EASY JAZZ BAND
★ Big Band ★ Swing ★ Klezmer
"Band Size to Suit Your Budget"
(416) 256-4123

MUSICAL REVUE
From Broadway to Klezmer

LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE
4588 Bathurst Street
Sun., Oct. 19th, 1997
1:00 pm and 7:00 pm
BUY YOUR TICKETS NOW... WHILE THEY LAST!
Tickets: $10.00 in advance
$12.00 at the door
Wheelchair Accessible

Tickets Are Available at: Lasting Impressions
Wilmington Plaza: 1 Hour Photo 635-0720
Pro Shop: Bathurst Jewish Centre 636-1880 ext. 235

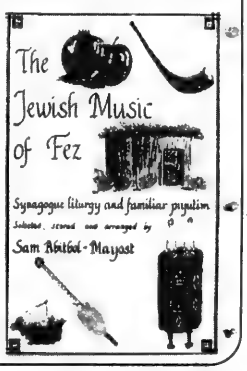
The Jewish Music of Fez
by
Sam Abitbol Mayost

Music score, Hebrew text, transliteration and partial translation of hymns and home piyutim for Shabat and all Jewish Holidays.

The author, a former choir director and member of several distinguished philharmonic orchestras, writes anecdotes and tales, sings and accompanies himself on a multi voice Roland Synthetiser, recreating in lifelike fashion, the atmosphere of synagogue, home and street in Morocco in prewar times, using the best of sephardi music.

Audio tapes:
122 melodies on two audiotapes, stereo CRO² Dolby (3hrs.listening)
$12.50 each
Book:
3rd revised edition
first published in 1988.
162 pp, $ 25.00
$ 5.00 shipping and handling

Available from SRM Enterprises,
674 Hillcrest Ave., Ottawa,
Ont., Canada K2A 2N3
Tel: (613) 722-9114
E-Mail: an256@freenet.carleton.ca



40 years of service
aufgang travel
789-7117

Documentary focuses on Israel's founding

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

The three years from the end of World War II in 1945 to the establishment of Israel in 1948 were critical ones in modern Jewish history.

These seminal developments, which were touched off by the surrender of Nazi Germany, are dramatically captured in The Long Way Home, a two-hour documentary produced by the Simon Wiesenthal Centre and previewed at a special screening late last month in Toronto.

Written and directed by Mark Jonathan Harris, and narrated by Morgan Freeman, the film is an amalgam of archival newsreel footage, period radio broadcasts, still photos and personal accounts. Factual and yet stirring, it is framed by the barbed wire of the Dachau concentration camp and the flight of Jewish displaced persons to an embattled Israel.

The Long Way Home, which is avowedly Zionist in orientation, unfolds as U.S. troops liberate Bergen-Belsen. They are shocked, dumbfounded and disgusted by the horror. They hardly know what to make of the Jewish survivors, who are ravenous and ill. Some are so hungry that they wolf down their rations, rupturing their stomachs. Many others, having tasted the whiff of freedom, simply succumb to disease.

Harris essentially deals with four overlapping themes: the appalling condition of the DP camps administered by the American occupation force in Germany; the hostility survivors often faced when they returned to their homes; the struggle for Jewish statehood at the United Nations; and the increasingly bitter conflict over illegal Jewish immigration to Palestine.

In relating this complex story, The Long Way Home conveys stark images and strong words.

Conditions at the DP camps were so bad that a special American emissary was dispatched by then-president Harry Truman to investigate the matter. His report prompted Truman to issue an appeal to Britain: admit 100,000 Jewish refugees to Palestine.

Britain declined, but its unsympathetic attitude was echoed by General George Patton, who claimed that Jews are "lower than animals."

Survivors who trekked back to their homes in eastern Europe usually received a chilly reception. Some were murdered by Fascists. Others were pointedly asked why they hadn't been turned into soap. "We were hated," one recalls, "because we returned from the dead."

In the aftermath of the Holocaust, the idea for a Jewish state in Palestine gathered momentum, despite Arab and British objections. Truman was supportive, but his senior cabinet officers were not. As the issue was debated, the United States cozied up to Germany in the interest of containing the rising tide of communism.

During the months leading up to Israel's emergence as a sovereign state, events moved fast and furiously. The United Nations passed a resolution partitioning Palestine. The British vacated their mandate after a terrorist campaign mounted by Jewish extremists. The Haganah shepherded Jewish refugees to Palestine, even over the Alps.

This tumultuous post-war period, which exerted such a profound influence on the world, is deftly recounted in The Long Way Home, a film of startling contrasts, piquant observations and piercing truths.

TORONTO SENIOR STRINGS

The Toronto Senior Strings (TSS) is launching its fourth season on Oct. 23 at 2 p.m.

TSS is a group of top professionals committed to presenting beautiful music at a time, place and price convenient to seniors.

TSS is currently the only professional string chamber orchestra in Toronto. Conducted by Victor Feldbrill, each concert features a gifted young artist.

For the Oct. 23 concert, the young soloist is flautist Stephen Tan. The program includes music by Boyce, Corelli, C.P.E. Bach, Schubert, Brahms and Britten.

Tickets, priced at $10 per concert or $28 for the series of three, can be ordered from TSS, 204 Airdrie Rd. Toronto M4G 1M8 or call 416-769-5071 or 416-488-9452 for more information.

The two other concerts in the series will be held on April 16 and June 4.

THINK THIN
Includes: 3 meals, massage, exercise, diet and friendly staff
From $62 U.S. Daily per pers. dbl. occ. to Dec. 19
$68 U.S. Dec. 20 to Jan. 20
Lido Spa HOTEL
40 ISLAND AVE. MIAMI BEACH FL 33139
TOLL FREE: 800-327-8363

ATTENTION SNOWBIRDS!
FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS AND RETURN
www.torontodriveaway.com
CALL (416) 225-7754
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St. #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

Service to New York City
for the holidays
Direct to Port Authority in Manhattan
From Montreal
Leave from the Voyageur Terminal
Daily
10:00AM 10:45PM
From Toronto
Daily from the Bus Terminal 610 Bay Street
7:30 AM 8:30AM 11:30AM
7:30PM 9:30PM 11:30PM
All coaches are European Style, air conditioned and have more space between seats for your added comfort.
Fully licensed and driven by professional drivers.
Les Autocar Adirondack
Montreal 514-842-2281
Toronto 416-594-3310
1-800-858-8555

WELCOME BACK DAVID
We are pleased to announce that DAVID FREUDMANN has rejoined our UNIWORLD Team. David continues to offer the finest in service for all corporate and vacation needs.
ISRAEL...family tours, groups, Bar/Bat Mitzvah
Annual ALASKA cruise...personally escorted M/V GALAXY JULY 3 to 10/98
GLATT KOSHER CRUISES
NOV. 13 to 30/97
MARCO POLO Mombasa/Capetown
ALASKA & Mediterranean cruises for next summer
AUG. 9 to 20/98...Volga cruise – Moscow & St. Petersburg
Please call: DAVID FREUDMANN
Tel: 416-493-3322 1-800-268-3150
Fax: 416-493-4843
E-Mail: freudmann@uniworldtravel.com
245 Yorkland Blvd., Suite 109
Willowdale, Ont. M2J 4W9
Uni World Travel & Tours Inc.

dominion rug since 1947
a carpet adventure

At Dominion Rug we search the world over to bring you the finest collection of designer floor coverings available.
Dominion Rug has an extra-ordinary selection of carpet and rugs with more than 10,000 samples to choose from. There's everything from Wiltons, Axminster, Chinese needlepoints, Aubusson, Tibetan, custom hand made wool rugs to tapestry borders, brass stair rods, cork and laminates floors.
Our staff of colour fashion and design specialists are dedicated to be, simply the best in style, selection, value, service and performance
We can supply and install anywhere in Canada and the U.S.
3420 Yonge Street (1 mile South of 401) Tel: (416) 485-9488

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
ZOGLO'S VEGETARIAN
Beef or Chicken Patties 300 g $2.99
Spinach, Corn, Potato, Broccoli, Mixed Vegetables, Cauliflower Nuggets $1.99
Cauliflower or Corn Schnitzel 332 g $2.99
Until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK - 161 DENISON ST. W. - (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Health

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
Free Buy One 56g Pkg Pink Euro-cut SMOKED BAGELOX Get One FREE was 2.99
GOLDEN HARBOR PRE-SLICED RED PACIFIC SMOKED SALMON $9.99/lb
with ad
Valid until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK - 161 DENISON ST. W. - (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Abuse of seniors often linked to other problems

TORONTO — Most older people enjoy positive relationships in their daily lives. But a minority of older women and men – experts estimate about four percent – experience some type of neglect or abuse, according to the Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care.

TO YOUR HEALTH

While strangers and professional caregivers may be implicated in some cases of abuse, research has shown that most abusers are related to their victims. A recent Canadian study found that in 27 percent of cases, the perpetrator was a son; in 24 percent of cases it was a husband; and in 11 percent of cases, the daughter was the abuser.

Mistreatment of an older person rarely happens unless some other problem is present, according to Jan Boyd, a social worker with the Community Assessment and Treatment Program at Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care in Toronto.

"We often discover past episodes of conflict or violence, financial problems, or that the abuser has a problem with drugs or alcohol," Boyd says.

Abuse in later life occurs in several forms and they often overlap, according to a 1992 survey, which found that financial abuse was the most commonly reported problem.

This occurs when someone – a family member or trusted professional – handles a senior's money or property without his or her knowledge or consent. For example, adult children or other relatives may convince an older person to let them make investments, which they then turn to their own advantage.

Or there may be outright theft or fraud involving property or pension cheques. Some elderly people are pursued by zealous vendors, who try to convince them to purchase unnecessary products or services.

The survey found that the next most commonly reported type of abuse was chronic verbal aggression – being yelled at, threatened with physical harm or abandonment, or belittled by cruel remarks.

Less frequently reported was physical violence, which may involve hitting, kicking, pushing, slapping or restraining the older person, which can result in injuries such as bruises, cuts or even broken bones. In some cases, there may be sexual abuse as well.

Finally, the survey found that elderly people are sometimes abused through neglect. In these cases, relatives deprive a dependent of necessities such as nutritious food, clean accommodation and medical care.

Some studies have found that two groups of older people may be especially vulnerable to abuse: those who are economically dependent on an adult child or other caregiver, and those who are cognitively impaired due to Alzheimer disease or stroke.

Most older people are reluctant to admit that someone is mistreating or taking advantage of them, says Boyd. "They feel ashamed and embarrassed that this is happening to them and don't want anyone else to know about it."

This is especially true if you're being abused by your own child, or if your self-esteem is already so low that you feel the abuse is somehow deserved. In some cases, the person may have been mistreated in the past, either by a spouse or a parent, and is simply accustomed to living this way.

People who are financially and/or emotionally dependent on the abuser may also hesitate to complain or fight back, because they fear being abandoned or losing their family member's "love." They may also worry that, by revealing the abuse, they will be forced to press formal charges against the abuser.

Boyd offers the following advice:

- If you suspect that someone is taking advantage of you financially and don't want to confront them, speak to someone else – another family member or a trusted friend. You need to find out what's happening in order to gain control of the situation.
- If you are being abused physically or psychologically by someone in your family, you have to break the cycle and get outside help.

"Unfortunately, very few people are willing to disclose this type of situation to a complete stranger," says Boyd.

If there's no other relative you can talk to, she advises, call your family doctor or your clergyman who may be able to help you explore your options. For example, help may be available from a family service agency or seniors centre in your community. In some cases, it may be appropriate to contact the police or other authorities.

- If you are a caregiver who has already acted abusively toward an older person, or if the strain of caregiving is making you feel overwhelmed, angry or resentful, seek outside help immediately.

"Whether this kind of abuse is intentional or unintentional, the goal is to stop the abusive behavior and begin the healing process," says Boyd.

EDWARD BRIKKER
EDWARD BRIKKER R.D.T., D.D.
Making DENTURES for over 30 years
• Full Denture Service
• Emergency Repairs & Relines
• Soft Cushion Liners
GUARANTEED COMFORT
(416) 398-7846
1 WHITEHORSE RD., UNIT 23 (ground Floor)
Sheppard & Allen Expwy. off Kodiak Cr.

THE ROSE SINGS... ADVERTISE!
CALL LISA AT
(416) 391-1836
FOR ADVERTISING RATES
CJN Classifieds Really Work!

Does your copy of The Canadian Jewish News go home with your children every week?
Why not order the perfect gift...
for you and them.
Their own CJN subscription.

Number of options available to ease Yom Kippur fasting

JERUSALEM — An expert at Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Centre has advice for your Yom Kippur fast.

According to Dr. Elliot Berry, head of clinical nutrition at the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School, there are a number of things you can do in advance to ease your fasting.

- Take frequent drinks of water throughout the day before the fast begins.
- Your last meal before the fast should include complex carbohydrates, like pasta, rice, potatoes and whole-grain bread. When complex carbohydrates are stored in the liver, water is retained so the body suffers less dehydration during a fast.
- But, be sure to eat a balanced meal before the fast. Proteins and fats are absorbed more slowly than sugars and provide the necessary energy, but you should balance your meal with 55 percent complex carbs, 15 percent proteins and 30 percent fats.
- Do not overeat before you fast.
- Do not take salty or sweet foods or beverages before the fast, because they may make you thirsty.

Dr. Berry also has some advice on the best way to break the fast.

Break your fast with a drink (not carbonated) and a slice of bread or dry cake. After an hour, enjoy a full meal.

The Canadian Jewish news
1500 DON MILLS ROAD, STE. 205
NORTH YORK, ONTARIO M3B 3K4
TELEPHONE: (416)-391-1836
FAX: (416)-391-0949

I would like to subscribe to The Canadian Jewish News ❑

Please complete details below:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____

CJN SUBSCRIPTION RATES
$54.95* 2 YRS. CANADA ❑
$29.95* 1 YR. CANADA ❑
*G.S.T. IS INCLUDED
G.S.T. #R105201149
$60.00 U.S. 1YR. U.S. A. ❑
$75.00 U.S. 1YR. FOREIGN ❑

PLEASE RETURN WITH YOUR PAYMENT.
AMOUNT ENCLOSED$ _____
CHEQUE ENCLOSED ❑
OR VISA ❑
OR MASTERCARD ❑
NUMBER _____
EXPIRY DATE _____
TELEPHONE NO. _____

SERVICE DIRECTORY

345 ACCOUNTING

Accounting, bookkeeping services available at reasonable rates. Call Michael (CGA), 416-781-5718.

350 APPLIANCES

SOBIE'S
SERVICENTRE & APPLIANCE PARTS
Look for our ad under APPLIANCES in the Yellow Pages™ Directory

Specializing in repairs to
JENN-AIR • SUBZERO
THERMADOR, etc.
We install and repair
APPLIANCE SHABBAT SWITCHES
(416) 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave., Willowdale

Ahlfeld Appliance Ltd. Very reasonable and reliable service to your dishwasher, fridge, stove, washer, dryer & air conditioning. We pride ourselves on honesty. Free est. (905) 709-3393.

 KELNER'S APPLIANCE SERVICE
Repairs to washers, dryers, dishwashers and stoves. 2 yrs warr. Same Day Service. FREE est.
Zvi (905) 731-5950

355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/ SALES

Jacob Repairs All TV's, VCRs Computers. 416-661-6798.

395 ELECTRICAL

Air Conditioning, Electrical Contracting, licensed, repair services, reasonable, guaranteed. 905-882-5474.

395 ELECTRICAL

Electrician seeks small jobs only. Lic #E-329.Call 636-5732.

370 CATERING

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) (416) 787-0309

חתונה. ברית מצוה
Weddings • Bar Mitzvahs
Tri ✡ Elm Catering
3 Banquet Halls • Joe Elmaleh
Glatt Kosher 631-7322 COR 200
e-mail:trielm@pathcom.com

372 CHUPPAHS

Aviv-Floral Design. Chuppah and aisle runner rentals. We specialize in wedding flowers. Call 416-256-2554

375 CLEANING

Adanac Maintenance cleans stores, offices, factories, bldgs. Fully insured. 694-2065.

380 CLOTHING

• Women & Preteen Clothing
• Children's Formal Wear
QUALITY KID'S TIGHTS $6.75
SOCKS ON THE RUN
Quality socks for children at below retail prices
Call for appointment
(905) 886-0711

405 FURNITURE

Carrocel Restorations
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES
• BEDROOM SUITES • DINING SUITES
• REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
WE CUSTOM BUILD
3115 - 14TH WEST, CASTLE
(905) 475-6942

Furniture restoration and refinishing. Touch-ups & small jobs done on your premises. Free estimates. 416-654-2430.

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touch-ups. Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 654-0518.

410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS

Acryllic nails, $15., full set & fills, evg. appt's. 416-663-8691.

Pnina, 15 mins. electrol. $13., man.+ ped. $25. 416-667-8012

386 DANCING

La Dalia
Direct from Israel
INTERNATIONAL FLAMENCO & CLASSICAL ESPAÑOL DANCE THEATRE
Express yourself in life.
Feel your passion!
Take classes with the Sole Official Representative of CIRO FLAMENCO MADRID
30 years of experience in teaching & performing
For information call (416) 921-6315

410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS

Professional Hairstylist available at your home for special occasions/private sessions, on Sun., Mon. & evgs. Call Loula at (416) 499-6453 for an app't.

411 HEALTH THERAPIES

ATHLETIC, MASSAGE THERAPIST, Jonathan Maister, RMT, CATO. Exper. with Spec. needs & Seniors. 905-709-9643.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS

REPAIRS & RENOVATIONS
• Drywall • Plaster • Painting
• Carpentry • Fences • Decks • Doors
• Locks • Tiles
Specializing in:
• Basement Finishing
• Bathroom/Kitchen Renovations
Fast Service - Quality Work
MOSHE 416-445-6438

BATHTUB REGLAZING Sinks, tiles from $199. & up. FREE Estimate. 416-753-3097.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission (416) 392-3000

CESTA CONTRACTING, all types of home improvements, since 1981, no job too small. Call Carmen 249-4143.

City East Hardwood Flooring. Sand, stain, finish. 839-0733.

HANDYMAN 638-5488 Improvement/Repairs, Ephram.

Home Services. Painting, plaster, carpentry, plumbing, electric, ceramic, tiling. 736-1179.

Electrician - master license, res., ind., comm. Experience, reasonable rates- prompt service. Call 403-1480 or 743-7692.

420 INVITATIONS/ PRINTING

Call Gilda Lefton for your invitations & accessories. Weddings, Bar/Bat Mitzvahs - Cdn., U.S. & custom. (905) 881-5588.

Invitations for all. Unbeatable price, selection & service. Call Mark, A & D 905-731-5864.

Calligraphy, for lovely handdone work.Reisa 905-731-5479

427 JUDAICA

Miriam's Fine Judaica has avail. a child's Luiav set, consisting of 1 fresh Palm Branch, fresh Hadassim & fresh Arovot. Etrog not incl. $15.00. Suitable for ages 4-6. Call 781-8261.

434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES

Prof. limo. driver offers his car & services for people who need safety rides to anywhere. Call Mr. Kogan, 416-587-5139.

445 MOVING

AROMA Moving,any size truck + 2 men,$35/hr. & up. 450-0381

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Homes, offices, apts. Family busnss. Reasonable. 274-6144.

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 738-4030, 663-0630.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPERING

Bargain Painter, apts, houses, offices. Mikhilov, 633-5973.

Benjamin & Moore painting & gen. improv. needs. Prof. workmanship. Comm./Res. 905-761-1542, pgr. 416-379-3082, Ben.

David Painter. Prof. Workmanship. Jewish, Hebrew, Hungarian, Romanian. 905-660-7794.

E. Katz Painting, Free est. 416-219-4182, 905-709-4017.

Exp. painter/ plasterer/ vinyl tile flooring. Best prices. Free est. Guaranteed. Bill, 638-9249.

Harry's Painting, for painting & wallpapering needs. 755-2021.

Prof. painting/paperhanging, Jacob 667-9869, no shabbos calls.

452 PARTY SERVICES

FOR YOUR PARTIES...
The CandyMan
SNO CONE, POPCORN, CANDY FLOSS, MINI DONUT MACHINE RENTALS
CENTREPIECES
SOFT PRETZELS
BALLOONS
789-7174
COR

Caricatures by Don. Quality caricaturist works at parties, Bar Mitzvahs, etc. Book now, high Demand! Don, 416-538-4100.

455 PHOTOGRAPHY/ VIDEO

SHOE BOXES full of Movie Film? Your Movie Reels taking up space? We'll transfer all of it onto VIDEO. We're "SPECIALISTS" at preserving PRECIOUS MEMORIES. Fred Nelson (905) 886-3210

477 SECOND HAND STORES

Amelia's Deal Ya
CONSIGNMENT COMPANY
MOVING? DOWNSIZING?
We sell • FINE FURNITURE
• ACCESSORES • ANTIQUES
PRIVATE IN-HOME CONTENTS & ESTATE SALES.
(416) 789-8320
2788 Bathurst St. (at Glencairn)

483 SKIING

THE GEORGIAN PEAKS CLUB
A unique opportunity to join Ontario's Premier
Private Ski Club
For Only $12,500
(Save $7500) Limited Time Offer
Call Rick Trumble
1-800-461-9723

490 TABLE COVERINGS

Made To Measure
TABLE PADS
Dover Pad. Finest quality since 1950. Heat resistant to 600°F. Many colours. Home service, no obligation.
1-800-354-4445

Artege Table Pads
Custom-made, top quality, heat resistant. Wide selection, courteous home service. 745-2711.

500 TUTORING/ LESSONS

Cert. exper. Hebrew teacher avail., (all levels), incl. Bar/Bat Mitzvah. (416) 633-6185.

Piano Lessons, priv., teaching the love & understanding of music. Conservatory method & exams, all ages. 416-223-7506.

Hebrew lessons for all ages, M.A.,Tel Aviv Univ., 6 yrs. Cdn. exper. Progress through fun. Call Z'ev, 416-730-9113.

Hebrew Lessons. Exp. teacher. Reading, writing, conversation,Jewish Traditions. All ages. Bath./Centre. 905-771-0500.

Private lessons in Hebrew
- Children and Adults
- Competitive Rates
- Certified by the Board of Jewish Education's Teachers Seminary (Midrasha)

Call Hillel at (416) 638-6411

500 TUTORING/ LESSONS

Hebrew lessons by an exper. teacher. Call 787-8503.

510 UPHOLSTERY

Arctic Custom Upholstering Free est. Let us beautify your yesterdays furniture. Free armcovers, free toss pillows with every 2-piece suite. 665-3445.

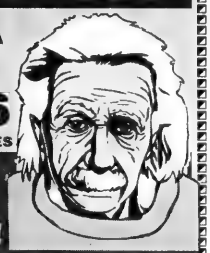
Bathurst Upholstery. Reupholstering sofas, chairs. Lowest prices. 781-1995, 886-3148.

520 WINDOW COVERINGS

Moshade. Blinds, Verticals, Venetians, Drapery tracks. Call 905-886-2352.

Shop at home. Verticals, venetians, rolling shades, pleated blinds, reupholstering, invisible repairs, cushion rubber change, stainguarding. Work guaranteed, Free est. Call anytime 224-2211, 223-1655.

BE WISE! ADVERTISE!
CALL LISA AT (416) 391-1836
FOR ADVERTISING RATES
CJN Classifieds Really Work!



Shana Tova

SERVICE DIRECTORY

Call 391-1836
for information on classified ad rates

345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/SALE
357 AUTOMOTIVE
360 CABINETS
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING
377 CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
385 COMPUTER
386 DANCING
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
395 ELECTRICAL
396 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
405 FURNITURE
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS
411 HEALTH THERAPIES
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LANDSCAPING
432 LAWN CARE
433 LEASING
434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
451 PROMOTIONS
452 PARTY SERVICES
455 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
479 SENIORS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIGNS
483 SKIING
485 SNOW REMOVAL
490 TABLE COVERING
493 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING/LESSONS
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
517 WATER TREATMENTS
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
548 WORD PROCESSING
550 WORKSHOPS

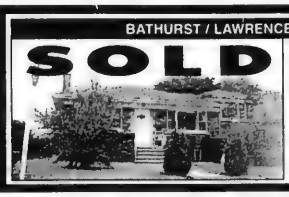
REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

"WE OPEN DOORS FOR YOU"

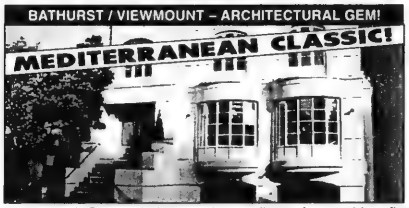
DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED 787-1712

BATHURST / LAWRENCE



Immaculate, spacious 3 + 1 bdrm. bung., 50 ft. lot, sep. [SOLD] in-law suite, only $369,000. ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / VIEWMOUNT – ARCHITECTURAL GEM!



New listing! Custom built, stunning quality craftsmanship + finishes. 4200 sq. ft. (approx.) + fin. bsmt. 9 1/2 ft. ceilings on main floor, Neff designer kitchen. Live your dreams NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — NEW LISTING!

Pride of ownership! 3 + 1 bdrm., sep. entry to in-law suite, 55 x 132 ft. lot, WON'T LAST at only $269,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

CLANTON PARK — REDUCED

Charming 3 bdrm. on 50 x 150 ft. lot, close to shuls, park, highly desirable location, family values. Great buy at only $289,000! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

GLEN PARK — SPACIOUS EXECUTIVE HOME

4 + 2 bedrooms, modern family-style kitchen, family room, separate entry to in-law suite, double garage (above grade), asking $519,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

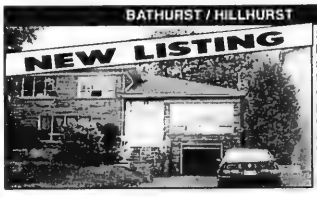
BATHURST / SHEPPARD — REDUCED

3+1 bdrm. bung., huge 63' lot, renovated eat-in kitchen, sep. entry to in-law suite, only $229,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / HILLMOUNT – REDUCED $70,000

3,700 sq. ft. (approx.) + finished basement. Bright open concept, 5 bedrooms, 4 baths, hardwood floors, Jacuzzi, sauna, hot tub, only $429,000! ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / HILLHURST



Spacious 5 bedroom side-split, 59 x 128 ft. lot, prestigious location, priced to sell at only $439,000. ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

Forest Hill

Real Estate Inc. Realtor

(416) 488-2875 (416) 226-1987

CENTRAL

LOWER VILLAGE BEAUTY
Wonderful family home on quiet street. D. Wagman* 488-2875

BRAND NEW DREAM HOME $749,000
Avenue Road & Lawrence. Brenda Westbrook* 226-1987

TIMBERLANE DR. - RARE OPPORTUNITY $699,000
On breathtaking 80'x310' ravine lot. Patti Pollock* 226-1987

PRESTIGIOUS CEDARVALE $569,000
Totally reno'd, 4 bdrm. w/m[SOLD]ensuite. D. Wagman* 488-2875

BATHURST/SHEPPARD - REDUCED TO $439,000
New & beautifully custom built on 251' lot. P. Pollock* 226-1987

NORTH

YONGE/STEELES CUSTOM BUILT
Excellent location, gorgeous lower + + Olga Guvenal* 226-1987

CONDOMINIUM

PENTHOUSE WITH VIEW! "ANNEX"
$249,000 2 bdrm., 2 bath, prkg. I. Hemmerich* 226-1987

BUSINESS

UNISEX HAIR SALON
Est. bus., good lease, busy mall. Olga Guvenal* 226-1987

Associate Broker *Sales Representative

DUNDAS EXECUTIVE HOME!

Distinctive home for the discriminating buyer. 4+2 bdrms., 6.5 baths. Gourmet kitchen, enclosed outdoor pool. Approx. 40 mins. to Pearson Airport. $669,000.

JUDY FOSTER, SALES REPRESENTATIVE
JUDY MARSALES REAL ESTATE LTD.
(905) 522-3300

HK

HARVEY KALLES

REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR

Celebrating our 40th Year!

FOR LEASE - FURNISHED
Charming, 2 bdrm. on park. Fin. basement, excellent location. 1 year [LEASED] + + Paula Bernstein

CALL SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
529 Melrose! $438,900! Reno'd 4+1 bd., 4 bath, mn. fam. & lib. 109 York Downs! $338K! Fab. 3+1 br. mn. fam. & sep. nan!

CALL CHAIM FOR AVENUE/LAWRENCE
65 Marmion - 2900 sq. ft. custom choose finishes, $649K. Other homes not listed, under construction. Chaim Talpalar

FOREST HILL/HEATH!
Estate Sale - Reduced $100,000! Now $895,000. Unique lower village home. 40'x126' lot. 3+1 bdrm., mn. den, 4 baths, lovely garden. Syma Solomon

PRESTIGIOUS BAYVIEW RIDGE
Magnificent 14,000 sq. ft. home on 2 acre ravine lot. 9 bdrms, 12 baths, suitable for lge. fam. C. Talpalar* & J. Burstein

* Sales Representative  Associate Broker

A percentage of all our sales will be donated to "Turning Point Charity" supporting Homeless Youth.

(416) 441-2888 www.harveykalles.com

THINKING OF SELLING YOUR HOME? FOR PROVEN RESULTS CALL

Larry Wronzberg

Sales Representative

BUY & SELL WITH RESULTS

ALAN NEWTON REAL ESTATE LTD. REALTOR

(905) 764-7200

FOREST HILL MANSION

Magnificent French Chateau Style 5 bedroom home with 12' ceilings, 7 car underground garage, marble staircase, finished basement, professionally decorated, magnificent inground pool. Exquisite finishings throughout.

SEIDMAN

REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR

633-7373

BATHURST VILLAGE
4 bdrm. bung., mod. kit., good size liv. & din., fin. w/out bsmnt., dble drive gar.

• • •

WILMINGTON FINCH
Cust. blt. 4 bdrm. splt lvl., 3 bath, huge liv. & din., fam. rm., w/out from kit. to deck, fin. lower lvl., rav. lot, quiet cresc., great buy & loc.

• • •

BLUE FOREST AREA
5 bdrm. + den, L-shaped liv. & din., 4 bath, kit. w/blt-in appls., fin bsmnt., dbl. drive gar.

• • •

SHEPPARD WILMINGTON
Store + apt., well-maint. bldg. in strip plaza location. A-1 buy!

• • •

LAWRENCE ALLEN ROAD
Triplex, fully rented, balcs., bath ensuite, garages + pkg. Don't miss!

• • •

A. & D. SEIDMAN 633-7373

BATHURST-CENTRE
Ask $219,900 - 3 bedroom, 3 baths, close to Promenade Mall, synagogue, schools.
BATHURST-TORRESDALE
Just listed! End unit condo over 1600 sq. ft., family rm., gorgeous, upgraded, must be sold.

SALLY ROSEN
(905) 884-4425
CENTURY 21 SMITH LTD.

10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE

Bath./Lawr,55',spac lrg 3 bdrm bung,bright,upgrades,new deck & kit,fin bsmt. Private. 782-1984

15 HOUSES FOR RENT

3 bdrm. bung., Laurelcrest Ave., mint cond., $1100./mo. + 2/3 util., n/smkr, days: phone or fax: 536-4422 or 635-6427,evgs

24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY

York Mills/Bayview,No agents Private. 416-948-5555.

30 CONDOMIONIUM FOR SALE

BATHURST-NEPTUNE CONDO ONLY $126,500
Immaculate 2 bedroom, 2 baths, with modern eat-in kitchen.
ELLIE BURNS - (416) 487-4311
Royal LePage Real Est. Serv Ltd.

60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION

2 bdrm to share, Bath./Egl., pref. young prof/grad student, kosher. Jonathan, 783-5928.

75 APARTMENT FOR RENT

BATHURST/SHEPPARD
Very lg 1, 2, 3 Bdrms, ample closets, some 1½ baths & 2 balc; roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, ind. pkg., 6 apts per flr. From $850.
960-3238 - Bus.
631-9377or 631-0388 - Super

Bath./Egl, furn. 2 bdrm apt for 5 mos, avail Nov.-April. 787-6035

80 SHORT TERM RENTAL

Clark/Hilda, 2 bdrm, 2 bth, 2 pkg, rec. centre, Dec. 1-Mar. 31 (flexible). 905-889-4382.

82 ROOM FOR RENT

Bath./Steeles, for a male student, kitchen privileges, share bthrm. Call 416-661-3838.

Lge. room avail. in priv. house (downtown Windsor), priv. driveway avail, we need a Jewish, mature, resp. person, live-in, 416-481-3949 (Toronto ph#).

HOUSES FOR SALE

125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE

FLORIDA PROPERTIES!!
Looking to Buy or Sell in Florida??
HOMES • CONDOS • COMMERCIAL
• RELOCATION SPECIALISTS •
Call your "CANADIAN CONNECTION"
MARSHALL POLLOCK, Realtor
Prudential Wiles Realty, Inc.
Toll Free 1-888-907-2837 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. - 7 Days
(referral fees paid Canadian Realtors)

Luxury 2 stry. det. home, fully furn. in exclusive country club community in Boca Raton, exc. facil. Discount on golf equity,3 bdrms,3 bths,2 car gar, pool, jacuzzi,$359K U.S. 416-927-1773

Pompano Beach, Palm Aire-Oaks Circle, 2 bdrm, 2 bth, furn, laundry ensuite, enclosed Florida room, adj. to pool. 223-9424.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

3 bdrm, 2 full bth condo in Coconut Creek, newly decorated, will sleep 8, rent for winter season. 410-484-0835, after 6pm.

Catania @ Quadomain, Hollywood, lux. 2 bdrm, 2 bth condo, ocean & inter-coastal view, fully furn & newly re-decor., $2300./mo. US, 3 mo. min., rent decrease for add. mos., avail. Jan.'98. 416-445-2817.

Condo. effic. equip, on ocean, N. Miami Beach nr. Radisson, shopping, March &/or April. $1400/mo U.S. 416-730-8772

Fountains of Palm Beach, lux. villa,over 2000',3 bdrms, 3 bths, gar, secur,scrnd porch, n/smkr, avail. Jan., 3-4 mos. 423-8566.

Ft. Laud., beautif. furn, 1 bdrm, friendly people, 24 hr. secur, pool,club house, cable, nr. synag., $790. US. Call 626-9611.

Ft. Myers, 2 bdrm, 2 bth condo, across from beach. 283-6555.

Highland Lakes area, beautif. furn. 1 bdrm. apt, att. to home, on a lake, gated comm., grnd flr. apt, pool, priv. entr., avail. Nov.-Mar. Robin, 305-935-6252

Hollywood, Fla., self-contained studio apt. in house,pkg., close to beach. $225./wk. US or $800./mo. US. 416-663-2396.

Surfside "The Waves", across from shul, 2 bdrms, 2 1/2 bths, kosher kit., oceanfront, from Jan. 8, min. 3 mos., $3,000/mo. US. 514-484-1890.

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

ANBER MOVERS
(LOCAL MOVING)
SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO ↔ VANCOUVER
NEW YORK ↔ FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE

Palm Aire - Cypress Bend
Buying, Selling or Renting.
Call us for all your Real Estate needs.
Wieder Realty Inc.
(954) 978-8300

Palm Beach condo., oceanfront, 2 bdrms., 2 baths, furn., immed. occup. 416-504-4267.

140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Apt. wanted, 3 1/2 mos., 3 bdrms or 2 bdrm conv., Hallandale or Palm Aire area. 416-222-5885.

175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Moving to Israel from Toronto. Looking for a furn 2-3 bdrm apt between Jaffa to just north of Herziliya, pref. with a seaside view, for a 6 mo. - 1 yr. period. Only 1 tenant.Please call David, 416-785-0108. P.S. Willing to share upon your visits to Israel.

190 VACATION PROPERTIES

LAKE SIMCOE WATERFRONT - 45 min. N. of Toronto, 15 min. S. of Barrie. 2800 s.f. totally modernized 2 storey, 2 f/p's, 5 walk-outs, inground pool, gazebo, boathouse, garage, 60' deck, lot 125'x300', lush landscaping. Reduced for immediate possession.
Pattie Harper, Sales Rep.
Prudential Andrews Realty Group
416 - 213-7224 / 800 - 254-3695

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

TELESALES REP. (P/T)
Telesales bus. req. assertive, well-spoken prof. with proven telesales and/or business-to-business sales exper. & PC familiarity (Windows '95, Word, ACT!). Generate qualif. sales leads for our clients in an informal but demanding work environ. No selling involved.
Tel: 416-635-6325

245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED

Looking for a mensch to manage & grow your business? With 9 yrs. mgmt. exper., strong skills & education, I can help! FT/PT. Call Marc,905-882-5533

247 DAY CARE

Day Care in safe, warm, home, exper. ECE teacher + assistant, F/T, kosher nutritional meals, Bath/Centre area.905-771-0500

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

Cleaning with pride at afford. prices.Res./Comm. FREE Est. Insured, Bonded. 905-507-9654

Employers! Get the right person you desire at no cost. Prof. screened. Supreme Nannies Domestic Service, 657-1915.

Frustrated by trying to find a suitable nanny? Let us help you. We have dependable, caring nannies who are thoroughly qualified, personaly interviewed & pre-screened. All refs. are checked. Some are CPR trained. Low finders fee.
Wee Care Placement Agency
416-789-3070

Harvscott Domestic Services
"Five stars above the rest"
Available: prof. cleaning ladies, nannies, housekeepers,party helpers. Exper. with refs. & legal. 905-771-7882.

HCA seeks job to look after elderly, Mon.-Fri., live-in, good refs. 416-746-5942.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

MARLA'S DOMESTICS
RECEIVE THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
Live-in/out nannies, care for the elderly, cleaning. Bonded, references.
Call MARLA
226-4325

APPLE DOMESTICS NEED A NANNY?
• No Fee to Employer
• Professionally screened, Qualified, Live-in Nannies available for sponsorship.
• Choose from Nurses, Midwives, Teachers
• We prepare all documents for you.
• We have a 100% Approval rate!
(416) 730-0127

DOMESTIC SEARCH
Our Company is dedicated to fulfilling the domestic needs of your family. Tired of searching for the right nanny, housekeeper, elderly caregiver? We pre-screen, interview & verify references personally. Why not let the search end here?
CALL (416) 630-3773

GOLDEN CARE LTD.
People you trust taking care of people you love.
We have live-in and live-out caregivers. We specialize in helping seniors, and people afflicted with Stroke, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's.
LOW RATES WITH THE BEST PERSONAL SERVICE
Honey Hecker
(416) 665-4229

Cleaning lady available, very honest, experienced with refs. Call Janet, 416-638-8313.

Exper. mature lady seeks house cleaning work, refs. Call after 8 pm, 416-538-2547.

High quality house cleaning. Call Dora, 736-1179.

Hskpng, 3 days/wk, or take care of elderly,exper. 245-0774.

Israeli lady, 34, for baby/child/Sr. care + light hskpng, child care diploma, religious bckgrnd. 416-633-5442, Shelly.

Nannies, housekeepers, companions for elderly, cleaning ladies, live-in or out. Sponsorship from overseas. No fee for the Sponsor. Excellent Placement Agency, 222-4912.

Nannies, live-in/out, full/part-time, in-home elderly care, FT, PT, RN's, nurses aides, cleaning. Bonded, refs.416-630-0674 or 416-224-9907. #1 Domestic.

255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED

Senior Jewish couple req. help cooking & driving (car provided), 3 hrs. day, refs. req'd. Call Bertha, 416-481-3220.

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

Exper.certif. HCA, Jewish, caring, reas., avail. anytime,anywhere for home care/priv. duty. Refs. Katharine, 440-5530, pgr.

HCA seeks work, in-home/inst., live-out,exc. refs. 416-650-6097

RN's, RPN's seek jobs in priv. homes, to offer quality nursing care, foot care & palliative care. Affordable Rates. Call 391-0582

260 BUSINESS PERSONALS

!JEWISH SINGLES--please call 416-633-2343. Connect Now.

BRINGING PEOPLE TOGETHER is the top-rated introduction service.Call Ruth,905-731-5204

Jewish Singles Registry website, www.total.net/~jsreg or call 416-483-4151.

The Jewish Dating Network, Money-Back Guarantee, 1-800-263-6831,Fax: 1-800-293-6297. www.jewishdate.com

1 match can light a fire! At least 1engagement/mo.Bringing People Together 905-731-5204

264 SOCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

HIRSH-WAX. Donna & David & Marilyn & Lenny are thrilled to announce the engagement of their children, Lisa & Matthew. Proud grandparents are Ruth Stanleigh, Phyllis and Lou Blidner, and Kate Wax.

265 PEOPLE SEARCH

Mailech Welcman is looking for Emanuel Welcman. Please call 905-882-1074, ask for Ted.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED

 CJN Boxes for Personal Companions Wanted ads are valid for 30 (thirty) days only (from 1st publication date). Replies must be received within this time frame in order to be forwarded to the correct CJN Box #.

Easy going male, 40's, with many interests, seeks caring lady for serious relationship. All replies answeredCJN Box 6978

I am 44, widowed & a prof. female with 2 teenage children & a dog.I enjoy music, theatre, fiction, travel & the outdoors. You are a warm, fun-loving, like-minded prof. male, in your late 40's, with a strong sense of family values & traditions. If this description reminds you of yourself,lets do lunch.CJN Box 6979

I am a pretty, caring, Jewish woman, considered appealing to the heart & eye, with elegance, warmth, authenticity, depth & "chein". I am educated, with interests including the cultural arts (plays, concerts, art, film) the outdoors (tennis, walking), Jewish culture/community life...I enjoy being with people I care about & quiet moments too. If you are a thoughtful, good-natured, personable Jewish man, of substance/character, with good values, a good mind & an appreciation of life, 49 to about 59, & presentable, who, like me, is ready to build a caring, fulfilling relationship with someone special...if sharing interests, each other's company, quiet moments both light & serious - mutual appreciation, perhaps eventual commitment & enjoying life together appeal to you, too, I'd love to hear from you. Let's explore in the New Year. CJN Box 6977 (confidentiality respected). Shana Tova.

Prof. male, 50's, with many interests, including sports, theatre, travel & just socializing, would like to meet similar female. CJN Box 6976.

A wish to reciprocate qualities of respect, intelligence & humour, is put forth to a mensch by a 34 yr old girl who is warm & caring, fun & fit, family & goal oriented.Our best is yet to come 416-208-0315(voice mail).

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED

Semi-ret. exec, male, 44, winters in Fla., seeks attr. lady companion who enjoys swimming, tennis, dining & the finer things in life. CJN Box 6980.

Replying to a Companion ad with a CJN Box Number?
Address your mail to:
Box #_____
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ontario
M3B 3K4

330 OBITUARIES

BURKE, Sol - on Sept. 21, 1997, late of 115 Antibes Dr.
KANTOR, Irving - on Sept. 22, 1997, late of 6250 Bathurst St.
LUBANSKAYA, Nesya - on Sept. 22, 1997.
NADEL, Fanny - on Sept. 23, 1997, late of 351 Christie St.
ROSENZWEIG, Morris - on Sept. 23, 1997, late of 137 Bannockburn Ave.
BROWN, David - on Sept. 24, 1997, late of 35 Brockington Cres.
KRAMER, Gilda - on Sept.25, 1997.
GREEN, Irving - on Sept. 26, 1997, late of 3000 Bathurst St.
RICHMAN, Harry - on Sept. 26, 1997, late of 1750 Russell Rd.
LITTNER, Celina - on Sept. 27, 1997.
ROSENBERG, Leonard - on Sept. 27, 1997.
SPEARS, Mary - on Sept. 29, 1997, late of 7420 Bathurst St.

Steeles Memorial Chapel

300 ARTICLES FOR SALE

Colour prints from Marc Chagall "Open Window", Henry Matisse, M. Picasso.416-661-3838

330 OBITUARIES

FINK, Menahem - on Sept. 21, 1997.
FLEISHMAN, Samuel - on Sept. 29, 1997.

The Simple Alternative

BERKE, William - on Sept. 20, 1997, late of 4005 Bayview Ave., #304.
PANCER, Jason - on Sept. 20, 1997, late of 190 Little Ave.
SIMON, Abraham - on Sept. 20, 1997, late of 5 Fisherville Rd., #307.
GERTSBAIN, Regina - on Sept. 21, 1997, late of 37 Coldwater Crt.
LEWIN, Claire - on Sept. 21, 1997, late of 133 Braemar Ave.
COHEN, Rose - on Sept. 22, 1997, late of 6151 Bathurst St., #1106.
GELFUND, Solly - on Sept. 22, 1997, late of 3560 Bathurst St.
MACKLIN, Anne - on Sept. 22, 1997, late of 122 Forest Heights Blvd.
MENDELOW (Gogarty), Kala - on Sept. 22, 1997, late of 14 Swansdown Dr.
TITLE, Molly - on Sept. 22, 1997, late of 645 Castlefield Ave.
STANESCU, Irina - on Sept. 23, 1997, late of 40 Falstaff Ave. W., #111.
HERMAN, Lilly - on Sept. 24, 1997, late of 90 Fisherville Rd., #1201.
KIMEL, Yetta - on Sept. 24, 1997, late of 3000 Bathurst St., #1412.
TAYLOR, Barbara - on Sept. 24, 1997, late of 7927 Lawrence St.
TREIBICZ, Regina - on Sept. 25, 1997, late of 2 Karl Crt.

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

335 UNVEILINGS

יזכור

We pray to Hashem
to remember the souls of our Fathers, Mothers
Brothers, Sisters
Sons and Daughters
who have passed away:

"בגן עדן תהא מנחתם..."

"May their place of rest be in paradise"
(Yizkor Prayers)

Yad Vashem Monuments
(416) 782-8995
Serving Your Community For Over 18 Years

CJN Classifieds Really Work!
CALL LISA AT
(416) 391-1836

335 UNVEILINGS

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late

ABE BOWMAN ז"ל

will take place

Monday, Oct. 13th, 11:00 a.m.

Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Linitzer Section

Relatives and friends are invited to attend

335 UNVEILING

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late

BEN (Benjamin Simon) APPLEBAUM ז"ל

will take place

Sunday, Oct. 12th, 11:30 a.m.

Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Community Section

Relatives and friends are invited to attend

338 SHIVA CATERING

KING SOLOMON'S CATERING
COR
630-0303
SHIVA MEALS

TO PLACE AN UNVEILING NOTICE PLEASE CALL AT LEAST 14 DAYS PRIOR TO THE DATE OF THE UNVEILING

338 SHIVA CATERING

milk'n honey
THE DAIRY RESTAURANT
SAME DAY SERVICE
*Tasteful Presentation
*Hot/Cold Platters and Full Course Meals
• DELIVERY AVAILABLE
789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.
COR

CLASSIFIED INDEX

Call 391-1836
for information on classified ad rates

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
18 FURNISHED HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
38 FURNISHED CONDOS FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
78 FURNISHED APARTMENTS FOR RENT
80 SHORT-TERM RENTAL
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED
85 APARTMENT WANTED
90 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE
98 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR RENT
98 FURNISHED DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR RENT
100 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE/RENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
112 FURNISHED COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
118 FURNISHED COTTAGE FOR SALE/RENT
120 COTTAGE WANTED
122 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
123 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
138 FURNISHED FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
143 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMMODATION
147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
155 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
162 FURNISHED ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
168 FURNISHED ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
182 FURNISHED OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
188 FURNISHED OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTIES
192 FURNISHED VACATION PROPERTIES
195 PROPERTIES WANTED
196 VACATION PROPERTIES-SWAP/EXCHANGE
198 SPACE FOR LEASE
200 OFFICE SPACE
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
205 INDUSTRIAL/COMMERCIAL SPACE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE/LEASE
215 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
217 RETAIL OPPORTUNITIES
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 FINANCIAL OPPORTUNITIES
238 PROGRESSIVE POSITIONS
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
248 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE
248 CAMPS
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
264 SOCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
279 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
285 SOCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
310 ARTICLES/SWAP/EXCHANGE
312 BRIDAL
313 BOATS
315 CARS FOR SALE
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE/YARD SALE
330 OBITUARIES
331 IN MEMORIAM
332 MONUMENTS
335 UNVEILINGS
338 SHIVA CATERING

The 21st Annual Jewish Book Fair

November 8 - 16, 1997

OPENING NIGHT - Saturday, November 8, 8:00 p.m.

David Grossman, author of The Yellow Wind, and the The ZigZag Kid speaks on IMAGINING PEACE. Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Peace Now. $7

Sunday, November 9

10:30 am & 1:30 pm Renelle Kuntz, Jewish Book Fair's Official Puppeteer, presents THE LAND OF MILK AND HONEY. In Honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary. Ages 3-8. $1

11:00 am Nancy-Gay Rotstein, will read from her novel Shattering Glass and discuss WOMEN, CAREER AND FAMILY. Free

12 noon Meet the Authors-Morris Macarz, author of Staying Ahead and Harry Pollock, author of Max.

1:30 pm The Shlomo Steinhardt and Label Basman Memorial Lecture featuring Zachary Baker, Head Librarian, YIVO Institute for Jewish Research, speaking in Yiddish and English on "VILNA REVISITED: A REPORT ON THE YIVO INSTITUTE'S EFFORTS TO RECOVER ITS PRE-WORLD WAR II ARCHIVES." Slide presentation. Sponsored by Cttee, for Yiddish, UJA/ Federation. Supported by Friends of Yiddish. $3

3:30 pm Prose and Poetry at the Cafe Kasrilevke by contributors to Parchment 1997-98, Canada's national journal of creative Jewish writing, featuring Ken Sherman, Seymour Mayne, Murray Pomerance, Ruth Panofsky and Nathalie Stephens. $3

5:00 pm Aurel Braun and Stephen Scheinberg, editors of The Extreme Right speak on FREEDOM AND SECURITY AT RISK. Sponsored by Oraynu-Community for Secular Humanist Judaism. $3

7:00 pm Launch of a travelling exhibit and book, A Seed in the Pocket of Their Blood, by poet and curator, Rafi Aaron. The exhibit links poetry and photography in one artistic unit. Free

8:00 pm Helen Epstein, author of Children of the Holocaust and the bestselling Where She Came From-A Daughter's Search for Her Mother's History speaks on BRINGING THE PAST TO LIFE: THREE GENERATIONS OF REMARKABLE WOMEN. Sponsored by Hadassah-WIZO Organization of Toronto. $7

Monday, November 10

10:30 am Program for Children. Selection of videos and storytelling suitable for ages 6-9. Free

10:30 am Reva Nelson, author of Risk It! and Bounce Back! speaks on CREATING RESILIENCE FROM ADVERSITY. Free

1:30 pm Dr Vera Rabie-Azoory, author of They Love You, They Love Me Not speaks on THE TRUTH ABOUT THE FAMILY FAVOURITE AND SIBLING RIVALRY. $3

8:00 pm Professor Elaine Newton reads from books by women survivors including Ruth's Journey by Ruth Glasberg Gold; And Peace Never Came by Elisabeth M. Raab; To Auschwitz and Back: My Personal Journey by Ruth Bindefeld Neray; Theresienstadt- The Town the Nazis Gave to the Jews by Vera Schiff and A Partisan's Memoir: Woman of the Holocaust by Faye Schulman. Followed by question period with the authors. Sponsored by Na'amat Canada-Toronto. $5

Tuesday, November 11

11:00 am IN THE MONTH OF KISLEV by Nina Jaffe. Performed by Dr. Abraham Shore Academy-Shearim Hebrew Day School . Discussion follows. For K-Grade 8. $1

1:30 pm Yehuda Fine, author of Times Square Rabbi -Finding the Hope in Lost Kids' Lives speaks on HELPING YOUNG PEOPLE EMERGE FROM HELL AND PREVENTING THEIR REENTRY INTO IT. Sponsored by National Council of Jewish Women in Canada. $3

8:00 pm Rosalie Sharp, co-editor of Growing Up Jewish-Canadians Tell Their Own Stories introduces contributing writers Rosalie Abella, Morley Torgov, Ben Kayfetz, Julia Koschitzky, Fred Weinberg, Beatrice Fischer, Martin Goldfarb, Shirley Granovsky. Coffee. Sponsored by ORT Canada. $5

Wednesday, November 12

10:30 am School Program with Carol Matas, author of The Garden. In Honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary. Grades 5-8. Sponsored by Canadian Zionist Federation. $1

1:30 pm School Program with Carol Matas, author of The Garden. In Honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary. Grades 5-8 Sponsored by Canada-Israel Committee. $1.

6:30-7:30 pm Reception by Stoddart Publishing to Launch Dawn of the Promised Land- The Birth of Israel by Ben Wicks. Open to the public- please join us.

8:00 pm Ben Wicks, author of Dawn of the Promised Land speaks on THE BIRTH OF ISRAEL. Sponsored by B'nai Brith Canada. $5

Thursday, November 13

10:30 am & 1:30 pm School program featuring Jodi Miller on Brainteasers from Jewish Folklore by Rosalind Charney Kaye. Grades 2-5.$1

10:30 am Eliakim Katz, author of Old Age Comes at a Bad Times speaks on WIT AND WISDOM FOR THE YOUNG AT HEART. Sponsored by Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living. Free

1:00 pm Mark Nagler Ph.D., Yes You Can! speaks on A GUIDE FOR PARENTS OF CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES. Free

1:30 pm Broadway's Jewish Roots- A MUSICAL EXCURSION by Faye Kellerstein. Accompanied by Jordan Klapman. Sponsored by Ont. Region, The United Synagogue of Conservative Judaism and Canadian Seaway Branch, Women's League for Conservative Judaism. $3

8:00 pm Isabel Vincent, author of Hitler's Silent Partners speaks on SWISS BANKS, NAZI GOLD AND THE PURSUIT OF JUSTICE. Sponsored by Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Centre. $5

Friday, November 14

10:30 am Alvin Abram author of The Light After the Dark speaks on TRUE STORIES OF HOLOCAUST SURVIVORS Featuring Eugene Libman. Sponsored by Canadian Holocaust Remembrance Association. Free

Saturday, Nov. 15

8:00 pm THE MAN WHO CAPTURED EICHMANN. Painter, Poet, Soldier, Spy, Peter Z. Malkin, speaks on his book Eichmann in My Hands. With excerpts from Emmy nominated movie The Man Who Captured Eichmann, starring Robert Duvall. Sponsored by Canadian Society for Yad Vashem. $7

Sunday, November 16

10:30 am & 1:30 pm Renelle Kuntz, Jewish Book Fair's Official Puppeteer, presents THE LAND OF MILK AND HONEY. In Honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary. Ages 3-8. $1

11:00 am Panel Discussion by contributors to Celebrating the Lives of Jewish Women-Patterns in a Feminist Sampler. Featuring Rachel Aber Schlesinger (From Generation to Generation); Sarah Taleb-Carlen (Wandering Jews: Lives Fractured by Geography) and Nora Gold (Pain and Healing, Sorrow and Hope). Free

12 noon Brown bag lunch with Ken Vegotsky, author of The Ultimate Power-222 Ways to Make Love with Life speaks on THE MAGICAL POWER OF THE MIND. Interactive Presentation. Free

1:30 pm Concert Sponsored by du Maurier Arts and the Koffler Centre of the Arts. $3

3:30 pm Poetry Readings by poet Shula Robin and Gladys Aaron with musical interlude by Eric Stein. Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Ezrath Nashim-Herzog Hospital and Emunah Women of Toronto $3

4:00 pm Alan Davies and Marilyn F. Nefsky, co-authors of How Silent Were the Churches? speak on CANADIAN PROTESTANTISM AND THE JEWISH PLIGHT DURING THE NAZI ERA. Sponsored by Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and Christian-Jewish Dialogue of Toronto. $3

7:45 pm Phyllis Weinberg, author of Yossi, the Boy who Wouldn't Speak Loshon Hora, speaks on HAVE YOU HEARD THE LATEST GOSSIP? Sponsored by Aish HaTorah. $3

Bathurst Jewish Centre

Jewish Book Fair - Leah Posluns Theatre
4588 Bathurst St., North York, Ontario. M2R 1W6
For futher information, brochures or tickets,
call: 416-636-1880 xt 368

JEWISH FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO UJA

R.R.S.P. R.R.I.F. ANNUITY
BEST AVAILABLE RATES
For Personalized
Planning Strategies
Call (416) 787-4517
SB SHERR, BERGSTEIN & CRACKOWER

Sports

R.R.S.P. R.R.I.F. ANNUITY
BEST AVAILABLE RATES
For Personalized
Planning Strategies
Call (416) 787-4517
SB SHERR, BERGSTEIN & CRACKOWER

Jewish players, coaches prepare for '97 NFL season

By HARLAN C. ABBEY
Special to The CJN

BUFFALO — There will be nearly a minyan of Jewish players and coaches on the field or along the sidelines during the 1997 NFL season.

The best-known among them is Marv Levy, head coach of the Buffalo Bills for the last 12 years and an NFL head or assistant coach for a total of 21 years. Prior to that, he served as head coach of the CFL's Montreal Alouettes.

Levy's claim to fame is being the only coach to bring a team to the Super Bowl in four successive seasons...never mind that they lost all four times.

Holder of an MA in history from Harvard, Levy has twice been named Coach Of The Year and stands 11th among the NFL's all-time winningest coaches with an overall record of 137-102 in the regular season and 11-8 in the post-season.

At 72, he is the oldest coach in the NFL.

* * *

The best-known — and only starter — among the NFL's six Jewish players is guard/tackle Harris Barton, who has started in 134 of 138 games he has played for the San Francisco 49ers. He was drafted out of the University of North Carolina, where he was an All American in 1986.

Josh Miller, punter for the Baltimore Stallions.

Last season, Barton, who has made at least two trips to Israel, started and played in 13 of his team's 16 games although he was slowed by a groin injury. The native of the Atlanta area is also known for the series of commercials he made for the American Cancer Society, while his father battled the disease — unsuccessfully.

In the latter's memory, he made the largest cash donation by any former University of North Carolina alumnus, $100,000 for the Paul C. Barton Conference Room in the School of Social Work.

Still single, Barton has conducted the Peninsula Symphony among his many fundraising activities.

* * *

Joe Brodsky was ready to retire after a 13-year career coaching high school and 11 years as backfield coach at the University of Miami, when he was asked by Jimmy Johnson to come with him to the Dallas Cowboys.

There he has worked with Emmit Smith, a future Hall of Fame member and one of the few Cowboys who has never had any off-field problems. Last year, Brodsky developed Sherman Williams, who gave Smith some relief by picking up 269 yards, the most by a second running back at Dallas since Smith arrived.

* * *

Adam Schreiber has lasted for 14 NFL seasons despite being a starter for only two, in 1993 as a centre for the Minnesota Vikings and at left guard for the Philadelphia Eagles in 1987.

Primarily a long-snapper now, he also has played with the Seattle Seahawks, New Orleans Saints, New York Jets and New York Giants.

Schreiber, 6-foot-5 and 298 pounds, was a ninth round pick out of the University of Texas. Active in many charities, he has the NFL shield on one of his teeth.

* * *

Ariel Solomon, 6-foot-6 and 295 pounds, is in his seventh season as a special teams member and back-up offensive lineman.

He was drafted in the 10th round from the University of Colorado by Pittsburgh and played in the 1996 Super Bowl.

He moved to the Minnesota Vikings last season before signing with Detroit in the spring.

Solomon has been active with several community organizations, including B'nai Brith.

Born in Brooklyn, he moved to Colorado with his parents, who operate an exotic pet business. In kindergarten, Solomon attended a one-room schoolhouse in Gold Hill, 12 miles from Boulder, CO.

He koshered his home in Pittsburgh when Orthodox Israeli cousins came for a visit. One, Ben-Tzion Solomon, is a member of the Diaspora Yeshiva Band.

* * *

Josh Miller is in his second year as the punter for the Steelers, coming by way of the Canadian Football League, where he was an all-star with the Baltimore Stallions, averaging 45.3 yards per kick.

A native of Rockway, NY, he played at the University of Arizona, where he majored in communications.

Miller was named ABC-TV Player Of The Game — extremely rare for a punter —when he averaged 49 yards for eight punts and three went out-of-bounds on the one-yard line against top-rated Washington.

During his CFL years, he interviewed players for ESPN2. He was a key member of Baltimore Grey Cup-winning team.

He may kick-off for the Steelers as well as punt this season.

* * *

Another second year player is Indianapolis Colt Scott Slutzker, a New Jersey native who starred at the University of Iowa and was drafted in the third round in 1996. The 6-foot-4, 250-pounder saw action on special teams and in blocking situations, ranking tied for fourth on special teams tackles with 12.

At Iowa, he won Player Of The Game honors against Michigan with six catches, one for a touchdown.

Bet you never thought you could have the Stanley Cup at your Barmitzvah.

Well, at the Hockey Hall of Fame you can!

The Hockey Hall of Fame is a spectacular venue for any function, but particularly for a batmitzvah/barmitzvah. Elegantly catered by Al Salomon, Stephen Field and the team at Marigolds & Onions, your event is sure to be truly unforgettable. For a FREE guided tour and more information call Janice Barrina of the Hockey Hall of Fame at (416) 360-7735 or Al Salomon of Marigolds & Onions at (416) 256-4882 today!

The Stanley Cup, circa 1893.

2700 Dufferin St.
Unit 20, Toronto
Fax: (416) 256-7733

MARIGOLDS AND ONIONS LTD CATERING

30 Yonge St.
BCE Place, Toronto
www.hhof.com

Marigolds & Onions and the Hockey Hall of Fame.
The right team for your special time.

LAST WEEK'S CROSSWORD ANSWERS

M	I	T	L	A		S	M	A	S	H		W	A	S
A	S	H	E	R		H	O	S	E	A		I	B	S
S	H	E	A	R		I	B	H	A	R		L	E	E
		F	R	O	C	K			S	A	H	L
D	N	A		W	A	S	T	E		N	O	I	S	E
A	R	M	S		L	A	U	G	H		G	A	T	E
S	P	I	E	S			B	O	A	R		M	A	R
		L	E	A	D	S		S	H	O	E	S
A	M	Y		C	O	H	N			B	A	T	H	E
L	A	M	B		T	O	O	T	H		R	E	E	D
E	N	O	C	H		T	R	I	B	E		I	R	S
		S	E	E	M			G	O	L	A	N
I	R	K		L	O	R	N	E		A	R	I	S	E
S	Y	A		L	A	B	O	R		T	I	L	T	H	E
M	E	T		O	B	I	T	S		H	A	Z	E	L

The Inside Back

TOM'S PLACE

SINCE 1958

THANK YOU

TO THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR YOUR CONTINUED PATRONAGE

Our best wishes for a Prosperous, Happy and Healthy New Year

Tom Mihalik & Staff

MEN'S & WOMEN'S DESIGNER FASHIONS AT DISCOUNT PRICES

TOM'S PLACE
190 BALDWIN STREET,
Kensington Market
(416) 596-0297

HOURS: MON. TO WED. 10-6 ▪ THURS.-FRI. 10-7
SAT. 10-6 ▪ CLOSED SUNDAY

THIS RECIPE BROUGHT TO YOU BY...

HERB CAPLAN

1111 Weston Road (S. of Eglinton) 767-1655

WE SELL GE FOR LESS

CINNAMON HONEY CHICKEN

Marinade:

- 1 1/2 cups dry sherry
- 2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 cup honey
- 1/3 cup lime juice
- zest of 1 lime
- 2 large cloves of garlic, crushed (or to taste)
- salt and pepper, to taste
- 3 3-lb. chickens, cut into 8th's

Mix together all marinade items. Arrange chicken pieces in single layer in shallow, non-aluminum, ovenproof pan, (or, use zip-lock, and then transfer before cooking - saves much space in the fridge!). Refrigerate overnight, turning pieces occasionally. Preheat oven to 350°F. Bake chicken uncovered 40-50 minutes, turning once or twice. Or, bake a shorter time and then broil til done for crispy skin.

About Life

Dear Ella,

My wife has been driving me crazy. She is a wonderful wife and mother; however, she is very superstitious. She believes in the evil eye. She believes that if I sew something on myself without taking it off first, I will sew my soul in. She believes that something terrible will happen to me if I go back into the house after I have left. I often sit in my car down the street from our home and wait for her car to pull out of the driveway so I can go back to retrieve what I have forgotten. I have to do this to avoid a terrible confrontation. I find all this stuff silly and unfounded and I can't seem to explain to her that she is being ridiculous and causing herself stress that she can't afford while running a household. Help!

Stupidstitions

Dear Stupidstitions

Webster defines "superstition" as a belief in, or fear of, what is unknown, mysterious or supernatural; religion, opinion or practice based on belief in divination, magic, omens.

Here we are, just before Yom Kippur, when many Jews will set aside their busy lives and go to shul to pray. Are they superstitious? What about people studying Kabbalah? Are they superstitious? What about the Chinese community who believe in Feng Shui, the practice of living and/or working in places that emanate good luck? Are they superstitious? Not to mention good luck charms, horoscopes, picking the same lottery numbers that your late mother used and believing you won because it was a gift from her. How many times have you heard the expression keneinehora meaning without the evil eye, or heard someone say "pooh pooh" or see someone pick up a lucky penny?

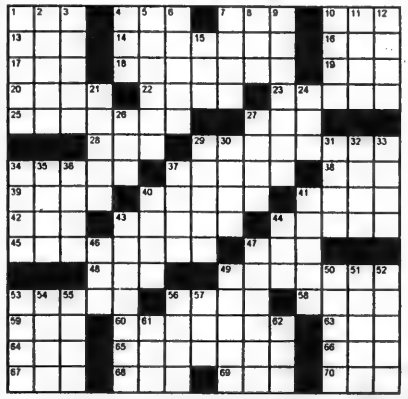
Possibly your wife was raised in a family that believed in these customs. She's not unusual. This is part of her personality. This is the woman you fell in love with, the mother of your children.

Enjoy your relationship and your family. Try not to focus on the superstitions she has. It's a package deal that comes with the part of her you love. It seems as though you're managing to work around these superstitions, just one of the many sacrifices a couple makes for one another.

Superstitious or not, may I end by wishing you and all our readers a happy, healthy New Year, G'mar Chatimah Tovah.

Readers may submit their questions to Ella at The CJN. But Ella is not a professional counsellor. She brings to the questions posed by readers her unique brand of earthy wisdom. Her advice is not a replacement for medical, legal or any other advice. For serious problems, consult a professional.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE



Across

1. And more
4. Tel Aviv to Jerusalem (dir)
7. Male swan
10. Lillian Florence Hellman
13. Brandeis casually
14. Secret Jew
16. Ithamar high priest
17. Sid Gordon stat
18. Baseball player "Flip"
19. Old woman
20. Mezuma (Eng.)
22. Berg and Stooge
23. Belief
25. Herzel
27. Israeli coin
28. Copeland on track
29. Bloody sign
34. City of mystics
37. Jacob Frank __ messiah
38. Damage
39. Palestinian
40. Duke of Edom
41. Wilder or Barry
42. Biblical measure
43. Jacob's ladder?
44. Pianist Victor
45. Festival
47. Ancient deity figure
48. Koch and Teller
49. Joseph's readings
53. Baseball's Johnny
56. Bets (Eng)
58. Have shpilkes? (Eng)
59. El Al milieu
60. Lou Grant actor
63. Long before
64. Affirmative
65. Rebuild the Temple
66. __ Aviv
67. Eat (Yid)
68. Prophesize
69. Meshugge (Eng)
70. First lady

Down

1. Choose
2. Books of Moses
3. Evil eye
4. Mother (Heb)
5. Lox
6. Bautista stat
7. Mama __ Elliott
8. Shema ender
9. Lit on Lag B'Omer
10. Samson's triumphant site
11. Matzo
12. Lofty
15. Lox starters
21. Israeli mountain
24. Cleo killer
26. Jacob to Judah
27. Nibble (Yid)
29. Former Israeli newspaper
30. World (Heb.)
31. Tenth part of an ephah
32. Imitated Cantor
33. Life or Knowledge
34. Comic Mort
35. Roberta Peters' solo
36. Diller's hubby
37. Exodus
40. Uzis
41. Thief (Yid)
43. Koufax's team
44. Terrorist target
46. Joe's Bro
47. Jael's victim
49. Poison
50. Emulate Abba Eban
51. Be'er Sheva region
52. Broke the eighth
53. Comedian Danny
54. Breaks the ninth
55. Gershwin and Morris
56. Shamsky goal
57. Hester Street time zone
61. Daled: (Eng.)
62. "Gingy"

These puzzles are the work of Kathi Handler of Waterbury, Connecticut.

(Last week's answers are on page 42.)

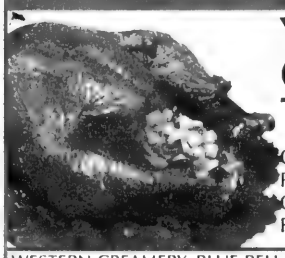
HAPPY NEW YEAR

Prices Effective from
Sun. October 5, 1997 until
Sat. October 11, 1997

Closed Thanksgiving Day,
Mon. October 13

HIGHLAND FARMS

Freshness at the Right Price



YOUNG OVEN READY TURKEYS

Chai Kosher COR 218
Product of Ontario
Canada Grade A
Frozen, All Weights

1.99 LB
4.39 kg

WESTERN CREAMERY, BLUE BELL
PRESSED COTTAGE CHEESE
•5% •10% •No Salt,
250 g Package
1.99 EA

•CREAM CHEESE, 250 g Tub

•MINUTE MAID, PREMIUM PUNCH •NESTEA ICED TEA

Frozen Concentrated
Assorted Varieties
355 ml Tin
0.59 EA

GREEN GIANT VEGETABLES
•Sweet Peas
•Niblets Whole Kernel Corn
•Mixed Vegetables
Frozen
1 kg Bag
1.99 EA

WHOLE ROASTING CHICKENS

Chai Kosher COR 218
Product of Ontario, Canada Grade A
Fresh
4.39 kg
1.99 LB

WHITE CAULIFLOWER

Product of Ontario
No. 1 Grade
Fresh
Extra Large Size
0.99 EA

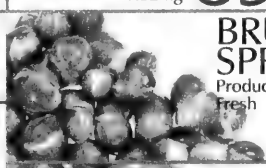
YAMS
Product of USA
Fresh
1.52 kg
0.69 LB

FIVE ROSES, ALL PURPOSE FLOUR

• White
• Whole Wheat

5.99 EA
10 kg Bag

PERL'S
SALADS
•Potato •Coleslaw •Creamy Coleslaw
Fresh
400 g Plastic Tub
1.69 EA



BRUSSEL SPROUTS

Product of Ontario
Fresh
1.52 kg
0.69 LB

GOODMAN'S, QUICK & HEARTY INSTANT SOUP
Assorted Varieties
35 g Cup
0.99 EA

AVIVA
SUNFLOWER SEED OIL
1 L Plastic Bottle
1.99 EA

KEDEM
GRAPE JUICE
•Concord •Muscat •White
1.5 L Bottle
4.99 EA

McINTOSH APPLES

Product of Ontario
Direct From Highland Farms
Orchard, Fancy Grade, Fresh
10 lb Poly Bag
3.99 EA

CROYDEN HOUSE
INSTANT CHICKEN SOUP MIX
141 g Jar
1.99 EA

MANISCHEWITZ
MATZOS
Assorted Varieties
275 g Box
2.49 EA

GOLD'S
BEET BORSCHT
.946 L Bottle
1.49 EA

BARTLETT & BOSC PEARS

Product of Ontario
No. 1 Grade
Fresh
Large Size
1.52 kg
0.69 LB

MANISCHEWITZ
DRY SOUP MIX
Assorted Varieties
170 g Bag
0.99 EA

GREAT CANADIAN CHEESE STICKS
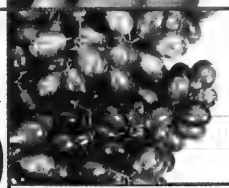
Assorted Varieties
227 g Bar
2.99 EA

SUNPAC
PRUNE NECTAR
Pure
1 L Bottle
1.69 EA

STRUB'S
DILL PICKLES

•New •Old
1.5 L Jar
2.99 EA



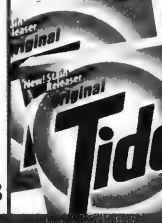
CHRISTMAS ROSE RED GRAPES

Product of USA, California
No. 1 Grade
Fresh
2.18 kg
0.99 LB

OCEAN SPRAY
CRANBERRIES
Product of USA
Fresh
340 g Cello Package
1.99 EA

TIDE, POWDERED LAUNDRY DETERGENT

•Original, 12 L Box
•Ultra, 6 L Box



7.99 EA

KOSHER PRODUCTS ONLY AVAILABLE AT DUFFERIN STORE

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
Monday thru Friday, 8 am to 10 pm
Saturday, 7 am to 10 pm
SUNDAY, 9 AM TO 5 PM

We reserve the right to limit quantities.

7750 DUFFERIN ST. AT SUPERTEST RD. (SOUTH OF STEELES AVE.)

850 ELLESMERE RD AT KENNEDY RD.

LAWRENCE AVE. E. AT BENNETT RD.

In Loving Memory of

.....

.....

.....

.....

I Donate $ ..... to the Yiskor Appeal of the Jewish National Fund

Receipt Name (if not donor): .....

Donor Name: .....

Address: .....

.....

Postal Code: ..... Tel. (Home): ..... (Bus.): .....

Synagogue Affiliation: .....

Method of Payment

❑ I wish to pay by cheque
(Please make cheque payable to Jewish National Fund)

I wish to pay by ❑ VISA ❑ MasterCard

Card Number: ..... Expiry Date: .....

Cardholder Name: .....

Mail or Fax your contribution to:

Jewish National Fund
4600 Bathurst Street
Suite 238
Willowdale, Ontario M2R 3V3
Fax: (416) 638-7345

A Gift to JNF strengthens our partnership with the land of Israel

Your gift is income tax deductible

On the occasion of

Yiskor

it is tradition to make a charitable donation in memory of a loved one or friend.
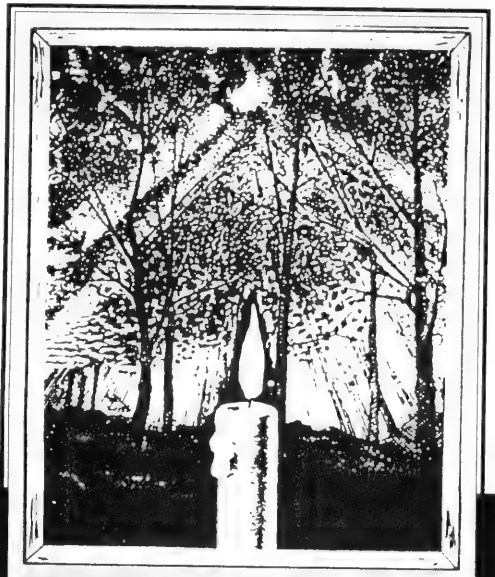
As Yiskor is observed during the High Holy Days, it is a time to remember.



יזכור

For they offered charity for the memory of their souls

בעבור שנדבו לצדקה
בעד הזכרת נשמתם

This mitzvah of "tzedekah", translates into action
the promises we make during Yiskor prayers.

"May the words of our mouths become the deeds of our hands."

Let the memory of our loved ones guarantee the future of the Jewish people and all of Israel.

MISSION '98 FEBRUARY 23 - MARCH 4, 1998

Your Date with History

It happens only once in a lifetime. The opportunity to place your personal stamp on history. Mission '98 - Israel at 50 is such an opportunity. The opportunity of a lifetime.

Join the people of Israel to celebrate the miracle of Israel's 50th anniversary. Participate in one of Jewish history's landmark moments, with UJA Federation, the experts on missions to Israel. Tour the country from north to south, in the warm, secure, family-like atmosphere of your group bus. See where decisive events determined Israel's future. Meet experts and analysts on the Middle East. Experience the incredible energy, excitement and spirit of a UJA Federation mission. Experience Israel.

Please read the following pages, then call the Mission '98 Hotline (416) 631-5698 to reserve your date with history.

UJA FEDERATION

History Starts Here

"Whether you are old or young, whether you travel on your own or with family, UJA Federation missions are a great way to visit Israel. I really felt a connection to the people, traditions and most importantly, my heritage."
Ron Goelman, Participant,
Mission 3000-1996

Our journey begins in the north - a region which is so intertwined with Israel's history. We will be visiting sites and meeting people only available through UJA Federation missions, using Israel's best guides, specially trained for this trip ... Acco, where the Underground Prisoners Memorial Museum honours hundreds of Israel's early fighters who were jailed for battling to create the State ... the strategic Golan Heights and the Gadot observation post overlooking the Golan's slopes ... Tel Chai, built by Baron de Rothschild in the late 1800's ... and the many UJA Federation and United Israel Appeal projects that have dramatically improved the quality of life for northern Israel residents.

Israel - From the Top

More than a decade ago, the mayor of Metulla, Yossi Goldberg had what everyone called a crazy dream. He wanted to build Israel's first skating rink in Israel's most northern town. His dream turned to reality in more ways than he could ever imagine. Today, the Olympic sized rink, housed in Metulla's Canada Centre recreation complex, built by Canadian contributors, is busy year-round. Canada Centre, the site of Mission '98's opening ceremonies, is a symbol of how the Canada-Israel partnership has achieved the seemingly impossible.

To the Bottom

"No trip anywhere can compare with a UJA Federation mission to Israel. It was the most exhilarating experience of my life."
Bob Bercovici

The remarkable Red Sea resort city of Eilat on Israel's southern tip is where we will be holding our festive farewell banquet - an indescribable dinner and dance. But during the mission, plenty of free time has been set aside for swimming, sunning, scuba diving and snorkeling ... for floating on the Dead Sea, the lowest point on earth ... climbing Masada ... admiring the Ramon Crater, Israel's Grand Canyon ... hiking in the Negev's Red Canyon ... digging through the archaeological treasures of Beit Guvrin and paying tribute to Israel's first Prime Minister, David Ben Gurion at his grave side in Sde Boker.

Mission '98 - Israel at 50, a Supplement to The Canadian Jewish News, is sponsored and produced by UJA Federation.

Jerusalem - The Incomparable Capital

In 1948, the Mandelbaum gate divided Jerusalem. Jordan controlled the Western Wall and the ancient Old City. Israel's jurisdiction was restricted to the western section. Today, Jerusalem is robust with new construction and groundbreaking archaeological excavations. On Mission '98 - Israel at 50, we will show you where Israel's capital was cut in half. You can follow the footsteps of the warriors as you trace the path of Israel's soldiers fighting for independence. And you will transcend centuries as you move from the Old City to Jerusalem's mega-mall, the majestic new City Hall, the Supreme Court building and the Knesset.

A Mission to Remember

"Celebrating Israel's 50th anniversary in Israel is an unprecedented opportunity. Travelling to Israel with UJA Federation is the best way to see the country. Israel is the place to be next year and I plan to be there."
Elaine Todres,
President,
Baycrest Centre Foundation

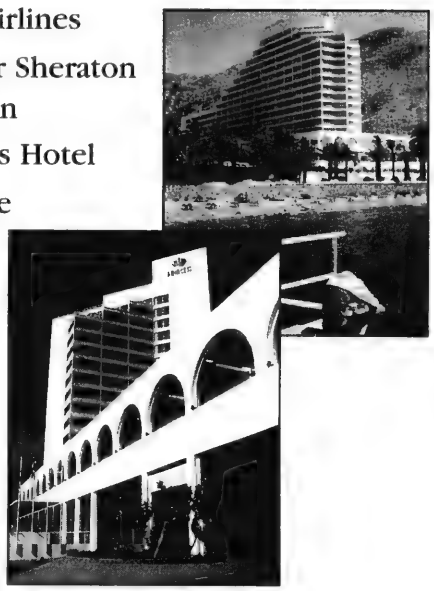
No place in the world captures Jewish emotional longing like Jerusalem. And no place is more fitting for a gala 50th anniversary celebration, featuring Israel's Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. You will be treated to a spectacular night of festivities, organized exclusively for Mission '98 participants. In Jerusalem, we will also usher in Shabbat at the kotel (Western Wall), remember the martyrs of the Holocaust and honour the memory of the late Yitzhak Rabin on Mount Herzl.

Something for Everyone

Whether you are touring Israel for the first time or you are a veteran visitor, Mission '98 - Israel at 50 is designed to meet your needs. Our customized itineraries will ensure a fresh, exciting experience for everyone. And the individual attention you can expect is unsurpassed. History happens every hour of every day, but rarely does anyone have the chance to stand in the centre of history as it unfolds. Mission '98 is your chance. It is your date with history.

"Both my husband Jeff and I can't wait for Mission '98. We're looking forward to it very much. This will be my first time in Israel and I couldn't imagine any other way to see the country than through a UJA Federation mission. Each time I think about the trip, I get goose bumps. I can't wait to experience every facet of the country, from its history to the beauty of the land. I know I will develop incredible memories that will last a lifetime." Laurie Cohen

Mission '98 - Israel at 50 ✦ A Golden Opportunity



- ✦ Round trip direct airfare on El Al Israel Airlines
- ✦ Four nights at Jerusalem's fabulous, 5-star Sheraton Plaza and the brand new Jerusalem Hilton
- ✦ Three nights at Eilat's glamorous Princess Hotel
- ✦ One night at a kibbutz resort guest house
- ✦ Full daily Israeli breakfast
- ✦ Four lunches and four dinners
- ✦ 50th anniversary gala in Jerusalem
- ✦ Briefings by Israeli leaders and dignitaries, including the Prime Minister
- ✦ All touring, guides, entrance fees, porterage and transfers included
- ✦ Airline ticket extensions available at no extra charge for a maximum 60 day stay in Israel
- ✦ Customized itineraries for first timers and veteran visitors

Only $2,498.00*

With a minimum UJA Federation Campaign gift of $250 for each of the next two years. Call the Mission Hotline today (416) 631-5698. Seats are filling fast!

* Price is based on double occupancy and does not include departure tax and tips. Participants must be at least 18 years old.

UJA FEDERATION

Mission '98 - Israel at 50, a Supplement to The Canadian Jewish News, is sponsored and produced by UJA Federation.

Bell offers great October savings to call overseas.
For details, call
1 800 668-BELL(2355)
Bell
www.bell.ca

The Canadian Jewish news
48 Pages Wednesday, October 15, 1997 Tishrei 14, 5758 75c

AFFORDABLE
ISRAEL
Call your travel agent
EL AL

This Week

Greater Toronto Area

Rabbi Erwin Schild to mark 50 years in Toronto rabbinate. Page 14

Seniors urged to take charge of their own lives. Page 24

On Campus

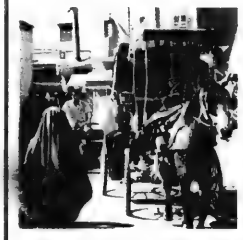
Orthodox students at Yale pay their tuition fees under protest. Page 26

National

Calgary's Jewish community welcomes United Church report. Page 28

Quebec's "unique character" same as distinct society, says Stéphane Dion. Page 29

Travel



History repeats itself: Drawing parallels between 18th century Torah scholar and a modern-day Israeli doctor in Morocco. Page 39

Index

Coast to Coast 3
GTA 4
Editorials and Letters 8
Perspectives 9
Opinions 10
The Kirshner File 11
Jewish Life 12
What's New 16
On Campus 26
Just Between us.....27
International 31
Health 35
Travel, Arts & Business 36
Classified 42
Sports 46
Ask Jesse.....47
Crossword.....47

Shabbat: Chol Hamoed
Candlelighting: 6:14
Tishrei 16, 5758
Havdalah: 7:19

Apology triggers controversy

'Statement of repentance' by French church not universally applauded

By LEE YANOWITCH
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

PARIS — The French Roman Catholic Church's "statement of repentance" for its silence during the persecution of Jews in Nazi-occupied France has been applauded by most Jewish leaders, but some aspects of it have been called into question by Jews and non-Jews alike.

The Sept. 30 apology, declared on the eve of Rosh Hashanah at the site of the Drancy transit camp outside Paris – where 64,000 of the 76,000 Jews deported from France during World War II were dispatched to Auschwitz – has left some Jewish officials wanting more.

Jean Kahn, president of the Consistoire, the official body overseeing the religious needs of France's Jewish community, said the church had fallen short of his hopes for a statement recognizing the "specifically Jewish nature of the Shoah."

"Neither the French church nor the Vatican has done so. There is still an important step to be made," Kahn said in an interview.

Furthermore, "the Pope, on his way to Brazil, said there were many holocausts, and I find that upsetting," Kahn added, referring to comments Pope John Paul made on Oct. 2 about the Drancy apology and whether the Vatican would soon be issuing a document on the Holocaust.

Continued on page 32

A young demonstrator stands between two signs bearing the names of Jewish children who were deported from Bordeaux to Nazi death camps during World War II. The youngster was part of a demonstration that took place last week at the commencement of the trial in Bordeaux, France of Maurice Papon, an ex-cabinet minister charged with crimes against humanity. [RNS/Reuters photo]

The lull before the storm

By EDGAR ASHER
CJN Israel Correspondent

TEL AVIV — Israelis are creatures of habit and set in their ways. Although a large segment of the population can trace its roots to the cooler climates and influences of northern Europe, it has not taken long for the Mediterranean tempo to invade and dominate most Israeli life today. If something can be put off for tomorrow, do it tomorrow – or the day after.

Every year in Israel there is a four-week break from reality. The chagim – the High Holy Days – are usually the lull before the storm. The governmental ship of state tries to find calmer waters immediately before the New Year, so that as the political, economic and social realities return following Simchat Torah, it will hopefully be able to steer a course of peace and prosperity.

There is not too much hope for either of these resolutions coming to fruition in the short term this year. The social evil of unemployment is rocking the boat together with the threat of industrial action on a national scale.

Commentary

Compounding these problems is the fallout of the Mossad failure to assassinate the Hamas official Khaled Meshal in Amman. Israeli/Canadian relations have also taken a knock with the revelation that fake Canadian passports were used by the two agents in their failed attempt.

The Israeli press is scornful of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's performance over the past months, and in particular over the past weeks. The metaphors of a ship without a rudder or of a ship's captain ignoring the harbor pilot would best categorize the gist of recent editorials.

Unemployment will soon be in two-digit figures nationally; in certain development towns, this was surpassed long ago and 25 to 30 percent unemployment is the norm in places like Dimona, in the Negev.

One might have thought that within the context of the deplorable economic situation, the main labor federation, the Histadrut, would think twice before calling a national strike on the pretext of

Continued on page 32

INSIDE

The Third Annual Chanukah poetry contest.
Please see page 31.

Don't miss an issue. Call 416-391-1836 today
News
Ask.

Ottawa wants assurances from Israel — please ... e 3

The News in Brief

CANADA

Out of the Cold

TORONTO — Holy Blossom Temple will take part again this winter in Toronto's Out of the Cold program, which provides the homeless with a hot meal and a place to sleep.

The program takes place at several Metro churches. Holy Blossom is the only synagogue to participate.

The program at the temple begins Nov. 20 and will run every Thursday night until March 28.

Volunteers and those who wish to donate clothes or other supplies can call 789-3291, ext. 508.

ICRF Mission

TORONTO — The Israel Cancer Research Fund is planning a mission to Israel in February for young associates.

The trip, designed to bring young adults together from across Canada and the United States, will cover Israel from north to south.

For more information call 487-5246.

Gray Plans Millennium

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Jean Chretien announced last week that he has asked Deputy Prime Minister Herb Gray to assume responsibility for coordinating and planning the government's participation in national and international activities to mark the new millennium.

Chretien said Gray will work closely with his cabinet colleagues and consult other levels of government, the private sector, non-governmental organizations and other countries to establish a framework for Canada's millennium activities.

ISRAEL

Bombing Toll Rises To 16

JERUSALEM — An 84-year old Israeli has died of wounds sustained in the July 30 twin suicide bombing in Jerusalem's Machane Yehuda open-air market.

Baruch Ostrovsky, a resident of Jerusalem, was burned severely in the blast. Hospital officials said he never regained consciousness before dying Oct. 3.

Ostrovsky, who emigrated from Russia seven years ago, was the 16th Israeli to be killed as a result of the attack, which wounded at least 170 others.

Thirteen Israelis died in the immediate aftermath of the blast. The remaining three, including Ostrovsky, died from their injuries in subsequent weeks.

Israel's Population

JERUSALEM — Israel's population is growing, but not as quickly as earlier in the decade.

The Central Bureau of Statistics said recently that the Jewish state has a population of about 5,863,000, of which 4,702,000, or about 80.2 percent, are Jews.

Israel's Muslim population stands at 872,000, or 14.9 percent of the population; Christians, 190,000, or 3.2 percent; and Druze and other religions, 100,000, or 1.7 percent, the bureau said.

The statistics, released each year on the eve of the Jewish New Year, indicated a rate of population growth of 2.45 percent since the previous Rosh Hashanah.

The growth rate was lower than that posted at the beginning of the 1990s, when a massive influx of immigrants from the former Soviet Union contributed to annual growth rates in the 4.5 percent range.

In its Statistical Yearbook, the bureau said that in the year 5757, the Jewish population increased by 1.9 percent while the Muslim population increased by 3.5 percent. Most of those increases were attributed to natural growth, or birth rates outstripping death.

The bureau also reported that a record 2.5 million Israelis traveled abroad during the past year and that economic growth dropped drastically from 6 percent in 5756 to 2.5 percent.

Reform Land Grant

TEL AVIV — The municipality of Tel Aviv-Yafo recently allocated a prime parcel of land to a Reform group. The city is planning construction of a major community centre and 300-bed youth guest house on the site.

WORLD

Cemetery Desecrated

MOSCOW — Vandals have desecrated 14 headstones at a Jewish cemetery in Kurgan, a city of 320,000 southwest of Moscow.

Each of the desecrated headstones was smeared with black paint; some were painted with swastikas.

This was the second act of vandalism to take place at a Russian Jewish cemetery in September.

Vandals recently desecrated 18 tombstones at a cemetery in Malakhovka, a small town near Moscow that had a sizable Jewish population from the 1920s to the 1970s.

Yeshiva U Program

NEW YORK — Thirty students from Canada, United States, England and South Africa attended a teachers' training program in Israel, part of Yeshiva University's Azrieli Graduate School of Jewish Education and Administration Summer Block Education Program.

The program enables educators to learn traditional and modern teaching approaches and acquire graduate degrees. Among the Canadian participants were Joseph Bienenstock, Rafael Lipner and Shmuel Marcus from Toronto; Yechiel Goldreich from Hamilton; and Zvi Shimon from Montreal.

Church Dedicated

ROME — The Italian branch of the Catholic Church has dedicated a church in memory of Italian victims of the Nazis in Oswiecim, the southern Polish town near the former Nazi death camp of Auschwitz-Birkenau.

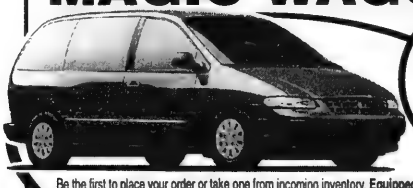
The new church, which is located several miles from the former death camp, has not aroused any opposition from Jewish groups.

Turning 69, 70 or 71 this year?

You must convert your RRSP into a RRIF or an Annuity by DECEMBER 31. Allow me to structure a plan to meet your specific needs.

H. AB NISKER C.A.
Over 45 years as a Financial Advisor
(905) 479-6670
COSBURN, GRIFFITHS & BRANDHAM FINANCIAL SERVICES INC.

THE 1998'S ARE HERE!!
LEASE A BRAND NEW 1998 VOYAGER
MAGIC WAGON



$245 PER MONTH

Be the first to place your order or take one from incoming inventory. Equipped as follows: air conditioning, pr. steering, pr. brakes, rear wiper/washer, floor mats f/r, am/fm stereo radio, 7 pass seating, tinted glass, rear window defroster, dual sport mirrors, roof luggage rack, dual air bags.

DOWNSVIEW Jeep Eagle
CHRYSLER PLYMOUTH (1964) LTD.
ON ALLEN ROAD. JUST NORTH OF SHEPPARD
199 RIMROCK RD., NORTH YORK, ONT. M3J 3C6

Call Mel Wise
635-1660

TERMS: Lease price is based on a 30 month term, OAC with $2,500.00 down payment or trade required. Freight, licence and all taxes extra. Security deposit required.

AT RABBI NAHMAN'S GRAVE

More than seven thousand followers of Rabbi Nahman of Breslov came to worship at his grave in Uman in the Ukraine on Rosh Hashanah. [Reuters/RNS]

The Canadian Jewish news

Vol. XXXVIII, No. 25 (2,871)

An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Gary Laforet
General Manager

Mordechai Ben-Dat
Editor

Vera Gillman
Advertising & Assistant General Manager

Carol Jamieson
Controller

Jeff Rosen
News Editor

Joseph Serge
Travel, Arts & Business Editor

Janice Arnold, Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner, Frances Kraft, David Lazarus, Elias Levy, Paul Lungen, Ben Rose, Leila Speisman
Staff Reporters

Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Emil Fackenheim, Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone, Miriam Herman, Shira Herzog, Martin Himel, Justin Korda, Dr. Gidi Koren, Shel Krakofsky, Sam Lipshitz, Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut, Viva Press, Morton Weinfeld
Columnists

Stephen Bindman, Joel Jacobson, Myron Love, Wendy Schneider, Judy Shapiro, Moura Wolpert
Canadian Correspondents

Edgar Asher
Israel Correspondent

Leslie Kinrys
Chief Copy Editor

Carolan Halpern
Copy Editor

Ella Burakowski
Assistant Advertising Manager

Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen, Barbara Ferguson, Ruth Goldsmith, Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman, Honey Mahl, Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig
Sales Representatives, Toronto

Lisa Freid
Classified Advertising Representative

Doris Perez
Office Manager

Alma Delory, Karen Syptak
Office Staff, Toronto

Janice Atkinson
Circulation

Brian Stoneman
Composing Room Manager

Rasma Brants, José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel, Britta Petersen, Nick Radelja, Larry Tremblay
Production Staff

Charles Bronfman, Donald Carr, Q.C. George A. Cohon, Steven Cummings Murray Koffler, Julia Koschitzky * Albert J. Latner, Lionel H. Schipper Robert Vineberg, Rose Wolfe Rubin Zimmerman
Directors

Ray D. Wolfe
Founding President (1971-1990)

Head Office: 1500 Don Mills Rd , Ste. 205, North York, Ont . M3B 3K4
Tel: 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949
Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829
E-MAIL: TorCJN1@aol.com

IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives
POB 7195, Jerusalem, Israel
Tel. 02-252-933, Fax. 02-249-240

CIRCULATION
Average circulation per issue: 46,711 copies
Average net paid circulation per issue: 45,109 copies.
Publisher's sworn statement March 7, 1997.

SUBSCRIPTIONS
Canada: $29.95, 1 yr. incl. GST. $54.95, 2 yr. incl. GST.
U.S.A.: $60 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $75 U.S. funds, 1 yr.

Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.

Postage Paid at Toronto
Publication Mail Registration #1683

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper.
Acceptance of advertising does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News.
The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

A TASTE OF JUDAISM
For a "Taste of Judaism" call Kolel 905-764-1329

This Week

From coast to coast

Sonny Goldstein, CLU, ChFC
President
Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future? Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals.
Call SONNY GOLDSTEIN
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Ottawa demands assurances on use of passports

David Levy's apology not good enough

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

OTTAWA — The Canadian government has not ruled out sanctions against Israel over the fake passport scandal.

And Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's lack of contrition has left opposition members of Parliament steaming.

Foreign Affairs Minister Lloyd Axworthy last week told reporters that while his first priority is to maintain good relations between Canada and Israel and support the peace process, he would not rule out "options" like economic and trade sanctions and imposing a visa requirement on Israeli visitors.

But future Canadian action depends on how Israel responds to this week's visit by Claude Laverdure, assistant deputy minister for Middle East affairs, who is scheduled to hold talks with senior Israeli officials.

In an unprecedented move, Canada's ambassador to Israel, David Berger, was recalled to protest the use of forged Canadian passports in the botched assassination of a Hamas leader in Amman.

Axworthy said Berger won't return until Israel promises to stop using Canadian passports in spy operations.

"Let's come to a clear understanding that it will not be done again," the minister said. "And I want some satisfaction on that before Mr. Berger will return. If we can't get satisfaction, then we'll consider what other options are open to us."

He said those options include expelling some Israeli diplomats, and charging the two – possibly three – Mossad agents caught using forged Canadian passports in their Sept. 25 attempt to kill Hamas leader Khaled Meshal.

Using a fake Canadian passport is an offense under the Criminal Code. But Axworthy cautioned that extradition on such matters is complex and difficult to achieve.

Israel has agreed to hold an inquiry into the passport affair, and to cooperate with Canada in its probe.

For Canada's opposition parties, the "deep expression of regret" Axworthy said he received from his Israeli counterpart, David Levy, in an Oct. 5 telephone conversation, isn't good enough.

Opposition leader Preston Manning said Levy's remarks were "unacceptable to Canada," and he urged Prime Minister Jean Chrétien to call Netanyahu.

The Israeli leader must admit wrong-doing and apologize to Canada, Manning said in question periods in the House of Commons following the passport scandal.

Lloyd Axworthy
...'considering options'

"If that can't be achieved by [Axworthy], then it ought to be pursued by the prime minister," Manning said.

He said the government has been "evasive, sloppy and inaccurate. They have embarrassed our country at home and on the world stage in their handling of the matter."

Forgeries

But Chrétien has ruled out asking Netanyahu for an apology, and said he accepts Levy's expression of remorse.

"He said his government regrets very much the incident... and they will initiate some discussion with this government to make sure that the same thing is not repeated," Chrétien told the Commons.

"When the minister of foreign affairs of a country expresses regret on behalf of his country and his government to the [Canadian] minister of foreign affairs, it is, in my judgment, an acknowledgment by that government," the prime minister said.

"I recognize the prime minister of Israel has not called me to offer the same comments to us, but the minister of foreign affairs has re-received this assurance from the minister of foreign affairs for Israel," Chrétien said.

He added: "I agree with the leader of the Opposition that it is extremely important for Canadians that the integrity and the value of the Canadian passport not be jeopardized by the actions of other people, as was the case in Jordan."

Chrétien said recalling Berger "is the strongest form of protest that could have been expressed, short of cutting relations" with Israel.

Responding to a question from Bloc Québécois leader Gilles Duceppe, Chrétien rejected allegations of collaboration between the Canadian intelligence agency and Mossad.

NDP leader Alexa McDonough said Canadians are "justifiably indignant that our Canadian passport has become the passport of preference for international terrorists, and said it's "puzzling" that Chrétien isn't demanding an "absolute assurance" that Israel will never again "rip off Canadian passports for terrorist purposes."

Scott Bryson, the Progressive Conservatives' foreign affairs critic, told The CJN he feels the whole affair has been an "abuse" of Canada's good relations with Israel.

He said the Tories want a commitment from Israel that it won't happen again and "would like to see an apology."

Also in the House last week, BQ MP Daniel Turp wanted to know whether Canada supplies passports to the Mossad for any purposes. Axworthy denied what he called Turp's "irresponsible suggestion."

Forensic tests have determined that both Canadian passports used by the Mossad were forgeries.

Axworthy welcomed the news because it dispels the notion that Canada helped the Mossad.

"Any suggestion that [the] passports were transferred or there were agreements between Canada and Israel, is absolute junk, nonsense," he said, adding that the documents were "put together locally."

In Israel last week, the Israel-Canada Chamber of Commerce called on Ottawa not to impose sanctions on Israel that would damage economic ties between the two countries.

Events surrounding the affair are "far from clear and even when there is a better understanding, there would be no benefit to either side in declaring economic sanctions," said chamber president Yehuda Raveh.

Over the last year, there has been a 50 percent increase in bilateral trade, following the signing of the Canada-Israel Free Trade Accord.

"This is only an initial indication of the huge potential development in trade between Israel and Canada," Raveh said. "It would be totally detrimental to negatively affect this trend, because of one exceptional incident which has absolutely no connection to trade relations."

Funding IN ACTION
UJA FEDERATION

Bernard Weinstein knows what it's like to be down and out. For nearly 7 months he was out of work, out of hope and thought he had nowhere to turn. That is until he headed to the Jewish Vocational Service of Greater Toronto where he was able to get a career search and his pride back on track. JVS, a UJA beneficiary agency, provides career, employment and educational counseling as well as vocational rehabilitation to thousands of individuals each year.

HARD TIMES

Bernard, his wife Carol and their two daughters immigrated from South Africa in 1989. After several unsuccessful jobs, Bernard found himself unemployed. "I was having real trouble getting another job because I was either over qualified or didn't have enough experience. I was at an all-time low. I felt that I wasn't good enough for anyone."

Realizing what needed to be done and not ashamed to ask for help, Bernard contacted Jewish Vocational Services to receive the counseling he needed. "I wiped the slate clean and started from scratch," explains Bernard. "I went for 10 one-on-one sessions where the staff really talked to me and assessed my interests and skills. From there, we worked together to find an industry that best suited my wants, needs and current workplace demands."

BACK ON TRACK

Eager and determined, Bernard faced a handful of potential career leads but "immediately my head said go with computers." So, he hit the books, and demonstrated determination "to give it everything I had."

THE SUCCESSFUL SOLUTION

Today, Bernard is the proud President of his own computer company, Creative Workgroup Solutions Inc., specializing in sales force automation and contact management. "I would never be where I am today without the help of JVS. I can't thank everyone enough for their time and patience. I couldn't be happier," beams Bernard.

JVS is committed to helping people come to grips with their employment and educational needs. It's another example of UJA Federation Funding in Action.

Greater Toronto Area

Desultory thoughts about Kol Nidre

Readers will receive this issue of The CJN on the eve of Sukkot, but these words are being written merely hours before Kol Nidre, which inspires these desultory thoughts.

* * *

At Kol Nidre, the room transforms. It is no longer "merely" a sanctuary of prayer, it becomes a chamber of history where time ticks from the past to the present, the inspirational, mysterious beat of Jewish existence.

Of all the prayers in Jewish liturgy, it is the one that usually generates the most goose bumps.

This is not only a personal testament.

It probably applies to the majority of Jews, even those among us who have only a marginal affiliation to our religion.

Not that long ago it was the practice of the government of the United States to estimate the size of its Jewish population by counting the heads in the synagogues across the country on Kol Nidre night. Of all the nights on the Jewish religious calendar, this one more than any other, brings people to synagogue.

* * *

The music of the prayer evokes powerful emotions. So moving and so chilling is its traditional Ashkenazi melody that it was arranged for cello and orchestra in 1880 by Max Bruch, a non-Jewish composer. The sound of the cellist's bow sweeping across the strings, tearful and sad, has become a memorial to Jewish martyrdom.

In the Sephardi tradition, the entire congregation sings the Kol Nidre. According to Jewish Liturgy, published by the Keter Publishing House in Jerusalem, "there seems to be no single standard melody common to the Sephardi diaspora." Indeed in the customs of south France (Carpentras) Kol Nidre is recited in a whisper and therefore has no melody.

No one knows the source of its famous Ashkenazi melody. But because of the prayer's associations with the sufferings of the conversos and marranos during the times of the Inquisition, some researchers have attempted to link it to Spanish traditions. But no evidence has yet been found to confirm that theory.

* * *

Nor does anyone know the source of the prayer itself. Its author is unknown. But there is proof of its text as far back as the ninth century in Babylonia.

In truth, the prayer is no prayer at all. It is a public declaration, a legal exhortation by which one nullifies the oaths and the vows that were made but not honored.

Scholars agree that when it was first invoked, the declaration referred only to vows made during the previous year. Over time however, the nullification came to apply both to past and to future vows, but only of course, to those vows made personally of one's own free will and under strict halachic conditions.

Anti-Semites throughout history in virtually every country of Europe, from east to west, from the Middle Ages and even until today, have seized upon Kol Nidre's reference to future oaths to justify spreading calumny and falsehoods about the unreliability of an oath given by a Jew.

Many Jewish disputants in the Medieval disputations into which they were forced had to contend with the slanders and false accusations surrounding the Kol Nidre.

* * *

Because Kol Nidre is partially a legal as well as a religious act, its pronouncement must begin before sundown since according to Jewish law, no legal proceedings could begin in the dark, after sundown. The chazzan is flanked by at least two people as he chants Kol Nidre. They form a beit din.

* * *

The atmosphere before Kol Nidre is a combination of electricity and dread, of anxiety and of anticipation. It begins in the home during the pre-fast meal and carries into the sanctuary.

There is a dignity and a solemnity to the occasion that is incomparable in the Jewish calendar. White is the predominant coloring in the sanctuary. It is the only time that men wear their tallitot to an evening service. And it is also the only time during an evening service when the scrolls of the Torah are removed from the Ark. The white of the tallitot join with the white of special Torah coverings. Many worshippers wear the white kittel. It is an eerie recreation of the whiteness of the burial shroud.

* * *

In the small communities of Eastern Europe, where Jews lived many years ago, the evening of Kol Nidre was one of trembling and tears. Neighbors visited one another to beg forgiveness for all manner of slight.

The fear was palpable. One shuddered to think that God might refuse to inscribe or that loved ones might depart or that life could be forever altered by an plea dismissed or turned away.

* * *

Kol Nidre is an expression of thoughtfulness to the Jewish people. It emphasizes unity and inclusion; it affirms the sanctity of peoplehood. No one can be excluded from hearing the prayer. This is quite unambiguous with the very first words, the preamble as it were, of the prayer.

"With the approval of the Almighty, and with the approval of this congregation; at this sitting of the court on high above, and at this sitting of the court on earth, we allow all transgressors to pray with us...

To accommodate latecomers, the prayer is recited three times.

And to underscore the importance of peoplehood, the prayer begs the forgiveness of God for the entirety of the congregation of the people of Israel and even for the stranger in our midst.

* * *

The prayer concludes with the blessing that Jews have intoned for countless hundreds of generations: a blessing of gratitude.

"Blessed are you O God, King of the universe, who has kept us alive, sustained us and brought us to this season."

* * *

Before we move from the sanctity of our homes to the sanctuary of the synagogue, we bless our children. It is the last act we perform before we hear the words of the prayer.

As our parents blessed us, and as they were blessed by their parents, we lay our hands upon the heads of our children, close our eyes and invoke the words that were enshrined into our way of life and encoded into our hearts more than 4,000 years ago.

G'mar Chatimah Tovah.

May our readers and advertisers be inscribed for a healthy, happy and meaningful year.

Irwin Igra

IF ONLY ONE IDEA, COULD CHANGE YOUR FINANCIAL FUTURE ...

One intelligent investment idea can make the difference between a comfortable retirement or an uncertain one.

Do you have a financial plan to guarantee your future?

For sound financial advice,
Call (416) 565-2732.

IGRA
FINANCIAL SERVICES

INDEPENDENT INSURANCE & INVESTMENT BROKERS
2100 Avenue Road • North York • Ontario • Canada M5M 4A8

Good Thinking.

Discover the advantages of a Branksome education at our Open House, Wednesday, November 12, from 9:30 AM to 1:30 PM.

9:30 AM:
Join us for coffee in the Eaton Common Room and hear Principal Rachel Belash speak on the value of an all-girls education.

10 AM TO 1:30 PM:
Experience the school on a typical day as student guides provide tours of the campus.

For further information
416-920-9741

10 Elm Avenue,
Toronto, Ontario
M4W 1N4

BRANKSOME HALL

Home is always the first choice.

Senior Care

makes it possible.

Homemakers • Housekeepers
• Personal Care
• Volunteer & Social Work Services
• Caregiver Relief
• Kosher Meals on Wheels

Safe, Professional, Experienced.

Senior Care

Call us at 416-635-2860

The Third Annual
CHANUKAH POETRY CONTEST
See page 31 for details

Greater Toronto Area

Ronen defends Canada, Israel in passport affair

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Canada did what it had to do to defend our passports, and Israel did what it had to do to combat terrorism, said Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC), Ontario region chair Moshe Ronen last week, referring to the Mossad's use of forged Canadian passports.

He was speaking at a meeting of the national officers of CJC.

"Israel is not the only country involved with forged Canadian passports," Ronen added.

It was fortunate, Ronen said, that Canadian External Affairs minister Lloyd Axworthy met David Levy, his Israeli counterpart, at the opening of the Sephardic Kehila Centre in Toronto recently.

"It was bashert that they got to know each other. This bodes well for the negotiations between Israel and Canada," Ronen said.

(Levy has said that he would not have approved the assassination attempt in Jordan had he been consulted, and has threatened to resign from the cabinet.)

Ronen praised a letter from Peace Now co-chair Simon Rosenblum, asking Axworthy to query the Jordanian ambassador to Canada on why Jordan was giving refuge to Hamas political leaders and known terrorists.

"Peace Now deserves kudos for this; nobody did anything else on the record."

On another matter, the executive was told by community relations chair Ellen Cole that Congress policy is to force the City of David messianic "synagogue" out of the plaza at Bathurst and Steeles.

"We take a serious view of this messianic activity," said Bernie Farber, the region's acting executive director. "They think Toronto is ripe for the picking because of the large number of Russian immigrants here. Wherever they show up, we'll be there."

He said one estimate is that 100,000 Jews in United States have converted because of messianic activity.

"Although the City of David attracts only about 75 people at any one time, only a small number of whom are Jews, even if one Jew crosses over, it is too many."

Echoes of the current Ontario political situation were reflected in a report by Neal Goldstein, vice-chair of the region's political liaison committee.

"We are giving candidates our position on downloading of health care, of elder-care and welfare from the province to the municipalities," he said. "Also, [we are giving] our position on user fees for trash collections and for use of Highway 407, and the issue of broadening hate crime units in police forces."

On another issue, the national officers did not give their approval to the Quebec region's proposed move from the Congress building in Montreal. The controversial move to the Federation building, whose expansion is being considered, is a bone of contention between Congress and the Council of Jewish Federations. It will be the subject of "wide-ranging consultations," Ronen said.

"The national officers must approve, but it seems to be out of the hands of the national office," he added. "I don't want to get into the nitty-gritty details."

It was previously agreed that the national CJC office, which has been located in Montreal for 25 years, would not be moved to become a national advocacy base in Ottawa.

"The national officers say the CJC is a national organization first and all these decisions must be left to our responsibility," Ronen said.

Racist attitudes in Toronto greatest in Canada: report

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — A recently published report commissioned for the Ministry of Immigration shows that racist attitudes toward immigrants are greater in Toronto than in Canada's other large urban centres.

Although racist attitudes were also found in Montreal and to a lesser extent in Vancouver – the cities that attract the largest numbers of immigrants after Toronto – "in Toronto the survey results are almost the diametric opposite from what would be wished for.

"Instead of the greatest proportion of new immigrants belonging to visible minority groups settling in the region where attitudes are the most tolerant, they are going to the city where residents display the lowest levels of tolerance," the report concludes.

Written by Douglas Palmer, the report examines public attitudes to immigration as found in EKOS Research Associates and Environics surveys conducted in late 1996 and early 1997. The pollsters questioned 2,000 Canadians on their attitudes to immigration.

The report found that those "who tend to be the most favorable toward immigration are Canadians who tend to [be] more educated, younger, employed or in school, living in larger urban centres, male and members of the immigrant community."

Overall, about four in 10 Canadians believe the level of immigration is "about right" while an equal number think it is too high. Five to 10 percent believe the level should be increased.

Breaking down the results by region, the pollsters found that in the three largest immigrant-receiving cities, Torontonians are more likely to perceive negative consequences to immigration than residents of Montreal or Vancouver.

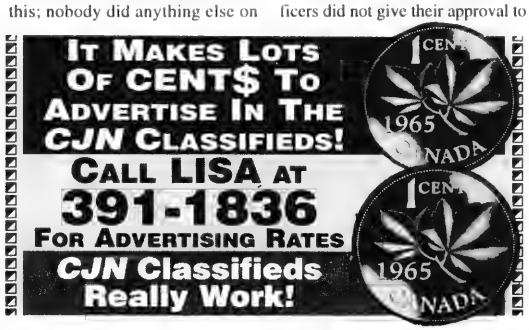
"Toronto residents are only very slightly more likely to say immigration's effects on the community are positive than that they are negative." That result is striking because more than 40 percent of the city's population, according to the 1991 census, are themselves immigrants and Toronto receives more immigrants than any other city, the report notes.

The report's findings did not come as a surprise to spokespeople for the Jewish community who monitor racist attitudes. Ellen Cole, chair of community relations for Canadian Jewish Congress, said that while Toronto has become one of the most multicultural cities in the world, there has been a "dark side" to that development. The most dramatic expression of those negative attitudes accompanied the recent influx of Gypsy (Roma) asylum seekers.

"There was negative language in media reports and people were buying into negative and inappropriate stereotypes," Cole said. "To me, that was a glaring example of those negative attitudes."

B'nai Brith of Canada president Lyle Smordin said the report's findings "will tarnish the image of 'Toronto the good' as a city of opportunity for those coming from abroad. This became dangerously apparent with the resounding grassroots and media-fuelled backlash against the Roma refugees who recently arrived in Toronto."

B'nai Brith called on the incoming megacity mayor to ensure that existing community race relations committees continue their work after amalgamation and Congress promised to continue to educate the public on issues relating to multiculturalism.

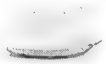


IT MAKES LOTS OF CENT$ TO ADVERTISE IN THE CJN CLASSIFIEDS!
CALL LISA AT 391-1836
FOR ADVERTISING RATES
CJN Classifieds Really Work!
1965

OPEN HOUSE & SUKKAH PARTY
Tuesday, October 21, 1997 • 1–4 pm with musical entertainment.

Jewish retirement living that's close to the heart.

Located in the heart of North Toronto's Jewish community, Terrace Gardens offers the comforts and amenities you deserve, and care geared to your needs. Attention to individual needs and personal well being are a priority at Terrace Gardens. We offer exemplary health care at all levels. At Terrace Gardens you'll enjoy the privacy and comforts of home, the companionship of neighbours and the care of our warm staff in this unique community.



We offer a fully Kosher kitchen under C.O.R. supervision.

Be our guest for refreshments & tour our facility with our warm and helpful staff.

Terrace Gardens
3705 Bathurst St.
789-7670

A Matter of Great Interest
5.87%*
Royal Bank Callable June 4, 2007

CORRINE SPIEGEL
Investment Advisor
(416) 928-1616

LIANNE DiROCCO
Investment Advisor
(416) 928-0400

1 800 924-0558
22 St. Clair Ave. East, Suite 1605, Toronto, Ont. M4T 2S7

NESBITT BURNS
Member of the Bank of Montreal Group of Companies

*as of Oct. 9, 1997. Rates subject to change and availability (assumes investment is held to maturity). Membeg CIPF

Greater Toronto Area

Canada seen as haven by modern war criminals

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Reports that more than 300 modern day war criminals have attempted to find refuge in Canada should come as no surprise to the Canadian public. It's merely an example of the chickens coming home to roost, say spokespersons for several Jewish organizations that track Nazi war criminals.

Representatives of the Simon Wiesenthal Centre, Canadian Jewish Congress, the Jewish Civil Rights Educational Foundation, and B'nai Brith Canada agreed that Canada's longstanding policy of turning a blind eye to the post-war immigration of Nazi killers has given Canada a well-deserved reputation as a haven for war criminals.

"Because we created a haven for Nazi war criminals, we've created a haven for all war criminals," said David Matas, honorary legal counsel for B'nai Brith Canada (BBC).

Matas was referring to a report prepared for Citizenship and Immigration Canada by Randy Gordon, project manager of the war crimes and crimes against humanity case management branch. He found that the 300 war criminals include death squad members, torturers, and members of dictatorial regimes from Somalia, Bosnia, Iraq, Afghanistan, Haiti, Ethiopia, Guatemala, Rwanda and El Salvador. Seventy-two of the suspects reside in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, 195 in Ontario.

Gordon suggests that the number of war criminals in Canada could double in a short time.

Immigration Minister Lucienne Robillard said the government was committed to acting against war criminals. She said that since a modern war crimes unit was established one year ago, 60 war criminals have been deported and more than 200 others were prevented from entering Canada.

Reform MP John Reynolds said in parliament that "in 1994, there were between 50 and 100 modern-day war criminals in Canada. Now there are 300." He demanded to know what the government was doing to stem that tide.

Robillard said the ministry is interested in improving the immigration system to counteract that trend.

Sol Littman, Canadian representative of the Simon Wiesenthal Centre, credited the Jewish community's persistent lobbying on the question of Nazi war criminals for the action taken against modern war criminals.

"We awoke the country to the moral issue. We alerted the press that this was a moral issue that must be discussed," Littman said.

He said the slogan that Canada would not be a haven for war criminals, repeated by government spokespersons ever since the Deschenes Commission reported on Nazi war criminals in 1986, "sounded good. But in reality, Canada has become as much of a haven as Argentina. They got the colonels and generals, we got the sergeants."

He said the government should have acted on several of Deschenes' recommendations in his report, including tightening up denaturalization and deportation procedures, as well as facilitating extradition.

The Mulroney government, sensitive to political pressures, amended the Criminal Code to allow for the domestic prosecution of war criminals, but changed its tactics to deportation after the Supreme Court of Canada made prosecutions extremely difficult in the Imre Finta decision.

Jack Silverstone, Congress' legal counsel, said that while the government is showing more interest in the issue of modern day war criminals than it historically did with Nazi killers, lawmakers should employ every gun in their arsenal against them. Extradition, deportation or criminal prosecution "are all viable options, depending on the case...I think if war crimes suspects know they will face [those actions], it would be a great disincentive to coming to Canada in the first place."

In addition, if they were kept in custody on their arrival pending trial, that too would deter them from even bothering with Canada, he said.

Matas said the report is evidence that federal authorities "created a problem for themselves by reacting to Nazi war criminals much too late."

Police and Justice Department officials believed it was a single, isolated issue, he said, but the current situation is "the inevitable result of giving immunity and safe haven to the worst mass murderers."

He urged federal authorities to amend the Criminal Code to make prosecutions easier, enact legislation to allow for extradition to international tribunals like those operating in The Hague (on Bosnia) and in Tanzania (on Rwanda), and he urged the consolidation of Canada's denaturalization and deportation procedures "so these cases don't drag on indefinitely."

Bert Raphael, president of the Jewish Civil Rights Educational Foundation, said immigration and refugee-claiming procedures should be opened up so that the backgrounds of applicants become publicly known. "If someone has some baggage when they come here, we should know," he said.

In his report, Gordon warns that scarce financial and human resources, lack of government will and lax immigration laws could result in a huge jump in the number of war criminals coming to Canada.

Alleged war criminal leaves Canada

OTTAWA — A former Montrealer recently stripped of his Canadian citizenship for lying about war-era activities has quietly left Canada.

Ladislaus Csizsik-Csatary, 82, thus avoided a formal deportation hearing. He's believed to be in Europe.

Federal officials learned last week, when they went to his Toronto home to serve him notice of his deportation hearing, that he had slipped out of the country.

Paul Vickery, head of the federal government's war crimes unit, said Csizsik-Csatary's name will be placed on a watch-list, and will be barred from re-entering Canada.

Csizsik-Csatary's citizenship was revoked in August by the federal cabinet, and his lawyers said he would not fight the decision. He was the first war crimes suspect to be stripped of his citizenship without a court battle, but he still faced a hearing.

His departure is a rare victory for the Justice Department. Csizsik-Csatary, a wartime member of the Royal Hungarian Police, was accused of helping round up thousands of Jews for deportation to death camps.

His exact whereabouts is not known.

"It's not, frankly, a terribly pressing concern as long as he's out of Canada," Vickery said. "But on the other hand, out of caution, we will take steps to see if we can determine where he is. If someone leaves in advance of deportation, then that's fine."

Csizsik-Csatary was convicted in absentia for war crimes in Hungary in 1948, and sentenced to death. He arrived in Halifax the following year, became a Canadian citizen in 1955, and worked as an art dealer in Montreal.

His deportation order was based on his obtaining citizenship through "false representation or fraud or knowingly concealing material circumstances."

Nine other war crimes cases are currently in Federal Court. Two other individuals died before their cases could be heard.

FORTINOS
Your Supermarket with a Heart!
LAWRENCE SQUARE
Tradition Noodle Soup 70 g pkg. .75 ea.
Tirosh Grape Juice 3.99 ea. 1.5 L
Glatt • Kosher Stewing Beef 13.47/kg 6.11 lb.
Fresh Atlantic Salmon Fillets 6.49 lb. 14.31/kg
Fresh Atlantic Salmon Steaks 5.49 lb.
Fresh Ontario Broccoli .69 ea. Product of Canada
Del Monte Golden Ripe Pineapples 3.99 ea. Product of Costa Rica
EVERYDAY LOW PRICES
Prices effective Sunday Oct. 12 thru Saturday, Oct. 18, 1997.
We reserve the right to limit quantities.
STORE HOURS
Monday to Wednesday 8 a.m.-9 p.m.
Thursday & Friday 8 a.m.-10 p.m.
Saturday 8 a.m.-8 p.m.
Sunday 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

RRIF this Year?
Get SUPERIOR RETURNS with PRINCIPLE GUARANTEED 100%
CAPITAL IDEAS
for a secure financial future
• Life & Disability Insurance
• Critical Illness Coverage
• RRSP's • Mutual Funds
• GIC's • Segregated Funds
• Annuities • Money Markets
KEN STERN
Committed to personal & professional service
(416) 221-9600
Mutual Funds & Bonds provided by Talisman Investor Services
FINANCIAL SERVICES
INSURANCE PRODUCTS & INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT

Greater Toronto Area

Dental fraternity lauded for charity

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Toronto Alpha Omega dental fraternity was lauded recently for the role it played in the building of a new wing at Hebrew University's dental school, and for its other charitable works.

Efforts of the 750-member Toronto alumni chapter, the largest in Alpha Omega worldwide, were praised by international president Dr. J. Steven Kahan of Chevy Chase, Md. at its annual dinner at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue. The Toronto president is Dr. Stanley Markin.

Kahan, who in the past few months has visited Alpha Omega fraternities all over the world, said the Toronto chapter's contribution to Israel's dental schools at Hebrew University and Tel Aviv University is magnificent. He mentioned the efforts of Dr. Victor Moncarz who organized a bicycle marathon in Israel in aid of the new wing at Hebrew University.

Kahan said the highlight of the dedication ceremony in Israel, held in May, was a forum in a new lecture hall at the wing's D. Walter Cohen DDS Middle East Centre for Dental Education.

"There were representatives of Jordan, the PLO, France, England, United States and Israel, speaking about [problems common to] the Middle East, including dental and health problems. It was very encouraging."

In an interview with The CJN, Kahan said: "The feeling we got from Israelis was very positive but we were there before the two bombing incidents. My wife, Eleanor, was at Machane Yehuda [market] that was later bombed and even today, she has an eerie feeling about how susceptible to terror that place was."

He believes a lot of agreements between Israelis, Palestinians and others on such matters as health and education are not being publicized because of the vested interest of some political parties.

"There are some politicians who are absolutely committed to never having peace," he said. "I know about a tremendous number of agreements dealing with special problems in the Middle East. If [there is ever peace] it will be the result of an undercurrent up from the people, not from the top down."

Dr. Gilbert Chapnick of Toronto will become Alpha Omega international president in 1999.

The following student awards were given: Dr. Saul Simon Scholarship Award to Dr. Brian Rittenberg; Dr. Murray Cornish Scholarship Award to Riva Shapero; Alpha Omega Bursary, University of Toronto, to Rita Sachdeva.

Professional awards will be announced at the alumni dinner in January.

Lavee Studios
FINE PHOTOGRAPHY

ANNOUNCEMENT

LAVEE STUDIOS and LAVEE VIDEO PRODUCTIONS INC.

are informing the public that MR. WAYNE KURTZ is no longer employed or associated in any way with these companies.

All past & present clients are requested to deal directly with LAVEE STUDIOS at (416) 733-2457

Wishing everyone a Shana Tova Joe Lavee & staff

MUTUAL FUNDS

* No Deferred Sales Charges
* No Commissions
* All The Great Funds (over 1,000)
* RRSP & General Investing

FOR ON-GOING FREE PERSONAL CONSULTATION CALL
MILES HERSHBERG
1-800-668-2821
M. HERSHBERG CAPITAL LTD.
ST CATHARINES

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA

Jewish National Fund of Toronto

is proud to invite the Toronto Community to the

1997 Negev Dinner Tribute

in honour of

Edward Bronfman

in recognition of excellence in communal leadership and dedication to Israel

Sunday, December 7, 1997 at the Sheraton Centre, Toronto

Reception: 5:00 p.m. Dinner: 6:00 p.m.

Tickets to the Dinner are $107 per person with a minimum contribution of $360 (for which a tax receipt will be issued)

DINNER CHAIRMAN
Donald Carr, Q.C.

CAMPAIGN CO-CHAIRMEN
Arnold L. Cader
Donald Carr, Q.C.

A special project will be initiated on the occasion of Toronto's 1997 Negev Dinner Tribute saluting Edward Bronfman. Proceeds from the Dinner will be used for land reclamation and project development at Kibbutz Neot Semadar, in the southern Arava region of the Negev Desert. The young pioneers of Neot Semadar require our assistance to help ensure economic stability and a bright future for them and their children in a very barren area of the wilderness known as the Arava, just north of Eilat.

In saluting Edward Bronfman, the Jewish National Fund will assist Neot Semadar in reclaiming hundreds of dunams of land for agricultural use, help develop an Artists Centre, develop roads to the Kibbutz and within the Kibbutz, and assist the construction of a fifty thousand cubic metre reservoir. A resort area to promote tourism will also be developed. This undertaking will surely be a source of great pride to all who will have participated in this very worthy project. Together, we can all help to make the desert green.

For further information contact
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF TORONTO
4600 Bathurst Street, Suite 238
North York, Ont. M2R 3V3
PHONE: (416) 638-7200 FAX: (416) 638-7345

Editorials and Letters

The Canadian Jewish news

Publisher and Proprietor
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital
Head Office
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

A new beginning

In the darkness of night, ill winds swirling, the air thick from the hovering gloomy haze of the Meshal affair, Israel's Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat met last week at the Erez checkpoint in the Gaza Strip. It was their first meeting since Feb. 9, eight months ago. One could accurately say that the two men were swept to Erez by the gusts still blowing from the political storm of the preceding week.

After the tumultuous welcome in Gaza extended to Hamas founder Sheikh Ahmed Yassin, Arafat suddenly found himself with a powerful rival for the leadership of the Palestinian people. And after the tumult of criticism heaped upon his judgment and upon his character in the wake of the failed Amman operation, Netanyahu suddenly found himself needing to restore confidence in his leadership. Thus, the Erez meeting was quickly arranged.

By all accounts, the encounter was a success. An adviser to Arafat, Nabil Abu-Rudeinch, described it as "a very important meeting." U.S. special envoy Dennis Ross, who was also there, said it was "a very good meeting." He was quoted in the Israeli press: "They [Netanyahu and Arafat] agreed that the leaders themselves should meet on a regular basis. At one point they also emphasized that they saw this as a new beginning between the leaders and indeed a new beginning for the peace process. Both of them reaffirmed their commitment to work together to overcome all problems."

The moonlight summit ended in the early dawn, just as the darkness was starting to lift, at around 5 a.m. More meetings have been promised; more are expected at the end of this month.

Could it be that out of the chaos of recrimination, distrust, violence and dashed hopes, a suggestion of order and above all, the possibility of peace, will be spoken again?

With courage, moderation, honesty, determination and good will by both sides, perhaps.

Dangerous innuendo

Understandably, Canadians were troubled and angered by the Meshal affair. Expressions of that anger were voiced, for example, on both sides of the House of Commons. Indeed, to our mind, a great deal of what was said by the opposition was extreme and far in excess of what the circumstances warranted. However, the most alarming expressions came from the Toronto Star. In its lead editorial of Oct. 7, the editorial writer objects to what is referred to as Canada's "feeble" response to the use of the Canadian passports by the Israeli agents. The editorial then purports to advise the government on the questions that still need to be answered and on the punitive measures it should impose.

One of the questions that the writer raises is: "How many Canadian passports were reported lost or stolen in Israel in recent years? Are more Canadians getting careless in Israel than in other countries on a per capita basis?" (Our emphasis) The innuendo is clear: Jewish Canadians – the most frequent Canadian travellers to Israel – cannot be trusted as much as other Canadians to cherish their Canadian citizenship and to protect their passports. One of the retaliatory measures the writer prescribes is: "Canada should start taking a far closer look at people arriving from Israel with Canadian passports." The innuendo is clear: Canadians who have returned from Israel – and thus are more likely than not to be Jews – are unworthy of trust and should therefore be treated differently, harshly, punitively Tactlessly, illogically and shamefully, the advice of the editorial writer hurls the age-old, Hamanesqe, canard of dual loyalty at Jewish Canadians.

The innuendo is insulting. In the long run, it is dangerous too.

WISDOM OF THE AGES
"Sugar in the mouth will not help if the heart is bitter."
Yiddish proverb

Dry Bones

MISS ALBRIGHT ... THE JEWS HAVE BUILT THOUSANDS OF BUILDINGS ALL OVER THE COUNTRY!!
SUKKOT-SHMUKKOT
I WANT IT STOPPED!
Kirschen

This Week in Canadian Jewish History
October 16, 1910 the Hebrew Standard reported that a congregation had been organized by the Jews of Belleville, Ontario.(Canadian Jewish Congress Archives)

Ottawa's part in Balfour Declaration

In November 1917, the British foreign minister, Arthur Balfour, issued the now famous declaration bearing his name promising the Jewish people a "national home in Palestine."

Fully six months before making that historic declaration, Balfour, as British foreign secretary, was visiting Ottawa. During the visit, he arranged for a meeting with Clarence de Sola of Montreal, longtime leader of the Zionist movement in Canada.

The meeting lasted three hours and at its conclusion, the British cabinet minister issued this statement: "You have made it clear that we can be the instrument of fulfilling the biblical prophesy of restoring the Jewish people to Zion. I can assure you that I can tell my colleagues in the cabinet that the Zionist ideals harmonize perfectly with the English policy regarding Palestine. I can assure you that you will shortly hear of a decision in the English cabinet supporting the Zionist idea."

The statement is part of a comprehensive story by H. Hirsh of Ottawa in the Canadian Jewish Chronicle of Nov. 23, 1917. Balfour later was made First Earl of Balfour. He died in 1930 without seeing the vision he had enunciated in his declaration become reality.

Joe King
Montreal

The Kashrut situation at Ashkenaz

A serious effort was made to secure COR, mashgiach supervised food vendors for this year's Ashkenaz festival. Many kosher restaurants, caterers and bakeries were solicited by our food coordinators up to three months in advance. Despite repeated efforts to include them, they did not choose to participate. Several declined immediately before the festival. Unfortunately, our program books were printed with the promise of "kosher delights" before it became clear that no kosher vendors would be present.

In an attempt to satisfy some minimal kashrut requirements, the coordinators of Fressers' Paradise purchased packaged kosher meats, buns, mayonnaise and served these to people on paper plates without using utensils. They could not obtain supervision for this kind of operation from the Kashrut Council. The accompanying signage explained that all the ingredients used were kosher (they did not pretend to be a COR supervised establishment). They were not able to rent a kosher kitchen, hire staff or buy pre-packaged foods in the short and hectic time remaining immediately before the festival.

We apologize for the distress and inconvenience that the above situation caused. We want to be clear that our commitment is to solve this problem and ensure that all future Ashkenaz programs will include strictly kosher foods. To this end, a kashrut committee will be struck. We invite members of the community to become involved in making this happen. For more information, please call 416-703-6892.

Bruce Rosensweet
Executive Director, Ashkenaz
Toronto

Canadians at Dieppe and Arnhem

I am researching the names of Canadian Jews who fought, died, were wounded, or were PoWs at the battles of Dieppe in August 1947 and Arnhem in September 1944.

If you were there or know men who were, please send me full details – name, rank, number, age, unit, date and place of birth or death or place where they were a PoW. If you are willing to send a photograph for our archives of such a person in uniform, this would be even more useful. When completed, I hope to have it published and will send copies to appropriate archives.

Please write to me in London.

Martin Sugarman
Association of Jewish Ex-Servicemen and Women
16 Brenthouse Rd.
London, England
E9 6Q6

Liked Polish version of the Dybbuk

I feel that I owe the sponsors of Toronto's Ashkenaz Festival an opinion of The Dybbuk contrary to Helen Yellin's critique in your issue of Sept. 25.

I saw the play this past summer at the Edinburgh Festival, same play, same all-gentile Polish cast.

None of the productions of The Dybbuk I've seen before over the years captured as this one did the haunting story of a tragic, doomed love enduring beyond the grave. The fact that a Polish company of players had striven, in a language foreign to them, to understand and come to terms with a play with such quintessentially Jewish nuances only added to the poignant effect for me.

I can understand some people being offended by the near-explicit sexual scenes. We've learned to accept that in the all-encompassing genius of our treasured Issac Bashevis Singer. If it enhances and illuminates the story, then it belongs there. I felt it surely belonged in The Dybbuk I saw.

Abe Gruber
Montreal

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures.

Perspectives

'So great was this man...'

This year, the festival of Sukkot marks the 200th yahrzeit of the death of Rabbi Eliyahu, the Gaon of Vilna. The CJN asked Rabbi Baruch Taub to reflect upon Rabbi Eliyahu and his contributions to the generations that followed.

"If I thought I was as great as the Gaon of Vilna I could not endure the arrogance, but if I didn't try, I couldn't live with myself."

This statement attributed to Rabbi Yisrael Salanter, founder of the Mussar movement and one of the leading moralists of the last century, puts the Gaon of Vilna into proper perspective. The Gaon was and is the paradigm of the quintessential Jew. For generations, Jewish mothers would encourage their young children with a less poetic version. Playing on the similarity of the Yiddish word for "desire" and Vilna the city of the Gaon, they would say: "Vill nor und du vest zein a Gaon." (If you desire it, you too could be like the Gaon.) What is clear is that the Gaon represents the ideal.

Rabbi Eliyahu, the Gaon of Vilna, was born in Vilna in 1720 and died in 1797 on the festival of Sukkot. This year will mark his 200th yahrzeit. Rabbi Eliyahu was recognized as the premier Torah scholar of his generation while only in his 20s – no simple accomplishment when one contemplates his older contemporaries, such as Rabbi Yechezkel Landau of Prague and Rabbi Yisroel Lipschitz, author of the Tifereth Yisrael commentary on the Mishnah.

Rabbi Eliyahu's famous student Rabbi Chaim Voloziner commented: "I know the Babylonian Talmud as well as the average Jew knows Ashrei (a prayer recited thrice daily.) The Gaon knows it like reciting Ashrei backwards!"

So profound was his acumen and piety that after his passing, the Vilna kehillah never again appointed a rabbi for the city. The dayan who served as head of the beit din (rabbinical court) functioned in that capacity without the title.

Vilna and indeed Lithuania were distinguished for the high level of Jewish scholarship of the masses. Unique among the Jewish centres of Europe, Vilna was referred to as "Yerushalayim d'Lita," Jerusalem of Lithuania. The Gaon was its centrepiece.

So great was this man that he was called Gaon, a title of honor and distinction which was a throwback to 900 years earlier to the Gaonic period. Since that time, the title had not been used. In fact when one uses the term to this day, the Gaon can only mean one person, Rabbi Eliyahu, also known as the GRA, an acronym for Gaon Rabbi Eliyahu.

The Gaon was not only the link to the previous generation of Torah scholarship, but was also viewed as a "visitor" from the generation of Rashi. It was the Gaon's student, Rabbi Chaim, who through the founding of the Volozin-er Yeshivah, was the father of the Yeshivah movement of today. The notion of a large Torah academy with a regimented study routine was developed by Rabbi Chaim with the encouragement of his teacher the Gaon.

The Gaon's contribution to scholarship was vast. He amended all of our classic texts: the Babylonian Talmud, the Jerusalem Talmud, the Shulchan Aruch (Code of Jewish Law), the Zohar and more. Whenever original manuscripts have been discovered, the text invariably conforms with the Gaon's corrections. Yet before he undertook to amend a letter, a word or a phrase he fasted an entire day – not that he was in the habit of indulging lavishly. It is recorded that from the age of 30, the Gaon slept a total of two hours during every 24 hours and never more than half an hour at a time!

His knowledge was encyclopedic and he was accomplished in all disciplines. From his commentary on the laws of the new month, we see his uncanny grasp of astronomy, math and the sciences. He authored a book on mathematics. He wrote music, reportedly teaching that unless one has an understanding of music one cannot fully appreciate the Psalms of King David.

The 18th century was the defining historic period of the Chassidic and Misnagdic movements. The Gaon's influence during this period tempered some of the excesses suggested by the adherents of those movements.

At a certain period in his life, the Gaon disappeared. He went into Galut (wandering) for five years, which was not uncommon among the early pietists. He travelled throughout the hamlets of eastern Europe as an anonymous poor Jew. He went in search of hidden Torah talent and he often found it, encouraging young rabbis and scholars in their work. Often he was discovered through his brilliant talmudic discussions with local rabbis.

Upon the Gaon's death, a yeshivah was established in his home and adjacent study, where 10 outstanding scholars continued his system of study.

There is ample precedent for a fitting memorial on his yahrzeit. On his 100th yahrzeit, the community gathered for a memorial, at which time additional Torah curricula were inaugurated in the academy. The yahrzeit was seen as an occasion to increase the study of Torah.

Also on the 100th yahrzeit, the Bais Medrash Eliyahu was established in Jerusalem. As well, a library was founded in his memory and people were invited to donate rare manuscripts and texts. The Gaon himself never saw Eretz Yisrael although he attempted to relocate several times. His students, however, did so and they established the Ashkenazi community in Eretz Yisrael. In fact, the order of prayers in the Ashkenazi rite in Eretz Yisrael, known as Nusach Eretz Yisrael, is essentially Minhag HaGRA, according to the custom of Rabbi Eliyahu.

The 100th yahrzeit was viewed with particular anticipation. The Gaon had left a sealed letter to be opened 100 years after his passing. The letter was opened, but that was the easy part. Deciphering its contents was quite another story. It was sent to leading scholars and Kabbalists for interpretation, but to this day, there is only the faintest understanding of its coded message. It has been suggested that Rabbi Eliyahu's letter indicated the time of the final redemption.

> 'At a certain period, the Gaon disappeared.'

The 150th yahrzeit in 1948 included a special gathering in Jerusalem and the establishment of two new synagogues, one in Jerusalem and one in Tel Aviv, bearing the name of Rabbi Eliyahu. A valiant attempt was made to establish an institute to study the GRA's works, but it did not come to fruition. It should be remembered that this was taking place during Sukkot 1948, the year of the establishment of the State of Israel. Understandably, with war raging, this venture was curtailed.

It is indicative of the expanse of Rabbi Eliyahu's scholarly accomplishments that there are institutes of advanced Torah study devoted to publishing additional works of the Gaon still in our time. To this day, the Gaon's works are central to our understanding of Torah.

> Additional works of the Gaon are still being published.

In our day, there is an annual memorial gathering and scholarly lecture on the Gaon's yahrzeit in the famed Beth Medrash Gevohah in Lakewood, N.J. This custom was begun by Rabbi Aaron Kotler and is continued by his heirs.

This past year, the consul general of Lithuania visited the Lakewood yeshivah and witnessed over 2,000 young men studying in the Beth Medrash. When he was informed that they were studying the Vilna Talmud and commentaries of Rabbi Eliyahu, he was visibly moved to tears.

This coming Sukkot will mark the 200th yahrzeit of Rabbi Eliyahu, the Gaon of Vilna. Jewish custom dictates the invitation of ushpizen, sainted guests, into our Sukkah and by extension into our lives. It would be fitting for us all to contemplate "inviting" the Gaon and what he represents into our lives.

To engage in the pursuit of Jewish knowledge through the avenue of Torah study would serve as a lasting memorial to this scholar among scholars and would bring us closer to Sinai.

Rabbi Taub is spiritual leader of Beth Avraham Yoseph Congregation in Thornhill, Ont.

Opinions

Breath of realism offered

Vancouver's Combined Jewish Appeal campaign opened with a bang. The program featured three "heroines of aliyah" and a major address by Labor MK Yael Dayan, activist for human rights and staunch advocate of the peace process.

By Jean M. Gerber in Vancouver

Three women who made aliyah were there to tell us their own personal stories. Shira, from the United States, described her entry to Israel – half rueful, half whimsical, and wholly understandable to many in the room who have visited and lived in Israel for any length of time. Her work in resettlement of newcomers to Israel introduced her to the other speakers.

Yardena, from Ethiopia, told us how her family of many brothers and sisters trekked for days to the refugee camp where they would live for months until brought to Jerusalem – "It was always Jerusalem to which we were going," she explained. Her little sister, whom she carried for days, died in that camp. Her 100-year-old grandmother made it to Israel. In Israel she went to school regularly for the first time in her life. Today she is planning a career in counselling after getting her advanced degree.

There was not a dry eye in the house, especially after Shira interjected – "but I should tell you that Yardena's brother was one who did not make it. He committed suicide in Israel."

Sarah from Sarajevo spoke next. Her family were Muslims. Her mother, she said, has been recognized by Israel as a Righteous Gentile for her efforts in saving Jews from the Nazis during World War II. Sarah, her husband and her daughter have converted to Judaism. She spoke of her love and respect for what her mother had done, and of her decision to become a Jew. A ripple of laughter went through the audience when she described her beit din with the rabbis. "I said to them, 'I have a few questions for you!'" Her love of the people and of the religion was infectious, and tears turned to smiles.

But I must add that from where I sat, I could see at least five other Jews by Choice whose conversions were being disregarded at that very moment by the rabbis Sarah confronted.

But the main event was still to come – an address by Yael Dayan. Dayan is as passionate about Israel as were the other speakers. She chided the rabbinate for its attempts to delegitimize non-Orthodox conversions, rabbis and converts. She claimed the right to call herself a Jew despite her non-observance, and recounted (to our horror) what happened to one of the victims of the recent Ben Yehuda bombing. The 15-year-old boy, not recognized by the rabbinate as Jewish, was refused burial in a Jewish cemetery and for days his mother searched for a place where he could be buried with dignity. He rests in the Baha'i cemetery in Haifa.

Dayan ended with a plea for Diaspora Jewry not to abandon Israel, to continue to support democracy in that country and to picture us as one people committed to a search for peace, despite the present situation.

(What a pity no one ever taught Dayan that by her advocacy for justice and human rights she is performing mitzvot.)

The fireworks started about 10 seconds after the singing of Hatikvah, which ended the evening: outrage at criticism of Orthodoxy, outrage at Dayan's dismissal of the need for conversion process and observance of mitzvot.

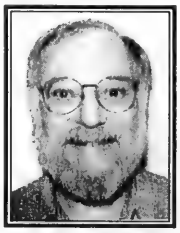
In all that clatter, the message of the evening should not be lost, because the evening was a breath of realism. These four women gave us a brutally honest picture of Israel today, with its greatness and its failures, its divisions, its tensions, its outright disdain of one side for the other. Let us not sink back into platitudes about being one, about building up the land without regard for its inhabitants. Let us not idealize the process of taking in immigrants whose lives undergo severe shock, often exacerbated by misunderstanding and even outright rejection.

Let us know Israel for what she is, and let her know us for what we are.

One last word about a word – pluralism. This word is in bad odor, having been dumped in favor of "diversity" or some such euphemism. Sorry, I cannot agree. Judaism is pluralistic, should be pluralistic, must be open to many voices if it is to survive. It is not the narrow road, but the broad way that should lead us to Zion. If we allow the fanatics among us to have their way, they will take us down a dark path. Give me the whole picture, presented by these four women, and let me decide. I will not abandon Judaism or the Jews if they are not perfect, as I hope they will not abandon me.

Sukkot, suburbs, corn, critters

Among other things, the festival of Sukkot commemorates the very first Jewish suburb. In that fragile and inhospitable desert subdivision, manna made prayers for the future supermarket unnecessary. And the concept of "en suite" was still a distant dream.



By Shel Krakofsky in London

Sukkot was established to coincide with the final harvest of the year in a spirit of Divine thanksgiving. The Torah refers to the agricultural nature of the festival as Chag Ha'asif, the festival of ingathering. In the siddur, this holiday is called Zman Simchatainu, the season of our rejoicing.

Here in Komoka, a small farming community just west of nearby London, we live on a few acres my wife likes to call a "garni" — bigger than a garden, smaller than a farm. We grow our own assortment of fruits, vegetables, herbs and flowers. My own particular passion is a corn patch I assiduously tend during the summer months.

I love looking at the corn grow, watching it rise quickly from the mere whiskers on the soil after spring planting. It is so soothing to listen to the wind rustle through the stalks with gentle and wistful sounds that increase in frequency and softness as the harvest approaches.

They grow as sturdy as Louisville Sluggers, corn so wondrously used as a backdrop in the movie, Field of Dreams. The foliage sways as nature's pennants. Corn can declare the primacy of all that is real though unpredictable. Like the Sukkot lulav, corn can bind our dreams with our lives, not separate them.

When fall arrives, my corn harvest is threatened by local deer, raccoons, possums, rabbits and groundhogs. As every passionate gardener knows, these critters can be maddening. My farmer neighbors have offered several suggestions over the years. A rifle. No way. A snarling guard dog. Nope. Barbed wire. Not for me. An electric fence. Sorry.

I don't mind sharing our produce with our four-legged friends and besides, after the harvest, no matter who has done the eating, the dried stalks of corn make wonderful schach for our sukkah — a tip you won't get from Martha Stewart.

Our scarecrow, an ugly fellow with a New York Yankees' cap is called George (Steinbrenner or Costanza?). He protects us from nothing. A mere ornament. The animals consider George their personal maître d' as they chomp away.

This year I tried sound. An all-night rock station in the field. It worked, though not all the cobs survived my newest nostrum.

Some animals like to dinner and dance.

ONE SEED AT A TIME

my neighbor, a real farmer idles by on his tractor and with a wave turns me into a colleague despite my courteous refusal to borrow his plow

bemused, he watches me hoe
the furrows by hand helped only by worms, frogs and insects in camouflage working in ways
no tractor can understand preparing this pulsing placental ground for seeding

I bend in reverence, in reverie on hands and knees to offer dried kernels of corn in communion touching, redeeming this earth

the corn is sweet long before harvest planted one word at a time in ordered lines
without hurry or ease

the only way to sow and soar
Bless and be Blessed

Gypsies and Jews

Of late Gypsies have been much in the news, especially since a number of them have arrived in Canada as refugees, having left Czechoslovakia and other countries because of discrimination in their homelands.

By Rabbi Gunther Plaut in Toronto

As most readers will know, this ancient nomadic people should really be called Roma or Romany (the latter is also the name of their language). Therefore, in deference to them we should speak of them in the way, they would like to be known. In the same way we also ought to avoid using the word "to gyp" — a derogatory term that is exactly parallel to the equally despicable "to Jew." (Incidentally, the term Gypsy is derived from Egyptian). Language frequently conveys prejudice, often unbeknownst to the speaker, but the People of the Book ought to know better.

Yet, when I grew up in a small university town in the Western Germany, I was warned by my grandparents not to be out alone at night, "for the Gypsies may steal you." This warning scared me enough to insist that the windows in my bedroom be shut tightly, fearing that the thieves might climb up to the third floor and abduct me.

The more I hear of the Romany, the more I become aware of the similarities between their treatment and the way we Jews were looked upon in the not too distant past. We were considered thoroughly untrustworthy, and so are the Romany in the European countries where they live. We were considered by people like Fred ("None is too many") Blair as incapable of being integrated into the Canadian polity and so, in the view of a lot of Canadians, are the Romany, even though theirs is a culture of which we know little — except that we "know" it is inferior. We also are aware that they are basically a nomadic people, a fact which seems to us urban dwellers as a derogation of our lifestyle.

We should remember that the Hebrew Bible exhibits a strong streak of suspicion, not about nomads, but about city dwellers. The Torah tells us that Cain was the first founder of a city — the implication being that cities tend toward violence and human indifference. Many of the biblical greats came from a background of nomadic life, and especially so our patriarchs and matriarchs. The prophet Elijah was a nomad par excellence, and in Jewish tradition, it is he who will presage the coming of the Messiah.

The Romany want to preserve their culture, and so do we. It is difficult for them, and so it is for us, especially in an environment that holds out great rewards for assimilation.

All told, we ought to be the first to speak up when others talk derogatorily of "Gypsies," and when they say that "these people have no place in Canada, as refugees or otherwise." To me, the great attraction of Canada is not its mineral wealth or even its natural beauty. Canada is distinctive because here, people of 120 or more different national and cultural backgrounds live together peaceably and demonstrate to any and all that humans from every part of the globe are all children of God.

The Kirshner File

Egypt's rapprochement with Israel recalled

By Sheldon Kirshner

Boutros Boutros-Ghali, the last secretary-general of the United Nations, was a central figure in the arduous talks which culminated in the 1978 Camp David accords and the 1979 Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty. Plucked out of obscurity by President Anwar Sadat, and appointed minister of state for foreign affairs on the eve of Sadat's historic trip to Israel in 1977, Ghali was not only a key negotiator but a staunch defender of Egypt's astonishing rapprochement with the Jewish state.

Twenty years on, Ghali has written an intriguing memoir of that momentous era in peacemaking, Egypt's Road To Jerusalem (Random House), a book based almost entirely on his diaries. It is frank, revealing and caustic, an account which adds to our understanding of Sadat's motives and the personalities who shaped a new political environment in the Middle East.

When Ghali was summoned to government service in October 1977, about three weeks before Sadat's journey to Jerusalem, he was a professor of political science at Cairo University, the scion of a respected Coptic Christian family whose grandfather and uncle had held the position of prime minister.

Initially, Ghali's task had been to prepare an outline for a speech Sadat intended to deliver in the Knesset. But with the resignation of the minister of state for foreign affairs and the foreign minister, who refused to accompany Sadat to Israel, Ghali stepped into the breach. In the face of vitriolic personal attacks against him in the Arab world, Leia, his Jewish wife, supported his acceptance of the mission.

Not to put too fine a point on it, Sadat's decision to address the Knesset and confer with Israel's leadership was not universally popular in Egypt. Sadat's closest aides were horrified by the plan.

To Ghali, who was filled with emotion at the outset of this "unbelievable journey," Israel was like a planet in outer space." For decades it had been the enemy, the cancer in the body of the Arab world, which we had to all in our power to destroy."

Once in Israel, the foreign minister, Moshe Dayan, asked Ghali to convey a message to Sadat to exclude all references to the PLO in his speech. But Ghali, an indefatigable partisan of the Palestinian cause, ignored the request. And when he and Sadat visited Yad Vashem, they refused to don a yarmulke.

Both sides were disappointed by the outcome of Sadat's visit, and a wide gap remained in their respective positions. Israel sought a separate peace with Egypt, while Egypt's goal was a comprehensive settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute. Nonetheless, Ghali tried to convince his interlocutors of the seriousness and sincerity of Egypt's quest for peace.

In a reference to Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin and Defence Minister Ezer Weizman, Ghali observes: "I wanted them to understand that President Sadat's initiative was not a tactic we were using to regain our land in order to prepare for the next war."

Later, Ghali attempted to sell Dayan on the idea of a Palestinian state in the Gaza Strip, arguing that it would inspire Arab trust in Israel's intentions. Dayan, whom he describes as "decisive and clear," rejected the concept on the grounds that Gaza lacked economic and financial resources. (Interestingly enough, Yitzhak Rabin made an identical proposal to the PLO in 1995, but Yasser Arafat rebuffed it).

As negotiations dragged on, Ghali realized that Sadat was not as committed to the Palestinians as he had imagined. Sadat's overarching objective was to regain the Sinai Peninsula, conquered by Israel during the Six Day War. "Sadat had concluded that Egypt could not undertake a major effort to gain the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people as long as Egyptian territory lay under Israeli occupation. By contrast, I was convinced that no treaty of peace could endure unless it included measures for Palestinian rights, the minimum being the right of self-determination."

But this was not to be, and Ghali argues that Sadat's success in winning back the Sinai was achieved at a heavy price. Egypt's treaty with Israel, he contends, marginalized the Palestinians, decreased Egypt's leverage on the future of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip and undermined its pre-eminent place in the Arab world.

Ghali, however, supported the broad scope of Sadat's strategy. Egypt had sacrificed enough blood and treasure on behalf of the Arabs and the Palestinians, and the time had come for an Egypt-first policy. Besides, he was certain that there was no viable alternative to Egypt's "path of dialogue and negotiation" with Israel.

In his view, Dayan was the most flexible Israeli leader with regard to the Palestinian question.

Boutros Boutros-Ghali

He is less charitable toward Yosef Burg, the minister in charge of the Israeli team negotiating autonomy for the Palestinians. "...it was clear that he knew nothing about the Palestinians. He talked as if they did not exist in the West Bank (and) Gaza..."

Ghali believes that Egyptian diplomacy was hemmed in by two constraints — Israel's refusal to acquiesce to a sovereign Palestinian entity and the Arab refusal to recognize Egypt's treaty with Israel.

He discloses that he aroused the ire of Menachem Begin, Israel's prime minister, for championing Palestinian rights. Indeed, Begin urged Sadat to fire Ghali. On the other hand, Ghali reminds us that he was continually denounced in the Arab press as a traitor and defeatist.

Ghali is of the opinion that Sadat was correct in believing that only the Likud could forge a treaty with Egypt. But he thinks that Sadat was dead wrong in failing "to see that only the Labor party could achieve peace with the Palestinians."

Sadat, he reveals without elaboration, distrusted the Labor party, and was confident that Begin would fulfil his promise to settle the matter of Palestinian self-rule in the West Bank and Gaza. As we now know, the autonomy talks collapsed, and the Palestinian issue was virtually shelved until the Madrid peace process beginning in 1991.

Being charged with the responsibility of promoting the 1979 treaty, Ghali was often the official whom Jewish leaders from the Diaspora met on fact-finding missions in Egypt. He is sarcastic about their attitude. They listened carefully when Ghali spoke about the normalization of relations between Israel and Egypt. But "they heard nothing" when he raised the Palestinian issue.

Occasionally, Ghali is downright arrogant. When Burg goes out of his way to show the Egyptians Tel Aviv by night, he writes: "Burg and his colleagues were very proud of Israel's wealth, power and glamour, which they thought would overwhelm me, but they did not... He enjoyed the tour and was far more impressed than we were."

At times, Ghali displays flashes of droll humor. At a dinner party in Dayan's home, Ghali presented him with a gift of gold cuff links with his name inscribed in hieroglyphics. Yadin, an archeologist by training but a nitpicker by inclination, commented that there was a "spelling" mistake in the hieroglyphs for "Dayan." Still, Ghali has the last word: "Yadin's editing did not dampen the pleasure of the gift."

In closing Egypt's Road To Jerusalem, Ghali recalls his luck at having missed the 1981 military parade in which Sadat was assassinated. His friend, the Egyptian minister of defence, informed him that he had been a prime target of the Muslim fundamentalist assassins. Fate had spared Ghali for greater things.

JIAS TORONTO Jewish Immigrant Aid Services 75th Anniversary UJA Federation in cooperation with
"CELEBRATING OUR HERITAGE"
GALA CONCERT
starring
THERESA TOVA
Star, author & winner of
4 Doras for "Still the Night"
MARK SKAZINETSKY
Assoc. Concertmaster, TSO
IGOR GEFTER
Cellist
MARINA SURGAN
Pianist, National Ballet
ARMAND MOYAL
Cantor
YEFIM ADLER & BEN STEINBERG
Composers
BEST NEW MUSICAL PLAY
BEST MUSICAL PRODUCTION
BEST FEMALE PERFORMANCE
BEST SOUND & MUSIC
Monday October 27, 7:30 p.m.
GEORGE WESTON RECITAL HALL
Ford Centre for the Performing Arts
TICKET PRICES: $18, $36, & $75.*
*$75. TICKET INCLUDES POST CONCERT RECEPTION
for the time of your life call today!
FOR TICKETS & INFORMATION CALL: (416) 697-0613

Greetings from the

PRIDE of ISRAEL

The spirit of the High Holy Days is still with us!

Bring your family to join our family for a fun

SIMCHAT TORAH CELEBRATION!

with •food •dancing •singing •fun

Friday, October 24, at 10:00 a.m.

59 Lissom Crescent, Willowdale

It is time you joined the Pride of Israel Family
A modern Conservative Synagogue.
It's easy — call for your membership information package NOW.

Find your roots — don't be left out!

Be part of Toronto's young Jewish community
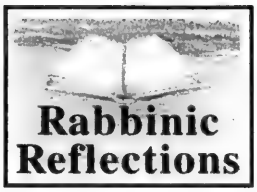
Tel: 416-226-0111 Fax: 416-226-0128



Rabbinic Reflections

Patience needed to understand G-d

By RABBI MOSHE YERES

A while ago I was driving down one of the interstates in New York. As I was going at a fair clip I was able to pass a number of transport trucks. Various companies had their ads and wares plastered to the sides of their trucks, advertising the contents of their vehicles. One truck in particular however caught my eye. There, emblazoned on the rear of the trailer in large letters, was the message and phone number: "Call 1-800-DIAL G-O-D."

I could hardly control my driving foot as I pulled into the left lane and slowly accelerated past this "heavenly messenger." As I passed the truck I began to make out the smaller words printed underneath the phone number: "G-O-D — Guaranteed Overnight Delivery." I later found out that this indeed was a truly legitimate and mortal courier company that operates in the northeast United States.

Truth be told, all too often we think of G-d (HaShem) in this fashion — Guaranteed Overnight Delivery. When I have what I perceive as a real need, I expect and even at times demand, an instantaneous response from G-d. I turn to G-d, dial up my prayer or request and expect that HaShem will issue forth with a swift answer to ameliorate my problem. And if I do not see His lightning quick response, don't I become discouraged, dismayed, feel let down? Some even have lost faith.

Alas for man, G-d does not always act in such a way. A thousand years are as a moment in His sight. G-d listens and hears but does not always respond to us in knee-jerk response. Without tackling the issue of good and evil (Tzaddik vera lo'), suffice it to say that the Almighty maintains plans for an entire universe, of which I am but an infinitesimally small compound. Our modern society is built on the concept of immediate personal gratification. G-d's rule however is founded on a global comprehensive vision of mankind's total existence (indeed all of life's survival). I must recognize that my personal request may not necessarily dovetail with the bigger picture that G-d is trying to create for the universe.

The holiday of Sukkot varies from the other biblical festivals in that it does not mark a cathartic spiritual event. It does not point to a singular date when G-d showed his immediate powers. Passover has of course the Exodus: Shavuot, the revelation at Sinai. Even Rosh Hashanah is tied to unique and special events, for Rosh Hashanah commemorates the creation of the world and Yom Kippur the arrival of Moses with the Second Tablets. But Sukkot? There is no one day on the calendar of our history that Jewish chronology identifies with the events of Sukkot. The Bible tells us that we celebrate Sukkot because G-d housed Bnei Yisrael in "sukkot."

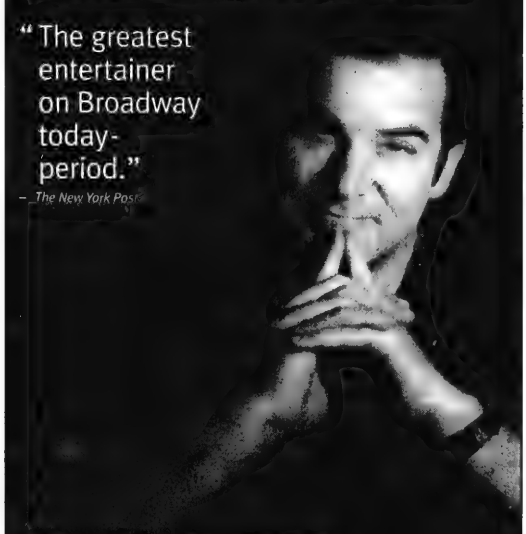
The Midrash and Talmud debate whether these sukkot were booths and huts or the heavenly clouds of glory ('ananei hakavod) sent to protect the Israelites from the elements. But the point is, there is no one specific event and day that the festival of Sukkot points to. There is no day of immediate and overt response by G-d. Sukkot represents a slow process, the plodding journey from Egypt to the Promised Land, a journey that lasted not only 40 years, but literally a lifetime; for the Bible tells us that, with few exceptions, those who left Egypt did not enter Canaan. There was no immediate gratification on this trip, just the need for trust and belief in G-d as protector of man. The lesson to us: G-d watches over us, even if my prayer is not answered today.

Kohelet (Ecclesiastes),which is read in the synagogue on Sukkot succinctly concludes "sof daver hakol nishem — in the end of the matter when all is said and done..." To appreciate G-d's role and rule, we need the patience to wait for the end of the story. In the interim, we heed the call of Kohelet: fear G-d and keep his commandments. Chag Samayach.

Rabbi Yeres serves as rosh yeshivah of Yeshivat Bnei Akiva Or Chaim and Ulpanat Orot.

MANDY PATINKIN
In Concert
with Paul Ford on piano

"The greatest entertainer on Broadway today-period."
– The New York Post



ON SALE NOW
2 PERFORMANCES ONLY!
NOVEMBER 22 AT 8PM
NOVEMBER 23 AT 3PM
CALL 872-2262

To reserve your tickets, visit any TicketMaster outlet or the Hummingbird Centre box office. Groups of 20 or more call (416) 393-7463.

EZ Rocks

HUMMINGBIRD CENTRE
FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS
1 FRONT STREET EAST, TORONTO, ONTARIO M5E 1B2

Guest Voices

Child poverty casts shadow over Canada

By SANDRA STERN

Recent international reports by the United Nations and Fortune magazine have raised Canada to great heights as the most desirable place in the world to live and conduct business.

Canada provides the example of a social safety net and societal values that are envied by the world community. However, one dark shadow stands over Canada in the form of 1.3 million Canadian children who not only live in poverty, but in many cases, face neglect and abuse in their daily lives. This fact raises serious concerns about the risks to our social fabric and the trust we have in the traditional values of our society.

A child in Canada is now more likely to be poor than a child in 17 out of 18 industrial nations around the world. Only the United States has a worse record for child poverty than Canada. Too many of our children are not having their fundamental needs met and we stand idly by. Too many parents, having faced more than 25 years of profound social change, lack the assistance needed to raise healthy children and to strengthen the family.

The solution is available: affordable and non-stigmatizing programs to support child development at all levels. We need to end child hunger; provide a social support network to strengthen families; give children a healthy start prenatally, at home, in child care and in schools; offer children safe places during non school hours; instill in children a sense of community service; and ensure that each child has a caring adult in their lives. Paul D. Steinhauer, professor of Psychiatry at the University of Toronto, has worked for over 20 years to provide the solution.

The challenge is for corporate Canada to champion the first Canadian summit dedicated to child development and welfare. Corporate Canada must lead Canadian society in a partnership with other groups to care for and protect our children. The work cannot be done by government alone.

Corporate leaders have the leadership qualities, the problem solving skills, the resources and the vision to tackle the problem. This national non-partisan event would include leaders from business, government, foundations, professionals and social service agencies devoted to healthy child development.

Jordan was five weeks old when he died of starvation, Shanay was 21 months when she was beaten to death and Tiffani was three months old when her ribs were broken and she was asphyxiated. These children, terrified, alone and in pain remind us of another time and another place when children were also terrified and alone. We owe it to our children to do everything we can to better the lives of all children.

Canadian children need action and Canadian society needs action. Corporate Canada is in a truly unique position to lead Canada in an unprecedented way toward becoming attractive to the rest of the world for its ability to compete and for being able to maintain a social solidarity that will be the envy of the industrialized nations.

The time is right, the opportunity is extraordinary for corporate Canada to get involved. A summit on child development and welfare should be convened by the leaders of corporate Canada as soon as possible. Government will surely follow the example of business.

Sandra Stern is a concerned citizen who lives in Toronto.

Books

By Bernard Baskin

Richler in fine form

Barney's Version*, by Mordecai Richler (Knopf Canada, $32.95).

Mordecai Richler is, beyond doubt, Canada's best known and most widely admired Jewish novelist. The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz (1959) is regarded as a minor classic in the coming-of-age genre. Duddy, older, richer and somewhat wiser, plays a small part in Barney's Version.

This, the author's 10th novel, the first in eight years, is quite similar in style to St. Urbain's Horseman (1971) and Joshua Then and Now (1980). Like them, an improbable plot unfolds in an episodic, fragmented manner, full of digressions and flashbacks.

At 67, Barney, the novel's protagonist and narrator, ensconced in his once beloved Montreal, now being ruined by Quebec separatism, looks back with nostalgic satisfaction at years spent in Paris during the 1950s with a Bohemian coterie of expatriates. Among them were Bernard "Boogie" Moscovitch, Barney's best friend and mentor, whom years later, Barney is widely believed to have murdered; and also his first wife, Clara, an emotionally unbalanced, talented artist who kills herself with an overdose of sleeping pills. Barney, who was understandably unsympathetic when she produced a stillborn black child, is tortured by guilt feelings about her death.

Barney's father, Izzy, boorish and illiterate is the only Jewish member of Montreal's police force. His mother, obsessed with movie stars and the bygone culture of a previous period (she named her son after the comic strip character Barney Google), gradually loses touch with reality.

One is reminded of Joshua Shapiro's father in Joshua Then and Now who is an ex-boxer and bank robber, and his mother, an aspiring burlesque queen, who performs for a gang of teenage boys at her son's bar mitzvah.

Barney, who has made a fortune as owner of the TV company, Totally Unnecessary Productions, is an alcoholic who is given to sexual fantasies (described in graphic detail in this sex-drenched narrative) and is witty, caustic and weak-willed.

His second wife, referred to only as the second Mrs. Panofsky, is well-meaning, unmercifully garrulous, conventional in her ideas and actions, and harassed by her uptight, pretentious mock waspish parents. Richler has a great deal of fun in reporting her telephone conversations with her harridan mother.

At their wedding, Barney falls in love with nubile Miriam Greenberg, a wedding guest, who eventually becomes his wife of 30 years and the mother of his three children. Barney is driven to write the version of his life in order to counter what he believes will be a book by a long time nemesis, from his Paris days, filled with lies and calumnies about him.

At the end, a hapless victim of his own weaknesses, he loses Miriam and gradually drifts into Alzheimer disease.

Almost all of the characters are Jewish. When Barney decides, in a brief spasm of respectability, to raise money for the United Jewish Appeal, the fundraising professional advises him that every time some fanatic "daubs a swastika on a synagogue wall or knocks over a stone in one of our cemeteries, our guys get so nervous they phone me with pledges. So, things being how they are this year, what you've got to do is slam-dunk your target about the Holocaust. Shove Auschwitz at him. Buchenwald. War criminals thriving in Canada to this day. Tell him, 'Can you be sure it won't happen again, even here, and then where will you go?' Israel is your insurance policy, you say."

Barney's Version is bawdy, colorful, and filled with comic energy. There are a number of hilarious set pieces and the objects of his satire are numerous and familiar.

The book's final portion, concerned with his relationship with Miriam is often touching. The reader is left with a vague sympathy for Barney, not a bad guy really, but one of life's losers who could never rise above his credo that life is absurd.

Ambiguity is at the heart of the book. Did Barney murder Boogie? Is he a misfit or a hero manque? Should Miriam have left her difficult but desperate husband? It is no wonder that Richler decides that Barney wanted to be buried in a Protestant cemetery with a Star of David on his monument.

RRSP MEMBER CIPF RRIF
ONT. NFLD. HQ
Government Guaranteed Securities
7.10%*
minimum $40,000 portfolio
ask about our monthly pay
CALL 416-512-2511 • JOHN KITCHEN
*RATES SUBJECT TO CHANGE • 04/18
TD EVERGREEN WEALTH MANAGEMENT
A Division of TD Securities Inc. A Subsidiary of TD Bank

NEW ARRIVALS DAILY
brooker's
FALL & WINTER 1997
LADIES' DESIGNER FASHIONS
WAREHOUSE SALE
50% OFF EVERYTHING
3 DAYS ONLY
THURSDAY, OCT. 16 10 a.m. - 8 p.m.
FRIDAY, OCT. 17 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.
SATURDAY, OCT. 18 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
CALL OUR FASHION HOTLINE FOR MORE INFORMATION!
brooker's
33 GLEN CAMERON RD.
UNIT #4 - THORNHILL
(905) 889-1356
2nd light North of Steeles off Yonge St.
HUSH PUPPIES®
DISCONTINUED STYLES & COLOURS
For Men & Women
LOADS OF NEW DESIGNER LABELS
LOADS OF NEW DESIGNER LABELS

Time to enjoy some great food in the sukkah

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

Your sukkah is built. Your lulav and etrog are ready. And with Sukkot almost here, the obvious questions is...what's to eat? How about some seasonal fare – like hearts of lulav (palm) salad and sufferin' sukkah-tash? [http://jewishfamily.com/Holidays/sukkah4.htm]

While you're digesting those suggestions, it's time to talk about some of the wonderful food for thought about the festival of Sukkot you can find on the Jewish Highway. Start your travels at Virtual Jerusalem's Sukkot site [http://www.jer1.co.il/city_services/holidays/sukkot-8Atzeret/index.htm]. There is an illustrated guide to the laws and customs of building a sukkah, directions for buying and shaking a lulav and etrog and more recipes. Nothing could be better on a cool mid-autumn day in the sukkah than to sit down to Gran Sasto's special Sukkot tzimmes along with an apricot brisket and nectarine pie [http://www.jer1.co.il/city_services/holidays/sukkot-8Atzeret/recipes.htm]. As the guide says, "Everything tastes better in a sukkah." For still more recipes see [http://www.bpe.com/food/recipes/fiszer/succoth.html] and [http://www.jewish.com/bk960927/cook.htm].

One of the most perplexing customs of the holiday is to read King Solomon's Megillat Kohelet or the Book of Ecclesiastes found in Hebrew at [http://www1.snunit.k12.il/kodesh/bible/mkuhl.html] and in English at [http://www.jubilee.org:80/bible/21.ecclesiastes.html]. Why, during a festival known as "the time of our happiness," do we read a book which examines philosophies of life and concludes "Hakol havel" (That all is worthless)? Rav Mordechai Elon explains that connection and looks at the concept of happiness at [http://www.intournet.co.il/mtv/psa-sukkot.html].

Looking for more? Try Jewish Family & Life magazine [http://jewishfamily.com/Holidays/sukkah1.htm], Ohr Somayach [http://www.jer1.co.il/education/education/ohr/special/sukkos/index.htm], and for a glimpse of David Ben-Gurion at his sukkah at Kibbutz Sede-Boker, go to [http://www.bgu.ac.il/Ben-Gurion/suc1.htm].

And do you have memories of a favorite Sukkot that you'd like to share? Then go to the Sukkah Forum [http://jewishfamily.com/forum/sukkah.htm] to read some other contributions or add one of your own.

Finally, what would a holiday be without music? There's a wide assortment of tunes at [http://www.jewish-music.com/niggun.html]. Over at [http://www.613.org/music/niggun.html], you can watch a video of the late Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach conducting a Sukkot Hoshanah Rabah service at Congregation Kehilath Jacob.

And for something a bit less traditional why not go to [http://www.jer1.co.il/city_services/holidays/sukkot-8Atzeret/schlock.htm]? That's where you can listen to the Jewish group Schlock Rock's special holiday rendition of All Shook Up.

Get it? Sukkot? All Shook Up. Have a great holiday.

* * *

Mark Mietkiewicz is a television producer in Toronto with an interest in the Internet. He can be reached at [mdm@inforamp.net].

שנה טובה
The New KING SOLOMON'S TABLE
Toronto's Finest Glatt Kosher Dining & Catering
Superb Chinese & Continental Cuisine – "Affordable Elegance"
Licensed under LLBO
FABULOUS TAKE-OUT • FREE DELIVERY
ENJOY OUR ALL-YOU-CAN-EAT BUFFET

SOUPS & APPETIZERS
1. Won Ton Soup 3.00
2. Hot and Sour Soup 3.25
3. Soup of the Day 3.00
4. Vegetable Egg Rolls (2) 2.50
5. Imperial Meat Roll 1.95
6. Crispy Fried Won Tons (dozen) 6.95
7. Crispy Chicken Wings (dozen) 7.95
8. Sesame Chicken Wings (dozen) 7.95

RICE & VEGETABLES
9. Vegetable Fried Rice 3.25
10. Cantonese (Chicken Beef) Fried Rice 3.50
11. Steamed White Rice 2.15
12. Shanghai Noodles 3.95
13. Cantonese Lo Mein 4.95
14. Vegetable Chow Mein 3.95
15. Chinese Mixed Vegetables 3.95
16. Four Seasons 6.95

CHICKEN
17. Ginger Pineapple Chicken 7.50
18. Honey Garlic Wings (dozen) 7.95
19. Moo Goo Gai Pan 7.50
20. Sweet & Sour Chicken Balls (duc.) 7.95
21. General Tsao Chicken 9.95
22. Honey Chili Chicken 9.95
23. Lemon Chicken 9.95
24. Chicken Almond Ding 7.50

BEEF
25. Beef and Broccoli 8.50
26. Orange Szechuan Beef 9.95
27. Spicy Hunan Beef 8.50
28. Oriental Pepper Steak 8.50
29. Beef Tomato 8.50
30. Sizzling Beef 9.95
31. Crisp Sesame Beef 10.95
32. Yu-Xiang Beef 8.95
33. Curried Beef 8.95

All prices plus GST and PST
5 Star ★★★★★ Glatt Kosher Catering – Call 630-0303
We cater Weddings, Bar/Bat Mitzvahs, Sheva Brachot & Business Meetings, Anniversary & Engagement Parties, and other special occasions for up to 300 people in our splendid new facility, with a permanent Kosher kitchen on the premises.
3705 CHESSWOOD AT SHEPPARD
RESTAURANT 630-0666 • CATERING 630-0303

Greater Toronto Area

BRIDAL REGISTRY
■ Great Gift Ideas for Bridesmaids & Ushers
■ Paintings ■ Sculpture
■ Art Glass ■ Ceramics ■ Jewelry
■ Personalized Gifts
■ Gift Certificates
The Shayne Gallery 25 YEARS IN BUSINESS
5471 Royalmount Ave., T.M.R.
(514) 739-1701 (Tues. to Sat.)

National Council of Jewish Women of Canada, TORONTO SECTION
presents
WOMAN ABUSE THROUGH THE GENERATIONS
Tuesday, October 21, 1997, 8:00 p.m.
Council House, 4700 Bathurst Street
Panel Discussion Featuring:
GAIL GOULD, M.S.W.
SUSAN BROTMAN, M.S.W. C.S.W.
Two women who have survived abuse will relate their experiences
$5. per person/$8. per family Light Refreshments
For more information call Council House (416) 633-5100
A COMMUNITY PROGRAM FOR PARENTS, YOUNG ADULTS, WOMEN AND MEN.

Labour Zionist Alliance of Canada
Educational Conference
"Creating a Future for Progressive Zionism" DINNER and LECTURE
with
J. J. GOLDBERG, author
"Jewish Power: Inside the American Jewish Establishment" Topic: "The Challenge of Jewish Education"
Saturday, October 18th
Dinner: 7:30 p.m. Couvert: $20.00 per person
Sunday, October 19th
Continental Breakfast served: 9:45 - 10:15 a.m. - (no charge)
Speakers:
DR. YIGAL DONYETS
Representative, Special Joint Authority, Jewish Agency
Topic: "The Challenge of Education in the Current Jewish Reality"
DR. URI KORIN
Principal, Bialik Hebrew Day School
Topic: "Zionist Education in the 21st Century: A Futuristic Approach"
DANIEL MANN
National President, Labor Zionist Alliance of America
Topic: "Peace, Progress & Pluralism: Advocacy & Implementations"
WILLIAM SHAFFIR
Professor of Sociology, McMaster University
Chairman, Camp Gesher
Topic: "Camp Gesher, Hemshech & Present Realities"
Lunch: 1:00 p.m. $6.00 per person
Borochov Cultural Centre
272 Codsell Avenue
(Sheppard Ave. West & Wilson Heights Blvd. area)
(416) 630-9444

Rabbi Schild honored for his 50 years in Toronto rabbinate

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — The quirky thing, says Rabbi Erwin Schild, is that he never would have become a rabbi if not for the political climate in 1930s Germany.

Perhaps even more unusual is the role the rabbi emeritus of Adath Israel Congregation has played in Christian-Jewish dialogue there for the past decade. On a recent four-week trip, his second in a year, he gave almost two dozen lectures sponsored primarily by Catholic and Protestant churches. The German translation of his book, World Through My Window, a collection of his sermons, is in its second printing.

On Oct. 29, Rabbi Schild will receive the TALI Kavod Award given by Jerusalem's Seminary of Judaic Studies at an evening sponsored by the Canadian Foundation for Masorti Judaism. The event, to be held at Beth Tzedec Congregation, will coincide with Rabbi Schild's 50th anniversary in the Toronto rabbinate.

In 1947, Rabbi Schild was ordained at Yeshivah Torath Chaim and received his BA in Near Eastern Languages from the University of Toronto, where he was to complete an MA in Semitics two years later.

A native of Cologne, he studied at the Jewish Teachers' Seminary in Wurzburg. After a short imprisonment in Dachau in 1938, he studied at Yeshivah Torah Emeth in London, England. His studies were interrupted when he and other German refugees were interned as "enemy aliens" and shipped to Canada.

If not for the war, Rabbi Schild might have become a professor of art, literature or philosophy, perhaps even an artist. His self-portrait of a serious teen is among the pieces hanging in his synagogue study. "[But] the Germans disowned me, so to speak, and took away what I considered was my heritage."

Rabbi Erwin Schild

Veering towards Judaic studies, he found his calling. He has continued to take an active role since he retired eight years ago.

Still vigorous at 77, the rabbi – a grandfather of 11 and great-grandfather of two – has been a jogger for some 40 years.

Under his leadership from 1947 to 1989, Adath Israel grew from 200 to 1,900 families. Among the highlights of his tenure, he recalled, were the congregational tours to Israel he led with his wife Laura.

A former president of the Toronto Board of Rabbis, Rabbi Schild also served as vice-president of the Canadian Council for Conservative Judaism and founding president of Mercaz Canada.

Although his background is Orthodox, he was "ideologically ready" to lead a Conservative congregation by the time Adath Israel evolved away from its Orthodox roots. When Adath Israel hired Rabbi Schild, the congregation was "nominally Orthodox." By 1956, when it moved from downtown to its current North York location, it was Conservative.

"The Conservative movement was beginning to make strides," recalled Rabbi Schild. "Mixed seating and an open parking lot was an attraction...[I felt] it would be more effective in reaching out to alienated or indifferent Jews. I didn't compromise my own observance, [but] my theology was not Orthodox any more."

In the Toronto Jewish community overall, Rabbi Schild has seen major changes since arriving here in 1942. He attributes the strengthening of the community to the rise in Conservative Judaism, an influx of Holocaust survivors and pride in the establishment and growth of the State of Israel.

Within the Conservative movement, Rabbi Schild has also witnessed change. "I think if I were a woman I'd be an Egalitarian," he said, "[but] I see the downside as well. Egalitarianism upsets a great number of Jews. It's unacceptable to the Orthodox and creates a strong barrier between Conservative and Orthodox Jews. It may have far-reaching sociological implications, the consequences of which we can't quite see yet."

Reflecting on related issues, Rabbi Schild said everything possible should be done to accommodate "the minimum requirements of the Orthodox – the reasonable Orthodox – in personal status [issues such as conversion, divorce and patrilineal descent], so it won't come to a situation where an Orthodox Jew cannot marry a non-Orthodox. On the other hand, the Orthodox would have to recognize other streams of Judaism as a Jewish reality."

In the greater community, Rabbi Schild has long been involved in Christian-Jewish dialogue. "I feel in Canada or anywhere we cannot live in isolation."

He feels a particular responsibility to communicate with German Christians. "There are very few who speak their language and who can articulately represent Judaism," he said. "When I'm asked, I go."

CJC MEETS WITH CABINET MINISTERS

A delegation from Canadian Jewish Congress met recently with federal cabinet ministers to discuss Nazi war criminals in Canada. From left are CJC president Goldie Hershon; Justice Minister Anne McLellan; Citizenship and Immigration Minister Lucienne Robillard; CJC war crimes committee chair Irving Abella; and CJC honorary legal counsel Keith Landy. Issues discussed included the Justice Department's plans to produce an annual report on the work of the war crimes unit, allegations of anti-Semitism in the unit's early years, and the presence in Canada of modern-day war criminals.

IRA BERG off yonge.....

Our beautiful jewel of a store has recently opened at Lawrence Plaza.

The merchandise has been chosen with great care and attention to detail. Come and shop in relaxed surroundings with personal service and value for your dollar.

It will be our pleasure to welcome you, to renew old acquaintances and to meet new friends.

Lawrence Plaza • Lawrence & Bathurst • (416) 789-2635

Prestige COR
FINE CUISINE GLATT KOSHER
A DIVISION OF ELY'S FINE FOODS

Welcome to Prestige Fine Cuisine

As one of a very few caterers appointed to the new Sephardic Kehila Centre at 7026 Bathurst Street, we are proud to serve the entire community.

For all your simchas — including weddings, engagement parties, bar/bat mitzvahs, and sheva brachot — we seat up to 600 guests and offer the kind of European quality you may have heard about (sometimes referred to as "Montreal style") but not experienced. Here are just a handful of examples from our menu:

• COLD CANAPES •

VEGETARIAN	FISH	MEAT
Baguette with spicy salsa and coriander	Salmon pearls and blinis	Head cheese of chicken with tarragon
Melon with anis brochette	Cherry tomatoes stuffed with a mousseline of salmon	Carpaccio of beef
Stuffed artichoke bottoms with mushrooms and pimento		Chicken liver mousseline on nutty bread

• HOT CANAPES •

VEGETARIAN	FISH	MEAT
Feuilleté of spinach & mushrooms	Fish Pastelle	Lamb baklava with curry
Half moon of spicy ratatouille with basil	Anchovy cigars	Suprême of chicken teriyaki
Tempura of vegetables	Goujon of sole with tartar sauce	Miniature pojarski of veal with a touch of ginger
Aumonière of wild mushrooms	Croquettes of fish

• ENTREES GALORE •

FISH: Medallion of Atlantic Salmon with citrus and fresh herbs
FOWL: Trilogy of Chicken VEAL: Tournedos of veal with wild mushrooms
BEEF: Sirloin with a Cabernet-Sauvignon and shitake mushroom sauce

• SWEET TABLE •

Opéra cake • Viennese strudel • Succès • Croquembouche • Chocolate Mousse Cake
Pear and Caramel Cake • Bavaroise au café • Paris-Brest • Saint-Honoré
Strawberry millefeuille • Crêpes Suzette • Banana Flambé • Le Concorde

3537 Bathurst St. 782-3231 • Out of town call Aaron Kadoch toll free at 1-888-735-0374

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA
JNF
Send a traditional greeting for any occasion.....
Say It With Trees!
(416) 638-7200

What's New

By Miriam Hernan

CANADIAN SOCIETY FOR YAD VASHEM
has moved to:
534 Lawrence Ave. W.
North York, Ont.
M6A 1A2
Tel: 416-785-1333
Fax: 416-785-4536

DEADLINE REMINDER

What's New and About People deadlines: Monday, Oct. 20, is deadline for Oct. 30 issue and Monday, Oct. 27, is deadline for Nov. 6 issue. I receive calls and sort my mail on deadline days only. Phone 391-1836, fax 391-0829.

Friday, Oct. 17

ONEG SHABBAT

West Toronto Jewish Community Association Oneg Shabbat service, 7:30 p.m., Swansea Town Hall, 95 Lavinia Ave. 236-2054.

Saturday, Oct. 18

BEIS HASHOEIVAH

Simchas Beis Hashoeivah live with Nafshenu Orchestra, dancing and more, second night of Chol Hamoed Sukkot, 8:30 p.m., Lubavitch, 44 Edinburgh Dr.

CONSERVATIVE MINYAN

General Wingate Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, and Federation of Jewish Brotherhoods Shabbat service followed by kiddush 10 a.m. to noon, Sunnybrook Synagogue. Hilda Harris, shamus, 480-4421, ext. 3552.

Sunday, Oct. 19

ISRAEL AT 50

Temple Sinai seminar, Israel at 50: A Retrospective, 10 a.m. Media commentator/writer Shira Herzog shares insights and historical observations.

GAMES SINGLES PLAY

A fun social evening of bridge, Trivial Pursuit, Chutzpah and such for Jewish men and women, Group A ages 26-40, Group B ages 41-69, 7:30 p.m., Beth Torah Synagogue, 47 Glenbrooke Ave. $5. Early Bird Bingo 7:30-8 p.m. Mollie 733-3634.

Monday, Oct. 20

NAGILLAH CHAPTER, JWI

Nagillah chapter, Jewish Women International, membership night for singles women, 40 plus, 7:30 p.m., Pride of Israel Synagogue. Hannah Brown discusses Jewish Women in Prison. $2. Sheila 665-3333 or Joy 905-770-9086.

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

At Bathurst Jewish Centre, 4588 Bathurst St., 3:30-7:30 p.m.

LA LECHE LEAGUE

La Leche League Willowdale, support for breast feeding mothers, 9:30 a.m. Annette 224-9870

UJPO SENIORS

Cranbrooke Friendship Club of the United Jewish People's Order features the Medina Theatre Ensemble staged readings of scenes from popular comedies, 12:30 p.m., Winchevsky Centre, 585 Cranbrooke Ave. Light lunch. $4.

ANTIQUES ROAD SHOW

Temple Sinai Singles (ages 30-55) Antiques Road Show and lecture, Amelia's Deal Ya, 2788 Bathurst St., Unit 5, 7:30 p.m. Bring item to be evaluated and non-perishable food item for donation to food bank. Pre-register 487-4161.

SUPPORT GROUP

Jewish Parents and Families of Gays and Lesbians meets 7:30 p.m., Jewish Family & Child Service, 6th floor, Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst St. Phone in confidence. Ruth 763-9111.

ARCHIVAL EXHIBIT

Special showing of National Council of Jewish Women, Toronto Section's archival exhibit, Faith and Humanity, noon to 4 p.m., 7-9 p.m., Multicultural History Society, 43 Queen's Park Cres. E.

Tuesday, Oct. 21

JEWS IN THE NEWS

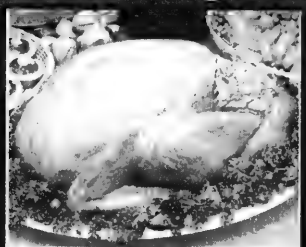
Tzavta Together presents Jews in the News: Examining the Media's Treatment of Jewish Issues. Panelists Esther Enkin, CBC Radio News; Sheldon Gordon, journalist; Suanne Kelman, professor of journalism, Ryerson Polytechnic University; Sol Littman, Canadian representative Simon Wiesenthal Centre. 7:30 p.m., Barbara Frum Library, 20 Covington St. $5.

COOKING, WINE, FITNESS

Temple Sinai Sisterhood Cooking Demonstration, Wine Experience and Nutrition with Marc Thuet, Centro Restaurant; Donald

[Cont'd. on page 17]

IGA Shana Tova
IGA brings down the cost of keeping kosher
Centre Street
Clark Avenue West
Bathurst Street
Hilda Avenue
Yonge Street
Steeles Avenue
441 CLARK (AT HILDA)



Frozen Whole Turkeys
Kosher
3.95 kg
179 lb.

Fresh 'N Tasty Juices or Drinks
Assorted Varieties
Case of 8 x 3 x 250 mL tetra boxes
577 or .74¢ ea. sleeve

Roast Beef
From the Deli,
2.10 /100 g
952 lb.

Red or White Grapefruit
Product of U.S.A.,
Size 56's
10/199

Lean Ground Beef
Valu Club Pack, Glatt Kosher, 8.50 kg
388 lb.

Tampree Grape Juice
Concord or Muscat
1.5 L btl.
399

Large Potato Keigel
From the Deli
each
399

McIntosh, Spartan or Cortland Apples
Product of Ontario, Canada Fancy, 1.74 kg
.79 lb.

Fresh lake Trout Fillets
Subject to Availability
11.00 kg
499 lb.

Billy Bee Honey
Liquid
500 mL sqz. btl. or jar
199

Rye Bread
From The Bakery
425 g loaf
.99

Mandelbrot
From the Bakery
300 g
319

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES. PRICES IN EFFECT SUNDAY, OCT. 12 UNTIL SATURDAY, OCT. 18, 1997.

What's New

[Cont'd. from page 16]

Ziraldo, Inniskillen Wines Inc.; Iyabo Kubra Musa, Fitness Institute, 7:30 p.m. at the temple. $15 in advance, $18 at door. Karen 223-4017 or Rena 635-0101.

WOMAN ABUSE

National Council of Jewish Women, Toronto Section, presents Woman Abuse Through the Generations, 8 p.m., Council House, 4700 Bathurst St. Panel discussion as well as experiences of survivors. For parents, young adults, women and men. $5/person, $8/family at door. 633-5100.

UNDER THE STARS

Join Jewish Women International's Tikvah chapter for a Sukkot program in a sukkah. Chapter members are in their mid-20s to mid-30s, single and married, and meet once a month. RSVP Michelle 905-709-0404.

Wednesday, Oct. 22

WHAT IS THE MESSIAH?

Rabbi Aaron Flanzraich discusses What is the Messiah?, 7:30 p.m., Pride of Israel Synagogue.

And What Else Is New

JIAS ANNIVERSARY GALA

JIAS 75th Anniversary Gala Concert honoring immigration and diversity Monday, Oct. 27, 7:30 p.m., Ford Centre for the Performing Arts, George Weston Recital Hall, sponsored by Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, starring Dora Award winner Theresa Tova who will sing many arrangements from her award-winning play Still the Night. $18, $36, $75 (includes gala reception). Tickets 697-0613.

NEWS FROM SOLEL

Solel Congregation, Mississauga: Erev Sukkot celebration Wednesday, Oct. 15, decorations for sukkah 4:30 p.m., followed by Sukkot service and hot dog dinner. Thursday, Oct. 16, service 10 a.m. Family services Friday, Oct. 17, Wednesday, Oct. 22 (Simchat Torah) and Friday, Oct. 31, at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 18, 10 a.m. Regular services Thursday, Oct. 23 (Simchat Torah) 10 a.m. and Friday, Oct. 24, 8:30 p.m. Tuesday morning minyan 7 a.m. followed by breakfast. 905-820-5915.

CHINA & HONG KONG

B'Not Aviva and Gila chapters, Toronto Hadassah-WIZO present Jan Wong, journalist for the Globe and Mail and author of Red China Blues Sunday, Nov. 2, 7:30 p.m., Holiday Inn Yorkdale. Topic is Red China Blues: Perspectives on Today's China and Hong Kong. $20. Bari Zittell 658-0877 or Carol Ritz 489-8459.

PRAYER BOOK READING

Improve your reading fluency and understanding of the main prayers at Tuesday afternoon class led by Yael Lev at Kehillat Shaarei Torah Synagogue. Yael 225-6151.

AT TEMPLE SINAI

Temple Sinai Adult Education: Prof. Harold (Hesh) Troper three-session series on Canadian Jewish community's relationship with Israel, Wednesdays 8-9:30 p.m.: Oct. 29, Israeli Statehood to Victory in the Six Day War (1948-67); Nov. 5, The Joy of Victory to the Israeli Invasion of Lebanon (1967-82); Nov. 12, From Beirut to Oslo and Beyond (1982-present). $75/series, $30/session. Pre-register 487-4161.

Advanced Beginners and Intermediate Hebrew classes, Thursdays, 7:30-8:30 p.m., Oct. 30, Nov. 6, 13, 20, 27, Dec. 4, 11, 18. $70 session. For registration forms 487-4161.

JEWISH FREE LOAN CASSA

Toronto Jewish Free Loan Cassa G'milath Chasodim Association annual meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 28, 6:30 p.m., Lipa Green building, 4600 Bathurst St., Room 421. Guest speaker Irving Abella, chair, Canadian Jewish Congress National War crimes Committee. Also elections and presentation of Harendorf, Lebane, Moss Accounting Scholarship. Dinner served. $15. RSVP Helen Kastner 635-1217.

THEATRE NIGHT

Shaarei Tefillah Sisterhood is sponsoring The Miracle Worker Sunday, Nov. 2, 7 p.m., Fairview Library Theatre. $25 (donation receipt for $18). Reserve Reta 226-1875 or Sharon 787-1631.

REFORM MINYAN

Downtown Reform Minyan egalitarian Shabbat services every Saturday at 10 a.m. at Bloor Jewish Community Centre, Room 204 . On Simchat Torah, Oct. 23, 7 p.m., Rabbi Paul Golomb, Arlene Turner, Rich Glauber lead in celebrating the cycle of the Torah. Shelley 469-4287.

EDUCATIONAL SERIES

Downtown Jewish Learning Council, the educational division of Downtown Jewish Community Council, 1997/98 educational series at Bloor JCC, 11 courses on Jewish Meditation, Classic and Contemporary Perspectives, Hebrew, Yiddish, Jewish Ethics and Personal Growth, Peace and Conflict in Israel, Women in the Torah and more. Paul Appleby, or Cheryl Wetstein, 924-6211.

JF&CS GROUPS

Jewish Family & Child Service groups. Pat Lieberman, 638-7800. ext. 215.

Bereavement Groups: Adult Children Losing a Parent begins Oct. 29; Widows/Widowers for people who have recently lost a spouse, (daytime and evening groups, groups divided by age) begin after the holidays.

Divorce Groups: Looking Ahead begins Oct. 21; One Family Two Homes, three workshops for children and parents going through separation and divorce, begins Oct. 30; When You're About to Separate: What to Tell the Kids, Oct. 21.

Positive Parenting Groups: Your Preschooler, The School-Age Child, Preteens, Surviving Your Teenager, begin week of Oct. 27.

AISH HATORAH

Aish HaTorah, 949 Clark Ave. W., Thornhill. 905-764-1818

Sukkot party, Monday, Oct. 20, 8 p.m. Music, refreshments, fun.

Shalom Bayit – Women's Commitment to Marital Harmony, Mondays 2 p.m. through Dec. 15. babysitting provided.

BUND CENTENARY

The 100th anniversary of the Bund Jubilee Banquet and cultural program featuring an address in Yiddish and English by Jack Jacobs, associate professor of Government, City University of New York, plus readings in Yiddish and performance of labor songs, Saturday, Oct. 25, 7:30 p.m. Workmen's Circle Centre, 471 Lawrence Ave. W. $25. Reserve. Abe Sloma 222-7547 or Chaim Kuper 663-6713.

FOR SENIORS

Beth Tikvah Friendship Group 55 Plus presents A Life to Remember, an evening of nostalgia, humor, fascinating moments as narrated by members Herb Freedman, Leona Garmaise, Phil Simon, Monday, Oct. 20, 8 p.m. Non-members $3.

Aluma Canadian Israeli Club meets 7 p.m. Thursdays at 15 Hove St. (B'nai Brith Building). Due to the holidays, next meeting is Tuesday, Oct. 21, program is Israeli comedy movie Sababa. Simchat Torah party, dancing, Saturday, Oct. 25, 7:30 p.m. members $8, non-members $10. Aaron Dahary 661-4689 or Malka 630-5771.

Shaarei Shomayim Friendship Club: Monday, Nov. 3, Mr. Holland's Opus 1 p.m.; Monday, Nov. 10, opening musical luncheon, 12:30 p.m., entertainers Ivory and Silver, art exhibit by club members. Lena 785-5773. Golden Book donations go to Laniado Hospital in Israel. Dorothy Bloomfield 787-1526.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Oct. 26-31 Washington and Atlantic City; Nov. 4, seminar with speaker on ABCs of Fraud, 10 a.m.; Shopping in Buffalo; Nov. 19, Square One Shopping Centre. Activities: Table tennis, shuffleboard, woodwork shop, trips day and night. 395-7881.

LZA Seniors Club registration for Miami trip 1998. Libby 782-2059. Ladies Folkdancing Thursdays 1:30 p.m.; Cultural Discussion Group Tuesdays 10 a.m. Centre is open for socializing Monday to friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE

Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living, 1003 Steeles Ave. W. 225-2112.

Healthy Cooking with dietician/nutritionist Sharon Zeiler and two community food advisors Tuesday, Oct. 21, 1 p.m. $1 for materials.

Israeli Club Etrog meets 7 p.m. Tuesdays. Programs include movies, lectures, nostalgic singalongs, dances, bingo. Anniversary party Oct. 21. Anna.

Movie, Forever Darling Sunday, Oct. 19, 2:30 p.m.

BLOOR JCC

Bloor Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave. 924-6211.

Books and Bagels with Rick Salutin Sunday, Oct. 19, 11 a.m. Non-members $8.

Reserve your patron World Gala Premiere tickets now for the opening of Simcha Jacobovici's film, Hollywoodism: Jew, Movies and the American Dream Nov. 24 at Princess of Wales Theatre, to inaugurate L'Chaim Capital Campaign Kickoff. Gala patron includes reception and post-gala party at Holiday Inn on King $180. Regular seats include reception $36.

Marilyn Lightstone one-woman show Oct. 30.

Renew membership and enrol your child in many after-hour programs, free with membership.

Entertainment '98 Two for One coupon books available at front desk.

Bloor JCC Seniors Club trip to Niagara Casino, Tuesday, Oct. 21. $19 includes $10 refreshment voucher. Judy.

BATHURST JC

Bathurst Jewish Centre, 4588 Bathurst St. 636-1880.

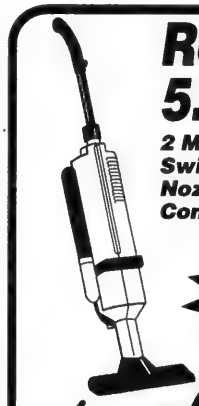
Special needs programs begin the week of Oct. 26. Social, physical, and recreational programs available for children, teens and adults with developmental and/or physical disabilities. Patricia Trojman, ext. 265.

Young Einstein's computer courses for adults and children. Information on course content, times and fees, ext. 378.

ABOUT PEOPLE

55TH ANNIVERSARY

Eva and Armando Salinas celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary by reaffirming their marriage vows in a ceremony at Holy Blossom Temple conducted by their grandson Rabbi Robert Morais of Rochester, N.Y., and Rabbi Daveen Litwin of Toronto's Temple Sinai. The Salinas were married in a civil ceremony at the Italian General Consulate in Shanghai in February, 1942 – no rabbi, no chupah. After spending the early years of their marriage in a Japanese prisoner of war camp, they came to Canada. For the ceremony at Holy Blossom, attended by their two daughters, five grandchildren, one great-granddaughter and many friends, the family provided the rabbi, the chupah, the ketubah, the music.



Regina PowerSweep 5.0 amp Electric Broom

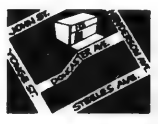
2 Motor System, Power Nozzle with Beater Brush Switch, Cleans Carpets & Bare Floors, Full Swivel Nozzle, Telescope Handle and 20 ft. Cord. Compare at 99.99

LOWEST PRICE EVER

49.99 While Supplies Last

WORRY FREE!!! BRIDAL REGISTRY

Cayne's The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store



112 DONCASTER AVENUE

OPEN - MON. to WED. 10-6 • THURS. & FRI.10-9 • SAT. 10-6 • SUN. 11-5 • (905) 764-1188

Always 1st Quality • Always Brand Names • Always Warehouse Prices

Greater Toronto Area

SENIOR CARE VOLUNTEERS

Among those honored at the recent Senior Care volunteer recognition night were, left to right, Ida Picov, (Sam Rotman Humanitian Award Award); Marilyn Gross (Marie and Jack Freedman Memorial Award); and Joshua Levi, who has visited the same person since 1984 (Volunteer Visiting Silver Anniversary Award). Volunteer visitors provide an average of 12,000 hours of service each year. For information, call 416-635-2860.

Lovemaking holiest act, says rebbetzin

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — In Judaism, lovemaking, within a consecrated union and at the proper time, is the single holiest act a person can do, lecturer and writer Rivkah Slonim told an audience of over 100 at Chabad Lubavitch of Markham, sponsored by the synagogue's sisterhood.

"A man and woman engaged in love-making have the possibility of most closely imitating G-d's aspect of being the creator. Every sex act creates a soul [in heaven]," she said.

Slonim is the education director at Chabad House at the University of New York at Binghamton, and is a frequent speaker on Jewish women and Jewish law and on taharat hamishpacha, the laws of family purity.

The marriage bed, Slonim said, is "no less than the Holy of Holies. And entrance to it, as it was for the High Priest entering the Holy of Holies, is contingent on ritual purity" — in other words, immersion in a mikvah at the appropriate time.

Observing the laws of mikvah, which say that a couple may not have relations during menstruation or for seven days afterwards, when the woman immerses in the ritual bath, brings renewal to a relationship.

"It is like a monthly honeymoon," she said, explaining that after being married a while, the possibility of boredom is very real.

However, when a couple observes the period of separation, "the person you live with becomes forbidden fruit. And you are always turned on by what you can't have."

As well, she said, when you have to express emotion without touching, you "have to dig deeper to communicate with each other."

She told the audience that it is never too late to start using the mikvah."Even if you go only once, the very act of going offers the opportunity to affect your past life and your family."

She noted that going to a mikvah has nothing to do with physical cleansing, adding that "there is no one cleaner than the woman about to enter the mikvah."

The mikvah itself should be not only clean, but beautiful "because that reflects its importance to Jewish life."

Entering the mikvah is "a moment of surrender," Slonim said. Not only do we leave our clothes, jewelry and makeup behind, but "we also leave behind our power and independence, as we enter what is not our natural habitat. At that moment, we are one with G-d."

Menstruation should not be seen as a punishment, but as a normal, physical phenomenon. However, since it occurs when the uterus sheds the lining that it has been preparing for a possible conception, it "signals the end of potential life for that month."

Similarly, immersion signifies a transformation back into someone who has the possibility of creating life, a rebirth in effect.

She acknowledged that the separation is difficult for couples. "I tell my students that I hope it will always be difficult. G-d forbid it will ever be easy to separate from your husband for two weeks a month."

Chabad Lubavitch of Markham is currently building a small mikvah to serve its own members and others in the community.

HEATHER LEVITT-SIMMONS

CORPORATE CARS

ALL MAKES • ALL MODELS

Competitive Pricing

Your License to Personalized Service

Call Heather for all your vehicle needs

200 Viceroy Road, Unit #9
Concord, Ontario

(416) 736-7666

Shelley Miller

Weddings, Bar/Bat Mitzvahs, Professional and Private Events

Don't Just Plan a Party...Plan an Event!
with
the Shelley Miller band
...flexible band size to suit your budget
416-481-1034
A Capella Music Available for Sabbath Celebrations

BIALIK HEBREW DAY SCHOOL
12 Viewmount Avenue, Toronto

invites prospective parents to its

PRESCHOOL (JR. K. AND SR. K.) ORIENTATION

Wednesday, November 5, at 9:15 a.m..
or
Wednesday, November 12, at 7:30 p.m.
Each session will last no more than 2 hours
Call and reserve a place with Allison Allen: 783-3346

The Bialik Preschool offers
Financial Assistance for Preschool Jewish Education
in accordance with the guidelines used by the Board of Jewish Education for grade school studies.

ARE YOU AN ACTIVE SENIOR? RETIRED? TRIED FLORIDA? PALM SPRINGS? SPAIN?

ISN'T IT TIME YOU TRIED ISRAEL!

CAARI - CANADIAN AND AMERICAN RETIREES IN ISRAEL - THE EXPERIENCE OF A LIFETIME!

WINTER, 1998
(Unfortunately, it's not that far away!)

ANNOUNCING THE 1998 CAARI JNF PROGRAMME

TWO WONDERFUL MONTHS IN ISRAEL. TOURING, VOLUNTEERING, SEEING THE COUNTRY AS YOU HAVE NEVER SEEN IT BEFORE ... AT A VERY AFFORDABLE PRICE INCLUDING HOSPITAL AND MEDICAL COVERAGE.

ATTEND A SPECIAL INFORMATION MEETING TO OUTLINE PLANS, ITINERARY AND PRICES FOR THE CAARI PROGRAMME.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1997
2:30 P.M.
4TH FLOOR, ROOM 421
LIPA GREEN BUILDING
4600 BATHURST ST.

Light Refreshments

JNF

Please reserve your space by telephoning Esther Bergman or Rose Benayon at the offices of JNF Toronto
(416) 638-7200

Olive Eye Productions and Theatre Asylum present

George Tabori's
My Mother's Courage
Starring
ELIZABETH SHEPHERD
Directed by
JENNIFER CAPRARO

1944. A summer day in Budapest, turns deadly. Only by her own wits, courage and luck can Elsa Tabori escape!

'Elizabeth Shepherd's performance is... possibly the finest piece of acting I have seen in Canada' - Globe & Mail

'Played out with...irony and humour' - NOW

Preview October 22 * Run October 23 - November 2
Theatre Passe Muraille, 16 Ryerson (Bathurst & Queen)
(416) 504-7529

UJA FEDERATION

Community Matters

NEW YEAR YIELDS NEW CAMPAIGN SUPPORT

More than 500 new contributors have joined the UJA Federation family over the last few weeks, nudging up the 1998 campaign total to nearly $25 million.

The 500 additional supporters, representing close to $300,000 in new pledges, were brought on board by hundreds of UJA Federation campaigners, calling community members who have not yet supported the campaign.

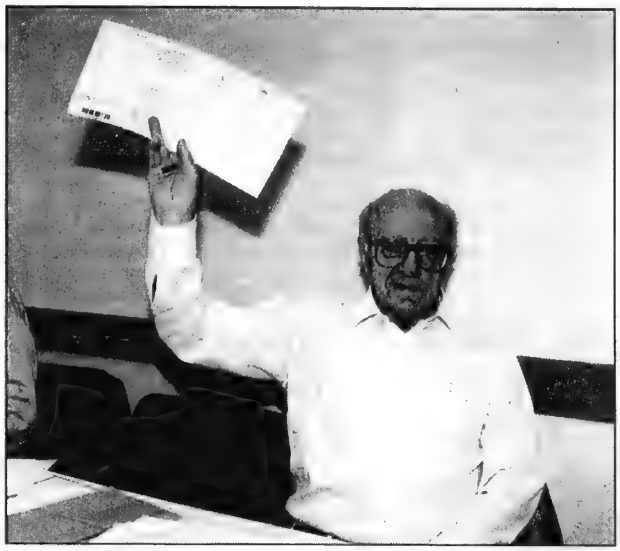
A New Gifts telethon held before Rosh Hashana, focused entirely on reaching non-contributors or community members who had not contributed to the campaign for many years. Another telethon will be held at the Promenade Shopping Centre in November.

"The telethons have been fantastic," noted Campaign Chairman Leo Goldhar. "We're well ahead of last year."

Sam Horowitz, who has been campaigning for UJA Federation for 30 years, says "I owe a great deal to UJA Federation for helping subsidize my son's Jewish education."

"I've always gotten back more than I give," explained Susan Gudofsky, who was particularly excited about a first-time pledge she received for $200. "It was the kind of call campaigners dream of," she added. "It means we're getting through."

"So many of our campaigners stayed longer than they had signed up for and that shows the depth of their commitment to community," noted Debbi Stern, who co-chaired the new gifts telethon with Reesa Sud. Stern was also pleased to see the younger people making calls. "It's great to watch younger members of the community carrying on the tradition of helping those in need," she added.



Sam Horowitz waves a pledge card signalling a new five hundred dollar gift.

JIAS Concert Marks 75th Anniversary

The organization which helped more than 200,000 Jewish immigrants from all over the world begin a new life in Canada is marking its 75th anniversary with a celebration of Jewish music and culture.

Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, a UJA Federation beneficiary agency, is holding a gala community concert on Monday, October 27, 7:30 p.m. at the Ford Centre for the Performing Arts in North York. Tickets, which include a dessert reception following the concert, range from $18 - $35 and can be obtained in advance by calling (416) 697-0613.

Acclaimed Yiddish singer Theresa Tova, who recently won four Dora Awards for her play "Still The Night," will headline the evening's entertainment with CBC TV's Ralph Benmurgui as the master of ceremonies.

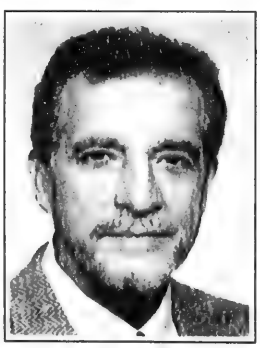
Cellist Igor Gefter, Toronto Symphony Orchestra violinist Mark Skazinetsky and National Ballet of Canada pianist, Marina Surgan will play a specially commissioned piece written by composer Yefim Adler. Cantor Armand Moyal completes the lineup of performers, all of whom come from immigrant backgrounds.

"Toronto is an immigrant community," explains JIAS President Sandy Atlin. "We're very excited about featuring talented immigrant artists who have contributed to our unique Jewish culture."

The JIAS Community Heritage Book, chronicling the successive waves of Jewish immigration into Canada over the last three quarters of a century, will debut at the gala event. The book highlights the stories of individuals and families from across Canada who, with assistance from JIAS, carved out new lives in a new country.

"The concert," explains Atlin, "is not only a way for JIAS to celebrate its accomplishments but also for all the people JIAS helped to say thank you."

For more information about the Heritage Gala Concert or the JIAS Community Heritage Book call (416) 697-0613.



Cantor Armand Moyal.

Art Show Benefits Woman Abuse Program

UJA Federation and Jewish Women's Federation are joining forces with six female artists to raise awareness about woman abuse in the Jewish community.

The New Beginnings: Preview and Silent Auction, Tuesday, October 28, 6:30 pm – 9:30 pm, 80 Spadina Avenue, Suite 313, will feature the designs of Stoneworks & Company.

Artists Barbara Bender, Sandra Duba-Shubs, Lilli Gillman, Edie Harlang, Helen Kirzner and Naomi Reich-Freudmann, who have been exhibiting their art work together for the past five years, will donate six pieces for auction, the proceeds of which will go to the Jewish Family and Child Service Woman Abuse program. In addition, a percentage of the proceeds of all the evening's sales will be donated to the program.

Jewish Family and Child Service, a UJA Federation beneficiary agency, is currently dealing with approximately 300 cases involving woman abuse, through counseling, emergency shelters and other support for both women and children.

This exhibition, the artists' fourth, focuses on the strength of Jewish women and their struggles to build new lives following episodes of abuse. The title of the show, explains Harlang, also reflects the career changes she and fellow artists have undergone leading up to the formation of the company. "One woman was an accountant, another was a teacher and another was a nurse," recalls Harlang. "It was a new beginning for all of us."

"This is a great vehicle to raise awareness about an issue that touches many members of the community," notes Jewish Women's Federation President Jill Reitman.

"People have to be made more aware of the issue," adds Susan Maldoff, who chairs JWF's Women Abuse committee. "The more we know the more we can help."

For more information or to RSVP call (416) 635-2883 ext. 135.

"Jessica" by Edie Harlang.

Washington Fly-In

NEW ALLEGATION AGAINST SWITZERLAND

An expert on the relationship between Swiss banks and the Holocaust is alleging that Switzerland helped to finance the German war effort with assets stolen from Holocaust victims.

Gregg Rickman, Project Director for the United States Senate Banking Committee studying the controversy, cited the World Jewish Congress when he told a UJA Federation delegation in Washington, D.C. that "Switzerland was able to finance the war because it stole what is estimated today at upwards of $8 billion. Artwork, jewelry, watches, insurance policies, dental gold – all taken."

Rickman was speaking to participants in the annual UJA Federation Washington Fly-In.

His statements were corroborated in a study, written by the U S. State Department's chief historian Dr William Slany, which was released earlier this year.

U.S. Senate banking committee project director Gregg Rickman shed new light on Switzerland's dubious banking practices during World War II

"With the Reichmark largely unusable, in order to obtain war materials, the Nazis used looted gold, shipped largely to Switzerland, to convert into Swiss francs to help meet their war needs," claimed U.S. Undersecretary of State Stuart Eizenstat, commenting on Slany's report.

According to Eizenstat, the study "documents one of the greatest thefts by a government in recorded history – the confiscation by Nazi Germany of an estimated $580 million of central bank gold, which would be worth about $5.6 billion in today's values, along with indeterminate amounts of other assets from individual victims of Nazi atrocities during World War II."

"Around $400 million of this looted gold - $3.9 billion in today's values- went to Switzerland." he added.

Although Eizenstat acknowledged that some Swiss actions helped the Allies, he concluded that Switzerland and other neutral nations "prolonged the war effort" by benefiting from trade and financial dealings with the Germans.

Rickman, along with a team of dedicated researchers, has been digging in the U.S. National Archives for a year in order to get to the truth regarding the Swiss relationship with the Nazis during the Second World War.

Three major Swiss banks have set up a fund to compensate those who lost assets now missing from Swiss banks. Payments from the Swiss Solidarity Fund have begun in Eastern Europe, where an estimated 40,000 Jews will be eligible to receive them.

"Although these banks will not claim responsibility or attach themselves to any wrong doings, they have quietly set up this fund totaling $185 million as a gesture of goodwill," said Rickman.

There are thousands of claims from survivors, according to Rickman, but only five have actual documentation about numbered accounts. "People were forced out of their homes with only numbers in their heads," he said. "But let's not forget that this is an issue of morality, not money."

WASHINGTON WHIRLWIND

A day filled with both history and current events began at the crack of dawn for 125 participants in UJA Federation's annual Washington Fly-In.

The intense itinerary started with a visit to the Jordanian Embassy, where Rania Atalla, Director of the Jordanian Information Bureau, called the recent Hamas suicide bombings in Jerusalem a symptom of Palestinian frustration, both economic and political. "Jordan's ultimate goal is to end terrorism," she said. "The only way to live together is to have a warm peace process."

"The Jordanian Embassy was extremely interesting from a students' perspective," observed Barney Paiken, 23, who attends the University of Toronto. "It's great to listen to people who you disagree with and be able to learn from them."

Director of the Jordanian Information Bureau Rania Atalla stressed Jordan's ultimate goal is to end terrorism.

Next stop was the architecturally impressive Canadian Embassy, where Canada's Ambassador to the U.S. Raymond Chretien and his Middle East advisor Stewart Hughes described Canadian-Israeli relations as solid. On the question of Middle East peace, "Canada would like to see Israel in a warm peace and as an accepted neighbour in the region," said Chretien.

Lunch on Capitol Hill with syndicated columnist Steve Roberts and a trip to the renowned Holocaust Memorial Museum followed. "Experiencing something as significant as the Holocaust Museum, has left me with an incredible feeling," said Fly-In participant Janice Kussner.

Dinner and discussion ended the day with Gregg Rickman, Project Director for the United States Senate Banking Committee studying the use by Swiss banks of money and other assets from Holocaust victims.

"The entire day was invigorating," beamed Agi Mandel, UJA Federation's Women's Campaign Chair.

Welcome to Washington. Fly-In co-chairs Alan Winer (l) and Joel Reitman (r) are ready to get started.

"Today's mission was hugely successful because of the participants," added Joel Reitman, who co-chaired the Washington Fly-In with Alan Winer. "We had students, Holocaust survivors, corporate partners and a mix of many others – this diversity is the formula for a wonderful trip."

"Today we have seen many reasons why the 1998 campaign theme For One People. Forever, is appropriate. Each place we visited signifies genuine unity and community togetherness, giving us reasons why we must unite and care for each other in our community and abroad," concluded Winer.

FLY-IN JOINS GENERATIONS

Thirteen year old Jacob Binder wanted only his grandfather, Dr. Fred Weinberg, to accompany him on his first UJA Federation Fly-In to Washington. "I have a very close relationship with my grandfather. He has taught me a lot about Jewish history and I thought it would be special if we could take this trip together."

Although Jacob is in his early teens, his strong interest in the Holocaust, racism and justice exceeds his years. "A few years ago, I began reading books by Carol Matas, the author of Daniel's Story. I find her work very interesting and I wanted to see first hand the famous exhibit depicted in her book."

Daniel's Story is the emotional biography of the Holocaust seen through the eyes of a young boy. The U.S. Holocaust Museum exhibit provides a historical account of Daniel and his family's eventual journey to the concentration camps, as you walk through their home.

"Jacob and I have always had an extra special bond," says Weinberg, a well-known Toronto pediatrician who treated many members of the Jewish community. "Seeing the museum through his eyes was for me, a wonderful experience. We were each other's teachers."

Jacob's parents, Sari and David Binder, were participants in last year's UJA Federation Washington Fly-In and were very impressed with the mission. "Ever since Jacob's bar mitzvah, he has been asking to see the Holocaust Museum," explains Sari. "Because of his immense interest and the caliber of the trip, I thought this would be a great opportunity for him."

Both Jacob and his grandfather agree "the entire day was hugely successful." "I'm glad that Jacob chose me as his companion on the trip," Weinberg proudly proclaims. "His presence and great interest was, for me, a most enjoyable experience."

Jacob Binder enjoys the day with his grandfather Dr. Fred Weinberg.

Community Matters, a supplement of the Canadian Jewish News, is sponsored and produced by UJA Federation. Website: www.feduja.org*

PARTNERS PROGRAM IS OFF TO A FAST START

When you combine the business community with a world-renowned non-profit agency, you get a recipe for success. UJA Federation's Partners Program, spearheaded by Karen Miller and Howard Sokolowski, gives the corporate world an avenue to lend a helping hand to hundreds of thousands of Jews in need.

The Partners Program, according to Miller, permits business and UJA Federation to strengthen the community together. "The program is designed to meet both corporate needs and those of the larger community," says Miller. "It's a great medium for these large institutions. We provide a unique opportunity for our sponsors to be part of the UJA Federation family, through trips, sponsorship of divisions and events and media recognition."

One of the program's primary goals is to educate the non-Jewish world about UJA Federation's work. "It is so important for these large businesses to be exposed to UJA Federation. There is so much to be gained on both fronts. It's a winning situation for everyone," notes Sokolowski.

The Partners Program is three tiered – with bronze, silver and gold levels. Each one offers corporate partners a variety of sponsorship opportunities. The Royal Bank of Canada, CIBC Wood Gundy, and Scotia Bank are gold level partners Toronto Dominion Bank and Bank of Montreal/Nesbitt Burns belong to the silver level, and the Toronto Raptors is a bronze partner.

"We are very excited and optimistic about reaching our goals with all the help provided by our corporate sponsors," says UJA Federation's '98 Campaign Chairman Leo Goldhar. "This is an incredible moral boost to the community."

"This is only the beginning," adds Miller. "There is an enormous business community that awaits us."

Washington welcomes Corporate Partners

UJA Federation's annual Washington Fly-In received rave reviews from the organization's corporate partners who joined this year's mission. For some it was their first time in the U.S. capital. Others, who are veteran travelers to the city, were thrilled to be part of the trip.

"We couldn't be happier that our corporate partners were able to experience the day with us," said UJA Federation Campaign Chairman Leo Goldhar. "It's a terrific way for them to meet people in the community and to see first hand how UJA Federation works by bringing people closer together."

The day was non-stop, the information was plentiful, and the news informative, but by and large, the U.S.Holocaust Memorial Museum played a very emotional and significant role in the trip. Those who toured the Museum often found themselves at a loss for words.

Kathy Apostolou from the Royal Bank believes "UJA Federation presented a wonderful opportunity in such a special way, for the corporate partners to meet one another. For me, the Holocaust Memorial Museum was something I will never forget."

"As soon as I got off the elevator I felt goosebumps – my hair was standing on end. I said to myself what could possibly be ahead - I didn't know what to expect. I had always heard about the atrocities of the Holocaust, but it didn't prepare me for what I saw."

"The Holocaust Memorial Museum puts its mission of showing the world what went on during this terrible time into human terms," observed Peter Drake, Vice-President and Deputy Chief Economist for the Toronto Dominion Bank. "I thank UJA Federation for inviting me on such an informative and educational trip. Both the Canadian and Jordanian Embassies provided me with a more in depth outlook on Canada-U.S.-Israel relations. It seems that no matter how diligently you try to keep track of current news events, you can't beat first hand knowledge from expert speakers," stated Drake, who accompanied Vice-President and Chief Economist Dr. Ruth Getter.

Jim Westell from CIBC Wood Gundy particularly enjoyed columnist Steve Roberts' insights and views, calling his discussion "informative and educational."

"The Holocaust Memorial Museum, namely Daniel's Story was especially emotional. To see an entire family disintegrate at the hands of such evil people is hard to put into words," Westell said.

For Kelly Gianopoulos of the Toronto Raptors, her first time in Washington proved to be very educational. "Even though I am not Jewish, I am now more aware and can appreciate the importance of peace in the Middle East. The Jordanian Embassy really shed some interesting light on the difficulties facing the two nations."

(left) Peter Drake and Dr. Ruth Getter, of the Toronto Dominion Bank were glad to be part of UJA Federation's Washington Fly-In.

(below) Partners Program Co-Chair Karen Miller, (second from left), and Campaign Chairman Leo Goldhar (center), welcome representatives of the Royal Bank of Canada. (far left) Tom Lettner, Christine Walker (third from right), Kathy Apostolou and Bill Collier.

(left) CIBC Wood Gundy's Jim Westell(l) and Glen Shear.

(right) Kelly Gianopoulos (l) and Justina Klein of the Toronto Raptors Foundation, all smile at the end of the day.

Renowned French-Jewish artist subject of lecture

Ben-Gurion congratulates Benn at an exhibition in Paris.

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

TORONTO—Bencjon Benn, an internationally renowned French-Jewish artist, whose works can be found in major museums such as, the Musee National d'Art Moderne of Paris, La Maison de la Bible in Tel Aviv and the Vatican, will be the subject of a lecture and slide presentation Nov. 3, 8 p.m. at Holy Blossom Temple.

Prof. Roberta Markus, who recently retired from the University of Toronto, will present the lecture which she says "will focus on one man's determination to rise above the inhumanity of Nazism and leave a cultural legacy in which Jewish values endure."

Marcus' late husband Prof. Nathan Markus of U of T's faculty of social work was a nephew of the artist, who died in 1990. The Markuses spent a great deal of time with Benn and his wife Ghera, a Russian ballerina.

Born Ben-Zion Rabinovich in Bialistock, Poland in 1905, (he changed his name to Benn in 1928 for professional reasons), the artist displayed exceptional talent as a child. His father, who wanted to become an artist but was discouraged for religious reasons, became a successful architect and builder. He encouraged his son to become an artist and became his teacher in both art and religious studies.

While still a teenager, Benn's works were displayed in Bialistock and Vilna. He won a Polish government scholarship and left Poland to study in Paris at the Academie des Beaux Arts in 1928. He joined a gallery for upcoming artists and although he painted figuratively rather than following the impressionistic trend, his work was accepted year after year. Private galleries invited him to exhibit his paintings which could be seen throughout France and Belgium.

In 1938 Benn became obsessed with rumors spreading about the treatment of Jews in Germany and he began painting what he felt was to come — masses of corpses, blood, vultures consuming humans, and Jews hunted by dogs. These paintings are now in the collection of the Washington Holocaust Museum.

Went into hiding

He was interned in 1943 and placed in a holding camp destined for Auschwitz. After one month, with the help of a gentile friend, he was smuggled out. His parents and his youngest sister and her family perished.

He and his wife went into hiding for two years, and lived at subsistence level in a windowless cellar of an apartment house. During this time Benn managed to produce art with only crayons and a pad of paper.

Not a religious man in the traditional sense, Benn was nevertheless proud of his Jewishness. It was in the cellar that Benn created his first drawings of the work that later became 62 Psaumes et Versets de la Bible – 62 Psalms of the Bible.

After the war, he offered his sketches to gentile friends in gratitude for hiding him and his wife, and they encouraged him to transfer the sketches to canvas. They formed a group called Les Amis de Benn and collected money for his supplies until he could sell some of his other works. He refused to sell the 62 original biblical paintings which were willed to Israel and France..

In 1968, Canadian Jewish Congress organized the first showing of Benn's biblical work in North America at Man and His World in Montreal.

To commemorate the event, CJC donated a copy of the 62 Psalms of the Bible to the National Library in Ottawa.

Benn received the Golden Key of Paris, the Legion of Honor in France and numerous medals and honors in Paris, Israel and throughout the world.

The lecture titled Benn, An Artist's Response to the Holocaust, is open to the community.

JOIN US FOR AN INFORMATIVE & ENGAGING PANEL DISCUSSION
For more information please call 416-736-1339

JEWS IN THE NEWS
EXAMINING THE MEDIA'S TREATMENT OF JEWISH ISSUES

OUR GUEST PANELISTS
- Sol Littman, Canadian Representative of the Simon Weisenthal Centre, former editor of the Canadian Jewish News
- Suanne Kelman, Professor of Journalism at Ryerson Polytechnic University, former producer at CBC Radio
- Sheldon Gordon, freelance journalist, former Globe & Mail editorial writer
- Esther Enkin, Managing Editor and Chief Journalist of CBC Radio News

This event is sponsored by TZAVTA

$5.00 ADMISSION
7:30 PM sharp
Tuesday, Oct. 21st
Barbara Frum Library
20 Covington Street
1 block n. of Lawrence w. of Bathurst

RECRUITING VOLUNTEERS FOR JEWISH HOSPICE
Looking for compassionate, caring volunteers to assist persons living with a terminal illness. Training program in November.
Contact:
Renée, Volunteer Co-ordinator.
635-2900 Ext. 419

MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL
Open Meeting of the Board of Directors of Mount Sinai Hospital
Tues., Nov. 6, 1997
12 noon
Mount Sinai Hospital
600 University Avenue
Executive Board Room
Main Floor
To confirm attendance or to receive agenda and procedures, contact the Corporate Secretary at (416) 586-5082.

SUNNYBROOK
THE KOSHER SPECIALISTS
6:14 P.M.
Super Special
PRODUCT OF ONTARIO POTATOES .99 10 lb bag
PRODUCT OF USA JUMBO CANTALOUPES 1.99 each
ITALPASTA ASSORTED PASTAS .99 900 gr cello pkgs
ITALPASTA CHICK PEAS OR RED KIDNEY BEANS .69 540 ml tins
BEST IN THE CITY! KOSHER GROUND CHICKEN 3.99 lb/8.80 kg
PRODUCT OF ONTARIO RED DELICIOUS OR McINTOSH APPLES 1.49 3 lb bag
ASTRO ASSORTED YOGURTS 3/1.00 175 ml cups
FROM TASTEFULLY YOURS! ASSORTED SOUPS 3.99 1 L mason jars
FLORIDA RED OR WHITE GRAPEFRUIT 8/1.99 size 88's
CLOVER LEAF SKIPJACK TUNA OR PINK SALMON .99 6-7 oz tins
GALILEE ASSORTED CHEESE STICKS 1.99 227 gr sticks
PRODUCT OF USA NAVEL ORANGES 2.99 size 88's
ORIGINAL TIDE DETERGENT 7.99 12 L
JELLO ASSORTED PUDDINGS 1.49 4x142 ml
241 WILMINGTON AVE., (Bathurst Manor Plaza) Sun. 9-5 • Mon.-Tues. 9-7 • Wed. 9-9 Thurs. 8-9 • Fri. 8-7 • Saturday 9-6
305 FINCH AVE. W., (Finchurst Plaza) Sun. 10-5 • Mon.-Fri. 9-9 • Saturday 9-6
Specials effective Wed., Oct. 15th to Tues., Oct. 21st.
We reserve the right to limit quantities to normal family requirements. Limited quantities on some items. We reserve the right to correct printers errors.

Imagine a Jew in this country being told how to practice religion.

That's exactly what's happening in Israel.

Imagine a Member of Parliament standing in the House of Commons suggesting there be a discussion about how Jews should practice their religion. As members of the Canadian Jewish community, we would do all in our power to see to it that this person was never re-elected. Imagine, just imagine, if he went as far as to actually introduce a bill on the floor. We would take to the streets. Organize letter writing and e-mail campaigns. Talk to everyone we know of influence. Run full-page ads. Spend millions in community dollars. And write letters to our Members of Parliament.

We'd be shouting that this is religious coercion, un-democratic, and against our civil rights. We'd be writing so many stinging editorials, that we would tie up Internet access lines for months.

So why, when this is happening in Israel, when there is religious coercion from a small, but growing minority of ultra-Orthodox extremists, do we sit so passively in North America? We, as Canadian Jews, who have a tradition of democracy and diversity, have much to bring to this issue which affects the legitimacy of all Jews everywhere and the unity of the Jewish people.

The Israeli Government, for political reasons, continues to cede increasing power to the ultra-Orthodox (Haredi) parties. This is why, today, the Jewish State still recognizes only one form of Judaism. Orthodoxy. And the dominance and authority of these parties is growing.

In Israel, the only marriages, divorces and conversions recognized by the State are those that have been performed by Orthodox rabbis. Conservative and Reform rabbis in Israel, who represent the vast majority of world Jewry, have no legal rights to officiate in these capacities.

And now the religious parties are demanding new laws that would in effect overturn key Supreme Court decisions that have begun to open the way for diverse expressions of Judaism in the Jewish State. Laws like these will only encourage Israel's religious extremists, alienate hundreds of thousands of Israelis from Judaism, and drive a wedge between Diaspora Jews and Israel.

These laws strike at the core of fundamental civil rights upon which a democracy is based, threatening the democratic nature of Israel's society. It is a concern for all of us.

Democracy is good for Judaism. And certainly in North America, we have always believed that Judaism is good for democracy. Democracy has also been good for Israel. As Canadian Jews, we must work together with Israelis in this struggle for religious freedom. That is why you should know about the New Israel Fund. The New Israel Fund is one of the most dynamic partnerships today between Israel and the Diaspora. In the 18 years since the Fund was established, it has taken the lead in support of democracy, pluralism, tolerance and social justice in Israel. For further information on these issues, please contact us for our free brochure, "The Struggle for Pluralism and Religious Freedom."

Call us at (416) 781-4322. Write us at 801 Eglinton Avenue West, Suite 401, Toronto M5N 1E3. E-mail us at info@nif.org. Or visit our Website at www.nif.org.

New Israel Fund
הקרן החדשה לישראל

Seniors urged to take charge of own lives

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Seniors were advised to take charge of their own lives and not sit around bemoaning the failure of others to act, at a workshop on Good Aging at the Lipa Green Building.

"If a son or daughter living out of town doesn't call you on your birthday, don't sit around all day waiting. Make the call yourself," said Anne Balaban, an adult educator for the North York Board of Education.

Balaban told the 125 workshop participants that she is often asked, "Is it all right for me to feel this way at my age?" and her answer is in the affirmative.

As an example, she said seniors often introduce themselves by what station they are at in life, instead of what they like to do. "I suggest you introduce yourself with passion by telling what you are interested in."

Many participants followed her lead. "I love to entertain by singing and telling stories in Yiddish," said Sam Grazer.

Jean Goldstein chimed in with "I need a good reason to get up in the morning."

One man said, "I like gardening and grow all my own vegetables," while another declared, "I like to read about natural feelings and share my knowledge."

One woman said she likes to cook, do needlepoint and keep busy. Her companion said she liked bridge. Still another said she liked to play basketball.

A man told the workshop he likes to watch TV and listen to music while several people said they liked volunteering above all.

"The dictionary should not have the word should in it," said Balaban after recounting that at one of her sessions, a man asked: "At 65, should I be taking off my shoes?"

A U.S. study of a group of people over 100 years old has proven that the ability to get involved lengthens life, she said.

"There is a woman of 102 in Chicago who has had four husbands. She gets up at 6 a.m. and takes the subway to the Salvation Army where she makes breakfast for 400 people. Nobody asked her to do it, she volunteered. Everybody listens to her wisdom, but strangely, very few say thank you after the breakfast."

The favorite advice of this over-100 group is that seniors should belong somewhere.

Balaban told of a 104-year-old man in the group who is so unsteady on his feet he has to hold on to the side of a building as he walks. "Yet he leads an exercise class because his determination is so strong."

The workshop included a fitness break with Yoram Rostas. At lunch, Susan Jackson spoke on Jewish continuity.

The event was coordinated by Barbara Zigler, Bernard Betel Centre; Shelly Rotman, UJA Federation of Greater Toronto; and Arnold Foss of Senior Care. The Baycrest Centre and Jewish Family and Child Service were also sponsors.

מזל טוב

Mazel Tov

We cannot guarantee the date a picture will appear. Please limit all greetings to 25 typewritten words. We reserve the right to edit all items and condense any that are longer than that.

Label the back of all photos and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return. Send all your photos to The CJN, Mazel Tov, 1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont., M3B 3K4.

Malorie Taylor Appel, daughter of Marni & Jason, was born July 5. Proud grandparents are Kitty & Paul Tepperman, Bev & Stan Appel.

Michayla was born May 6 to Pini & Maja Buium. Grandparents are Nora & John Freund, Sarah & Moshe Buium of Israel; great-grandmother, Illona Heller.

Happy birthday to 5-year-old Morgan Fishman on Sept. 7 and her dad, 30-something Elliott Fishman, on Sept. 8.

Congratulations to Jodi Beth who graduated from York University. Parents are Linda & Garry Wolk; grandparents are Florrie & Ralph Kay and Fay Wolk.

Congratulations to Lou & Hilde Ronson on your 50th wedding anniversary, Aug. 13. Love and thanks from Jeremy, Rhonda and Kiwi.

Mazel tov on the marriage of Ahuva Jesin to Meir Balofsky. With love and best wishes from your family and friends.

Nancy Brown Leibovitch announces the engagement of her daughter Andrea, daughter of the late Ralph Leibovitch, to Michael, son of Anna and Lou Vandelman.

Mazel tov to Hetty Nathan & Michael Shapiro who were married in Toronto on June 30.

SB FINANCIAL GROUP
&C SHERR BERGSTEIN & CRACKOWER
272 Lawrence Ave. W., Suite 203, Toronto, Ontario M5M 4M1

TODAY, MORE THAN EVER BEFORE, THERE IS A NEED FOR SOUND FINANCIAL AND INVESTMENT PLANNING.

1997 WILL BE A YEAR OF COMPLEXITY AND CHANGE. RRSP AND RRIF RULES HAVE BEEN MODIFIED: PLEASE NOTE THAT IF YOU ARE AGE 69, 70 OR 71 IN 1997, YOU MUST CONVERT YOUR RRSP PRIOR TO DECEMBER 31, 1997.THE CHOICES OF INVESTMENT ARE FURTHER COMPLICATED BY LOW INTEREST RATES. AND IF THAT'S NOT ENOUGH, REVENUE CANADA IS A SILENT PARTNER IN YOUR RETIREMENT AND YOUR ESTATE. WITH PROFESSIONAL FINANCIAL COUNSELLING, YOU WILL ARRIVE AT INFORMED DECISIONS.

FOR MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS OUR FIRM HAS ASSISTED OUR CLIENTS IN ACHIEVING FINANCIAL SECURITY.

For a Free, No Obligation Consultation, call (416) 787-4517.

Ukrainian helps restore cemeteries

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — A non-Jewish Ukrainian woman who helps restore cemeteries for Holocaust victims spent a recent two-week holiday in Canada as the guest of Toronto brothers who lost their parents and a 5-year-old brother in the Holocaust.

"It's a dream and I didn't believe it," said Neonilla Ivanovna Chyruk, 54, about the holiday invitation from the two brothers, who themselves had been separated for 30 years after the war.

Chyruk, a teacher and assistant mayor of the Ukrainian town of Rokitno, was escorted to Niagara Falls and other tourist highlights by Samuel Levinson (Levin), 72, of Richmond Hill, and Alexander (Joshua) Levin, 65, of Thornhill.

A meaningful moment for her and the brothers came at Toronto's Holocaust Memorial Centre, when she was shown the tiles commemorating Mordecai Levin, his wife, Mindel, and their young son, Moishe.

Chyruk restores monuments in the region of Volyn, Ukraine, which before 1939 was part of Poland.

The brothers first met her in Rotkino in 1995, when they were part of a group of 35 survivors who visited the area on a tour she organized. Chaya, Samuel Levinson's wife, their children, Miriam and Marty, and the two brothers were the only Canadians. The rest were from Israel.

The Levins were on the second tour of survivors to the area. A third, primarily for grandchildren, is planned.

What impressed the brothers on the tour, they said, was Chyruk's tact and diplomatic skill in dealing with a Ukrainian policeman who lived in the house once occupied by the tour's Israeli leader. The policeman denied them entrance to the house until Chyruk convinced him to changed his mind.

"I am a Ukrainian but I have a Jewish heart," she told The CJN.

Born in 1943, she had a few Jewish friends when she was growing up. She was the elected mayor of Rotkino when a letter arrived from Israel asking about the state of Jewish cemeteries in the area. She started her volunteer work then, and continued it later as assistant mayor.

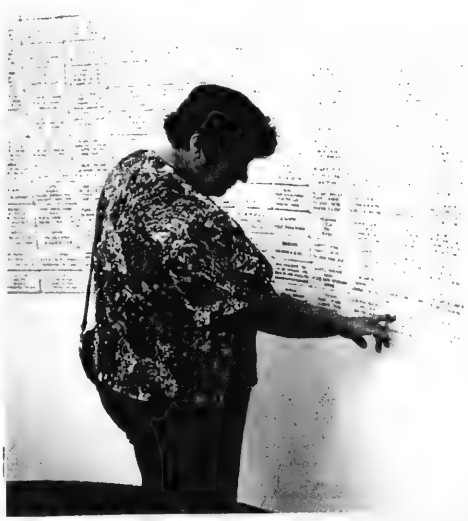
The Israeli-Rotkino connection grew out of the exodus of Jews from that region to Israel in the wake of anti-Semitism when the Soviet Union collapsed.

Rotkino, which had 1,630 Jews when the Levins were born, now has only two, a woman in her 70s and a young man married to a Russian. The house where the Levin family lived was demolished and the site is now a two-storey commercial centre.

The reunion of the Levin brothers is a story in itself. The oldest, Nathan, had escaped just before the round-up of Jews in 1942, to a distant part of Russia. Alexander and Samuel hid for 18 months in the forest of Okopy, a nearby town. Samuel and Nathan arrived in Israel in 1947 aboard the ship Ben Hecht. Nathan died in Israel a few years ago.

Samuel and Alexander were reunited in Moscow in 1974, and Alexander joined his brother in Canada a year later.

While here, Chyruk attended mass with Mary Szkambara, Ukrainian Canadian Congress president.



Ukrainian guest at Holocaust Centre.

Israelis and Canadians at restored cemetery at Rotkino.

OPEN HOUSE & SUKKAH PARTY

Monday, October 20 • 1–4 pm with musical entertainment from 2–3 pm

A TRADITION OF CARING

AT PINE VILLA RETIREMENT RESIDENCE

Welcome to Pine Villa, conveniently located, in the heart of Toronto's Jewish community. With a wide variety of services and amenities included, Pine Villa is designed to enhance your quality of life. At Pine Villa, you can be assured of personal care in a warm and gracious environment.

Pine Villa offers Jewish Retirement Living amidst gracious surroundings

Enjoy private accommodation and amenities which include:

- 24 hour professional health care
- Fine Jewish dining
- Linen, housekeeping & laundry
- Daily activities with companions who share a common heritage
- Proximity to synagogues & amenities
- Friendly, caring, attentive staff

Be our guest for refreshments and tour our facility with our warm and helpful staff

PINE VILLA

1035 Eglinton Avenue West

(416)787-5626

On Campus

Orthodox students pay tuition fees under protest

By MARA DRESNER
Connecticut Jewish Ledger

WEST HARTFORD, Conn.– Five Orthodox Jewish students are far from ending their fight against Yale University's housing policy.

While the students will pay their tuition under protest, they "will not be waiving their rights of potential legal action," Nathan Lewin, a Washington-based attorney who is representing the students, said in a telephone interview.

The students risked expulsion if tuition fees were not received by the end of September, Lewin said. Negotiations with Yale are continuing to try to head off a lawsuit against the school for violating the students' religious rights.

The dispute arose after the students requested exemptions from Yale's housing policy that requires all freshmen and sophomores to live on campus unless they are married or over 21 years old.

They asked for a waiver of the $7,000 residential fees, which are included in the tuition costs, because they believe that staying on campus in dorms where both sexes live would not conform with their religious convictions.

One of the students, Rachel Wohlgelernter, got married this month in a civil ceremony, three months before her scheduled Jewish wedding ceremony, in an effort to obtain an exemption.

Lewin has proposed that the students pay the full amount of the residence fee, but that the money be used for alternative housing that Yale deemed suitable for the students.

"The kids don't want Jewish housing," said Lewin. "All they want is respect for their religious convictions. That's a very minimal request."

Yale maintains that residential living on campus is an "integral and important" part of attending the school.

"We've made it clear to the students that we're ready and willing to talk to them about it," said Thomas Conroy, a Yale spokesperson. "There's nothing in the works besides that standing offer."

Not all of Yale's Orthodox students find the housing requirement in conflict with their beliefs and religious practices.

"A point that seems to have been missed is that there is a significant Orthodox community living on campus at Yale and thriving there," said Evan Farber, a junior, who is president of the Young Israel House at Yale. "There's a kosher kitchen, which draws 200 people for dinner every night, daily services, the whole shpiel."

Yale University officials have been cooperative in accommodating Orthodox students in other ways, such as arranging alternatives for students who cannot use electronic keys on Shabbat and holidays, and working with the maintenance department to devise an acceptable way for observant students to use lights in the bathrooms on the Sabbath.

Rabbi Michael Whitman, an Orthodox rabbi who is director of the Young Israel House at Yale, believes an Orthodox Jew can live comfortably in Yale dorms.

The threatened "lawsuit is simply about the right to live off-campus," Whitman said. "This is not about how one can lead a religious life while being a student at Yale."

JTA managing editor Kenneth Bandler contributed to this report.

JERUSALEM FELLOWSHIPS

Jerusalem's Aish HaTorah College of Jewish Studies sponsors the Jerusalem Fellowships each year to develop Jewish leaders of tomorrow. A hand-picked group of young people explore Jewish life and thought in Jerusalem. In the summer of 1997, 17 students from the Toronto area lived and learned in Jerusalem. Seen here from left are Torontonians (top row) Tanya Azeroual, Tara Lindo, Danny Gold; (front row) Stephanie Wiesglass, Sara Webb and Eyal Lewin.

UJA Federation's
Young Leadership Cabinet
presents

A casual information session for young adult (ages 25 - 40) members of our Jewish community interested in getting involved and discovering the "ins and outs" of volunteering.

OUT IN Front

- meet some dynamic UJA Federation volunteers
- hear about the myriad of ways to get involved and get "out in front" in the Jewish community
- shmooze, eat and have fun...

Please join us to get "Out in Front"on Monday, October 20th

7:30 p.m.

For more information and to reserve a space, please call Silvia Astrug at the UJA Federation office (416) 635-2883 ext: 115

UJA FEDERATION

Hebrew U symposium explores Jewish identity

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Just as Abraham journeyed at the Lord's command to a land he knew not, so the Jewish people continue that journey into a future we do not yet know, said Rabbi Alan Green of Winnipeg's Beth Israel Synagogue in his opening address to the annual fall symposium organized by the Winnipeg chapter of the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University.

Prof. Ze'ev Mankowitz, director of the Hebrew University's Melton School for Jewish Education, tackled the symposium's theme – Why be Jewish? – from several angles.

Anthropologists, Mankowitz said, would attribute remaining Jewish to the importance of belonging to a specific group and culture with a distinct language. The hole in that theory, he noted, is that Jews live in an increasingly pluralistic world and can have several different identities.

The historical argument, he said, is that after all the centuries of resisting outside pressures to leave Judaism, it would be "undignified and silly" to surrender their identity when Jews are finally free to be whoever and whatever they want to be.

Mankowitz told of a Hebrew University colleague who was asked the question during a lecture tour of Australia. His reply was that the question was illegitimate and anti-Semitic.

"The real question should not be Why Be Jewish?, but rather Why Not Be Jewish?" Mankowitz said. "You have to be something. By being Jewish, you are part of an extended family with 4,000 years of tradition. If you are in trouble, you can rely on your fellow Jews."

The difficulty, he noted, is that Jews live in an unprecedented era of freedom.

"The modern period is wonderful for Jews but problematic for Judaism," he said. "Each of us has a vast array of personal choices and possibilities."

In the last 200 years, he pointed out, the Jewish people have become more mobile than ever, as large-scale migrations to Israel and the west continue.

"Jews have taken to heart the encouragement of the modern state to adapt and live like everyone else," he noted. "When it comes to a choice between adaptation and preservation of our culture, most Jews have opted for adaptation and improving themselves."

As an example, he said, Jewish day schools all over the world have become leaders in secular studies. An Australian survey found that the top five day schools in the country were all Jewish.

Rabbi Green noted the great influence the Jewish people have had on the culture of other peoples. "A universal culture is emerging," he said.

Six Winnipeg students who attended the Hebrew University Rothberg School for Overseas Students hosted the symposium, which this year was co-sponsored by most major Winnipeg Jewish organizations.

"Just Between Us"

שישאר בינינו

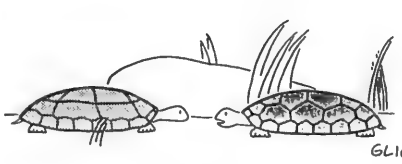
גידי קורן וחברים

אם יצא לכם להאזין לאמצעי התקשורת הקנדיים בשבועות האחרונים, לא יכולתם שלא לשמוע/לחזות בשידורים חוזרים אינסופיים של "הניצחון ההיסטורי" של נבחרת ההוקי של קנדה על זו של ברית המועצות לפני 25 שנה. יד על הלב- הדבר גרם לי ניחוך מסוים בהתחלה- אוי ואבוי אם זה מה ש"היסטוריה" משתמעת. רק אחרי הפעם השבע עשרה התחלתי להבין שאני מזלזל בגלל שלא הייתי כאן, ואין האירוע הזה משמש חלק מהזיכרון הקולקטיבי שלי, ובמחשבה שניה נזכרתי שבעצם רוסיה קשורה גם בזיכרון ההיסטורי שלי, ובשתי הפעמים היה הדבר קשור בספורט: אז ככה, כל אלה מיכם שנולדו בשנות השלושים, הארבעים והחמישים, אני בטוח שאתם זוכרים איפה הייתם ואיפה הקשבתם לנחמיה בן אברהם משדר את משחק הכדורגל בין ישראל-ורוסיה באצטדיון רמת גן, ושכולכם זוכרים איך הבקיע סטלמך בנגיחת ראש את שער השוויון. שאגות הקהל היו כה רמות, שנחמיה בן אברהם הפסיק לשדר ויצר את מטבע הלשון "רשות הדיבור לקהל"....הינה, חלפו ארבעים שנה והרגע הזה עדיין מרגש אותי. ואילה מיכם שעדיין לא נולדו אז, בודאי זוכרים את ניצחונה של מכבי ת"א על צ.א.ס.ק מוסקבה בגמר גביע האלופות האירופי ("הו הא מה קרה, צ-אס-ק אכלה אותה"). אז ככה זה - תרבות היא המון סימנים וזיכרונות קטנים שאנחנו אוספים כל החיים. ולכן אולי אף פעם גם לא נהיה ממש שייכים לכאן, כי הזיכרון הקולקטיבי שלנו מאוד קצר. אבל מה שעוד יותר עצוב- לאט לאט אנחנו גם לא שייכים ל"שם", כי כבר הרבה שנים אין אנו אוספים זיכרון קולקטיבי בישראל. ולכן כשאנחנו באים לביקור הרבה דברים נראים לנו מוזרים, וולגאריים, "חסרי תרבות" זה לא חוסר תרבות. זוהי פשוט תרבות חדשה שלא השתתפנו בעיצובה.לא נעים, אבל שיישאר בינינו.

במלון בעיר זרה נכנסתי למעלית ואיתי עלו שני ענקי אדם צעירים, שהעורף שלהם נראה כמו מגרש בייסבול ושרירי הזרוע שלהם יכולים להזוף מיכלית דלק. עד הקומה העשרים הם הספיקו לומר מספר משפטים שהסגירו את האמת המרה שהרקמה שנמצאת בקופסת הגולגולת שלהם לא זכתה לפיתוח דומה לזה שקיבלו שרירי העורף והזרוע. כשירדנו מהמעלית גילה לי קולגה שאלה הם שחקני קבוצת פוטבול מפורסמת שמשחקת בעיר מחר נגד הקבוצה המקומית ושכל אחד מהם משולם מליוני דולרים בשנה. הקולגה שלי חוקר סרטן צעיר ומוכשר, משתכר בערך ארבעים אלף דולאר בשנה.... איזה עולם הפוך! שעות ארוכות הוא יושב ליד המיקרוסקופ ומנסה בעיניים עייפות להבין איך אפשר לעצור את מחלת הסרטן. ובאותה שעה עצמה מתאבקים קופי האדם האלה זה בזה לקול צהלתם של רבבות צופים, מפעם לפעם הם נפגעים בשריר הזרוע או הירך ומוציאים אותם מהמשחק. מעולם עוד לא שמעתי שהושיבו מישהוא מיהם לנוח כי נגמר לו המוח. תחשבו על זה.

שנה חדשה רק התחילה, וזה הזמן לנסות לסגל כמה מנהגים של חסד. בכבל שנה ושנה, בנסיעותיכם ארצה אתם הולכים לפגוש אנשים שלא ראיתם שנים רבות, ושבזיכרונכם נראים עדיין צעירים ויפים. ההפתעה/אכזבה היא בלתי נמנעת. רובם שמנו התכערו, התקמטו. מה לעשות, - גם אנחנו! בשבוע שעבר פגשתי אישה שלא ראתה אותי מספר שנים והיא נעתה בקול גדול, שגם מי שלא רצה לשמוע שמע: "השמנת משהוא! מה קרה לך!?" Well, קרה לי מה שקרה לכולם, (גם לה). "את דווקא נראית מצויין, אמרתי לה, ירדת במשקל, כל הכבוד!" עשיתי לה את הערב. ואני? זה לא שלא ידעתי ששמנתי, אבל למה צריך להזכיר כל הזמן....

SHMOOZIN



E-Mail: smglick@aol.com

"Sukkot recalls how the Israelites had to continually carry their homes with them wherever they wandered -- now that's one Jewish holiday that I can really relate to!"

YOU'LL SEE THE SAVINGS AISLE AFTER AISLE

Now Save More By Miles

Now Earn AIR MILES® travel miles for FREE* travel and more at The Savings Stores. It's easy as 1-2-3!!!

*1 Carry the Card *2 Show the Card *3 Earn Free Rewards

For every $20 you spend You'll receive one Travel Mile* and every week bonus travel miles will be available on hundreds of items.

SIGN UP TODAY!

SEE STORE FOR MORE DETAILS

GLATT KOSHER Lean Ground Beef Now! 3.99 lb 8.80 kg

CHAI KOSHER Fresh Chicken Leg Quarters Now! 1.99 lb 4.39 kg

GLATT KOSHER Boneless Cross Rib Steaks or Roasts Now! 6.49 lb 14.31 kg

KOSHER Aaron's Best All Beef Salami Now! 8.49 2 lb pkg

FROZEN Empire Chicken Breasts Now! 5.49 lb 12.10 kg

Fresh Seafood SUBJECT TO AVAILABILITY

FRESH, FARM RAISED Boneless Rainbow Trout Fillets Now! 6.88 lb 1.52 100 g

Fresh Pacific Snapper Fillets Now! 5.88 lb 1.30 100 g

More Savings Now! ...on all of your Grocery Needs

SELECTED VARIETIES INCLUDING Rippin' Good Chocolate Chip Cookies 300 g - 450 g pkg Now! 1.69

ASSORTED FLAVOURS Ceres Fruit Juice 1 L tetra carton Now! 1.99

Billy Bee Liquid Honey 500 g jar Now! 1.99

SELECTED VARIETIES Goodman's Soup Mix 5 - 6 oz pkg Now! .87

REGULAR OR UNSALTED Rok Snackers 300 g pkg Now! 1.69

POP-INS Puff Pastry Dough 1 lb pkg Now! 1.49

The Savings Stores PRICES EFFECTIVE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS UNTIL SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1997

save a centre FOOD MARKET 600 SHEPPARD AVE., W. DOWNSVIEW 2760 BATHURST ST., TORONTO

We Save You TIME, MONEY and HASSLES!

From coast to coast

DINING PLEASURES

O MEI
SPECIALIZING IN SEAFOOD, SZECHUAN & PEKING CUISINE
618 SHEPPARD WEST 635-5050
248 STEELES WEST 889-8282
5150 YONGE STREET 222-2300
420 HIGHWAY 7 EAST 881-8188
ANY DISH 1/2 PRICE
with regular-price food purchase of $15 or more (not including beverages, liquor or specials) before taxes. Cannot be combined with other offers. Limit two half price dishes per table. Dining room only.
VALID TO OCTOBER 31 / 97 AT STEELES AND YONGE LOCATIONS ONLY

SHER-E-PUNJAB
Famous for fine Punjabi home cooking on the Danforth for over twenty five years
FREE DINNER ENTRÉE with food order $20+
exp. October 31, 1997
351 DANFORTH AVE (at Chester Ave.) (416) 465-2125

10% OFF WITH COUPON NO EXAMINATION WITH OTHER OFFERS
AKASAKA JAPANESE STEAK HOUSE
Business Lunch at $5.99
• STEAK
• TERIYAKI
• SUSHI
• TEMPURA
日本料理
280 WEST BEAVER CREEK RD.
UNIT L10 RICHMOND HILL
(HWY #7, WEST OF LESLIE)
Tel: (905) 764-9291
TAKE OUT DELIVERY & CATERING

Pasta Scaramouche Bar & Grill
Toronto's top dining experience for over a decade. Simply superb food. An award-winning wine cellar.
Reservations: (416) 961-8011
Complimentary Valet parking.
1 Benvenuto Place, Toronto, Ontario

Basil Restaurant & Grill
15% off with coupon Monday to Thursday - Food Only -
We specialize in lamb, pasta, fish, chicken and beef – all delicately prepared in the Mediterranean style.
We offer a selection of kid's pasta for only $5.95
Come in and get to know us and take advantage of our great selections.
Open for Lunch & Dinner
We know you'll be back!
514 Eglinton Avenue West
Reservations: (416) 485-5310
All items available for take-out

Jewish groups laud United Church report

By MELANIE COLLISON
Special to The CJN

CALGARY — The Jewish community is welcoming a ground-breaking report by the United Church of Canada on improving its relationship with Judaism.

Entitled Bearing Faithful Witness; United Church-Jewish Relations Today, the report seeks to recast interpretations of passages in the Christian Bible that have been used to support anti-Semitism.

The report states clearly that Judaism is an equal sibling of Christianity, and that evangelism and conversion are to be abandoned.

Bible passages from the Christian Bible have been taken out of context since Christianity split off as a separate religion, says Rev. Clint Mooney, minister of St. Matthews United Church, who coordinated the writing of the report.

> 'It's an intelligent and sensitive document'

"There was a lot of hurt and struggle recorded in the Christian text in the context of the times. The language should be understood in that context," Rev. Mooney said.

"We welcome the paper and look favorably at the fact that it was initiated, and that people have put a lot of research, understanding and goodwill into this project," said Riki Heilik, community relations director for Calgary Jewish Community Council, in a recent interview.

"It's an intelligent and sensitive document, a well-meaning document. There is a very explicit rejection of any kind of missionizing among the Jews," said Dr. Eliezer Segal, a University of Calgary religious studies professor. "The United Church is very open to learning from other cultures and respecting them, and that comes across."

The paper was written in response to a request at the 1988 General Council — the policy-making level of the United Church — for a study on the origins of anti-Semitism, on the heels of the Keegstra affair.

Jim Keegstra, a former high school teacher in Eckville, Alta., was eventually convicted of promoting hatred of Jews, several years after his students told their parents what he was teaching them.

"A lot of American evangelical movements that are looking at the Cold War in the '80s need a new enemy. A lot of the stuff Keegstra was saying is becoming more mainstream. The only element that's missing is naming the Jews as being behind the conspiracy," Segal said.

Rev. Mooney, and the other contributors to the report, Rev. Don Koots, Linda Payne, Rev. Bill Phipps, Carolyn Pogue Phipps and Fritz Voll, "were looking for disrespectful parts of the Christian Bible, to improve relations," Rev. Mooney said, "and we wanted to acknowledge our silence during the Holocaust."

The report proposes that the Church accept its contents as a resolution at its next General Council in the year 2000. At the moment, a study paper is being produced to make the report more accessible to lay people.

"United Church people were very pleased on the whole," Rev. Mooney said. "One praised it as 'a gift' to the Church, but some thought we were so considerate of Jewish points of view that we might be undermining Christian claims."

As a Christian who believes he can learn a great deal by talking with Jews, Rev. Mooney is excited at the growing dialogue between the communities.

"For the first time ever, a significant body of the Christian church is interested in hearing what Jews have to say on the older testament, God and the Second Temple period, and there is a significant segment of the Jewish community that's willing to speak with us.

Heilik is pleased with the way the report deals with evangelical Christianity and groups such as Jews for Jesus.

"I really like what they have to say. They acknowledge the fact that only the Jewish community can say who we are, and they're saying evangelism and conversion should be abandoned in favor of dialogue and mutual witness," she said.

Kosher slaughtering plant to open in Manitoba

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — The Jewish population of Brandon, Manitoba, which consists of perhaps a dozen families and individuals, may be on the verge of significant growth — with a decidedly Orthodox flavor.

Carvell Trading Ltd., a Tel Aviv-based import-export company, is heading a consortium that is investing $20 million in a vacant meat processing plant in Brandon (pop. 38,000), about 200 km west of Winnipeg.

The Brandon Community Development Corp. is helping with the purchase with a $169,000 forgiveable demand mortgage on the former Burns Meat plant.

Carvell is planning to process 600 head of cattle a day into kosher and halal products for markets in Europe and Russia. That translates into 90 million pounds of fresh meat a year for export through the port of Vancouver or by air.

Winnipeg lawyer Lyle Smordin, a spokesperson for the consortium, expects the deal to close in a couple of weeks. "It will take a while to work out the details," he says. "There is a lot of work to be done in the plant to get it ready. Hopefully, it will be in operation toward the end of 1998."

The renovated slaughtering plant is expected to employ up to 240 people including a number of shochets.

Early last month, the Carvell Group also announced plans to build a multi-million-dollar tourist resort in the community of Pinawa just northeast of Winnipeg. Smordin says that the consortium was encouraged to look at investment opportunities in Manitoba by a Winnipeg Jewish businessperson whom he declined to identify.

From coast to coast

Unique same as distinct: Dion

By DAVID LAZARUS
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL — Recognizing Quebec as a distinct society is the "same thing" as affirming its "unique character" as endorsed recently by premiers from the rest of Canada, Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Stéphane Dion said here recently.

Speaking at the West-Island Beth Tikvah Synagogue, Dion threw his support behind "Plan A" efforts to build a Canadian consensus that would bring Quebec into the constitutional fold based on the premiers' statement of principles affirming both Quebec's unique character and the equality of provinces.

"Perhaps it's not perfectly phrased, but it's a perfectly acceptable set of principles," he told an audience of 250.

The principle of equality, he said, does not imply uniformity between provinces, but equality of treatment.

"This is a principle we need to support, and if one day it becomes part of the Constitution, that would be great."

But several times, Dion also held out the harder-line "Plan B" card.

He stressed that Quebec's future in Canada has to be based on the rule of law and involve a clear question in the next referendum. It would also require a significant majority vote in favor of secession.

Dion also noted that a referendum, while "consultative," in and of itself carries no legal weight.

"The next time, if you want secession, ask a question on secession," he said.

Canada, he said, would not "try to negotiate with a majority vote that is uncertain."

Dion questioned how separatists accept as an article of faith that Quebec territory is "sacred," while Canadian territory is not.

"If I say, 'my territory is sacred,' then all territory is sacred," he said.

Asked how Ottawa would react in the event of a post-referendum unilateral declaration of independence (UDI), Dion did not answer directly.

But he said any negotiations with Quebec would have to follow three unshakable principles: that no government could resort to force or the threat of force; that any process towards secession would have to take place within a legal framework; and that the same process would have to be "crystal clear."

One irate questioner declared that he was fed up with Ottawa not taking a hard-line approach towards the separatist government.

Dion replied: "You're fed up. I'm fed up too."

But he said keeping Canada united is not an issue of taking a hard line, but a "line of clarity," such as the first step of going to the Supreme Court to establish the legal parameters of secession.

Dion defended the need for Quebec to have the French Language Charter as a means of protecting the French fact in a North American sea of English.

But he also said the late Quebec premier Robert Bourassa made a big mistake in not accepting the Supreme Court decision ruling Quebec's unilingual commercial sign laws as unconstitutional.

Dion said that the separatist movement has given different rationales each decade since the 1960s for the need to secede, ranging from the need to build the Quebec economy and as a means for social evolution to market nationalism.

During the 1990s, Quebec Premier Lucien Bouchard has accused Ottawa both of being a government "of too much" when it spent money in Quebec – supposedly interfering with Quebec's autonomy – and for federal cuts to Quebec.

But the heart of the separatist movement, according to Dion, lays rooted in the feeling that "constituting a majority in a province is not enough. You also have to be a majority in a state."

Dion stressed that separatists sincerely believe that they are neither racist nor xenophobic, and that the majority francophone community will build strong relations with the new state's minority members.

But he wondered how separatists can defend the need to be a majority in a state while denying the same right in principle for minorities.

"Can they say: 'We didn't accept being a minority, but you'll have to.'"

The Membership of the STASHOVER SOCIETY LADIES' AUXILIARY & HILFS FEREIN mourn the passing of our beloved member
DAVID BROWN ז"ל
We extend our condolences to the entire Brown family. His devotion to the welfare of the Jewish Community will remain in our hearts forever.

HOLY BLOSSOM TEMPLE
invites the Community to hear
DID ZIONISM SUCCEED?
An Assessment at the End of the Century

ARTHUR HERTZBERG
Monday, October 27, 8 p.m.

Arthur Hertzberg, one of the pre-eminent historians of Modern Jewry in general and Zionism in particular, is currently Bronfman Visiting Professor of the Humanities, New York University. Among his publications are: The Zionist Idea, The French Enlightenment and the Jews, Judaism, Being Jewish in America.

Professor Hertzberg's lecture is sponsored by the GERALD SCHWARTZ/ HEATHER REISMAN LECTURE SERIES 1897-1997: ZIONISM ON THE THRESHOLD OF ITS SECOND CENTURY. Concluding lectures: MERON BENVENISTI, "THE FUTURE OF JERUSALEM" (Nov. 11, 8 p.m.) and AMOS OZ, "ZIONIST DREAMS and ISRAELI REALITIES" (Dec. 2, 8 p.m.).

1950 Bathurst Street
Admission Free

A TASTE OF JUDAISM

Are you Curious?
Jewish Spirituality
Jewish Values
Jewish People

Designed for those looking to reconnect to their Jewish roots, examine the "whys" of Jewish belief, or explore the path toward a Jewish life.
Beginners Only, Please!

A free, unique class exploring the basics of the Jewish faith. Your choice of: three evening sessions, beginning the week of Nov. 16, 1997 at locations throughout Toronto; or, a one day 'marathon' session (with an additional section especially for singles), on Sunday, Nov. 9, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

ADMISSION FREE, BUT SPACE IS LIMITED.
For locations and to register call
905-764-1329

כולל

sponsored by KOLEL: A Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning and made possible by a grant from The Zukerman Charitable Foundation
A Taste of Judaism offers a modern, liberal Jewish perspective on living in today's world.

From coast to coast

Oraynu Community for Secular Humanistic Judaism
formerly the Secular Jewish Association est. 1969
Children's School-Tzedakah • Hebrew • Jewish history, culture
K-Bar/Bat Mitzvah • Bayview/York Mills • Sundays 10:00-12:30
Membership inquiries welcome-Festivals • Social & educational programmes for ALL AGES • Life Cycle celebrations
For info or RH/YK tickets call(416)385-3910
RATIONAL AND SPIRITUAL JUDAISM

1997 - THE YEAR OF THE RRIF
AN RRSP DECISION: If you are 69-71 years of age - you must act NOW!!
We will customize a retirement plan to meet your unique income and estate objectives.
Call us:
Annuity Accords Insurance Agency Inc.
GORDON ROSS, CLU, CFSB (416) 631-6955
A MEMBER OF THE KRG GROUP

בית חנוך שלם
United Synagogue Day School
The Board of Directors, Administration, Faculty and Parent Body extend sincere condolences to MARSHA UROWITZ,
President, Parents Association and her family
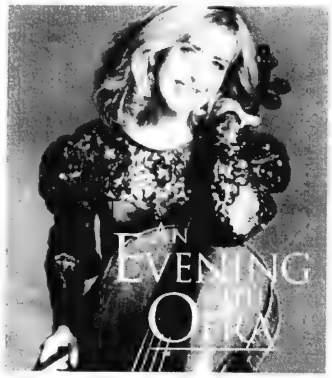
on the passing of her mother
RENEE HURST ע"ה
May the family be comforted among the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem



Come and share a One Night Gala Concert with globally-acclaimed cellist
OFRA HARNOY
Wednesday, November 26, 1997
8 o'clock pm
at Temple Sinai, 210 Wilson Avenue
$ 135. tickets
are Reserved seating and include an invitation to the Post-Concert Reception. (A maximum allowable tax receipt will be issued)
$ 55. tickets
are General Admission seating and do not include the Post-Concert Reception.
TICKET HOTLINE (416) 425-1963
CLASSICAL 96.3 FM · Aetna · BMG · Village Post · MEDIA GROUP INTERNATIONAL · DOCS GROUP · Remedy · CHRIS · COMMUNICATIONS GROUP

SINGLES EVENTS

Singles Events is an advertising feature of The Canadian Jewish News
Please see the Classified section of this issue for EARLY DEADLINES for October
For rates or to place an ad, call:
Lisa at (416) 391-1836
The CJN encourages readers to direct any queries they may have on an upcoming event to the event's organizers.

Co-ed Volleyball. MTS Presents...It's 5th Annual Co-ed Volleyball Season.Recreational & Compet. Div. For info. call: 416-222-7111.

GAMES JEWISH SINGLES PLAY! Sunday, Oct. 19, 7:30 pm, Beth Torah, 47 Glenbrook. Ages 26-40, 41-69. BRIDGE, Rummicube, Trivial Pursuit, Scrabble, etc. Early Bird Bingo, 7:30-8pm. Prizes, refreshments, $5.00. 70 couples have already met! Free introductions. Mollie, 416-733-3634.

HIKING IN THE CITY: Explore the hiking trails of the Rouge River, see beautif.Fall colours.Meet new & interesting people,Sun. Oct. 26.The Adventure Network: 905-707-0147

Jewish Singles Registry. Over 1450 registered. Averaging an engagement every 4 wks. 483-4151.

Looking for a hot date? How about Jan. 11-18/98. Join the Jewish Singles Registry's singles trip to Club Med, Cancun, Mexico. All inclusive, $1398. Only 4 spaces left! Call 416-483-4151.

CONTEMPORARY SINGLES NETWORK INTERNATIONAL
IS PLEASED TO PRESENT A
Calendar Of Events For SINGLES DANCE PARTIES
(Non Denominational)
OCTOBER 1997
MARK THESE DATES ON YOUR CALENDAR

NEXT EVENT
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18TH
Radisson Hotel - Toronto-Markham
50 East Valhalla Drive
At Highways 7 & 404

GOLDEN OLDIES DANCE*
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25TH
Toronto Marriott Hotel
Eaton Centre
525 Bay Street
*Admission $15.

HALLOWEEN WEEKEND*
Admission $12.* Each Party or $20. For Both
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31ST
Inn on the Park Hotel
1100 Eglinton Avenue East
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1ST
Regal Constellation Hotel
900 Dixon Road

OUR PARTIES FEATURE:
Admission $10.00
Great Music, Top DJ
Elegant Ballrooms
Big Dance Floors
CASH PRIZES
DOOR & SPOT PRIZES
GRAND PRIZE DRAW
For Complete Details
Call: (416) 410-6010

New shul opens in west Vancouver

By DAVID J. LITVAK
Special to The CJN

VANCOUVER — A new synagogue that will serve the Jews of north and west Vancouver recently opened on the North Shore.

The new home of Congregation Har-El (mountain of G-d) is located at the intersection of Taylor Way and the Trans-Canada Highway in west Vancouver. It will serve about 200 families.

Project includes covered bridge

The first phase of the Har-El synagogue and community centre includes not only a synagogue and sanctuary, but a library, social hall, senior's lounge, activity centres and memorial wall.

The second phase of the project will include a Hebrew school for preschoolers to bar mitzvah-aged students.

Designed by the award-winning local architectural firm of Acton, Johnson, Ostry Inc., the syngogue is located on a scenic site that overlooks the North Shore mountains.

Notable features of the project include a covered bridge which leads across a stream in which salmon spawn; a sloping wall which is clad in huge slabs of Jerusalem stone; a yahrzeit wall and an outdoor chupah. The sloping wall was built to evoke memories of the Western Wall in Jerusalem because according to Ostry, "To us it was a very important reference that people pass through this wall as a kind of memory transition. What we were told when we researched the project, is that the purpose of the synagogue is to transport people to Jerusalem and in addition, it's always supposed to make reference to the Temple of Jerusalem."

The most distinctive feature of the building is an oversized abstract menorah which is visible from the highway.

According to Ostry, the menorah fulfilled Rabbi Imre Balla's request that the synagogue "look like a Jewish building." Not only was Rabbi Balla pleased with the final result, but according to Har-El president Miriam Bergson, the North Shore Jewish community is "absolutely ecstatic" about its new synagogue and community centre.

Israel, Canadian relations on meeting of JCCs

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Strengthening relations between Canadian and Israeli Jewish community centres (JCC) was a theme at the annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Jewish Community Centres (CCJCC), held this year at Winnipeg's new Asper Jewish Community Campus.

As part of the Partnership 2000 project, a joint venture between the CCJCC and its Israeli counterpart, several new initiatives were discussed. One of the most ambitious is a young leadership development program for Canada's Jewish community centres, which would include an exchange program with madrichim from Israel.

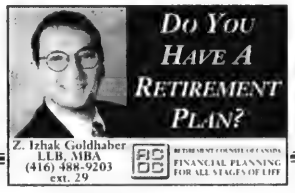
A plan of action is to be drafted by Nov. 1 for presentation two weeks later to the United Israel Appeal Canada, which would be asked to provide funding.

A second new CCJCC project is Hadracha — a professional development and exchange program between Canadian and Israeli JCC staffers.

As well, the Canadian organization is encouraging a bar/bat-mitzvah twinning program which would link Canadian and Israeli families with bar/bat-mitzvah age children. The two families would be in frequent contact with each other during the planning stages and the Canadian family would spend two weeks in Israel culminating with the celebration of their child's bar/bat mitzvah at the Western Wall. The Israeli family would later come to Canada to visit.

Finally, Tamar Barr, program director at the Asper Campus' Rose and Max Rady Jewish Community Centre was asked, along with Adam Minsky of Toronto's Israel Experience Centre, and Shimon Biton and Ami Zinaty of Kiryat Shmonah's JCC, to plan the CCJCC's Etzba HaGalil program in celebration of Israel's 50th anniversary next spring.

The annual meeting attracted about 25 executive directors, presidents and other board leaders from JCCs in Vancouver, Calgary, Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa as well as representatives of the central Israeli body. The annual meeting was last held in Winnipeg five years ago.



International

Israel & the Jewish World

Your Jewish Community Chapel
STEELES
70 years of traditional service
MEMORIAL CHAPEL
(905) 881-6003
(416) 733-2000

Lebanon security zone protects border: Shahak

By DAVID RUDGE
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Terrorists would find it easy to reach the northern border of Israel if the IDF was not in the security zone, Chief of General Staff Lt.-Gen. Amnon Shahak said last week.

In such circumstances, some of the fighting would be waged along the border and some within Israeli territory he said.

Shahak revealed that Hezbollah has received large quantities of weapons in the past few months, including improved anti-tank missiles.

"Hezbollah is always trying to improve itself. It tries to fight in its own way and the best it can," he said.

Shahak spoke to reporters at Haifa's Rambam Hospital last Thursday, night after visiting soldiers who were wounded the day before.

Staff-Sgts. Amir Yoeli, 20, of Zichron Ya'acov, and Fabian Kozama, 20, of Ofarim in Samaria, were killed, and six soldiers were wounded, one of them seriously.

Three members of the South Lebanese Army's (SLA) security apparatus were also wounded in the fighting, which occurred within 200 metres of the border.

Meanwhile, Northern Command continued its investigation of the incident. One of the main questions is how Hezbollah gunmen managed to take cover in an abandoned building just 150 metres from the border, fire anti-tank missiles and light weapons, and then escape unhurt, despite the presence of large numbers of IDF troops in the area.

Security sources said it is believed that there were two squads of gunmen in the area. One was in the house and another had planted a series of roadside bombs that were detonated alongside an IDF convoy minutes after it had entered the security zone. A Golani Brigade officer and a tracker were wounded in that incident.

About an hour later, the gunmen holed up in the house opened fire at a vehicle carrying the three SLA soldiers and simultaneously, mortar crews began bombarding IDF reinforcements and rescue teams.

Yoeli and Kozama were killed when at least one mortar round hit their vehicle and four other soldiers were wounded by mortar shells.

Hezbollah claimed that senior IDF officers had intended to hold a meeting at the SLA's Tel Kahbr position where the reinforcements had gathered, and that one of the main targets of their operation was Lebanon Brig.-Gen. Eli Amitai. The statement said the operation was carried out to mark the anniversary of the assassination of Islamic Jihad leader Fathi Shkaki.

Shahak, however, dismissed this as nonsense. "What they said is incorrect. The senior officers they referred to were not there," he said.

"You forget that there's a war in Lebanon," said Shahak, after being asked how terrorists managed to get so close to the border. "The security zone makes it difficult for terrorists to reach the border. Consider what would happen if we were not on that side of the security zone. The terrorists would easily reach the border.

"It's not the first time that terrorists have gotten very close to the border, and there were incidents, some years ago, when they crossed the fence. Therefore, from our point of view, this war has to be fought along the border, inside the security zone and beyond the zone, and that's what is being done."

Hezbollah, designated by the United States last Wednesday as one of 30 terrorist organizations, warned Washington not to take action against its members.

"We have absolutely no doubt of the American administration's sponsorship of organized international terrorism," said a Hezbollah statement read out on the group's television station in Beirut.

"Therefore, we warn of any measures resulting from this list. The Americans should not fall into the trap of the terrorist Zionist instigation because it will have dire consequences."

Holocaust fund delays payments

By DANIEL KURTZMAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

WASHINGTON — Needy Holocaust survivors in Eastern Europe will have to wait a little longer.

Jewish officials had previously indicated that the first payments from Switzerland's Holocaust Memorial Fund would be made this month, but now they say it will be the end of November before the checks are in the mail.

Last month, Jewish officials turned over to Swiss authorities the names of some 32,000 Holocaust survivors, 12,000 of whom were eligible for the initial round of payments from the fund.

The first group of recipients has been limited to Jews living in former Soviet bloc countries – the so-called "double victims" who suffered under both Nazism and communism and never received reparations from the German government.

The delay in allocating the fund has resulted from what officials describe as the complex task of creating mechanisms for distributing the monies.

In addition, the Swiss members of the fund's administrative council have insisted on auditing the names "to check that the list corresponds with reality and was made in the correct way," said Barbara Ekwall, a spokesperson in Bern for the Fund Secretariat, which handles the administrative functions for the fund.

The process of verifying names presumably will be a factor in the delayed payments.

Many of the Holocaust survivors who have been designated to receive payments, meanwhile, have expressed bitterness and impatience in recent weeks as they await checks in the amount of about $1,000 each.

The fund now stands at about $116 million (US). Additional pledges already made by private Swiss companies and the Swiss National Bank would bring the total to some $200 million.

U.S. issues list of terror groups

By DANIEL KURTZMAN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

WASHINGTON — In a long-awaited move expected to aid the fight against terrorism, the United States has designated 30 groups as foreign terrorist organizations.

The action was taken under a 1996 anti-terrorism law that makes it illegal to provide funds for designated terrorist groups; bars U.S. visas for their members or representatives; and requires U.S. financial institutions to block funds belonging to the groups.

Jewish organizations, which were instrumental in pushing the legislation through Congress, have been urging the administration to make the designations for nearly a year and a half.

The groups include Hamas, Hezbollah and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. Two Jewish organizations — Kach and Kahane Chai — are also on the list.

U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright called terrorism one of the nation's most important security problems and said the administration hopes to turn the country into a "no-support-for-terrorism zone."

The law mandating the identification of terrorist groups took effect 17 months ago. The process of actually naming the organizations was delayed, however, as preparations were being made for possible legal challenges to the designations, observers said.

Last month, the U.S. House of Representatives, impatient over the slow pace of compiling the list, voted 396-6 to cut State Department salaries and expenses by 2 percent until the list was completed.

Following the designations, Rep. Benjamin Gilman (R-N.Y.), chair of the House International Relations Committee, said the State Department's "belated" action sends a signal that the administration "is finally waking up to the serious threat of foreign terrorist organizations."

The anti-terrorism law supplements an executive order President Clinton signed in 1995 blocking assets of 12 Middle Eastern terrorist organizations that threaten to use violence to disrupt the peace process.

CJN Chanukah Poetry Contest

The CJN announces its second annual Chanukah poetry contest.

Who can enter:
Anyone can enter except CJN employees or members of their family.

There are three age categories for entrants:

1. Twelve years old and under,
2. Thirteen to 18 years old,
3. Eighteen years old and up.

How to enter:
The poems must be about Chanukah; they cannot be longer than 40 lines. A maximum of one poem per entrant may be submitted. Please include your name, age, address and phone number with the poem. We would prefer to receive typewritten poems if possible.

We will return poems if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

You may mail or deliver your poems to:
CJN Chanukah Poetry Contest, The Canadian Jewish News,
10 Gateway Blvd., Suite 420, Don Mills, Ontario, M3C 3A1.

The contest closes at 5 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 18, 1996.

Prizes:
The judges will choose six poems to be published, two from each of the three categories, which in their opinion, most poetically and evocatively convey an aspect of the meaning of Chanukah. Each of the "winners" will also receive a cheque for $50.

Only six poems will be selected as "winners". Space permitting, we may publish other poems as honorable mentions. The decisions of the judges will be final. The odds of "winning" depend upon the number and the quality of submissions received.

How the winners will be notified:
"Winning" entrants will be notified by telephone before the start of the Shabbat on Friday, Nov. 22, 1996.

When the prizes will be awarded:
The winning poems will be published in The CJN of Dec. 5, 1996. We look forward to receiving your poems. May the miracle of Chanukah and the magic of its light be reflected in your poems.

Any litigation respecting the conduct and awarding of a prize in this contest may be submitted to the Regie des Loteries et courses du Quebec.

Israel & the Jewish World

Apology by church triggers controversy

[Cont'd. from page 1]

The Vatican's "position on the Holocaust is a clear thing," the Pope told reporters aboard the papal jet taking him to Brazil. "But we must not forget that there have been other holocausts in the world. Let's not forget these others."

Kahn also wondered why the French church had waited so long to issue the apology, which came 57 years after the first anti-Semitic laws were promulgated by the pro-Nazi Vichy regime on Oct. 3, 1940.

"It could have been done earlier. It could have been done when the German church apologized two years ago," on the 50th anniversary of the liberation of Auschwitz.

Kahn's reaction sharply contrasted with that of most Jewish community leaders.

Henri Hajdenberg, president of CRIF, the umbrella group of secular French Jewish organizations, hailed the church's mea culpa as a landmark in improving Jewish-Catholic relations.

"Undoubtedly, the historic significance of your statement will break new ground in relations between Christians and Jews," Hajdenberg said in a speech at the Drancy ceremony.

"It gives hope for a more fraternal dialogue and full recognition of the legitimacy of each other's faith.

"Your request for forgiveness is so intense, so powerful, so poignant, that it can't but be heard by the surviving victims and their children," he said.

Hajdenberg also paid tribute to seven priests who spoke out during the war against the mass arrests of Jews in France.

Although there were also some Catholic schools and orphanages that helped hide Jewish children, the church leadership largely backed the pro-Nazi Vichy regime.

Hajdenberg spoke after the statement of apology for the church's silence was read on behalf of the bishops of France.

"The vast majority of church officials, bound up in loyalism and docility that went far beyond traditional obedience to the established powers, stuck to an attitude of conformism, caution and abstention," the statement said.

"By their silence, the bishops of France acquiesced to flagrant violations of human rights and allowed the machine of death to be set in motion.

"Today we confess that silence was a mistake. We beg for the pardon of God, and we ask the Jewish people to hear this word of repentance."

By seeking forgiveness, the French church has joined a season of remembrance in France, the focal point of which is the start of the trial of former Cabinet minister Maurice Papon, who is accused of ordering the deportation of 1,560 Jews, 223 of them children, to Nazi death camps.

Some observers noted that the church may have timed its apology to pre-empt disclosures from the trial, which is expected to re-examine the behavior of different sections of wartime French society, including the church, during the persecution of Jews.

French Jewish philosopher Alain Finkielkraut, while praising the apology as the crowning of a spiritual revolution in the church, criticized its timing as "distressing because it removes the event from the context of its own history to link it exclusively" to the Papon trial.

"A fine ear is not needed to hear the maundering annoyance of some people who are wondering how long this will go on," Finkielkraut told the daily, Le Figaro.

Another sore point in Jewish-Catholic relations in France was the involvement of extremist members of the clergy in hiding former Lyon militia chief Paul Touvier from justice for nearly 50 years before he was arrested and found guilty in 1994 of crimes against humanity by a Versailles court. Touvier died in 1996 in a prison hospital.

The Jewish community was further outraged last year, when philanthropist priest Abbe Pierre, who has long been voted France's most popular figure, defended a longtime friend who cast doubt on the extent of the Holocaust.

Despite its alleged imperfections, along with the Papon trial and President Jacques Chirac's 1995 public acknowledgment of the wartime French administration's participation in the arrest and deportation of Jews, the church's apology is one in a long line of gestures that is helping France to close a painful and embarrassing chapter from its past.

Last week, France's police union asked for forgiveness for its role in rounding up Jews for deportation during World War II.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the church's statement, delivered in the presence of some 20 Catholic bishops and several Jewish officials, was the acknowledgment of the role of Catholicism's traditional anti-Semitic teachings in laying the groundwork for the Holocaust.

"We must, above all, recognize the indirect, if not direct role of the habitual anti-Jewish attitude – which the Christian people are guilty of maintaining – in the historical process that led to the Shoah," said the statement, which was read by Olivier de Berranger, bishop of the Paris suburb of Saint-Denis, located near Drancy.

"On that ground flowered the venomous plant of the hatred of the Jews."

The apology was not warmly greeted by all Catholics in a country that long denied its active role in the Final Solution.

Monsignor Thomas, bishop of Versailles, said several Catholics had protested the church's self-criticism.

"I received a phone call this morning from someone who said, 'You have no right to assume the errors of your predecessors,'" Monsignor Thomas said.

The lull before the storm

[Cont'd. from pg. 1]

broken government promises. But already the union, which has much less power than it did 10 or 15 years ago, has tried to bring the country to a standstill with selective daily national strikes. Most workers who took time off when the union called the stoppages did not really understand what they were striking for.

With the exception of the electronics and communications industry, most other business sectors report reductions in output. The all-important tourism sector has also been hard hit by the fallout from the political situation. This year, a 10 percent reduction in foreign currency earnings is expected.

Although many hotels in the main tourist centres still have vacant rooms, their managements fail to offer the kind of incentives that will go a long way toward filling the deficit. The Israeli tourist industry just will not come to terms with the fact that it is much cheaper for Israelis to take their holidays abroad than to stay in Israel. Almost a third of all Israelis do just that.

It is human nature to eat more in a crisis; this year is no exception. Supermarket chains vie to fill pre-holiday shopping baskets. Although there is not a lot of competition as far as prices are concerned, buyers are lured into the supermarkets by extended credit – one chain offers six months of free credit when you spend over $ 235. True competition by price is still in its infancy, because consumers do not demand it.

In one segment of the economy, it is now a buyers market. The property market has always been susceptible to political considerations. In Jerusalem, there is a lot of good property for sale at excellent prices. Property is being purchased mainly by Israelis; foreign buyers are holding off to a certain extent, until there is more confidence in the direction of the peace process. One leading Jerusalem real estate dealer described the Jerusalem market as sensitive and said sellers are being flexible over prices.

Real estate dealers in the Mediterranean coastal cities, such as Netanya and Caesarea report a stagnant market. Many new houses and apartments remain unsold and the short-term prospects seem very gloomy.

This is a season of prayer and self-evaluation. There are few who would not take a moment to pray for peace. Almost every day another family hears that a son or father has been killed in the line of duty. These motivated young Israeli soldiers are not even dying in Israel. The battle is being taken to the terrorists in a tit-for-tat war that has no end in sight, unless politicians can sit down together and thrash out their differences.

When the branches come off the sukkot and the etrogim have been made into jam, reality will return. The harbor has offered a four-week respite, but the waves outside the harbor wall are looking very rough and the sky very stormy.

Some people want things to happen, some wish for them to happen...

at Shaare Zedek Medical Center
we MAKE things happen.

Help Jerusalem's "Hospital with a Heart"
by contributing to
Canadian Shaare Zedek Hospital Foundation

1-800-387-3595 TORONTO (416) 781-3584
MONTREAL (514) 486-7301 WINNIPEG (204) 896-4588
OFFICIAL TAX RECEIPTS WILL BE ISSUED

A Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $5.00 per month.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa or Mastercard before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please call Janice at 416-391-1836, allowing a minimum of two weeks notice.

THE HOLIDAYS ARE HERE!
Call your family and friends in
ISRAEL
FOR 57¢ per MIN.
with Audioguide's
PREPAID CALLING CARDS
Call Israel from anywhere in Canada and the U.S.
Ask for Audioguide's prepaid calling cards at most Toronto Judaica stores or call
TORONTO (416) 636-3111
MONTREAL (514) 282-4171
OTTAWA (613) 241-3873

MOVING?

ATTACH LABEL HERE FOR CHANGE OR INQUIRY.
IF YOU ARE RECEIVING DUPLICATE COPIES OF THE CJN, PLEASE SEND BOTH LABELS TO US.
PLEASE NOTIFY US 3 WEEKS IN ADVANCE.

The Canadian Jewish news

1500 Don Mills Road, Suite 205
North York, Ontario M3B 3K4

The Week in Israel

Oct. 6

• President Ezer Weizman met with U.S. President Bill Clinton at the White House. Weizman was in Washington to meet with members of the American administration and congressional leaders.

Oct. 7

• Foreign Minister David Levy was hospitalized with chest pains following a meeting with U.S. envoy Dennis Ross and PA deputy Abu Mazen. Follow-up talks scheduled for Washington with the PA and the United States were postponed.

• Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Yasser Arafat held a pre-dawn meeting at the Erez checkpoint in Gaza. U.S. envoy Dennis Ross described the meeting as positive.

Oct. 8

• At least two Israeli soldiers were killed in clashes in the southern Lebanon security zone. Forty-one IDF soldiers have been killed in Lebanon since last January.

• The trial of Tatyana Suskin began today. She is accused of putting up posters in Hebron that depicted Mohammed as a pig.

Oct. 9

• Nahum Admoni, former Mossad chief, was asked to step down as chair of the panel appointed by the government to probe the Meshal affair. Admoni had gone on the public record prior to the appointment, commending the operation. Former Air Force commander Dan Tolkovsky replaced Admoni on the committee. At the same time speculation has mounted that Mossad chief Danny Yatom would be forced to resign his position.

Oct. 10

• A Palestinian official said Israel agreed to release $49 million (US) in tax revenues to the PA. The money had been withheld after the July 30 suicide bombings in Jerusalem.

• Jordan's King Hussein said Israel promised him that it would never again attempt an assassination on Jordanian soil. Hosni Mubarak called the attempt "immoral."

With files from the JTA

Iran worries Israel

By SHELDON KIRSHNER

The alarm has been sounded. Iran, with the help of Russia, is well on its way toward acquiring long-range ballistic missiles and an arsenal of nuclear, chemical and biological weapons.

Mideast Analysis

In the face of this ominous news, Israel has launched an international campaign to nip in the bud Iran's program.

If diplomacy fails, Israel might feel compelled to deal with the problem through more drastic means. Rightly or wrongly, Israel has compared Iran's quest for non-conventional military capabilities with Iraq's efforts in the 1970s and 1980s to build a nuclear device. In response to this potential threat, Israel bombed an Iraqi reactor near Baghdad in June 1981, touching off howls of condemnation but crippling Iraq's efforts to join the fraternity of countries with nuclear arms.

Israel is worried that a successful Iranian bid to develop long-range surface-to-surface missiles, in tandem with nuclear, biological and chemical arms, will upset the balance of power and therefore destabilize the region, with all its possible fallout.

"Iran's efforts to procure weapons of mass destruction and long-range delivery systems may be the most dangerous development in the 21st century," Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu warned in an interview last month.

Israel has pulled out all the stops in an attempt to deal with the looming menace. Two weeks ago, at the United Nations, Foreign Minister David Levy called for a halt in the transfer of Russian missile technology to Iran. Previously, Israel had sent a sharply-worded message to Russian Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primakov.

Netanyahu raised the question with President Boris Yeltsin in Moscow last March and with U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright in Jerusalem in September.

The United States, Israel's chief ally, is also concerned. Last summer, President Bill Clinton dispatched a special envoy to Russia, and more recently, Vice-President Al Gore discussed the issue with Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin.

Furthermore, at Israel's behest, the American Israel Public Affairs Committee has expressed support for a congressional resolution urging the Clinton administration to impose selective economic sanctions on Russia if it does not stop governmental and non-governmental entities from assisting Iran.

By all accounts, the assistance is being provided by Russian companies and institutes that were once an integral component of the Soviet Union's military/industrial complex. With military spending having drastically fallen since the collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991, these entities have looked abroad for contracts, and thousands of Russian scientists have offered their services to the highest bidder.

Iran's plans to develop long-range missiles are of special concern to Israel. The Israeli chief of staff has pointed out that Iran will be able to produce missiles capable of reaching Israel within a few years. Indeed, Iran already has carried out tests.

Russia is allegedly helping Iran to develop the missile's navigational and delivery system, as well as its warheads. Moscow denies the accusation.

Lacking the funds to bolster all its forces, Iran has chosen to develop non-conventional capabilities, according to Iranian Military Power, a monograph published by the Washington Institute for Near East Policy.

Iran is said to be motivated by a desire to attain power, prestige and influence and to strengthen its deterrent capability.

It is debatable whether the Islamic fundamentalist regime in Tehran, notwithstanding its opposition to Israel's existence, would be foolhardy enough to attack Israel with non-conventional weapons. Iran realizes that Israel is a nuclear power and could, with disastrous consequences, strike back.

Perhaps, in light of its 1980-1988 war with Iraq and its poor relations with the United States, Iran is developing a non-conventional force for purely defensive reasons.

WEIZMAN IN WASHINGTON
Israel's President Ezer Weizman lays a wreath at the Holocaust Museum during his recent visit to Washington. [RNS/Reuters photo]

22ND ANNUAL FLORIDA
Medical, Dental, Legal and Podiatric Seminar
DEC. 21, 1997-JAN. 4, 1998
EMBASSY SUITES HOTEL - BOCA RATON, FLA.
Continuing Education Credits & Appropriate Tax Documentation Given
REGISTRATION: $350 U.S.
Contact: Linda Golnick, Co-ordinator
4826 Cliffside Dr., West Bloomfield, Michigan 48323
Tel: (248) 681-0211 Fax: (248) 681-9315
Special hotel, air & car rates available

Canadian Technion Society

NOTICE OF GENERAL MEETING

Notice is hereby given that the Annual General Meeting and Board of Directors meeting of the Canadian Technion Society will be held at the Four Seasons Hotel, Tudor Room 21 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario on the 2nd day of November 1997 at 8:45 a.m. by order of the Officers

Service to New York City
for the holidays
Direct to Port Authority in Manhattan
From Montreal
Leave from the Voyageur Terminal
Daily
10:00AM 10:45PM
From Toronto
Daily from the Bus Terminal 610 Bay Street
7:30 AM 8:30AM 11:30AM
7:30PM 9:30PM 11:30PM
All coaches are European Style, air conditioned and have more space between seats for your added comfort.
Fully licensed and driven by professional drivers.
Les Autocar Adirondack
Montreal 514-842-2281
Toronto 416-367-8747
1-800-858-8555

Would you rather have your kids turn on the TV or tune into the Jewish community?
Keyword: JEWISH
The after school alternative
JEWISH.COMMUNITY
Let your kids learn and socialize with other Jewish kids online. Next time they want to turn on the TV, have them tune into the Jewish Community instead.
On AOL Canada Keyword: JEWISH CANADA
AOL CANADA
For a start-up kit call 1.800.729.4499
...and read Canadian Jewish News at keyword: JEWISH NEWS

Israel & the Jewish World

Records show Nazis looted $8.5 billion in gold

One-third taken from individuals, companies

By DANIEL KURTZMAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

WASHINGTON — Nearly one-third of all gold looted by the Nazis came from individual victims and private businesses, according to a new report issued by the World Jewish Congress (WJC).

The report released last week claims that the amount of such privately held gold amounted at current valuations to $2.6 billion (US), out of a total of $8.5 billion worth of gold looted by Nazi Germany.

A U.S. government report released earlier this year estimated that the Nazis had seized $7 billion worth of gold at today's prices, but made no estimate of the amount of privately held gold involved.

The WJC report, written by international economist Sidney Zabludoff, draws from the scrupulous records kept by Nazi Germany of all the gold it confiscated between 1933 and 1945 from German citizens, European Jews and the treasuries of occupied countries.

"The precision is down to a single bar of gold," said Elan Steinberg, executive director of the WJC, which has been combing archives in the United States and abroad for the past two years, in an effort to locate missing Jewish assets deposited in Swiss banks and probe Nazi Germany's wartime financial transactions.

The report, based primarily on recently declassified documents from the Federal Reserve Bank and the U.S. Treasury, says Switzerland was the first stop for 85 percent of the $5.2 billion worth of gold at current prices that Germany shipped to foreign locations to buy strategic goods and services.

The total amount of gold known to have passed through Switzerland represents $2 billion to $3 billion more than Switzerland returned after the war, the report said, concluding that Switzerland still owes that amount, if it is to conform with a 1943 Allied declaration that all looted gold handled by neutral nations was to be returned after the war.

Under an agreement reached in 1946 with the United States, Britain and France, Switzerland agreed to pay $58 million – worth $580 million today – to the gold pool administered by the Tripartite Commission for the Restitution of Monetary Gold.

The Swiss government questioned the report's findings, saying that the Swiss National Bank had already opened its records and provided a full accounting of its wartime gold transactions.

"I am somewhat surprised by these results because there is hardly anything that is better known than the gold transactions of the Swiss National Bank," Swiss finance minister Kaspar Villiger told the Swiss parliament last week.

He said he doubted any new facts could emerge that would change the government's position that the 1946 agreement reached with the Allies had fully absolved Switzerland of any future reparation claims.

The WJC released the report in advance of an international conference on Nazi gold scheduled to take place in London in December. The conference, to be convened by the Tripartite Gold Commission, is expected to address, among other things, the question of how the last bit of recovered Nazi-looted gold – 5.5 tons valued at some $65 million – should be distributed.

Meanwhile, James Leach, chair of the U.S. House banking committee, introduced legislation that would authorize the United States to make a $25 million contribution to organizations serving Holocaust survivors in the United States.

Leach said that such a move might prompt countries that received Nazi-looted gold after the war and others to make similar contributions. The legislation also calls for the restitution of artwork looted by the Nazis.

Red Cross apologizes for staying silent during Holocaust

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — Add the Red Cross to the list of groups that have recently apologized for remaining silent during the Holocaust.

The director of archives for the International Committee for the Red Cross (ICRC), George Willemin, acknowledged recently at a ceremony at the Yad Vashem Holocaust memorial in Jerusalem, the organization's "moral failure."

He also delivered 60,000 pages of Red Cross documents to be given to three Jewish museums.

"The ICRC admits — yes — that it has kept silent with regard to the Holocaust, and I would say that this is the heart of the moral failure," he said.

The Red Cross apology came days after the French Roman Catholic Church issued a statement of repentance for its silence during the persecution of Jews in Nazi-occupied France.

The ICRC, which is based in Switzerland, discounted reports of a 1940 mass murder in Lublin, Poland, according to a statement from Yad Vashem.

This was not its only failure. As reports of extermination camps began to spread in 1944, the Red Cross visited the Theresienstadt ghetto in Czechoslovakia at the invitation of the Nazis. The Nazis cleaned up the ghetto by lessening overcrowded conditions by sending prisoners to Auschwitz, and adding a bank, shops and schools.

The ruse worked. The Red Cross reported that allegations of extermination camps were unfounded.

In the latter stages of the war, the Red Cross did work with Jewish organizations in rescuing Jews, according to Yehuda Bauer, the director of research at Yad Vashem.

The documents will be distributed among Yad Vashem, the Holocaust museum in Washington and the Centre for Jewish Documentation in Paris.

Open Window Bakery
Health Bread
over 30 stores to serve you across metro
THIS WEEKEND SPECIAL
IN ALL OUR STORES
From FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17th to SUNDAY, OCTOBER 19th
ORANGE NUT RING $4.59 Reg. Price $5.39
Dome $5.19 Reg. Price $5.89
ASK FOR OTHER IN-STORE SPECIALS

THE COUNTER-MISSIONARY SURVIVAL SEMINAR
DON'T ALLOW MISSIONARIES TO THREATEN JEWISH CONTINUITY
Christian Missionaries spend millions of dollars annually in a worldwide effort to convert Jews. In response, JEWS FOR JUDAISM is offering its highly acclaimed counter-missionary seminar. It will give you the knowledge and tools necessary to respond confidently to any missionary who challenges your Jewish beliefs.
SEMINAR CONTENTS INCLUDE:
• Missionary Tactics • Real Messiah
• The Obsession to Convert Jews
• Christian "Prooftexts" • Videos
• Sin, Salvation and Atonement
• Eternal Torah vs. New Testament
• Former Jew for Jesus Speaks Out
SEMINAR LECTURER:
• Rabbi Michael Skobac
(consultant to JEWS FOR JUDAISM)
WED. OCT. 29 AT 8:00PM
for 8 consecutive weeks
JEWS FOR JUDAISM CENTRE
800 Steeles Ave. W. (at Bathurst)
COST: $36 (includes materials)
To register call: (416) 789-2851
Jews for Judaism

The family of the late

MYER DORN ז"ל

Wish to thank their countless relatives and friends for their condolences and contributions at a time of very great loss of a very special, kind and loving tzadek.

THE ARTS HOUSE DESIGN & PRINTING GROUP INC.
Ed Moscovici and staff wish all our friends and clients
לשנה טובה תכתבו
May the New Year 5758 be a year of fulfillment, prosperity and peace.
Communication by design (416) 340-6284

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
ZOGLO'S VEGETARIAN
Beef or Chicken Patties 300 g $2.99
Spinach, Corn, Potato, Broccoli, Mixed Vegetables, Cauliflower Nuggets $1.99
Cauliflower or Corn Schnitzel 332 g $2.99
Until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK – 161 DENISON ST. W. – (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Health

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
Free Buy One 56g Pkg Pink Euro-cut SMOKED BAGELOX
Get One FREE save 2.99
GOLDEN HARBOR PRE-SLICED RED PACIFIC SMOKED SALMON $9.99/lb
with ad
Valid until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK – 161 DENISON ST. W. – (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Expansion planned for Carmel Medical Centre

Arrival of immigrants has led to overcrowding

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — For nearly 25 years, the Lady Davis Carmel Medical Centre in Haifa has served the population of northern Israel, specializing in community medicine, cardiovascular disease, in-vitro fertilization and medical research.

Now, its new director general, Dr. Yakov Zilberg, wants to upgrade and modernize it, to better deal with the increasing population in the area and the greater demands on its services.

Zilberg, who was in Toronto to meet with the board of directors of Canadian Friends of the Carmel Medical Centre, came to Israel from the former Soviet Union in 1972. Through his work in various capacities, with Kupat Holim, Israel's largest health fund, as well as his own work at the hospital, he said, he got to know the facility very well.

Because Haifa received more immigrants than had been planned for, Zilberg said, the hospital has become overcrowded.

"The emergency room was intended to handle 200 patients over a 24-hour-period. Instead, it handles almost twice that amount," he said. Intensive care has six beds, but needs 12, when one considers the aging population of the area and the amount of heart and vascular surgery done at Carmel.

The 400 in-patient beds have a "100% occupancy rate," and the day hospital treats 100 patients per day.

Zilberg, however, is anxious to institute changes that are not related to money, such as making the staff aware of the importance of continually improving the quality of their service.

Dr. Yakov Zilberg

He wants to penetrate the community by moving services that do not have to be done in the hospital to community centres, "which are more convenient and closer to the population." This might include such outpatient services as pre-and post-operative care, follow-ups, screening, dialysis, and well-baby care.

In the hospital, "there is a lack of space for things we consider necessities, such as a waiting area, toilets and showers. We want to bring it up to late 20th century standards."

Zilberg is proud of the research done at Carmel in basic science, clinical medicine, cardiology, genetics, and molecular biology. In co-operation with the Technion, there is an intensive medical and post-graduate training program.

One of Zilberg's first projects is to improve the facilities for in-vitro fertilization, "which Carmel does more of than any other hospital, especially in the Haifa area."

Longtime Toronto fundraiser Dave Marks is co-ordinator of the just-being-formed Canadian Friends of Carmel Medical Centre. He told The CJN that the board of directors is currently in formation, and organizational and fundraising plans are being considered.

Marcus leaves UJA to head fundraising at Mount Sinai

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — The goal of providing first class care in the face of government cutbacks has led to the enlarging and reorganizing of the Mount Sinai Hospital Foundation.

On Nov. 1, Paul Marcus becomes vice-president in charge of fundraising, and Carol Seidman becomes vice-president and chief operating officer in charge of community and donor relations.

The new appointments were announced by Nicholas Offord, foundation president, who said the reorganization is needed because of the large increase in the number of donors and the growing responsibilities of the foundation in health care.

Marcus is moving from his job as director of development at UJA Federation to an even higher profile position with the foundation, while Seidman is stepping up from her job as director of community giving, a post she has held for two years.

In 1995, the Friends for Life campaign raised $71 million for the foundation and since then, the foundation has been developing a permanent fundraising operation.

The foundation currently raises $16 million a year and Offord said consideration is being given to a new $75-million campaign, though the planning is still in its early stages.

Paul Marcus

The chair of the campaign will be Lawrence Bloomberg, chairman and CEO of First Marathon.

As always, Offord said, the foundation's main focus will be on supporting the Samuel Lunenfeld Research Institute, which has won a world wide reputation in genetics and other research.

For every dollar that the foundation is able to give for research at the Institute, the scientists there become eligible for $3 in government research grants.

Foundation revenues are needed to endow chairs for the Institute's senior scientists, to provide operational support, in addition to upgrading hospital facilities.

This last responsibility looms ever larger. Ten years ago, grants from the foundation made up only between two and three percent of Mount Sinai Hospital's total revenues, while in the year 2000, it is expected that the hospital will need the foundation to make up 10 percent.

COPING WITH A.D.D.
Distractible ? Impulsive? Inattentive?
An effective training program to increase CONCENTRATION and ATTENTION
ATTENTION DISORDERS NEUROFEEDBACK CENTRE
(416) 944-0103

★★★ CENTRE HONDA ★★★
PRESENTS
LEASE SPECIAL
BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND!
LIMITED TIME OFFER
Air Conditioning with Micron Filtration System
AM/FM 4 Speaker Stereo
Walk Through Front Seat
Power Windows Mirrors, Locks and Tailgate release
Dual Airbags
5 Passenger Roominess
2.0 litre 126 HP DOHC 16 Valve Fuel Injected Engine
Tachometer & Cruise Control
Full time 4 Wheel Drive
Two Way Tailgate
837 Litres of Cargo Space
4 Wheel Independent Double Wishbone Suspension
Anti-Lock Braking System (ABS)
Front & Rear Stabilizer Bars
P205-70R15 (M&S) Tires With Tailgate Mounted Full Size Spare And Cover
THE ROOMY HONDA CR-V
DRIVES LIKE A SPORT-LITE...HANDLES LIKE A CAR
$328* PER MONTH 48 MONTHS
$26,800# MSRP
*48 month lease with $2,500 down. First monthly payment security deposit freight PDI, taxes, license & insurance are extra. Zero down payment plan also available #MSRP does not include freight PDI, taxes, license & insurance. Cannot be combined with any other purchase or previous sale. See us for more details
CENTRE HONDA
SERVING YOU FOR OVER 30 YEARS
354 RICHMOND ST. E. (416) 364-1116
(East of Sherbourne)
HONDA
E-Mail Address: sales@centrehonda.com Web-Site Address www.centrehonda.com
BUILT WITHOUT COMPROMISE.

MED CARE
Welcomes Chiropractor
DR. HEATHER BEITEL

NEW PATIENTS WELCOME
Evening appointments available
905-881-6690
the Shops on Steeles & 404
2900 Steeles Ave. E., Suite 206
Thornhill, ON (Steeles at Don Mills)

THE ROSE SINGS...
ADVERTISE!
CALL LISA
AT
(416) 391-1836
FOR ADVERTISING RATES
CJN Classifieds Really Work!

Not your typical film

BY CINDY WAXER
Special to the CJN

MARKHAM, Ont. — "Filmmaking is very much like a Mennonite community in the 1800s, where on a Sunday, the whole town would come together and build a barn," says filmmaker Stephen Merrick, 30, who, along with a cast and crew of volunteers, is putting finishing touches on his first feature film, Wind Taken, a fantasy love story set at the Angus Glen Golf Club here.

The film explores the romantic relationship between Ponchy, a wind spirit, and Solomon, a regular golfer and corporate yuppie. Their precarious union is threatened when Solomon's boss decides to build factories next to the golf course in order to block the wind. If the plan is successful, Ponchy will eventually dissipate.

Rather than focus on the supernatural aspect of the film, Merrick has treated its story line as if it were a modern-day morality tale.

"[Ponchy] reveals things to [Solomon] that he's forgotten... [the fact] that he's actually really not interested in money and that's not his real pursuit or his true dream. He's really an artist," Merrick says.

It's a theme that parallels the career choices of those involved in making Wind Taken. Beth Matenko, 27, who plays Ponchy, abandoned a conventional 9-to-5 job to become a struggling actress. Mark Nykoluk, 33, who plays Solomon, walked away from his engineering work to pursue a career that spans film, stage, musical theatre and opera. And Barb Pullen, 27, set aside her work in psychology to act as the film's production manager.

Merrick himself was a builder of custom homes, but decided to pursue his dream of becoming a filmmaker after being inspired by the award-winning foreign feature Cinema Paradiso.

"I just said to myself, 'Wow, I can't believe what this filmmaker has done for me.' I think about the film and it really moves me. And I said, 'You know what, I want do that for somebody,'" he recalls.

Shortly thereafter, Merrick enrolled in several film workshops at New York University, where he acquired the skills to create his own films. These include the shorts Traces of An Image and Hot Dog's at Tiffany's, a 10-minute film which tells the story of two women who, while shopping in Yorkville, adopt the canine victim of a hit and run.

Although the decision to abandon custom home-building for filmmaking might seem unusual, Merrick claims that there are similarities between the two crafts.

"There are usually about 30 people that you're coordinating and you're directing them to put together a [film] project...whereas with a house, you're directing 40 or 50 people: 'You put the bricks there.' 'You paint it that color.' It's very similar and both are equally frustrating," he says.

Produced by Fiction Factory, a production company comprised of Merrick, Matenko and Pullen, Wind Taken has encountered its share of obstacles.

Having started shooting in mid-July, the film's outdoor set has been plagued by lightning bolts and sporadic rainfall. "Almost every time we filmed outdoors, it started to rain," says Merrick. With a $15, 000 film budget that doesn't allow for postponements, the cast and crew of Wind Taken have had to work around Canada's unpredictable weather by creating tents from rented camera equipment and plastic coverings.

Yet it is precisely this type of collaborative effort that will see the shooting of Wind Taken to its completion within the next few months.

Following this, Merrick will attempt to reach audiences through broadcast television, the film festival circuit or a distribution deal.

"I see this film appealing to a European market because it's a story about people and there's no crazy special effects and no violence. It's not your typical film," he says.

Production brings home horror of Holocaust

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — The title character in My Mother's Courage is so real "it frightens me," said Elizabeth Shepherd who plays the part of Elsa, the Budapest Jew who escaped deportation in 1942 by mere chance.

"It was non-Jews who let Jews go to the ovens, so I feel a special responsibility and I am honored to play the role."

My Mother's Courage is being remounted by Olive Eye Productions at Theatre Passe Muraille mainstage Oct. 22 to Nov. 2 following sold-out performances at Ashkenaz and at T.P.M. in March.

Elizabeth Shepherd

Shepherd's portrayal won her a Dora nomination as best actress in a small theatre play. The designer of the play, Minda Johnston, also was nominated.

Her fascination with Elsa (mother of playwright George Tabori) concerns the dilemma Elsa faced in dealing with the German officer who saved her life. "It was just as hard for her to make that walk to the officer as it was to leave her family and community behind."

That's why, she said, Tabori had his mother say: "Don't look into your enemy's eyes because he may no longer be your enemy."

In preparing for the role, Shepherd said she lived with a video of the film Anne Frank Remembered. "The director had gathered real people who knew Anne Frank and this meant so much to me. It brought the Holocaust home."

Original cast members Tom Barnett (as the German officer) and Margaret Lamarre, playing several roles, are in the new production along with newcomers Jon Michaelson playing Elsa's son and the narrator, and Alon Nashman in several roles.

For information call 504-7529.

ICRF

Proudly Presents

YOUNG ASSOCIATES MISSION TO ISRAEL

February 4 - 15, 1998

Don't miss this exciting opportunity to meet young people from across North America

Travel the length of Israel, from the Northern frontier - Lebanon - to the southern border - Egypt; from the Mediterranean Sea to the Jordan River

Only $2495 per person from Toronto or Montreal,
(plus airport tax) + $150 Donation to ICRF
For more information contact

Talia or Cindy
416-487-5246
ICRF Office

or

Eyal or Carrie
1-800-465-1019

ALLIANCE
Alliance Communications

In association with

ICRF
Israel Cancer Research Fund

YOUNG ASSOCIATES

Cordially invites you to attend the advance screening of

THE WINGS of THE DOVE

starring
Helena Bonham Carter
Linus Roache & Alison Elliott

On Wednesday November 5th, 1997 at 7:00 p.m.

At Cineplex Odeon's,
York Cinema, 101 Eglinton Avenue East

Followed by a Private Post-Screening Party
Sponsored by Shark City, 117 Eglinton Avenue East

Tickets are limited so make sure you book in advance
Prices: $20.00 by Friday, October 31st
$25.00 at the door
$15.00 for party only

Join us for a great movie, door prizes and more!!!!!

Call (416) 487-5246 to order your tickets
Visa & Master Card Accepted

Our Thanks to:
Alliance Communications
Cineplex Odeon Corporation
Shark City Bar & Grill

SHARK

To find out how you can be part of ICRF Young Associates or other divisions of ICRF call (416) 487-5246. ICRF working towards finding the cures for cancer.

LifeStyle

A Wallet-Sized Revolution

Today cellphones, pagers, fax machines and the Internet allow you to travel more while having faster access to your personal and business information.

But what about your medical information – the most important of all personal information? Will a doctor be able to get your medical information when it's a matter of life and death? Will you be able to review your records and correct any mistakes? Probably not, because most of your medical history is hand-written or locked away in some doctor's office or hospital file room and access is limited to medical staff only.

Medi-Call® offers the solution.

By registering with Medi-Call® you and your doctors are able to use a 1-800 service that connects you to trained medical staff, in several languages, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. A phone, fax or modem enable immediate transfer of vital health information anywhere in North America. Medi-Call® guarantees that you will have instant access to personal health records when they're needed.

Investment Opportunity Expires October 31st

Investors can participate in this attractive business opportunity through a tax-assisted investment offering only until October 31, 1997. The Medi-Call® Limited Partnership is offered by the founders of The Second Cup, Proshred Security and Samaritan Air.

Minimum investment in Ontario is $150,000., with only 28% payable in cash and the balance by way of a note. The investment is 100% deductible in 1997 and 1998. For every $1 of cash invested, the investor receives $3.80 in tax deductions.

Interested investors, please call: Linda Dattner at (416) 251-8927, fax (416) 251-6204

or

PANFINANCIAL at (416) 499-4222

PANFINANCIAL

Please visit our website at www.medi-call.com

Travel, Arts & Business

"Autumn in Washington"
Deluxe Coach Trip
Oct. 26-30, 1997.
Fully Escorted by Henry Wiseberg
Trip Includes: Deluxe coach transportation. Four nights hotel accommodation. Five breakfasts. U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum. Post Smithsonian Institution. Arlington Mall and much much more. Ladies host available throughout tour.
$459.00 PLEASE CALL DAVID OR HENRY AT (416) 960-1393 $579.00
Talk Of The Town Travel Ltd.

40 years of service
aufgang travel
789-7117

SEND YOUR CAR
FLORIDA, CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA
& ALL POINTS ACROSS CANADA AND RETURN
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY
SERVICE (NATIONWIDE) INC.
5803 Yonge Street, Suite 101 (In the Newtonbrook Plaza)
(N. of Finch, at Cummer) Willowdale, Ont. M2M 3V5
For Quotations..... (416) 225-7754
If Long Distance 1-800-561-2658
E-Mail.....www.torontodriveaway.com
Serving the Public & Especially the Jewish Community since 1959

ISRAEL BEST AIRFARES
EL AL AIR CANADA
THE TRUE ALL-INCLUSIVE
BAR/BAT MITZVAH FAMILY TOURS TO ISRAEL
See Israel as you've never seen it before!!
SPECIAL PROGRAMS CELEBRATING ISRAEL'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY
NEW 1998 DEPARTURES
WINTER Dec. 21/97-Jan. 4/98 - Limited Space
SPRING BREAK '98 March 11-23
SUMMER '98 June 28-July 12, July 5-19, July 12-26, Aug. 2-16, Aug. 9-23, Aug. 16-30
WINTER '98 Dec. 20/'98-Jan. 3/'99
REGISTRATION IN PROGRESS FOR ALL TOURS
DON'T WAIT - OUR TOURS ARE FILLING UP VERY QUICKLY
Don't book with anyone until you speak to us!
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
905-886-5610
OUT OF TOWN CALL 1-800-294-1663

Co-sponsored by Austrian Ministry for Foreign Affairs
and
Austrian Federal Chancellery (Cultural Affairs)
Spotlight Productions
MARIA CASTANON and CHAIM AVRON
proudly present
A FREIE BÜHNE WIEDEN PRODUCTION
DIRECT FROM VIENNA
UNDER THE DISTINGUISHED PATRONAGE
of
His Excellency Walther Lichem
Ambassador of Austria
THE LEGENDARY
TOPSY KÜPPERS
3 PERFORMANCES ONLY
GALA OPENING
•SAT., NOV. 1, 1997, 8:00 P.M.
•SUN., NOV. 2, 1997, 8:00 P.M.
"THE GALICIAN WOMAN"
(in English)
A Monodrama with Music
based on
The Life of Eva Deutsch
and
• SUN., NOV. 2, 1997, 2:00 P.M.
"WEIT VON WO"
Cabaret in Exil
A Journey into Nostalgia
Yiddish/Deutsch in Words & Songs
AT THE
Leah Posluns Theatre
4588 Bathurst Street, North York, Ont.
Box Office: (416) 636-1880 Ext. 368

FOR ADVANCE TICKETS & DISCOUNTS FOR GROUPS OF 15 OR MORE CALL (416) 222-0234
TICKETS $40.00 ON SALE AT TICKETMASTER
•(416) 870-8000
AND
•MATANA JUDAICA
248 Steeles Ave. W.
Thornhill, Ont.
(905) 731-6543
No Credit Cards

Eye on Arts

by Bill Gladstone

TALENT SHOWCASED AT CENTRE SPOTLIGHT

Centre Spotlight, a forum for Yiddish and Jewish-style performance in a friendly coffee-house atmosphere, features a cavalcade of talent Oct. 18, 8:30 p.m. at the Winchevsky Centre, 585 Cranbrooke Ave. (five blocks north of Lawrence, east of Bathurst).

Hosted by artistic director Gloria Valentine, the evening features emcee Nathan Garnick and artists from his upcoming Yiddish Cabaret, tenor Vital Benrubi, Russian dancer Tanya Granovski, pianist Paul Mathew, actor-singer Howard Jerome, Yiddish poet Hindy Nosek-Abelson and writer Libby Scheier with excerpts from The Max Mandel Jewish Hour.

Admission $10 for first-time supporters. 416-789-5502. JASS, 416-638-2222.

* * *

Patinkin at Hummingbird: Tickets went on sale several days ago for actor-singer Mandy Patinkin, who performs two shows only at the Hummingbird Centre Nov. 22 at 8 p.m. and Nov. 23 at 3 p.m. $27 to $75. 416-872-2262.

* * *

Perlman at Ford Centre: Israeli violin virtuoso Itzhak Perlman performs a program of Mozart, Beethoven and the contemporary composer William Bolcom, at the Ford Centre, George Weston Recital Hall, North York, on Oct. 30.

Perlman, who performed the violin solos for John Williams' music in Schindler's List, has recently released a CD, Cinema Serenade, featuring music from the movies.

Coming up in November at the Ford Centre are performances by the Moscow Virtuosi with Vladimir Spivakov (Nov. 6 and 7), pianist Nokolai Demidenko playing Rachmaninoff and Mussorgsky (Nov. 13), and pianist Joshua Rifkin, playing ragtime music. 416-872-2222.

* * *

Staged Reading: Medina Theatre Ensemble performs a staged reading of The Aching Heart of Samuel Kleinerman, by Toronto playwright Marion Andre and directed by Sylvia Lennick in honor of Holocaust Education Week, on Nov. 3. B'nai Brith Building, 15 Hove St., North York. Andre will be present to answer questions. Free. 416-785-1074.

* * *

Festival of Authors: The 18th annual International Festival of Authors features more than 100 events between Oct. 22 and Nov. 1. Spotlighted authors include Richard Ford, Anne Michaels, Nino Ricci, Jane Urquhart and dozens more. Ticket prices range from $8.50 to $25. Box office, 416-973-4000. Website: [www.readings.org].

* * *

Barbara Frum Library: Celebrate Ontario Library Week, as poet Shula Robin reads from her collected works, accompanied by Gladys Aaron, who will also be reading, and clarinetist Roy Mezare. Barbara Frum Library, Room B, 20 Covington Rd., North York. Oct. 23, 7 to 8:15 p.m. 416-395-5440.

* * *

The Galician Woman: The legendary Topsy Kuppers, direct from Vienna, stars in this monodrama with music based on the life of Eva Deutsch, Nov. 1 and 2, 8 p.m. at the Leah Posluns Theatre. Kuppers also performs in Weit Von Wo, Nov. 2, 2 p.m. Tickets, 416-222- 0234.

***

Tel Aviv Auction: Sotheby's conducts an auction of 19th- and 20th-century European and Israeli art at the Hilton Hotel, Tel Aviv, Oct. 23, 8:30 p.m.

The sale features Hungarian avant garde, German impressionist, Ecole de Paris and Jewish-genre art. Artists include Hugo Scheiber, Felix Nussbaum, Max Liebermann, Marc Chagall, Isidor Kaufmann and many others.

* * *

Israeli Dance: Hagigah '97 is an intense weekend of Israel dance for people with at least one year of Israeli folk dance experience. It's sponsored by the Olin-Sang-Ruby Union Institute of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, and takes place near Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 31 to Nov. 3. Phone 847-509-0990, ext. 12 or email [dunnfried@aol.com].

* * *

Miscellaneous Notes: Thirty years after the death of Beatles' manager Brian Epstein, Liverpool City Council has dedicated the Neptune Theatre in his memory...The North York Symphony pays tribute to Mel Lastman in an afternoon of music, fun and a silent auction, Oct. 26, 2 p.m., Moonlight Ballroom, 3235 Bayview Ave...This year's Beach Studio Tour & Sale occurs Oct. 18 and 19 throughout the Beach neighborhood (416-410-6808)...

Filmmaker-actress Cayle Chernin's video, I Am Home, which chronicles her journey of discovery of her Russian roots, has been scheduled to premiere at the Cape Town International Film Festival. Chernin plays the role of Olive in a female version of The Odd Couple, opening next month at the City Playhouse in Thornhill.

FLORIDA INFORMATION CENTRE
Featuring 1000's of Homes • Condos
to rent weekly/monthly
Call:
1-800-430-2435

MANOR TRAVEL
— WE'VE MOVED!! —
Visit us at our new location
1450 CLARK AVE. W., #7
(Dufferin & Clark - Loeb's Plaza, Thornhill)
1997 GROUPS with STANLEY
•Dream Cruise. Dec. 21 From$1119 Cdn. Kids Cruise FREE
•Ft. Lauderdale. From $389 Incl. tax (Long Stays)
•New Year's Eve Getaway Dec. 31-Jan. 2
•Singles Club Med Jan. '98
•Cruise Jan. 17 NEW
1 week from Ft. Lauderdale
Tel. (905) 669-1347
1-800-763-4769

STRETCH
YOUR BODY AND YOUR BUDGET
From $62 Dly. Per Person Double occ. To Dec. 19
$68 U.S. Dec. 20 to Jan. 20
Includes: 3 meals, massage, exercise, diet, friendly staff
Lido Spa HOTEL
TOLL FREE: 800-327-8363

Chamber of Commerce calls for no sanctions

TORONTO — The Israel-Canada Chamber of Commerce called on the Canadian government not to impose sanctions on Israel that would damage economic ties between the two countries following the forged passport affair.

The picture of recent events is far from clear and even when there is a better understanding, there would be no benefit to either side in declaring economic sanctions, said chamber president Yehuda Raveh.

Over the last year there has been a 50 percent increase in bilateral trade, following the signing of a free-trade agreement.

"This is only an initial indication of the huge potential development in trade between Israel and Canada," he said. "It would be totally detrimental to negatively affect this trend, because of one exceptional incident, which has absolutely no connection to trade relations."

TRAVEL TALK

BY BILL GLADSTONE

TRAVAIL IN AN ARAB LAND

In 1786, the Italian-Jewish scholar Samuel Romanelli (1757-1817) boarded a ship at Gibraltar, expecting it to carry him eventually to his home in Mantua. The vessel stopped at several Moroccan ports, however, and Romanelli went ashore and innocently became entangled in some legal trouble. Consequently his passport was confiscated and to his immense chagrin, his intended brief visit to the Maghreb became an enforced stay of four years.

A Torah scholar and proponent of the Jewish Enlightenment, Romanelli was proficient in 10 languages. The author of numerous poems, plays and essays, he was apparently the first Hebrew writer to mention William Shakespeare and John Milton; he also admired the English poet Alexander Pope. His most popular work was Massa B'Arav (Travail In An Arab Land), an engaging account of his Moroccan sojourn that is filled with biblical references and rich descriptions of Jewish life in a remote land.

A horse-drawn carriage on a busy Moroccan street. [Bill Gladstone photo]

I began reading Romanelli's travelogue several months ago on an Air Marac flight to Casablanca, and continued it on the connecting flight to Marrakesh. For several days, I toured the gardens and souks of Marrakesh by day and read Romanelli by night. Then I encountered someone in that dusty city by the High Atlas Mountains whose experiences seemed to parallel those of Romanelli in an uncanny way.

One evening in a rooftop cafe overlooking the Djema-El-Fna, the exotic marketplace that pulsates with jugglers, snake charmers, fortune tellers and throngs of American tourists, I met an Israeli journalist who was in town to cover an international medical congress on maternal mortality organized by an Israeli doctor. He told me a sour story of how the Moroccans hadn't allowed an El Al jet to land as promised, and hadn't permitted the Israeli flag to be flown, though all other national flags were allowed. As one journalist to another, he urged me to contact the doctor to get the full details.

The next afternoon I called Dr. Daniel Weinstein at his hotel and caught him in a state of great agitation. The conference was over and everyone had gone home earlier that day, but he and his wife had not been allowed to go. "They've taken my passport – I'm a prisoner here against my will!" he said.

"It's outrageous what they've done! And for no reason! There are faxes on my account going this minute between David Levy and [Benjamin] Netanyahu. It's going to the Israeli cabinet tomorrow. Your timing is perfect – you must come and see me!"

Naturally I was struck by the parallels between Weinstein's and Romanelli's experiences. Of course I didn't mention this when I met the Israeli that evening; after all, it had taken Romanelli four years to escape, with nothing but the clothes he wore. Did Weinstein know of any reason why he was being detained? Yes. Apparently the conference centre was demanding payment – "but they're the ones holding the money, not me." At his hotel three hours before his scheduled flight home, the front desk staff had politely asked to photocopy his passport, then turned it over to the police.

Weinstein was obliged to stay in Morocco an additional nine days until the conference centre "found" the missing funds and his passport was returned. Back in Jerusalem, where he is head of obstetrics at Hadassah Hospital, he is still attempting to pay off the conference's debts even as he contemplates organizing a second gathering.

History repeats itself, they say, and the more things change the more they stay the same. Travail In An Arab Land would make a good title for Weinstein's unfortunate experiences in a colorful and usually friendly North African country .

* * *

Adventures In Agadir: This built-up Moroccan beach resort on the Atlantic is a fine spot for sun, sand, shops and good indigenous-style eats.

However, the old town was wiped out in a 1960 earthquake and the modern city seems quite plain. Agadir boasts a tiny synagogue and congregation. There is also an English-language bookstore with a few shelves of used paperbacks and an assortment, if you can believe it, of photocopied Coles Notes.It's essentially only a beach place. Side-trips to Essaouira and Taroudant are recommended.

FISHER-FREMONT TRAVEL LTD.
535 EGLINTON AVENUE WEST
TORONTO, ONT. M5N 1B3
(416) 481-3323 FAX (416) 481-1219
Ont. Reg. 1061998 email flyaway@ican.net

SARA PACHTER

ESCORTED BAR/BAT MITZVAH FAMILY TOURS celebrating Israel's 50th Anniversary

Book now! Some dates are filling up very quickly.

Annual WINTERBREAK CHANUKAH — Dec. 17-31/98 Almost full.
SPRING BREAK — Mar. 11-23/98 and Mar. 12-24/98 Very popular.
SUMMER SELECTION — July 2-16, July 16-30, Aug. 6-20, Aug. 20 - Sept. 3/98
WINTERBREAK CHANUKAH — Dec. 16-30/98 registration now available.

DETAILED BROCHURE NOW AVAILABLE FOR SPECIAL INDEPENDENCE DAY TOUR April 26-May 10/98
Be included in our Orientation meeting - give us a call.

sabra tours ltd.

EL AL

50th Anniversary for the State of Israel
"ISRAEL - SECOND TO NONE UNDER THE SUN"
JANUARY 4, 1998 TO JANUARY 11, 1998
THE TIME... THE LAND... THE OPPORTUNITY...
$1149.00 CDN. PER PERSON

Have your winter vacation in Israel at this INCREDIBLE price.

Witness these extraordinary events taking place in Israel right now.

Come to Tel-Aviv "The City with no Stop" and have the time of your life.

Whether you have been to Israel before or this will be your first trip...

NOW IS THE TIME... THIS IS THE TOUR!

$1149.00 PER PERSON BASED ON DOUBLE OCCUPANCY
SINGLE SUPPLEMENT $245.00

INCLUDED IN YOUR PRICE:
1. Round trip El Al flight from Toronto to Tel-Aviv.
2. Five nights accommodation at the Grand Beach Hotel (or similar) in Tel-Aviv.
3. Two dinners (set menu) at the hotel. (Grand Beach Hotel only).
4. Israeli buffet breakfast daily.
5. All taxes and service charges re: hotel.
6. Extension of airline tickets up to a maximum of three months at no extra cost (no stopovers).

Upgrade to a deluxe hotel (Carlton or similar) at extra $75.00 per person (for the duration) based on double occupancy. Single supplement $320.00.

FOR BROCHURE, FURTHER DETAILS AND REGISTRATION CALL:

sabra tours ltd.
TORONTO (416) 222-0011
OUT-OF-TOWN TOLL-FREE 1-888-771-6752
224 FINCH AVE. WEST, NORTH YORK

Fabulous
HARVEY SEIGEL BAND
Super Music — Very Affordable
(416) 782-9202

HARVEY SEIGEL'S (other band)
SPEAK-EASY JAZZ BAND
★ Big Band ★ Swing ★ Klezmer
"Band Size to Suit Your Budget"
(416) 256-4123

Decrepit buildings speak to artist

By MIRIAM CHINSKY
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — In Cuba, when Gideon Tomaschoff was photographing old buildings in crumbling neighborhoods for the oils he would put on canvas and board, people came up to him and said, "We have beautiful cathedrals,why do you bother with these?"

But Tomaschoff didn't want beautiful cathedrals. They did not speak to him the way the aged structures and worn streets did.

His series, To and From, a solo exhibition, until Oct. 25 in Yorkville's Gallery 7 at 33 Hazelton Ave., reflects his purpose.

"I grew up in the desert in modern Israel," he says. "All around were archeological digs, where often only a few stones are left from an ancient wall. These remnants became symbols for my connection to the past and a starting point for exploration."

He wants to understand the past while striving, through the creative process, to dissociate himself from it.

A mechanical engineer holding a degree from Ben-Gurion University, Tomaschoff turned to painting in recent years. In Toronto, where he now lives with his Canadian-born wife and young son, he graduated with honors in drawing and painting from the Ontario College of Art.

To and From, inspired by Mexican and Cuban architectural landscapes, is not meant to specifically record what he sees, but to transcend time and place.

The colors project a warmth probably generated by the artist's desert background as well as by the sunlight of Cuba and Mexico. However the Cuban works are often muted, a reminder that there is little money to provide paint for buildings in this hard-pressed country.

Tomaschoff's mastery of texture gives the "feel" of history, while his engineer's affinity for line helps define the setting.

Imprint, a large oil on canvas conceived in Old Havana, reveals the image of a collapsed building fallen against its neighbor. So many buildings are totally neglected, Tomaschoff notes, that he wants to capture what he can before they vanish.

There is exoticism in La Esqauina (The Corner), discovered during a visit to Oaxaca, a Mexican valley city, home to the greatest number of original Indians in the country, close to ancient Mayan ruins. Here, color is vibrant, as signs painted on shops and homes are replaced by others painted over them when businesses and houses change hands. This custom creates a lively but respectable form of graffiti.

Court-way of the Sun.

Court-Way of the Sun, A Cuban scene balancing abstraction with realism, is featured on the cover of Slate's Gallery Guide this month.

While some viewers would regard Tomaschoff's current show as mainly abstract, he argues that his interpretations attempt to combine abstract and representational.

The exhibition is on the recommended list of the art section of the Toronto Life October issue.

In addition to Gallery 7, Tomaschoff has had solo exhibitions at Propeller Gallery and The Spanish Centre in Toronto. He has participated in group shows at Idee Gallery, John B. Aird Gallery and First Annual Spring Toronto Indoor Artists' Show in BCE Place, where he received the award for best oil painting.

His works are represented in private collections in Canada, the United States and Israel.

Gallery 7 hours are Tuesday to Saturday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Shipping Vehicles To The U.S.A., Canada & Europe Since 1952
AUTO DRIVEAWAY LTD.
6120A Yonge St. W., Suite 2
(North of Cummer, West Side)
For Insured, bonded, reliable door-to-door service
Call: (416) 222-4700 1-800-668-1879

TORONTO WRITING WORKSHOP
Intro. to Creative Writing, Writing for Children, Fiction, Poetry, Writers' Guide to Publishing, Women Writers' Workshop, Theatre Writing
Jack David, Cary Fagan, Celia Lottridge, K. Lushington, Robert Priest, Libby Scheier
Fall courses begin:
Oct. 20 at the Bloor Jewish Community Centre at Spadina
Oct. 30 at the Bathurst Jewish Centre north of Sheppard
Call 416-260-6621

Libby Scheier, TWW director, as seen in The Canadian Jewish News

ATTENTION SNOWBIRDS!
FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS AND RETURN
www.torontodriveaway.com
CALL (416) 225-7754
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St. #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

GOING AWAY FOR THE WINTER?
TAKING A VACATION?
DON'T LEAVE YOUR HOUSE VULNERABLE!
LET US KEEP YOUR HOME SAFE AND SECURE.
We are an established property management company which is branching out into residential properties. Why worry about your home when your trying to enjoy your much deserved vacation.
Services include:
$29 / month*
- Snow Removal
- Indoor / Outdoor plant care
- Removal and forwarding of mail
- Randomly turning on and off lights
- Responding to Security alarms

- Houses
- Townhouses
- Condominiums

Metropolitan Property Management *for basic package only, some services will cost extra
Phone: 905-780-6373
Fax: 905-780-6374

Nazi-medicine show on CNN

TORONTO — The Cable News Network (CNN) will air part 2 of its story on Nazi medicine, featuring interviews with a prominent Toronto doctor, on Oct. 19 at 9 p.m. (eastern time).

The second instalment of CNN's Impact program will look at the Pernkopf Atlas, still used by doctors as a standard anatomical guide.

The atlas is currently under investigation by the University of Vienna. With the aid of Yad Vashem in Israel and Prof. William Seidelman of Toronto's Wellesley Hospital, Israel launched its own probe of the atlas, and found it has a Nazi past.

The program promises fresh evidence that the bodies of political prisoners were sent to the University of Vienna's Anatomy Institute during World War II by the Nazis, supporting long-held rumors that the drawings in the atlas depict people murdered in concentration camps.

As well, Eduard Pernkopf, the anatomist who formed the team that created the atlas, and for whom the text is named, was a lifelong German nationalist and anti-Semite who joined the Nazi party secretly in 1933.

Impact will explore the troubling ethical issues arising from the book's continued use.

In its research, CNN spoke to Seidelman, who has proposed to launch a centre for the study of Nazi medicine at the University of Toronto.

Part 1 of the story, which aired Oct. 5, investigated the story behind 400 brain specimens at the Vienna State Psychiatric Hospital. Their scheduled burial has been postponed while Austrian investigators probe possible murder charges against Dr. Heinrich Gross, who worked at the hospital while some 700 children were murdered there as part of the Nazis' euthanasia program before and during the war.

AFFORDABLE AUCTIONS
BUYING & CONSIGNMENTS
for our major NOVEMBER AUCTION

WATCHES
OLD & MODERN
GOOD QUALITY

JEWELLERY

PAINTINGS

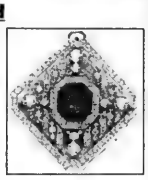
BRONZE & MARBLE SCULPTURES

JUDAICA
STERLING OBJECTS
TAPESTRY & RARE BOOKS

ANTIQUE FURNITURE

FRENCH, ENGLISH AMERICAN & OTHER CLOCKS

CHANDELIERS, PORCELAIN POTTERY, ETC...



ANY OTHER OBJECTS OF SIMILAR FINE QUALITY
FOR AN IMMEDIATE CONFIDENTIAL APPOINTMENT IN OUR OFFICE OR AT A LOCATION OF YOUR CHOICE PLEASE CALL:
(905) 815-5479 (416) 407-4306

Charleston synagogue one of U.S.A.'s oldest

By JOSIE NEWMAN-PROVOST
Special to The CJN

CHARLESTON, S.C. — The gracious oak-lined streets adorned by 100 to 200-year-old colonial houses in historical downtown Charleston, South Carolina hardly seem like the location for the second-oldest Jewish synagogue in the United States.

But it is — the congregation of Kahal Kadosh Beth Elohim was formed in 1749 and the synagogue was originally built in 1792 on its current Hasell Street location.

Touted as the birthplace of American Reform Judaism and the second oldest existing synagogue in the United States next to one in New York City, Beth Elohim has a fascinating history both locally and in terms of Judaism.

The city of Charleston, established in 1670, was known throughout the English world for its civil and religious freedom and fantastic economic opportunities. The earliest reference to a Jew in local annals was 1695 and up until 1820, the city had the largest population of Jews in the United States.

At that time, Jews were considered to be on a par with Protestant Christians and were much more widely accepted than Catholics. There are currently 1,500 known practicing Jewish households in the Charleston area.

After the original synagogue was burnt in the great fire of 1838, the current Greek Revival structure was erected. Significantly, in 1824, 47 members of the congregation asked the synagogue trustees to change the Sephardic Orthodox liturgy to an English translation of the prayers and a sermon in English.

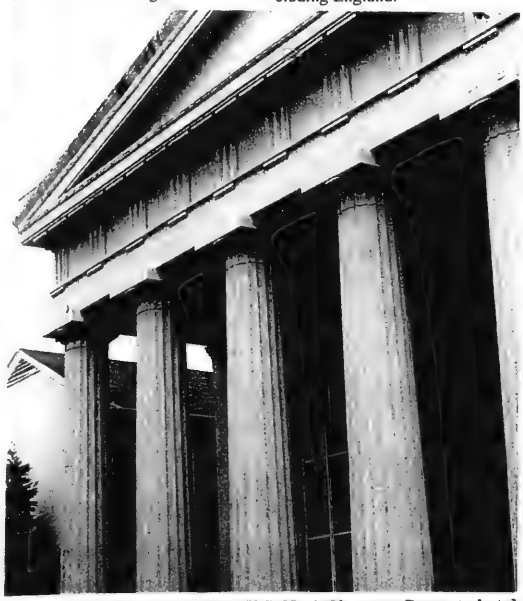
When they were turned down, the members resigned and organized the Reformed Society of Israelites. Influenced by ideas of the Hamburg Reform congregation, the society only lasted nine years but many of its ideas carried into today's Reform Judaism. Members of the society then rejoined Beth Elohim and suggested an organ be installed in the new synagogue, which was completed in 1840.

A liberalized ritual was introduced at the new Beth Elohim, thus giving birth to the first Reform congregation in the United States. It was one of the founding synagogues of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations in 1873.

An early morning visit to the synagogue which is normally open to the public but closed on Shabbat showed a handful of elderly members preparing for worship. The members were very friendly; one woman invited newcomers to see the synagogue and participate in the service. The atmosphere was warm and personal, reflective of the attitude of the rabbi and members of his congregation.

Rabbi Anthony Holz, rabbi at Beth Elohim for five years, said in a conversation prior to the service, he will soon have a close connection to Canada as his daughter is marrying a Jewish Canadian.

One of the murals in the central hall of the synagogue, named "The Patriots of Beth Elohim," depicts Francis Salvador, the first Jew known to die in the American revolution. He also served as a delegate to the South Carolina Provincial Congress of 1775 and 1776, and was one of the first Jews to serve in an American legislature. The holding of such an office was denied to Jews everywhere at that time, including England.



Second-oldest synagogue in the U.S. [Josie Newman-Provost photo]

THE BEST!

We have the best trenchcoats anywhere – that's a fact!

The only difference between ours and other comparable merchandise is that ours are available for half the price.

We buy the best imported fabrics and manufacture them ourselves.

No one is in our league.

This 100% pure wool gabardine trenchcoat is available in every size (always) from a petite size 2 to very, very long, for only $249.

A special colour, length or design change can be had for only $20 extra, in two weeks or less. Cashmere coats are $289.

LORNE'S FASHIONS

101 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ont.
Mon. to Sat. 9-6, Sunday 10-6
(416) 596-1058
Park FREE at King & Spadina

Interac VISA MasterCard

Harbourfront centre
MOVADO Dance Season

and DanceWorks present

Parallel Ports
October 23–25, 1997

Two of the world's finest emerging dance companies showcased together in one unforgettable evening.

8 p.m., du Maurier Theatre Centre
Tickets: $20 ($16 student, senior, CADA)

Kaeja d'Dance (Toronto)
Court-Yard "Tenderness happened in moments."
— Mania Kay,
Holocaust survivor

Leine & Roebana (Amsterdam)
The Circle Effect, What if the right side of the body doesn't know what the left side is doing?

Parallel Ports is presented with assistance from the McLean Foundation.

Box Office: 416 973-4000

Leine & Roebana

Kaeja d'Dance

MOVADO The Museum Watch. SWISS du Maurier ARTS
TORONTO ARTS COUNCIL
METRO
ONTARIO ARTS COUNCIL
CONSEIL DES ARTS DE L'ONTARIO

SERVICE DIRECTORY

345 ACCOUNTING

Accounting, bookkeeping services available at reasonable rates. Call Michael (CGA), 416-781-5718.

405 FURNITURE

Furniture restoration and refinishing. Touch-ups & small jobs done on your premises. Free estimates. 416-654-2430.

350 APPLIANCES

SOBIE'S
SERVICENTRE & APPLIANCE PARTS
Specializing in repairs to
JENN-AIR • SUBZERO
THERMADOR, etc.
We install and repair
APPLIANCE SHABBAT SWITCHES
Look for our ad under APPLIANCES in the Yellow Pages™ Directory
(416) 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave., Willowdale

 KELNER'S APPLIANCE SERVICE
Repairs to washers, dryers, dishwashers and stoves. 2 yrs warr. Same Day Service. FREE est.
Zvi (905) 731-5950

Ahlfeld Appliance Ltd. Very reasonable and reliable service to your dishwasher, fridge, stove, washer, dryer & air conditioning. We pride ourselves on honesty. Free est. (905) 709-3393.

355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/ SALES

Jacob Repairs All TV's, VCRs Computers. 416-661-6798.

405 FURNITURE

Carrocel Restorations
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES • BEDROOM SUITES • DINING SUITES • REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
WE CUSTOM BUILD
3018 - 14TH AVENUE, UNIT 4
(905) 475-6942

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touch-ups. Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 654-0518.

370 CATERING

milk 'n honey
THE DAIRY RESTAURANT
*BRIT MILAH *SHIVA MEALS
*BUSINESS MEETINGS
*BAR/BAT MITZVAH PARTIES
*SHEVA BROCHOS
*FULL COURSE MEALS
SHORT NOTICE & SAME DAY SERVICE • DELIVERY AVAILABLE
789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) (416) 787-0309

372 CHUPPAHS

Aviv-Floral Design. Chuppah and aisle runner rentals. We specialize in wedding flowers. Call 416-256-2554

CHAI CHUPPAH Let us create a special, unique chuppah or Bar/Bat Mitzvah signing board. Rental also available. 905-882-0059.

375 CLEANING

Adanac Maintenance cleans stores, offices, factories, bldgs. Fully insured. 694-2065.

395 ELECTRICAL

Air Conditioning, Electrical Contracting, licensed, repair services, reasonable, guaranteed. 905-882-5474.

Electrician seeks small jobs only, Lic #E-329.Call 636-5732.

398 ELECTRONICS

Cable descrambler, billed for $20., with 7 parts, purchased from Major Retailer. For instructions,send $20. to: CMOC, 6021 Yonge St., Ste. 222, Toronto, Ont. M2M 3W2

חתונה. ברית מצוה
Weddings • Bar Mitzvahs
Tri ✡ Elm Catering
3 Banquet Halls • Joe Elmaleh
Glatt Kosher 631-7322 COR 200
e-mail:trielm@pathcom.com

410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS

Acrylic nails, $15., full set & fills, evg. appt's. 416-663-8691.

Pnina, 15 mins. electrol. $13., man.+ ped. $25. 416-667-8012

Professional Hairstylist available at your home for special occasions/private sessions, on Sun., Mon. & evgs. Call Loula at (416) 499-6453 for an app't.

411 HEALTH THERAPIES

ATHLETIC, MASSAGE THERAPIST, Jonathan Maister, RMT, CATC. Exper. with Spec. needs & Seniors. 905-709-9643.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS

BATHTUB REGLAZING Sinks, tiles from $199. & up. FREE Estimate. 416-753-3097.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission (416) 392-3000

CESTA CONTRACTING, all types of home improvements, since 1981, no job too small. Call Carmen 249-4143.

City East Hardwood Flooring. Sand, stain, finish. 839-0733.

HANDYMAN 638-5488 Improvement/Repairs, Ephram.

Home Services. Painting, plaster, carpentry, plumbing, electric, ceramic, tiling. 736-1179.

Illuminated House Numbers. From $89. including installation. Special. 416-505-5747.

Garage door openers, install. $65.00. 416-505-5747.

Precision Painting. Int./Ext. quality work. Specialty painting, light carpentry. FREE Est. Call Steve, 416-932-9847.

420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING

Barbara Mordfield INVITATIONS
(905) 738-1232

Call Gilda Lefton for your invitations & accessories. Weddings, Bar/Bat Mitzvahs - Cdn., U.S. & custom. (905) 881-5588.

427 JUDAICA

Women's talits: Unique handcrafted talit sets by a Jerusalem artist. 905-886-4969.

434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES

Prof. limo. driver offers his car & services for people who need safety rides to anywhere. Call Mr. Kogan, 416-587-5139.

438 LOCKSMITH

LOCKS - DEADBOLTS, 1 for $85, 2 for $160 Installed. Fast service, Moshe, 416-445-6438.

445 MOVING

AROMA Moving,any size truck + 2 men,$35/hr. & up. 450-0381

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Homes, offices, apts. Family busnss. Reasonable. 274-6144.

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 738-4030, 663-0630.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPERING

1st Choice Painters. Int. & Ext. Res./Ind./Comm. 20 years experience. Work guaranteed. Call 905-763-0626

Bargain Painter, apts, houses, offices. Mikhilov, 633-5973.

Benjamin & Moore painting & gen. improv. needs. Prof. workmanship. Comm./Res. 905-761-1542, pgr. 416-379-3082, Ben.

David Painter. Prof. Workmanship. Jewish, Hebrew, Hungarian, Romanian. 905-660-7794.

E. Kats Painting, Free est. 416-219-4182, 905-709-4017.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPERING

Exp. painter/ plasterer/ vinyl tile flooring. Best prices. Free est. Guaranteed. Bill, 638-9249.

Harry's Painting, for painting & wallpapering needs. 755-2021.

Prof. painting/paperhanging, Jacob 667-9869, no shabbos calls.

452 PARTY SERVICES

PerLit
"your key to a successful party"
• Invitations • Balloons
• Kippot • Name boards
• Styrofoam letters & shapes
• Custom Centrepieces
We do it all at very competitive prices
Call: Mira or Becky at (416) 665-4838

455 PHOTOGRAPHY/ VIDEO

 STARDOM * .... we can't promise you; just outstanding Videos. Our Bar/Bat Mitzvah coverage from $495 and our "unique" PHOTO PUZZLE as an alternative to the candlelighting ceremony.
SPOTLIGHT VIDEO
905-886-3210

VIDEOCCASIONS proudly presents for BAR-BAT MITZVAHS, PHOTO-VIDEO Service, under $1,000. Call Andy (905) 737-6800.

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Rabbi avail. to perform weddings. 416-787-4455.

477 SECOND HAND STORES

Amelia's Deal Ya
consignment company
MOVING? DOWNSIZING?
We sell •FINE FURNITURE
•ACCESSORIES •ANTIQUES
PRIVATE IN-HOME CONTENTS & ESTATE SALES.
(416) 484-1057
3788 Bathurst St. (at Glencairn)

490 TABLE COVERINGS

Made To Measure
TABLE PADS
Dover Pad. Finest quality since 1950. Heat resistant to 600°F. Many colours. Home service, no obligation.
1-800-354-4445

490 TABLE COVERINGS

Artege Table Pads Custom-made, top quality, heat resistant. Wide selection, courteous home service. 745-2711.

500 TUTORING/ LESSONS

Cert. exper. Hebrew teacher avail., (all levels), incl. Bar/Bat Mitzvah. (416) 633-6185.

Hebrew lessons by an exper. teacher. Call 787-8503.

510 UPHOLSTERY

Arctic Custom Upholstering Free est. Let us beautify your yesterdays furniture. Free armcovers, free toss pillows with every 2-piece suite. 665-3445.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission (416) 392-3000

FORGOT ABOUT YOUR HIDDEN TREASURES? WANT TO SELL THEM?
CALL LISA AT (416) 391-1836
FOR ADVERTISING RATES
CJN Classifieds Really Work!

The Canadian Jewish news

CLASSIFIED/SERVICE DIRECTORY

PLEASE NOTE:
Early Deadlines for the following issues:

OCTOBER 30
Deadline Monday, Oct. 20th, 3pm

OFFICE CLOSED
Due to the various holidays, The CJN offices will be closed Oct. 2, 3, 13, 16, 17, 23, and 24.

SERVICE DIRECTORY

Call 391-1836
for information on classified ad rates

345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/SALE
357 AUTOMOTIVE
360 CABINETS
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING
377 CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
385 COMPUTER
386 DANCING
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
395 ELECTRICAL
396 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
405 FURNITURE
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS
411 HEALTH THERAPIES
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LANDSCAPING
432 LAWN CARE
433 LEASING
434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
451 PROMOTIONS
452 PARTY SERVICES
455 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
479 SENIORS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIGNS
483 SKIING
485 SNOW REMOVAL
490 TABLE COVERING
493 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING/LESSONS
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
517 WATER TREATMENTS
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
548 WORD PROCESSING
550 WORKSHOPS

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Forest Hill
Real Estate Inc. Realtor
(416) 488-2875 (416) 226-1987

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

CASA LOMA LOCALE! NOW $899,000
Seeing is believing. A1! Cathy Kwinter* 488-2875

FOREST HILL INCOME PROPERTIES
Asking between $743K - $825K. R. Pearsall* 488-2875

TIMBERLANE DR. BREATHTAKING 80'X310'
Ravine lot solid & spac. fam. home $699K. P. Pollock* 226-1987

REDUCED AGAIN! HEART OF LOWER VILLAGE
Lovely home on 50x277 ft. lot. Faithe Sversky 488-2875

BATHURST/EGLINTON $579,000
Superb custom home! 4 bdrms., 4 baths. Faithe Sversky 488-2875

BATHURST/BLOOR LEGAL TRIPLEX
Great income opportunity. C. Sniderman*/M. Simon* 488-2875

BATHURST/SHEPPARD - FAB. NEW CUSTOM
Highest quality 251' lot. $439,000. Patti Pollock* 226-1987

ARMOUR HEIGHTS
4 bdrm/addition on rav.set cul-de-sac. $449K. P. Pollock* 226-1987

ARMOUR HEIGHTS - GREAT LOCATION
3 bdrm., 3 baths, fin. bsmt. $359,000. C. Sniderman* 488-2875

BATHURST/LAWRENCE "DOLLHOUSE"!
Renovated 1.5 storey SOLD Faithe Sversky 488-2875

EGLINTON/BATHURST OFFICE $1150
All in incl. parking. Rickey Fitzerman* 226-1987

BAYVIEW PROPERTIES

YONGE & SHEPPARD
2 bdrm. & sol. condo in luxury bldg., 2 full bath & hrdwd flr. N. Davar* 226-1987

FOR LEASE - BAYVIEW/YORK MILLS
Renovated 3 bdrm. townhouse. Faithe Sversky 488-2875

NORTH PROPERTIES

28 PAYNTER DR.
Large ravine lot, 4 bdrms., pool, jacuzzi tub. $539,000. Julie Gofman* 488-2875

GREENLANE/LESLIE $459,000
"Power of sale" Custom home, 4 bdrms. F. Sversky 488-2875

STEELES & HILDA
Cust. blt. home, uniq. 9' ceil., spectac., lower. O. Guvenal* 226-1987

1ST AD! MUST SELL!
Exec. 4 bdrm., Richmond Hill beauty. $329,000. R. Fitzerman* 226-1987

YONGE/CUMMER - CUL-DE-SAC $329,000
3+1 br., 3 baths, fam. rm. See! P. Grossman* 226-1987

LIVE IN THORNHILL HERITAGE AREA
Unique & charming. $289K. Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

ATKINSON & CLARK - $259,900!
3 br. det., main fam. rm., 2 car gar. & more! Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

1ST AD - THORNHILL - $209,900
3 br., yard backs other yards. Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

CONDOMINIUMS

SKYMARK "ZENITH"
1711 s.f. approx., 2 br., 2 baths, fam. rm., sol., P. Grossman* 226-1987

"THE DUNHILL CLUB" ANNEX!
Penthouse, $249,000, 2 br., 2 bath, prk, U of T. I. Hemmerich* 226-1987

YONGE & STEELES 1ST AD - $129,900
2 br. ideal 1st time SOLD s. Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

OUT OF TOWN PROPERTIES

POSSIBLE BED & BREAKFAST???
10 brdms., Lake Simcoe waterfront & pool! M. Olan* 226-1987

BUSINESS PROPERTIES

UNISEX SALON - STEELES & BATHURST
Very modern, well established. Olga Guvenal* 226-1987

Associate Broker *Sales Representative

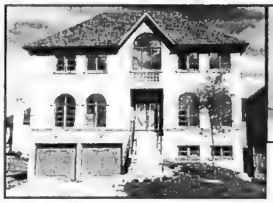
5 HOUSES FOR SALE

CUSTOM 4,400 SQ. FT. ARCHITECTURAL GEM

$1,200,000 Bayview / York Mills? $1,400,000 Lower Village?

NO! $659,000 Thornhill — Bathurst / Centre



OPEN HOUSE WEEKENDS

Builder's own masterpiece design. 4 bedrooms, 4 baths, most rooms 17' WIDE. Master has ensuite with inlaid marble floors + solid marble counters. Spectacular custom gourmet kitchen with granite & limestone counters. Panelled library with built-in bookcase. Faux finishes throughout. Quality found only in million dollar homes. Features include inlaid limestone, marble, granite floors, 4 fireplaces (each with custom mantle), 2 Jacuzzis, walk-out basement with 10' ceilings. Situated on a prime street. Cannot be duplicated at this price!

Call VINCENT TERSIGNI, Sutton Group Admiral Realty, (416) 739-7200

HK
HARVEY KALLES
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR

Celebrating our 40th Year!

SOLD! SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
446 Glencairn! $395K! Fab. Alexandra Wood area! 40'x150' treed lot w/3 sty. 5 br. home. Renovate/Build.

SOLD! SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
68 Viewmount! $558,800! Cust. blt centre hall, 5 bdr., 4 bath, mn. flr. fam. & lau. Huge kit. & w/o to 50'x140' lot.

GEORGIAN PIED-A-TERRE
The most elegant alternative to a condo in Toronto. No fees! $895,000. John Fortney* & Elise Kalles*

HAZELTON LANES - OUTSTANDING P.H.
$975,000 Sophisticated 2-sty., 3 bdrm., fam. rm., rooftop terrace! Quality finishes. Gloria Friedman

CLASSIC CHATEAU - QUIET COURT
$1,350,000 Superb architecture, great flow, lge. princ. rooms, 5200 sq. ft. - open concept. Gloria Friedman

* Sales Representative  Associate Broker

A percentage of all our sales will be donated to "Turning Point Charity" supporting Homeless Youth.

(416) 441-2888 www.harveykalles.com

SEIDMAN
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR
633-7373

FINCH WILMINGTON
Custom blt., 4 bdrm. + fam. rm., huge liv. & din. rm. comb., w/o frm. kit. to balc., fin. lwr. level, ravine lot, dbl. gar. A-1 buy!.

STEELES BATHURST
4 bdrm. bung., sep. liv/din. rms., mod. kit., skylite, fin. bsmnt., w/o to yard, dble. drive garage.

LAWRENCE ALLEN ROAD
Triplex, well maint. bldg., bath ensuites, balcs., fully rented. Steps to all!

SHEPPARD WILMINGTON
Store + apt. Buy or rent, well-maint. bldg. Ideal for many uses.

A. & D. SEIDMAN 633-7373

10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE

Bath./Lawr,55',spac lrg 3 bdrm bung,bright,upgrades,new deck & kit,fin bsmt. Private. 782-1984

15 HOUSES FOR RENT

Allen Expwy./Bath., beautif. 3 rm. bung.,w/bsmt apt. 635-8212

24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY

York Mills/Bayview.No agents Private. 416-948-5555.

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

Gideon Waichenberg
Sales Representative
(416) 520-5700
Re/Max Venture Realty Corp.

CALL FOR A FREE COLOUR BROCHURE OF ALL MY LISTINGS

EXCLUSIVE AT THE SAVOY!
Fab view!
Bathurst/Finch - Lux. corner unit, 1550', 2+1 bdrm., 1-6 pc. +1-4 pc., 2 w/o to balcony, 2 prk., locker, 24 hr. security.
PAULINE GOLD
905 - 889-2200
Homelife/Bayview Realty Inc.

THE SAVOY
2 bdrm., 2 bath, balcony, low floor. Must see! $175,000.
ED GELERNTER
RE/MAX Venture
(416) 798-7588

Paul Slavens
REAL ESTATE INC. REALTOR
RESULTS RESULTS RESULTS
483-4337

FINE HOMES

AVENUE RD / LAWRENCE - $644,000.
Reno'd Georgian style home in country setting. 4 BRs. Gleaming white kitchen. Cedar roof, central air. Private yard w/pool, wide interlocking drive. *Susan Bandler.

BATHURST / EGLINTON - $225,000.
Great starter home. 3 bedrooms, eat-in kitchen, finished lower level w/side entrance. Private drive & garage. Don Wagman.

LOWER VILLAGE TUDOR - $749,000.
Wonderful potential. 4 bdrms., 4 baths. Main floor family rm. w/built-ins. Finished lower level. Secluded garden. Private drive & garage. *Edith Weiss.

CRICKETT CLUB - STUNNING RENOVATION
Breathtaking home set in park-like setting. 4+ BRs. Main fl. den + family rm. Fin. l/lvl. w/rec. rm. + games rm. + nanny's rm. *Eleanor Stanton.

LESLIE / STEELES - $328,000.
Opportunity to own this Wycliffe-built, special "Bungalow Townhome". Custom upgrades, multi fireplaces, 3+bedrooms + sumptuous l/lvl. Dble. gar. * Heather Sherman.

ROSEDALE VALLEY - $229,000.
Situated in a desirable location, this 2 bedroom suite has ultra modern white kitchen & lovely living rm. with marble fireplace. *Marlene Federman.

CASTLEHILL - $629,000.
Spectacular townhome overlooking Casa Loma. Unique & spacious centre hall SOLD bdrms. spacious principal rms. + lower level family rm. Private elevator & attached garage. *Carol Cotton.

ARMOUR HEIGHTS - $379,000.
Updated centre hall SOLD s., main floor den + powder room. Fin l/lvl w/extra bdrm rm., office & bath. Superb lot on quiet tree-lined street. Dble. garage. *Marlene Federman.

(416) 483-4337
* Sales Representative Associate Broker
LET US GET RESULTS FOR YOU
SERVING YOUR REAL ESTATE NEEDS SINCE 1969

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

The SKYMARK Specialists
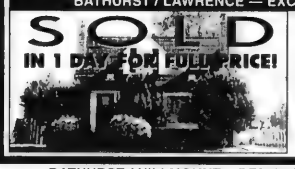
SKYMARK II - NEW LISTINGS
Upgr. Alpine model. Demanded SW corner, 2 sep. b.r. + fam. + sol. + balc., 2½ baths. See it before its sold
For our updated inventory, call Santee Leung, F.R.I.
Santee Realty Inc.
(416)
441-2003
(24 hrs.)

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

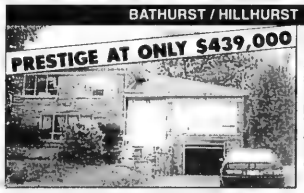
DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED 787-1712

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — EXCLUSIVE



Charming detached brick home, large eat-in kitchen, lovely 45x120 ft. lot, close to all amenities. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712. SOLD

BATHURST / HILLHURST



Newly decorated, new broadloom, spacious 5 bdrm. side-split, fabulous 59 x 128 ft. lot in prestigious location, priced to sell at $439,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

AVENUE ROAD / LAWRENCE — NEW LISTING!
Sensational value! Spacious 4 bdrm. + fam. room, w/o to deck, large principal rooms, huge fin. bsmt., cul-de-sac on quiet street. Priced to sell at $399,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / SHEPPARD — REDUCED
3+1 bdrm. bung., huge 63' lot, renovated eat-in kitchen, sep. entry to in-law suite, only $229,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

GLEN PARK — SPACIOUS EXECUTIVE HOME
4 + 2 bedrooms, modern family-style kitchen, family room, separate entry to in-law suite, double garage (above grade), asking $519,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / HILLMOUNT – REDUCED $70,000
3,700 sq. ft. (approx.) + finished basement. Bright open concept, 5 bedrooms, 4 baths, hardwood floors, Jacuzzi, sauna, hot tub, only $429,000! ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / VIEWMOUNT — ARCHITECTURAL GEM!
Custom built, stunning quality craftsmanship + finishes. 4200 sq. ft. (approx.) + fin. bsmt. 9 1/2 ft. ceilings on main floor, Neff designer kitchen. Dream home! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

CLANTON PARK — REDUCED
Charming 3 bdrm. on 50 x 150 ft. lot, close to shuls, park, highly desirable location, family values. Great buy at only $289,000! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

30 CONDOMIONIUM FOR SALE

BATHURST-TORRESDALE
Just listed! End unit condo over 1600 sq. ft., family rm., gorgeous, upgraded, must be sold.
SALLY ROSEN
(905) 884-4425
CENTURY 21 SMITH LTD.

BATHURST/FINCH/CONDOS
TRIDEL - The Savoy - 2 bdrm., 2 baths, 2 pkng., balcony, xtras - $169,900.
ANTIBES - Renovated 2/3 bdrm., corner, many upgrades & xtras. $174,900.
JOSEPH SOER
Sutton Group Realty Spec. Rltr.
256-7000

Bath./Finch, Savoy, corner, 21st flr, approx. 2600',3 bths, whirlpl, marble,extras galore! 736-8007

60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION

2 bdrm to share, Bath./Egl., prof. young prof/grad student, kosher. Jonathan, 783-5928.

75 APARTMENT FOR RENT

BATHURST/SHEPPARD
Very lg 1, 2, 3 Bdrms, ample closets, some 1½ baths & 2 balc; roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, ind. pkg., 6 apts per flr. From $850.
960-3238 - Bus.
631-9377or 631-0388 - Super

Bath./Glencairn, brand new lge bsmt apt, n/pets, n/smkr. Steps to TTC, shops, shuls. 256-0470.

80 SHORT TERM RENTAL

Clark/Hilda, furn. 2 bdrm, 2 bth, 2 pkg, rec. centre, Dec. 1-Mar. 31 (flexible). 905-889-4382.

82 ROOM FOR RENT

Bath./Steeles, for a male student, kitchen privileges, share bthrm. Call 416-661-3838.

Lge. room avail. in priv. house (downtown Windsor), priv. driveway avail, we need a Jewish, mature, resp. person, live-in, 416-481-3949 (Toronto ph#).

125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE

FLORIDA PROPERTIES!!
Looking to Buy or Sell in Florida??
HOMES • CONDOS • COMMERCIAL • RELOCATION SPECIALISTS •
Call your "CANADIAN CONNECTION"
MARSHALL POLLOCK, Realtor
Prudential Wites Realty, Inc.
Toll Free 1-888-907-2837 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. - 7 Days
(referral fees paid Canadian Realtors)

Garden apt., 2 bdrms, 2 bths, conv.Must sell. 1-954-456-1755

Pompano Beach, Palm Aire-Oaks Circle, 2 bdrm, 2 bth, furn, laundry ensuite, enclosed Florida room, adj. to pool. 223-9424.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

Boca Raton, 2 bdrm, 2 bth, prof decor.,Jan.-Apr. 514-731-9592.

Catania @ Quadomain, Hollywood, lux. 2 bdrm, 2 bth. condo, ocean & inter-coastal view, fully furn & newly re-decorated, $2300./mo. US, 3 mo. min., rent decrease for additional mos. Avail. Jan.'98. 416-445-2817.

Delray Beach, beautiful condo., 2 bdrms., 2 baths, screened porch, garden, furn., 3 pools, tennis, close to shul., 3 mos., Million $$ Club. 905-886-4930.

Fountains of Palm Beach, lux. villa,over 2000',3 bdrms, 3 bths, gar, secur, scrnd porch, n/smkr, avail. Jan., 3-4 mos. 423-8566.

Hallandale, Diplomat Parkway, 1 bdrm., 2 bath condo., balc., canal view, $1,400/mo. U.S.+ util. Avail. Dec. 1- April 15. Season pref. 932-1345.

N. Miami Beach, 1 bdrm, season, oceanview. 416-496-9992

N. Miami Beach, "Kings Pt. Imperial", 1 bdrm + den, 2 bths, elev., across from ocean, avail. Jan. & Feb.416-665-6419.

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

Palm Aire - Cypress Bend
Buying, Selling or Renting.
Call us for all your Real Estate needs.
Wieder Realty Inc.
(954) 978-8300

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

ANBER MOVERS
(LOCAL MOVING)
SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO ↔ VANCOUVER
NEW YORK ↔ FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE

140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Hallandale or Aventura, furn. 1-2 bdrm, for Feb. & Mar., n/smkr. 416-226-3344.

175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Moving to Israel from Toronto. Looking for a furn 2-3 bdrm apt between Jaffa to just north of Herziliya, pref. with a seaside view, for a 6 mo. - 1 yr. period. Only 1 tenant.Please call David, 416-785-0108. P.S. Willing to share upon your visits to Israel.

190 VACATION PROPERTIES

Snowbirds-Beverly Hills adj. lux. 2 bdrm. & 2 bth., fully decor. for rent for Nov., Dec., Jan. or monthly. All amenities, terrace, pool, gym, party room, valet pkg. & full security bldg. Call 212-581-3890

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

E.C.E. TEACHER
For Day Care in Thornhill. Kindergarten experience, and Hebrew an asset.
Call (905) 731-2797

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

GOLDEN CARE LTD.
People you trust taking care of people you love.
We have live-in and live-out caregivers. We specialize in helping seniors, and people afflicted with Stroke, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's.
LOW RATES WITH THE BEST PERSONAL SERVICE
Honey Hecker
(416) 665-4229

MARLA'S DOMESTICS
RECEIVE THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
Live-in/out nannies, care for the elderly, cleaning. Bonded, references.
Call MARLA
226-4325

APPLE DOMESTICS NEED A NANNY?
• No Fee to Employer
• Professionally screened, Qualified, Live-in Nannies available for sponsorship.
• Choose from Nurses, Midwives, Teachers
• We prepare all documents for you.
• We have a 100% Approval rate!
(416) 730-0127

A reliable nanny/hskpr., with exper, live-out. 416-614-7354.

Cleaning lady avail. for houses/apts/offices. If you're looking for help, please call Renata, 416-252-1013.

Cleaning with pride at afford. prices.Res./Comm. FREE Est. Insured, Bonded. 905-507-9654

Exper. honest & reliable cleaning lady avail. immed. Call Adriana at 416-245-8082.

Exper. lady seeks days work, office cleaning or housekeeping, live-out. Call 244-1340.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

Harvscott Domestic Services
"Five stars above the rest"
Available: prof. cleaning ladies, nannies, housekeepers,party helpers. Exper. with refs. & legal. 905-771-7882.

High quality house cleaning. Call Dora, 736-1179.

I will keep your home clean & tidy on a regular basis (small offices also) at reas. rates. Call Angie 780-9874, after 5 pm.

Israeli lady, 34, for baby/child/Sr. care + light hskpng, child care diploma, religious bckgrnd. 416-633-5442, Shelly.

Nannies, housekeepers, companions for elderly, cleaning ladies, live-in or out. Sponsorship from overseas. No fee for the Sponsor. Excellent Placement Agency. 222-4912.

Nannies, live-in/out, full/part-time, in-home elderly care, FT, PT, RN's, nurses aides, cleaning. Bonded, refs.416-630-0674 or 416-224-9907. #1 Domestic.

255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED

Sr. lady looking for a woman to live-in, must be home at nights, exper., refs. Call 782-0676.

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

MNS
MILLENNIUM NURSING SERVICE
• Offers competitive rates
• Provides 24 hour on-call service
• Performs follow-up service
RN'S • RPN'S • HCA'S
(905) 785-7285

Exper.certif. HCA, Jewish, caring, reas., avail. anytime,anywhere for home care/priv. duty. Refs. Katharine, 440-5530, pgr.

RN's, RPN's seek jobs in priv. homes, to offer quality nursing care, foot care & palliative care. Affordable Rates. Call 391-0582

260 BUSINESS PERSONALS

Jewish Singles Registry website, www.total.net/~jsreg or call 416-483-4151.

260 BUSINESS PERSONALS

Soulmates Worldwide Jewish Introduction Service! The last Service you'll ever need! Hundreds of upscale clients.
Call Evelyn 905-709-3868
www.soulmates.net

Bringing People Together. The service that really cares! Ruth Friedman, 905-731-5204.

The Jewish Dating Network, Money-Back Guarantee, 1-800-263-6831,Fax: 1-800-293-6297. www.jewishdate.com

265 PEOPLE SEARCH

To That Beautiful Woman
We passed each other in the hall of the Bathurst JCC. It was Sat., Oct. 4, between 3:30 & 4pm in the aft. You were wearing black leggings & a white top. I had on blue jeans, grey sweatshirt & glasses. Let's talk. Call Philip, 416-638-6783.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED

 CJN Boxes for Personal Companions Wanted ads are valid for 30 (thirty) days only (from 1st publication date). Replies must be received within this time frame in order to be forwarded to the correct CJN Box #.

Attr, personable prof. male,38, seeks soulmate. 633-1728.

Easy going male, 40's, with many interests, seeks caring lady for serious relationship. All replies answeredCJN Box 6978

Replying to a Companion ad with a CJN Box Number?

Address your mail to:

The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ontario
M3B 3K4
Box # _____

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED

Semi-ret. exec. male, 44, winters in Fla., seeks attr. lady companion who enjoys swimming, tennis, dining & the finer things in life. CJN Box 6980.

Replying to a Companion ad with a CJN Box Number?

Address your mail to:
Box #
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ontario
M3B 3K4

280 ANNOUNCEMENTS

CONGRATULATIONS to the following winners in NISHMA's 3rd Annual "Thirst for Knowledge" Lottery: 1st prize: J. Shields; 2nd prize: M. Yaffe; 3rd prizes: M. Silverman, D. Ostriker, C. Rotenberg, D. Rothberg & L. Warner; Early Bird Prize Winners: I. Igra, D. Diena, L. Lightstone, B. Klein & M. Shore.

330 OBITUARIES

SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR OVER THREE GENERATIONS

IZENBERG GOLDBERG
Monuments
3173 BATHURST ST.
(416) 787-0319

GERSHMAN, Ethel - on Sept. 26, 1997, late of 2045 Finch Ave. W.
MICHAELS, Harry - on Sept. 27, 1997, late of 23 Bayhampton Crt.
WAGMAN, Abraham - on Sept. 28, 1997, late of 3000 Dufferin St., #209.

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

REIMAN, Samuel - on Sept. 30, 1997.
HEIMLICH, Herman - on Oct. 1, 1997, late of 3560 Bathurst St.
KINRYS, Sol - on Oct. 1, 1997, late of 17 Lisa Cres.
KOBY, Rachel - on Oct. 1, 1997, late of 90 Fisherville Rd.
GALANT, Moishe - on Oct. 2, 1997, late of 347 Joicey Blvd.
STEINBERG, Morris (Babe) - on Oct. 3, 1997, late of 350 Lonsdale Rd.
NESRY, Rica - on Oct. 4, 1997, late of 36 Antibes Dr.
WASSERMAN, Morris - on Oct. 4, 1997.
OSTFELD, Joseph - on Oct. 5, 1997, late of 1 Shenstone Rd.
WEISZ, Eliezer - on Oct. 5, 1997, late of 104 Roberta Dr.
WISCHNITZER, Pepi - on Oct. 5, 1997, late of 293 Joicey Blvd.

Steeles Memorial Chapel

330 OBITUARIES

ICRF
Israel Cancer Research Fund
Your help will find a cure for cancer!
Donation cards for all occasions
Phone: (416) 487-5246
A friend of ICRF

335 UNVEILINGS

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
MARY & JOE PALLMAN ז"ל beloved parents, grandparents and great grandparents
will take place
Sunday, October 19th, at 11:00 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Mozirer Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late Winston Herzenberg ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 19th, 11:30 a.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Dufferin St., N. of Major Mackenzie Dr.
Temple Emanuel Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
MARIAN BERK ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 19th, 1:00 p.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Dufferin St., N. of Major Mackenzie
Section EEE, Row A, Plot #46
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

CLASSIFIED INDEX

Call (416) 391-1836
for information on classified ad rates

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
80 SHORT TERM RENTAL
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED
85 APARTMENT WANTED
90 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE
95 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR RENT
100 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE/RENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
120 COTTAGE WANTED
124 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
125 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
143 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. AVAIL.
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. WANTED
147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
155 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTIES
195 PROPERTIES WANTED
196 VACATION PROPERTIES-SWAP/EXCH.
198 SPACE FOR LEASE
200 OFFICE SPACE
201 OFFICE SPACE WANTED
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
205 INDUSTRIAL/COMMERCIAL SPACE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE/LEASE
215 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
217 RETAIL OPPORTUNITIES
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 FINANCIAL OPPORTUNITIES
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
246 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE
248 CAMPS
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
264 SOCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
278 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
310 ARTICLES/SWAP/EXCHANGE
312 BRIDAL
313 BOATS
315 CARS FOR SALE
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE/YARD SALE
330 OBITUARIES
331 IN MEMORIAM
332 MONUMENTS
335 UNVEILINGS
338 BRIVA CATERING

Israel & the Jewish World

Friction high between Netanyahu, Levy

By JAY BUSHINSKY
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — The Foreign Ministry virtually boycotts the Prime Minister's Office to the extent that it withholds diplomatic cables and levels false accusations against senior staff, a senior government official told the Jerusalem Post last Thursday.

"It's felonious, a crime and a violation of the law," the source said, charging that instructions followed by Foreign Ministry personnel have created a situation in which "they are not cooperating with us."

The source contended there is "an order in the Foreign Ministry not to show us cables." Inferring that this practice has Foreign Minister David Levy's blessing, he said, "This is carrying his tantrums too far."

The outburst of wrath and resentment was provoked by Levy's publicly aired complaints about having been left out of several critical decision-making processes.

Allegedly among them were the dispatch of a Mossad hit team to Amman, the release of Hamas founder Sheikh Ahmed Yassin and the convening of a summit with Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat.

"Had I been consulted I would have opposed these actions," Levy said in an interview with Israel Radio, referring to the Amman operation. He spoke from his home in Beit She'an shortly after leaving Afula's Ha'emek Hospital, where he was treated for chest pains.

The source rejected all of Levy's complaints. "He is not in the loop of such decisions anyway," he said. On the other hand, he said Levy knew about the abortive Mossad operation "immediately after it happened."

To the extent that Levy was not updated with the subsequent details, he went on, it could only have been because Rosh Hashanah intervened.

"Any time there is any move at all, Benjamin Netanyahu picks up the phone immediately and talks to him," the source said. "To complain about this or that detail is to ignore the way in which Bibi informs him of everything that relates to foreign affairs."

Levy confirmed on the radio that he has considered resigning and that the chances that he might quit are "50-50."

Foreign Ministry aides were explicit about their boss' grievances.

For example, there was the session in which he joined Netanyahu and U.S. envoy Dennis Ross when the idea of a summit with Arafat was adopted. It was leaked without Levy being consulted or forewarned.

They complain that he was not a party to the deal worked out with Jordan by National Infrastructure Minister Ariel Sharon and was not involved in the crisis-management tactics used to mollify Jordan and Canada.

One of the most aggravating instances in which the Prime Minister's Office allegedly preempted the Foreign Ministry's customary role was said to have occurred when Levy met U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright in New York to work out terms for the renewal of peace talks with the Palestinians.

Cabinet secretary Dan Naveh announced that the talks would resume even before all the issues were ironed out, an aide to Levy said. "Albright was enraged," a ministry source said.

Naveh could not be reached for comment.

When Levy conferred with Russian Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primakov in New York, he was astonished to learn that Avigdor Lieberman, director-general of the Prime Minister's Office, was trying to arrange a meeting with him in Moscow. Lieberman's trip to the Russian capital was canceled last Thursday.

A senior aide to Netanyahu met the official in charge of the Elysée Palace in Paris without notifying Ambassador to France Avi Pazner.

"Sometimes ambassadors are deliberately kept out of the picture," an aide to Levy said, "but this cannot be the practice all the time."

Even petty incidents have caused bad blood between the two ministries. During Netanyahu's visit to London, a seating plan assigned a place to Ambassador Yoav Biran. When his chair was given to David Bar-Ilan, the prime minister's media and political adviser, the Foreign Ministry "not only boycotted the prime minister's entourage, but also informed the British press," the senior government official said.

He conceded that ill will and mutual antagonism between the two ministries has been endemic since the bitter rivalry that existed between prime minister David Ben-Gurion and foreign minister Moshe Sharett. But referring to the attitude of Sharett's current successor, he said: "This is going too far."

The Canadian Jewish news CLASSIFIED/ SERVICE DIRECTORY

PLEASE NOTE: Early Deadlines for the following issues:

OCTOBER 30
Deadline Monday, October 20th, 3 p.m.

OFFICE CLOSED
Due to the various holidays, The CJN offices will be closed October 2, 3, 13, 16, 17, 23, and 24.

R.R.S.P. R.R.I.F. ANNUITY
BEST AVAILABLE RATES
For Personalized
Planning Strategies
Call (416) 787-4517
SB SHERR, BERGSTEIN &C & CRACKOWER

Sports

R.R.S.P. R.R.I.F. ANNUITY
BEST AVAILABLE RATES
For Personalized
Planning Strategies
Call (416) 787-4517
SB SHERR, BERGSTEIN &C & CRACKOWER

Hockey books get you primed for season of shinny

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Unlike most other preseason prognosticators, Ted Montgomery won't predict Stanley Cup finalists, winners of major awards or even the first coach to get fired.

Those who do so invariably end up with egg on their faces, he points out. If you want to know who'll hoist Lord Stanley's Cup at the end of the season, wait until June.

For his part, Montgomery offers a refreshing alternative to the season's plethora of guidebooks, one in which he combines a keen understanding of the game with pithy capsule comments spiced with humor and controversy.

At $16.95, Montgomery's Pro Hockey Play-by-play; The Ultimate NHL Guide, Macmillan Canada, is pricier than most guidebooks, but if you're looking to get primed for the season ahead, this book is it.

Although it contains a complete regular season and playoff stats package, the book's strength is its team by team and player by player analysis.

Montgomery, who has compiled his guidebook for the past four years, pulls no punches when describing a team's strengths and weaknesses. Players he loves are extolled; others are pilloried mercilessly.

In a refreshing change from Canadian commentators, there's no hometown bias when it comes to evaluating the Leafs and Habs. His advice for Leafs (mis)management is to "dump everyone over the age of 30 and go with the kids. Bite the bullet with youth, although it will mean a few more lean years. Try to mitigate the damage done by four years of bad trades by stockpiling young players until you hit it right... Hire better scouts too; some of the draft picks have been laughable."

Leafs' most underrated player, according to Montgomery, is Todd Warriner, while the team's most overrated skater is Wendel Clark, described as a "cherry-picker," who "hangs high and waits for someone else to do most of the work."

The Canucks' Alexander Mogilny, another cherry-picker, doesn't get off lightly either. "All those tired of hearing Mogilny bitch and moan, raise your hands," Montgomery writes in his sometimes caustic style. "He's a dog of the first order and only plays when the stars are right. He's got great talent, but will only show it every three seasons or so."

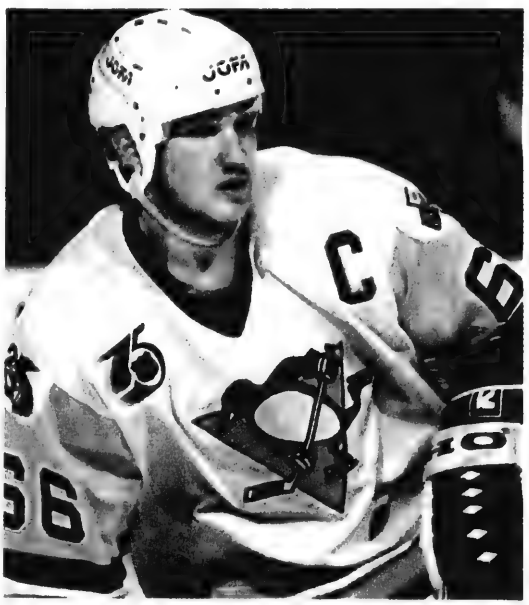
As for Michel Petit, Montgomery points out that nine teams have all "found a roster spot for Petit. Which proves one thing – there's enough poor judgment to go around."

Dave Manson doesn't come off much better. Manson, according to Montgomery is a "nice guy, hard worker, -26. Anything else you need to know? How much worse does he need to get before everyone will stop talking about him like he's a good player?"

Way to go, Ted.

Top 10 lists, color commentary, Ted's notes, draft analyses and playoff reports round out the book, making it a highly enjoyable read.

Another entertaining hockey book is Murray Greig's Big Bucks & Blue Pucks, Macmillan Canada, $24.95. It's the affectionately told story of the late, lamented World Hockey Association (WHA), the rival league that merged with the NHL in 1979.



Mario Lemieux

As entertaining as the hockey was in the WHA, the league will no doubt be remembered for the oddball assortment of characters (and their colorful nicknames) who populated it, and the tall tales their antics produced.

A compilation of anecdotes told by ex-WHAers, the book successfully recaptures the spirit of the league, which, in a nutshell, meant fun, camaraderie and freedom for the players.

The WHA lured numerous top-flight skaters to its ranks, beginning with Bobby Hull, the best leftwinger of his day. After grabbing established stars like J.C. Tremblay, Pat Stapleton, Gerry Cheevers and Gordie Howe, the WHA produced an on-ice product that featured wide open, end to end action.

Told with affection and nostalgia, Big Bucks will rekindle lots of memories for all those who followed the rival league.

A third early season offering is Mario Lemieux, Best There Ever Was, Macmillan Canada, $19.95, a review of the Magnificent One's career by three writers from the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. Full of great action shots and consisting of newspaper columns written during Lemieux's great career, this volume is for the dedicated Lemieux fan.

Here's a quiz to test your hockey knowledge:

1. Name the only man named coach of the year in both the NHL and WHA.
2. Name three current NHLers who started their pro careers in the WHA.
3. Which current NHL referee started out as a goon in the WHA?
4. In the late 1970s, the Birmingham Bulls signed six underage junior stars, who weren't eligible for the NHL draft. Who were the "Baby Bulls?" Who were the Birmingham "Bullies," the goon squad that terrorized the league in the mid-'70s?
5. Many consider the NHL vastly superior to the WHA in terms of the calibre of players and teams. From 1974-78, the two leagues faced off in 67 exhibition games. Which league won more games?
6. Bobby Hull was one of the NHL's all-time leading scorers when he jumped to the WHA's Winnipeg Jets in 1972. Despite playing in the WHA for the league's entire seven year existence, he is not the league's all-time point-getter. Who is?
7. Which WHA goaltender went on to a career as an NHL television color commentator?
8. Fans of the movie Slap Shot may remember the "Hanson Brothers," the three tough guys who wore dark-rimmed glasses. Who were they and what is their affiliation with the WHA?
9. The three winningest WHA coaches went on to successful careers in the NHL. Who are they?

Answers:

1. Bobby Kromm won top coaching honors with the Winnipeg Jets in 1975-76 and then with Detroit in 1977-78.
2. Wayne Gretzky is the most famous ex-WHAer. Known for his Hall of Fame career with Edmonton Oilers, he started his pro career with the Indianapolis Racers before his rights were sold to the Oilers. Other ex-WHA players still in the NHL include Mark Messier and Mike Gartner, who started their pro careers in with the Cincinnati Stingers. Other young WHA players who went on to good NHL careers included (WHA teams in parentheses) Kent Nilsson (Jets), Mark Napier (Bulls), Kenny Linseman (Bulls), Terry Ruskowski (Jets), Mark Howe (Houston Aeros), "King" Richard Brodeur (Quebec Nordiques), Robbie Ftorek (Phoenix Roadrunners), Paul Shmyr (Cleveland Crusaders), Dave Langevin (Oilers), Paul Baxter (Nordiques) and Mike Liut (Stingers).
3. Paul Stewart racked up 286 penalty minutes in 63 WHA games as the Stingers' resident tough guy.
4. The Baby Bulls were Rob Ramage, Rick Vaive, Craig Hartsburg, Michel Goulet, Gaston Gingras and Pat Riggin. Ramage later became the first draft pick in the 1979 NHL entry draft, considered one of the strongest ever. Four of the top six picks were ex-WHA players. The Bullies, one of the toughest collection of ne'er do wells ever to lace up a skate, included Frank "Seldom" Beaton, Gilles "Bad News" Bilodeau, Dave Hanson and Steve Durbano.
5. Of 67 exhibition games between the two leagues, the WHA won 33, lost 27, with seven tied.
6. The WHA's career point-leader is Andre Lacroix (Philadelphia Blazers), with 798, followed by Nordiques' Marc Tardif (666). Hull is third with 638, although he holds the WHA single season goal-scoring record of 77 in 1974-75.
7. Hockey Night in Canada color commentator John Garrett suited up for four WHA teams (including Toronto Toros/Bulls) and was rated one of the league's five all-time top goalies.
8. The Hanson Brothers were Steve and Jeff Carlson, who played with the Minnesota Fighting Saints, and Dave Hanson.
9. Bill Dineen, Harry Neale and Jacques Demers were the winningest coaches in the WHA.

Does your copy of The Canadian Jewish News go home with your children every week?

Why not order the perfect gift ... for you and them. Their own CJN subscription.

The Canadian Jewish news
1500 DON MILLS RD., STE. 205
NORTH YORK, ONTARIO M3B 3K4
TELEPHONE: (416) 391-1836

Please send The Canadian Jewish News to:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____

CJN SUBSCRIPTION RATES
$29.95* 1 YR. CANADA ❑
$54.95 2 YR. CANADA ❑
Price includes GST.
G.S.T. #R105201149
$60.00 U.S. (Funds) 1YR. U.S. A. ❑
$75.00 U.S. (Funds) 1YR. FOREIGN ❑

PLEASE RETURN WITH YOUR PAYMENT.
AMOUNT ENCLOSED$ _____
CHEQUE ENCLOSED ❑
OR VISA ❑
OR MASTERCARD ❑
NUMBER _____
EXPIRY DATE _____
TELEPHONE NO. _____

LAST WEEK'S CROSSWORD ANSWERS

E	T	C		E	S	E		C	O	B		L	F	H
L	O	U		M	A	R	R	A	N	O		E	L	I
E	R	R		A	L	R	O	S	E	N		H	A	G
C	A	S	H		M	O	E	S		F	A	I	T	H
T	H	E	O	D	O	R			N	I	S
			R	A	N		D	O	O	R	P	O	S	T
S	A	F	E	D		F	A	L	S	E		M	A	R
A	R	A	B		A	L	V	A	H		G	E	N	E
H	I	N		D	R	E	A	M		B	O	R	G	E
L	A	G	B	O	M	E	R		S	U	N
			E	D	S			V	I	S	I	O	N	S
K	L	I	N	G		B	E	E	S		F	R	E	T
A	I	R		E	D	A	S	N	E	R		A	G	O
Y	E	A		R	E	S	T	O	R	E		T	E	L
T	S	S		S	E	E		M	A	D		E	V	E

The Inside Back

Scraping away the built-up schmutz

By JORDAN MAX

Last Laugh

I love my barbecue. Perhaps it's a genetic thing, the ancient Jewish love affair with burnt meat going back to the Mishkan, Beth Hamikdash and all that. Or maybe it's just one of those primal things about men and fire. Regardless, I barbecue in a pretty happy-go-lucky way; unlike my kids, the barbecue doesn't ask questions, it needs no motivation or explanation as to why to barbecue. When I'm done, I just turn it off, scrape the grills, let it cool and say good night — no problems, no lingering bedtimes, no stories.

However, when my last barbecue session ended prematurely in a huge grease fire, the meal that had started out as Cordon Bleu quickly became korban blech. I knew that my day of reckoning had finally come. It had been months, okay, possibly years since I had thoroughly cleaned out that barbecue. Naturally, like all unpleasant tasks, I had been putting it off, naively hoping that the mere act of barbecuing the next meal would somehow take care of the previous meal's mess. So when the next Sunday opportunity came, I was compelled to gear up for war with The Thing That Burns.

Inspiration sometimes comes in the strangest places (especially for this writer). As I stood there, half-bent-over inside my barbecue, covered in schmutz, excavating meals past by scraping off layers of carbon and grease with a putty knife, my mind wandered (could it have been the fumes from the "wonder chemical" cleaner I had been using?). The first thing that came to mind was my next teeth cleaning. Okay, I admit, here, publicly that I do not always floss every day and I have a tartar buildup problem. (There, I've said it. I've come out of the closet, so to speak.) Like my dentist doesn't already know?

After about an hour of semi-effective scraping, I started to get that same pain right in between my shoulder blades that I tend to get around the High Holy Days, a condition I affectionately refer to as "Machzor Back" caused by holding a 10-pound machzor while standing in shul for numerous hours. Which of course led me to Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur and the concept of tshuvah. If I may get a little pseudo-Kabbalistic here, barbecues are, figuratively speaking, kind of like our neshamahs, our souls.

Over the course of a year, we allow all this schmutz to build up, bit by bit, layer upon layer. Sure, we don't think much of the mistake at the time, maybe an inappropriate word said here, not being sensitive or respectful enough there, yelling at the kids, getting into petty arguments with siblings, parents, friends, neighbors, or colleagues. And, unless we resolve those matters right away, other daily events overtake us and we forget about those particular little episodes. But they're still there, and those episodes begin to add up, layer upon layer. So by the end of the year, you're still left with a lot of schmutz to deal with, which if left unattended, eventually requires a complete overhaul to avoid a total breakdown.

You can either clean the schmutz on a regular basis, by dealing with the issues as they rise. Or you can take the procrastinator's approach and leave it for just prior to the High Holy Days, and work pretty hard to do all that tshuvah— there's no instant tshuvah button to push. This assumes that you can even remember what the mistakes were, before you begin to address them. I'm not sure if this is due to deteriorating memory or daily information overload, but I seem to have a harder time each year merely recalling the past year. So, unless you want to scrape all that metaphoric schmutz, take some advice from a chastened guy with a sore back; clean those "barbecues" regularly. G'mar Chatimah Tovah, y'all.

CABBAGE, KIWI & SPINACH SALAD

THIS RECIPE BROUGHT TO YOU BY...

HERB CAPLAN

WE SELL Inglis FOR LESS

1111 Weston Road (S. of Eglinton) 767-1655

Salad:
2-3 cups torn spinach leaves
2-3 cups shredded red cabbage
1 small red onion, sliced
2 firm kiwis, peeled, cut in half lenthwise; then cut crosswise into 1/2 moons
1/4-1/3 cup raisins
1/3 cup raw cashew pieces alfalfa sprouts

Dressing:
2 tblsp. cider vinegar
1/4 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. pepper
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. Italian seasoning
4 tblsp. light olive oil
1/4 cup dill

Combine all the salad ingredients; combine all the dressing ingredients. At this point you can refrigerate each separately and combine just before serving. Yield: 4-6 servings.

A MESSAGE TO CJN SNOWBIRDS

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $5.00 per month.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa or Mastercard before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please call Janice at 416-391-1836, allowing a minimum of two weeks notice.

About Seniors

Dear Jesse,

I'm a reader of your column in The CJN. My request for you is to print this short note in your paper so that I can pick up some Jewish pen-pals. I suffered a stroke about a year and a half ago and now I am a shut-in. All I'm looking for from my pen-pals is companionship. I'm very lonely and my contact with Jewish culture is limited. Jesse, if I can get one or two pen-pals from this letter all I can say is thank you. Jesse, if you have the time, write me back.

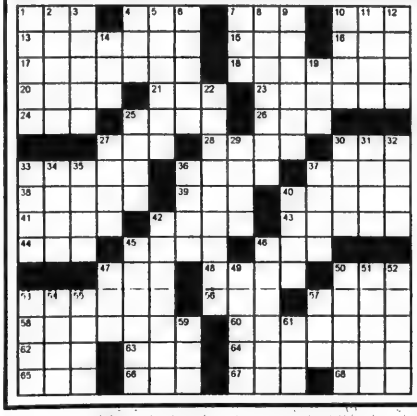
TH

Dear TH,

Your idea of a letter exchange is great. There are many seniors who are alone and for various reasons unable to participate in community events. I invite them to write to me if they are interested and I will make every effort to make the connection.

Readers are invited to send any questions they have for Jesse to The CJN. Jesse is the executive director of Jewish Support Services for the Elderly (JSSE) in Montreal.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE



Across

1. Fiedler to friends
4. Lemon or Gator
7. 300
10. Sighs
13. King of Swing
15. Reason for shiva?
16. Baseball Berg
17. "The Fountainhead" author
18. Time for new day?
20. Moses' horns?
21. Male swan
23. Acted the Haghaah
24. King and Arkin
25. Actor Mostel
26. Shiva mood
27. Yeled (Eng.)
28. Matzoh maker's need
30. Jewish UPI?
33. Yiddish actress
36. Mt. Hermon need?
37. "The New Colossus"
38. Elephant bone
39. Hebrew sin
40. Covet
41. "__ of Settlement"
42. Hummus holder
43. Jacob's father-in-law
44. Alenu
45. "Shulan Aruch" author
46. Wages
47. Joe Ginsberg stat
48. Chant Torah
50. Sculptor's style
53. Seder sites
56. Hamantasch?
57. Make the tsimmes
58. Ark passengers
60. Biblical land
62. King David?
63. Tet (Eng)
64. Lou Grant actor
65. Imitated Deborah
66. Evil __
67. Nimoy casually
68. Shikker's choice?

Down

1. 100th of a NIS
2. Regal
3. Curtis and Randall
4. Jonas Salk's Org.?
5. Imitated Charisse
6. Witch's dwelling
7. Platters by Bolton
8. Yeshiva offerings
9. Israel at times
10. Minor Prophet
11. Writer Irving
12. Transmit
14. Hadassah employees
19. Acted
22. Bretano shop
25. Jerry Lewis schtick
27. Agadah
29. Need at Ellis Isle
30. David's general
31. Shoe maker
32. Prayer ender
33. Tube
34. "__ the Terrible", Treblinka
35. Mt Hermon climate?
36. Edomite mountain
37. Say the Viddui
40. Dressed
42. Bitter herbs
45. Genesis activity
46. Adloyadah
47. Tu B'Shevat need?
49. Equipment for Baskin
50. Table tennis champ
51. Ezra's swift scribe
52. Tzedakah
53. Tuches?
54. Diarist
55. Isaac on Mt. Moriah?
57. Matriarchs
59. Prophesize
61. Sixth day creation

These puzzles are the work of Kathi Handler of Waterbury, Connecticut.

(Last week's answers are on page 46.)

Italian Month at Korry's

Grand Prize Draw

Saturday, November 15th

Winner receives 2 return air seats to Italy (value $1,000 CDN per seat)

Some restrictions apply

courtesy of:

ALBATours

Schedule of Events

- Thursday, October 23rd
  Canali Trunk Show opening night at Korry's.
- Friday, October 24th – Saturday, October 25th
  Canali Trunk Show continues at Korry's.
- Monday, October 27th – Saturday, November 15th
  Special fashion displays showcasing Korry's Italian collections. Three (3) weekly draws of dinner for two at IL Fornello, 576 Danforth Avenue.
- Saturday, November 15th
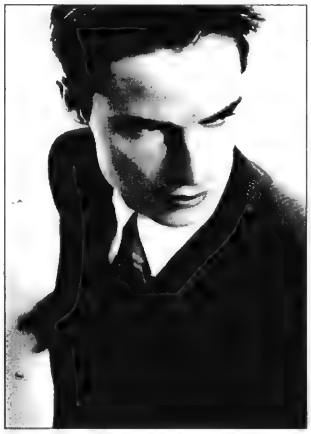
  Korry's Grand Prize Draw to win 2 return air seats to Italy (Value $1,000 CDN per seat) from AlbaTours.

Why is Italy so important to Korry's? Well, to begin with, the Italians have a unique zest for the finer things in life, an attitude that embraces food, wine, music and dress. They even have a phrase for it, "fare una bella figura" — to show a good front.

Beautiful clothing is a major component of la bella figura. From an early age, Italians learn to cultivate a sense of style, and grow to admire their own home-grown group of fashion designers and manufacturers. Superb fabrics, tailoring artistry, and just the right fashionable touches are all part and parcel not just of Italy's commercial trade, but of its national pride as well.

In acknowledging this fact with our special Italian Month extravaganza, Korry's is simply paying homage to a people that has produced so many of our civilization's most enduring artists — Leonardo da Vinci and Donatello, Verdi and Puccini, Armani and Gianni Versace, to name only a few.

Essere di moda, bisogno qualcosa Italiano. To be in fashion, one needs something Italian.



Canali Trunk Show

Thursday, October 23rd
5:00 PM — 10:00 PM
Hors d'oeuvres by IL Fornello

Please join Mr. Saul Korman, president of Korry's Clothiers, and Mr. Bruno Mancini, Canali's Canadian representative, here at Korry's for an exclusive evening of fine food and fine fabrics. Featuring the wines of Folonari Soave and Folonari Valpolicella Classico Superiore.

Our staff will be delighted to assist your selection of Spring '98 tailored wear, to be created by custom order at Canali's Italian headquarters.

RSVP (416) 463-1115.

KORRY'S

569 Danforth Avenue, Just west of Pape (416) 463-1115

Bell offers great October savings to call overseas.
For details, call
1 800 668-BELL(2355)
Bell
www.bell.ca

The Canadian Jewish news
52 Pages Wednesday, October 22, 1997 Tishrei 21, 5758 75c

AFFORDABLE
ISRAEL
Call your travel agent
EL AL

This Week

Greater Toronto Area

Elderly couple with medical problems denied OHIP coverage. Page 3

North American Jews don't have many friends, lawyer says. Page 7

Opera Brundibar teaches the Holocaust to young children. Page 14

National

Lloyd Axworthy plans to visit Israel to make sure passport affair won't happen again. Page 23

Arts

Symposium on Being Jewish explores issues ranging from the meaning of creation to Jewish continuity. Page 44

Sports

U.S. Maccabi basketball player decides to stay in Israel. Page 50

Index

GTA 3
Editorials and Letters 8
Perspectives 9
Opinions 10
The Kirshner File 11
Jewish Life 12
Yiddish Corner 17
What's New 20
On Campus 22
Coast to Coast 23
International 37
Health 43
Travel, Arts & Business 44
Classified 47
Sports 50
Dear Susan 51
Crossword 51

Shabbat: Bereshit
Candlelighting: 6:03
Tishrei 23, 5758
Havdalah: 7:08

The record of Khaled Meshal

The man who got away

By STEVE RODAN
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

The security source, let's call him Mr. A., leans back in his chair with a sigh. Yes, he says, the Mossad attempt to kill Hamas leader Khaled Meshal was a fiasco.

But after a moment he moves forward and with an intent look changes his tone. "Hamas must know that it won't be protected," he says.

Bravado? Perhaps. But talk to just about anybody in the intelligence and counter-terrorism community and he will agree that Khaled Meshal was a target worthy of assassination.

Backgrounder

As sources in several intelligence services put it, Meshal has become a super-terrorist, responsible for hundreds of deaths both in Israel and abroad. In a largely anonymous organization called Hamas, Meshal stands out as the man with the authority to order terrorism against Israel.

His home has been in Amman, where Israeli security officials say Hamas policy is determined.

It wasn't always that way. Hamas was founded in Gaza in 1987 by Sheik Ahmed Yassin. Meshal was one of the sheik's disciples, born in the Ramallah-area village of Silwad in 1950 or 1956.

Like many other young Palestinians, he was devout and became a member of the Muslim Brotherhood. In the 1980s, he was one of the founders of Hamas' secret military wing, Izzadin Kassam.

In 1990, Meshal went to Jordan. He soon rose in the ranks of the organization to become deputy to Mousa Abu Marzook, head of Hamas' political bureau. When Abu Marzook was arrested by U.S. authorities in 1995, Meshal took over and continues in his post, despite Abu Marzook's recent return to Jordan, following his expulsion from the United States.

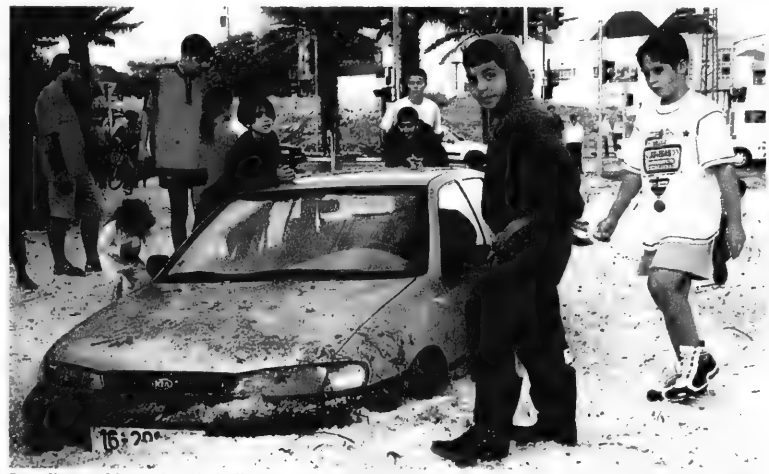
The organizational structure of Hamas is clear, although the division of authority remains in dispute. Hamas' guidance committee is composed of about 10 people, the equivalent of a cabinet, responsible for forming policy, including the use of terrorism.

Once a decision is made by the guidance committee to carry out terrorist attacks, security sources say, the order is relayed to Damascus. The Syrian capital is the headquarters of the political committee, headed by Imad Alami. Alami's job is to relay instructions to Izzadin Kassam in Gaza and the West Bank. Alami's committee orders the timing and the type of the attack.

"Meshal is the equivalent of the prime minister of Hamas," a senior security source says. "The strongman of the organization is Mousa Abu Marzook, but he has been back in Amman for only a few months and is not very involved."

Continued on page 38

Storm kills 11



Israelis stand knee-deep in hailstones on a road in Beersheva last weekend trying to dig out from the flash storms that swept across the country. [RNS/Reuters photo]

By ARIEH O'SULLIVAN
and Jerusalem Post Staff

JERUSALEM — At least 11 people were killed, dozens were injured and at least four children were missing in flash floods or accidents caused by sudden rainstorms over Shabbat, officials said.

A 43-year-old man, Waif Abu Aida, was killed while driving a pickup truck that was washed off a road in the Nevatim area.

Six other people died Saturday when a van skidded on slick pavement, swerving into the opposite lane and ploughing into a large truck near Gush Etzion, police said. Five were believed to be Romanian workers.

Another four people died in the Dead Sea area. Three were killed when their car went off the road after the side of a highway collapsed in the rain. The car overturned and was swept away in a flooded stream, officials said.

Due to the high winds, a 24-year-old woman fell 30 metres off a cliff in a wadi in Qumran on Friday evening. Her body was found the next morning, washed away as far as the Dead Sea road.

The rest of her group survived, some by clinging to the face of a cliff, while others found refuge in caves before being rescued by soldiers in the morning.

In Jerusalem, divers and a helicopter helped search for an 8-year-old Palestinian boy who fell into a sewage canal while playing with a friend in the Wadi Joz area.

Three Bedouin girls were missing in a hilly area north of Beersheva, rescue officials said.

Storms also flooded dozens of homes and destroyed large tracts of cropland in Jericho, where 12 people were injured.

INSIDE

Please see our Home 'Suite' Home pages.

Don
D MCLAREN
MCLAREN MICROPUBLISHING LTD
PO BOX 972 STATION F
TORONTO ON XXPL
CJNOOOOBPOOBH 65 06NOV97 MIXEDMHY

Israel and the PA quietly negotiating — please see page 37

Feature

Paying respect to our loved ones

By RABBI IRVIN S. BEIGEL

Few prayers elicit the emotional response that the Kaddish does. If you have ever been in shul when even one recital of the Mourners' Kaddish was omitted either by accident or by design, you know how deeply attached Jews are to this prayer.

Guest Voices

Since October, I have been among those who rush to shul twice daily to recite the Kaddish. It is not that I did not regularly attend daily minyan before my mother died, particularly in the morning, but now praying with a minyan has acquired a new urgency, a sense of importance that, even as a rabbi, I did not completely understand before. As is true for other mourners, daily appointments are now scheduled around minyan time.

Recently, I had to schedule airline flights so that I could attend services here before I left and at my destination after I arrived. My experiences in this regard are not unique. They are, unfortunately, shared by many.

What is it about Kaddish that demands such devotion? I reflect on that question frequently these days. My answer is admittedly only a personal one in some respects. Others will, perhaps, find other significance in their recital of Kaddish.

Respect for parents is demanded from us not only when our parents are living, but even after their death. When death comes,we are helpless. Kaddish provides a means of demonstrating our respect (and love) for a parent taken from us. We could not subdue the angel of death, but at least we can do something for our loved one by reciting Kaddish.

Of course, Kaddish does not mention death. It is an expression of kiddush HaShem — the sanctification of God's Name. We declare and ask the congregation to declare with us our faith that God will speedily rule over the world He created. In praising God, we declare our faith in a better future even when our thoughts are on the sadness and gloom of the present.

Whether our loved one died at a young age or an old age, death resulted from the imperfection of the world. Our own inability to cure disease, the cruelty of violence inflicted by other human beings, the tragic mishaps on the highways, all reveal flaws in our world. God who is perfect has not yet made this world perfect.

As we express our faith that God will perfect His world, we simultaneously dedicate ourselves to sharing in that task with Him. We do so even at a time of pain, of doubt, of keen awareness that we ourselves are less than perfect.

The closing statement of every Kaddish brings forth particular fervor from me. Oseh shalom bimromav – May He who creates peace in the heavens make peace for us and for all Israel. At the time when life lacks shalom – inner peace, completeness, wholeness, we pray for the restoration of that completeness for ourselves and for all Israel.

Kaddish is sometimes misunderstood. Sometimes it is almost viewed as a magical incantation. That is too bad, because its true value is then overlooked. Kaddish is a declaration of our intent to make this world more perfect, a statement of faith, a heartfelt prayer, a source not only of honor to the deceased, but of comfort and hope for the living.

May the almighty speedily bring comfort to all who mourn amidst the mourners for Zion and Jerusalem.

Rabbi Beigel is a rabbi at Beth Sholom Synagogue in Toronto.

The Toronto New Leadership Division of
The Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem invites you to attend a special evening performance of Award winning Jewish-Hungarian playwright George Tabori's

'MY MOTHER'S COURAGE'

a true story of a summer day in 1944 Budapest when Tabori's mother, on her way to a card game at her sister's, is arrested and put on a train to be deported. Through great courage and luck, she escapes ...

Tuesday, October 28, at 8:00 p.m.
Theatre Passe Muraille, Main Space
16 Ryerson Avenue (at Bathurst & Queen St.)

Question and answer period with the actors and director following the performance. Dessert Reception to follow at the theatre.

Tickets $30.00 Seating is Limited

Please call (416) 485-8000 for tickets & further information

ON TRIAL IN FRANCE
Accused Nazi collaborator Maurice Papon is accused of having committed crimes against humanity. [RNS/Reuters photo]

NATHAN DISENHOUSE • ZALE NEWMAN • GORDON BERGER • JACK POLLAK

OVERTAXED?

PANFINANCIAL TO THE RESCUE ... If your taxable income is $150,000 or more, we have innovative yet conservative tax reduction strategies to help you retain more of your hard-earned income.

By Oct. 15, some of most beneficial tax-assisted investments will no longer be available. There still is a limited quantity available. Call today to schedule a meeting.

WE'LL SHOW YOU SOME SUPER TAX REDUCTION STRATEGIES.

PANFINANCIAL
Tel: (416) 499-4222
Leading Edge Tax Reduction Strategies

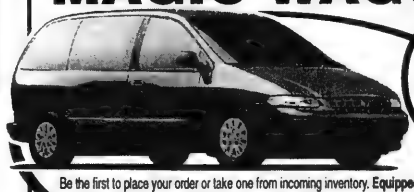
Design: Mitch Shore

THE 1998'S ARE HERE!!
LEASE A BRAND NEW 1998 VOYAGER
MAGIC WAGON



$245 PER MONTH

Be the first to place your order or take one from incoming inventory. Equipped as follows: air conditioning, pr. steering, pr. brakes, rear wiper/washer, floor mats f/r, am/fm stereo radio, 7 pass seating, tinted glass, rear window defroster, dual sport mirrors, roof luggage rack, dual air bags.

DOWNSVIEW Jeep Eagle
CHRYSLER PLYMOUTH (1964) LTD.
ON ALLEN ROAD. JUST NORTH OF SHEPPARD
199 RIMROCK RD., NORTH YORK, ONT. M3J 3C6

Call Mel Wise
635-1660

TERMS: Lease price is based on a 30 month term, OAC with $2,500.00 down payment or trade required. Freight, licence and all taxes extra. Security deposit required.

The Canadian Jewish news

Vol. XXXVIII, No. 26 (2,872)

An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Gary Laforet
General Manager

Mordechai Ben-Dat
Editor

Vera Gillman
Advertising & Assistant General Manager

Carol Jamieson
Controller

Jeff Rosen
News Editor

Joseph Serge
Travel, Arts & Business Editor

Janice Arnold, Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner, Frances Kraft, David Lazarus, Elias Levy, Paul Lungen, Ben Rose, Leila Speisman
Staff Reporters

Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Emil Fackenheim, Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone, Miriam Herman, Shira Herzog, Martin Himel, Justin Korda, Dr. Gidi Koren, Shel Krakofsky, Sam Lipshitz, Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut, Viva Press, Morton Weinfeld
Columnists

Stephen Bindman, Joel Jacobson, Myron Love, Wendy Schneider, Judy Shapiro, Moura Wolpert
Canadian Correspondents

Edgar Asher
Israel Correspondent

Leslie Kinrys
Chief Copy Editor

Carolan Halpern
Copy Editor

Ella Burakowski
Assistant Advertising Manager

Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen, Barbara Ferguson, Ruth Goldsmith, Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman, Honey Mahl, Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig
Sales Representatives, Toronto

Lisa Freid
Classified Advertising Representative

Doris Perez
Office Manager

Alma Delory, Karen Syptak
Office Staff, Toronto

Janice Atkinson
Circulation

Brian Stoneman
Composing Room Manager

Rasma Brants, José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel, Britta Petersen, Nick Radelja, Larry Tremblay
Production Staff

Charles Bronfman, Donald Carr, Q.C. George A. Cohon, Steven Cummings, Murray Koffler, Julia Koschitzky, Albert J. Latner, Lionel H. Schipper, Robert Vineberg, Rose Wolfe, Rubin Zimmerman
Directors

Ray D. Wolfe
Founding President (1971-1990)

Head Office: 1500 Don Mills Rd., Ste 205, North York, Ont., M3B 3K4
Tel. 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949
Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829
E-MAIL: TorCJN1@aol.com

IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives
POB 7195, Jerusalem, Israel
Tel. 02-252-933, Fax. 02-249-240

CIRCULATION
Average circulation per issue: 46,711 copies
Average net paid circulation per issue: 45,109 copies.
Publisher's sworn statement March 7, 1997.

SUBSCRIPTIONS
Canada: $29.95, 1 yr. incl. GST.
$54.95, 2 yr. incl. GST.
U.S.A.: $60 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $75 U.S. funds, 1 yr.

Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.

Postage Paid at Toronto
Publication Mail Registration #1683

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper.
Acceptance of advertising does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News.
The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

A TASTE OF JUDAISM
For a "Taste of Judaism" call Kolel 905-764-1329

This Week
Greater Toronto Area

Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future? Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals.
Call SONNY GOLDSTEIN
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning
Sonny Goldstein, C.L.U., C.H.F.C. President

Elderly couple denied OHIP coverage

Parents in need of medical procedures

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — An elderly Ukrainian Jewish couple allowed to stay in Canada on compassionate grounds, has been ruled ineligible for OHIP coverage.

Georgi Ilvovski, 91, has kidney cancer and needs prostate surgery. His wife, Polia, 83, paralyzed on her right side, requires a new pacemaker and urgent dental work. Her original pacemaker, implanted in Kiev, is now 12 years old.

"I can't afford to pay for these operations. I have already paid more than $2,000 in medical bills for them," said their daughter Mila Filatova, 53, a freelance pianist and teacher who has lived in Canada for six years.

"Where is the humanity in allowing them here on humanitarian grounds and then denying them what they need so desperately?"

The Ilvovskis were denied refugee status and citizenship in Canada because they were medically inadmissible, but four years ago were allowed to stay on a minister's permit.

They are not eligible for OHIP because under the federal immigration minister's permit, the Ilvovskis are in a category of people medically ineligible for admission to Canada, said Lily Wheedon, spokesperson for Ontario health minister Elizabeth Witmer.

Immigration spokesperson Kevin Sack said the couple's only recourse is to appeal to OHIP.

Filatova was unaware that she had the right to appeal the OHIP decision. She sent the appeal Oct. 10.

"I've been tossed from one office to another — maybe I don't cry enough," said a frustrated Filatova, the single mother of a 17-year-old daughter.

She broke down in tears at Branson Hospital when there was a delay in admitting her father for a urinary blockage. He is still catheterized at home and Filatova has to pay almost $40 each time she calls home care to assist him.

"I'm still getting bills for hundreds of dollars from Branson Hospital which I cannot pay because I'm already in debt. What [my parents] need is intensive home care but they are not eligible."

She pays the rent for her parents' one-bedroom apartment, located in the same highrise building on Bathurst Street where she lives and teaches her pupils. Her parents are not eligible for welfare or subsidized housing.

Rev. Caroline Miller of Northlea United Church has offered to help organize a fundraising concert to aid the Ilvovskis.

"I really appreciate what people are doing to help," Filatova said.

A dentist, Dr. Arthur Ross, has volunteered to do the dental work her mother requires and the Lions Club has also offered assistance.

When she approached the Jewish Family and Child Service for help, Filatova said, she was told that since her parents had no income, they were not eligible for a supplemental allowance. "That doesn't make sense."

The Ilvovskis come from a hamlet near Nikolayev in the Ukraine. Georgi, a carpenter, was a youngster when his family fled the 1917 revolution. He served in the Russian army in World War II and lost toes on both feet from frostbite when abandoned for 40 days in winter after being wounded. He still has a metal plate in his leg and another in his head. In the Ukraine, he had a pension from the Russian army which he lost when the couple came to Canada.

Broke down in tears

After the war, the Ilvovskis fled to Tashkent where Filatova was born, but they later returned to the Ukraine.

"In the Ukraine, the Jewish Agency wanted us to go to Israel, but we wanted to be with our daughters in Canada," said Polia Ilvovski in Yiddish. (The couple does not speak English.) "We like Canada but we are helpless. We are so sick."

Another daughter, Elizabeth Wiseman, lives in Edmonton, but she is retired and cannot help her parents. They have distant cousins living in Israel.

"I phoned a certain rabbi (I don't want to give his name) for help and right away he asked me how much money I could give his synagogue," said Filatova.

She has appeared several times at Leah Posluns Theatre in concerts with other Russian Jewish artists.

Georgi Ilvovski with his wife, Polia, and daughter, Mila Filatova. [Barry Shainbaum photo]

Funding IN ACTION
UJA FEDERATION

For a Jewish student, university life has much more to offer than just lectures and professors. Rachel Melzer knows this better than anyone. Currently studying ecology at the University of Toronto, Rachel's Jewish identity has been heightened through her involvement with the Jewish Student Union, funded by Jewish Campus Services, a UJA Federation beneficiary agency.

NEW GIRL IN TOWN

Originally from Ottawa, Rachel found it difficult, at first, not knowing anyone on campus. "I thought if I started going to lectures and holiday programs at the Jewish Student Union, it would be a great way to meet people." As the year progressed, so did Rachel's involvement and attachment to JSU.

THE NATURE OF THE ISSUE

After her first year at school, Rachel was approached to join the JSU board and spearheaded her own committee dealing with Jewish environmental issues. "The interest of people in this subject is incredible," she says.

The JSU recently sent Rachel to an eco-Zionist conference in San Francisco, where she joined other students from various campuses across North America to learn more about the subject.

"All of our Jewish holidays and laws are based on cycles of the year and responsible resource use. Growing up, I never knew about these concepts. It is only through my involvement with Jewish Campus Services that I was able to make the connection."

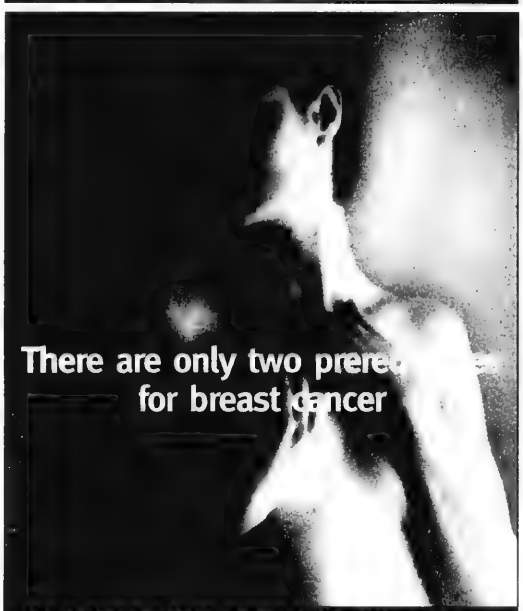
SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

"Whether it's eating bagels, discussing issues or attending a Tu B'Shvat meal, the Jewish Student Union serves so many people through its variety of programs. It's a great way to meet others," says Rachel.

Jewish Campus Services connects thousands of college and university students to their roots. It's another example of UJA Federation Funding in Action.

Greater Toronto Area

30 YEARS SPECIALIZING IN MUTUAL FUNDS
0% Commission - 500 Funds
LEVINE FINANCIAL GROUP
1200 Sheppard Ave. East, 2nd Floor
Toronto, Ontario M2K 2S5
(416) 494-7100
➢ No Purchase Fees (No FEL)
➢ No Exit Fees (No DSC)
AIC
BPI
Fidelity
Mackenzie
O'Donnell
Templeton
Trimark
Min. $50,000



Join the Dialogue on Breast Cancer II - an informative public lecture - to find out from some of Canada's leading experts what you need to know. Learn about the latest in genetics, detection, surgery and treatment options.

It's part of Scotiabank's continuing commitment to Mount Sinai Hospital's Samuel Lunenfeld Research Institute to help find a cure for the disease.

Dialogue on Breast Cancer II
Wednesday, October 29, 1997

Lecture begins at 6:30 p.m.
Ben Sadowski Auditorium, 18th level
Open House - 5:00 p.m.
Marvelle Koffler Breast Centre, 12th level

Mount Sinai Hospital, 600 University Avenue

Dialogue on Breast Cancer II speakers:

Dr. Irene Andrulis, Scotiabank Scientist, Samuel Lunenfeld Research Institute (SLRI)
Director, Ontario Cancer Genetics Network

Dr. Pam Goodwin, Director, Marvelle Koffler Breast Centre (MKBC) & Senior Scientist, SLRI

Dr. Roberta Jong, Radiologist, MKBC

Dr. Saul Sidlofsky, Surgeon, MKBC

Moderated by: Linda Boyle, Health Reporter, Global Television

Mount Sinai Hospital
Scotiabank
Healthy Living

For full program details and to reserve a seat, call (416) 586-8338 (Free admission seating is limited)

The happiness of being Jewish

There is more than the summoning of a holiday in the name Simchat Torah. There is as well, in my view, a suggestion for rethinking our approach to the transmittal of Jewish values to our children and to our grandchildren.

I define Simchat Torah to mean "celebration in and of Torah."

By celebration I mean a serious personal affirmation and seeking after something higher, something fulfilling, challenging and true. By Torah I mean a sense of meaningful personal Jewish identity, affiliation, belonging and commitment. I do not mean, although I also do not exclude from this definition, a strict, Torah way of life.

Apart from the many different chassidic groups of Jews, for whom at least originally, simchah (joy, happiness, celebration) was built into the very structure of religious ritual and observance, simchah tends to be the exception rather than the rule in the Jewish way of life.

For many of our children, and for many of their parents – especially those among us with only marginal or no exposure to formal Jewish education – Judaism appears as a complex system of prohibitions. Jewish history unfolds only as a long, suffering sequences of persecutions and pogroms, of tragedies and tears. Most Jewish prayer is sung in the minor key. And the predominant "colors" of Jewish identity are shadings of black.

Is it any wonder then, that so many of our fellow Jews shy away from their Jewishness, or more accurately, from what they perceive to be the dour, lachrymose Jewishness of their parents and their grandparents?

They reject as unappealing, unattractive and irrelevant what they know so very little about.

It is well past the time that we attempted to change this.

I am not advocating a theology of mirth and merriment. I am not advocating that we go outside the framework of accepted Jewish norms. I am not suggesting that we alter the liturgy or the rituals of any of the streams of Judaism: Orthodox, Conservative, Reform or Reconstructionist. Nor am I suggesting that we adopt a form of collective national and historical amnesia by ignoring the events of our past.

Rather I am suggesting that it is time to for all of us – parents, grandparents, educators, rabbis, synagogue officials, youth counselors, advisors, researchers and friends to re-examine how we convey to the younger generation our happiness and deep appreciation at being Jewish.

The festival of Sukkot, in general and Simchat Torah, specifically are appropriate occasions to reflect on this subject.

Sukkot is described as zman simchatenu, the season of our celebration (my translation).

The requirement to celebrate during Sukkot is emphasized in the book of Dvarim (Deuteronomy) 16:15 where we read that the Jewish people was told "to be only happy."

The Hallel prayer that we recite every day during Sukkot contains another of the many strong existential directives urging us to adopt a more expansive, a more eyes-wide-open approach to our lives. In short we are directed to celebrate our lives within our Jewish framework:"Zeh hayom asah hashem; nagilah v'nismicha vo." This is the day that God brought about; let us be joyful and celebrate (my emphasis).

It is a profound statement. It tells us essentially that every day is an occasion for celebration.

But celebration, in this context is not a frivolous, partying activity. Nor can it be legislated. Like love and the sense of wonder, it must spring from an individual's deep sense of gratitude at being alive, and in the sense I am proposing, at being alive Jewishly.

The concept of celebration that I am advocating was succinctly described by the renowned teacher and scholar, the late Abraham Joshua Heschel. I have excerpted some of his thoughts from a collection by Ruth Marcus Goodhill.

"To celebrate is to contemplate the singularity of the moment." (If we use this as a starting point, we can therefore say, in Heschel's terms, that to celebrate Jewish life, is to comtemplate the "singularity of the moments" of Jewish life.)

"The demand, as understood in Biblical religion, is to be alert and open to what is happening. Every moment is a new arrival, a new bestowal. How to welcome the moment? How to respond to the marvel? The cardinal sin is in our failure not to sense the grandeur of the moment, the marvel and mystery of being, the possibility of quiet exaltation."

(Every moment of Jewish life, in Heschel's terms, is a new arrival, a new bestowal. If we could only transmit to our peers and to our children the excitement of belonging to an ancient-and-modern people, a dynamic, creative collectivity that helps to advance the cause of humanity!)

"The man of our time is losing the power of celebration, instead of celebrating, he seeks to be amused or entertained. Celebration is an active state, an act of expressing reverence or appreciation. To be entertained is a passive state – it is to receive pleasure afforded by an amusing act or a spectacle. Celebration is a confrontation, giving attention to the transcendent meaning of one's actions."

(Giving attention to the transcendent meaning of being Jewish and of belonging to this interesting people must be thought of in ways that augment and enhance conventional education. In every field of human endeavor – the sciences, the arts and the humanities – Jewish contributions have been monumental. Our contributions to the advancement of humanity are limited only by the shortcomings of our imagination. How can this be brought home to our youngsters?)

"The meaning of existence is experienced in moments of exaltation. Man must strive for the summit in order to survive on the ground. His norms must be higher that his behavior, his ends must surpass his needs."

Heschel posits the challenge in so poetic and so moving a form: "We must strive for the summit if we are to survive on the ground." Indeed he has simply expressed in another way what has always been the guiding force of Jewish life, namely, the mandatory injunction to try to infuse every aspect of our lives with a sense of purpose and meaning, or in biblical terms, of holiness

Ibdu et hashem b'simcha. Serve God out of a sense of celebration.

In this context service of God could not possibly have been intended to mean only ritual practices. I do not gainsay the importance of ritual practice, nor of being precise in every aspect of halachic observance.

But, service of God must have a much broader sweep if it is to light a fire in the imagination of present and future younger Jewish generations. It must by definition also mean serving God by serving one's fellow human beings.

Only then will we be able to fully invoke another of Heschel's understandings of celebration: "To celebrate is to share in a greater joy, to participate in an external drama. In acts of celebration the intention is to extol God, the source of all blessing." MBD

ROLEX•PATEK•CARTIER
•DIAMONDS•
BUY•SELL•TRADE
VAN RIJK JEWELLERS
440-1233 INSTANT CASH

NER ISRAEL YESHIVA
8950 Bathurst St.,
Thornhill, Ont. L4J 8A7
Provides for
KADDISH SERVICES and OBSERVING YAHRZEIT and MEMORIAL PLAQUES
Please invest in the future.
Remember Ner Israel in your will.
CALL (905) 731-1224

Zundel linked to Internet site

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — In a move that caught neo-Nazi propagandist Ernst Zundel by surprise, his estranged wife testified last week that Zundel controlled the California-based Web site that distributed allegedly anti-Semitic material.

Irene Zundel told a tribunal of the Human Rights Commission (CHRC) that Zundel sent monthly cheques to Ingrid Rimland in Carlsbad, Calif., to cover the costs of operating the site. She also testified that Zundel wrote the English and German-language Power Letters that appeared on the "Zundelsite" and that a part-time employee, Marc Lemire, posted Zundel's handwritten material to the Web site. Zundel has maintained that the site was operated by Rimland and was not subject to his control.

Irene Zundel, who now lives in Pennsylvania, married the neo-Nazi publisher in March 1996. They separated last July.

Zundel, 58, is facing allegations he violated the Canadian Human Rights Act (CHRA) by offering material on an Internet Web site that is likely to expose an identifiable group, Jews, to hatred or contempt. The complaint against Zundel was brought by the Toronto Mayor's Committee on Community and Race Relations and by Sabina Citron.

In 1983, Citron first tangled with Zundel when she laid criminal "false news" charges that alleged he distributed lies denying the Holocaust. Although Zundel was convicted of the charge by two separate juries, the Supreme Court of Canada eventually ruled the law unconstitutional.

Ironically, the pamphlet that formed the basis of the criminal charge, a Holocaust-denying tract entitled, Did Six Million Really Die?, is one of the Internet postings that forms the subject of the human rights complaint.

That document "is simply the articulation of a Holocaust-denial position," stated Gary Prideaux, a professor of linguistics at the University of Alberta.

Testifying prior to Irene Zundel, Prideaux said he analyzed the text and concluded "it contains many familiar assertions found in Holocaust denial literature and serves to establish a well-defined position...which places blame on the victims of the Holocaust while at the same time portraying the aggressors (the Nazis) as the real victims."

In two days of testimony, Prideaux analyzed several documents, including the tracts 66 Questions and Answers On the Holocaust and Jewish Soap.

He also examined several shorter documents. A Zundelsite "mission statement" and an open letter on the Web site claimed a "Holocaust lobby" exercised "financial, political, emotional and spiritual extortion."

Prideaux said language used on the Zundelsite implies the "Holocaust lobby" consists of Jews engaged in criminal activities and "rackets."

Another Zundelsite posting quotes from Hitler's Mein Kampf and adopts the Nazi leader's view of the Jews as "masters of lies."

"The thrust of the assertion is that Jews are liars and creators of lies...and that is the systematic character of the Jews," Prideaux said.

During cross-examination, defence lawyer Doug Christie suggested it was fair to say there is, in fact, a Holocaust lobby. Prideaux said he was unaware of it.

The two also sparred over a passage in the Zundelsite that claimed the Jews declared war on Germany during World War II.

Earlier, CHRC lawyer Ian Binnie laid out the commission's case, saying the Zundelsite's location in California was simply a way for Zundel to "target the Jewish community in Canada and elsewhere [with material] that's likely to expose them to hatred or contempt."

The material is disguised as a "scholarly exchange" but "it's simply anti-Semitism and hate propaganda wrapped up in the flag of freedom of speech," Binnie said.

As the hearing began, the tribunal accepted Canadian Jewish Congress as an intervener in the case. Congress joins B'nai Brith Canada and the Simon Wiesenthal Centre in that capacity.

Early on, Christie asked the three-member panel to disclose whether any of them supported or were members of the intervener groups. Tribunal chair Claude Pensa said he knew of no legal authority to permit that sort of questioning.

The hearing is considered by some a landmark case. It is based on a section of the Human Rights Act that prohibits use of "telephonic communications" to disseminate hate materials. Although the section has been employed to stop use of telephone answering machines that contained hate messages, it has never been used in connection to material on the Internet. In most cases, access to the Internet requires a hookup over telephone lines.

If the tribunal accepts the complaint, it can issue a cease and desist order against Zundel that would have the effect of a court order.

"This is a groundbreaking case, delving into the new realm of the Internet, in effect an uncharted territory for the legal system," said B'nai Brith lawyer Marvin Kurz.

"The case will help decide if the Internet is subject to the same laws as other hate material in Canada," said Sol Littman, Canadian representative of the Simon Wiesenthal Centre. He said the centre has identified more than 700 hate sites around the world.

"We are confident the interveners...will be of assistance in helping close down Zundel's Web site, one of the world's largest purveyors of Holocaust denial material," said Moshe Ronen, chair of Congress' Ontario region.

The case resumes on Dec. 11.

Advt.

INVESTMENT IN ISRAEL THROUGH BONDS

Sam Faivish, Lola Faivish and Larry Waller

To commemorate the onset of Israel's 50th Anniversary, Lola and Sam Faivish present Larry Waller, Executive Vice President Israel Bonds, a cheque for a substantial investment in Israel.

MUTUAL FUNDS

* NO DEFERRED SALES CHARGES
* NO COMMISSIONS
* All The Great Funds (over 1,000)
* RRSP & General Investing

FOR ON-GOING FREE PERSONAL CONSULTATION CALL
MILES HERSHBERG
1-800-668-2821
M. HERSHBERG CAPITAL LTD.
ST CATHARINES

FANTASIA WORLD
Day Camp
A day camp for girls and boys ages 3 to 15.

- Weekly, monthly or seasonal programs
- Door to door transportation
- Nutritious lunches
- Instructional swimming - two heated pools
- Tots day camp - Ages 3 to 5 years old
- Sports - Baseball, Basketball, Soccer, Tennis, Volleyball
- Dance, Music, Theatre, Arts & Crafts
- Riding Lessons
- Large indoor Facilities

And much more!

Sports and Horse Lovers Camp
1380 Stouffville Road, at Leslie
Richmond Hill, Ontario
L4E 3S3
905 · 887 · 2481
Register before Dec. 31, 1997 with small deposit and receive discount for summer 1998.

A Matter of Great Interest
5.85%*
Royal Bank Callable June 4, 2007

CORRINE SPIEGEL
Investment Advisor
(416) 928-1616

LIANNE DIROCCO
Investment Advisor
(416) 928-0400

1 800 924-0558
22 St. Clair Ave. East, Suite 1605, Toronto, Ont. M4T 2S7
NB NESBITT BURNS
*as of Oct. 15, 1997. Rates subject to change and availability (assumes investment is held to maturity). Member CIPF

Greater Toronto Area

Former Soviet Prisoner of Zion worries for Jews

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Eduard Kuznetsov surveys the political scene in Russia and he worries. Sure, Jewish reformers serve in prominent government positions and Jews do not currently suffer from official discrimination.

But for Kuznetsov, who served 16 years in Soviet jails for political offenses, history is bound to repeat itself. "Every time there's a turn to the worse, it's a tragedy for the Jews," he said. "Why will there be an exception next time?"

A former prisoner of Zion, Kuznetsov was in Toronto recently to participate in a tribute to Ukrainian dissident Danylo Shumuk, who spent 42 years in prison and exile, the longest-serving political prisoner of the Soviet era. The two shared a prison cell for five years.

Kuznetsov was imprisoned (for the second time) as a key organizer of a phony plot to hijack a Soviet airliner to Israel. He was released in a prisoner swap and immigrated to Israel.

He has visited Russia twice since the Soviet Union collapsed and he attempts to warn the Jewish community there about the peril of living in a volatile time. But "they believe they're clever, special, that the rules of history won't apply to them," Kuznetsov said.

Kuznetsov is sure that Russian Jews will once again be made scapegoats if the situation in Russia worsens. They could face discrimination, expulsion or prison, he suggested.

Editor of a Russian-language newspaper in Israel, Kuznetsov said Russian Israelis by and large "believe in the persistence of international hatred" of the Jews. They believe "it is a real thing" and as a result, are more inclined to support right-wing parties who view peace with the Arabs skeptically.

"They don't believe the demagoguery of the left about a new Middle East and they don't believe in the value of words or the value of a paper peace," he said.

Kuznetsov's own world view no doubt owes much to the years he spent in prison and to his political opposition to the Soviet state. He was imprisoned for the first time as a university student in 1961 for anti-Soviet activities. At the time, he was "a general democrat." But in various penal camps he met Jews who were committed Zionists. "I began to feel a part of the Jewish people. When I left prison in 1968, I tried to go to Israel."

After applying through legal channels for several years and realizing there was "no chance" to receive proper immigration documents, he and other Zionists decided a high profile event was needed to shake up the Soviet system.

The early 1970s were a time of detente, of gradually improving ties with the West, and the Kremlin was hungry for Western currency, contacts and investment, he recalled. His dissident group believed that to get these benefits, the Soviets would have to give up something in return and they determined to make easier immigration a quid pro quo.

They fastened on the idea of attempting to hijack a plane out of the Soviet Union, all the while knowing the KGB would be aware of the plot from an early stage. The KGB had spies everywhere and to find the 16 plotters willing to attempt the hijacking, the group interviewed hundreds of potential accomplices. In that situation, the KGB certainly knew about the plan in advance, Kuznetsov said.

Eduard Kuznetsov

The plotters feared that Soviet intelligence agents would arrest them before they arrived at the airport, scuttling the plan's public relations value. But the KGB, wishing to discredit the plotters publicly, arrested them at the airport, igniting a firestorm of criticism of the Soviet Union. Nineteen Western leaders protested the arrests, giving the freedom for Soviet Jewry movement added weight, he said.

For his part, Kuznetsov was handed a life sentence. "This stupid system put you in the position of being a hero," he says today.

It was while serving the sentence that he met Shumuk. They and three others shared a tiny cell in which they were allotted two square metres each. Recalling a Russian proverb, Kuznetsov said the worst thing about prison is not the bars or the walls but the other inmates. Luckily, he and the others got along well and he and Shumuk never quarrelled in the five years they spent together.

The key to their success was the ability to create a "friendly atmosphere in the camp." They built an underground organization that controlled inmates' behavior and the senior prisoners had "moral authority" over others in the camp, he said.

FORTINOS
Your Supermarket with a Heart!
LAWRENCE SQUARE

Manischewitz Tam Tam Crackers 225 g pkg. 2.39 ea.

Manischewitz Noodles .89 ea. 340 g pkg. fine, medium or broad

Glatt • Kosher Beef Shoulder Steaks 15.98/kg 7.25 lb.

Fresh Cod Fillets 4.99 lb. 11.00/kg

Fresh Ontario Cauliflower .99 ea. Product of Canada • Canada No. 1

Fresh Ontario White Potatoes .15 lb. .33/kg Product of Canada • Canada No. 1

EVERYDAY LOW PRICES

Prices effective Sunday Oct. 19 thru Saturday, Oct. 25, 1997.
We reserve the right to limit quantities.

401 Lawrence Ave. Allen Rd Dufferin St. Bathurst St. Eglinton Ave

STORE HOURS
Monday to Wednesday 8 a.m.-9 p.m.
Thursday & Friday 8 a.m.-10 p.m.
Saturday 8 a.m.-8 p.m.
Sunday 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

Barbara HALL
Mayor for ALL the people

Barbara Hall Supports Your Community.
Support Barbara Hall with your Vote.
For more information, call 975-4470

New Toronto Election '97

Vote for Barbara Hall on November 10th

Greater Toronto Area

Loftus details litany of dirty tricks aimed at Jews

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Sometimes North American Jews don't know who their friends are, lawyer John Loftus told a gathering at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue sponsored by Israel Bonds.

But then, we don't have many, if Loftus' speech, which garnered him a standing ovation, is any indication.

The British, American and Canadian secret services have consistently undercut Jewish and Israeli interests, sneaking Nazi war criminals into western countries, sabotaging Israeli arms needs and interfering in commerce, Loftus claimed.

His allegations come from an accidental discovery he made while doing research in the secret U.S. archives in Maryland in the course of his work for the attorney general's Nazi-hunting unit.

"I got lost in the labyrinth of the archives," he related, "and I stumbled on files that no one was supposed to see until after 2015."

What he found there so upset him that he resigned from the unit and devoted himself to writing and talking about his discoveries, including making a dramatic appearance on television's 60 Minutes.

His speech detailed a stunning litany of dirty tricks that had the near-capacity crowd alternately eerily silent and gasping in indignation.

In the dying days of the Third Reich, he said, the British secret service decided that the new danger to the world came from communism and there was a need to recruit eastern Europeans to fight this threat.

"Without telling their respective governments, the Canadian external affairs and U.S. state departments gave passports to the dregs of Hitler's army – most went to Toronto, and the rest went to the United States."

After Loftus' 60 Minutes expose, Alti Rodal, who worked for the Deschenes Commission investigating Nazi war criminals in Canada, interviewed him.

"I gave her all the information I had, and it was included as an appendix to the commission report. With every word blacked out. That's the truth about Canadian history.

"You've been lied to," Loftus charged. "Next to Argentina, Canada has the highest population of Nazis in the Western hemisphere."

Loftus then turned to the controversy over Nazi gold and the Swiss banks .

During World War I, when the Americans passed the Trading with the Enemies Act, German investments were at risk, both German investment in the United States and American investment in Germany.

The Dulles brothers, John Foster and Allan, Loftus said, began to act for German and American (and Canadian) investors, persuading Americans and Canadians to invest in Germany.

"When the Depression came, millions of their dollars were invested in Germany, money which was used to pay reparations assigned by the Versailles treaty.

"By 1939," Loftus said, "70 percent of the money that had been used to rebuild the German economy came from U.S., Canadian and British investors."

When it became obvious that German investments might be in danger, the Dulles brothers started investing in Switzerland, moving money from Germany and German families (including Jewish ones) to Swiss banks, which by then were protected by the oaths of secrecy.

After the war, he said, Jews not only could not access their own or their relatives' bank accounts, but could not collect on life insurance policies held by Swiss insurance companies, "either because they couldn't prove death [by death certificates] or had let the payments lapse while in the concentration camps."

The whole process, Loftus said, was neither pro-Nazi nor anti-Semitic; it was just about greed.

"Americans and Canadians genuinely like Israel, and your Parliament and our Congress consistently support her."

The problem, he said, is the bureaucrats. "It is in North America's national interest to get a cheap supply of oil. The Arabs have it and Israel doesn't," Loftus said flatly. "So we sold you out. In every war, we worked against you."

Not only did the United States sell Israeli secrets to the Arabs in the 1956 and 1967 wars, but in the 1973 Yom Kippur war, in order to punish Israel for its intransigence in not bowing to Henry Kissinger's peace policies and to keep oil flowing, "Kissinger asked the secretary of defence to hold off sending Israel aid for seven days," by which time, he thought, Israel would be on its knees and would agree to any suggestion.

Israel was saved, Loftus said, by General Alexander Haig, who not only warned of the impending attack as soon as he learned of it, but secretly shipped Israel a highly effective anti-tank missile.

Western sabotage of Israel's interests went back to the very foundation of the new state. In 1944 and 1945, Loftus said, the British Secret Service, suspecting that Toronto Jewry would send money for arms to what was then Palestine as soon as the war ended, asked permission to tap the phones of Toronto's Jewish community. In this way, they found out that arms were indeed being purchased for the resistance to the British occupation.

When word of this activity was leaked to the world press, Loftus said, no nation would sell Palestine arms – except Czechoslovakia.

It was because of a young Czech Jew, named Lev Hoch. "Hoch infiltrated the British Secret Service, and discovered a coup to overthrow the democratically elected, but left-leaning government in favor of a right-wing one that would include former Nazis."

Hoch stole the files detailing the plans, and offered to give them to the Czech government if they would sell arms to the Jews.

"When Lev Hoch died a few years ago, he received a state funeral in Israel. Of course, he had changed his name and done very well for himself in business, although some of his more recent activities were under investigation. Didn't you wonder why Israel would give a state funeral to a crook like Robert Maxwell?"

Canada's treatment of Nazi war criminals, Loftus said, in reply to a question, "will be a permanent stain. Its efforts were underfunded, burdened by inexperienced staff and ignored qualified people. The Deschenes Commission was a complete whitewash."

17TH ANNUAL HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK
OCTOBER 30 - NOVEMBER 9, 1997

REMEMBER זכור

Opening Night
Thursday, October 30

Leah Posluns Theatre
4588 Bathurst Street
North York
8:00 p.m.

"EXODUS 1947: A LOOK BACK"

Marking the 50th anniversary of the voyage of the Exodus, the most famous of the Aliyah Bet ships attempting to bring Holocaust survivors to Palestine, the evening's program features:

- screening of a new documentary "Exodus 1947"
- NAT NADLER, one of the original crew of the Exodus
- PROFESSOR MEIR SCHWARTZ, an Israeli Haganah commander who accompanied survivors to Palestine
- several passengers of the Exodus now living in Canada

For a brochure of other programs during this community-wide event, call (416) 631-5689.
Email: pzilberman@feduja.org • Web Site: www.feduja.org

UJA FEDERATION

Coordinated by the Holocaust Remembrance Committee of UJA Federation of Greater Toronto

Editorials and Letters

The Canadian Jewish news

Publisher and Proprietor:
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital
Head Office:
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

The middle road

At a rare Vancouver-held meeting last week of the House of Commons finance committee, Finance Minister Paul Martin outlined the broad strokes of the government's financial and social policies for the short and near term. He pointed out that the federal operating deficit last year was just under $9 billion, the lowest deficit in two decades. Expects that deficit will be eliminated no later than next year. The question thus arises: What should the government do when the budget starts to show a surplus?

Our preferred course for the government is that it cleave to the middle road, that it reject the extremism of either side. It should not dedicate the "new" revenue exclusively to the elimination of the massive cumulative debt; nor should it ignore the cumulative debt in favor of restoring the much-beloved social programs of yesteryear. The government should establish annual targets and explain them to the Canadian people, both for the extent of that year's inroad into the cumulative deficit and for the length of the high road it will travel to reinvest funds for the sake of the young, the old and the most needy.

Malaysian malice

Every now and then a report appears on the wire services that seems left over from darker, less well-informed, more ignorant times. It leaps off the page.We read in disbelief and shake our heads. Such a report appeared last week out of Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

The economies of the southeast Asian countries along the western edge of the Pacific Rim are interrelated. The "giants" of the area – Japan, Hong Kong, South Korea, Singapore and Taiwan – influence the "lesser" economies of the area –Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia – by the inevitable industrial and commercial spillover that results from their proximity. In the last decade, an influx of foreign investment caused even the "lesser" economies to enjoy considerable growth. Of late, however, some of these countries, in particular Thailand, the Phillipines, Indonesia and Malaysia, have experienced economic difficulties. The Globe and Mail reported that the Malaysian currency, the ringgit, has lost as much as 30 percent of its value in recent weeks. Governments and international organizations are trying to understand why.

In that same Globe and Mail article, we were able to read the reasons for the sudden decline offered by the government of Malaysia: "We suspect that [the Jews] have an agenda, but we do not want to accuse. And incidentally, we are Muslims, and the Jews are not happy to see the Muslims progress. The Jews robbed the Palestinians of everything, but in Malaysia they could not do so, hence they do this, suppress the ringgit."

Reaching deep into the cesspool of bigotry, conspiracy and scapegoating, Malaysian Prime Minister Mahatir Mohamad brought out the old "protocols" as the explanation for his countries economic woes.

It was bad enough that he resorted to archetypical, brazen anti-Semitism, thus reviving offensive, age-old absurdities that seem to linger in the dank corners of our society like a festering virus. But his explanation also contained an ethno-religious dimension that is downright dangerous. By suggesting that the Jews may have "sabotaged" the Malaysian economy as part of an anti-Muslim agenda, his malice leapt to a more threatening level.

He immediately gave legitimacy to the Islamic fundamentalist's hatred of the Jew and of the Jewish state. And if the hatred is legitimate, so too, in the distorted, malevolent mind of the hater, must be the violence that regularly accompanies it. We hope that the people of Malaysia will reject their prime minister's economic theories, even as they reject him.

WISDOM OF THE AGES
"If you know you are going home, the trip is never too hard."
Chafetz Chaim

Dry Bones

IN ALGERIA WHERE THOUSANDS OF ARABS HAVE BEEN SLAUGHTERED IN AN ISLAMIC REIGN OF TERROR...
FOLKS MUST BE REALLY TICKED OFF BY THE WORLD'S INSISTENCE THAT THE BIG STORY...
...IS THE PLIGHT OF PALESTINIAN ARABS...
...WHO ARE FACED WITH JEWS MOVING INTO "THEIR" NEIGHBORHOODS!

This Week in Canadian Jewish History

October 12, 1937 the first issue of the Ottawa Jewish Bulletin was published. L.Harry Goldman was general secretary and Myer K. Epstein was managing editor. (Canadian Jewish Congress Archives)

Fears Congress losing its key role

There was a time when Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC) was the heart and soul of Canadian Jewry.

There was a time when CJC was front and centre in advertising the Jewish agenda; a time when Congress was the definition of "Jewish identity," Jewish "activism," indeed, all things Jewish. It was an inclusive family; not only could anyone join its family, its hand reached out to all, fostering a sense of belonging and shared concern.

We, the Jewish family, have hit on hard times. The soul struggles for relevance, even for a sense of its own identity. Where Congress once set the communal agenda, it now serves as the agenda. Activism is now measured by which agency can out-"press-release" its supposed competitors. And worst of all, instead of reaching out, it has become insular and withdrawn.

Who will care for the smaller communities that are struggling on the brink of spiritual and cultural oblivion? Who will champion the cause of Jewish youth in an era where financial considerations dominate the decision-making process? Who will make the case for those who cannot get a hearing on their own?

CJC once was and should again be the "voice of the people," the advocate of Amcha. And if those advocacy efforts have first to be directed at "consolidators and bean-counters," then so be it.

Any contribution I may have made came with a lot of support from Congress. But without Congress having reached out to me a decade earlier, I never would have stepped forward.

David Attis
Moncton, N.B.

Editor's Note: Mr. Attis is the winner of this year's Samuel Bronfman Award for service to the Jewish people.

No kudos for government on education

It is outrageous that Jewish institutions honor members of the government of Ontario, when the current government denies Jews certain fundamental rights provided to many.

It is estimated that thousands of young Jews are not afforded an opportunity for Jewish education, while many families in this community must endure the humiliation of asking for subsidies to fund the escalating cost of a Jewish education. As a community, such a gross inequity humiliates us all and we, including our leaders and institutions, should be outraged and act accordingly. Despite the fact that we all pay taxes, only francophones and Catholics of all lineages have the right to a publicly funded education in accordance with their particular values and needs. That is simply unjust and unfair!

Equity demands that what the government provides to any of its citizens must be made available to all of its citizens on an equal basis. This is the foundation of democratic societies everywhere, it seems, but not in Ontario.

The Ontario government could readily rectify this, but has chosen not to. And why should they? Institutions and members of the Jewish community continue to bestow upon them political benefits and favors, while at the same time avoiding the critical issues at hand: equity and Jewish continuity.

Wayne J. Levin
Toronto

Will war criminals die of old age?

Still another judge from the Federal Court of Canada has withdrawn from presiding over deportation proceedings involving three alleged Nazi war criminals. When one combines the incompetence of staff members in the Ministry of Justice, the tardiness of certain judges, the lack of appreciation of appropriate judicial conduct and the lack of political will to prosecute Nazi war criminals, it will be a miracle if one of these cases is ever heard on its merits.

Notwithstanding the criticism recently levelled by the Supreme Court of Canada on the chief justice of the Federal Court and the associate chief justice, neither appears to be in any danger of a judicial inquiry which might lead to a removal from office. Ted Thompson, former assistant deputy justice minister, has simply been transferred to another department with no loss of pay or job security. Former minister of justice Allan Rock again, notwithstanding, the criticism by the Supreme Court of Canada, is conveniently the minister of another portfolio and is no longer responsible to answer for transgressions within his ministry.

The lawyers defending the three accused Nazi war criminals are happy because their docket meters are running and, of course, the alleged Nazis are ecstatic with each and every delay, because eventually they will simply die of old age never having been confronted with the horrendous crimes of which they are accused.

When the definitive history of Canada's appalling record with regard to prosecuting Nazi war criminals is finally written, there should be two chapters entitled shame on the government and shame on the judiciary.

Bert Raphael
President
Jewish Civil Rights Educational Foundation of Canada

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures.

Perspectives

LaLa Solika 1820-1834

As retold to The CJN by Rabbi Yehiel W. Ben Ayon

A stone wall separated the two large whitewashed villas, their red tiled roofs crowning them above immaculate gardens, ever fragrant with flowers and citrus blossoms. This was the northern-most point of Africa: Tangier Morocco, in the 19th century.

The two girls' futures, it seemed, were destined from birth. Both were born into a life of the privilege of wealth and social standing. Ould was the daughter of Sidi Ladina one of the largest land owners of Tangier, from a powerful Muslim family, well connected to the royal court. Sol was the daughter of Haim Hatchwel, a proud merchant who had made his fortune importing teas from the far east, and coffee from Brazil. Even as Jews, he and his family were respected and recognized by the Muslims for their integrity and for their benevolence to their workers.

The true story of a young woman's courage

In spite of the differences in their homes and backgrounds, the girls were inseparable. From daybreak till dinner, the girls romped in the gardens and homes as blood sisters. One particular spot was their favorite, a vantage from which the African continent seemingly reached out for Europe. It was a terrace built on sheer rock in the back of the gardens, where they would sit for hours. From there, they would look across the Straight of Gibraltar to the Mediterranean and hear the waves crashing on the rock cliffs many feet below. Between the two, a bond of love and trust was gradually built up, day by day in these, the homes of their birth. Teenagers now, they would sit and talk and share and confide endlessly.

In those years, a girl of 13 was considered of marriageable age. Both were keenly aware of their standing, their social grace, their rare education and considerable wealth. In addition Sol was also extraordinarily beautiful. Her presence was magnetic. Whenever Sol entered a room, silence followed whispers and fuss. This confused Sol and public appearances became uncomfortable to the point where she loathed going out. Ould was always there. She, more than anyone else, listened and seemed to understand.

One particular morning found Sol in a deep gloom. Ould tenderly took her hand into hers and began: "There's something I have wanted to tell you. I think perhaps now is the right time. Please keep an open mind," she warned. "Your beauty and grace are far too great to be had by a commoner. A flawless pearl is destined on the Sultan's crown. Your beauty beckons you. Come with me to the cadi. He can help us. Embrace Islam and every door will swing open before you."

The intensity of Ould's words, the firmness of her hand struck Sol like a bolt of lightning in a cloudless sky. Beyond disbelief and dismay at someone in whom she had always confided, Sol stared into Ould's eyes. With neither sound nor gesture, she pulled back her hand and returned to the house.

It was later in the day that Don Haim Hatchwel heard loud voices in front of the villa. In the courtyard he found himself facing the cadi (Muslim chief of justice) and the pasha (governor) of Tangier. "In the name of Allah and his servant, his Majesty the king, we demand that you release the girl you are holding. Bring her at once and all will be well with you."

Don Hatchwel paled. He had several sons, but only one daughter; surely, they didn't mean Sol. Cautiously he contained himself. "What is this mistake all about? You are most welcome to my home. Please come in, do allow me to serve you some..." We have not come for tea," the cadi smugly interrupted, "but for the girl called Sol. It is our understanding that her desire is to follow the path of prophet Mohammed and embrace Islam. We wish to speak to her immediately."

Tensions were high; passersby and neighbors had gathered in the courtyard. Word had quickly gone out for the heads of the community. They perhaps could intervene. All eyes now seemed fixated on the long cascading stairs, for coming down, clutching her mother by the arm, was Sol. An aura of grace and dignity adorned her. The cadi's eyes widened as he proclaimed in the name of Allah, "We are here to accept you as our daughter and sister, as you yourself embrace us and the true light."

A quivering Sol responded, "Your most honorable Cadi, how humbled I am by this honor which you bestow upon your undeserving servant. I, however, love my family and my people. It is my sincere wish to remain with them. You would best be suited to find one truly worthy."

"Nonsense," said the cadi. "You will come with us; we know your true desire. Your message reached us just hours ago. Perhaps now you are shy before so many. Come, therefore, let us go now."

With that, he turned to leave. Muslim guards surrounded Sol and she was forced to follow. All stood motionless and watched, numb with fright. Walking out, Sol caught a glimpse of Ould. For a fleeting moment their eyes met. Ould dropped her gaze to the ground, unable to face the one whom she had so treacherously just betrayed.

Commotion and sorrow, and a good measure of panic, swept through the Jewish community. It was later learned that after Sol was taken away, she stood before a tribunal wherein she again maintained that she never wished to relinquish her faith. The outcome was a source of great humiliation to the authorities and to the people. Sol had chosen death instead of conversion. Beyond the ramifications for Sol's life, there also came into play the precarious balance of the two communities, Jews and Arabs, which always hung on a fine thread.

After two weeks of confinement and steady refusal, Sol was transferred to Fez the imperial city which was then the capital. Those two weeks had been a time of foreboding and general unrest. The king himself, Abdel Rahman now summoned Sol.

In Fez, the situation took on an ugly national character. For there, in the court of the king, the same steadfast refusal and denial to convert took place. The king, in order to mollify the situation did not accept Sol's refusal. He instructed instead that a series of individuals should approach Sol and argue the case for Islam. None of them had any success. It was rumored that the king's son, the crown prince himself, stole into her chamber and beseeched her to reconsider and indeed to simply feign the faith of Islam in order to prevent the waste of one so beautiful. This also she was not prepared to do.

Wishing to close this ugly chapter, the king now allowed the proceedings for her execution to begin, on the grounds that she had been contemptuous. She was given three days to reflect before her public beheading.

Calls to prayer and fasting went out. The Jews were terror stricken, as this could have potentially led to much bloodshed and plundering of their communities.

On the morning of the execution, the rabbi of Fez, Rebbi Raphael, was allowed to see her. Throngs of men, women and children had already filled the public square when Sol ascended the platform. Fanatic and frenzied curses were heaped on her.

Tranquil amid the torrents of shouts and spittle, she lay her cheek on the block. As the executioner separated her magnificent braids, not a ruffle could be heard. Her neck was first scored by his heavy iron sword. Now bleeding, with her eyes wide to the sky, she cried out Shema Yisrael, HaShem Elokenu, HaShem Echad. With a thud, it was all over.

Later, the Jews scattered coins on the ground in order to distract the onlookers, and quickly they stole Sol's remains. She lies buried in the Jewish cemetery of Fez, where her tomb is a destination of Jewish pilgrimage till this day. Sol's sacrifice has inspired youth. Many girls and women carry her name; plays, poetry and art have all been produced, eternally memorializing this important episode in Jewish Moroccan history.

This tragedy took place in the year 5594, Hebrew letters which when rearranged spell out tzadeket, feminine for pious. Sol's name thereafter was referred to as Sol Hatzadika, Sol the Pious.

Rabbi Ben Ayon is the spiritual leader of Magen David Sephardic Congregation in Toronto. (During the preparation of this article, Rabbi Ben Ayon was injured in an automobile accident. He extends gratitude and thanks for the good wishes he received. CJN Editor)

Sol's execution is depicted in this painting by Alfred De Hodeneck called The torment of the Jews.

Sol's tomb in Fez and the inscription to her memory.

Opinions

Honoring the Righteous

Flora Heinrich, the youngest of 10 children, was 8 years old when Adolf Hitler's men marched through Frankfurt on the night of Nov. 9, 1938, destroying everything in their path. Her mother, fearing things would only get worse, put her and two of her brothers on a train for the Netherlands. It was the last time she saw her mother alive.

By Viva Press in Halifax

Underground organizations moved her from place to place until she eventually ended up in the town of Kootstertille in the Netherlands. She remained there for the rest of the war years. And it was there she met the Hamstras – Jacob (then 30 years old) and Klasiena (then 37).

The Hamstras risked their lives to hide Heinrich and other Jews from the Nazi regime. And their good intentions were not forgotten.

On Jan. 14, 1996, Heinrich, now Flora Vogel-Lirtzman, sent a letter to Yad Vashem asking it to formally recognize the Hamstras as Righteous Gentiles. On Nov. 5, 1997, in Toronto, during this year's 17th annual Holocaust Education Week, Israel's Holocaust commemoration institute Yad Vashem will present the Hamstras' children and grandchildren with such a medal.

One of the people attending this ceremony will be 23-year-old Jennifer Klasiena Oussoren, a granddaughter of Jacob and Klasiena Hamstra, and one of my roommates in Halifax.

When Jennifer first heard her grandparents were going to be recognized as Righteous Among the Nations, I was getting ready for a trip to Israel.

Jennifer's parents, Fran and Keith, who live in Orangeville, Ont., asked me to take a photo at Yad Vashem in Jerusalem of the plaque honoring the Hamstras. At the time, none of us knew whether the plaque would be completed by the time I reached Israel in early August 1996. When I got there, the Hamstras' story was still being investigated. All that was available for documentation was a file card with the Hamstras' names on it. I took a photograph of the card.

Again this past summer when I was in Israel, I was asked to check up on the process of Vogel-Lirtzman's request. Again, the plaque wasn't ready. The file card was still there.

Now the process has been completed and Jacob and Klasiena Hamstra are to have a plaque in Jerusalem.

Jennifer is humbled by their story, their bravery, the risks they took. She is honored to be the Hamstras' grandchild.

The ceremony honoring the Hamstras for their bravery during the war years will also be a sort of family reunion. Vogel-Lirtzman lived in the Hamstra home like a member of the family. She took on the name Truus Dejong, and told the story that she had fled Holland's south, which was being ravaged by flood waters.

Vogel-Lirtzman lost contact with the Hamstras when they emigrated to Canada after the war. However, through The Hidden Children organization she again found them and managed to visit Jacob and Klasiena before they died. At the ceremony in Toronto, Vogel-Lirtzman will reunite with her adoptive family.

The medal and plaque are symbols of the Hamstras' courage. Jennifer and her family hope to go to Jerusalem one day to see the plaque at Yad Vashem. In the meantime, I look forward to my next trip to Israel. The plaque is ready, and it has to be photographed.

A new 'Jewish renaissance'

Over the past several years, the organized North American Jewish community has forced the issue of Jewish continuity to the centre stage of its priority list. This has obviously been done to combat the petrifying intermarriage statistics that have emerged from Canadian and American Jewish communities. The attempt at damage control has had many interesting traits and ramifications.

By Justin Korda in Jerusalem

The Jewish student community, which has been the subject of this campaign, has definitely become aware of the realities of intermarriage and the threat it poses to the continuation of Jewish life. In this sense, Jewish organizations have been very successful in making the issue known within their targeted population. Unfortunately, it is not the simple awareness of this issue among Jewish students today that is going to keep us from intermarrying and abandoning our religion. This fact too is starting to be realized within the Jewish community and it is this realization that has prompted many philanthropists and Jewish student organizations, such as Hillel, to instead begin striving towards the establishment of a new "Jewish renaissance."

This shift in the means being used to combat the threatening situation in which North American Jewry finds itself is one that is worth examining. The idea of establishing a Jewish renaissance is to package Jewish life as an attractive and exciting deal that students would not want to pass up because it satisfies their own personal and modern needs. This is opposed to coercing Jewish students into being Jewish out of guilt for abandoning the religion of their grandparents and betraying their heritage.

As my rabbi pointed out this Rosh Hashanah, Jewish students will not tolerate being Jewish out of guilt – and rightfully so. However, it can now be said that there is a definite light shining into the dark period of harsh statistics. Although the light may be a small glimmer, it is steadily growing. It is a reflection of the symptoms that have been surfacing, symptoms that do hint at the emergence of a Jewish renaissance. But what exactly does this new catch phrase mean? In answering this question, I wish to make it clear that I am conveying my personal perception.

Judaism an all encompassing religion

Harvard law professor Alan Dershowitz stated in a recent speech in Montreal that knowledgeable argumentation, conflicting views and acceptance of one another is the essence of our Jewish tradition. This theory, coupled with the idea that Judaism is an all encompassing religion (meaning that whatever interest one may have, one can find a source in our long heritage that addresses this call), has created the breeding ground for the sprouting renaissance.

I have been hearing about many new Jewish student activities being organized at a grassroots level by Jewish students who are interested in expressing and channelling their own interests within Judaism, or at least among Jews.

Alternative prayer services for the High Holy Days have been created here this year. These services satisfy the spiritual needs of many modern Jewish students by offering services that differ from those in the large traditional synagogue atmospheres. In learning the meaning of the prayers and their practical applications in a relaxed and comfortable environment, the students have been able to absorb the "bottom line" message of the High Holy Days.

Environmentalism, a new and needed fad in the world today, is also being expressed through Jewish activity. A vast array of Jewish environmental organizations have been established in the past several years. These organizations pride themselves on the fact that the Bible clearly states that protection for the environment is an essential quality of Jewish life.

Other initiatives that point to a resurgence of Jewish pride among my peers include Jewish fraternity councils, Jewish feminist organizations, l'chaim societies (use your imaginations for this one) and even a Jewish Lollapalooza-type tour.

Although high intermarriage rates and assimilation may still be a grave problem facing our community, it is important to stress that assimilation is not a cause, it is a result. And if this result is to be remedied, its cause must be stopped. Having Jewish students taking pride in their religion because they see the relevance and guidance that it provides for their personal and every day lives is the surest way to preserve the continuation of Jewish life. With that said, I hope this sprouting renaissance grows into a monstrous rejuvenation.

Two sides of Farrakhan

To those who follow the meandering paths of Louis Farrakhan, minister of the Nation of Islam, it is apparent that this charismatic personage has two distinct sides to him.

By Rabbi Gunther Plaut in Toronto

On the one hand, there is an emphasis on important family and moral values, which he preaches with great insistence, and on the other, there is bitter resentment of Caucasians, amongst whom the Jews are his special target. We seem to be the ultimate scapegoat in the panoply of those who do or have done the blacks injustice – notwithstanding our stalwart support of black causes and our incessant fight for racial equality.

I have often been asked by puzzled friends just how these two opposite sides of his preachments can be reconciled. Frankly, I do not know. But it is instructive to know just what he says when Jews and others who are usually condemned are omitted from the speech.

I recently read the report of a respected colleague who was present at an American university town, where Farrakhan was the chief speaker at a banquet. My colleague believes that he was invited because his being Jewish was not known to the sponsors of the banquet, and he came away with an interesting experience. The following are some excerpts from his report of the event:

"I did not know what Minister Farrakhan, as he prefers to be called, would say, but I assumed it would be a reasonably frank sharing of his views, in comparison with a public offering at an auditorium. These were, after all, his selected followers, in a very closed and secure session.

"Farrakhan addressed four topics. He began with the subject of the police. His emphasis was on cooperation with police, support for their thankless and dangerous work and the need to help and respect them.

"On the subject of Jews and Christians, his message was respect and admiration, with emphasis on Islam's recognition of the sacred Torah and the Gospels. When Jews and Christians act poorly, they are betraying their own religious teachings. Not by our Islamic standards, but by their own divine standards must they be judged.

"On the subject of America's sickness, he began with the degradation of religion. Jews and Muslims have holy days. Christians have mere holidays, days off from work. And in America it is worse, for these are mere occasions for getting drunk. Santa Claus has driven Christ from the hearts of children at Christmas. The nation that can send a toy to Mars cannot fix a social problem.

"His major thrust was on social responsibility: the black community has failed its women, its families and its youth. Atonement through action, respect and encouragement was his message.

"He spoke of other things but the repeated burden of his message was responsibility, respect and atonement. His language was inclusive and his comments reflected thoughtful, statesmanlike religious leadership."

I only wish that Minister Farrakhan would always talk along these lines and make these ideals his chief objective and the subject of his appeals. So far, alas, that has not been to case.

The Kirshner File

France comes to terms with its past

With the war crimes trial of Maurice Papon now under way, France has taken yet another reluctant step in coming to grips with its past.

The three-month trial, which began on Oct. 8, a week after the French Roman Catholic church officially apologized for its silence during the Holocaust, will focus on a period of French history — the Vichy era — which virtually all postwar governments tried to sweep under the rug.

Vichy was established in 1940 after France was defeated by Germany. Without much prodding from Hitler, the new regime, led by Marshal Henri-Philippe Petain, promulgated a series of draconian anti-Semitic laws and regulations which disenfranchised the Jewish community and eventually set the stage for the deportation of 75,000 Jews.

Contrary to a much-cherished myth, most of the deportees, mainly of foreign origin, were rounded up by French policemen. Papon played an integral role in this methodical process. He is charged with having sent 1,560 Jews from Bordeaux to Drancy, a camp near Paris. From there, they were shipped by train to Auschwitz, from which they did not return.

Papon, now 87, is the first high Vichy official and only the second Frenchman to be charged with committing "crimes against humanity."

Yet he is not the first French collaborator to be called to account. With the liberation of France in 1944, the wrath of the nation fell on those accused of treason. In an extra-judicial purge, some 49,000 collaborators received prison sentences of varying lengths, 1,500 were executed and 25,000 were stripped of their civic rights. In all, upwards of 150,000 French men and women were penalized for collaborating with the enemy.

Papon, however, eluded his fate, claiming he had been a member of the resistance. And he got away with it. During Charles de Gaulle's presidency, he held top positions in the Paris police force, and in 1980, President Valery Giscard D'Estaing, a conservative, appointed him to his cabinet as minister of the budget.

In 1981, a French Jewish historian, who had been persecuted during Vichy times, found Papon's signature on incriminating documents relating to the arrest and deportation of Jews. But Papon was not immediately brought to justice, having been protected by none other than the president of France, Francois Mitterrand, a socialist who had been a Vichy civil servant himself.

Mitterrand, an admirer of Israel whose chief of staff was a Jew and whose friends included the Holocaust survivor and novelist Elie Wiesel, typified France's postwar attitude of denial toward Vichy. "We cannot," he declared, "live forever on memories and bitterness." To Mitterrand and a generation of like-minded French politicians, the "old wounds" were best left unexamined in the interests of preserving "civil peace."

France, unlike Germany, did not submit itself to national soul-searching. In this spirit of expediency, the state-owned television station refused to screen The Sorrow and the Pity, Marcel Ophul's classic documentary expose of Vichy, and school texts claimed that the Germans, rather than the French, had rounded up local Jews.

The spell of this self-induced amnesia, which lasted well into the 1990s, was broken by Mitterrand's successor, Jacques Chirac. Two years ago, in an extraordinary admission, he formally apologized for Vichy France's role in the Final Solution.

But well before Chirac's belated acknowledgement, France had launched legal proceedings against Paul Touvier — a minor functionary who had ordered the execution of seven Jews — and Klaus Barbie, a German Gestapo officer who had persecuted Jews on French soil.

For a fuller appreciation of Vichy France, I suggest you read two recently published books: Vichy Law and the Holocaust in France (New York University Press) by Richard Weisberg and France Under The Germans (The New Press) by Philippe Burrin.

Weisberg, a professor of constitutional law at Yeshiva University, shows how the French legal system conveniently accommodated itself to the Nazi order. As Weisberg points out, Vichy's anti-Semitic decrees were so thorough that the Germans largely adopted them for use in the occupied zone. In short, Vichy Law and the Holocaust in France is a solidly researched, devastating critique which also raises disturbing questions about the ease with which democratic legal systems can be subverted. In this respect, it is a cautionary tale of exceeding importance.

In France Under the Germans, Burrin, a Swiss scholar, studies the complicity of French citizens, industry, banks, police forces and institutions with the Nazis. His carefully reasoned work is based on heretofore untapped sources, including the archives of major business enterprises, industrial organizations and of the Vichy police.

Burrin, a professor of history at the Graduate Institute of International Studies in Geneva, describes the opposition to the German occupation, but concedes that it was no more than marginal. For the vast majority, he observes, "there seemed no alternative but to submit, bow before the triumphant force and adjust one's behavior accordingly." With that as his thesis, Burrin makes his case, and it is singularly persuasive.

In addition to these works, I recommend Vichy France and the Jews, which was published in 1981 and written by Michael Marrus and Robert Paxton. It is still the last word on the subject.

The ultimate outsider

Aleksander Wat was an archetypal European intellectual, a poet and a champion of democracy. Although his influence was felt in Polish literary and political circles, little has been published about him, either in Poland or elsewhere. With the publication of Tomas Venclova's Aleksander Wat: Life and Art of an Inconoclast (Yale University Press), this omission has been remedied.

Born in Warsaw in 1900, Wat was the son of Mendel Michal Chwat, a traditional Polish Jew. For inexplicable reasons, he did not see fit to pass on his Judaic knowledge to his son. Vencloca, a professor of Russian and East European literature at Yale University, suggests that Wat grew up "without any real grounding in Judaism."

Venclova claims that Wat's Jewish identity was never in conflict with his Polish consciousness. Yet in 1953, six years before his emigration from Poland, Wat and his wife were baptized as Roman Catholics. Wat's conversion was nothing if not strange, since he had been a zealous Communist until his imprisonment in the Soviet Union in the 1940s.

Wat was uncomfortable with the church's record of anti-Semitism. Yet he was drawn to Christianity's teachings, and in his imagination, Christ personified Jewishness.

In the final analysis, Wat's baptism did not lead to spiritual contentment. He was tormented by the wave of state anti-Semitism which washed over Poland in 1967, the year he died. It was an event which upset the balance between his Jewishness and Polishness and burned into his soul, Venclova writes. So it came as no surprise that his last wish was to be buried in a Christian cemetery in Israel, a request which remained unfulfilled.

Venclova's succinct appraisal of Wat is that he was an alien – "a Jew among Christians, a Christian among Jews." In short, he was the ultimate outsider.

Bathurst Jewish Centre

The Bathurst Jewish Centre is looking for a Director of Camping Services

The Director of Camping Services is a full time year round position responsible for the development and implementation of winter, break and summer day camps.

He/she is to serve as a member of the JBC's professional staff team and function in accordance with the Centre's mission and objectives.

Interested applicants should have camp administration experience and a University Degree in an area of Human Services.

He/she should possess exceptional organizational and leadership skills. Knowledge and an understanding of the operations of a Jewish Community Centre are an asset.

Salary to commensurate with position and experience.

Please reply in writing no later than November 1, 1997 to:

Camp Director Selection Committee
Bathurst Jewish Centre
4588 Bathurst Street
North York, Ontario M2R 1W6

Beth Tzedec Congregation בית צדק
1700 Bathurst Street

A Yiddisher Tog - א יידישער טאג

A Day of Yiddish

Sunday, November 2, 1997

10:00 a.m. The Florence & Harry Topper Annual Memorial Lecture

presents

Memory as Stone

a lecture in Yiddish illustrated with slides co-sponsored by the Jewish Theological Seminary

featuring

DR. DAVID G. ROSKIES

Professor of Jewish Literature, JewishTheological Seminary of America
Editor-in-Chief, Library of Yiddish Classics

12:00 noon - lunch available - $5.00 - Call 416-781-3514, ext. 66 to reserve

12:30 p.m. The Beth Tzedec Max & Beatrice Wolfe Library

presents

The Shtetl - A Portrait

a magical afternoon of Yiddish poetry, music, humour and song that will delight you with its depth, power and joy. Visit the world, lost but not forgotten.

featuring

SIMCHA SIMCHOVITCH

acclaimed award-winning Yiddish poet

and

NAOMI BELL

folksinger, pianist, lecturer

Everyone Welcome* ——— *Admission Free

Jewish Life

RRSP MEMBER CIPF RRIF
ONT. NFLD. HQ
Government Guaranteed Securities
6.90%*
minimum $40,000 portfolio
ask about our monthly pay
CALL 416-512-2511 • JOHN KITCHEN
*RATES SUBJECT TO CHANGE • 04/18
TD EVERGREEN WEALTH MANAGEMENT
A Division of TD Securities Inc. A Subsidiary of TD Bank

BRIDAL REGISTRY
■ Great Gift Ideas for Bridesmaids & Ushers
■ Paintings ■ Sculpture
■ Art Glass ■ Ceramics ■ Jewelry
■ Personalized Gifts
■ Gift Certificates
The Shayne Gallery 25 YEARS IN BUSINESS
5471 Royalmount Ave., T.M.R.
(514) 739-1701 (Tues. to Sat.)

Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Synagogue
100 Elder Street • Downsview, Ont.• M3H 5G7
(416) 633-3838

invites the community to participate in a TRIBUTE
to
RABBI DR. JOSEPH KELMAN
in recognition of 38 years of dedicated service to the Synagogue and the community

SHABBAT SERVICES
November 1
Guest Sermon - Dr. David G. Roskies
Professor at Jewish Theological Seminary
Guest Cantor - Moshe Schulhof

SIYUM HATORAH
Sunday, November 2
9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Events include
Parade
Torah Completion Ceremony with Sofer Rabbi Yechezkel Shapiro
Torah Fest
Tours of "The Mission" Mural
Special Dedication Ceremony conducted by Rabbi Barry Schneider
with Cantor Moshe Schulhof

ONEG SHABBAT
Friday, November 7 at 8:00 p.m. honouring
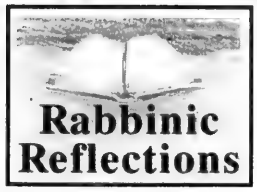
Ruth Kelman
Tickets required (free)- available at Shul Office

SHABBAT SERVICES
November 8
Guest Sermon - Rabbi Erwin Schild
Rabbi Emeritus Adath Israel Congregation

TRIBUTE DINNER
Sunday, November 9
By Invitation
SOLD OUT



Exploring the Shabbat

By RABBI GARY KARLIN

Every year, we complete our reading of the Torah on Simchat Torah, the day of Rejoicing in Torah. And every year, we begin again, with Parshat Bereshit (Genesis), on Simchat Torah. It is a never-ending cycle that expresses the teaching of the scholar, Ben Bag-Bag, two millennia ago, "hafoch bah, v'hafoch bah, dechola bah – turn it over and over, for you will find everything in it. Scrutinize it; grow old and grey in it; do not depart from it. There is no better portion in life than it." (Pirkei Avot 5)

The completion of the reading of the Torah, immediately followed by its resumption at the beginning, has a parallel in another cycle in Parshat Bereshit: the culmination of the week of creation with the creation of Shabbat, followed by the second week. Shabbat, too, has a completion and a beginning: our avoidance of melachah (usually translated as "work," but closer in meaning to "creative mastery over the world") at the week's ending, and specific Shabbat behaviors, such as saying kiddush on Friday night or eating three special meals. The former are the "negative" mitzvot, since they prohibit, while the latter are often called "positive" mitzvot, as they prescribe behaviors that sanctify the day.

In the Talmud Berachot (20a), we learn the teaching of Rava, who said that the Torah, in the enumeration of the Ten Commandments in Exodus, chapter 20, tells us to "remember" the Sabbath; in their repetition in Deuteronomy, chapter 5, the Torah says to "observe" the Sabbath. The "positive remembrances" are given as a package with the "negative observances."

These two types of Shabbat commandments, the "positive" prescriptions and the "negative" prohibitions, taken together, add up to a complete day of spiritual rest and renewal. Neither is objectively more important than the other. Shabbat helps us keep our lives in perspective by altering our routine, both the things we do and the things we avoid.

We cannot afford to focus exclusively on the prohibitions of Shabbat: "Don't do this, don't do that." The result of this would be a joyless Shabbat. Similarly, we cannot focus only on the prescriptions: Shabbat is candlelighting, shul, havdalah. This would result in a Shabbat lacking in spiritual power. We must seek to create for ourselves and for those with whom we make our lives, as Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel put it, an "island in time," in which we have the space to pursue the menuchah, the spiritual refreshment, of Shabbat.

While we must not hold ourselves or others to an artificial level of consistency, the oftenmentioned "all or nothing" approach to Jewish living, we also should understand the beauty of the Shabbat, with the richness of its varied observances.

Jews from all the religious movements are coming to a holistic view of Shabbat, within our own differing philosophies of Judaism, even as we encourage people to take the individual building-blocks of Shabbat into their lives, one piece at a time. In this way, we can reach towards higher levels of kedushah, holiness, in our lives.

Rabbi Gary Karlin is spiritual leader of Beth Jacob Synagogue, Hamilton, Ont.

Hebrew subscription lists

By ZE'EV GLICENSTEIN

Have you tried finding your ancestors or relatives from the Old Country in the so-called prenumerantn or Hebrew subscription lists that were often included in rabbinic and Judaic scholarly works printed in the last few hundred years?

In olden times and even down to the present day, an author would ask potential readers to purchase copies of their books long in advance of publication. Funds collected helped the author live while writing the book.

Contributors, listed by town, were gratefully acknowledged in print when the book was published.

To be sure, Hebrew subscription lists are a much-scattered genealogical resource. Berl Kagan (1912-1993), a Lithuanian-born scholar who came to New York in 1950, spent years working on a mysterious project in the vast Hebraic libraries of the YIVO Institute for Jewish Research and the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. Then, in 1975, Ktav Publishing House printed his remarkable work, Hebrew Subscription Lists, With an Index to 8,767 Jewish Communities in Europe and North Africa.

Thanks to Kagan, who also edited several yizkor books and a bibliographical reference work on Jewish writers, genealogical researchers can find thousands of prenumerantn indexed in one source. If your ancestors came from the town of Brody, for instance, Kagan's book will indicate which books have subscription lists that include the names of people from Brody.

Then it's a matter of locating the original works, reading the lists and, with a bit of luck, finding the names of your relatives.

Making use of Hebrew subscriptions lists can be a bit tricky.

You've got to be able to read some Hebrew to use Kagan's book and the actual lists. Sometimes the lists are printed in Rashi script, a combination of Hebrew and Aramaic textual characters that can be difficult for novices to decipher. Since many of the books involved are old and rare, they can be found only in specialized libraries such as the New York Public Library, Hebrew Union College or the above-mentioned YIVO or Jewish Theological Seminary of America. (Along with Harvard, Yale and a few other big North American universities, the University of Toronto's Robarts Library has an impressive collection of Judaic works.)

Finding a name on a subscription list can be useful in several ways. First, it lets you know that the person was alive and living in a certain place at a certain time. Second, the type of book supported may reveal something about that person's lifestyle and beliefs. Third, many books printed in the first half of the 19th century listed donors according to their old-style Hebrew patronymic names (i.e. Meir ben David), thereby showing two generations at once.

True, those researchers who succeed in making significant discoveries in Hebrew subscription lists are in the minority. However, given the general dearth of source material for eastern European and Russian Jewish communities from the last century, subscription lists can be an important additional source of documentation of our ancestors.

* * *

Census Loophole: Canada's national censuses are taken every decade, but are protected by privacy laws for 90 years. However, a special census taken in 1940 is exempted from the usual privacy requirements and can be supplied (for a fee) for any former resident who has been dead at least 20 years.

Conducted during wartime, the National Registration of 1940 was an attempt to assess Canada's military potential in case the need arose for sudden mobilization. Adult residents were asked about their age, health, military experience, national background and— of particular value to genealogists — their own and their parents' place of birth by town and country.

To apply, write to Statistics Canada, Census Pension Searches Unit, c/o Roger Marcotte, BIE-34 Jean Talon, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa ON K1A 0T6.

Provide the name and address (in 1940) of the subject, as well as some proof of death such as an obituary or photo of a tombstone. The fee, inclusive of taxes, is $51.75 in Nfld., N.S. and N.B., $51.28 in Que., $51.30 in Man, and $48.15 everywhere else in Canada. Your cheque or money order will be returned if the search proves unsuccessful.

On body piercing...

By RABBI CHAIM STEINMETZ

Body piercing is not a new phenomenon; the Bible makes many references to nose rings and earrings. In recent years, though, this ancient art has experienced a revival and is moving into the mainstream.

Comparative Law

What does Halachah have to say about body piercing? (Space limitations preclude discussing other halachic issues such as honoring parents, concerns about the safety of certain piercing procedures or a discussion of tattooing, which is specifically prohibited by the Bible).

Jewish law prohibits one from hitting and wounding others. The Talmud (Baba Kama 91b) records a debate about whether a person is permitted to wound himself; the great majority of medieval authorities accept the opinion that self-wounding is forbidden. (Shulchan Aruch Choshen Mishpat 420:31).

At first glance, this Halachah is perplexing. It seems reasonable to prohibit someone from injuring another person when he protests, because that is an obvious breach of one's fundamental rights.

However, why would Halachah prohibit self-wounding? Rabbi S.Z. Zevin answers (L'Or HaHalacha pages 318-338; cf. Minchat Hinnuch 48) that man is not the master of his own body. God is the one who grants life and maintains full rights to the human body. "The Lord gives and the Lord takes" is not a mere phrase, but rather a statement of fact: God owns man's body. Consequently, self-inflicted wounds and suicide are forbidden because the human body belongs to God, not man.

The prohibition against self-wounding would seem to preclude body piercing, but it isn't that simple. Not all wounding is prohibited. Even though a doctor will wound the patient in the course of an operation, it is permitted since wounding for therapeutic purposes is allowed. In evaluating the permissibility of body piercing, we must ask whether wounding for reasons of beauty is allowed.

This question is dealt with by several contemporary rabbis in their responsa. (The context of these responsa is with regard to the permissibility of cosmetic surgery which evokes similar issues.) Rabbi Eliezer Waldenberg (Tzitz Eliezer 11:41) writes that wounding is allowed for therapeutic purposes because the importance of health considerations outweigh any prohibitions against wounding.

Wounding for the sake of beauty, though, is far less important and would not be allowed. In addition, it is improper to tamper with the body God gave us; it is God's will for us to look the way we do naturally. Obviously, Rabbi Waldenberg would disallow body piercing as well. (Perhaps he would allow pierced ears because there are several opinions that the prohibition of self wounding does not apply when there is no bleeding.)

Others take a different approach. Rabbi Moshe Feinstein (Iggrot Moshe Choshen Mishpat 2:65-66) argues that the reason wounding is allowed for surgery and other therapeutic purposes is because it is intended to benefit the person being wounded. He notes that Maimonides (Chovel U'Mazik 5:1) writes that the prohibition against wounding is only when it is intended to pain and degrade the body. Wounding for the purposes of beauty (e.g., plastic surgery) would be allowed.

Clearly, Halachah takes any wounding of the body, even self-inflicted, very seriously. It sees the body as belonging to God, and would prohibit any masochistic behavior. There is even a debate regarding whether wounding is allowed for the sake of beauty. If body piercing is done solely for the sake of beauty, there would be a debate about its permissibility. However, if it is done to associate with a subculture of masochism or self-destruction, it would definitely violate the prohibition against wounding.

A time of endings and beginnings

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

The holiday season is almost over, but there is still time for one last journey on the Jewish Highway as we prepare for the festival of Shemini Atzeret/Simchat Torah [http://bible.ort.org/bible/htm/numbers/torah/29352936.htm].

Although this holiday is often mistakenly seen as a part of Sukkot, it is actually a separate festival in its own right with its own unique traditions. For a good introduction to the two-day celebrations (one day in Israel) see Rabbi Ari Mark Cartun's essay at [http://hillel.stanford.edu/Being_Jewish/SimhatTorah.html].

Of course, the holiday is best known as the time of endings and beginnings.We complete the annual reading of the Torah and then immediately restart at Bereshit [http://www.jer1.co.il/education/education/ohr/tw/5755/devarim/vzoshab.htm].

According to Succoth and the Festival Cycle, Shemini Atzeret/Simchat Torah is unique because it represents two climaxes in the Jewish Calendar [http://www.internet.org.il/succos.htm]. It comes at the end of the holiday season that begins in Elul and continues through Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur and Sukkot. And it also marks the end of the harvest season which began with Passover in the spring and continued through Shavuot.

One of the key prayers of Shemini Atzeret is the annual prayer for rain: "For a blessing, not for a curse. For life, not for death. For abundance, not for famine." Dr. Ismar Schorsch suggests that although this is a thanksgiving festival celebrated at the end of an ample harvest, there is an "undertone of anxiety. Will this year's rainfall be large enough to guarantee a repetition of last year's bounty?" [http://www.jtsa.edu/pubs/parashah/5756/sukkot.html].

Still on the subject of Israel and rain, to see how your prayers for precipitation are doing, you can check out the weather in Jerusalem at [http://cnn.com/WEATHER/html/JerusalemIsrael.html] or [http://www.msnbc.com/news/wea_front.asp?faa=jrs]. And one final rain note: it seems that the El Niño weather pattern which is wreaking havoc around the world may actually be helping Israel [http://www.eurekalert.org/E-lert/current/public_releases/deposit/elnino2.html]. Dr. Dan Yakir of the Weizmann Institute of Science [http://www.weizmann.ac.il/] found that the appearance of El Niño in the Pacific has usually corresponded to above-average rainfall in Israel. And the absence of El Niño saw drier seasons or even droughts in Israel. And that prompted Dr. Yakir to ask "Could Pharaoh's seven bad years have reflected an ancient period devoid of El Niño events?"

Well, that's a question I guess we can ponder until...Passover. Until then, chag samayach.

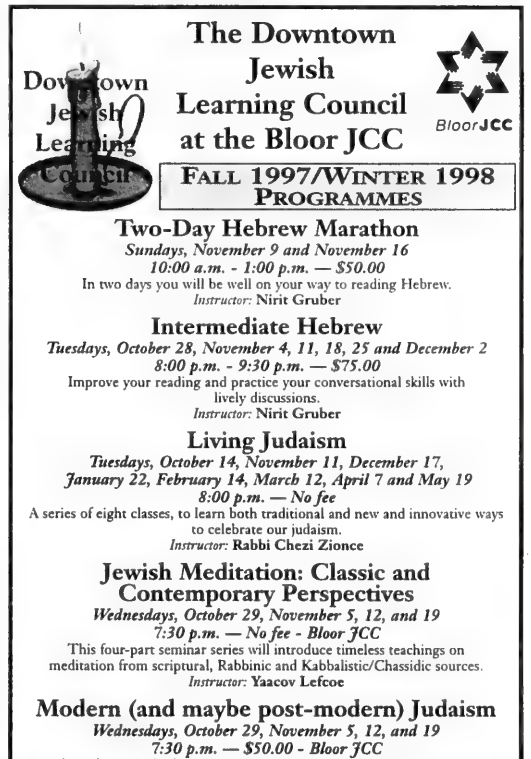
* * *

I recently asked for recommendations about your favorite sites. Joy Mendleson of Halifax e-mailed me about her own site with several hundred Jewish links [http://www.chebucto.ns.ca/~ab522/jewish.html]. And Montreal's Rabbi Zalmen Marozov is founder of TorahFax's Torah on the Spot for People on the Go. Updated daily since 1992, it's quite an achievement [http://www.NetAxis.qc.ca:80/torahfax/].

Do you have a favorite Jewish site (or even your own) that deserves recognition? E-mail me at the address below.

* * *

Mark Mietkiewicz is a television producer in Toronto with an interest in the Internet. He can be reached at [mdm@inforamp.net].



The Downtown
Jewish Learning Council
at the Bloor JCC
BloorJCC
FALL 1997/WINTER 1998
PROGRAMMES
Two-Day Hebrew Marathon
Sundays, November 9 and November 16
10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. — $50.00
In two days you will be well on your way to reading Hebrew.
Instructor: Nirit Gruber
Intermediate Hebrew
Tuesdays, October 28, November 4, 11, 18, 25 and December 2
8:00 p.m. - 9:30 p.m. — $75.00
Improve your reading and practice your conversational skills with lively discussions.
Instructor: Nirit Gruber
Living Judaism
Tuesdays, October 14, November 11, December 17,
January 22, February 14, March 12, April 7 and May 19
8:00 p.m. — No fee
A series of eight classes, to learn both traditional and new and innovative ways to celebrate our judaism.
Instructor: Rabbi Chezi Zionce
Jewish Meditation: Classic and Contemporary Perspectives
Wednesdays, October 29, November 5, 12, and 19
7:30 p.m. — No fee - Bloor JCC
This four-part seminar series will introduce timeless teachings on meditation from scriptural, Rabbinic and Kabbalistic/Chassidic sources.
Instructor: Yaacov Lefcoe
Modern (and maybe post-modern) Judaism
Wednesdays, October 29, November 5, 12, and 19
7:30 p.m. — $50.00 - Bloor JCC
How do Reform, Orthodox, Conservative and Reconstructionist Judaism differ?
Instructor: Dr. Stuart Schoenfeld
The West is in the East
Thursdays, November 13 and 20 — $10.00 - Bloor JCC
Two thought provoking evenings filled with stories and exotic images gathered from encounters with Jewish travellers in Nepal and India.
Visual artist and Jewish educator Azriel Cohen
To Register:
In person — Bloor JCC - 750 Spadina Ave.
By Phone — 924-6211 By Fax — 924-0442
United Way Member Agency
UJA Federation

Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto

We mourn the passing of

Irving Green ז"ל

Loving husband, father and grandfather.
Longtime supporter and Friend.

We extend sincere sympathy and condolences to the family on the loss of a most special human being.

המקום ינחם אתכם בתוך שאר אבלי ציון וירושלים

Sheldon Goodman, President
Dr. Harry Krakowsky, Chairman of the Board

Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto

THE ISRAEL UNITY TRIP

DECEMBER 1-8, 1997

"If not now, when?"

Join a delegation of Rabbis and congregants from all affiliations on this exceptional journey to Jerusalem to demonstrate our eternal ties with Israel

*Meet Israel's leading personalities

Only $1499 Cdn.* (+ tax)

*Includes return flight, accommodation at deluxe Sheraton Plaza, breakfast and dinner daily, 4 days of sightseeing, several exciting events and transfers.

Extensions available • Space is extremely limited.

Call Ehud Telem today!

PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
905-886-5610 OUT OF TOWN CALL 1-800-294-1663

STEELES MEMORIAL CHAPEL

TORONTO'S JEWISH COMMUNITY CHAPEL

Over 69 years of Traditional Service

We've made our name on kindness and compassion

There are moments in everyone's life when the death of a loved one brings grief and confusion. The compassionate staff at Steeles Memorial Chapel understands the turmoil which you experience in such difficult times.

We always take the extra time to provide a helping hand, that warm-hearted guidance and that abundance of sympathy combined with strength to bring you and your family through times of distress.

350 Steeles Avenue West,
Thornhill, Ont. L4J 1A1
Tel: (905) 881-6003 • (416) 733-2000

Brundibar set for second season

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

From left: Daniel Abrams, John-Michael Erlendson, Helena Fine and Ariella Fine at a rehearsal of Brundibar.

TORONTO — Teaching the Holocaust to young children can be a challenge, but children's entertainer and educator Helena Fine sees it as a mission.

Fine, the producer of Brundibar, a children's opera written in1938 by Czech-Jewish composer Hans Krasa who was a concentration camp inmate, is in rehearsal at B'nai Brith Canada headquarters.

Magical Basket Productions (Fine's company), in cooperation with B'nai Brith Canada and The Holocaust Education and Memorial Centre of Toronto, will be presenting the children's opera for its second season.

"I believe that the most effective way of reaching children is through live performances," says Fine. "From being in [the play] and experiencing it, and by watching their peers perform, the children become more involved and feel part of the experience."

In addition, she says, "There are very few organizations where children can experience the Jewish arts and at the same time be involved in a professionally staged opera."

Brundibar will be performed by 40 children ages eight to 14, at the Holocaust Memorial Centre in the Lipa Green Building from Nov. 9 to 13, with six performances targeted for school children and two for the community.

The opera will also be performed at Temple Sinai on Nov. 11 for senior Hebrew school classes and on Nov. 23 it will be performed for supplementary school students. Other performances will take place at the Downtown Jewish Community Centre and the opera will tour public schools where there will be student interaction.

Development money has been provided by a grant from UJA Federation's action committee for Jewish continuity.

The opera was first performed in the Jewish orphanage in Prague and then when the children were taken to Theresienstadt with the composer and director, it was performed more than 50 times, in an attempt to inspire and relieve the fear and pain of those around them.

The Nazis portrayed Theresienstadt as a "resort town," Fine says, and Brundibar was performed for the International Red Cross in 1944, as a showcase of how well the Jews were treated.

"They were deceived," she says, "and shortly after, [the performers] were all transported to Auschwitz where most of them, as well as the composer and director, died.

Brundibar, Fine says, is an allegorical tale of two children, Pepicek and Aninka, who go to buy milk for their sick mother. Seeing that the local organ grinder Brundibar earns money with his music, the children sing a gentle song but earn no money. With the help of friends and animals that come to life, they perform and earn some money. Wicked Brundibar steals their money, but after a chase, they are victorious.

Fine says the opera is a fairy tale, where evil is defeated by goodness and cooperation, and the final victory march is a symbol of the victory over the oppressor.

The program will also include readings of poems by Czech/Jewish writer Norbert Fryd and composer Karel Reiner, who wrote poems for children in the orphanage. They both survived Terezin and other camps and became prominent in their fields in Czechoslovakia.

Their works, titled The Flower Horse, a collection of poems set to music, were created to teach the children the alphabet and other educational material, as there were no books or pencils in the camp.

Pnina Zilberman, director of the Holocaust Remembrance Committee says that with Fine's artistic direction and understanding of the arts, "I am confident that students from across Ontario will benefit from seeing this highly professional production."

Fine noted that in the spring, she and other artists will go to public, Catholic and Hebrew schools, where they will work with children teaching the Holocaust through Brundibar.

YEDIDAY SHABBAT
FRIENDS OF THE SABBATH

Spend an evening of Shabbat Songs and Stories
with
Yitzhak Buxbaum
renowned storyteller and author
& disciple of Shlomo Carlebach z'l who will speak on the topic of:

Sitting in the Shade of the Tree of Life:
The Garden of Eden as a Lesson in Self Awareness

Yitzhak Buxbaum is this year's featured guest at Toronto's Annual Jewish Storytelling Festival. A gifted teacher and weaver of tales, Yitzhak Buxbaum is author of several books including: Jewish Spiritual Practices, Storytelling & Spirituality in Judaism, & An Open Heart: The Mystic Path of Loving People.

At the evening, traditional Shabbat melodies will be interspersed with Hasidic & contemporary tales told by Yitzhak Buxbaum.

Date: Friday, October 24
Time: 8:00 p.m.
Place: 645 Castlefield Ave.
(at intersection of Bathurst and Castlefield)
Information: 416-488-0688

Yediday Shabbat is a humanistic and egalitarian havurah that gathers on designated Friday evenings to celebrate Shabbat. The group is a beneficiary of a grant from the Action Committee for Jewish Continuity, Jewish Federation of Greater Toronto.

UJA FEDERATION
UNITED JEWISH APPEAL • JEWISH FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO

TOWARD RESPECT AND UNDERSTANDING

An open letter to the Jewish community

Dear Community Member:

The continuing debate about religious conversion legislation in Israel has, once again, created the potential for dissension among Jews in our community and across North America.

UJA Federation is dismayed by the prospect of this issue diverting us from the common cause of social justice, alleviating Jewish distress around the world and furthering the rescue of Jews in danger.

At the same time, UJA Federation reaffirms its opposition to any legislation which would change the current situation regarding recognition of conversions in Israel and urges all parties to seek a compromise solution. We share the anguish of Jews who feel disenfranchised by recent events.

With all our differences, we are still one people, bound by a sense of responsibility for each other. Our community's worldwide reputation for compassion and adherence to Jewish values has been built on a foundation of mutual respect and support. Our achievements will only endure if we continue to treat every single Jew with dignity. These are the principles through which UJA Federation conducts the community's work.

Through the Jewish Agency for Israel, UJA Federation is devoted to fostering understanding among all streams of Judaism. This year, the Agency will be spending over $14 million on programs promoting tolerance, religious diversity and unity.

UJA Federation believes that what we have in common counts for more than what sets us apart. Our response to issues threatening Jewish unity must be based on understanding, respect and a reinvigorated commitment to Jews who so desperately need our help.

We welcome all community members to work with us in overcoming our challenges.

Joseph M. Steiner

Joseph Steiner
President

4600 Bathurst Street, Toronto, Ontario M2R 3V2
Telephone (416) 635-2883 Toll Free 1-888-635-2424 www.feduja.org Fax (416) 635-9565

Greater Toronto Area

Teen donates bar mitzvah cash to help CHAT

By BARBARA SILVERSTEIN
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — When Eli Cadesky earmarked a portion of his bar mitzvah money to tzedakah, he decided to give a sizable donation to Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto (CHAT).

The Grade 8 Associated Hebrew School student said that he chose CHAT because he hoped that the money might in some way help a disadvantaged Jewish child attend the school.

"My mom and uncles went to CHAT, my sister is a student there and I too wish to go there. I always had a Jewish education and it helped me a lot. I hope that my donation will enable another kid to go [to CHAT] too."

He said he had been inspired to give to a Jewish educational institution three weeks before his March bar mitzvah, after studying teachings that emphasized the importance of Jewish education.

"The Torah teaches us that a child with no knowledge of the Torah is like a child whose father has buried him alive. If a child grows up in a house with no Jewish education he is called a captured child, because he has no idea why he is Jewish, like a soldier that is captured and has no clue of what is going on in the outside world."

Although he is a good student and enjoys school Eli is also very keen on golf and basketball, he said. Although most of his bar mitzvah money went into the bank, he splurged on a new set of golf clubs, he added.

Eli Cadesky

He credited his grandfather Abe Cadesky — he bought Eli his first set of golf clubs — with teaching him to play golf.

Eli said he plans to study economics, math and business at CHAT with a long-term plan of going into his grandfather, Eli Mucher's, luggage business.

Eli's mother Dianne Cadesky said she was proud of her son and pleased that he chose to give the money to CHAT. "We encouraged him to donate to some Jewish cause."

Rabbi Marvin Pachino, head master at CHAT said "I think it's an extremely generous and wonderful gesture. Hopefully it will set a precedent for many other people celebrating b'nai mitzvot. It's a recognition of tzedakah."

Happy 90th Birthday
Kate Witkin
from your family

THE COUNTER-MISSIONARY SURVIVAL SEMINAR

DON'T ALLOW MISSIONARIES TO THREATEN JEWISH CONTINUITY

Christian Missionaries spend millions of dollars annually in a worldwide effort to convert Jews. In response, JEWS FOR JUDAISM is offering its highly acclaimed counter-missionary seminar. It will give you the knowledge and tools necessary to respond confidently to any missionary who challenges your Jewish beliefs.

SEMINAR CONTENTS INCLUDE:
- Missionary Tactics • Real Messiah
- The Obsession to Convert Jews
- Christian "Prooftexts" • Videos
- Sin, Salvation and Atonement
- Eternal Torah vs. New Testament
- Former Jew for Jesus Speaks Out

SEMINAR LECTURER:
- Rabbi Michael Skobac
(consultant to JEWS FOR JUDAISM)

WED. OCT. 29 AT 8:00PM
for 8 consecutive weeks
JEWS FOR JUDAISM CENTRE
800 Steeles Ave. W. (at Bathurst)
COST: $36 (includes materials)
To register call: (416) 789-2851
Jews for Judaism

CONTEMPORARY SINGLES NETWORK INTERNATIONAL
IS PLEASED TO PRESENT A
Calendar Of Events For SINGLES DANCE PARTIES
(Non Denominational)
OCTOBER 1997
MARK THESE DATES ON YOUR CALENDAR

GOLDEN OLDIES DANCE*
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25TH
Toronto Marriott Hotel
Eaton Centre
525 Bay Street
*Admission $15.

HALLOWEEN WEEKEND*
Admission $12.* Each Party or $20. For Both
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31ST
Inn on the Park Hotel
1100 Eglinton Avenue East
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1ST
Regal Constellation Hotel
900 Dixon Road

OUR PARTIES FEATURE:
Admission $10.00
Great Music, Top DJ
Elegant Ballrooms
Big Dance Floors
CASH PRIZES
DOOR & SPOT PRIZES
GRAND PRIZE DRAW

For Complete Details
Call: (416) 410-6010

SINGLES EVENTS
Singles Events is an advertising feature of The Canadian Jewish News
Deadline is Wednesday, 4pm, 8 days preceding issue date.
For rates or to place an ad, call:
Lisa at (416) 391-1836
The CJN encourages readers to direct any queries they may have on an upcoming event to the event's organizers.

Co-ed Volleyball. MTS Presents...It's 5th Annual Co-ed Volleyball Season.Recreational & Compet. Div. For info. call: 416-222-7111.

BETH DAVID B'NAI ISRAEL BETH AM Jewish Single Parents' Group (30-50) Presents...Relationships - The Do's & Dont's, by Dr. Eric Grief, Thurs., Oct. 30th, 8:30 pm.,$5.00 Fee, at Beth David Synagogue, 55 Yeomans Rd. 633-5500.

HIKING IN THE CITY: Explore the hiking trails of the Rouge River, see beautif.Fall colours.Meet new & interesting people,Sun. Oct. 26.The Adventure Network: 905-707-0147

ICRF Movie Preview & Party. On Nov. 5th, 7pm. See The Wings of the Dove @ York Cinema, with movie trivia & prizes. Followed by a GREAT party @ Shark City, 9pm. More prizes, & great D.J. Tickets: $20., by Oct. 31, $25. @ door, $15. party only! Limited space.487-5246

Jewish Singles Registry. Over 1475 registered. Averaging an engagement every 4 wks. 483-4151.

Looking for a hot date? How about Jan. 11-18/98. Join the Jewish Singles Registry's singles trip to Club Med, Cancun, Mexico. All inclusive, $1398. Only 4 spaces left! Call 416-483-4151.

GUESS WHO'S LOOKING IN THE CJN CLASSIFIEDS NOW?
CALL LISA AT (416) 391-1836
FOR ADVERTISING RATES
CJN Classifieds Really Work!

Yiddish Corner

ייִדיש ווינקל

רעדאגירט פון ש. ליפשיץ

דער אַשכנז-פעסטיוואַל אין טאָראָנטאָ

פון ש. סימכאָוויטש

אין משך פון אַכט טעג, פון 25-סטן אויגוסט ביזן 1-טן סעפטעמבער, איז אַפגעהאַלטן געוואָרן בייַ אונדז אין שטאָט דער צווייטער „אַשכנז-פעסטיוואַל פון דער ניי־יִדישער קולטור", אין האַרבּאָראָנט־צענטער, ביים בּרעג פון אָנטעריאָ־טייך (לעיק אָנטעריאָ). דער איניציאַטיוואַל, ווי דער פּריערדיקער, איז צושטאַנד געקומען אַ דאַנק דער איניציאַטיוו פון אַ גרופּע יונגע לײַבהאָבער פון יִדישער קולטור־יִרושה פון מזרח־אייראָפּע, בּראש מיטן 37־יאָריקן מוזיקער דוד בוכבינדער. דער פעסטיוואַל האָט אַרויסגערופן גרויס אינטערעס אין שטאָט און איז געווען גוט פאַ־פולאָירידט אין דער פּרעסע, אויף דער ראַדיאָ און אין אַ ספּע־ציעלער קאָלידפולער בראָשור, וואָס האָט געזאָלט באַשריבן אַלע פּראָגראַמען אין משך פון די אַכט טעג.

אַ באַזונדער בכבודיק אָרט צווישן די פאַרשיידנאַרטיקע פּראָג־ראַמען האָט פאַרנומען דאָס יִדישע פאָלקסלידּ, געזונגען פון די באַקאַנטע אַמעריקאַנער און קאַנאַדער זינגער: עידיטן קופער, טעריסאַ טאָווא, לענקא ליכטענבערג און גלאָריאַ וואַלענטין. אַ ספּעציעלער קאָנצערט ווען די שאָפונגען פון דער ניי־יאָרקער יִדישער דיכטערין אָן קאָמפּאָזיטאָרין ביילע שעכטער־גאָטעסמאַן, מיט דער באָטיליקונג פון די זינגערינס בעטי־ען קאַל, סטעלאַ וואָקער א.א., איז אָפּגעהאַלטן געוואָרן אין מאָלסאָן אַמפיטע־אָטער. דער טאָראָנטער יִדישער פאָלקס־כאָר האָט געגעבן אַ קאָנצערט פון יִדישע לידער, דיריגירט פון באַקאַנטן קאָמפּאָזיטאָר אָן דיריגענט זלמן מלאָטעק. די יִדישע דיכטערין אָן פּראָפעסאָר־שרי־בערין, חוה ראָזענפאַרב פון מאָנטרעאַל, איז אויפגעטראָטן בייַ אַ ספּעציעלן אָוונט, מיט פאָרלייענונגען פון אירע ווערק אין יִדיש אָן ענגליש. אויך דער שרייבער פון די שורות האָט פאָרגעלייענט עטלעכע לידער פון זיין נייעם בוך „פונקען אין זשאַר".

וואָס שייך יִדישער מחזק איז דער אויסוואָל געווען אַ גאָר ריכער. עס זיינען פאָרגעקומען אויפטריטן פון קלעזמער אָן פּידל־קאַפּעליעס פון די פאָראייניקטע שטאָטן, קאַנאַדע אָן מדינת ישראל. אַ באַזונדערן רושם האָט געמאַכט די „דיבוק" פּאָרשטע־לונג פון עקספּערימענטאַלן פּוילישן טעאַטער „ווערשאַלן" פון ביאַליסטאָק, וואָס האָט געגעבן דריי פאָרשטעלונגען פון אַנסקי־ס קלאַסישער דראַמע אין ענגליש אָן איינע אין פּויליש. עס זיינען אויך געווען אַרויסטריטן פון יִדישן טעאַטער אין סאַן פראַנציסקאָ („דער לעצטער יִדישער פאַעט"), ניו־יאָרק („די מעמואַרן פון גליקל פון האַמעלן") אָן נאָך.

אַ ריי יִדישע פילמען זיינען געווען געוואָרן: „איך ווייל זיין אַ באַרדער", פ.ש. 1937; „בעני קרינק", ראָטן־פאַרבאַנד 1926; „פּרי־לעכע קבצנים", פּוילן 1937; „עי טיקל אין דזשי האַרט", דיטש־לאַנד 1996, אָן נאָך. אויסער די טעאַטער־ און פילם־אימפּרעזעס זיינען אויך פאָרגעקומען אויפטריטן פון טאַנץ־גרופּעס, לעקציעס אָן פאַנעלן וועגן יִדישער קוסט, הומאָר, ווי אויך באַזונדערע קינדער־פּראָגראַמען. אין משך פון די לעצטע טעג פון פעסטיוואַל איז אינגאַרדנט געוואָרן אַ מאַרק פון יִדישע ביכער, טאַשמעס אָן פּלאַטן, ווי אויך חפצים אָן אַנדערע אַנדענק־זאַכן. די גאַנצע צייט זיינען אָפן געווען אויסשטעלונגען מיט מאָלעריי־ען אָן פאַטאָ־בילדער פון קאַנאַדער יִדישע קינסטלער אָן פאַטאָגראָפן.

איינע פון די הויכפונקטן פון פעסטיוואַל איז געווען דער אַשכנז־פּאַראַד, וואָס, דעם 31־סטן אויגוסט, מיטן אָנטייל פון הונדערטער קינדער אָן דערוואַקסענע, וואָס האָבן זיך חדשים־לאַנג געגרייט צו דער אימפּרעזע. דער אָפיציעלער שלוס פון פעסטי־וואַל איז פאָרגעקומען מאָנטיק, ליבאַר־דעי פאָרנאַכט, וועו אויף דער בינע פון גרויסן מאָלסאָן אַמפיטעאַטער זיינען אַרויסגעקומען אַלע אַרטיסטן אָן אָנפירער פון פעסטיוואַל אָן מיט גענאַנג בציבור פאָרעגדיקט דעם גרויסן קולטור יום־טוב.

דער קאָלעקטיוואַר אָנשטרענג פון הונדערטער יִדישע אַרטיסטן, יונגע ענטוזיאַסטן וואָלונטירן איז אַ בולטער אויסדרוק פון אַ טיפער גאָרונג בייַ אַ טייל פון יונגן דור צו דערקענען אָן שעפּן פון די קוואָלן פון דער יִדישער קולטור־יִרושה איז מזרח־אייראָפּע. עס באַווייזט אויך דעם גרויסן שפּעראינציאַל, וואָס מיר פאָרמאַגן, די טאַלאַנטן אויף אַלע געביטן פון קוסט אָן קולטור, מיט וועלכע אונדזער יִדישע יוגנט איז געבענטשט. דאָרפן מיר זיי באַגריסן אין דערמוטיקן צו פאָרטיפן זייערע יִדישע קענטעניסן, איינגעשלאָסן יִדיש־לשון און די ריכע יִדישע ליטעראָטור.

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA

Jewish National Fund of Toronto

is proud to invite the Toronto Community to the

1997 Negev Dinner Tribute

in honour of

Edward Bronfman

in recognition of excellence in communal leadership and dedication to Israel

Sunday, December 7, 1997 at the Sheraton Centre, Toronto

Reception: 5:00 p.m. Dinner: 6:00 p.m.

Tickets to the Dinner are $107 per person with a minimum contribution of $360 (for which a tax receipt will be issued)

DINNER CHAIRMAN
DONALD CARR, Q.C.

CAMPAIGN CO-CHAIRMEN
ARNOLD L. CADER
DONALD CARR, Q.C.

A special project will be initiated on the occasion of Toronto's 1997 Negev Dinner Tribute saluting Edward Bronfman. Proceeds from the Dinner will be used for land reclamation and project development at Kibbutz Neot Semadar, in the southern Arava region of the Negev Desert. The young pioneers of Neot Semadar require our assistance to help ensure economic stability and a bright future for them and their children in a very barren area of the wilderness known as the Arava, just north of Eilat.

In saluting Edward Bronfman, the Jewish National Fund will assist Neot Semadar in reclaiming hundreds of dunams of land for agricultural use, help develop an Artists Centre, develop roads to the Kibbutz and within the Kibbutz, and assist the construction of a fifty thousand cubic metre reservoir. A resort area to promote tourism will also be developed. This undertaking will surely be a source of great pride to all who will have participated in this very worthy project. Together, we can all help to make the desert green.

For further information contact
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF TORONTO
4600 Bathurst Street, Suite 238
North York, Ont. M2R 3V3
PHONE: (416) 638-7200 FAX: (416) 638-7345

Turning 69, 70 or 71 this year?

You must convert your RRSP into a RRIF or an Annuity by DECEMBER 31. Allow me to structure a plan to meet your specific needs.

H. AB NISKER C.A.
Over 45 years as a Financial Advisor
(905) 479-6670
COSBURN, GRIFFITHS & BRANDHAM FINANCIAL SERVICES INC.

Beth Tikvah Synagogue
מה נשמע?

ISRAEL & THE JEWISH WORLD
6 Saturday Nights 6 Expert Facilitators

So you think the world (especially as it relates to Israel) is in a mess. You read the papers, have stacks of magazines on your coffee table and still don't understand why the movers and shakers don't act the way you think they should. Come out to share and air your views at Beth Tikvah's Current Events Discussion Series.

Date	Facilitator
Nov. 1	Prof. David Goldberg	Director of Research & Education, Foundation for Middle East Studies
Nov. 22	Mordechai Ben-Dat	Editor - The Canadian Jewish News
Dec. 13	Moshe Ronen	President Canadian Jewish Congress, (Ont.)
Jan. 10	Genya Intrator	Social Activist
Jan. 31	Yehudi Kinar	Consul General of Israel
Feb. 21	Rabbi Moshe Stern	Rabbi of Shaarei Tefillah Synagogue

All programs begin at 7:00 p.m.
(416) 221-3433

NCSY teen volunteers in Ukraine

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

Rachel Mechanic, centre, and Jessica Mishali of Florida are seen at camp with their 14-year-old translator Naftali, a native of Kharkov.

TORONTO — Rachel Mechanic travelled to Kharkov, Ukraine this summer to teach children at a Jewish camp; by the end of her three-week stint, over a dozen campers had adopted her Hebrew name as their own.

Mechanic, 18, was the only Canadian among a group of 29 National Conference of Synagogue Youth (NCSY) students to take part in NCSY's JOLT (Jewish Overseas Leadership Training) program. The other high school students, with the exception of one from Mexico, were from the United States. They also visited Poland and London, England.

Their task was "to teach everything there was to know about Judaism in three weeks," said Mechanic. (In addition to the JOLT participants, 15 Israeli staffers taught the high school-age campers.)

"Each night would be a different chag. We had a Pesach seder one night, we had a mock wedding, Shabbat candlelighting [and] a Purim carnival." A pajama party was the springboard for teaching the Shema. Teaching Tefillah and Chumash through young translators, Mechanic learned that "a language barrier really isn't a barrier."

A graduate of the Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto and a member of Shaarei Shomayim Congregation, Mechanic is now a first-year student at York University and plans to apply to its Jewish teacher education program.

The Kharkov summer camp, co-sponsored by the Orthodox Union and Israel's Yeshivat Sha'alvim, opened in the early 1990s.

Mechanic's experience there was very different from camps Shalom and Moshava, where she spent five summer sessions and one session respectively.

This summer, her camp day started early in the morning and continued until the early hours of the next morning as she and her peers planned the next day's lessons after the children's bedtime.

Camp activities included arts and crafts, sports, swimming and canoeing in a leaky canoe, Mechanic said.

The 135 Ukrainian Jewish children at the camp were like children anywhere, she recalled. "They were great. We loved them."

The children in turn thought the NCSYers were "like kings. Most of us had more spending money than their parents would make in a year." She insisted she wasn't exaggerating.

Campers were housed in two three-storey buildings, with staff in the same building as the high school-age students.

Did she miss Canada? "You have no idea!" was Mechanic's heartfelt reply, as she recalled intermittent electricity, a dearth of hot water for showers and a preponderance of second-hand smoke – but she'd still like to go back.

Camp lessons emphasized fun, but there was a lot of Jewish content and Mechanic noted the campers "had to want it." Pre-camp interviews screened out those who didn't.

From the sound of it, they couldn't get enough. "A lot of the boys were having a bar mitzvah or a bris [subject to parental approval]. One boy who was there for a week and had returned home, heard the mohel was there and had his mother drive six hours so he could have a bris."

NCSYers gave as many male campers as they could, donated kippot, tzitzit and tefillin. Some of the volunteers gave up their own belongings so the campers could have them.

The girls were given the opportunity to adopt Hebrew names.

Volunteers advised them to choose a name from the Tanach or after someone they know. A number of them wanted to know Mechanic's Hebrew name. "Now there are about 15 girls walking around with the name Rachel Marmel in the Ukraine."

If the Canadian Rachel Marmel gets her wish, she will return to the Ukraine to work with Jewish children again.

Morning:
Children's Storytelling Concert
10:30 - 12:00 noon

✶ Yitzhak Buxbaum
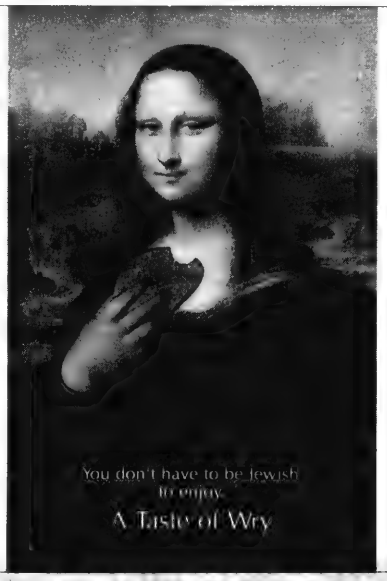
"Mystic Teachings Mystic Tales"
10:00 - 12:00 noon

Afternoon:
Adult and Family Stories with over 20 Storytellers
1:00 - 5:00

Evening:
Storytelling Cabaret
7:30 - 9:30

Morning, Afternoon, & Evening sessions:
$5 each



The 6th Annual
Jewish Storytelling Festival

North York Central Library
5120 Yonge St.

Sunday
October 26, 1997

For further information call: (416) 440-1330

Sponsored by the North York Public Library and Jewish Storytelling Arts, with financial support from the Ontario Arts Council, & the Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto

✶A MAJOR EVENT

"Mystic Teachings, Mystic Tales"

A Morning with Yitzhak Buxbaum

YITZHAK BUXBAUM IS A MAGGID (A TEACHER / STORYTELLER), WITH SMICHA FROM SHLOMO CARLEBACH ZT'L. HE IS THE AUTHOR OF 'JEWISH SPIRITUAL PRACTICES', CONSIDERED BY MANY TO BE THE FINEST GUIDE TO PRACTICAL SPIRITUALITY IN OUR TIME.

North York Central Library
5120 Yonge Street

Sunday October 26, 1997
10:00 a.m. - Noon

Admission $5.00

440-1330 699-8914

Greater Toronto Area

Solel to celebrate 25th anniversary

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO —The idea for Congregation Solel was born at a Passover seder in Mississauga in 1973. Today, celebrating its 25th anniversary year, it has nearly 300 families hailing from Dundas to Thornhill.

When Solel held its first Shabbat service in what was once a monastery and a girls' boarding school, it conferred on Mississauga the distinction of being the first city in Canada to have a Reform congregation as its only synagogue.

Members celebrated recently by walking nearly two miles from the original location to the new building bearing a sefer Torah, one of 1,564 rescued from the Nazis in Czechoslovakia, donated to the congregation by Rabbi Lawrence Englander and his wife, Cheryl.

Though some of its letters have faded and thus it is considered unsuitable for religious services, the sefer Torah is housed in a new cabinet in the congregation's foyer and Rabbi Englander feels it has "come home" to a Jewish family.

The 49-year-old guitar playing rabbi led Solel's first service 25 years ago as a student rabbi. By coincidence, the rabbi and his wife are observing their own 25th wedding anniversary this year.

Rabbi Englander, son of Ruth and the late Norman Englander, learned to play guitar in the folk music scene of the '60s. He is the embodiment of the innovative spirit of the sprawling city of Mississauga, which has grown to more than half a million people.

His guitar playing and singing are a hallmark of the Temple, which has hosted more than 400 bar and bat mitzvahs.

A highlight of the anniversary celebration was the planting of a flowering almond tree at the temple by Rev. Harry Oussoren and Rev. Kathy Toivanen of Erin Mills United Church.

"They picked that tree because it is the first to bloom in the spring in Israel," Rabbi Englander said.

Greetings were brought by Rev. Victor Shepherd of Streetsville United Church and Elaine Goldberg, both active in the Holocaust Remembrance Committee.

The guest lecturer in residence at the Nov. 7 and 8 weekend will be Rabbi Ellen Nemhauser of the Union of Hebrew American Congregations in Philadelphia, a native of Missisauga and former student of Rabbi Englander's. She was married at Congregation Solel.

CONGREGATION DARCHEI NOAM PRESENTS MUSIC OF JEWISH INSPIRATION

Jacques Israelievitch

Concertmaster of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra

violin

Accompanist: Stephanie Sebastian, Piano

Don't miss this captivating performance showcasing the works of Glick, Ellstein, Lavry, Wieniawski and Bloch

Monday, November 3 1997
8:00p.m.

LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE
4588 BATHURST STREET,
NORTH YORK
FREE PARKING

TICKETS: $25.00 PER PERSON INCLUDES COMPLIMENTARY dessert BAR
RESERVED SEATING

Silent Auction begins at 7:00p.m.

TICKETS:
ISRAEL'S, MASADA JUDAICA AND
DARCHEI NOAM SYNAGOGUE OFFICE,
(416) 638-4783

YOU'LL SEE THE SAVINGS AISLE AFTER AISLE

Now Save More By Miles

Now Earn AIR MILES® travel miles for FREE* travel and more at The Savings Stores. It's easy as 1-2-3!!!

*1 Carry the Card *2 Show the Card *3 Earn Free Rewards

For every $20 you spend You'll receive one Travel Mile® and every week bonus travel miles will be available on hundreds of items.

SIGN UP TODAY!

SEE STORE FOR MORE DETAILS

AIR MILES Travel and More

CHAI KOSHER
Fresh Chicken Leg Quarters
Now! 1.79 lb 3.95 kg

GLATT KOSHER CAP REMOVED
Fresh Prime Rib Roasts or Steaks
Now! 7.49 lb 16.51 kg

GLATT KOSHER
Fresh Minced Veal
Now! 6.49 lb 14.31 kg

KOSHER
Aaron's Best Chicken Wieners
Now! 3.99 450 g pkg

SMOKED OR COOKED
Aaron's Best Turkey Breast
Now! 8.59 lb 18.93 kg

Fresh Seafood SUBJECT TO AVAILABILITY

FRESH, FARM RAISED, SKINLESS
Boneless Atlantic Salmon Fillets
Now! 3.88 170 g portion

Fresh Haddock Fillets
Now! 6.88 lb 1.52 100 g

More Savings Now!

...on all of your Grocery Needs

SELECTED VARIETIES INCLUDING
Rippin' Good Chocolate Chip Cookies
300 g - 450 g pkg
Now! 1.69

ASSORTED FLAVOURS
Ceres Fruit Juice
1 L tetra carton
Now! 1.99

Billy Bee Liquid Honey 500 g jar
Now! 1.99

SELECTED VARIETIES
Goodman's Soup Mix 5 - 6 oz pkg
Now! .87

REGULAR OR UNSALTED
Rok Snackers 300 g pkg
Now! 1.69

POP-INS
Puff Pastry Dough 1 lb pkg
Now! 1.49

The Savings Stores PRICES EFFECTIVE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS UNTIL SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1997

save a centre FOOD MARKET 600 SHEPPARD AVE., W. DOWNSVIEW 2760 BATHURST ST., TORONTO

We Save You TIME, MONEY and HASSLES!

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA
JNF
Send a traditional greeting for any occasion.....
Say It With Trees!
(416) 638-7200

What's New

By Miriam Herman

CANADIAN SOCIETY FOR YAD VASHEM
has moved to:
534 Lawrence Ave. W.
North York, Ont.
M6A 1A2
Tel: 416-785-1333
Fax: 416-785-4536

DEADLINE REMINDER

What's New and About People deadlines: Monday, Oct. 27, is deadline for Nov. 6 issue and Monday, Nov. 3, is deadline for Nov. 13. I receive calls and sort my mail on deadline days only. Phone 391-1836, fax 391-0829.

Saturday, Oct. 25

DARCHEI NOAM MOVIES

Congregation Darchei Noam's double-header, Louis Brunel's St. Simeon of the Desert and Lubavitch (a biography of the Rebbe). Havdalah 7 p.m. followed by the movies, pot-luck dessert, discussion.

Sunday, Oct. 26

THE HOLOCAUST

One day seminar, Teaching the Holocaust in a Christian Context, organized by Christian-Jewish Dialogue of Toronto (CJDT) in cooperation with the Holocaust Education Committee of the Jewish Federation of Greater Toronto, at Lipa Green Building. Keynote speaker Rev. Canon Peter Gratton, a former chair of the Holocaust Remembrance Committee of CJDT. Participants include Harold Troper, Bernie Farber, Stephen Bloom, Margaret Wells. 691-4560.

PERFORMING FOR UN DAY

The Ensemble Singers of the Toronto Jewish Folk Choir perform in the Rotunda of Metro Hall at 3 p.m., in a ceremony commemorating the 52nd anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

AN EVENING OF JAZZ

Etobicoke study branch, national Council of Jewish Women presents An Evening of Jazz featuring the Harvey Seigel Band, 7:30 p.m., performance 8 p.m., Council House, 4700 Bathurst St. Wine and dessert served. $20. 633-5100.

JEWISH STORYTELLING

Jewish Storytelling Arts annual Jewish Storytelling Festival, A taste of Wry, North York Central Library, 10 a.m. author Yitzhak Buxbaum Mystic Teachings – Mystic Tales; 10:30 a.m. Children's concert, Rich Glauber, Leslie Robbins; afternoon stories by Vida Hellman, Sheldon Oberman, Leslie Robbins, Helen Porter; swapping ground 5:30 p.m.; evening cabaret. Sandra Whiteley 461-0597 or Alec Gelcer 699-8914.

POLISH JEWISH CULTURE

Yiddishe Kultur Geselschaft presents Ellen Kelman, lecturer of Yiddish, University of Toronto, speaking on Jewish Life and the Renewed Interest in Jewish Culture in Present-day Poland, 8 p.m., Workmen's Circle, 471 Lawrence Ave. W. $3.

TEA AND FASHIONS

Adath Israel Sisterhood presents Soft Elegance – a Tea and Fashion Show, 2 p.m. (doors open 1:30 p.m.). Tickets through synagogue office 635-5340.

FALL COOKING CLASS

Beth Tikvah Synagogue culinary class featuring recipes for warm comfort foods. 4 p.m. Pre-register, $20. 221-3433.

LIFE AFTER DEBT

Temple Sinai seminar, Life After Debt, with Frank Kisluk, Toronto trustee in bankruptcy, 10 a.m.

GRAND SOCIETY

GRAND Society support group for grandparents/seniors seeking access to their grandchildren, meets 1-4 p.m., North Toronto Memorial Community Centre, 200 Eglinton Ave. W. Speaker Leonard Rubenstein; topic Taking Charge of Your Life. $5 non-members.

Monday, Oct. 27

OSTEOPOROSIS

Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Sisterhood panel discussion on Osteoporosis with Dr. Jerry Tennenbaum, rheumatologist; Fran Berkoff, dietician; Marwen Thomley, physiotherapist. Moderator is Fran Wolfe. 8 p.m. 633-3838.

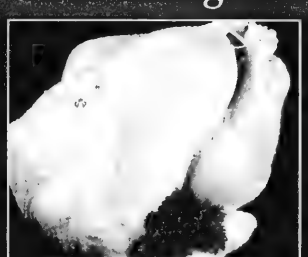
MEDICINE & HOLOCAUST

History of Medicine Program, University of Toronto seminar series, Medicine and the Holocaust, starts off with The Nuremberg Doctors' Trial: Errors and Omissions, Prof. Michael Marrus, 4-6 p.m., The Great Hall, 88 College St. 978-2124.

[Cont'd. on page 21]

IGA Kosher
IGA brings down the cost of keeping kosher

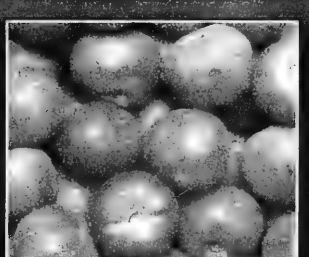
441 CLARK (AT HILDA)



Frozen Whole Turkeys
Kosher
3.95 kg
179 lb.

Cottonelle Bathroom Tissue
12 ROLL PKG.
299 each

Blue Bell Cream Cheese
From the Deli
.99 /100 g
449 lb.



Tomatoes
Product of U.S.A.,
No. 1 Grade, 1.74 kg
.79 lb.

Fresh or Frozen Whole Chickens
Kosher
4.61 kg
209 lb.

Tampres Grape Juice
Concord or Muscat
1.5 L btl.
399

Yossis Creamy Coleslaw
From the Deli
.35 /100 g
159 lb.

Eggplant
Product of U.S.A.
1.74 kg
.79 lb.

Single Chuck Steaks
Glatt Kosher Beef
9.90 kg
449 lb.

Streits Matzo Meal
12 oz. pkg.
149

Bilkes Challah
From The Bakery
625 g
199

Buffalo Buns
From the Bakery
pkg. of 4
239

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES. PRICES IN EFFECT SUNDAY, OCT. 19 UNTIL SATURDAY, OCT. 25, 1997.

What's New

[Cont'd. from page 20]

PILLAR OF FIRE

Israeli television documentary, Pillar of Fire, Chapter 1X, 7:30 p.m., Beth David B'nai Israel Beth Am Synagogue. 633-3988 Canadian Zionist Federation or 633-5500 Beth David.

CHAPTER SOLEIL, JWI

Femmes juives francophones: Il existe à Toronto depuis 21 ans un chapitre francophone de l'organisation Jewish Women International. À la prochaine réunion, la conférencière est la gynocologue Mme Dr Suzanne Bensaquen, qui nous parlera de: Hormones ou Non, Voilà la Question. 226-2190.

Tuesday, Oct. 28

PLANTING TULIP BULBS

In memory of the Jewish children who were victims of the Holocaust, students from Brown School and Deer Park Public School plant 800 Anne Frank Tulip Bulbs, 10 a.m., Amsterdam Park, Avenue Road and St. Clair. Assisting are Consul General of Israel Jehudi Kinar and Consul General of the Netherlands Paul W.A. Schellekens. Co-sponsored by Holocaust Remembrance Committee, UJA Federation of Greater Toronto and the Dutch/Canadian Association of Greater Toronto.

OSLO IN CRISIS

Canadian Friends of Peace Now second annual Yitzhak Rabin Memorial Lecture, Oslo in Crisis: Scenarios and Options, with Mark Rosenblum, political director of Americans for Peace Now, 7:30 p.m., Temple Sinai. 905-764-3997.

Wednesday, Oct. 29

HADASSAH BAZAAR

Hadassah-WIZO 73rd annual bazaar, new and used clothing, jewelry, books, toys, food court, auction, designer clothing, and lots more, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., Automotive Building, Exhibition Place.

LUNCH AND LEARN

Holy Blossom Temple Lunch and Learn in Retirement speaker, Dr. Leslie Goldenberg of the Walking Nobility Clinic, at noon. Bring lunch. $1.

EXPLORING JUDAISM

Rabbi Aaron Flanzraich discusses Do I Have to Live in Israel to be a Good Jew? The Land of Israel and the Jew, 7:30 p.m. Pride of Israel Synagogue.

MEMBERSHIP NIGHT

Elan chapter, Jewish Women International, membership night, learn dance steps to disco, techno, country songs, 8 p.m., Garnet A. Williams Community Centre, Clark Avenue West, Thornhill. Susan 905-881-4047 or Rochelle 905-707-8770.

Thursday, Oct. 30

HOPE AND TRIUMPH

Jewish Women International of Toronto program, The Light After the Dark, six true stories of triumph after all hope is gone, by author Alvin Abram, 8 p.m., Beth Tikvah Synagogue. $5. Fern Sussman, president, 905-882-8862.

MEMORY AS COVENANT

Prof. David Roskies, Jewish Theological Seminary, New York, speaks on Memory as Covenant: The Shaping of Vilna in Jewish Collective Memory 1573-1973, to commemorate Holocaust Education Week, 8 p.m., Beth Tikvah Synagogue.

HOLOCAUST EDUCATION

Marking Holocaust Education Week, Toronto Public Library, Palmerston Branch, 560 Palmerston Ave., presents Leslie Robbins of Jewish Storytelling Arts, 7:30 p.m. 393-7680.

JEWISH SINGLE PARENTS

Beth David B'nai Israel Beth Am Jewish Single Parents' Group presents Relationships, The Dos and Don'ts with Dr. Eric Grief, 8:30 p.m. Open to ages 30-50. $5. 633-5500.

KOFFLER GALLERY

Koffler Gallery opening reception 8 p.m. for two Jewish artists – Mindy Yan Miller: Chorus, and Jason Schwartz: The Ghosts That Haunt Us. In the Loggia Gallery. Miller will give an artist's talk Sunday, Nov. 2, 2 p.m. 636-1880, ext. 268 or 270.

And What Else Is New

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

Dorot (Hebrew for Generations), a journal of contemporary Jewish literature, is looking for pieces with Jewish themes – short fiction, poetry, short non-fiction, script excerpts, cartoons and sketches. Submission deadline is Oct. 31. For details, Jewish Student Federation, York University, 736-5178.

MOVIE SCREENING

Israel Cancer Research Fund screening of The Wings of the Dove Wednesday, Nov, 5, 7 p.m., York Cinema, 101 Eglinton Ave. E. Followed by a private party at Shark City, 117 Eglinton. $20 by Friday, Oct. 31, $25 at door, $15 party only. Talia or Cindy 487-5246.

MINCHAH MINYAN

Starting Thursday, Oct. 30, Markham Minchah Minyan runs daily, Monday through Thursday, 1 p.m., 35 East Beaver Creek, Unit 1A (Hwys. 7 and 404), Richmond Hill. 905-886-7700, ext. 290.

TORAH IN SPANISH

Torah in Spanish, Wednesdays 8:30 p.m. at Aish HaTorah, 949 Clark Ave. W. Analysis of Torah topics by Rabbi Abraham Bartfield, Paulo Rosenbaum, and guest speakers, all in Spanish. (Brazilians welcome). 905-764-1818, ext. 350.

YIDDISH CABARET

Yiddish Theatre School Ensemble presents Yiddish Cabaret, comedy, klezmer, chassidic and Israeli song and dance, directed by Nathan Garnick, music by Yitzhak Argaman Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 28 and 29, 8 p.m. Leah Posluns Theatre. $10 in advance, $15 at door. 635-0720.

RICK CARDONNE

Rick Cardonne composed and conducted the music for Cayle Chernin's film I Am Home, to be shown in the Capetown, South Africa, International Film Festival, Oct. 25-Nov. 9. The music was recorded by the Toronto Klezmer Band which performs at Temple Anshe Sholom, Wednesday, Oct. 22, 6:45 p.m. for Simchat Torah.

JF&CS GROUPS

Jewish Family & Child Service groups. Pat Lieberman 638-7800, ext. 215.

Do Your Children Have Trouble Making Friends? Groups for parents and kids (ages 6-18) begins Oct. 30.

Adult Children Losing a Parent begins Oct. 30; Looking Ahead for individuals recently separated/divorced, begins Oct. 21; The Challenge of Anger: For Women, begins Nov. 3; Stepparenting: Coping with His, Hers and Ours, begins Oct. 29.

FOR SENIORS

The Caring Community's Our Fall Gathering, Monday, Nov. 3, 1:45 p.m., Holy Blossom Temple. Entertainment by The Heritage Singers directed by Edith Narvey Kosimar. $5 non-Temple members. Reservations/transportation Leslie 789-3291, ext. 233, by Wednesday, Oct. 29. Information Toby Isaacs 782-4265, Daisy Jacobs 256-0136, Debby Vigoda 787-0487.

Association of Jewish Seniors general meeting, Thursday, Oct. 30, 9:30 a.m., Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue. Speaker Dian Goldstein, topic, We Care About Long-Term Care. Goldie 635-2860.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Washington, Atlantic City, Oct. 26-31; Seminar ABCs of Fraud, Nov. 4, 10 a.m.; Buffalo shopping, Nov. 5; Square One Shopping Centre, Nov. 19; Showboat matinee, Dec. 3, members $55, non-members $60; Casino Rama Dec. 17, members $15, non-members $20, includes lunch. 395-7881.

Shaarei Shomayim Friendship Club: Mr. Holland's Opus Nov. 3, 1 p.m.; opening musical luncheon Nov. 10, 12:30 p.m., entertainers Ivory and Silver, art exhibit of works by club members. Lena 785-5773. Golden Book donations go to Laniado Hospital in Israel. Dorothy Bloomfield 787-1526.

LZA Seniors Club: Registration for Miami trip 1998, Libby 782-2059. Ladies Folkdancing Thursdays 1:30 p.m. Cultural Discussion Group Tuesdays 10 a.m. Centre open for socializing Monday to Friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Aluma Canadian Israeli Club meets 7 p.m. Thursdays at 15 Hove St. (B'nai Brith Building). Simchat Torah party Saturday, Oct. 25, 7:30 p.m., members $8, non-members $10. Thursday, Oct. 30, lecture by Avner Meiri, The Origin of the Israeli People, followed by movie on the subject. Aaron Dahary 661-4689 or Malka 630-5771.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE

Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living, 1003 Steeles Ave. W. 225-2112.

Literary Luncheon Monday, Nov. 3, noon to 1:30 p.m. Psychologist/lecturer Anne Balaban reviews The Heart of a Woman by Maya Angelov. Members $8, non-members $10. Book review only $5.

Osteoporosis Support Group meets Tuesday, Oct. 28, 1:30-3 p.m. Pharmacist Yuen Chan focuses on Medication and Calcium Supplementation – Will My Questions Be Answered? Resource person Joan Turner.

Hearing Assistance Clinic conducted by Brenda Vernon of the Canadian Hearing Society, Thursday, Oct. 30, 1:30-4 p.m. Book appointment.

Israeli Club Etrog meets 7 p.m. Tuesdays for movies, lectures, nostalgic sing-alongs, dances, bingo. Oct. 28 program is bingo. Anna

Movie The Nutty Professor Sunday, Oct. 26, 2:30 p.m.

Dance to the music of the Creative Band Sunday, Oct. 26, 7:30-10:30 p.m.

Wednesday social Oct. 29 features musical show with Fern Dworkin 1:30 p.m.

BATHURST JC

Bathurst Jewish Centre, 4588 Bathurst St. 636-1880.

Oneg Shabbat Luncheon Friday, Oct. 31, at noon. Guest artist Cantor Esther Ghan Firestone. Tickets at information desk. Teme, ext. 364, Senior Adult Services.

BLOOR JCC

Bloor Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave. 924-6211.

Reserve patron tickets for the opening of Simcha Jacobovici's film Hollywoodism: Jew, Movies and the American Dream on Nov. 24 at Princess of Wales Theatre to inaugurate the L'Chaim Capital Campaign Kickoff. $180 includes reception and post-gala party. Regular seats $36 include reception.

Marilyn Lighstone one-woman show Thursday Oct. 30.

Listen to Bloor JCC Calendar Fridays 10:05 a.m. on Chin FM.

Donate a mezuzah at Bloor JCC. Renee.

Bloor JCC Seniors Club: Thursday, Oct. 30, Michael Scobac speaks on Cults and Missionaries: What is the Jewish Response? Judy.

Braun Oral-B Ultra Plaque Remover

- Unique brushing system rotates back & forth
- Includes 2 small cup shape Oral-B brush heads
- Cleans hard to reach, ideal for kids with braces
- Ultra speed for heavy plaque build-up and stains

LOWEST PRICE EVER 79.99 After $10.00 Mail-In Rebate

WORRY FREE!!! BRIDAL REGISTRY

Cayne's The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store

112 DONCASTER AVENUE

OPEN - MON. to WED. 10-6 • THURS. & FRI.10-9 • SAT. 10-6 • SUN. 11-5 • (905) 764-1188

Always 1st Quality • Always Brand Names • Always Warehouse Prices

On Campus

AND THE BUSH WAS NOT CONSUMED וסנה איננו אכל

The Jewish Theological Seminary

and

Toronto Conservative Congregations

proudly present a series of public lectures by

DR. DAVID G. ROSKIES

Professor of Jewish Literatrure, Jewish Theological Seminary

THEME:

Using the Past to Build the Future

Thursday, October 30, 8:00 p.m.
Memory As Covenant: The Shaping of Vilna in Jewish Collective Memory, 1573 - 1973 Beth Tikvah Congregation, 3080 Bayview Ave., Willowdale
telephone 221-3433

Friday, October 31
In service training with faculty and students
United Synagogue Day Schools
telephone 225-5928

Shabbat, November 1, 9:00 a.m. Shabbat Services
Memory As Chronicle: The Underground Oneg-Shabbes Archive in Warsaw, 1939 - 1944
Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda, 100 Elder St., Downsview
telephone 633-3838

Motzi Shabbat, November 1, 8:00 p.m.
Memory As Ideology: The Model of the Montreal Jewish Community, 1914 - to the Present
Beth David B'nai Israel Beth Am Congregation
55 Yeomans Rd., Downsview, telephone 633-5500

Sunday, November 2, 10:00 a.m.
Memory As Stone: The Workmen's Circle Cemeteries in Queen's, N.Y., 1920 - 1970 (slide lecture in Yiddish)
Beth Tzedec Synagogue, 1700 Bathurst St., Toronto
telephone 781-3511

Dr. David Roskies, a native of Montreal, is a product of its Yiddish secular schools. He received his doctorate from Brandeis University. His major concern is the world of East European Jewry; its achievements, its confrontation with modernity, its destruction and its living heritage.

Now in its second century, The Jewish Theological Seminary is the spiritual and academic center of Conservative Judaism worldwide with programs in North and South America, Israel, Hungary and Russia. JTS is a university-level, educational institution with undergraduate, graduate, rabbinical, and professional programs. No other seat of Judaic scholarship can match its set of commitments to knowledge and practice, to past and present, to the individual and the community, to Jew and non-Jew.

For further info, call the Jewish Theological Society (416) 789-2193

Rabbi Schwartz gets Kolel position

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

Rabbi Jeremy Schwartz

TORONTO — When Rabbi Jeremy Schwartz was an economics student several years ago, he gave up a semester's worth of lunch hours to examine liturgies in preparation for his upcoming marriage.

It occurred to him that he'd never given up his lunch for economics, and the realization reinforced his desire to enter rabbinical school after he completed his master's degree.

As the new assistant director of Kolel: a Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning, Rabbi Schwartz, 37, is combining lunch and work in at least one project this year -- a series entitled Sex, Money, Power and Lunch, to be held on campus three consecutive Tuesdays in November. (The series is scheduled to run at both York University and the University of Toronto; a one-session program is tentatively scheduled for Ryerson Polytechnic University.)

About one-third of Rabbi Schwartz's work is campus-related; the rest is divided between teaching "regular" Kolel and Kolel for singles in their 30s and 40s. The adult study program, established in the early 1990s, offers "informal, fun, relevant" study of Jewish texts, said Rabbi Schwartz.

Although Kolel director Rabbi Elyse Goldstein has run programs on campus, Rabbi Schwartz' newly created position represents the first ongoing liberal Jewish presence on Toronto campuses.

The Conservative movement has had a campus presence for the past year, with Koach fieldworker Adam Silver working out of Jewish Campus Services (JCS). A fledgling Orthodox Vaad had its first meeting recently, with JCS's Rabbi Michael Skobac as adviser.

"We've discovered that [the student population] is an important population and one that's easy to lose," said Rabbi Schwartz. "We have to work at keeping them interested and getting them ready to be [part of the adult] Jewish community."

This year's first campus Kolel program was to be held this week at U of T (Tues.) and York (Wed.). The program combines a study of the patriarch Abraham's hospitality with the welcoming of Roma Gypsy families for lunch in the sukkah and collecting clothing for them.

Although the rabbi does not have an office on campus, he has staked out a weekly spot at York and U of T. On Tuesdays from 3 to 5 p.m. he can be found at U of T's Diabolo's coffee shop, and on Thursdays from 3 to 5 at Company's Coming in York Lanes. He can also be reached through the Kolel office or JCS.

Kolel's program is geared to "liberal" Jewish students, but everyone is welcome, said Rabbi Schwartz. "When people come with different perspectives, I think that's exciting."

Rabbi Schwartz himself was raised in a Conservative home in Minneapolis and was ordained at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College earlier this year. He served as editorial assistant on the forthcoming Reconstructionist Machzor.

"By high school I had a notion that I wasn't a Conservative Jew in that mold [in which I had been raised]. I'd heard about Reconstructionism and kind of filed it away."

One of the things that appeals to him about Reconstructionism and other liberal Jewish movements is "a real openness to theological searching."

Theological searching

Rabbi Schwartz was "very excited" to hear of the Toronto position earlier this year. "This was definitely one of the kinds of work I was interested in."

On a Shavuot visit here, he was impressed by the attendance at Temple Sinai services. "In the United States it's rare to find a Reform or Conservative synagogue packed on Shavuot morning. Toronto has a very rich community, a really committed Jewish community."

In his new role, he hopes to "help people enrich their lives with Jewish learning." On campus specifically, he wants to get students involved, have them realize that Judaism and Jewish texts have something relevant to offer, and build Jewish community.

"I believe Torah in the broad sense of the word is an ongoing process of people striving for understanding of good and what's right in the world," he said. "I teach Torah as a searching rather than as an answer."

From coast to coast

North York
Branson Hospital

"Patients First Through Team Work for 40 Years" 1957 – 1997

Community Appreciation Day

We would like to thank you, our Donors and Community for supporting NYBH over the past 40 years, and particularly during the past two years through the Save Branson Campaign.

Date: Sunday, October 26, 1997
Time: 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
Location: The Hospital Grounds

Featuring:

Pancake Breakfast - 10 a.m. - 12 noon (while quantities last)
Sponsored by Finch Avenue Golden Griddle Family Restaurants

Community Address - 12 noon
His Worship, Mayor Mel Lastman
Hospital, Community & Political Leaders

Anniversary Cake Cutting - 12:30 p.m.
Following Community Address

Tours of NYBH - 11 a.m. - 1 p.m. - 3 p.m.
Focus on Ambulatory Services

Health Exhibits
Focus on Health & Well Being

Family & Children Entertainment
Rides, merry-go-round, giant slide, jumper trikes, petting zoo, clowns, face painting etc.
Sponsored by Kenny Bodenstein of Steeles Memorial Chapel

Bands
Crawford Adventist Academy and George Kash Trio

Refreshments

FREE for everyone to enjoy

North York Branson Hospital
555 Finch Avenue West, North York, Ontario, M2R 1N5
Community & Corporate Affairs 416-635-2525

Levy's 'apology' accepted; Axworthy to visit Israel

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

OTTAWA — Foreign Affairs Minister Lloyd Axworthy plans to visit Israel, partly to patch things up following the forged passport affair, but mainly to make sure it never happens again.

Axworthy is scheduled to travel to Israel before the end of the year, according to a ministry spokesperson.

And Canada's ambassador to Israel, David Berger, who was recalled to protest Israel's use of faked Canadian passports in its failed assassination of a Hamas leader in Jordan, returned to his post last week, saying it's time to resume "business as usual" with Israel.

"We consider the matter closed," Berger told reporters on arrival at Ben-Gurion Airport. "I am happy to be back in Israel."

He said Ottawa is satisfied with what he called a written apology to Axworthy from Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy, which "goes beyond any commitment we have received before, and we expect them to meet that commitment."

Axworthy announced his plans to go to Israel following Levy's apology, as it was, over the passport fiasco.

Axworthy called the letter, whose contents were kept under wraps, an apology. However, in Israel, a spokesperson for Levy said the note wasn't a "direct apology," but "an Israeli expression of regret," adding the document was "formulated to the satisfaction of both sides."

Lloyd Axworthy

Axworthy used the same term — "expression of regret" — to describe what Levy had said in a telephone conversation the two had earlier this month. That apparent lack of full-blown contrition on Israel's part had opposition members of Parliament fuming, and calling for possible sanctions against Israel.

'Clarification committee'

Now, whatever the posturing and semantics, Axworthy said Canada is accepting the letter as an official apology for the Mossad's use of forged Canadian passports.

"The minister first apologized for the fact that any misuse of our passports may have caused inconvenience or problems of safety for any Canadian citizen," he told the House of Commons. "Second, [Levy] agreed that Israel will now undertake measures to ensure it will never happen again."

Aviv Shiron, a spokesperson for Levy, was quoted as saying that Israel "sincerely regrets what happened and we are hoping that the future will be better."

Axworthy said the apology, coupled with Israel's pledge never again to use Canadian travel documents in spy operations, is the first step to restoring good relations between the two countries.

He would not divulge the contents of Levy's letter, nor did he table it, citing diplomatic protocol. But David Cooper, a spokesperson for Israel's embassy in Ottawa, told The CJN that Axworthy's paraphrase of the note in the Commons was "almost a verbatim" summary.

Axworthy said the letter "meets the conditions we established, both to assure that we would have measures put in place and to demonstrate a real sense of concern and apology about the impact it may have had on Canadians."

In Israel, a three person "clarification committee" has begun investigating the Mossad's botched assassination of Hamas leader Khaled Meshal.

Mossad chief Danny Yatom was the first witness to appear, and he reportedly stated that Meshal was on a long list of potential Israeli targets.

According to Israeli media reports, Yatom repeated his claim that the decision-making process leading up to the attempted hit on Meshal had been thorough. It's not known whether Yatom had anything to say about Canada having been consulted.

Officials in Israel say Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu may also be called to testify.

The passport scandal was not the first time the Mossad became entangled in Canadian affairs. A member of an Israeli hit squad that mistakenly killed a Moroccan waiter in Norway in 1973 had posed as a Canadian.

In 1992, John Bassett, then chair of the Security Intelligence Review Committee, a civilian group that oversees the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, told a parliamentary committee that in 1990, the Mossad had conducted activities in Canada without Ottawa's permission.

The activities were never described as illegal, but the agents were reportedly reprimanded by Canadian officials.

Also last week, Norman Spector, Canada's former ambassador to Israel and now the publisher of The Jerusalem Post, continued his contention that Mossad and the Canadian intelligence agency worked closely together for years, a charge vehemently by officials at Foreign Affairs.

Meantime, a leading hotel chain in Israel is compensating Canadians for any hardship caused by the passport scandal.

The Carmel chain is giving Canadian passport holders a 25 percent discount for the rest of this year to show good will, in the words of Carmel director David Ashkenazy.

— With files from JTA

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late REVA SOLOMON ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26,
10:30 a.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Dufferin St., N. of Major Mackenzie Dr.
Toronto Hebrew Benevolent Society
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

OSLO IN CRISIS
Scenarios and Options
The 2nd Annual Yitzhak Rabin Memorial Lecture with Mark Rosenblum, Political Director of Americans for Peace Now.

Tuesday, Oct., 28
7:30 p.m. sharp
Temple Sinai
210 Wilson Ave.

שלום עכשיו PEACE NOW

For more information, call
Canadian Friends of Peace Now
at 905-764-3997

Mark Rosenblum is the Founder and Political Director of Americans for Peace Now. Currently an historian at Queen's College of the City University of New York (CUNY), Rosenblum is the Director of the Harrington Centre for Social Change (Queen's College) and the Editor of the Harrington Centre's Middle East Policy Papers. Mr. Rosenblum has recently returned from a fact finding tour of the Middle East, where he met privately with Prime Minister Netanyahu, Chairman Arafat and King Hussein.

HOME 'SUITE' HOME

Same price. Pick one.

For the same price of a typical lot, or a wide & shallow lot, you can have a fully serviced Megalot, surrounded by conservation lands across from Maple Downs Golf Course, from the low 300's.

TYPICAL LOT - 5,500 S.F.

50' x 115'

WIDE & SHALLOW LOT - 4,800 S.F.

60' x 80'

THE MEGALOT - 11,250 S.F.

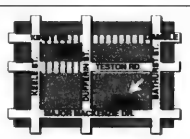
75' x 150'

You can only buy the Megalot in Maplewood!

REGENCY HEIGHTS H·O·M·E·S

COUNTRY HOMES

Monmar Homes



SALES OFFICE HOURS:
Mon. - Thurs. 1 p.m. - 6 p.m.
Sat., Sun. & Holidays
11 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Closed Fridays.

*Some lot premiums apply. Prices and information correct at press time. Map not to scale. Artist's concept. E. & O.E.

Deblins Linens offers "boutique quality at warehouse prices"

It may sound like a catch phrase, but "boutique quality at warehouse prices" is exactly what you'll get when you shop at Deblins Linens.

Headed by President Ellis Chitiz, Deblins' three stores have a dedicated staff who maintain a level of service that keeps regular customers coming back. Deblins also draws many referrals, including some hard-to-convince customers who comparison shop before they decide.

When Ellis created Deblins' Warehouse Superstore at 39 Orfus Road in 1994, he wanted to offer his customers the four things which had enabled his business to grow over the years: quality of merchandise, selection, low prices, and service.

Home decor solutions

At Deblins Linens, you will find exactly what you want and need in a huge variety of bedding, table linens, bathware and accessories — and helpful, well-informed staff to answer all your questions and advise you on matters like color co-ordination. You'll find this especially useful when decorating your home. By the time you're done at Deblins, "home sweet home" will be much more than a figure of speech.

Need sheets? If it covers a bed and it's fine quality, Deblins has it, in a full range of sizes, patterns and colors. Headlining a host of famous names are Fieldcrest, Revman, and Bibb, for which Deblins carries not only a full range of regular patterns, but also some luxurious designer sheets. Deblins' Fieldcrest collection includes designs by Ellen Tracy and Adrienne Vittadini; their Revman line, designs by Laura Ashley, Di Lewis, and Katja; their Bibb group, designs by Jessica McLintock.

Deblins also carries Wamsutta, Croscill, Crown Craft, Springmaid, Burlington, and other brand names, including the Veratex line from Israel. New styles of sheets, like the T-shirt style that's now in hot demand, are constantly being introduced. There are even sheets for odd-sized mattresses.

Prices so low they don't even offer discounts to designers

Deblins' wide assortment of ready-made drapes, curtains and valances are chosen to match all sheet designs — thus making it easier for you to beautify your entire home by buying all your dry goods at Deblins.

There is an abundant stock of first-quality pillow coverings, duvets and duvet covers, with six different styles of duvets, and nine different styles of pillows. White Canadian goose down duvets are available in all weights and sizes, at exceptional prices, and with a host of complementary coverings.

How about towels? Deblins' vast selection includes Fieldcrest Royal Velvet, stocked in 24 colours, and matching accessories. For those who prefer patterns, there are Jacquard towels and printed towels — all quality brand names, always at the lowest possible prices.

There are plenty of bath accessories, like soap dishes, tumblers, tissue and lotion dispensers, and toothbrush holders, all of which can be coordinated with the towels. Of course, there is also a wide assortment of shower curtains, linens and mats.

If you're looking for tablecloths, napkins, napkin rings and table pads for your Sabbath table or everyday dining, you can find them at Deblins. In this department too, the top brand names are always in stock, at the lowest prices anywhere.

In fact, Deblins' prices are so low they don't even offer discounts to designers. At the same time, they carry only the best quality — no irregulars or seconds. For this reason, Deblins does not match prices: "If you can find it cheaper elsewhere," says Ellis Chitiz, "buy it." He is confident that when you compare price and quality, you will find that Deblins offers the better deal.

Sabbath table well covered

"When you walk out of our door, " says Ellis, "you will be carrying quality linen, at probably the best price in the city; and you will definitely have enjoyed the best service. If you have a problem with any one of these three, let me know."

Along with quality, selection and pricing, Deblins adheres to the tradition of personal service. If you have any questions about product or fabric care, staff will answer them promptly and expertly. In the rare event you don't find what you want or need in stock, staff will order it for you, or custom-make it at an excellent price.

Deblins' largest store is the Superstore at 39 Orfus Rd., with 10,000 square feet of merchandise: (416) 782-2910. In addition, Deblins has stores in the Promenade Mall at Bathurst and Centre St., (905) 709-0007, and the Mississauga Home and Design Centre at Winston Churchill and Dundas St., (905) 820-1509. All three stores are open seven days a week.

IF YOU FIND LINEN AT A BETTER PRICE ANYWHERE ELSE

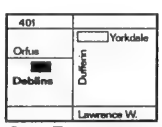
BUY IT

A lot of stores today offer a price guarantee. That means if you find a lower price anywhere else, they'll match it. So after running around to find a better price, all you're left with is the option to pay the same price somewhere else.

But isn't the best price what you're really looking for? Then shop at Deblins Linens. We don't match prices.

Our goal is to offer you the lowest price in the first place. Sure, you might find an odd item at a lower price in another store, but don't come rushing back to Deblins to pay the same price. Just buy it. We're confident that when you compare both quality and price, nine times out of ten you'll get the better deal at Deblins .... not just the same deal.

DEBLINS LINEN SUPERSTORES



OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

39 ORFUS ROAD AT DUFFERIN (416) 782-2910

MISSISSAUGA HOME & DESIGN CENTRE (905) 820-1509 • PROMENADE SHOPPING MALL (905) 709-0007

HOME SUITE HOME

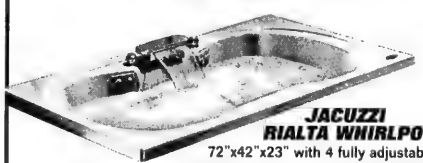
For a Beautiful Finish Start Here

Finally... you're going to create the bathroom you've always dreamed of. For openers, how about a perfectly-manicured powder room that will really wow your guests. Or, perhaps you yearn for an "adults only" retreat to pamper body and soul.

TAPS®

Whatever your whim or style, we have the fashionable fixtures, imported marble and tile, gorgeous colours and gracious accessories to give your renovation story a happy ending. Plus knowledgeable staff to help you get it right–the first time. So, for a beautiful finish, go to the source...Taps of course!

AMERICAN STANDARD ESTATE SUITE
34"x26 1/4"x19 3/4" pedestal sink with matching elongated toilet. Faucet extra.
WHITE $899 LINEN $1149



JACUZZI RIALTA WHIRLPOOL
72"x42"x23" with 4 fully adjustable jets, 4 neck jets, 2 foot jets plus built-in armrests.
$2325

RAPHAEL ETRUSCAN FAUCET
POLISHED CHROME/GOLD $399
SATIN NICKEL/GOLD $499

In Canada call 1-800-263-2976

Everything in Stock
30% off

TILES
Stunning colours and styles for bath rooms, borders or backsplashes.

Ceramic
Marble
Porcelain
Glass
Granite
Limestone
Slate

TERRA COTTA ACCESSORIES
Lamps • Vanities • Tables
Urns • Fireplaces
Vase 23"x19" $2899

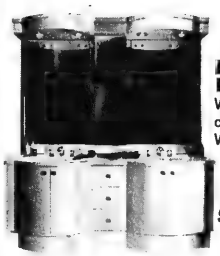
TERRA COTTA TILES
Unglazed 12"x12" $2.95 sq ft
Glazed 12"x12" $3.95 sq ft

SLATE
Over 20 colours
from $7.95 sq ft

ClearanceCorner
Save even more on discontinued tiles!
CERAMIC from $1.29 sq ft
MARBLE from $4.95 sq ft
GRANITE from $7.95 sq ft

tapstile and marble inc.
Open Sundays 10-4

NECTARUS PEDESTAL BASIN
Crystal opalescent glass and sculptured pedestal. Faucet extra.
$1795



LYNPRO MODULAR VANITY SYSTEM
Wide choice of sizes, design combinations, colours and finishes. Wall or floor mounted. Includes mirrors, medicine cabinet, moulded sinks. Faucets extra. Shown 76" wide.
$4395

WROUGHT IRON TOWEL STAND
Sleigh design with lacquer finish. 38"x16"x10".
$69 Reg $99

Surf or shop online
www.TapsBath.com

1020 Lawrence Ave. West (west of Dufferin)

Bath Centre (416) 785-0224 • Toll Free: 1-800-263-2976 • www.TapsBath.com • tapstile (416) 785-8080 • Mon-Wed 9-5, Thurs-Fri 9-8, Sat 9:30-5

HOME SUITE HOME

FESTIVAL OF SAVINGS UP TO 60% OFF

MANY IN-STORE SPECIALS AT DRASTIC SAVINGS

FACTORY OUTLET offers discontinued lines, new products, factory seconds factory refurbished and much more Hours: Mon. - Wed. 10 to 5, Thurs. 10 to 8., Fri. & Sat. 10 to 5, Sun. 12 to 5

DOOR BUSTERS

Hill Design Cookie Stamps

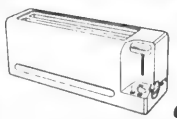
Hand Painted Collectables! $29.95

Sunbeam Kitchen Centre

5 in 1 w/stainless steel bowls

Orig. $299 $166

Moulinex 4-Slice Toaster



- wide slots
- quartz elements

Orig. $79 $29

DeLonghi Oil Filled Heater

• 3 Temp. Settings

Orig. $119 $74

Oster Steamer/Rice Cooker

6 L capacity

Orig. $79 $58

Charlescraft Shiatsu Massage

2-way direction selector

Orig. $79 $39

Slow Cooker RIVAL 4.5 L

Removable insert Glass lid

Orig. $64 $39

Juice Extractor

200 watt

Orig. $49 $29

KRUPS 10 cup Coffee Maker

Orig. $60 $33

BRAUN Flex Control Shaver

Dual Voltage

Orig. $99 $69

DeLonghi BAKE 'N BROIL Oven

Orig. $149 $99

MR. COFFEE Espresso Cappuccino

Orig. $119 $54

Gourmets Choice Stock Pot

16 L stainless steel 3 ply

Orig. $119 $64

DeLonghi Roto Fryer

w/exclusive rotating basket

Orig. $149 $99

WAHL DoubleComfort™ Two-head Two-speed MASSAGER

Orig. $49 $19

• Bakeware • Dinnerware • Cookware • Utensils • Gadgets

SMART HOUSE

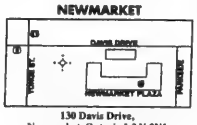
KITCHEN APPLIANCES AND MORE

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

DOWNSVIEW

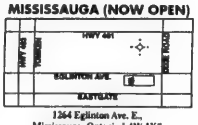
1140 Sheppard Ave. W.,
Downsview, Ontario M3K 2A2
Telephone: (416) 636-2255
Fax: (416) 636-2667

NEWMARKET



130 Davis Drive,
Newmarket, Ontario L3 Y 2N1
Telephone: (905) 895-4558
Fax: (905) 895-9355

MISSISSAUGA (NOW OPEN)



1264 Eglinton Ave. E.,
Mississauga, Ontario L4W 1K8
Telephone: (905) 629-9822
Fax: (905) 629-2940

All items subject to prior sale. May not be exactly as shown.

A TRADITION OF CARING

AT PINE VILLA RETIREMENT RESIDENCE

Welcome to Pine Villa, conveniently located, in the heart of Toronto's Jewish community.

With a wide variety of services and amenities included, Pine Villa is designed to enhance your quality of life.

At Pine Villa, you can be assured of personal care in a warm, gracious and welcoming environment.

Pine Villa offers Jewish Retirement Living amidst gracious surroundings

Enjoy private accommodation and amenities which include:

- 24 hour professional health care
- Fine Jewish dining
- Daily activities with companions who share a common heritage
- Linen, housekeeping and laundry service
- Proximity to synagogues and all amenities
- Friendly, caring, attentive staff

Please call today for a personal guided tour.

PINE VILLA

1035 Eglinton Avenue West
(416)787-5626

POGGENPOHL®, the ultimate kitchen!

POGGENPOHL® has an international reputation and a loyal following of satisfied customers. It is regarded and recognized as the best kitchen in the world! POGGENPOHL® is 105 years old, reliable and is driven by quality. Its products are contemporary and conventional incorporating the latest ergonomic technology. POGGENPOHL® exports worldwide and has a significant share in emerging and quality conscious markets.

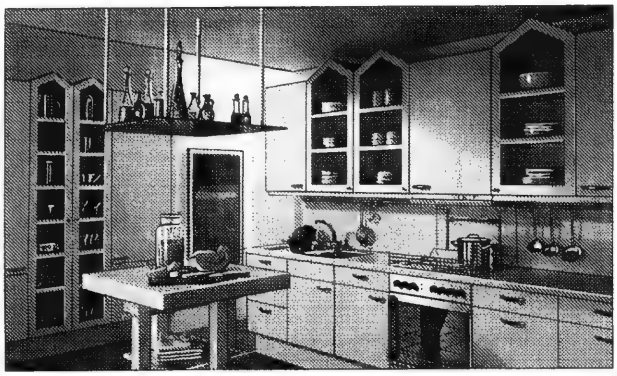
Because of the divergence of its markets and clients POGGENPOHL® offers 23 price categories and 86 door fronts so as to permit customers to choose an affordable price level without sacrificing product quality or identity.

The ownership of POGGENPOHL® Kitchens is SWEDISH. The kitchens are built to exacting European standards, are environmentally safe, and free of toxic materials. POGGENPOHL® Kitchens are backed by a dependable warranty and impeccable service. When only the best will suffice, POGGENPOHL® is indeed, the kitchen of choice.

Let your imagination run wild — vibrant colours, textures, innovative designs and practical gadgetry all put together to bring out the dormant culinary gourmet in you (both of you!)

Visit the POGGENPOHL® model kitchen at Minto's Prince Arthur Condominium Model Suite, 38 Avenue Road.

Proudly Swedish Since 1987!



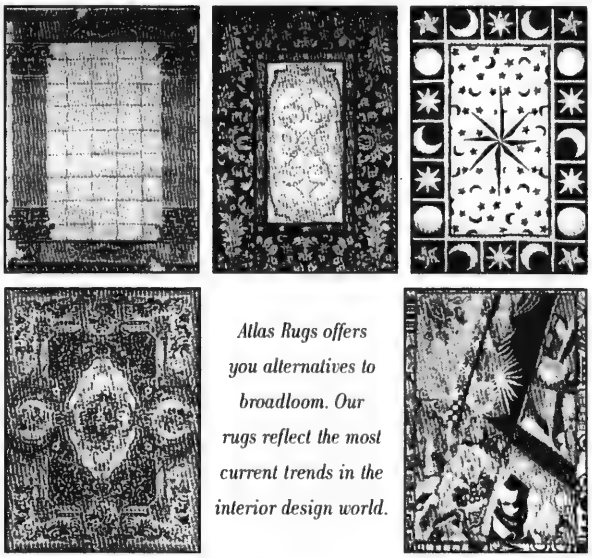
POGGENPOHL® has an international reputation and a loyal following of satisfied customers. It is regarded and recognized as the best kitchen in the world! POGGENPOHL® is 105 years old, reliable and is driven by quality. POGGENPOHL® offers 23 price categories and 86 door fronts so as to permit customers to choose an affordable price level without sacrificing product quality or identity.

Proud suppliers to the Prince Arthur!

The Gracious Living Centre®

poggen pohl

160 West Beaver Creek Road, Richmond Hill, Ontario L4B 1B4 Tel: (905) 731-4556



Atlas Rugs offers you alternatives to broadloom. Our rugs reflect the most current trends in the interior design world.

Atlas Rug Co. Ltd.

1014-16 BATHURST STREET, TORONTO, ONTARIO M5R 3G7
TEL: 416-534-4300 OR 533-9002 • FAX: 416-530-4342
1-800-454-2784

Free Parking

VISA MasterCard

ANTIQUES · DECORATIONS · ACCESSORIES

WARREN HOFFMAN INTERIOR DESIGN INC.

Furnishings designed with impeccable attention to fine detail.
Come in and inspire your senses!

198 Davenport Road, Toronto, Ontario M5R 1J2
Tel: (416) 944-2380 Fax: 416-944-2311

Put your Space to Work...Beautifully

We design, manufacture and install custom closets, armoires, built-in entertainment centres, home offices & more in a wide variety of materials.

Visit our showroom to see our large selection of designs and of styles or if you prefer, we'll come to your place.

40 Viceroy Road, Units 9 & 10
(905) 738-4570
1 light west of Dufferin on Steeles. North on Alness (leading to Viceroy
(Formerly in Forest Hill Village)
Showroom Hours
Monday to Friday – 9:00 - 5:00
Saturday – By Appointment only

• Custom Closets
• Custom Furniture

THE CLOSET SHOP and CUSTOM FURNITURE

Watch for the Seniors' Section
in next week's issue of
The Canadian Jewish news

Guaranteed comfort, year after year after year after year after year after year after year after year.

Free 10-year parts and labour warranty.

Purchase a qualifying Trane XV 90, XE 90 or XL80 gas furnace before October 31 and receive a ten-year parts-and-labour warranty at no extra charge. Your participating Trane dealer can tell you which units qualify. Just imagine, an efficient, reliable Trane furnace that won't cost you a dime in service for ten years. What more could you ask for?

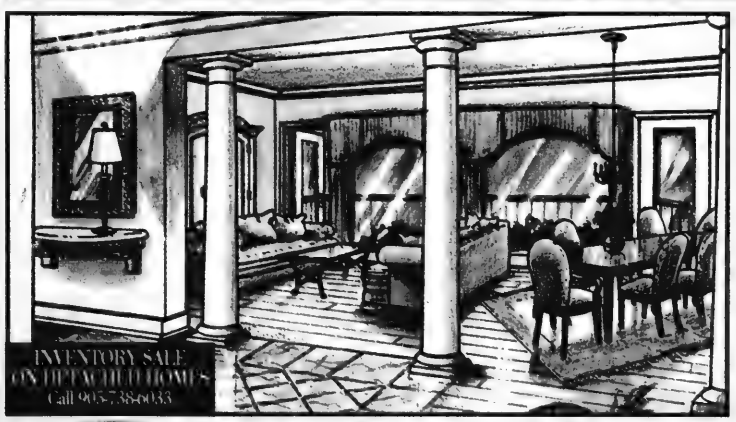
TRANE
It's Hard To Stop A Trane.

Offer not available to dealers and contractors

We Provide 24 Hr. Service on Most Makes of Residential & Commercial Heating & Cooling Systems
Maintenance Contracts Available

Aplus AIR SYSTEMS INC.
(416) 638-2020
Showroom at 638 Wilson Avenue, North York

A DISTINGUISHED RESIDENCE INSPIRED BY EUROPEAN ELEGANCE.



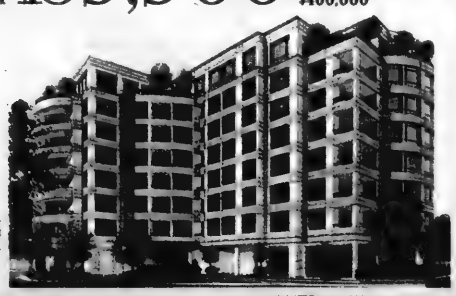
AT "BEFORE-WE-BUILD" PRICES!

There is no other place quite like The Cordoba. A unique condominium residence, where every design is an original and every interior is rich with architectural details that celebrate classical elegance. A place where rooms have been transformed into stunning spaces and every unit is complemented by a long list of luxury upgraded features you won't find in any other residence in Toronto:

The CORDOBA

FROM $189,900 TO JUST OVER $400,000

- Beautiful hardwood floors!
- Stunning marble foyers!
- Glass enclosed gas fireplaces!
- Upgraded cabinetry!
- Classical columns!
- 9 ft. ceilings!
- Unique balcony retreats!
- Cornice mouldings!
- 5 upgraded appliances!
- Lighting package including pot lighting!



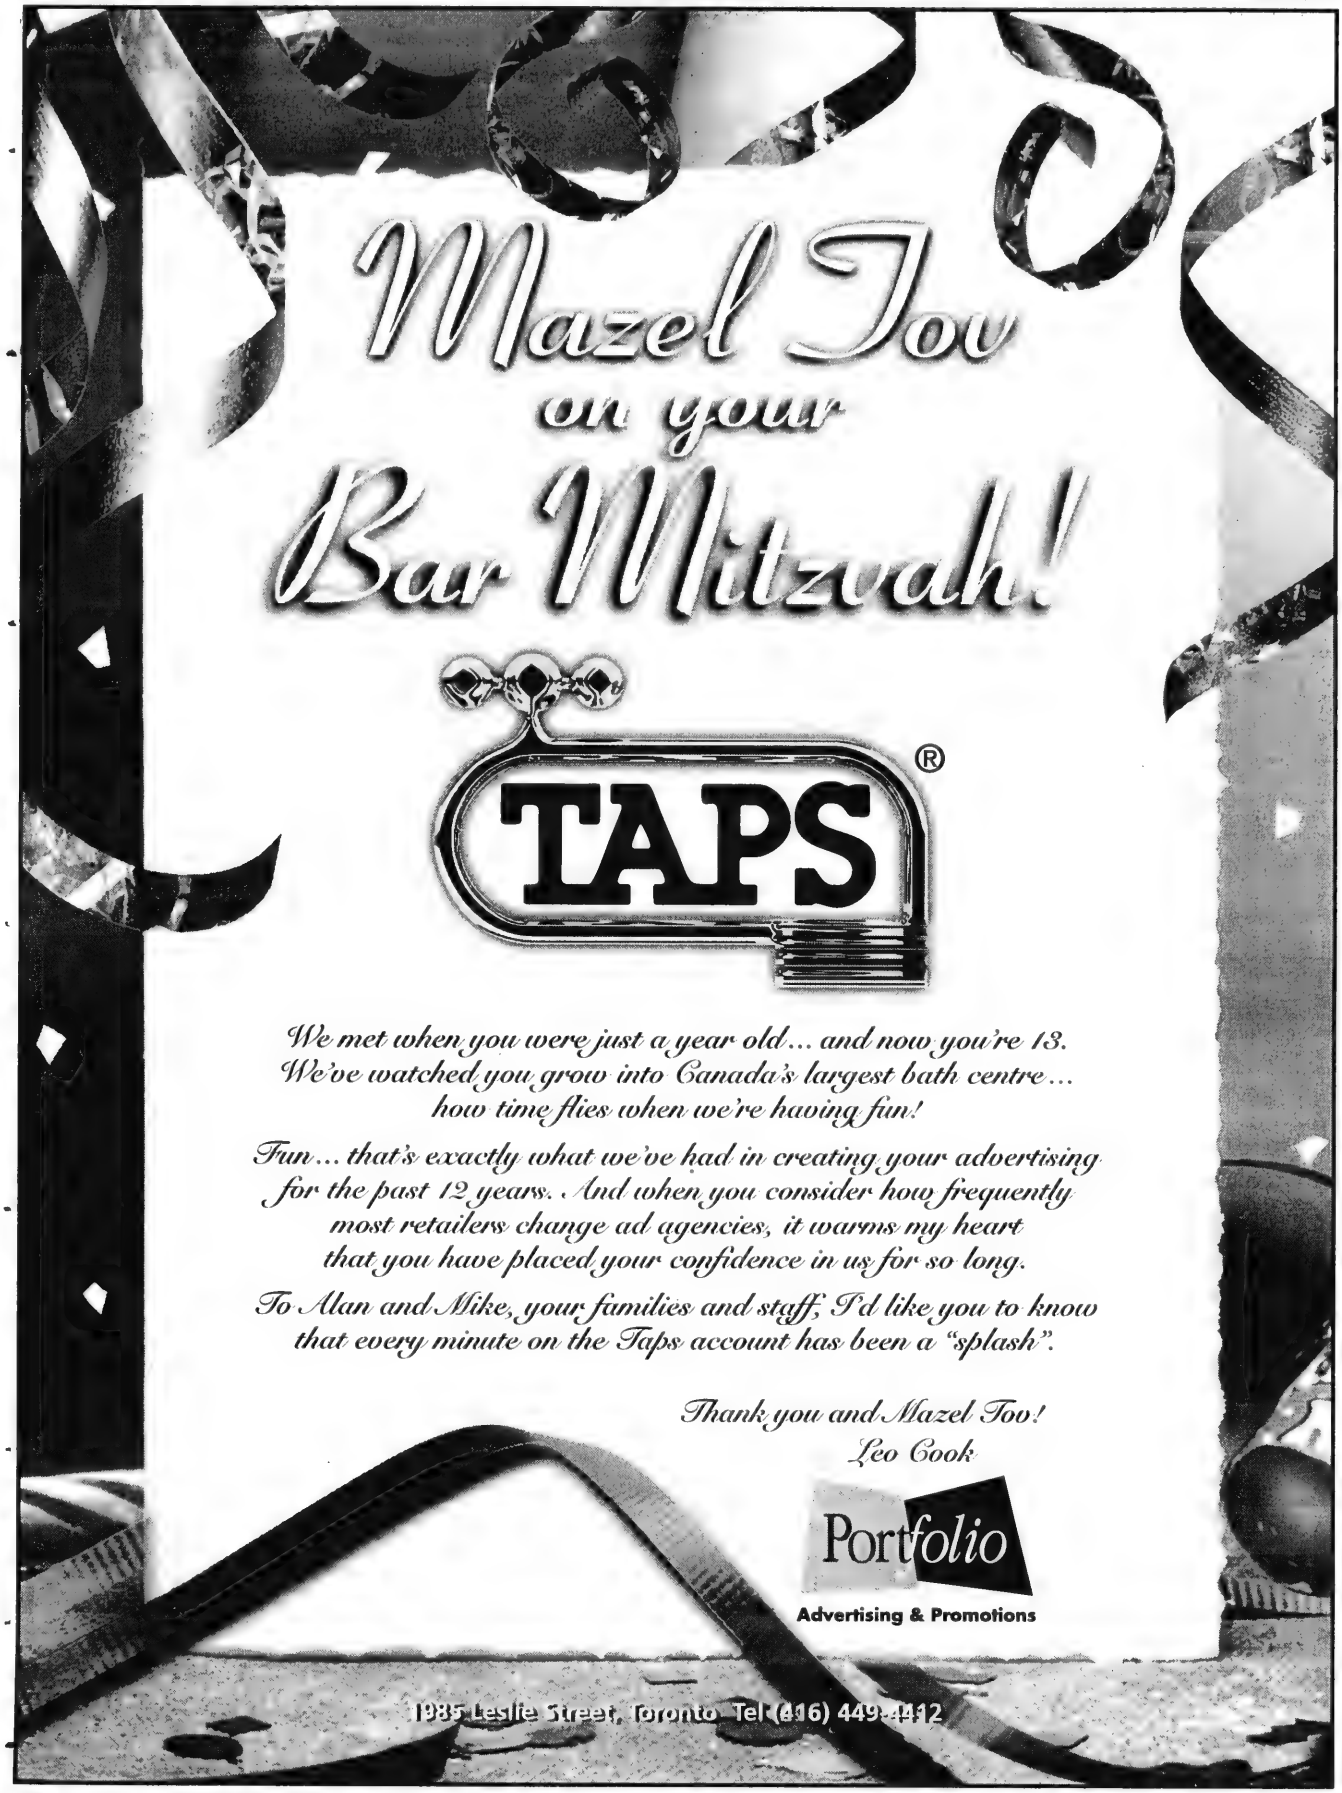
NOW REPRESENTED BY

CALL 416-441-2885

Lakeview

*Illustrations are artist's concept. Prices & information correct at press time. E. & O.E.

SALES OFFICE HOURS: Mon. - Wed. 2 p.m. - 8 p.m., Sat. & Sun. 12 noon - 5 p.m. Closed Thurs. & Fri.



Mazel Tov
on your Bar Mitzvah!
TAPS®
We met when you were just a year old... and now you're 13.
We've watched you grow into Canada's largest bath centre...
how time flies when we're having fun!
Fun... that's exactly what we've had in creating your advertising for the past 12 years. And when you consider how frequently most retailers change ad agencies, it warms my heart that you have placed your confidence in us for so long.
To Alan and Mike, your families and staff, I'd like you to know that every minute on the Taps account has been a "splash".
Thank you and Mazel Tov!
Leo Cook
Portfolio
Advertising & Promotions
1985 Leslie Street, Toronto Tel (416) 449-4412

From coast to coast

CFHU conference calls for creation of fundraising body

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — A proposal calling for the formation of a national fundraising committee was one of the highlights of the recent Canadian Friends of Hebrew University's (CFHU) annual National New Leadership Conference, held last month in Winnipeg. The committee would be composed of the outgoing co-chairs of each chapter.

Attending the conference were the co-chairs from each chapter — there are currently chapters in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver — as well as the national executive — a total of 15 people. Delegates were given a tour of the new Asper campus, attended the Winnipeg Jewish Theatre's current production, Cecil and Cleopaetra, took part in a symposium on Jewish continuity and were treated to a Shabbat dinner featuring a presentation from Dr. Ze'ev Mankowitz of the Hebrew University.

New chapters being planned

The conference featured workshops on communications, membership and fundraising. Delegates heard about the CFHU's new Connecting to Excellence fund. Previously, donors had to contribute an initial $1,000 before they were able to designate where their contributions to the Hebrew University went. Now, a record will be kept of all donations. Once a person's donations reach $1,000, the money will become an endowment fund with interest directed anywhere in the university that the donor chooses.

Each year, the donor will receive a card outlining where the money went.

National chair Kevin Glassman of Vancouver and vice-chair Bernie Malinoff of Montreal donated $50 in honor of each conference participant. They hope that the delegates will match the donation and start their own endowment funds.

The New Leadership Division was first established in Winnipeg in 1985 and became a national organization in 1990 through the efforts of the Winnipeg chapter. It is meant to provide a forum for young adults (25-40 years old) who have a commitment to the Hebrew University and Israel, and want to reinforce their Jewish identity. The National Division holds annual conferences, in conjunction with the parent body at its biennial meetings and alone on alternate years. New chapters are being planned for Calgary, Ottawa and Hamilton.

Anne Frank exhibit opens in Winnipeg

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Winnipeg's new Marion and Ed Vickar Jewish Museum of Western Canada and Holocaust Education Centre recently held a gala reception to kick off Anne Frank In The Works 1929-1945, its first major exhibition.

Over 100 people, including corporate sponsors, members of the Dutch community in Winnipeg and representatives of major Winnipeg Jewish organizations, were invited to the reception which featured speeches by museum president Gerry Posner; Barbara Goszer representing the community's Holocaust Remembrance committee; Bill Zweep, president of the Dutch Canadian Society of Manitoba; and Cor Suijk, international director of the Anne Frank Centre U.S.A.

"We had a brief official opening ceremony on Sept. 7 to tie in with the official opening of the Asper Jewish Community Campus [in which the museum is housed]," said Lara Rykiss, the museum co-ordinator.

The museum is a joint effort of the Jewish Historical Societies of western Canada. It received its impetus at a meeting of the societies in April, 1995 and was made possible through a $3.65 million grant from the federal government and a $1 million contribution from the province. At the time, Harry Gutkin, then president of the Jewish Historical Society, envisioned a museum that would educate younger members of the Jewish community about the rich Jewish life in western Canada over the past 150 years as well as to serve as a bridge to other cultures and help promote tolerance and harmony.

The Anne Frank exhibit has appeared in 36 countries and has been viewed by more than six million people. It tells the story of Anne Frank and her family, gives an overview of the Holocaust and cites examples of prejudice and discrimination in the world today.

The exhibit will be on display at the museum until Nov. 28. "We are getting quite a few calls from schools to arrange tours. We have 4,000 students booked to come through already," said Rykiss.

In designing the museum, Rykiss said, the key word was flexibility. The permanent exhibit, Diversity and Vitality: Preview, a history of the Jews of Western Canada, was constructed to be mobile within the museum space.

"We want to be able to show temporary exhibits alongside our permanent display," Rykiss says. In December, the museum will exhibit the National Council of Jewish Women of Canada's 100th anniversary touring archival display.

Le Parc Markham

LE PARC and BEVERLY HILLS CATERERS

BEVERLY HILLS caterers COR GLATT KOSHER

proudly present:

CELEBRATION SHOWCASE '98

A gallery of special people who will turn your celebration into an extra-special event on

Tuesday, November 18, 1997
4 pm to 10 pm at

LE PARC, MARKHAM
8432 Leslie Street at Hwy. 7 (SW corner)

- Consult the experts . . .
- View actual function settings
- Sample some delicious appetizers and desserts
- See the latest in exclusive bridal fashions
- Hear some of the best bands and DJs in the business

• Bridal Gowns • Formal Wear • Giftware • Travel • Decor

• Entertainment • Photography • Flowers • Music • Video

For further information call
RAPHY AMAR OR BERYL MACLEOD (416) 798-7246

EVA GOLDFINGER
Licensed Secular Humanistic Jewish Clergy
Meaningful Jewish & Inter-Cultural
WEDDINGS
Baby Namings, Bar/Bat Mitzvahs, Funerals & Counselling
(905) 889-7450

From coast to coast

Hard times hit Cape Breton Jewish community

By JOEL JACOBSON
Atlantic Correspondent

GLACE BAY — Arthur Zilbert was like so many Glace Bay Jewish teens growing up in the 1950s and 1960s.

He had a Jewish education in a vibrant community but when it came time to make post-secondary education and career decisions, Glace Bay was not in the plans.

"My father ran a grocery store," says Zilbert, now an obstetrician and gynecologist in Halifax. "He had no expectations of me coming in with him. He ran the store with his background but hoped I'd be able to do other things. The community feeling generally, for all the young people, was 'go away, get educated and do something else.'"

Zilbert attended McGill University, earned his medical degree at Dalhousie University and stayed away from his home town.

Dozens of other Glace Bay youth made similar decisions and today, the Jewish community of the Cape Breton mining town is on its last legs.

"We have about 20 members now, the majority well along in years," says Ellie Marshall, a retired retail clothing merchant who has been president of the Orthodox Sons of Israel Congregation for the last several years. "Now that we're in the middle of the High Holidays, and we see guests and families at our shul, we have a spark of light, but we're not naive enough to think the inevitable won't happen. The reality is there. It could be within a year that the synagogue closes."

Zilbert admits it's virtually impossible for the community to recover.

"The economy won't lure Jews to Cape Breton. There is no business to speak of — unemployment is high."

He says the town was lucky that eastern Europeans moved in early in the century "with a strong sense of Judaism and the ability to daven and read Torah. It was a wonderful town in which to grow up."

Today, he says, it's sad to go into the shul and see a handful of people.

"They continue to carry on the routine but it's with more effort each week."

Marshall, who is moving to Ottawa next spring to be closer to family, is proud that the doors have remained open this long and that Shabbat services are held weekly, even in winter when several members go south.

Sidney Lipkus, in his 40s, isn't about to give up the ship. He's been a vice-president of the shul and is president of the Chevra Kadisha.

"I'll fight to keep the shul open at least until the year 2000. I'll keep it open until the last possible day. Then I'll go to Sydney (20 km away) although unfortunately, some older members of our congregation may not be able to, because of health or lack of transportation."

For the past 15 years Glace Bay has been a town of 15 Jewish men but Zilbert says in the 1950s and 60s, he had as many as 50 classmates from the 70 or 80 families at the Hebrew School.

"But 95 percent of those 15 men show up at weekly minyan. That's dedication. Where else in the world would you find 95 percent of your congregation attending weekly services?"

He recalls the Shabbat a year ago, six weeks after his son Nathan's bar mitzvah in Halifax, when the Zilbert family returned to Arthur's roots.

"We arranged for Nathan to daven and do the haftorah. It was a great experience for me. Nathan and (daughter) Leah were very touched by the kindness and warmth of the congregation. That small town friendship and camaraderie won't be experienced again."

B'nai Brith to honor Monty Hall

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Monty Hall, one of Winnipeg Jewry's best known former sons, will be honored by B'nai Brith Canada with its 1998 Humanitarian Award at a tribute dinner here March 18.

Humanitarian Award

Best known to the North American public as the host of the long-running TV show Let's Make A Deal, Hall is renowned for his charitable work. He has raised over $450 million for countless charities and organizations. He is also a tireless campaigner for Israel Bonds, United Jewish Appeal and other Jewish and Israeli-based organizations.

The lifetime international chair of Variety Clubs International, he has been honored numerous times, but the presentation of the B'nai Brith Canada Humanitarian Award may be his first testimonial dinner in his home town, says Lyle Smordin, president of B'nai Brith Canada.

"He is very pleased," says Smordin of Hall, "and his brother, Bob, who lives in Toronto, is also very excited."

Hall has been back in Winnipeg often over the years to emcee various events and he even has a street named after him. Previous Humanitarian Award winners include Israel Asper; Lloyd Axworthy, Canada's foreign minister; and Manitoba Premier Gary Filmon.

Open Window Bakery
Health Bread
over 30 stores to serve you across metro
THIS WEEKEND SPECIAL
IN ALL OUR STORES
From FRIDAY, OCTOBER 24th to SUNDAY, OCTOBER 26th
SWISS SWIRL MARBLE CAKE $4.99 Reg. Price $5.75
Dome $5.59 Reg. Price $6.35
ASK FOR OTHER IN-STORE SPECIALS

A TIME TO LEARN at SHAAREI SHOMAYIM
470 Glencairn Avenue • 789-3213
BACK TO BASICS SERIES
The Ten Commandments – Dr. E. Malamet (Tues., Oct. 28-Tues., Dec. 9, 7:30-8:30 p.m.)
Basic Judaism: The Holidays – Rabbi E. Diamond (Tues., Oct. 28-Tues., Dec. 9, 8:30-9:30 p.m.)
Leading Davening – Shloimo Sufrin (Wed., Oct. 29-Wed., Dec. 10, 8:00-9:00 p.m.)
Pray & Learn – Dr. E. Malamet (Shabbat 9:30 a.m.-12:00 noon)
TEXTUAL STUDY
The Joseph Story – Dr. S. Zolty (Tuesdays, 9:30-11:00 a.m.)
Parshat Kedoshim – Rabbi C. Sacknovitz (Mon., Nov. 3-Mon., Dec. 8, 8:00-9:00 p.m.)
Masechet Makot – Rabbi H. Hoschander (Mon., Oct. 27-Mon., Dec. 8, 8:00-9:00 p.m.)
A Tapestry of Minhagim – Chazzan Y. Motzen (Wed., Oct. 29-Wed., Dec. 10, 8:00-9:00 p.m.)
JEWISH EXPERIENCES
Parenting Classes AM & PM
Book Club Review
Women's Rosh Chodesh
Simcha Dancing for Women
Judaica Collections
For more details & information consult our Time to Learn Brochure available at Shaarei Shomayim.

Libby V. Labell, M.Sc. • Consultant for Seniors in Montreal
Past President of Jewish Family Services
Family Counseling
Coordinating with
Health Care Services
Retirement Residences
Foster/Nursing Homes
Personalized Service
Free Consultation (514) 482-4818

BIALIK HEBREW DAY SCHOOL
12 Viewmount Avenue, Toronto
invites prospective parents to its
PRESCHOOL (JR. K. AND SR. K.) ORIENTATION
Wednesday, November 5, at 9:15 a.m..
or
Wednesday, November 12, at 7:30 p.m.
Each session will last no more than 2 hours
Call and reserve a place with Allison Allen: 783-3346
The Bialik Preschool offers
Financial Assistance for Preschool Jewish Education
in accordance with the guidelines used by the Board of Jewish Education for grade school studies.

From coast to coast

Frum compares her mother to Princess Diana

By ROBERTA STALEY
Jewish Western Bulletin

VANCOUVER — Barbara Frum's daughter Linda Frum says her broadcaster mother's death from leukemia had a similar impact in Canada to that of Princess Diana's death worldwide.

"In some of the commentary that was on CBC [after Diana's death], a guest was asked by one of the hosts if he thought there was anybody who could die in Canada who could produce the same feelings of grief and sadness in Canadians as Diana," said Frum, the key speaker at a recent Vancouver Hadassah-WIZO luncheon to kick off the Jewish new year and welcome new members.

"And the guest said: 'No, they couldn't think of any one at all,'" Frum continued. "But I thought that wasn't true. In fact...about the time that my mother died, there was a very similar kind of outpouring," the 34-year-old said of her mother, a leading broadcast news interviewer.

Barbara Frum died of leukemia on March 26, 1992. She was 54.

Frum said her mother would be mortified at being compared to a princess, "because in any Jewish home, to call someone a princess was about the worst thing you could say," she said, drawing chuckles from the crowd of 250.

Nonetheless, there were other parallels between Princess Diana and Barbara Frum, her daughter said.

Both had the ability to turn a "great difficulty into the inspiration to become a better person. In Diana's case, I'm talking about her divorce. In my mother's case, I'm talking about her illness and the way she carried on her life after she found out she had leukemia.

"She took this essential death sentence that she received and turned it into a more noble and dignified way of living" said Frum, author of a the 1996 book Barbara Frum A Daughter's Memoir.

Frum, a Toronto resident, drew other comparisons between her mother and Princess Diana. The princess, because of what Frum deemed her vulnerability, was able to empathize with others who had suffered. Her mother's natural kindness toward others was enhanced by the suffering she endured from leukemia, said Frum.

Princess Diana "belonged to the constituency of the rejected," Frum said quoting Diana's 33-year-old brother Charles Spencer. "And in my mother's case, I think she felt a real affiliation for what I would call the constituency of the sick and the fearful."

She recalled how her mother sent a huge package of vitamins, painkillers and condoms to the Russians she interviewed for a CBC story.

"It was one of the million gestures she would make over her life," said Frum.

Another key speaker at the Hadassah-WIZO luncheon was national executive vice-president Lily Frank.

Nationally, Hadassah-WIZO has a membership of about 17,000. It is affiliated with World WIZO, the Women's International Zionist Organization.

Founded in 1917, Hadassah-WIZO raises money to support health, social welfare and educational programs in Canada and Israel.

Non-Profit Jewish Organization in need of cars to be DONATED. Tax Receipts issued. Please call (905) 764-1818 Ext. 201

Olive Eye Productions and Theatre Asylum present

My George Tabori's Mother's Courage

Starring ELIZABETH SHEPHERD
Directed by JENNIFER CAPRARO

1944. A summer day in Budapest, turns deadly. Only by her own wits, courage and luck can Elsa Tabori escape!

'Elizabeth Shepherd's performance is... possibly the finest piece of acting I have seen in Canada' - Globe & Mail

'Played out with...irony and humour' - NOW

Preview October 22 * Run October 23 - November 2
Theatre Passe Muraille, 16 Ryerson (Bathurst & Queen)
(416) 504-7529

UJA FEDERATION

Canadian Society for Yad Vashem is pleased to invite you to join our Guest of Honour, The Honourable Michael Harris, Premier of Ontario, to pay tribute to the Righteous Among The Nations and to honour the Memory of the Six Million who Perished.

The Honourable
Michael Harris, Premier of Ontario

The title Righteous Among The Nations was created in an effort to honour the men and women who risked certain death to save Jewish lives during World War II. To date, more than 10,000 individual names have been inscribed on the "Righteous Wall of Honour" at the Yad Vashem Museum in Jerusalem.

WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 5, 1997
INN ON THE PARK, CENTENNIAL BALLROOM
COCKTAILS 6:30 P.M. DINNER 7:00 P.M.
COUVERT: $250.00 PER PERSON

HONORARY DINNER CHAIRMAN: THE HONOURABLE CHARLES HARNICK
DINNER CO-CHAIRS: JOEL DIMITRY, RONALD FAUST,
HARRY KICHLER & ELLEN SMOSKOWITZ
HONORARY NATIONAL CHAIRMAN: LESLIE DAN
NATIONAL CHAIRMAN: HANK ROSENBAUM

CAMPAIGN CABINET
CHAIR: ALEX EISEN
LOU GREENBAUM, ISAAC JESIN, DAVID PELTZ, EVA SILVERBERG,
PETER SILVERMAN & DAVID SMUSCHKOWITZ

For information, please contact:
(416) 785-1333

TRIBUTE COMMITTEE

Isabel Bassett MPP
Debbie Berlach
Elinor Caplan MP
Mayor Don Cousins
Aubrey & Marla Dan
Leslie & Anna Dan
Cantor Louis Danto
Frank Diamant
Dr. Saul Dimitry
Betty Eisenstadt
Sol & Toby Feldberg
Sydney Ganghar
Councillor Norm Gardner
Paul Godfrey
Herman Gottesman
Senator Jerahmiel Grafstein
Alex Grossman
Max & Sheila Guttman
Stuart & Andrea Hytman
Jehudi Kinar
Consul General of Israel
Monte Kwinter MPP
Mayor Mel Lastman
The Honourable Al Leach MPP
Ralph Lean
Marylyn Light
Jeffery S. Lyons, QC
Howard Orfus
Jim Peterson MP
Alexander & Jeannie Raab
Bob Rae
Arnold Recht
Sigmund Reiser
The Honourable William Saunderson MPP
Rabbi Philip Scheim
Allan Silber
Avrom Silver
Ralph Snow
Shoel Silver
Ed Sonshine
Allan Tonks
The Honourable David Tsubouchi MPP
David Turnbull MPP
David Young

זכור

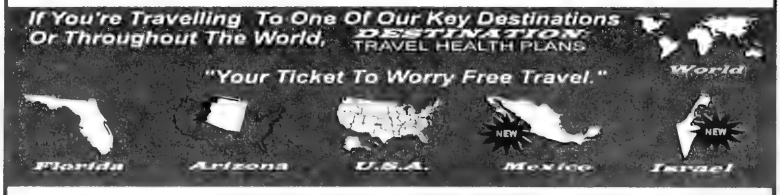
Canadian Society for
YAD VASHEM
The Holocaust
Martyrs' and Heroes'
Remembrance Authority

A tax receipt will be issued for the maximum allowable amount. Visa, MasterCard, Israel Bonds accepted. Kashrut observed.

From coast to coast

DESTINATION:®
TRAVEL HEALTH PLANS

- No Pre-existing Health Provisions.
- Easy to Understand, Easy to Qualify "Eligibility Provisions"
- Plans Available up to Age 84.
- Standard/ Preferred/New Super Preferred/Daily Rated/Annual Plans Available.
- Loyalty Reward Programs, Leading to Future Reduced Rates.
- Comprehensive Medical Coverage in the U.S.A. and throughout the World.
- Top-ups to Individual as well as Group Plans.



Recommended by: B'Nai Brith

For Information, Or To Receive Our Exciting Detailed Package
Please Call... or fax us at...

Canada Wide	In Toronto	Fax
1-800-337-3532	416 - 499-6616	416 - 499-0656

Insured by: The Great-West Life Assurance Company

Great West Life is a Canadian Insurance Company with over 40 billion dollars in assets. It is the largest group insurance underwriter in Canada and serves the financial needs of 5 million people. Great West Life ranks among the highest rated financial institutions in North America and has the strength of a century's experience behind it.

A Cruise long to be Remembered...

B-H

Festival Entertainers

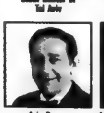
Avraham Fried
The King of Chassidic Music

Avi Albrecht
Cantor, Beth Tefilah
Baltimore, MD

Naftali Hershik
Cantor, The Jerusalem
Great Synagogue

Chaim Adler
Chief Cantor of
Tel Aviv

Moshe Schulhof /Cantor
The Concord Hotel NY
and Aventura, FL



Aric Brown
Lt. Col. Chief Cantor of the Israeli Army

Aaron Ben Tzvi
Temple Beth Shalom
Roslyn Heights, NY

Israel Band /Cantor
Hampton Synagogue
New York

Raymond Goldstein
Pianist, The Jerusalem
Great Synagogue

Accompanied by
The Geulah Klezmer Band

Celebrity Cruises

A Festival of Jewish Music at Sea
"Jerusalem 3000"

Freshly Cooked
Glatt Kosher, Cholov Yisroel Cuisine, O.R.C.

January 11-18, 1998

Sail Celebrity Cruise Lines Newest Five Star Ship The Mercury
A one week cruise (7 Nights). Sailing from Ft. Lauderdale to Key West, Cozumel, Calica, Mexico and Grand Cayman.

Festival Program:
Chassidic, Cantorial, Yiddish, Sephardic-Ladino music and Klezmer concerts. Daily services and Shiurim, all ship amenities, activities, entertainment and lectures are included.

DO NOT MISS THIS SPECIAL OPPORTUNITY!

For more information and reservations contact Sheryl Bernstein
American Express® Travel, 330 Biscayne Boulevard, Miami, FL 33132
Tel 305 358 7350 Toll-free 800 635 9870 Fax 305 358 2932
International collect calls accepted. Travel agents welcome.

Sponsored by:
American Express Travel
The American Society for the Advancement of Cantorial Arts, Inc.
Miami Beach, FL
Chabad Lubavitch of Florida

Breaking ground: Ottawa Mayor Jacquelin Holzman flanks campaign chair Roger Greenberg (left) and Regional Chair Peter Clark.

Ottawa JCC underway

By DIANE KOVEN
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — The long awaited ground-breaking for Ottawa's expanding Jewish Community Campus took place amid fanfare on Sept. 7.

Under the direction and guidance of community capital campaign chair Roger Greenberg and associate campaign chair Stephen Victor, division chairs, volunteers and staff members solicited and collected pledges from nearly 2,000 donors to make this community dream a reality.

Though once the centre of Jewish activity in Ottawa, the present Jewish Community Centre (JCC) and communal offices no longer meet the community's needs. Few Jews live in the area; the building is in dire need of updating and refurbishing; and parking is a major problem.

After many meetings and consultations with professionals, the decision was made to follow the trend of building an integrated campus that will include a 68,000-square-foot community building together with the recently refurbished day school building (already being used as the west end campus of the Jewish Community Centre); Tamir Home for Jewish developmentally handicapped adults; and eventually a brand new Hillel Lodge, home to Ottawa's Jewish elderly.

In addition to the many individual and corporate donations, several major donors have taken specific dedications. The building for which the sod was turned, the new home for the JCC, Vaad offices and Jewish Historical Society, will be known as the Joseph and Rose Ages Building. The JCC will be known as the Hy and Ruth Soloway Jewish Community Centre. The building that will hopefully one day house the new Hillel Lodge will be known as the Bess and Moe Greenberg Building. Sibyl Mirsky and her children, Lorne, Reesa and Stephen Greenberg have linked their names to the refurbished school building. Herb and Dorothy Nadolny and Lyon and Dundi Sachs will be naming the gymnasium and main lobby of the new campus building respectively.

Local, provincial and federal politicians were in attendance at the ceremony, including Ottawa-Carleton regional chair Peter Clark, a Hillel Lodge supporter, and Ottawa Mayor Jacquelin Holzman who has been an active and dedicated member of the local Jewish community for many years. Israeli Ambassador David Sultan was there as well.

WEST ISLAND

Quality Suites

Pointe-Claire (Qc)
6300 Trans Canada Hwy
(514) 426-5060
1-800-228-5151

"YOUR HOME" Away From Home

Special Corporate, Group & Weekend rates
*free access to "Y" for guests

Home is always the first choice.
Senior Care

makes it possible.

Homemakers • Housekeepers
• Personal Care
• Volunteer & Social Work Services
• Caregiver Relief
• Kosher Meals on Wheels
Safe, Professional, Experienced.

Senior Care
Call us at 416-635-2860

From coast to coast

Libman hails court ruling on referendum law

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL — Robert Libman hailed his success in having sections of Quebec's Referendum Act that regulate campaign spending ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of Canada "a fantastic political victory that anyone who believes in democracy or free speech should rejoice in."

The Supreme Court unanimously decided that these sections are not a reasonable limit on the freedoms of expression and association guaranteed by the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms because the restrictions on third-party spending in a referendum campaign are "so restrictive that they come close to being a total ban."

The Court said better alternatives could be found to fulfil the law's objective of campaign fairness. It could allow citizens, either individually or in groups, to spend a certain amount as they see fit to communicate their points of view, without having it counted as regulated expenses and therefore subject to the approval of the two official committees conducting the Yes and No campaigns.

The judgment overturns a decision by Quebec Superior Court in 1992 that the limitation was justifiable because controlling campaign expenditure is necessary to promote an equal hearing of the two options offered by the government (Yes or No) and to prevent the debate from being dominated by those with the most money – ideals seen as in the higher interest of democracy than individual expression.

That judgment was upheld in a 2-1 decision of the Quebec Court of Appeal in 1995.

Groups or individuals who wish to participate in a referendum campaign must either join or affiliate with one of the two national committees (which are headed by the leaders of the two main parties, the Parti Québécois (PQ) and the Liberals) and have any activities involving spending approved by those committees, which control regulated expenses.

The only unregulated expense allowed to those not under the umbrella of either committee is a maximum of $600 for organizing or holding meetings.

Libman's lawyer, Julius Grey, argued that if Libman wants to take part in the referendum campaign independently of the national committees, his "freedom of political expression will be limited to unregulated expenses ($600).

"Conversely, if he wishes to be able to incur regulated expenses, he will have to join or affiliate himself with one of the national committees."

Libman, while leader of the Equality party, launched his case in anticipation of the 1992 Charlottetown Accord referendum because he found it absurd that he would have to affiliate with the No committee headed by PQ leader Jacques Parizeau, because he was, at the time, against the proposed Charlottetown accord, though for reasons diametrically opposed to those of the PQ.

The Supreme Court in its 50-page judgment agrees that limiting campaign spending is essential to ensure the fairness of a referendum. The Referendum Act has laudable objectives, the Court found, because its "primary purpose is to promote political expression by ensuring an equal dissemination of points of view purely out of respect for democratic traditions," and does allow the vast majority of people favoring one of the options to participate actively.

However, the Court could not accept the act's spending restrictions on individuals or groups who cannot or do not wish to join or affiliate with a national committee.

"The forms of expression provided for in (section 404) are so restrictive that they come close to being a total ban. There are alternative solutions consistent with the act's objective that are far better than the exceptions set out in s. 404."

The judgment makes suggestions on how the act could be amended to allow this freedom, while preventing abuse, such as the pooling by individuals or groups of their spending caps.

The Court said it is not its place to decide what the maximum amount on independent spending should be, but it will "have to be fair while being small enough to be consistent with the objective of the act."

On the issue of freedom of expression, the Court insists it must be interpreted broadly. "Unless the expression is communicated in a manner that excludes the protection (of the Charter), such as violence, any activity or communication that conveys or attempts to convey meaning is covered by the guarantee of (section 2[b])."

However, protecting the fairness of referendum campaigns will "necessarily involve certain restrictions on freedom of expression," namely that of the most affluent who could, if their spending was not regulated, have the most influence.

Libman said he would be very surprised if Premier Lucien Bouchard invokes the notwithstanding clause to override the charter. "Not if he considers himself a democrat: It would be difficult to justify overriding freedom of expression. Certainly, it would never be understood internationally." Grey hinted that if it came to that, he would consider taking the matter to the United Nations.

"The decision was not political, it's totally juridical," Grey said. The decision approved the basic policy of the government to restrict spending as long as certain fundamental rights are not violated."

IF YOUR AGING PARENTS ARE LIVING ALONE IN MONTREAL AND YOU CAN'T BE THERE

CALL CONSULTING SERVICES FOR THE ELDERLY

SIMONE AZAR COHEN, B.S.W., I.S.

(514) 483-6915

WE'LL BE THERE WHEN YOU CAN'T!

- Counselling Services: individuals, families
- Home visits to assess care needs
- Organize a home care plan
- Locate alternate living accomodations
- Psycho social assessments for curatorship or mandates

Member of the Ordre Professionnel des Travailleurs Sociaux du Québec

A Fair to remember...

Fall in love with Israel!

You're invited to join the community at the

Israel Fair

Find out about:

✡ Summer Experiences! ✡ Jobs!

✡ Volunteer Opportunities! ✡ University & Religious Studies

✡ Live Entertainment throughout the day

Discover a Shuk-full of Israel programs under one roof!

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 2

10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.

Bathurst Jewish Centre
Front Lobby
4588 Bathurst Street

For more information call Karen Worb at (416) 631-5731

UJA FEDERATION

יובל החמישים לישראל
ISRAEL 50TH JUBILEE
YOUR DATE WITH HISTORY

DINING PLEASURES

Club Nest
Hungarian Restaurant & Piano Bar
Specializing in HUNGARIAN DISHES
Goulash Soup, Wiener Schnitzel, Cabbage Rolls, Paprikas, Strudels
$10.00 OFF dinner for two with this coupon, Mon. to Fri.
Live music 7 days, 6 pm – 2 am
אנחנו מדברים עברית
1120 Eglinton West
(416) 782-9630

Posidon Restaurant
2 FOR 1
MAXIMUM DISCOUNT UP TO $10 OFF WITH THIS AD
Specializing in
Lamb Chops, Salmon, Orange Roughy, Chicken Breasts, Shrimp, Fillet of Sole Tiger • 729 Danforth
729 Danforth Ave.
465-4848

Shorasheem
Jewish/Israeli Restaurant & Night Club
שורשים
DINNER SERVED TUESDAY – THURSDAY & SATURDAY
Let us make your simcha a success!
• Entertainment on us (live band with international music)
• The fun on us • The decorations on us
BAR/BAT MITZVAHS • WEDDINGS • ANNIVERSARIES
ENGAGEMENT PARTIES • ALL YOUR SIMCHAS
FROM ONLY $25 PER PERSON
398 Steeles West (905) 707-0330

O MEI
SPECIALIZING IN SEAFOOD, SZECHUAN & PEKING CUISINE
618 SHEPPARD WEST 635-5050
248 STEELES WEST 889-8282
5150 YONGE STREET 222-2300
420 HIGHWAY 7 EAST 881-8188
ANY DISH 1/2 PRICE
with regular-price food purchase of $15 or more (not including beverages, liquor or specials) before taxes. Cannot be combined with other offers. Limit two half price dishes per table. Dining room only.
VALID TO OCTOBER 31 / 97 AT STEELES AND YONGE LOCATIONS ONLY

Future Bakery and Café
Any specialty bread 1/2 PRICE
Taste why we were chosen best bakers in T.O.
By NOW MAGAZINE & TORONTO SUN Readers
Expires Oct 31, 1997
Future Bakery and Café
Have a FREE Café au Lait
on us, with your purchase of Dessert, or $5.00 off any whole cake.
1535 Yonge St. (N. of St. Clair)
483 Bloor St. W. (at Bathurst)
Expires Oct 31, 1997

Bostons Family Restaurant
Bostons has an Eastern European flavour . . . our chef brings 15 years experience at United Bakers Restaurant to our cozy, family-run restaurant. Come and try some of our specialities:

Lox & Cream Cheese Bagel.....$4.25	7 oz. Filet of Sole.....$6.95*
Veggie Burger Platter.....$3.55	Veal Schnitzel.....$7.95*

*(served with choice of potato, rice or pasta and vegetable)

1958 Yonge Street
Phone: 416-932-1913
Hours:
Mon.-Fri. 7:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m.
Sat. 8:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.
Sun. 8:00 a.m. - 8:00 p.m.
Reservations accepted

ACQUA
RISTORANTE E BAR
has private areas or the entire restaurant available for Weddings, Bar and Bat Mitzvahs
Menus customized to suit your preferences for parties of up to 200 guests
• Dance floor • Professional Sound System
For more information, or to reserve contact Helder Carvalho (416) 368-7171
BCE Place 10 Front Street West

Come Celebrate Our 28th Anniversary
Hotwok at Younglok

HOT GRILL TOO!
Younglok Since 1969
Madison Centre, 4950 Yonge Street, North York
For Reservations 225-8818
Free Underground Validated Parking

International

Israel & the Jewish World

Your Jewish Community Chapel
STEELES MEMORIAL CHAPEL
70 years of traditional service
(905) 881-6003
(416) 733-2000

Israel, PA quietly negotiating a 'package deal'

By STEVE RODAN and MOHAMMED NAJIB
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Israel and the Palestinian Authority (PA) are quietly negotiating a halt to Jewish housing construction in the territories in exchange for the delay or cancellation of further IDF redeployment in the West Bank, a government official said last weekend.

The official, who also is participating in the current Israel-PA negotiations, said the focus of these efforts are in Washington, where with the help of U.S. mediators, both sides are working on what he called a package deal. The proposed accord would link all Israeli and Palestinian concerns raised over the past year.

The key to the deal, the negotiator said, is a trade-off between a Palestinian demand for a halt in settlements with an Israeli demand that the further redeployment in the West Bank be delayed.

"Right now, we are working on questions of how long there should be such a halt in settlement and whether we can trade that with a delay or cancellation of the redeployment," the negotiator said.

The negotiator said the current committee talks in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem will not be concluded until an agreement is reached in Washington.

A PA official confirmed the assessment and said the negotiations in Washington with State Department officials and envoy Dennis Ross will determine the outcome of the committee talks. The Washington negotiations are to be held from Oct. 27 to 31.

Ross arrived yesterday for talks with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, President Ezer Weizman and PA Chairman Yasser Arafat.

So far, both Israeli and PA negotiators agree that the talks have been inching along. For example, an Israeli source said, talks on the opening of a Palestinian airport in Gaza are stalled, with the PA refusing Israeli demands for an IDF presence at the facility, instead offering electronic surveillance.

"This is simply not acceptable to us," a senior negotiator said. "We need a physical presence. There is no replacement for that."

PA negotiator and minister Saeb Erekat said the forthcoming Washington agenda is composed of several points. They include a Palestinian demand for Israel not to take unilateral steps that will affect the final status of the territories, implementation of Israeli further redeployment in the West Bank, security cooperation against terrorism and completing the work of the nine committees currently discussing various issues that concern previous agreements.

"I think that Mr. Ross will help us this time implement what has been agreed upon," Erekat said. "We don't want the negotiations to be for the sake of negotiations. All these negotiations have been agreed upon. All we have to achieve is the mechanism for implementation. We hope the Israeli government will have the political will to have the accurate implementation. So far, the negotiations are just going around in circles."

The PA cabinet said last week that the newly resumed negotiations with Israel are stuck, and expressed the hope that Ross will press the Netanyahu government to implement the interim agreements.

"The resumption of committees hasn't shown any Israeli willingness to change its position in the interim stage," said a statement by the PA cabinet, which met last Saturday in Ramallah. "It is clear that the Israeli side doesn't want American participation in the work of the committees."

The statement said that Israel and the PA had finished negotiations on the interim agreements early this year, but that Netanyahu has refused to implement them. PA ministers expressed concern at what they termed the "empty circle" of negotiations that does not lead to results.

"It [Israel] continues to maintain the negative position, only to talk about security, terrorism and violence," the cabinet statement said.

"The Palestinian leadership express its concern that the security agreement, the redeployment and the halt in settlement are the issues that are linked together."

At the same time, Netanyahu voiced hope for peacemaking progress on the eve of Ross's visit, but vowed there would be no letup in a war to the death on terrorists "who seek our annihilation."

"In the last weeks there has been progress," Netanyahu told Israel Radio. "We hope this progress will continue and not be halted. Of course, if it is stopped this will greatly hamper parallel progress in the peace process."

Netanyahu pledged a "war to the death" against terrorist groups, saying, "The only way to fight terror – there is no other way – is to strike at it incessantly, every place, in order to sap its capabilities and undermine its belief that it will achieve its aims."

Among the topics...

Balancing social justice with fiscal responsibility...

The Charter of Rights and Freedoms' 15th anniversary report card...

What multiculturalism and social justice mean in today's Canada...

The role of human-rights commissions in promoting social cohesion through social justice...

How social-justice advocacy groups can work together to promote social cohesion...

Among the speakers...

The Hon. Hedy Fry, P.C., M.P.
Secretary of State
(Multiculturalism) (Status of Women)

Mr. John Hucker
Secretary General
Canadian Human Rights Commission

Ms. Joan Grant-Cummings
President
National Action Committee on the Status of Women

CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS...
A VOICE FOR SOCIAL JUSTICE

SINCE ITS FOUNDING IN 1919, Canadian Jewish Congress has advocated for social justice as a vital community concept.

FIND OUT MORE. . .

When .....Sunday, November 2, 1997
10:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m.

Where .....Château Laurier Hotel, Ottawa

What .....“Social Cohesion through Social Justice”
- A CJC Symposium

Why .....Because such activity fits squarely into the traditions and obligations we cherish as Jews

Info .....(613) 789-5253; E-mail: evernon@istar.ca

Israel & the Jewish World

Fallout uncertain from failed assassination attempt

[Cont'd. from page 1]

The Hamas military wing then recruits the terrorists and provides the material needed. Communication can be done by phone, fax or even e-mail and Internet. Meanwhile, the political committee reports back to Amman on planned terrorist operations.

Meshal's role has been to coordinate Hamas' activities with those of other Islamic terrorist groups, including the Iranian-backed Hezbollah in Lebanon. A security source charges that Meshal helped Hezbollah in the bombings in Buenos Aires of the Israeli Embassy in 1992 and the Jewish federation building in 1994.

The source says Meshal is believed to have helped arrange the shipment of the material needed for the bomb that leveled both buildings, or hired the services of former Mujahideen fighters in Afghanistan. In the 1980s, the Mujahideen battled the Soviet Red Army; today they are available for services ranging from fighting in Bosnia or executing terrorist operations in Paris or other western capitals.

The suspicion of Meshal's involvement in the Argentine bombings has been raised in intelligence briefings, a senior government official says. But other intelligence sources maintain that there is no hard evidence of this yet.

Reuven Paz, a Haifa University researcher on Islamic movements and once head of the research department at the General Security Services, is skeptical. "Khaled Meshal was not mentioned as a liaison with Islamic extremists abroad until two weeks ago," he points out. "Regarding the bombings in Argentina, nobody in the security establishment knows exactly who was behind them."

Intelligence sources say the role of the Hamas organization based in Jordan, in terrorist attacks in Israel, has increased since 1996. They say that Meshal and his colleagues in Jordan are now the source of all orders to carry out terrorist operations. The Damascus political committee implements policy, they say, but does not initiate attacks.

The sources say that Hamas in Jordan has been so intent on executing terrorist attacks that it has ignored the appeals of Hamas activists in Gaza for a temporary ceasefire. Such a ceasefire was requested earlier this year by Hamas in the territories. But Meshal's group refused, saying terrorist attacks represent the most important weapon of the organization.

A Hamas leader in Gaza refuses to confirm this although he acknowledges that certain activists have been pressing for a ceasefire for the last year, mostly to avoid a confrontation with the Palestinian Authority.

A senior Israeli security source insists that Meshal's group has been responsible for all terrorist operations in Israel for the last year, and that he was also behind the effort to conceal Hamas' involvement in the Jerusalem suicide bombings, although he penned the Hamas communique found in Ramallah, claiming responsibility for the September 4 triple suicide bombings in Jerusalem's Ben-Yehuda Street.

Terrorism requires money and Israeli security sources say Hamas has plenty of it. They estimate the organization's budget at between $60 and $70 million a year. Most of the money, they say, comes from charities in the Gulf states, particularly Saudi Arabia. The work there is said to be coordinated by Palestinian businesspeople.

Some of the money for Hamas also comes from Islamic funds in the United States and Europe. This includes the Holy Land Foundation in the United States (which is controlled by Hamas, based in Houston, Texas), Interpal, The Muslim World League and the Islamic Relief Fund based in London, France and Germany.

Several countries contribute to Hamas, particularly Iran and Saudi Arabia. But Israeli security sources believe neither country controls the organization.

The large majority of the funding is slated for Hamas' so-called civilian sector. The establishment of kindergartens, schools, sports clubs, clinics and welfare funds ensures Palestinian support of Hamas in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Much of this money is also reserved for the families of Hamas terrorists. A small amount, perhaps 10 percent, goes for the operations themselves.

Israel has tried to persuade Jordan to limit Hamas. Instead, the Islamic organization has grown in stature in the Hashemite kingdom and is now even offering to be a mediator in efforts to resolve the poor relations between King Hussein and the Islamic opposition parties in parliament, which are refusing to participate in next month's elections.

Israeli security sources say the Jordanians are concerned over any action against Hamas or the Islamic political leadership in Jordan, which has traditionally supported King Hussein. "The Jordanians are very careful over anything that might disturb the internal balance with the Islamic fundamentalists," another senior source says.

"But the fact is the hard core of Hamas lives in Jordan."

Collective leadership

What would Meshal's death have done to Hamas, had the assassination attempt been successful? Even the most ardent supporters of assassination would not have expected the organization to crumble. Hamas has a collective leadership based in several countries, and can replace Meshal — a situation unlike that of Islamic Jihad, whose leader Fathi Shkaki, killed in 1995 in Malta, has left a void in the organization so deep that the group barely functions today.

But the consensus is that Israel cannot ignore the fact that Meshal is a mass murderer with the blood of hundreds of Israelis on his hands.

Unlike Israel, the United States claims it ended its policy of assassination 20 years ago.

In contrast, Israel does not have the political or economic resources to fight terrorism using U.S. methods. Israeli security officials say their weapon is not recruiting support against a rogue state but in being able to execute finely-honed operations to kill terrorist leaders. This includes the killing of numerous PLO leaders in the 1970s and 1980s, the last of whom was reportedly Khalil Wazir (Abu Jihad) in Tunis in 1988.

Take away that option, they maintain, and Israel remains helpless against terrorism. Worse, they say, the Israeli people will conclude that their government has no means of retaliation.

What happened this time instead, they complain, is that Meshal was saved by Israeli hands and Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu freed Hamas leader Yassin. The sheik is now in Gaza and Israeli security sources agree that the Hamas movement has reached a turning point.

The conclusion that the leadership in Jordan will now decrease in stature, is shared by Hamas leaders in Gaza.

Haifa University's Paz goes even further. He asserts that Hamas decisions on terrorism have always been taken in the territories and that individual cells, responsible for each region of the West Bank and Gaza, are autonomous. Hamas militants abroad may provide financial and political support and public relations, but not direct orders. The return of Yassin, Paz believes, will only cement this situation.

"There is a chance or danger that Hamas in the territories will gain even more prominence," Paz says. "There could be a split and there will be several wings of Hamas, each of which speaks in a different language. The pragmatic wing of Hamas could be strengthened by the return of Yassin."

Israeli security sources say they do not intend to allow the Palestinian Authority to take advantage of Yassin's return to Gaza by reopening the Hamas institutions Yasser Arafat ordered shut down last month.

The sources say they will also oppose any attempt to free detained Hamas suspects, some 100 of whom are in detention.

"Arafat started out well and Hamas is nervous," a senior security source says. "If Arafat continues [cracking down] this will be good. He has completed the arrests and is now investigating the suspects. We are following this up to ensure that the pressure on Hamas continues."

A senior security source says that Israel has information about Hamas' plans to carry out revenge attacks for the assassination attempt of Meshal — this despite the understanding in Hamas not to provoke the PA into another crackdown like the one against the Islamic movement last month.

"We can't be sure whether Hamas will indeed act rationally and not attack or assume that the PA will tolerate such attacks as it did previously," one intelligence source says.

Hamas' future, however, is unclear. Some experts, such as Paz, say the organization remains a mystery. He says the Israeli security organizations view Hamas in the same way they viewed the PLO in the 1970s, a group with a clearly defined leadership and decision-making process. But despite its wealth and huge support, Paz says, Hamas continues to be a decentralized movement. "I don't think we know what the decision-making process is in Hamas," he says. It is difficult to define the command of the military wing, where I think there is a hierarchy."

Looking for something even better?
FULL-TIME EDUCATOR
Temple Anshe Sholom needs a full-time educator to administer and teach the Judaica and Hebrew programs in our school.

We have the ideal position for an Educator who will:
- build on the recent growth in our school
- be interested in creating and implementing new programs for adults and children
- take the initiative as well as work with our committees, our Rabbi and other members of our community
- manage a wide variety of activities and get satisfaction from completing what you start
- identify and respond to the needs of our community

You are:
- a qualified educator who is a committed Reform Jew
- able to thrive working alone as well as in groups, and can stay focussed on jointly-set goals
- an excellent problem solver

For all the information you need about our community and the Educator's position, please contact:
Temple Anshe Sholom
215 Cline Avenue North, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada L8S 4A1
Attention: Chair of the Hiring Committee

Every day, hundreds of people from all walks of life congregate in the Jewish.Community Online chat rooms to debate, give support, flirt, and say what's on their minds. Come join us!

On AOL Canada Keyword:
JEWISH CANADA
For a start-up kit call 1-800-729-4499
...and read Canadian Jewish News at keyword: JEWISH NEWS

The Week in Israel

Oct. 13

• Israel released nine more Arab prisoners as part of the deal worked out with Jordan to secure the release of the two agents who attempted, but failed, to assassinate Hamas leader Khaled Meshal. Israel is expected to release a total of 60 prisoners eventually.

• The Orthodox parties advised Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu they would bring down the government if it did not proceed with the two religious bills – on conversion and the membership of religious councils – when the Knesset reconvenes on Oct. 27.

Oct. 14

• Israel's High Court overturned the conviction of former Jewish Agency chair Simcha Dinitz. Dinitz had been convicted of misusing public funds. He was suspended from his job at the agency in 1994.

• Israel and Poland signed a military agreement despite requests from Poland's incoming government to wait. The agreement is worth around $800 million (US).

Oct. 15

• Rabbi Menahem Froman from Tekoa travelled to Gaza to meet with Sheikh Ahmed Yassin. He handed Yassin a letter from Chief Sephardi Rabbi Eliahu Bakshi-Doron asking Yassin to prevent the further shedding of blood. Froman also handed Yassin a letter from Yehuda Wachsman, whose son, Nachshon, was abducted and killed by Hamas in 1994.

Oct. 16

• President Ezer Weizman was reported to have canceled a state visit to China. The Chinese government was said to have considered the decision a diplomatic slight.

• The consumer price index decreased in September 0.1 percent. It was the first time the index had registered a decline since March 1985.

Oct. 17

• Canadian Ambassador David Berger returned to his post in Tel Aviv. He said a high priority was to ensure that Israel honors its assurances that it will no longer misuse Canadian passports.

With files from the JTA

The Meshal affair

By SHELDON KIRSHNER

The Mossad's failed assassination attempt on Hamas political leader Khaled Meshal in Amman last month has had six broad consequences.

Mideast Analysis

• Israel's pivotal relationship with Jordan, its best friend in the Arab world, has been weakened, but to what degree still remains uncertain. King Hussein regarded the botched Mossad operation as a personal betrayal, and would have closed the Israeli embassy if Israel had not given Jordan an antidote to save Meshal's life and released Hamas' founder, Sheik Ahmed Yassin, as well as scores of Islamic militants. The upshot of the affair is that Jordan closed the Mossad station in Amman and reduced security cooperation with Israel. Yet even as the crisis unfolded, Israel's new ambassador to Jordan presented his credentials and the commander of the Israeli air force paid a visit.

• The Mossad's reputation for operational excellence has been irretrievably tarnished, though this is not the first time the agency has committed a major blunder. In order to patch up relations with Canada, which recalled its ambassador in the wake of the Amman operation, Foreign Minister David Levy had to promise External Affairs Minister Lloyd Axworthy that Israel would never again use forged Canadian passports, thereby compromising the Mossad's ability to mount future missions.

• Hamas, an organization which opposes the peace process and is ideologically committed to Israel's destruction, has been strengthened at the expense of the Palestine Authority, Israel's only Palestinian partner. If Hamas grows stronger, Yasser Arafat may have no alternative but to harden his conditions for peace with Israel.

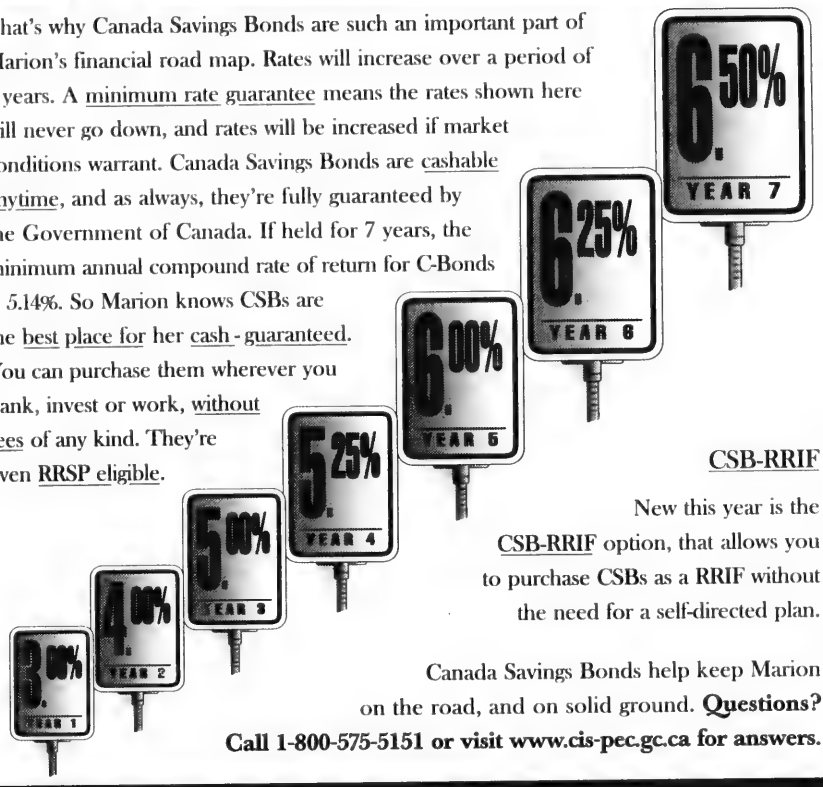
• With Hamas having gained a greater role in Palestinian policy-making, Benjamin Netanyahu now probably realizes that it is not in Israel's interest to undermine Arafat, a force of moderation compared to Yassin, whose terms for a ceasefire were the stuff of a dreamer with his feet off the ground. This may account for Netanyahu's first meeting with Arafat in eight months.

• The agreement to free upwards of 70 Palestinian prisoners, most of them identified with Hamas, undercuts Israel's war against terrorism.

• The widespread perception that Netanyahu is a bumbler has been reinforced. He displayed questionable judgment in ordering an operation on Jordanian soil. It was also a violation of Israel's 1994 peace treaty with Jordan.

Marion loves a winding road.
And why not.
She's on solid ground.

That's why Canada Savings Bonds are such an important part of Marion's financial road map. Rates will increase over a period of 7 years. A minimum rate guarantee means the rates shown here will never go down, and rates will be increased if market conditions warrant. Canada Savings Bonds are cashable anytime, and as always, they're fully guaranteed by the Government of Canada. If held for 7 years, the minimum annual compound rate of return for C-Bonds is 5.14%. So Marion knows CSBs are the best place for her cash-guaranteed. You can purchase them wherever you bank, invest or work, without fees of any kind. They're even RRSP eligible.



CSB-RRIF

New this year is the CSB-RRIF option, that allows you to purchase CSBs as a RRIF without the need for a self-directed plan.

Canada Savings Bonds help keep Marion on the road, and on solid ground. Questions?
Call 1-800-575-5151 or visit www.cis-pec.gc.ca for answers.

Canada Savings Bonds
You're on solid ground.

Canada Guaranteed Flexible Cashable Sale ends November 1st

The Officers, Executive,
Board of Directors and Staff of the

Jewish National Fund of Canada

extend deepest sympathy and condolences to our

Executive Vice-President Avner Regev and Family

on the passing of his beloved mother MIRIAM ז"ל in Israel.

May the Family be spared further sorrow.

Naomi Frankenburg
National President

YOUR CAR IN ISRAEL

ELDAN אלדן RENT-A-CAR השכרת רכב

	TYPE OF CAR OR SIMILAR	15 MAR.97 19DEC.97
	MANUAL CARS
A	FIAT PUNTO 3 DR.	147
B	CITROEN SAXO / OPEL CORSA	196
C	DAIHATSU CHARADE P.S	238
C*	PEUGEOT 306 / MAZDA 323 P.S	266
C*	FORD ESCORT P.S	294
N	KIA BESTA 8 SEATS	490
M	MINIBUS 10 SEATS	630
	AUTOMATIC CARS+A.C
D	KIA PRIDE / SUZUKY SWIFT	266
E	MAZDA 323 1.6 P.S	315
F	* NISSAN ALMERA	350
G	* MAZDA LANTIS	434
K	* GMC VANDURA	735
X	* CHEVROLET CAVALIER	497
XL	* MAZDA 626	581
SX	* CHEVROLET LUMINA	658
KX	* GMC SAFARI	770
VX	* VOLVO 940	721

* POWER STEERING & ELECTRIC WINDOWS

HIGH SEASON SUPPLEMENT 20 DEC.97 - 3 JAN.98

FROM US$ 147 PER WEEK UNLIMITED MILEAGE * EXC. INS.

USA & CANADA
Toll Free: (1) 800-938-5000
Tel in NY: 212-629-6090
http://www.eldan.co.il/

PAY UP FRONT & SAVE $$$$

SAXONY GLATT KOSHER

New for '97-'98 FITNESS CENTER

MIAMI BEACH'S #1 LUXURY KOSHER HOTEL

SPECIAL SENIOR GROUP PACKAGES
Call Golden Age Montreal
(514) 343-3515
or 739-4731

- Serving 3 Delicious Glatt Kosher Meals Daily
- Olympic Heated Pool
- Oceanfront Boardwalk
- Private Tennis Courts on Premises
- Voice Mail
- Daily Activities
- Nightly Entertainment, Dancing
- Free Cable TV with Remote

EARLY BIRD SPECIAL
DEC. 1 - DEC. 22
ANY 7 NIGHTS
$249 Per Person Double Occ. Plus Tax INCLUDING MEALS

3201 COLLINS AVE., MIAMI BEACH, FLA. 33140

SPECIAL RATES FOR LONG STAYS

TOLL FREE # 1-800-327-8169

Your host the Berkowitz Family

BEAUTIFUL FURNISHED EFFICIENCIES AVAILABLE

A Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $5.00 per month.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa or Mastercard before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please call Janice at 416-391-1836, allowing a minimum of two weeks notice.

Scholar specialized in Jewish thought

By MICHAEL GELBWASSER
The Jewish Advocate

BROOKLINE, Mass. — Jews around the world are mourning the death of renowned Harvard scholar Rabbi Yitzhak (Isadore) Twersky, who also served as the Rebbe of Boston's Talner chassidic dynasty.

Rabbi Twersky, a Brookline resident, died recently at Massachusetts General Hospital after a year-long illness. He was 67.

Memorial services were held at Congregation Beth David in Brookline, a shul established by Rabbi Twersky's father, and at the Maimonides School in Brookline, which was founded by the late Rabbi Joseph B. Soloveitchik, Rabbi Twersky's father-in-law.

Rabbi Twersky was buried in the Mount of Olives Cemetery in Jerusalem.

Born in Boston, a young Yitzhak Twersky attended the Boston Latin School and earned a bachelor of arts degree magna cum laude and a master of arts degree, as well as a doctorate, from Harvard University. He was also an ordained rabbi. In addition, he earned a master's degree in Hebrew literature from Hebrew College.

During his life, Rabbi Twersky earned international acclaim as a scholar and as a spiritual leader. From 1956 to 1965, he served as an instructor, assistant professor and associate professor of Hebrew and of Jewish history at Harvard.

In July 1965, Harvard named Rabbi Twersky its second Nathan Littauer Professor of Hebrew Literature and Philosophy. While holding that position, Rabbi Twersky chaired Harvard's Department of Near Eastern Languages and Literature for six years; he was also on the faculty of the Department of Comparative Literature. From 1978 to 1993, he directed the Harvard Centre for Jewish Studies.

Maimonides and Jewish thought were Rabbi Twersky's primary research interests, and he published several books and articles on these topics. One of his books, An Introduction to the Code of Maimonides (Mishneh Torah), which Yale University Press published in 1980, earned him two awards: the Jewish Book Council Award for a book on Jewish thought, and Present Tense magazine's Kenneth Smilen Literary Award for the Best Book in Religious Thought. In addition, the World Congress for Jewish Studies in 1981 devoted a plenary session to an assessment of the book's importance.

Jay Harris, the Harry Austryn Wolfson Professor of Jewish Studies at Harvard, said that Rabbi Twersky's research on Jewish thought attempted to "redefine Jewish spirituality" to include "all areas of Jewish learning."

Rabbi Twersky also wrote extensively on rabbinic history. In recent years, he was studying the 16th through 19th centuries.

In addition to his sons, Mosheh of Israel and Mayer of New York, Rabbi Twersky is survived by his wife, Dr. Atarah Twersky, and his daughter, Tzipporah Rosenblatt.

PM's racist remarks censured

By PETER EPHROSS
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — American Jewish groups have reacted angrily to anti-Semitic remarks recently made by Malaysia's prime minister.

The World Jewish Congress said last Friday it would complain to the UN Human Rights Commission about the remarks of Mahathir Mohammad, who blamed Jews for his country's financial troubles.

The Anti-Defamation League, the Simon Wiesenthal Centre and the American Jewish Committee (AJC) all released statements criticizing Mahathir.

"The prime minister's slanders are from a detailed script – a history of racist invective that has hounded and brought destruction to Jews for centuries," said a letter the AJC sent to Malaysia's ambassador to the United States.

Rabbi Abraham Cooper, associate dean of the Simon Wiesenthal Centre, said that by playing "the stereotypical racist card, [Mahathir] will only bolster extremist forces throughout the Muslim world."

While speaking Oct. 10 before a crowd estimated at 10,000 in a Muslim village, Mahathir said he suspected Jewish groups had an "agenda" to block the progress of Muslims.

Mahathir added that the recent decline of Malaysia's currency, the ringgit, could be the work of Jews.

As he had on previous occasions, Mahathir singled out George Soros, a wealthy Jewish investor and philanthropist, for deliberately trying to hurt the Malaysian economy by indulging in currency speculation.

Mahathir again drew criticism when he denied the comments the following day.

"I only made a statement, but the press went on to say that I was accusing the Jews. We cannot make such wild accusations," he said. "They will twist our arms."

Meanwhile, opposition politicians in Malaysia have criticized the prime minister's remarks, as have newspapers in Australia and in the Pacific Rim.

"The Malaysian prime minister is a dangerously irresponsible racist and a major threat to the stability of the southeast Asian region," the Sydney Morning Herald newspaper said in an editorial.

The Thai newspaper the Nation ran an editorial saying Mahathir is a "racist" who has "outlived his usefulness."

Observers believe that by attacking Jews, Mahathir is trying to shift the blame for the recent slide in the ringgit.

Approximately 20 million people live in Malaysia. More than half of them are Muslims.

Malaysia and Israel do not have diplomatic ties, and Israeli citizens are not allowed to visit Malaysia.

JTA correspondents Tom Tugend in Los Angeles and Jeremy Jones in Sydney contributed to this report.

Argentine investigators criticized

By SERGIO KIERNAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

BUENOS AIRES — Argentina's investigations into two terror bombings that targeted Jewish sites earlier in the decade were criticized during a recent meeting here between local Jewish representatives and President Bill Clinton.

The meeting, which brought representatives from all major Argentine Jewish organizations together with Clinton for more than an hour, focused almost exclusively on the two bombings.

The Jewish leaders told Clinton, who was joined by Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and 10 other American officials, of the need to battle terrorism.

They did not criticize the Argentine government's inability to find those responsible for the bombings.

But five relatives of the bombing victims who were present at the meeting gave Clinton a five-page letter saying, "The very poor performance of the Argentine judiciary and security agencies is an invitation to terrorism to strike again."

Last week, before the Jewish leaders spoke with Clinton, Argentine President Carlos Menem met with them and asked them not to criticize the government when they spoke with the American president during his visit to Latin America.

Menem apparently was seeking to avoid embarrassment over his government's continued inability to solve the March 17, 1992, bombing of the Israeli Embassy and the July 18, 1994, bombing of the Argentine Jewish Mutual Aid Association, also known as AMIA.

The attacks in Buenos Aires killed 115 people and left hundreds of wounded.

Emergency Services CLOSING

Monday, Nov. 3, 1997

The Emergency Department
at the former Northwestern General Hospital
will close at 7:30 a.m.
Monday, November 3, 1997.

A new Ambulatory/Walk-in Service
will open at 7:30 a.m. on
Monday, November 3, 1997
at the same location, the Keele Street site of Humber River Regional Hospital (HHRH), 2175 Keele Street.

HRRH's new Keele Street Ambulatory/ Walk-in Service will provide non-emergency medical care to those in need of medical attention. The Walk-in Service will operate from 7:30 a.m. until 10 p.m. seven days a week.

The Church Street (formerly Humber Memorial Hospital) and Finch Avenue (formerly York-Finch General Hospital) sites of HRRH will continue to provide emergency services 24-hours-a-day.

HRRH will relocate other programs and services this fall. These changes are outlined in Humber River Regional Hospital's Service Update, which will be published in local community newspapers October 26 and 28. To obtain a copy, or for more information on hospital program and service changes, call our Patient Services Information Line at (416) 658-2044.

Humber River Regional Hospital was formed January 1, 1997 with the voluntary merger of the former Northwestern General, Humber Memorial and York-Finch General Hospitals.

Church Street Site
200 Church Street
Weston, Ontario
(416) 249-8111

Finch Avenue Site
2111 Finch Avenue W.
Downsview, Ontario
(416) 744-2500

Keele Street Site
2175 Keele Street
Toronto, Ontario
(416) 651-6111

HR
Humber River
REGIONAL HOSPITAL

For more information, call the Humber River Regional Hospital Patient Services Information Line at (416) 658-2044.

IDF's 1997 Lebanon death toll rises to 39

By DAVID RUDGE
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Two deaths last weekend brought to 39 the number of IDF soldiers who have been killed in action in south Lebanon since January. Over 70 have been wounded.

According to news agency reports, some 50 gunmen from Hezbollah and the Amal Shi'ite movement have also been killed during the same period.

An IDF soldier was killed and two others were slightly hurt when their tank was hit by an anti-tank missile during fighting in the eastern sector of the security zone last Saturday evening.

And Staff-Sgt. Mahdi Hatib, 22, from Beit Jann, died in Haifa's Rambam Hospital of wounds he suffered in a friendly fire incident in south Lebanon over two months ago.

Saturday's attack occurred near the Rehan position in the north-eastern sector of the security zone. Reports from Lebanon said gunmen fired a missile at the tank, scoring a direct hit. The two wounded soldiers were evacuated by helicopter to Tzfat's Rebecca Sieff Hospital.

Hezbollah, which has intensified its activities in the past few months, claimed responsibility for the attack.

On Friday afternoon and evening, mortars and missiles were fired at IDF troops on patrol and at several SLA outposts in the area, without causing casualties. Fire was returned by IDF and SLA gunners, and reports from Lebanon said a civilian was wounded as a result of shelling north of the security zone.

Security sources noted that during the incidents over the weekend, Hezbollah gunmen on several occasions again used villages and public facilities as cover for firing at IDF and SLA targets, in violation of the Grapes of Wrath understandings.

Hezbollah is believed to have received large quantities of weapons from Iran via Syria in the past few months, including improved anti-tank missiles. According to some reports, the supplies have included American-made TOW anti-tank missiles, which are much more accurate and faster than Sagger or other types of anti-tank missiles previously used by Hezbollah, and apparently have better armor-penetrating power.

On Friday afternoon, IAF warplanes also struck at an underground base of Ahmed Jibril's terrorist group near Nuameh, south of Beirut.

The IDF spokesperson said the pilots reported direct hits on the target and that all the planes returned safely to their bases. There were no reports of any casualties from the air strike.

In other activities in the area, members of a parents' movement calling for an organized withdrawal from south Lebanon staged a demonstration Saturday near the Lebanese border. They afterwards collected signatures and urged people to send letters to Defence Minister Yitzhak Mordechai and Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu calling for a pullout.

The ongoing public debate in Israel sparked a harsh warning by SLA commander, Gen. Antoine Lahad, that his troops are likely to turn their weapons against Israel if the IDF withdraws unilaterally from the security zone.

Lahad told the French newspaper Le Figaro that a withdrawal without an international accord countersigned by Syria would cause half his army to join the ranks of Hezbollah. "The others will create a new anti-Israeli militia that would oblige Israel to return to the region in force," he said.

Only at Eaton's

Your Estée Lauder 9-piece gift

With any Estée Lauder purchase of $24 or more, receive:
• 2 full-size All-Day Lipsticks - Alfresco Brick and Rosewood
• Lip Defining Pencil • More than Mascara® Moisture-Binding Formula
• Estée Lauder pleasures Parfum
• New Lauder Pleasures for men Cologne Sample
• Hair Comb • Zebra Print Cosmetic Bag
• Matching Companion Bag
One gift to a customer. Offer good until Oct. 26, or while quantities last.
For your purchase may we suggest Rich Results Hydrating Cleanser, 100 mL $24.

Plus a 10th piece
Fruition Extra Multi-Action Complex 6 mL

NEWS IN SKINCARE
Uncircle Eye Treatment for Dark Circles
This new formula diminishes the appearance of under-eye circles within weeks, and discourages their reappearance. Gently smoothes away fine lines while it hydrates. 15 mL, $49.50

NEWS IN MAKEUP
Blush All Day Natural Cheek Color
New whisper-light, translucent color that stays as true and as vibrant as the moment you sweep it on.
In nine shades. 11 g. $26.

NEWS IN FRAGRANCE
Lauder Pleasures for Men
A new men's fragrance for the best times in life. From the collection:
Cologne Spray. 50 mL, $40.
100 mL, $60. Cologne. 100 mL, $58.
After Shave. 100 mL, $45.
After Shave Balm. 100 mL, $45.

Egyptian envoy cleared

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM — Unsubstantiated allegations that Egypt's ambassador to Israel raped an Israeli belly dancer may further damage already chilly relations with Cairo, Israeli leaders fear.

The charges, which had been kept out of the Israeli media for several weeks by court order, were published last week, when Attorney General Elyakim Rubinstein announced his decision to close the investigation for lack of evidence against Mohammed Basiouny.

The attorney general also ordered the police to end their inquiries into a cross-complaint filed by Basiouny, who charged that the belly dancer and a male friend had sought to blackmail him.

Basiouny, visibly upset by the publicity, said he was glad that "the truth is out at last" – and insisted that he would continue at his post.

But some Israeli observers predict that since his standing has been irreparably damaged, his 15-year term as Egypt's ambassador to Israel is likely to come to an end soon.

While the dancer's allegations have not been substantiated, it is clear that Basiouny met with her alone in the apartment of a mutual friend.

Basiouny claims he merely wanted to give her a birthday present, that they had known each other for several years, that she frequently performed at his residence and that there was no sexual element to their relationship.

The dancer, whose name was banned from publication by court order, is reportedly married and the mother of two.

According to Israeli media reports, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and President Ezer Weizman were involved in behind-the-scenes efforts to keep the story out of the newspapers and to prevent it from hurting Israel's already tense relations with Egypt.

They also feared that the charges against Basiouny would damage chances of obtaining the release of Azam Azam, an Israeli Druze who was found guilty of spying for Israel while working in Egypt.

Azam was sentenced Aug. 31 by a Cairo court to 15 years in prison with hard labor.

Israeli leaders apparently fear that the Egyptian press, and even the country's government, may see the Basiouny affair as Israel's way of getting even with Egypt or of pressuring Egypt on the Azam case.

Despite protests from Netanyahu and Defence Minister Yitzhak Mordechai that Azam was not a spy, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak has refused to pardon him.

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
ZOGLO'S VEGETARIAN
Beef or Chicken Patties 300 g $2.99
Spinach, Corn, Potato, Broccoli, Mixed Vegetables, Cauliflower Nuggets $1.99
Cauliflower or Corn Schnitzel 332 g $2.99
Until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK – 161 DENISON ST. W. – (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Health

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
Free Buy One 56g Pkg Pink Euro-cut SMOKED BAGELOX Get One FREE with 2.99
GOLDEN HARBOR PRE-SLICED RED PACIFIC SMOKED SALMON $9.99/lb with ad
Valid until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK – 161 DENISON ST. W. – (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Columbia, BGU to launch joint medical program

By BARBARA PASH
Baltimore Jewish Times

BALTIMORE — The first class in a joint Israel-U.S. medical degree program will begin next September.

The program is the brainchild of Dr. Richard Deckelbaum of Columbia University, who will direct the Doctor of Medicine program in International Health, based at Ben Gurion University of the Negev.

His co-director will be Dr. Carmi Margolis, vice-dean for medical education at Ben Gurion University faculty of medicine.

Deckelbaum is a former flying doctor in Zambia, with international experience in both clinical practice and research.

"He has an interesting vision," Pamela Cooper, program coordinator in New York, said of Deckelbaum. "He's the motivating force" behind the program.

The program is a collaboration between the faculties at Ben Gurion University's Irving Goldman Medical School and Columbia University Health Sciences, a division of which is the university's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Deckelbaum is a former pediatric resident at Hadassah University Hospital in Israel. He now heads Columbia University's Institute for Human Nutrition and serves as director of the division of gastroenterology and nutrition for the department of pediatrics at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The new program will follow a four-year, American-style curriculum. It will be taught in English, with courses in Hebrew and Arabic before clinical clerkships.

It includes courses in cross-cultural, community and preventive medicine, as well as electives in international public health, health-care policy and health economics.

Students receive the M.D. degree from Ben Gurion University.

Cooper said graduates of the program will then take the medical licensing exam, the competition for medical residencies in the United States and other countries outside Israel, as International Medical Graduates (IMG).

Since the program is just beginning, there is no track record for graduates getting residencies in the United States. Cooper said, however, that graduates of Ben Gurion University medical school have been residents at, among others, Columbia Presbyterian and Moses Montefiore hospitals in New York, and Yale University Hospital, in Connecticut.

"This is not an off-shore medical school," she said. "We've been getting stellar candidates, with great MCAT [medical school admissions test] scores."

Faculty from BGU Medical School and Columbia University Health Sciences will jointly oversee program planning, student selection and curriculum development. They also will take part in faculty exchange and joint research.

A joint Columbia-Ben Gurion admissions committee is in the process of selecting the first class for the 1998-99 academic year.

The charter class will have 30 students and class size will then be increased to 40, then 50 students. "We expect to have a total of 200 students" when the program is fully operational, Cooper said.

So far, the response to the program has been "phenomenal," she said.

Admission is competitive and open to students of all nationalities who have completed an undergraduate degree with the necessary science prerequisites. "There's been interest from Hong Kong, Brazil and, of course, Canada and the United States," she said.

The application deadline for the first class is Dec. 15. Call the program office in New York at 212-305-9587 or e-mail to [BGCU-MED@columbia.edu.]

EDWARD BRIKKER
EDWARD BRIKKER R.D.T., D.D.
Making DENTURES for over 30 years
• Full Denture Service
• Emergency Repairs & Relines
• Soft Cushion Liners
GUARANTEED COMFORT
(416) 398-7846
1 WHITEHORSE RD., UNIT 23 Ground Floor
Sheppard & Allen Expwy. off Kodiak Cr.

Baycrest, Hebrew U begin fellowship, exchange program

TORONTO — Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care and the University of Toronto are going to train Hebrew University specialists to treat disorders of the brain.

The training is the result of a new fellowship and exchange program between Baycrest and the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

The initiative was made possible by a gift from Baycrest supporters Mynne and Harold Soupcoff. "We have always been supporters of Israel," said Harold Soupcoff. "Supporting this project is another way to help both countries and keep the relationship strong."

Each year, the program will enable a student in the Hebrew University's Neuropsychology program to spend up to 12 months working and training at Baycrest. The student will also be involved in research projects with Baycrest scientists and take at least one related course at the University of Toronto.

"There is a natural relationship between us and the Hebrew University," said Edwin Goldstein, one of the chairs of the Baycrest Completion campaign. "The program helps develop that relationship in a way that shows the world how important Baycrest is to ensuring the best possible care for the elderly."

Dr. Charles Gold, president of the Canadian Friends of Hebrew University, welcomed the new program. He said it has benefits for all of the institutions involved. "For students at Hebrew University, this means an excellent training opportunity. For Baycrest, it means access to students of the highest calibre."

Under the new program, Baycrest scientists will also spend time in Israel teaching at Hebrew University and conducting their research.

Neuropsychology is a relatively new discipline which combines psychology with knowledge of the physical brain. Neuropsychologists treat the effects of stroke, Alzheimer disease, brain injury and developmental disorders in children. While Israel has many scientists doing research in those areas, there is a shortage of neuropsychologists trained to provide care to patients.

About Nutrition

By LISA WEINBERG

Q. Can you please tell me some foods that are very good sources of vitamin C or would I be better off taking a vitamin C supplement?

A. The following foods are very good sources of vitamin C: papaya, orange juice, cantaloupe, broccoli, brussel sprouts, green pepper, grapefruit juice, strawberries.

It is far better for the general population to get their vitamin C from fruits and vegetables than from a supplement. By eating the fruit and vegetables, you also get many other vitamins and minerals, as well as fibre.

Q. I was told that cooked carrots have more vitamins than uncooked ones. Is this a fact?

A. Slightly cooking foods high in beta carotene, such as carrots, does makes the vitamins in those foods more readily available to our bodies and provides more nutrients than if they are eaten raw.

Q. I often hear that broccoli is very healthy. Is it really and why?

A. What you've heard is right about this one. Broccoli is a very healthy vegetable. First of all, one cup contains a mere 40 calories and packs a healthy serving of fibre (2.5 grams/cup), as well as vitamin C, beta carotene, folic acid and calcium.

Lisa Weinberg is a registered dietitian/nutritionist, specializing in pediatric and adult nutrition in Toronto. If you have any nutrition questions, send them to The CJN.

Orbit Travel
WE GUARANTEE
BEST RATES, QUALITY & SERVICE
We will beat any price out there. Air only, Caribbean Packages & European Vacations. No. 1 for Airfare & Packages to Israel
Every Sunday in November to ISRAEL $919.00 + tax
Don't settle for any price until you speak to us first. We GUARANTEE you'll Save!
Call: 905-707-0999
7700 BATHURST STREET SUITE 6, THORNHILL, ONTARIO
ACROSS FROM THE PROMENADE SHOPPING CENTRE (CENTRE & BATHURST)

★★★ CENTRE HONDA ★★★
presents
INTRODUCTORY LEASE SPECIALS – THE ALL NEW TOTALLY REDESIGNED 1998 ACCORDS
ACCORD SEDAN LX

ACCORD SEDAN LX $318 PER MONTH 48 MONTHS
• Automatic, A/C • Cruise Control
• Power Windows & Locks
• AM/FM Stereo Cassette
• Tilt Steering Wheel
• Dual Air Bags
• Mobilizer System
• Dual Power Heated Mirrors
• And more.
ACCORD SEDAN EX $348 PER MONTH 48 MONTHS
• Automatic, A/C
• ABS Cruise Control
• Power Windows, Locks & Heated Mirrors • AM/FM Stereo & CD
• Dual Air Bags • Power Sunroof
• Power Height Adjustment of the Driver Seats • Alloy Wheels
• And more.
*Based on new 1998 Accord Sedan LX/EX. $318/$348 per month for 48 months. Down payment for LX $2110 and dow payment for EX $2715 cash or equivalent Trade required plus 1st., security deposit. Frt., PDI, Taxes, License & insurance options extra. OAC. Option to purchase at the end of lease. No down payment plan also available. Cars shown may not be exactly as shown.
CENTRE HONDA
SERVING YOU FOR OVER 30 YEARS
354 RICHMOND ST. E. (East of Sherbourne) SALES-LEASING SERVICE PARTS-BODYSHOP (416) 364-1116
HONDA
E-Mail Address: sales@centrehonda.com Web-Site Address: www.centrehonda.com
BUILT WITHOUT COMPROMISE.

Travel, Arts & Business

Fabulous HARVEY SEIGEL BAND
Super Music — Very Affordable
(416) 782-9202

HARVEY SEIGEL'S (other band)
SPEAK-EASY JAZZ BAND
★ Big Band ★ Swing ★ Klezmer
"Band Size to Suit Your Budget"
(416) 256-4123

SEND YOUR CAR
FLORIDA, CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA
& ALL POINTS ACROSS CANADA AND RETURN
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY
SERVICE (NATIONWIDE) INC.
5803 Yonge Street, Suite 101 (In the Newtonbrook Plaza)
(N. of Finch, at Cummer) Willowdale, Ont. M2M 3V5
For Quotations..... (416) 225-7754
If Long Distance 1-800-561-2658
E-Mail.....www.torontodriveaway.com
Serving the Public & Especially the Jewish Community since 1959

ISRAEL BEST AIRFARES
EL AL AIR CANADA
THE TRUE ALL-INCLUSIVE
BAR/BAT MITZVAH FAMILY TOURS TO ISRAEL
See Israel as you've never seen it before!!
SPECIAL PROGRAMS CELEBRATING ISRAEL'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY
NEW 1998 DEPARTURES
WINTER Dec. 21/97-Jan. 4/98 • Limited Space
SPRING BREAK '98 March 11-23
SUMMER '98 June 28-July 12, July 5-19, July 12-26, Aug. 2-16, Aug. 9-23, Aug. 16-30
WINTER '98 Dec. 20/'98-Jan. 3/'99
REGISTRATION IN PROGRESS FOR ALL TOURS
DON'T WAIT - OUR TOURS ARE FILLING UP VERY QUICKLY
Don't book with anyone until you speak to us!
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
905-886-5610
OUT OF TOWN CALL 1-800-294-1563

BOOK EARLY - LAST PRODUCTION SOLD OUT
NATHAN GARNICK PRODUCTIONS presents
The YIDDISH THEATRE SCHOOL ENSEMBLE in
YIDDISH CABARET
Directed by NATHAN GARNICK
★
Music by Yitzhak Argaman
★
And variety of feature artists
ייִדיש קאַבאַרעט
* Comedy, Klezmer, Hassidic, Israeli and Russian Song & Dance
* 50 Performers, Including a Youth Cast
* In Yiddish and English - A Delight for All Ages! *
2 NIGHTS ONLY
TUES. & WED., OCT. 28 & 29, 8 P.M.
at LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE
Bathurst Jewish Centre, 4588 Bathurst St.
TICKETS: RESERVED SEATING $10 in advance; $15 at the door
Tickets at Lasting Impressions One Hour Photo,
243 Wilmington Ave., Bathurst Manor Plaza. Inquiries: (416) 635-0720

Eight-part Vision TV series

Symposium on Being Jewish

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

Filmmaker Jonathan Perlman was in Israel recently, working on a Vision TV documentary.

TORONTO — A personal quest that began six years ago in Jonathan Perlman's last year as an undergraduate philosophy student has evolved into an eight-part series currently running on Vision TV.

The series, A Symposium on Being Jewish, explores issues ranging from the meaning of creation to intermarriage and Jewish continuity.

Perlman began by talking to prominent Jews in Toronto, starting with local rabbis and Moses Znaimer of Citytv.

He ended up interviewing dozens of well-known and some lesser-known personalities from North America, Israel and England. Lawyer/author Alan Dershowitz, philosopher Emil Fackenheim, Jewish feminist author Letty Cottin Pogrebin, a number of rabbis and even Leon Trotsky's great-grandson David Axelrod, a right-wing Orthodox Jew in Hebron, are among those featured.

"I tried to find the most lucid thinkers from both liberal and more traditional sides," recalled Perlman, now 26, in an interview.

Having arranged to bring Aish HaTorah's Discovery program to the University of Western Ontario as a student, Perlman was inspired to "find intelligent and articulate individuals who could respond to the most basic [Jewish] questions in a way that I would find personally satisfying."

For someone with no background in filmmaking, his accomplishment is particularly noteworthy.

Perlman started by borrowing a video camera from his uncle, and learned as he went along, eventually purchasing a better camera and receiving editing assistance at his local Rogers Cable TV facility.

"I was hoping it would reach some kind of TV audience," said Perlman, "but everyone said talking heads was a horrible format. It didn't seem like something that was feasible."

But when TVOntario aired the show – distilled from over 80 hours of footage – in two 100-minute segments in 1993, Liam Lacey of the Globe and Mail wrote of its "thought-provoking discussion" and pronounced the end result "talking-head television gone to heaven."

It has also run on an American cable channel and the revamped eight-part series will run on a Long Island PBS station in December.

"One immediately wishes Perlman...would dedicate the next 20 or so years of his life to documenting all the world's great religions in a similar accessible, intelligent and conversational fashion," Lacey wrote.

Perlman's current project, funded partly by Vision TV and TVOntario, is scheduled for completion next fall.

Tentatively titled Quest for God, it is a documentary that focuses on expressions of Jewish spiritual life. A brief preview showed spirited dancing at a service in Manhattan's B'nai Jeshurun synagogue, one of the places where Perlman has found Jewish worship "comes alive."

After completing his Honors BA, Perlman continued his studies at Brandeis University, where he received his MA in Judaic studies last year.

An alumnus of Associated Hebrew Schools, Perlman attends lay-led participatory services at Beit Haminyan, his "ideal service" except for an apparent dearth of young adults in their 20s.

This summer, Perlman worked as researcher and associate producer for a five-part documentary for Vision TV on Emil Fackenheim, scheduled for broadcast next May.

While Perlman no longer does his own filming, he is researching, directing, producing and editing Quest. He would admit only to an "inkling" about his third project, preferring to focus on his current one.

He especially enjoys the editing process. "I love piecing the stuff together like some great puzzle and seeing how it works." For Being Jewish, Perlman included the parts "that personally resonated" for him.

As it turned out, Being Jewish not only supplied him with the answers he sought on a wide range of Jewish issues, but it provided an unanticipated career direction.

"This is what I love to do. I'm driven to do it. If I can make a living at it and I continue to be driven by it, this is how I would love to spend my days."

A Symposium on Being Jewish airs on Vision TV Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. Part V, Intermarriage and Assimilation, will be shown Oct. 28.

"Autumn in Washington"
Deluxe Coach Trip
Oct. 26-30, 1997.
Fully Escorted by Henry Wineberg
Trip Includes: Deluxe coach transportation. Four nights hotel accommodation. Four breakfast. U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum Tour. Smithsonian Institution. Arlington Mall and much much more. Excite food possible throughout tour.
PLEASE CALL DAVID OR HENRY AT
$459.00 (416) 960-1393 $579.00
Talk Of The Town Travel Ltd.

MANOR TRAVEL
— WE'VE MOVED!! —
Visit us at our new location
1450 CLARK AVE. W., #7
(Dufferin & Clark - Loeb's Plaza, Thornhill)
1997 GROUPS with STANLEY
•Dream Cruise. Dec. 21 From$1119 Cdn. Kids Cruise FREE
•Ft. Lauderdale. From $389 Incl. tax (Long Stays)
•New Year's Eve Getaway Dec. 31-Jan. 2
•Singles Club Med Jan. '98
•Cruise Jan. 17 NEW
1 week from Ft. Lauderdale
Tel. (905) 669-1347
1-800-763-4769

Cabaret cast includes performers of all types

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO —Bubbies, zaydes and einekels are all in the cast of Yiddish Cabaret at the Leah Posluns Theatre, Oct. 28 and 29.

"We have people from seven to 70," says director Nathan Garnick, who is hoping for a repeat sell-out of the show his Yiddish Theatre School Ensemble did last year.

In some cases, both a parent and and a grandparent are appearing in Yiddish Cabaret along with a young performer.

"They all leave the rehearsals singing and that's what we want the audience to do after hearing the toe-tapping music," said Garnick. "Though about 75 percent of the material is in Yiddish, the songs and dances are so familiar that no one will be in the dark even if they understand little Yiddish."

With music by Israeli guitarist Yitzhak Argaman, the show will include some professional artists.

The overall cast has grown to 50, an increase of 10 over last year, and includes comedy, klezmer, chassidic and Israeli songs and dances.

Admission is $10 if purchased in advance and $15 at the door (far groyse fardiner). Call (416) 635-0720.

Travel, Arts & Business

Eye on Arts

by Bill Gladstone

THINGS ARE COOKING FOR MARTY AND AVRUM

Avrum Rosensweig and Marty Galin recently celebrated their second anniversary as hosts of their weekly radio program, The Marty and Avrum Restaurant and Food Show, which airs Sunday mornings from 10 to noon on AM 640.

Avrum, who recently left the United Jewish Appeal after seven years as a key fundraiser, and Marty, an actor with 25 years of experience, usually have about 25 to 30 guests on their show. The show is broadcast live and features interviews, cooking tips, food lore, entertainers, humor and spoofs.

Highlights of past shows include an aboriginal pow-wow, an Italian wedding and a Passover seder featuring actor Harvey Atkin. Other guests have included Harry Belafonte, Engelburt Humperdinck and many master chefs.

Things are really sizzling for Marty and Avrum. The duo recently signed a deal with YTV television network to develop a series of one-minute informational pieces on topics such as kosher food and restaurants for children. MacMillan Books asked them recently to put together a children's recipe book. They are also peddling a "pre-stained" apron that is already graced with apparent food stains that won't wash out.

Avrum recently fulfilled a long-time dream by starting a non-profit charitable organization, Ve'Ahavta: The Canadian Jewish Humanitarian and Relief Committee. Its first planned mission is to send a group of medical personnel next February to Zimbabwe, which has the world's highest rate of HIV-positive infection.

"We hope to give a medical cocktail to mothers so their children won't be born HIV-positive," says Avrum, a rabbi's son. Ve'Ahavta is meant to perform tikkun olam to help heal the world, he says. "We're trying to get Jews active again in the fight against the inequalities of the world."

Call For Submissions: Dorot, a journal of contemporary Jewish literature invites university students to submit poetry, short fiction, and non-fiction, script excerpts, cartoons and sketches with Jewish themes.

Poems should not exceed three pages; prose submissions 2,500 words. Deadline Oct. 31. Include a SASE and cover letter to Dorot, 442 Student Centre, York University, 4700 Keele St. North York, Ont. M3J 1P3 or YU101509@yorku.ca.

* * *

Local Theatre Scene: The Playhouse Project has announced its new season of four plays, starting with both a male and a female version of Neil Simon's The Odd Couple, running intermittently from Nov. 5 through Nov. 15.

The next play is Enter Laughing, by Joseph Stein, based on the novel by Carl Reiner, featuring Sylvia Lennick, running Jan 21 to Feb. 1, 1998.

Guys and Dolls, with music and lyrics by Frank Loesser, runs March. 25 to April 5.

Principals of the company include actor-director Allan Price, actor-director Merle Garbe and actor Lea Garbe. Performances take place at the City Playhouse, 1000 New Westminster Dr. (corner of Bathurst Street, south of Highway 407), Thornhill. Subscriptions $36 (three shows) or $48 (four shows). 416-733-0558. Fax 416-222-0495.

* * *

Amadeus Ensemble: Celebrate the music of Great Britain as the Amadeus Ensemble, under the leadership of violinist Moshe Hammer, opens its new season. The 12-member string orchestra performs Britten's Simple Symphony, Holst's St. Paul Suite, Warlock's Capriol Suite, Willan's Poem for Strings and Elgar's Serenade.

Oct. 26, 1997, 8 p.m., Glenn Gould Studio, Canadian Broadcasting Centre 250 Front St. W. Adults $25. 416-205-5555.

* * *

Yorkville Concert: Israeli-born cellist Daniel Domb, the Toronto Symphony principal cellist who has performed Kol Nidrei at Holy Blossom Temple for 20 years, is set to join forces with Carey Domb and the Toronto Salon Orchestra under the baton of Robert Raines for a concert on Oct. 25, 8 p.m. at Church of the Redeemer, Avenue Road and Bloor Street.

The program features lavish tangos, waltzes, ragtime music, and a Gershwin medley. A fashion preview and intermission desserts round out the festivities. Tickets $30. 416-482-6174.

* * *

German-Jewish Music: The Jewish Theological Seminary of New York is hosting a five-day international conference on the Jewish musical tradition of Germany that was shattered, along with much else of Jewish life, on Kristallnacht in November 1938.

The full name of the conference is Voice of Ashkenaz – The Music and Culture of German and Central European Jewry: Remembrance and Renewal.

Daniel Domb and Carey Domb.

Where on earth?

In the Oct. 9 CJN, page 36, we mentioned that the Toronto Seniors Strings will be performing Oct. 23, at 2 p.m.

We forgot, however, to tell you the concert will be at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Toronto, near the St. Andrew's subway station.

We regret any inconvenience this might have caused. For more information call 416-769-5071.

It includes a concert at the Lincoln Center, an authentic liturgical, cantorial and choral replication of a Shabbat morning service at the Seminary, and many scholarly papers, panel discussions, musical demonstrations and choral workshops. It runs Nov. 7 to 11. 212-678-8923.

Web site[http://www.jtsa.edu/academic/conf/voiceof/].

ATTENTION SNOWBIRDS!
FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS AND RETURN
www.torontodriveaway.com
CALL (416) 225-7754
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St. #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT!

★ DON'T MISS THE LEGENDARY TOPSY KUPPERS COMING DIRECT FROM VIENNA!
★ ONLY 3 PERFORMANCES at the LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE
★ GALA OPENING NIGHT: "THE GALICIAN WOMAN" (in English)
SAT., NOV. 1st, 97, at 8 p.m. & SUN., NOV. 2nd at 8 p.m.
★ ALSO SUN., NOV. 2nd, 97, at 2 p.m. one show only, in Yiddish/Deutsch Cabaret in Exile: "WEIT VON WO"
★ For tickets still available ($40.00) & GROUP DISCOUNTS, call: (416) 222-0234.
Also TICKETMASTER 870-8000 & MATANA JUDAICA, 248 Steeles Ave. W., Thornhill, 905 - 731-6543.
★ The Leah Posluns Theatre Box Office will be open 2 hours prior to each show on the day of performances!
★ DON'T BE DISAPPOINTED! DON'T DELAY – BUY YOUR TICKETS TODAY!

dominion rug since 1947
a carpet adventure

At Dominion Rug we search the world over to bring you the finest collection of designer floor coverings available.

Dominion Rug has an extra-ordinary selection of carpet and rugs with more than 10,000 samples to choose from. There's everything from Wiltons, Axminster, Chinese needlepoints, Aubusson, Tibetan, custom hand made wool rugs to tapestry borders, brass stair rods, cork and laminates floors.

Our staff of colour fashion and design specialists are dedicated to be, simply the best in style, selection, value, service and performance.

We can supply and install anywhere in Canada and the U.S.

3420 Yonge Street (1 mile South of 401) Tel: (416) 485-9488

AFFORDABLE AUCTIONS
BUYING & CONSIGNMENTS
for our major NOVEMBER AUCTION

WATCHES
OLD & MODERN
GOOD QUALITY

JEWELLERY

PAINTINGS

BRONZE & MARBLE SCULPTURES

JUDAICA
STERLING OBJECTS
TAPESTRY & RARE BOOKS

ANTIQUE FURNITURE

FRENCH, ENGLISH AMERICAN & OTHER CLOCKS

CHANDELIERS, PORCELAIN POTTERY, ETC...

ANY OTHER OBJECTS OF SIMILAR FINE QUALITY
FOR AN IMMEDIATE CONFIDENTIAL APPOINTMENT IN OUR OFFICE OR AT A LOCATION OF YOUR CHOICE PLEASE CALL:
(905) 815-5479 (416) 407-4306

Travel, Arts & Business

Allen Kaeja, Karen Resnick Kaeja and daughter Aniya of Kaeja d'Dance Company.

Choreography based on ghetto life

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — Choreographer and dancer, Allen Kaeja of Toronto's Kaeja d'Dance Company, whose work, Zummel, received rave reviews recently at the Ashkenaz Festival of New Yiddish Culture, has choreographed a new work which will debut this week.

Court-yard will have its world premiere at the du Maurier Theatre at Harbourfront Centre for three performances from Oct. 23 to 25 at 8 p.m.

A co-production of Harbourfront Centre's Movado Dance Series and DanceWorks Mainstage Series, Court-Yard is an extension of Kaeja's Old Country Trilogy, which portrays life in his father's native shtetl just prior to the outbreak of World War II.

His father, who died 12 year ago, came from Kutno, outside of Warsaw. After losing lost his wife, his child and his entire family in the Holocaust, he came to Canada in 1948 to start a new life.

Court-Yard depicts the dwellers in the ghetto who develop a protective veneer of "distance tenderness" against a time when friends and family may disappear forever.

The music for the production was commissioned and composed by Edgardo Morena and will be performed by Allen's wife, Karen Resnick Kaeja, and four other dancers.

Kaeja, 38, has lived with the Holocaust since he was a young child in Kitchener, Ont., where his father told the stories of his survival and the destruction of his family and his community.

Through music and dance, Kaeja explores a number of difficult themes in Court-Yard including survival, self-reliance, the need for a safe haven and the relationships between people.

He explains that Court-Yard explores the relationships of five individuals after months of forced confinement inside the ghetto walls.

"In their forced closeness, the best of their humanity rises as they support and recognize each other's needs. Trust, compassion and even laughter protect their spirits."

He started dancing at the University of Waterloo and then studied at the Toronto Dance Theatre, where, he says, "I was kicked out because I was too independent and did my own training and choreography which were not acceptable in those days. You could not deviate from the curriculum at that time."

Today, he notes, he and his wife are teaching at the school "and now choreography and contact dancing are encouraged."

Karen graduated with honors in fine arts in dance from York University. They met at a rehearsal where they performed together, married in 1989 and formed Kaeja d'Dance in 1991.

The Kaejas, who have gained a reputation for excellence in the Toronto dance community, teach contact dance and improvisation at the National Ballet School of Canada, the Canadian Children's Dance Theatre and in performing arts schools in and around Toronto. Their daughter Aniya, 4, has performed with them.

Tickets for Court-Yard are $20 and $16 for students and senior; they are available at Harbourfront Centre or call 416-973-4000.

Lightstone performs cabaret at JCC

By BARBARA SILVERSTEIN
Special to The CJN

TORONTO — Canadian actor Marilyn Lightstone's theatrical, film and television credits are the hallmarks of an impressive career that has spanned more than three decades.

Her work includes award-winning performances of leading roles in such Canadian film classics as Lies My Father Told Me, In Praise of Older Women and The Tin Flute; a recurring role on the acclaimed television series Road to Avonlea; and stage appearances in Stratford, Toronto, New York and Los Angeles.

Lightstone is also a singer/song writer. She will be presenting her cabaret-style show at the Bloor Jewish Community Centre (JCC) Oct. 30 at 8 p.m.

Offstage, she has been writing scripts for television since 1983 and for the last three years, she has been the associate producer and co-director of The Spoken Art, a television series on Bravo! that dramatizes Canadian short stories.

Many viewers may also recognize the distinctive "voice of Bravo!" as Lightstone's. She does all the on-air show promos.

She is delighted to be performing at the JCC benefit, she said recently at the sprawling High Park home she shares with her longtime companion, Citytv founder Moses Znaimer.

"I love singing. Years go by and I don't get a chance to sing," she said. "I'm a performer. I have to do it for somebody. It makes me feel so alive."

Referring to her music, Lightstone described herself as a "late bloomer.' When she studied at the National Theatre School in the early '60s she trained as a dramatic actress and consequently she had few professional opportunities to sing, she said. " If you are a dramatic actor people don't think you can sing."

Lightstone began song-writing in Los Angeles 1985, shortly after acquiring a piano. She sat down and the lyrics began "to flow," she said. "It was as if someone had pulled a cork out of my brain. One after the other, these songs just kept flooding through my consciousness and for about 10 months that's all I did."

Lightstone, who said she "thinks in scenes," described most of the songs as stories, many of which are autobiographical. While she did not want to dwell on her relationship with Znaimer (the couple has been together for some 30 years), she divulged that he has been an important inspiration for her music.

"Half the songs are about Moses, for Moses, because of Moses or in spite of Moses," she admitted with a laugh. But she does not make reference to him in the show because "it's too personal," she said.

Lightstone made her cabaret debut in her hometown Montreal at the Saidye Bronfman Centre in 1991.

She lamented that finding venues for her music is difficult because she's not known as a singer or song-writer. "I don't fit into any category. Who knows when the next time I sing will be?"

Lightstone is also uncertain when her next dramatic role will surface. While she still loves to act, she is very selective about the parts she plays, she said. "I only audition for something if it is the most important thing to me. So many things offered to actors my age are not fulfilling."

In fact, she has been known to turn down parts throughout her career because she resented being typecast for ethnic roles, she said.

But the dry spells have given her an opportunity to explore other creative avenues – she has been working intensively on a novel, which she expects to complete this spring, she said.

"The path is there. If I get out of line, I keep shifting myself back on the road...I don't want to come to the end of my life with whatever talents I have untried and untested."

$5 off
* Airport * Casino * Golf * Out of Town etc.
Superb Limousine & Car Services
Tel: (416) 767-4099
Coupon #CJ101. Please mention coupon number to the order taker
$5 Dollars Gift Certificate
No cash value Expires Dec. 31/98 Good for one ride only
* Sedan * Minivan (7 pass.) 7 Days 24 Hours
Clean Car & Van Courteous Drivers
We accept credit cards • Free wakeup call
Price like Taxis!!!

SCHUBERT
Mooredale Concerts
A Masterful Piano Trio, Songs and a Violin Sonata
Chul-In Park, violin
"A fine violinist and a sensitive musician"
Montreal Gazette
Francine Kay, piano "Extraordinary musicality"
Kristine Bogyo, cello, Tracy Smith, soprano
Sat. Oct. 25, 8 pm at Willowdale United Church
Sun. Oct. 26, 3 pm at Walter Hall, U of T
922-3714
Mooredale Concerts is the hot tip for great music, spoken commentary, and affordable tickets! $15, ($10 St./Sr)

GREAT THEATRE IS JUST MINUTES AWAY!!!
A Lot of Laughs at a Low, Low Price
ONLY $36
FOR 2 HILARIOUS COMEDIES + 1 TIMELESS MUSICAL SUBSCRIBE NOW !!!
THE ODD COUPLE(S)
BY NEIL SIMON
Female Version: November 5,7,11,13,15 at 8 p.m. and November 9 at 2 p.m.
Male Version: November 6,8,9,12,14 at 8 p.m. and November 15 at 2 p.m.
ENTER LAUGHING
by Joseph Stein
based on a novel by Carl Reiner
January 21, 22, 23, 24, 28, 29, 30, 31 at 8 p.m.
January 25 and February 1 at 2 p.m.
GUYS AND DOLLS
A Musical Fable of Broadway
music & lyrics by Frank Loesser book by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows
March 25,26,27,28, April 1,2,3,4 at 8 p.m.
March 29 and April 5 at 2 p.m.
City Playhouse
(416) 733-0558

40 years of service
aufgang travel
789-7117

WE BUY STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS
CALL OR WRITE FOR QUOTES
SIEGEL TRADING CO. OF CANADA LTD.
533 EGLINTON AVE. W.
TORONTO, ONT. (416) 481-3515
— HARRY J. PACHTER —
SPECIAL MAIL ORDER SERVICE FOR OUT OF TOWN CLIENTS

SERVICE DIRECTORY

350 APPLIANCES

SOBIE'S (416) 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave., Willowdale
SERVICENTRE & APPLIANCE PARTS
Look for our ad under APPLIANCES in the Yellow Pages™ Directory
HUMIDIFIERS
PARTS • SERVICE • SALES

 KELNER'S APPLIANCE SERVICE
Repairs to washers, dryers, dishwashers and stoves. 2 yrs warr. Same Day Service. FREE est.
Zvi (905) 731-5950

Ahlfeld Appliance Ltd. Very reasonable and reliable service to your dishwasher, fridge, stove, washer, dryer & air conditioning. We pride ourselves on honesty. Free est. (905) 709-3393.

355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/ SALES

Jacob Repairs All TV's, VCRs Computers. 416-661-6798.

405 FURNITURE

Carrocel Restorations
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES • BEDROOM SUITES • DINING SUITES • REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
WE CUSTOM BUILD
[illegible] (905) 475-6942

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touch-ups. Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 654-0518.

370 CATERING

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) (416) 787-0309

חתונה. ברית מצוה
Weddings • Bar Mitzvahs
Tri ✡ Elm Catering
3 Banquet Halls • Joe Elmaleh
Glatt Kosher 631-7322 COR 200
e-mail:trielm@pathcom.com

372 CHUPPAHS

Aviv-Floral Design. Chuppah and aisle runner rentals. We specialize in wedding flowers. Call 416-256-2554

375 CLEANING

Adanac Maintenance cleans stores, offices, factories, bldgs. Fully insured. 694-2065.

380 CLOTHING

• Women & Preteen Clothing
• Children's Formal Wear
QUALITY KID'S TIGHTS $6.75
SOCKS ON THE RUN
Quality socks for children at below retail prices
Call for appointment
(905) 886-0711

395 ELECTRICAL

Air Conditioning, Electrical Contracting, licensed, repair services, reasonable, guaranteed. 905-882-5474.

Electrician seeks small jobs only, Lic #E-329.Call 636-5732.

405 FURNITURE

Furniture restoration and refinishing. Touch-ups & small jobs done on your premises. Free estimates. 416-654-2430.

405 FURNITURE

Earl Bales Sr. Woodworkers. We do minor furn. repairs on chairs.We replace caning, cushions. Our prices our reasonable. We also do custom work. Call Jim, Phil or Jack at 416-395-7881,10am - 3pm, Mon-Thurs.

410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS

COMPUTERIZED ELECTROLYSIS
Rita's moved after 25 yrs on Eglinton
(416) 484-4227
Chaplin Cr. & Eglinton
100% success & affordable

Acrylic nails, $15., full set & fills, evg. appt's. 416-663-8691.

Pnina, 15 mins. electrol. $13., man.+ ped. $25. 416-667-8012

Professional Hairstylist available at your home for special occasions/private sessions, on Sun., Mon. & evgs. Call Loula at (416) 499-6453 for an app't.

411 HEALTH THERAPIES

ATHLETIC, MASSAGE THERAPIST, Jonathan Maister, RMT, CATC. Exper. with Spec. needs & Seniors. 905-709-9643.

Holistic health & nutritional care, counselling for adults & children, detailed evaluation of health. Recommendations, $22/ hour. 416-497-4782.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS

REPAIRS & RENOVATIONS
• Drywall • Plaster • Painting
• Carpentry • Fences • Decks • Doors
• Locks • Tiles
Specializing in:
• Basement Finishing
• Bathroom/Kitchen Renovations
Fast Service - Quality Work
MOSHE 416-445-6438

BATHTUB REGLAZING Sinks, tiles from $199. & up. FREE Estimate. 416-753-3097.

City East Hardwood Flooring. Sand, stain, finish. 839-0733.

HANDYMAN 638-5488 Improvement/Repairs, Ephram.

Home Services. Painting, plaster, carpentry, plumbing, electric, ceramic, tiling. 736-1179.

Precision Painting. Int./Ext. quality work. Specialty painting, light carpentry. FREE Est. Call Steve, 416-932-9847.

420 INVITATIONS/ PRINTING

ELEGANT INVITATIONS Beautiful selection of U.S. & Canadian invitations for all occasions. Discount Prices. FREE Calligraphy with any invitation order. Expiry: 12/31/97
Call Maria Kamin at (416) 963-8813

434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES

Prof. limo. driver offers his car & services for people who need safety rides to anywhere. Call Mr. Kogan, 416-587-5139.

445 MOVING

AROMA Moving,any size truck + 2 men,$35/hr. & up. 450-0381

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Homes, offices, apts. Family busnss. Reasonable. 274-6144.

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 738-4030, 663-0630.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPERING

Bargain Painter, apts, houses, offices. Mikhilov, 633-5973.

Benjamin & Moore painting & gen. improv. needs. Prof. workmanship. Comm./Res. 905-761-1542, pgr. 416-379-3082, Ben.

David Painter. Prof. Workmanship. Jewish, Hebrew, Hungarian, Romanian. 905-660-7794.

E. Kats Painting, Free est. 416-219-4182, 905-709-4017.

Exp. painter/ plasterer/ vinyl tile flooring. Best prices. Free est. Guaranteed. Bill, 638-9249.

Harry's Painting, for painting & wallpapering needs. 755-2021.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission (416) 392-3000

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPERING

Prof. painting/paperhanging, Jacob 667-9869, no shabbos calls.

452 PARTY SERVICES

FOR YOUR PARTIES...
The CandyMan
SNO CONE, POPCORN, CANDY FLOSS, MINI DONUT MACHINE RENTALS
CENTREPIECES
SOFT PRETZELS
BALLOONS
789-7174
COR

455 PHOTOGRAPHY/ VIDEO

SHOE BOXES full of Movie Film? Your Movie Reels taking up space? We'll transfer all of it onto VIDEO. We're "SPECIALISTS" at preserving PRECIOUS MEMORIES. Fred Nelson (905) 886-3210

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Dan Schneider, artist avail. for commissions, winter '97/98. Call 905-884-3771.

477 SECOND HAND STORES

The Contents Connection Ltd.
HOME CONTENTS LIQUIDATORS
"WE SELL AT YOUR PLACE OR OURS"
416-256-3566
3321 BATHURST STREET
SALES UPDATE 905-660-7717

490 TABLE COVERINGS

Made To Measure
TABLE PADS
Dover Pad. Finest quality since 1950. Heat resistant to 600°F. Many colours. Home service, no obligation.
1-800-354-4445

Artege Table Pads Custom-made, top quality, heat resistant. Wide selection, courteous home service. 745-2711.

500 TUTORING/ LESSONS

Hebrew lessons by an exper. teacher. Call 787-8503.

Science, math, chemistry, by exper. teacher. Monica Segal, 416-665-8373.

Accounting, ESL, Math, Science, Grades 1-12. Qualif. teacher, friendly & patient, 25 yrs. exper. Evgs. & wknds. avail. Convenient, near Finch subway. Marvin, 224-9507.

510 UPHOLSTERY

Arctic Custom Upholstering Free est. Let us beautify your yesterdays furniture. Free armcovers, free toss pillows with every 2-piece suite. 665-3445.

Bathurst Upholstery. Reupholstering sofas, chairs. Lowest prices. 781-1995, 886-3148.

520 WINDOW COVERINGS

Moshade. Blinds, Verticals, Venetians, Drapery tracks. Call 905-886-2352.

Shop at home. Verticals, venetians, rolling shades, pleated blinds, reupholstering, invisible repairs, cushion rubber change, stainguarding. Work guaranteed, Free est. Call anytime 224-2211, 223-1655.

CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY

Call (416) 391-1836
for information on classified rates

INDEX

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
80 SHORT TERM RENTAL
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED
85 APARTMENT WANTED
90 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE
95 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR RENT
100 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE/RENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
120 COTTAGE WANTED
122 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
123 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
143 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. AVAIL.
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. WANTED
150 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
155 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
158 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTIES
195 PROPERTIES WANTED
196 VACATION PROPERTIES-SWAP/EXCH.
198 SPACE FOR LEASE
200 OFFICE SPACE
201 OFFICE SPACE WANTED
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
205 INDUSTRIAL/COMMERCIAL SPACE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE/LEASE
215 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
217 RETAIL OPPORTUNITIES
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 FINANCIAL OPPORTUNITIES
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
246 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE
248 CAMPS
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
264 SOCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
279 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
310 ARTICLES/SWAP/EXCHANGE
312 BRIDAL
313 BOATS
315 CARS FOR SALE
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE/YARD SALE
330 OBITUARIES
331 IN MEMORIAM
332 MONUMENTS
335 UNVEILINGS
338 SHIVA CATERING

SERVICE DIRECTORY

345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/SALE
357 AUTOMOTIVE
360 CABINETS
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING
377 CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
385 COMPUTER
386 DANCING
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
395 ELECTRICAL
396 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
405 FURNITURE
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS
411 HEALTH THERAPIES
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LANDSCAPING
432 LAWN CARE
433 LEASING
434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
451 PROMOTIONS
452 PARTY SERVICES
455 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
479 SENIORS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIGNS
483 SKIING
485 SNOW REMOVAL
490 TABLE COVERING
493 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING/LESSONS
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
517 WATER TREATMENTS
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
548 WORD PROCESSING
550 WORKSHOPS

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

"WE OPEN DOORS FOR YOU"

DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED 787-1712

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — NEW LISTING

Pride of ownership! 3 + 1 bedrooms, separate entry to in-law suite, 32 ft. [illegible] LAST at only $269,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST SHEPPARD — COUNTRY IN THE CITY!

Picturesque ravine setting — country in the city! 104 ft. frontage x 133 ft. deep. Spacious side-split. Live in now, build later — only $389,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

YORK DOWNS / SANDRINGHAM – QUIET CUL-DE-SAC
Prestigious location, luxurious 5 bdrm. executive home, lots of character, 4,000 sq. ft. (approx.), main floor huge library, fam. room, modern family-size kitchen. A MUST SEE at only $629,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

CLANTON PARK — REDUCED
Charming 3 bdrm. on 50 x 150 ft. lot, close to shuls, park, highly desirable location, family values. Great buy at only $289,000! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

BATHURST / HILLMOUNT – REDUCED $70,000
3,700 sq. ft. (approx.) + finished basement. Bright open concept, 5 bedrooms, 4 baths, hardwood floors, Jacuzzi, sauna, hot tub, only $429,000! ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

BATHURST / HILLHURST — PRESTIGIOUS LOCATION
Spacious 5 bdrm. side-split, 59 x 128 ft. lot , priced to sell at only $439,000. ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

GLEN PARK — SPACIOUS EXECUTIVE HOME
4 + 2 bedrooms, modern family-style kitchen, family room, separate entry to in-law suite, double garage (above grade), asking $519,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / VIEWMOUNT – ARCHITECTURAL GEM!
Custom built, stunning quality craftsmanship + finishes. 4200 sq. ft. (approx.) + fin. bsmt. 9 1/2 ft. ceilings on main floor, Neff designer kitchen. Live your dreams NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / SHEPPARD

Pride of ownership! 3+1 bdrm. bung., huge 63' lot, renovated eat-in kitchen, sep. entry to in-law suite, shows well, only $229,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

Forest Hill
Real Estate Inc. Realtor
(416) 488-2875 (416) 226-1987

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

HEART OF LOWER VILLAGE - $599,000
Lovely home on 50'x277' ft. lot. Faithe Sversky 488-2875

BATHURST/EGLINTON - $579,000
Superb custom home! 4 bdrms., 4 baths, F. Sversky 488-2875

1ST AD! PRIME CEDARVALE - 4 BDRM.
4 bath, reno'd dream! Lrge & bright. L. Stoneman* 226-1987

BATHURST/LAWRENCE "DOLLHOUSE"
Renovated 1.5 storey home. Faithe Sversky 488-2875 SOLD

BATHURST & LAWRENCE - OPP. PARK
Beautifully kept. 2 storey, 3 bdrm. Susan Slater* 488-2875

WANTED - UPPER VILLAGE
St. Andrews or Armour Heights. Serious client. O. Guvenal* 226-1987

NORTH PROPERTIES

OLDE THORNHILL – $795K
308' lot, build/live in updated 4 br. Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

GREENLANE/LESLIE - $479,000
"Power of Sale" Custom Home, 4 bdrms. F. Sversky 488-2875 SOLD

STEELES & HILDA
Cust. blt. home, uniq. 9' ceil., spectac., lower. O. Guvenal* 226-1987

BATHURST RAVINE! - $369,000
50'x150' cust. exec., 4+1 bdrm. w/out lower. O. Guvenal*226-1987

IDEAL RESIDENCE & OFFICE – $289,000
Thornhill heritage area. Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

HERITAGE AREA – $269K
Build 2500 s.f., Olde Thornhill lot, trees. Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

ATKINSON & CLARK – $259,900!
3 br. det., main fam. rm., 2 car gar. & more! Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

ATT: 1ST TIME BUYERS - WOW! – $209,900
3 br. on Cres., huge kit. & more! Hedda Zaionz* 226-1987

FOR LEASE - BAYVIEW/YORK MILLS
Renovated 3 bdrm townhouse, 3 baths. F. Sversky 488-2875

CONDOMINIUMS

1ST AD! LUXURY CONDO!
Designer's suite, 2 bdrm., 2 bath. Davisville & Yonge. S. Slater* 488-2875

Associate Broker *Sales Representative

ALAN NEWTON
REAL ESTATE LTD. REALTOR

EXECUTIVE HOME – ATKINSON & CLARK
4+ bdrms., marble entry, main flr. library, huge deck, 2 f/places, large white kit., finished basement, quiet court. *Becky Wener

• • •

BATHURST MANOR – JUST LISTED!
Elegant family home on ravine, perfect for entertaining! Marble foyer, living & dining rms., reno'd kit., interlock, landscaped, fab in-law suite w/sep entrance. Must see! *Susan Shainhouse

• • •

DAVENPORT-ST. CLAIR RAVINE LOT! $429K
5 bdrms., south exp., 59 ft. lot, lovely original wood finishes, a charm! Location, Location! *Becky Wener

• • •

BATHURST-ROCKFORD "PRIDE OF ISRAEL"
3 bdrm. sidesplit, huge lot, main floor den, dble garage, hdwd., appls., fin. nanny's quarters w/sep. entry. $309K. *Ted Waxman

• • •

BATHURST-SHEPPARD – REDUCED TO SELL!
Large 4 bdrm. sidesplit, with large living & dining rms., finished bsmt., hdwd flrs., appls. Call *Mary Fenyes

• • •

CENTRE-NEW WESTMINSTER
Immaculate 4 bdrm., fenced & landscaped, part finished basement, appls., air, ceramics, motivated! *Susan Shainhouse

• • •

CONDOMINIUMS FOR SALE

BATHURST-FINCH "THE SAVOY"
Executive 3 bdrm. corner suite, marble, hardwood, 2 car pkg., 2 balconies, appls.++approx. 2,600 sq. ft. *Ted Waxman

• • •

BATHURST-STEELES - "TRIDEL" BUILT
Lovely 2 bdrm. corner suite, balcony, solarium, herringbone hdwd. flrs., over $15K in upgrades! Priced to sell! *Suzy Litman

* Sales Representative Associate Broker

(905) 764-7200

HK HARVEY KALLES
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR

Celebrating our 40th Year!

1ST AD! SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
36 Prue! $899K Exec. 5+2 bd., 6 bth., nestled on 62'x123'.

CALL CHAIM FOR CUSTOM BUILT HOMES
470 Old Orchard 3450 sf., 5 br., 50' lot, steps to Ave Rd.
65 Marmion 2900 sf., choose finishes, 4 br., great layout.
Other homes & building lots available. Call Chaim Talpalar

1ST AD! SANDON SCHWARTZBEN, V.P.
125 Arnold! $2,400,000 - Thornhill dream to be built.

PRESTIGIOUS BRIDLE PATH AREA
21 Bayview Ridge, situated on a 2 acre ravine lot, 14,000 sq. ft. mansion, 9 bdrms., 12 baths. J. Burstein

* Sales Representative  Associate Broker

A percentage of all our sales will be donated to "Turning Point Charity" supporting Homeless Youth.

(416) 441-2888 www.harveykalles.com

BATHURST & CLARK
$239,000. 2 stry., 3 bdrm. Finished lwr lvl with 2 pc bthrm. Newer kit. with ceramic flrs. Mstr bdrm. ensuite. Mn flr. pwdr rm.
MARSHA GOLDSTEIN (416) 229-4454
HomeLife/Partners Realty Inc.

10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE

Bath. Village, spac. sidesplit, 3 bdrm., hollywood kit., L-shaped liv. & din. rm., 4 bths., fam. rm. with w/out, rentable income bsmt. Priv.No Agents.665-1090

Bath./Lawr,55',spac lrg 3 bdrm bung,bright,upgrades,new deck & kit,fin bsmt. Private. 782-1984

24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY

York Mills/Bayview,No agents Private. 416-948-5555.

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

3000 Bath. St., 2 bdrm, newly decor., immed poss. Private Sale.416-782-7861or 787-4015.

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

BATHURST/STEELES
Just Listed!
Wow! Fantastic opportunity to live in great comfort & luxury. 2 BDRMS. + den & balc 2 ens. + pdwr. rm., marble flrs., California shutters & more; over 2,000 sq. ft. of living. To view this spectacular suite, please call:
AVA GELBART, Sales Rep.
Re/Max Realtron Realty, Inc.
(416) 222-8600

BATHURST-TORRESDALE
Just listed! End unit condo over 1600 sq. ft., family rm., gorgeous, upgraded, must be sold.
SALLY ROSEN
(905) 884-4425
CENTURY 21 SMITH LTD.

Bath./Finch, Savoy, comr, 21st flr, approx. 2600',3 bths, whirlpl, marble,extras galore! 736-8007

35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT

Beautifully appointed furn. 2 bdrm. & sol, + sun rm, $2,000./mo., util., cable & pkg. incl. Yonge/ Finch. 416-296-1012.

60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION

2 bdrm to share, Bath./Egl., pref. young prof/grad student, kosher. Jonathan, 783-5928.

REAL ESTATE Section

75 APARTMENT FOR RENT

BATHURST/SHEPPARD
Very lg 1, 2, 3 Bdrms, ample closets, some 1½ baths & 2 balc; roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, ind. pkg., 6 apts per flr. From $850.
960-3238 - Bus.
631-9377or 631-0388 - Super

Bath./Egl., bsmt apt, self-cont., 1 person, n/smkr. Call after 7pm, 416-785-7254.

80 SHORT TERM RENTAL

Clark/Hilds, furn. 2 bdrm, 2 bth, 2 pkg, rec. centre, Dec. 1-Mar. 31 (flexible). 905-889-4382.

82 ROOM FOR RENT

Lge. room avail. in priv. house (downtown Windsor), priv. driveway avail, we need a Jewish, mature, resp. person, live-in, 416-481-3949 (Toronto ph#).

84 ROOM WANTED

$1,000-$1,200. per mo. for furn. room w/board in kosher home. Ret. prof. lady. 789-1040.

125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE

FLORIDA PROPERTIES!!
Looking to Buy or Sell in Florida??
HOMES • CONDOS • COMMERCIAL
• RELOCATION SPECIALISTS •
Call your "CANADIAN CONNECTION"
MARSHALL POLLOCK, Realtor
Prudential Wites Realty, Inc.
Toll Free 1-888-907-2837 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. - 7 Days
(referral fees paid Canadian Realtors)

Garden apt,furn 2 bdr, 2 bths, conv.Must sell. 1-954-456-1755

Large condo, Lake Worth, Fla., Poinciana Lakes, 2 bdrm, 2 bath, den area, elev. bldg., active social, $59.9K U.S. Owner sale. Call 561-965-9977.

Ft. Laud., Inverrary, 2 bdrm, 2 bth, updated decorator's dream, avail immed. 416-449-6484.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

QUADOMAIN, HOLLYWOOD, FLA. Spectacular oceanview, 2 bdrm. convertible on beach for rent, fully furnished, Kosher. 633-4141.

Ft. Laud., beautif. furn, 1 bdrm, friendly people, 24 hr. secur, pool,club house, cable, nr. synagogue,$790.US.Call 626-9611

Ft. Myers, 2 bdrm, 2 bth condo, across from beach. 283-6555.

Hallandale, Diplomat Parkway, 1 bdrm., 2 bath condo., balc., canal view, $1,400/mo. U.S.+ util. Avail. Dec. 1- April 15. Season pref. 932-1345.

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

Palm Beach condo., oceanfront, 2 bdrms., 2 baths, furn., immed. occup. 416-504-4267.

Palm Aire - Cypress Bend
Buying, Selling or Renting.
Call us for all your Real Estate needs.
Wieder Realty Inc.
(954) 978-8300

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

ANBER MOVERS
(LOCAL MOVING)
SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO ↔ VANCOUVER
NEW YORK ↔ FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE

150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION

Looking for a person to share driving & expenses to Fla., around Nov. 1. Cell:416-258-7736

175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Moving to Israel from Toronto. Looking for a furn 2-3 bdrm apt between Jaffa to just north of Herziliya, pref. with a seaside view, for a 6 mo. - 1 yr. period. Only 1 tenant.Please call David, 416-785-0108. P.S. Willing to share upon your visits to Israel.

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

E.C.E. TEACHER
For Day Care in Thornhill. Kindergarten experience, and Hebrew an asset.
Call (905) 731-2797

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

4 mo. old looking for friend to share a nanny. Mon.-Fri, in Mt. Pleas./Egl. area. Call 545-1245.

Cleaning lady, exper, Polish, Russian, English speaking (refs. avail.) 416-239-8227,Aggi

Harvacott Domestic Services
"Five stars above the rest"
Available: prof. cleaning ladies, nannies, housekeepers,party helpers. Exper. with refs. & legal. 905-771-7882.

High quality house cleaning. Call Dora, 736-1179.

I will clean your house & apt. or office for a very good price. You won't be disappointed. I speak English, Russian & Polish. If you are interested, please call 416-503-8476, evgs.

I will clean your house/apt. days, Mon.-Sun. 638-9654.

I will keep your home clean & tidy on a regular basis (small offices also) at reas. rates. Call Angie, 780-9874, after 5 pm.

Israeli lady, 34, for baby/child/Sr. care + light hskpng, child care diploma, religious bckgrnd. 416-633-5442, Shelly.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

APPLE DOMESTICS NEED A NANNY?
- No Fee to Employer
- Professionally screened, Qualified, Live-In Nannies available for sponsorship.
- Choose from Nurses, Midwives, Teachers
- We prepare all documents for you.
- We have a 100% Approval rate!

(416) 730-0127

DOMESTIC SEARCH
Our Company is dedicated to fulfilling the domestic needs of your family. Tired of searching for the right nanny, housekeeper, elderly caregiver? We pre-screen, interview & verify references personally. Why not let the search end here?
CALL (416) 630-3773

MARLA'S DOMESTICS
RECEIVE THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
Live-in/out nannies, care for the elderly, cleaning. Bonded, references.
Call MARLA
226-4325

GOLDEN CARE LTD.
People you trust taking care of people you love.
We have live-in and live-out caregivers. We specialize in helping seniors, and people afflicted with Stroke, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's.
LOW RATES WITH THE BEST PERSONAL SERVICE
Honey Hecker
(416) 665-4229

Jewish and Russian ladies avail. for child & elderly care, also housekeeping. 932-3042

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

RN's, RPN's seek jobs in priv. homes, to offer quality nursing care, foot care & palliative care. Affordable Rates. Call 391-0582

260 BUSINESS PERSONALS

Bringing People Together. Top rated service that puts your needs 1st. Ruth, 905-731-5204

Jewish Singles Registry website, www.total.net/~jsreg or call 416-483-4151.

The Jewish Dating Network, Money-Back Guarantee, 1-800-263-6831,Fax: 1-800-293-6297. www.jewishdials.com

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED

• CJN Boxes for Personal Companions Wanted ads are valid for 30 (thirty) days only (from 1st publication date). Replies must be received within this time frame in order to be forwarded to the correct CJN Box #.

Attr, personable prof. male,38, seeks soulmate. 633-1728.

Easy going male, 40's, with many interests, seeks caring lady for serious relationship. All replies answeredCJN Box 6978

I have a fine, considerate, reliable, indep. brother, 41, who has a slight learning disability & dreams of meeting a caring, sensitive woman for a long term relationship. 221-4714.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED

SJF, 40, very attr & very fit, spiritual,great sense of humour, looking for a JM,40-50,who's seriously special.CJN Box 6982

KUSHI KABBALAH CUENCA
Do any two of these mean something to you? If so, read on. I, attr., slim, prof. woman, healthful lifestyle, love travel & arts, seeking personable, tall, phys. & emot. fit, fun loving, youthful 50's soulmate, with humour & zest for living, for friendship to marriage. CJN Box 6981

Replying to a Companion ad with a CJN Box Number?
Address your mail to:
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ontario
M3B 3K4
Box # _____

280 ANNOUNCEMENTS

New Mom seeking a career change? Come out & meet other Mom's like yourself, for support, ideas & socializing. Founding mtg. Fri., Nov. 7th, 1pm. Second time Mom's also welcome. For info. call Lisa, at 416-782-3742.

330 OBITUARIES

FELDHEIM, ERIC. Died unexpectedly,Oct. 2, 1997, just short of his 77th birthday. Formerly of Toronto. Father, with Ilse Feldheim, of David, Daniel, Shira. Author of Teachers' Guides on Jewish Education. Director of Education, Beth Tzedec Congregation, Toronto, 1949-64. Fought in N. Africa, Italy, Palestine, 1939-45. Condolences to Mrs. Marcy Feldheim, 381 Willowbrook Drive, North Brunswick, New Jersey, USA, 08902.

331 IN MEMORIAM

MAXWELL NORMAN ROCKMAN, D.D.S., BSc. Dent. In loving memory of our wonderful father. He enriched and made joyous our lives, and he will live in our hearts forever. Sons, Peter & Joe, Daughter Laurie, and their mother, Lillian.
April 8, 1911 - October 21, 1957

335 UNVEILINGS

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late Mollie Sigal will take place on Sunday, October 26th, 11:30 am at Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park, First Narayever Section. Relatives & friends are invited to attend.

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of our beloved BETTY BLAUG ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26th, 11:00 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Shaarei Shomayim Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

335 UNVEILINGS

yad vashem monuments
(416) 782-8995
MAYER ISENBERG ז"ל
UNVEILING for SUNDAY, OCT. 26
Bathurst Lawn Wierzbniker (#38) 9:30 a.m.
Serving Your Community For Over 18 Years

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
MAX (Meilech) EISENBERG ז"ל loving father of Evy Karkowsky, Susie Kaplan, Debbie Eisenberg & Niomi Herblum
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26th, 10:15 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Ivansker Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
IDA GLICK ז"ל beloved wife of Chazzan David Glick, mother, grandmother and great grandmother
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26th, 11:30 a.m.
Beth Tzedec Memorial Park
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late HELEN JACOBS ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26, 11:00 a.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
MURRAY CARSON ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26th, 12:00 noon
Mount Sinai Memorial Park
Farband Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

338 SHIVA CATERING

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late beloved
SAM KOCHMAN ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26th, 10:45 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Keltzer Society Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
ESTHER MILLER ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26th, 11:00 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Adath Shalom Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
TOM (ISRAEL) SCHAFFER ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 26th, 11:00 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Beth Torah Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

338 SHIVA CATERING

KING SOLOMON'S CATERING
630-0303
SHIVA MEALS

milk 'n honey
THE DAIRY RESTAURANT
SAME DAY SERVICE
*Tasteful Presentation
*Hot/Cold Platters and Full Course Meals
• DELIVERY AVAILABLE
789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.

CJN Classifieds Really Work!
CALL LISA AT
(416) 391-1836

R.R.S.P. R.R.I.F. ANNUITY
BEST AVAILABLE RATES
For Personalized
Planning Strategies
Call (416) 787-4517
SB SHERR, BERGSTEIN & CRACKOWER

Sports

R.R.S.P. R.R.I.F. ANNUITY
BEST AVAILABLE RATES
For Personalized
Planning Strategies
Call (416) 787-4517
SB SHERR, BERGSTEIN & CRACKOWER

Manhattan hoopster joins Hapoel Jerusalem

By SIMON GRIVER
Special to The CJN

JERUSALEM — More than 4,000 athletes from around the world arrived in Israel for the recent Maccabi Games. One of them, Jesse Rosenfeld, a member of the U.S. basketball team and a Princeton graduate, decided to stay.

His love of basketball, rather than the spiritual attraction of Jerusalem, persuaded Rosenfeld to remain in the Israeli capital. The 23-year-old, 6-foot-9 inch, Manhattan-born power forward signed a two-year contract with Hapoel Jerusalem in July and has set his sights on building a successful career in top-flight European basketball.

"It seems kind of strange," he says, "to be getting well paid for something I love to do."

Rosenfeld refuses to reveal the size of his contract, but it is almost certainly around the $50,000 (US) a year mark. And that figure could swell to $100,000 if Hapoel has a successful season and Rosenfeld fits into the team. Leading Israeli basketball stars can earn up to $500,000 a year, as well as more from sponsorship and endorsement deals and advertising contracts.

Rosenfeld graduated in history from Princeton this summer. After a training session for the U.S. Maccabiah team in June, he was surprised to be approached by a basketball agent, who suggested that he try pro-basketball in Israel.

"Of course it was always my dream to play in the NBA," says Rosenfeld, who in his senior year at Princeton was the college team's first off-the-bench player. "But you can only work very hard and do your best, and realistically I wasn't going to make it in America. The standard of European basketball is very high and fiercely competitive.

"When we played our first pre-season friendlies at Malcha stadium in Jerusalem," he recalls, "I was really surprised by the excitement, warmth and enthusiasm of the fans. They made a lot of noise and really got behind the team, and I suddenly realized that I'd made it in the big time."

Hapoel Jerusalem has emerged in recent years as Israel's second-best team, after the perennial and former European champions Maccabi Tel Aviv. For the last two seasons, Hapoel has beaten Maccabi to win the state cup and has finished runners-up to them in the league. As runners-up, Hapoel qualifies this year for the prestigious European Cup competition.

"I get to travel throughout Europe," says Rosenfeld. "That's a great bonus. I'm really very lucky."

Rosenfeld grew up in the Soho section of Lower Manhattan in New York City. He describes his background as assimilated Jewish, but at the same time very Jewish culturally, simply because most of the people in the neighborhood and at school were Jewish. Nevertheless, he had never been to Israel until the Maccabiah. But he has always been very curious to see Israel, he says, which was why he decided to participate in the games.

Jesse Rosenfeld

"I had not planned the two-year contract with Hapoel," he says, "but then I hadn't planned anything after college. I certainly couldn't have found a job in the United States with a salary and short-term career potential like the one I have in Israeli basketball."

The Maccabiah itself turned out to be disastrous. First there was the collapse of the bridge, which claimed the lives of four Australian athletes. On the parquet, the U.S. basketball team, favorites to win the gold medal, crashed out in the semi-finals when they were unexpectedly defeated by Britain.

"The Maccabiah was a very bitter-sweet occasion," he recalls. "But it was still exhilarating to be in a major event that brought so many Jews together from all corners of the world."

After several months in Israel, Rosenfeld says he is acquiring a taste for the country. He is using his spare time to explore his Jewish roots and heritage. As a history graduate, albeit in 20th century U.S. history, he has been fascinated by the beauty and archeological richness of Jerusalem in particular and Israel in general.

Rosenfeld participated in Hapoel Jerusalem's pre-season tour of Turkey. Despite the fact that the team lost all its games, he enjoyed the experience and opportunity to play together with his new colleagues. Each Israeli team is only allowed four foreign players in the squad; so Rosenfeld has taken Israeli citizenship in order not to count as a "foreigner."

"The pre-season tour of Turkey was a chance to identify team weaknesses," he says, "and hopefully to correct them by the time the season gets under way."

Rosenfeld scored an average of 12 points per game on the tour, which was impressive considering that he spent much of his time on the bench.

"He's mobile and athletic," says Hapoel's coach Gadi Kedar, "and integrates well into the team. His passing is very strong and he plays intelligently. I think he will be an important addition to the squad."

ARE THEY JEWISH? . . . FIND OUT!
Subscribe to The JEWISH SPORTS REVIEW
Coverage of Jewish Athletes in all sports
6 issues yearly, $6.95 per issue, $36 yearly
1800 S. Robertson Blvd., Suite174-T Los Angeles, CA 90035
Send Money Order or Cheque - U.S. Funds Only

Does your copy of The Canadian Jewish News go home with your children every week?
Why not order the perfect gift ... for you and them. Their own CJN subscription.

The Canadian Jewish news
1500 DON MILLS RD., STE. 205
NORTH YORK, ONTARIO M3B 3K4
TELEPHONE: (416) 391-1836

Please send
The Canadian Jewish News
to:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____

CJN SUBSCRIPTION RATES
$29.95* 1 YR. CANADA ☐
$54.95 2 YR. CANADA ☐
Price includes GST.
G.S.T. #R105201149
$60.00 U.S. (Funds) 1YR. U.S.A. ☐
$75.00 U.S. (Funds) 1YR. FOREIGN ☐

PLEASE RETURN
WITH YOUR PAYMENT.
AMOUNT ENCLOSED$ _____
CHEQUE ENCLOSED ☐
OR VISA ☐
OR MASTERCARD ☐
NUMBER _____
EXPIRY DATE _____
TELEPHONE NO. _____

CJN Chanukah Poetry Contest

The CJN announces its third annual Chanukah poetry contest.

Who can enter: Anyone can enter except CJN employees or members of their family.

There are three age categories for entrants: 1. Twelve years old and under; 2. Thirteen to 18 years old; 3. Eighteen years old and up.

How to enter: The poems must be about Chanukah; they cannot be longer than 40 lines. A maximum of one poem per entrant may be submitted. Please include your name, age, address and phone number with the poem.

We would prefer to receive typewritten poems if possible.

We will return poems if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

You may mail or deliver your poems to:
CJN Chanukah Poetry Contest, The Canadian Jewish News,
1500 Don Mills Road., Suite 205, North York, Ontario, M3B 3K4.

The contest closes at 5 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 8, 1997.

Prizes: The judges will choose six poems to be published, two from each of the three categories, which in their opinion, most poetically and evocatively convey an aspect of the meaning of Chanukah. Each of the "winners" will also receive a cheque for $50.

Only six poems will be selected as "winners". Space permitting, we may publish other poems as honorable mentions. The decisions of the judges will be final. The odds of "winning" depend upon the number and the quality of submissions received.

How the winners will be notified: "Winning" entrants will be notified by telephone before the start of the Shabbat on Friday, Dec. 12, 1997.

When the prizes will be awarded: The winning poems will be published in The CJN of Dec. 25, 1997. We look forward to receiving your poems. May the miracle of Chanukah and the magic of its light be reflected in your poems.

Any litigation respecting the conduct and awarding of a prize in this contest may be submitted to the Regie des Loteries et courses du Quebec.

LAST WEEK'S CROSSWORD ANSWERS

A	R	T		A	D	E		C	C	C		A	H	S
G	O	O	D	M	A	N		D	O	A		M	O	E
A	Y	N	R	A	N	D		S	U	N	D	O	W	N
R	A	Y	S		C	O	B		R	A	I	S	E	D
A	L	S		Z	E	R	O		S	A	D
			L	A	D		O	V	E	N		J	T	A
P	I	C	O	N		S	K	I	S		P	O	E	M
I	V	O	R	Y		E	S	S		C	R	A	V	E
P	A	L	E		P	I	T	A		L	A	B	A	N
E	N	D		C	A	R	O		P	A	Y
			E	R	R		R	E	A	D		B	A	S
T	A	B	L	E	S		E	A	R		M	A	S	H
A	N	I	M	A	L	S		S	A	M	A	R	I	A
I	N	N		T	E	E		E	D	A	S	N	E	R
L	E	D		E	Y	E		L	E	N		A	L	E

The Inside Back

ספרותנו

מאת: יעל זליגר

כוכב משמים או חלב צפורים, כתבה תצירה: אלונה פרנקל, הוצאת מודן.

אלונה פרנקל היא סופרת לגיל הרך. ספריה מרובעים וקטנים ויפים. הגיבור הוא נפתלי. זה הילד שתלתליו שחורים שכולנו מכירים. אנחנו נדלנו אך נפתלי נשאר תמיד כבן שלוש.

הפעם, בספרה העכשווי של פרנקל, נפתלי מצובררת, נוגה, עצוב, עגום, קודר, מדוכא ורק בסוף הוא שוב מאושר!

כוכב משמים או חלב צפורים הוא ספר אינטלינגנטי. לעולם לא תתייחס אלונה פרנקל לילדיה הקוראים כאל יצורים אידיוטים, מבוגרים זעירים הסובלים מפיגור התפתחותי-שכלי. חמהות הרגשית בספר מתוחכמת, המלים יפות ובחלקן חדשות (לגיל הרך). כוכב משמים או חלב צפורים הוא בין ספריה חסובים ביותר של פרנקל.

מבחינה מבנית, הספר מעוצב בדגם חסיפור המצטבר; כלומר, פותחים בנתון: "פעם אחת, ילד ושמו נפתלי / קם בבוקר על צד שמאל / והרגיש שחסר לו משהו. / הוא היה מצברח." בחמשך, בכל עמוד או שניים, ישנה תוספת. במקרה שלנו, הארוע המצטבר הראשון הינו ארוחת הבוקר המפוארת שאבא של נפתלי הכין; "שחט מיץ תפוזים לגביע יין... טגן ביצת עין בלי הלבן הרועד המגעיל..." ואולם, וכאן נחשפת לראשונה חבעייתיות במצב רוחו של נפתלי: "אבל נפתלי הרגיש שחסר לו משהו." בנקודה זו מציבה הסופרת שאלת מפתח, זו השאלה שנפתלי נשאל על-ידי כל אותן דמויות בספר חמשתדלות באלף דרכים נוגעות לב להיטיב עם נפתלי.

בתחילה, שאלת המפתח אינה מובנת: "אולי אתה רוצה כוכב משמים / או חלב צפורים?" והשאלה נשארת תמוהה עד לסיום הטוב. ובכן, השתדלותו הכנה של האב לא רוממה את מצב רוחו של נפתלי. "מצוברח ונוגה / הלך נפתלי לגן יוכבד." גם הגנת הנחמדת מתאמצת להיטיב עם נפתלי והרשתה לו להאכיל את הארנבים ומנתה אותו למלך התורן האחראי למשחק השקט. ואולם, נפתלי עדיין חש שחסר לו משהו; "מצוברח, נוגה ועצוב / חזר נפתלי הביתה." בבית ברור שיעשה הכל ולו רק להושיע את נפתלי מדכאונו. רקפת, הסבתא, מכינה לנפתלי ארוחת צהרים "הכי ערבה לחך בעולם." עזריאל, החבר, משחק עם נפתלי במכוניות והסבא, רתם-סלע, מכרכר, מצחקק ומפזז עם נכדו, נושא אותו "שקמח" ומספר מעשיות. ועם כל זאת, "מצברח, נוגה, עצוב, עגום / קודר ומדכא / הלך נפתלי לחדרו." בחדרו, נפתלי היה קפטן הוק, פיטר פן ובנה מגדל עד השמים. "המשחקים הכי נפלאים בעולם / אבל נפתלי הרגיש / שחסר לו משהו."

ובכן, אנו מגיעים לסיום ולפתרון המבוקש. נשמעו נקישות בדלת ונכנסת, כמובן, אמו של נפתלי. (וכי מי לא זוכר את אמו של נפתלי בספריה של אלונה פרנקל?) מעיפה האם מבט בנפתלי שלה ומיד מכריזה ש"הדבר רע עד מאוד / שיהיה בעולם הזה / ילד עם האף באדמה / מדכא, קודר, עגום / עצוב, נוגה ומצברח. / בבקשה לבוא הנה / תכף ומיד." כך אמרה ואספה את נפתלי בזרועותיה "ויחבקה אותו חזק נורא."

בצדן של המלים, מספרת פרנקל את סיפורו של נפתלי גם באמצעות איורים נהדרים. כשסבא מספר מעשיות, רואים איור של חייל, שמח, ובידו רובה שעליו כתוב: 1967. או לעתים, רואים את נפתלי מחייך. אך נרמז לנו מפורשותשהבעיה עדיין לא נפתרה שכן החתול והליצן באיור אינם נראים מאושרים. וכך,נזכור אנו, המבוגרים שלא תמיד אפשר לראות בחיוך של ילד, עדות מספקת לבריאות הנפש.

הספר נחתם במלים: "זה. לא. היה כוכב מהשמים / זה לא היה חלב צפורים. / זה היה כוכב מהשמים / בחלב צפורים." משפט מופלא האומר שמשהו שלא ניתן לחשיגו, אפשר למצוא בדבר נפלא באמת; למשל חיבוקה האוהב של אם.

VEGGIE CHOPPED LIVER

THIS RECIPE BROUGHT TO YOU BY...

HERB CAPLAN

WE SELL JENN-AIR FOR LESS

1111 Weston Road (S. of Eglinton) 767-1655

1 lb. green beans
3 large eggs, hard-cooked
2 large onions, chopped
1/2 cup walnuts - optional
salt and pepper to taste

Cook the beans till tender. Saute onions slowly in a non-stick pan (using oil or broth or water, as you prefer), till they are caramelized (deep brown). A pinch of sugar can aid in this process. (They will really add a lot of flavour if done this way.)

Process everything together in food processor and season to taste with salt and pepper.

Makes 8 appetizer servings.

About families

Dear Susan,

I have been married for 15 years. I love my husband dearly, but we live our lives on an emotional roller coaster due to his extreme mood swings. His difficulties have put great stress on our marriage and on our children. I am exhausted and I find it difficult to think straight. What should I do?

Dear Reader,

It is easy to understand why the situation you describe would be both distressing and debilitating. It sounds like you have been weathering a storm with little respite or support. However, for everyone's sake it is critical that you act now to get the help your husband and your family needs.

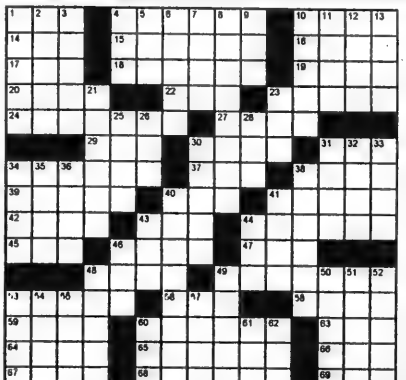
You might start by doing some reading in the area of depression or manic depression. You can contact a teaching hospital to get a simple reading list. It is essential, however, that you meet with a psychiatrist or with some other clinical specialist who specializes in mood disorders or depression. There can be many disorders causing the behavior you describe, including cumulative depression, situational depression or manic depression. Once you have a better idea what you are dealing with, you should contact your family doctor for an appropriate referral.

The second step is more difficult: ensuring that your husband avails himself of whatever help is appropriate. He may or may not want to cooperate. You may want to seek the help of your doctor in planning how to deal with any resistance on your husband's part. People who are depressed often do not appreciate how profound their depression is. They have little insight into how their depression affects their marriage and family on a daily basis.

Is your husband a risk to himself or to others? If such risks do present themselves, an inpatient program may be the only alternative, at least initially. Once he is stabilized, ongoing individual, marital and family therapy may be more appropriate. Such treatment must be carefully orchestrated and coordinated, however. Regulating diet, sleep and medication may also be part of the treatment formula.

Susan Leventhal is a family, marital and individual therapist, who has been practising for more than 18 years.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE



Across

1. Third Judah king
4. Moe or Larry
10. Schnorrer (Eng)
14. 52
15. Comedian Korman
16. Israeli city
17. Lamed (Eng.)
18. Alias Michael Landon
19. Create
20. Dersbowitz bargain?
22. Bezalel study
23. Comic Soupy
24. Tyrant over Bar Kochba
27. Esther's kingdom?
29. Supply with Uzis
30. Dinner for chazzer?
31. Hasmonean site
34. DJ, __ the "K"
37. Jamie __ Curtis
38. Not on Shabbat
39. Solos for Peerce
40. __ relief, sculptor's style
41. De Rothschild title
42. Schindler tally
43. Hebrew letter
44. Move for Steinitz
45. Haifa to Jerusalem (dir)
46. "Street Scene" playwright
47. Yiddish disdain
48. Puny
49. Newswoman Walters
53. High priest vestment
56. Prophesize
58. Shevat follower
59. Macher
60. Nazi leader
63. El Al milieu
64. Nebbish?
65. Haman's fifth
66. Alphabet run
67. Writer Oz
68. Issure Danielovitch-___, Kirk Douglas
69. Tel-aviv to Ashdod (dir)

Down

1. Hebrew letter
2. Joash's murder site
3. Needed chicken soup?
4. Her
5. Zeta Beta ___ fraternity
6. Temple soundmaker
7. Angel of Death path
8. Non-Jews
9. Evil__
10. Purim villian
11. Sabin vaccine
12. Make the Matzo?
13. Emma Lazarus specialty
21. Ark's end
23. Maple syrup source
25. Gershwin and Morris
26. Golfer Alcott
28. Lox starters
30. "The __" IB Singer novel
31. Schmutz (Eng)
32. Pagan deity
33. Actor Hackman
34. Bris must
35. "The Angry Hills" author
36. Make aliyah
38. 13th century rabbi
40. Tuches (Eng)
41. Boxer Max
43. __Maris, Jerusalem
44. Finance degree
46. Coach Auerbach
48. Loshenhura, Evil ___
49. Torah tinkles
50. Gimbel and Sandler
51. Noah's forecast
52. Dart
53. Writer Ferber
54. Nelly Sachs specialty
55. Samson
57. Village of Simeon
60. Owned
61. Prior NYC mayor
62. Moses' aura

These puzzles are the work of Kathi Handler of Waterbury, Connecticut.

(Last week's answers are on page 46.)

Progress Report

FULFILLING OUR COMMITMENT

The Swiss banks are achieving significant progress towards resolving the issue of dormant World War II-era accounts in a fair and open manner.

Our major initiatives to date include:

■ Identifying Dormant Accounts

The Swiss banks are committed to identifying all accounts that could have belonged to victims of Nazi persecution.

In addition to conducting their own search for dormant accounts, the Swiss banks are providing complete access and assistance to hundreds of forensic auditors working for the Independent Committee of Eminent Persons, chaired by Paul A. Volcker and comprised of prominent Jewish and Swiss leaders.

■ Helping Needy Holocaust Survivors

The Swiss banks are committed to helping needy Holocaust survivors.

Earlier this year, the three largest Swiss banks, Credit Suisse, Swiss Bank Corporation, and UBS, contributed 100 million Swiss francs ($70 million) to establish a special fund for victims of the Holocaust. Other Swiss banks and Swiss industry have since contributed an additional 80 million Swiss francs ($55 million). With a pledge of 100 million Swiss francs from the Swiss National Bank, the fund now has a total of 280 million Swiss francs ($194 million). The Fund's board consists of representatives of Jewish organizations and private Swiss citizens and is chaired by Rolf Bloch, leader of the Swiss Jewish community. Proceeds from the Fund will soon be distributed to Holocaust survivors in Eastern Europe.

■ Publishing Dormant Accounts

The Swiss banks are committed to publishing dormant accounts.

In July, the Swiss banks published an initial list of World War II-era dormant accounts of non-Swiss customers in newspapers around the world and established an Internet site. The Swiss banks also established five international contact offices staffed by the accounting organization of Ernst & Young that was engaged to help rightful owners file claims.

■ Creating An Expedited Payment Process

The Swiss banks are committed to returning assets to their rightful owners quickly, easily and without cost to claimants.

To accomplish this objective, the banks have established a cost-free, expedited payment process, which is being supervised by an independent, international panel operating under relaxed standards of proof. Claims from the July list are now being processed and payments will be made shortly.

This progress demonstrates both the leadership and the seriousness of the Swiss banks in addressing and resolving this complex issue.

New Information Available

On October 29, the following World War II-era accounts will be published:

- Dormant passbooks and savings accounts of non-Swiss citizens.
- Dormant accounts of non-Swiss citizens that have been identified as a result of the Swiss banks' ongoing search.
- Dormant accounts belonging to Swiss citizens.

Call Our Contact Offices

If you wish to review these lists, please fill out the Information Kit Request Form and mail it to the nearest Ernst & Young contact office listed below. You will receive an Information Kit that includes the lists, fully describes the claims process, and explains how to file a claim.

- Ernst & Young LLP, c/o Dormant Accounts
  PO Box 1880, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101, +1-212-344-0610
- Kost Levary and Forer, c/o Dormant Accounts
  2 Kremenetski Street, Tel Aviv, Israel 67899, +972-3-623-2559
- ATAG Ernst & Young, c/o Dormant Accounts
  Aeschengraben 9, P.O. Box 2149, CH-4002 Basel
  Switzerland, +41-61-272-08-11
- Ernst & Young Kft, c/o Dormant Accounts
  1146 Budapest, Hermina út 17, Hungary, +36-1-343-5117
- Ernst & Young, c/o Dormant Accounts
  The Ernst & Young Building, G.P.O. Box 2646
  Sydney, N.S.W. 2001, Australia, +61-2-9248-5736

If you have already received an Information Kit from Ernst & Young, an updated kit will be mailed to you automatically.

Use Our Toll-Free Number Or Web Site

If you have any questions or need assistance, please call the following toll-free number: 1-800-662-7708

You can also search for dormant accounts and review other pertinent information at the Swiss Bankers Association's Internet site:
http://www.dormantaccounts.ch

Information Kit Request Form

Please send me information about the Claims Process:

Name _____

Street _____

City State Zip Code

Country _____

Daytime Phone: _____

Please specify preferred language:

☐ English ☐ Yiddish ☐ Hebrew ☐ German ☐ Spanish
☐ Czech ☐ Hungarian ☐ Italian ☐ Polish ☐ French
☐ Portuguese ☐ Romanian ☐ Russian ☐ Bulgarian ☐ Dutch

SWISS BANKERS ASSOCIATION

SWISS BANKERS ASSOCIATION
ASSOCIATION SUISSE DES BANQUIERS
SCHWEIZERISCHE BANKIERVEREINIGUNG

Bell offers great October savings to call overseas.
For details, call
1 800 668-BELL(2355)
Bell
www.bell.ca

The Canadian Jewish news
56 Pages Thursday, October 30, 1997 Tishrei 29, 5758 75¢

AFFORDABLE
ISRAEL
Call your travel agent
EL AL

This Week

Greater Toronto Area

Many Jewish candidates in the running for Megacity's elected positions. Page 3

Students at Associated Hebrew Schools get top honors in essay contest. Page 14

Awareness Players throw the spotlight on elder abuse. Page 24

Time of Your Life

Volunteers at Elderhostel program provide many services around the world. Page 28

On Campus

Tiny university in Massachusetts becomes first in the U.S. to offer doctorate in Holocaust history. Page 34

Sports

Shawn Green and other Jewish major leaguers shut out of playoffs. Page 54

Index

GTA	3
Editorials and Letters	8
Perspectives	9
Opinions	10
The Kirshner File	11
Jewish Life	12
What's New	20
Just Between Us	26
Time Of Your Life	28
On Campus	34
Coast to Coast	35
International	41
Travel, Arts & Business	46
Health	49
Classified	50
Sports	54
Ask Lisa	55
Crossword	55

Shabbat: Noach
Candlelighting: 4:52
Tishrei 30, 5758
Havdallah: 5:57

$36M boost for Jewish education

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Jewish communities across Canada will be able to tap into an historic $36-million (US) grant fund for Jewish education announced last week in New York.

The North American Jewish Day School Challenge Grant program will be funded by 10 prominent Jewish businesspeople and philanthropists, led by Canadians Charles and Edgar Bronfman. Funders include UJA Federation of New York and the U.S.-based Avichai Foundation, which invests extensively in Jewish education.

The program seeks to create 25 to 30 new Jewish elementary or middle schools across North America over the next five years to counter growing assimilation and indifference to Jewish education.

At a press conference last week in Manhattan, leaders of the newly created Partnership for Excellence in Jewish Education said that each of the 12 partners is contributing $1.5 million (US) over five years to the fund, for a total of $18 million.

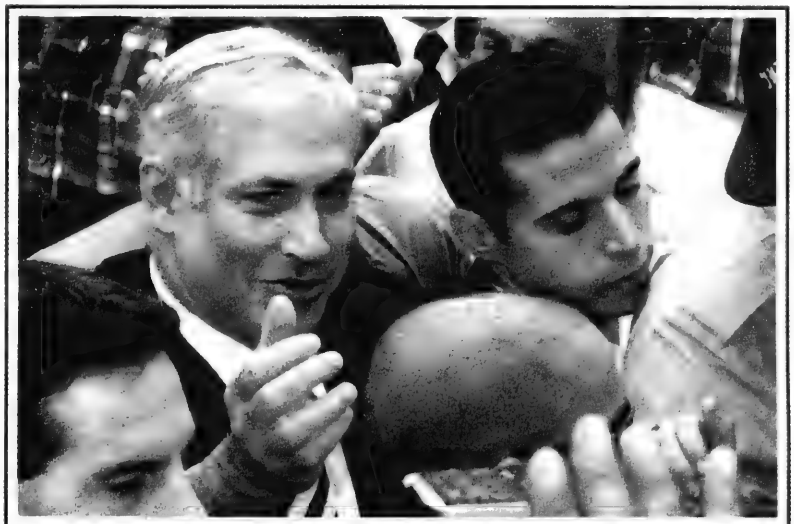
Recipients will be required to match their awards dollar for dollar in their communities, making the total grant program a $36-million effort.

Each grant will average $300,000 (US) over five years, or $420,000 Canadian at current rates. The money may not go toward tuition or capital construction. Funding will cover two years of planning and three years of start-up operations.

Despite the restrictions, Jewish educators say the money would free up other funds that could be used to subsidize tuitions.

The dozen partners in the venture want to "increase meaningfully the number of non-Orthodox Jewish youth in day

Continued on page 43



A SLIP OF THE TONGUE BUT STILL SUPPORTED

Prime Minister Netanyahu is surrounded by well-wishers at his home after he caused a furor with remarks about his left wing opposition. In an earlier conversation with Rabbi Yitzhak Kadouri, Netanyahu stated "the left has forgotten what it means to be Jewish." He did not realise the remarks had been captured by a nearby microphone. [RNS/Reuters photo]

CONTINUITY FOR CHANUKAH

Over the past few years, The CJN has grown and evolved into an award-winning newspaper widely read both here in Canada and abroad. We are extremely proud of this newspaper.

We endeavor to provide our readers with accurate and reliable news from around the Jewish world, diverse opinion, interesting feature stories, and thoughtful and thought-provoking essays from renowned authors and scholars. We trust you will agree that in each issue of The CJN there is something for every member of the family to read. But are all members of your family getting a chance to read The CJN?.

To try to ensure that our newspaper reaches more and more people, and more and more families, we have decided to offer our readers a special, one-time opportunity to provide their children or their grandchildren with their own subscription to The CJN. We are therefore launching a special continuity subscription campaign in time for Chanukah. A gift subscription for your child or grandchild, who does not already subscribe to The CJN, will cost $14.95 (taxes included) for one full year to anywhere in Canada.

Could there be a better gift at Chanukah for your child or grandchild than the opportunity to feel part of the Jewish community?

Please use the special order form and envelope included with this issue to take advantage of this unique gift subscription opportunity.

Sincerely,
Mordechai Ben-Dat
The editor.

Arms to Iran?

By JAY BUSHINSKY
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Russian Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primakov denied last weekend that Moscow is helping Iran build a ballistic missile arsenal.

Despite Primakov's statement and Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's insistence that Israeli intelligence indicates such help is being given to Iran, the two governments say they intend to work more closely together for Middle East peace.

With Netanyahu standing at his side after a one-on-one session, Primakov said, "Russia is not doing anything that would advance Iran toward possession of weapons of mass destruction."

Declaring that Russia adheres to UN agreements against the proliferation of missile technology, Primakov said that "neither technology nor material of any kind that could be used in the manufacture of weapons of mass destruction" is being provided to Iran.

In an earlier meeting with Foreign Minister David Levy, the Russian diplomat dismissed a question about Moscow's involvement in the Iranian missile program as "baseless rumors."

But Netanyahu countered unequivocally, saying, "We are not in agreement on the factual basis."

MAY SN1
TORONTO ON
PO BOX 972 STATION F
MCLAREN MICROPUBLISHING LTD
D MCLAREN
CJN0000896009 PP 09N0V97
*DIRECT MAY

Families outraged at Papon — please see page 42

Features

A guide to Jewish horoscopes

By BEVERLEY JANUS

The ancient teachings of Judaism carried the varied and vibrant seeds of today's flowering New Age movement and its lively interest in the paranormal. Numerology, spiritual healing and astrology are a few of the many esoteric arts known to and used by our learned ancestors. It's all been around for a long, long time.

Everyday millions of people check their horoscopes — totally unaware that they are using the Jewish lunar calendar. Libra, for instance, is also the month of Tishrei, the time of year when Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are celebrated. The scale symbol that signifies both Tishrei and Libra is wonderfully appropriate for the High Holy Days. They are the Days of Awe when we look inward, weigh our deeds for the past year and try to achieve inner balance.

In Judaic astrology, the signs of the zodiac are named after the 12 sons of Jacob, the grandson of Abraham. The 12 constellations were named in the order of each son's birth, beginning with Reuben and ending with Benjamin, the youngest.

When you combine Judaic astrology with today's traditional western astrology, the conjoined overview gives an added new dimension and subtlety to the horoscope.

A prime example is the sun sign, Virgo, known as Zebulun in Judaic astrology (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22). In our western tradition, Virgo, the virgin, is seen as prim, organized and prudish. The eastern viewpoint sees a Virgo as a seeker of experience, needing and wanting new delights of both the mind and body. The Middle Eastern harems of yesteryear not only locked out male predators — but also saved virgin females from their own lusty needs and desires.

One of the main differences of Judaic astrology from that of its non-religious peers is that in Judaism, a belief in God and the doing of mitzvot — good deeds — will help deliver one from an apparently, predestined fate.

This view of astrology, that one can and does affect one's own fate is an extremely important departure from that of the more fatalistic astrological beliefs of Israel's ancient peers. It is imperative to understand that a horoscope only indicates opportunities, challenges and trends. In many ways it can be likened to life's road map. It gives an overview of one's personal circumstances, locates future problems and shows directions. But it is one's driving skill — one's own personal control — that determines the eventual outcome. In other words, we make our own reality. Ultimately, we are the master of our own fate.

With that in mind, read on and see what November 1997 may have in store for you.

ARIES: BENJAMIN
MARCH 21-APRIL 19

Impulsive, intensely loyal and a little selfish, Benjamin embodies the self-confident Aries. Born, like Joseph, from the love match of Jacob and Rachel, who died giving birth to him, Benjamin was treated with favor by his brothers and father. So too, does Aries seem to be first in line when favors are handed out by the universe. And if not originally at the head of the line, Aries will push forward, never acknowledging obstacles that would deter lesser souls.

TAURUS: REUBEN-
APRIL 20-MAY 20

Taureans like Reuben will often put aside their dignity pursuing earthly delights. Reuben lay with his father's concubine, Bilhah, and thus defiled Jacob's couch. Aside from their often impulsive, lusty nature, Taureans can be kind and sensitive. They do not enjoy the feelings of anger and try to avoid situations leading to it. Often appearing to be stubborn and fixed in their views, Taureans want to be surrounded by beauty, peace and love. They will, if necessary, angrily fight for this goal.

GEMINI: SIMON
MAY 21-JUNE 21

Gemini is thought of as the intellectual communicator but Simon, the Judaic ruler of Gemini, was known to be both violent and vengeful. Excellent communicators, usually with multitudinous interests, Geminis can be intellectually aggressive when angered. They will verbally dispose of their enemy, destroy reputations and shatter fragile egos. Geminis love mind games and can be most kind and thoughtful — when they win.

CANCER: LEVI
JUNE 22-JULY 22

Acting as priests and servants of God, the tribe of Levi separated from the rest of the community. A protective shell also separates sensitive Cancers from their world. Levi was considered to be emotionally violent. Angry Cancerians can create a verbal avalanche of guilt that will weaken even the strongest soul. Scrabbling back and forth from sweet, considerate, homebody to smothering dominance, the Cancer needs security, home and love.

LEO: JUDAH
JULY 23-AUG. 22

Judah is the responsible brother, the leader. His is the tribe of kings, spawning both King David and the awaited Messiah. Leos treat most people magnanimously. But, beware. If crossed or humiliated in any way, the Leo, like the ferocious King of Beasts, will wreak dreadful vengeance. Sometimes, but not always, abject grovelling will restore the wretched sinner back into the royal court. King Leo will usually prevail.

VIRGO: ZEVULUN

[Cont'd. on page 18]

RRSP MEMBER CIPF RRIF
ONT. NFLD. HQ
Government Guaranteed Securities
6.90%*
minimum $40,000 portfolio
ask about our monthly pay
CALL 416-512-2511 • JOHN KITCHEN
*RATES SUBJECT TO CHANGE • 04/18
TD EVERGREEN WEALTH MANAGEMENT
A Division of TD Securities Inc. A Subsidiary of TD Bank

1997 - THE YEAR OF THE RRIF
AN RRSP DECISION: If you are 69-71 years of age - you must act NOW!!
We will customize a retirement plan to meet your unique income and estate objectives.
Call us:
Annuity Accords Insurance Agency Inc.
GORDON ROSS, CLU, CFSB (416) 631-6955
A MEMBER OF THE KRG GROUP

THE 1998'S ARE HERE!!
LEASE A BRAND NEW 1998 VOYAGER
MAGIC WAGON
$245 PER MONTH
Be the first to place your order or take one from incoming inventory. Equipped as follows: air conditioning, pr. steering, pr. brakes, rear wiper/washer, floor mats f/r, am/fm stereo radio, 7 pass seating, tinted glass, rear window defroster, dual sport mirrors, roof luggage rack, dual air bags.
DOWNSVIEW Jeep
CHRYSLER PLYMOUTH (1964) LTD.
ON ALLEN ROAD. JUST NORTH OF SHEPPARD
199 RIMROCK RD., NORTH YORK, ONT. M3J 3C6
Call Mel Wise
635-1660
TERMS: Lease price is based on a 30 month term, OAC with $2,500.00 down payment or trade required. Freight, licence and all taxes extra. Security deposit required.

Thank you to our sponsors
Midland Walwyn
A. G. F. Group of Funds
New Style Group of Companies
Your generous contributions allowed 700 participants to hear John Loftus' presentation on "The Secret War Against the Jews"
The Construction & Development Division and the Women's Division
STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS

The Canadian Jewish news
Vol. XXXVIII, No. 27 (2,873)
An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Gary Laforet
General Manager

Mordechai Ben-Dat
Editor

Vera Gillman
Advertising & Assistant General Manager

Carol Jamieson
Controller

Jeff Rosen
News Editor

Joseph Serge
Travel, Arts & Business Editor

Janice Arnold, Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner, Frances Kraft, David Lazarus, Elias Levy, Paul Lungen, Ben Rose, Leila Speisman
Staff Reporters

Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Emil Fackenheim, Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone, Miriam Herman, Shira Herzog, Martin Himel, Justin Korda, Dr. Gidi Koren, Shel Krakofsky, Sam Lipshitz, Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut, Viva Press, Morton Weinfeld
Columnists

Stephen Bindman, Joel Jacobson, Myron Love, Wendy Schneider, Judy Shapiro, Moura Wolpert
Canadian Correspondents

Edgar Asher
Israel Correspondent

Leslie Kinrys
Chief Copy Editor

Carolan Halpern
Copy Editor

Ella Burakowski
Assistant Advertising Manager

Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen, Barbara Ferguson, Ruth Goldsmith, Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman, Honey Mahl, Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig
Sales Representatives, Toronto

Lisa Freid
Classified Advertising Representative

Doris Perez
Office Manager

Alma Delory, Karen Syptak
Office Staff, Toronto

Janice Atkinson
Circulation

Brian Stoneman
Composing Room Manager

Rasma Brants, José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel, Britta Petersen, Nick Radelja, Larry Tremblay
Production Staff

Charles Bronfman, Donald Carr, Q.C., George A. Cohon, Steven Cummings, Murray Koffler, Julia Koschitzky, Albert J. Latner, Lionel H. Schipper, Robert Vineberg, Rose Wolfe, Rubin Zimmerman
Directors

Ray D. Wolfe
Founding President (1971-1990)

Head Office: 1500 Don Mills Rd., Ste. 205, North York, Ont., M3B 3K4
Tel: 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949
Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829
E-MAIL: TorCJN1@aol.com

IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives
POB 7195, Jerusalem, Israel
Tel. 02-252-933, Fax. 02-249-240

CIRCULATION
Average circulation per issue: 46,711 copies.
Average net paid circulation per issue: 45,109 copies.
Publisher's sworn statement March 7, 1997.

SUBSCRIPTIONS
Canada: $29.95, 1 yr. incl. GST. $54.95, 2 yr. incl. GST.
U.S.A.: $60 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $75 U.S. funds, 1 yr.

Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.

Postage Paid at Toronto
Publication Mail Registration #1683

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper. Acceptance of advertising does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News.
The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

A TASTE OF JUDAISM
For a "Taste of Judaism" call Kolel 905-764-1329

This Week
Greater Toronto Area

Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future? Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals.
Call SONNY GOLDSTEIN
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning
Sonny Goldstein, CLU, ChFC
President

Candidates off and running in GTA election

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — There are Jewish candidates aplenty in the historic Nov. 10 vote for the Megacity's first elected jobs.

North York's favorite son, Mel Lastman, who hopes to become the GTA's first mayor, leads the pack in visibility and a consistent, uncanny ability to grab headlines. Poll after poll has put a confident Lastman ahead of his only major opponent, Toronto Mayor Barbara Hall.

But some pundits caution the race could become a tortoise-and-hare affair with the possibility that the decidedly unflamboyant Hall can pull off an upset victory.

Hall has reached out to Jewish voters on occasion, having spoken at last year's opening of Holocaust Education Week, when she recounted her visit to Auschwitz, and by advertising in The CJN.

Some have observed that Lastman, who's breezed into the mayor's office in North York for the last 25 years, with little if any opposition, is an unsteady campaigner, especially when the sledding gets tough.

Also in the running for the Megacity's top job is perennial candidate and long-shot Don Andrews, a one-time leader of the neo-Nazi Western Guard party.

Whoever the Megacity's first mayor will be, he or she will govern with a new mega-council, composed of 56 councillors, two each from the 28 wards that will replace the current municipal councils in Metro.

One race to keep an eye on is in North York Spadina, where veteran Metro councillor and longtime Lastman rival Howard Moscoe will square off against North York councillor Mike Feldman, who's been active in the Jewish community. Others in the running are North York councillor Frank Di Giorgio, Henry Braverman, Roy Dzeko and Nickeisha Hudson.

Over in North York Centre South, long-serving North York councillors Milton Berger and Joanne Flint are seeking mega-seats, as are Dick Chapman and Stuart Weinstein.

Norm Gardner, long a visible presence on the Jewish and Metro scenes, is running against well-known local political figures Ron Summers and John Filion in North York Centre.

Lawyer Joel Ginsberg, a failed Tory candidate in the last provincial election, is running against North York councillor David Shiner in Seneca Heights. Joining them are Raffi Assadourian, Joan King and Bernadette Michael.

In Midtown ward, former Toronto councillor Howard Levine is attempting a comeback. An urban planner, Levine represented Ward 14 for six years prior to his defeat in the last municipal vote, as well as having represented city council on Canadian Jewish Congress's community affairs committee. He'll be running against current councillor Ila Bossons, John Adams, Philip Charles, Blair Gray, Howard Joy, Brian Mayes and David Vallance.

Running for school trustees on the Toronto public board are current North York trustee Gerri Gershon (Ward 20), and newcomer Shelley Laskin, a cartographer and education activist (Ward 14). Candidates Arnold Goodman, Jerry Green and Lorne Berg are slugging it out in Ward 18.

In the City of Vaughan, Canada's fastest-growing Jewish centre, Mayor Lorna Jackson, considered a friend of the community, is seeking a sixth term. She's running against Jonathan Lewin, 18, an employee at Canada's Wonderland, and Franco Cavaliere, an insurance broker.

A spirited and closely-watched race has developed in Vaughan's Ward 5 between current councillor Bernie Green and former York Region school trustee Susan Kadis, who narrowly lost to Green in the 1994 vote. Both have been active in the Jewish community. They face a challenge from Rick Levine, a bandleader who has run in several previous elections.

Next door in Ward 4, former school trustee Ted Berger is seeking a comeback against current councillor Mario Racco and candidate Victor Schiralli.

Markham Mayor Don Cousens, once a loud voice on Soviet Jewry when he was an MPP, is seeking re-election against two newcomers: Sam Orrico and Jeffrey Tam.

Bill Fisch, a member of Markham's council who ran unsuccessfully against Elinor Caplan in the last federal election in Thornhill, is running for regional councillor from Markham. He's facing Ralph Aselin, Gordon Landon, Edward Sarafian and former Markham mayor Frank Scarpitti.

Harvey Goodman, an educator, volunteer and past president of Shaar Shalom Synagogue, is running in Markham's Ward 2 against current councillor Randy Barber.

In Richmond Hill, longtime councillor David Cohen is running unopposed in Ward 3. Vying to represent Ward 6 are political newcomers Cheryl Richman and Richard Sadowski, a community activist who operates a dispute-resolution and mediation practice.

York Region's public school board will be reduced to 12 trustees from the current 19. Seeking re-election is Harvey Nightingale in Vaughan's Area 2. In Markham, Howard Shore, who failed to win the Liberal nomination in the provincial riding of Willowdale in 1995, is running in Area 1, while Janice Shachter is running in Area 2.

Greater Toronto Area

Irwin Igra

IF ONLY ONE IDEA, COULD CHANGE YOUR FINANCIAL FUTURE ...

One intelligent investment idea can make the difference between a comfortable retirement or an uncertain one.

Do you have a financial plan to guarantee your future?

For sound financial advice,
Call (416) 565-2732.

IGRA
FINANCIAL SERVICES

INDEPENDENT INSURANCE & INVESTMENT BROKERS
2100 Avenue Road • North York • Ontario • Canada M5M 4A8

STEELES MEMORIAL

Please, No Fuss - Just A Simple Service

If there is a greater respect than that accorded the deceased then it is respect for the living.

At STEELES MEMORIAL CHAPEL we don't "sell" you anything. Our job is to make you aware of all the choices and services available. We respect your choice.

When a family speaks to us, we listen.

Over 70 Years of Traditional Service

YOUR COMMUNITY CHAPEL
905-881-6003

From the editor's desk

There is no doubt that the Canadian autumn is a perfect accompaniment for our season of "remembering."

There is one unique moment in the autumn, usually towards its end, in fact around now, when the brittle, lifeless, falling leaves, the chilly air and the gloomy, glum gray in the skies fill us with downcast sadness and fleeting melancholy.

Jewish people, of course, do not designate a particular season for remembering. We remember as a matter of national, religious and moral obligation. We remember the people-shaping events of our collective past every day in our prayers, every seventh day in our rest, and at each and every one of our festivals. Memory is the instrument of our collective identity.

But there are certain times of the year that are set aside for "special" individual remembering. The month of November is one such time.

All across North America, Jewish communities are participating in educational programs regarding the Holocaust. These programs stand apart from Yom Hashoah, which we commemorate in the spring on the 27th day of Nisan.

The emotions and the reflections inspired by these programs blend in a memorial harmony with the emotions and the reflections of Remembrance Day.

Because it is autumn and because it is a time for remembering, I have reproduced some of the many poems that CJN readers have sent to me.

Youth

Youth from poor Jewish neighborhoods where you carried your lofty dreams like flags unfurled, with joy and song.
You grew up in storm, feverishly striving towards a sunny morn, yet never to touch it.

Poetic reflections

I see you – a forest full grown with curly heads proudly raised like crowns of rustling trees, eyes glowing with springtime dreams,
hands muscular, youthful and brave,
hearts trusting, full of glad tidings.

Your spirits still hover there,
in gutted towns, in ravaged lanes;
the cobblestone pavements yet wonder:

by Simcha Simchovitch
Translated by Faye Kellerstein

* * *

Epilogue: The Bottom Line

How many times must we stand up for the rights of other?
We must – to the nth degree
and yes
let's proclaim it to the world (they always want proof)
but it's still not enough.

How many injustices must we confront on behalf of others?
We must – to the nth degree
and let's shout it from the barricades
but it's still not enough.

How many banners must we hold up
and how many miles must we march
for the dignity of others?
We must – to the nth degree
but it's still not enough.

They know
yes they do
when the crunch comes we always stand up to be counted
but it's still not enough.

So let me ask you very tentatively with tears in my eyes will it be enough only when we turn the other cheek?

by Solly Kaplinski

* * *

Neshamot must be taken quickly

When does a man meet his own neshamah?
Is it at birth, at 13, or when his life starts sliding below?
Is it while ill, or is it while grieving?
Is it while joyous, under the chupah,
weeping?

Or when he opens up his heart and wallet
To his fellow man, whose need is real and honest?
But when his own suffering he can no longer withstand
Oh please, God, take his neshamah
back quickly.

She lives on the street, no family,
no home,
Freezing on cruel nights, starving
for food, love, someone who matters,
But when her own suffering she can
no longer withstand,
Oh please, God, take her neshamah
back, quickly.

A tzaddik is a person who gives and gives
To everyone who needs and everyone who asks
So, when his own suffering he can no longer withstand,
Oh please, God, take his neshamah
back, quickly.

The flood is still rising; they are all trapped in the house,
It's too late to flee, should have done so yesterday
And when their own suffering they can no longer withstand,
God of infinite mercy, take their neshamot back, quickly.

He's buried alive in the collapsed house, all his dear ones crushed.
There is no way out for him, his life is nearly outrun,
But when his own suffering he can
no longer withstand,
King of the Universe, take his neshamah back, quickly.

I'm not a real tzaddik, nor a limitless giver.
But as long as I'll have a piece of bread, your half is the other.
And when my own suffering I can
no longer withstand,
Father of my fathers, have mercy
upon me,
Take my neshamah back, quickly.

by Michael Sugar

Barbara HALL

Mayor for ALL the people

New Toronto Election '97

Barbara Hall Supports Your Community.
Support Barbara Hall with your Vote.

For more information, call 975-4470

Vote for Barbara Hall on November 10th

Greater Toronto Area

Jews told to stop seeing themselves as victims

By BARBARA SILVERSTEIN
Special to The CJN

[Related book review, page 12]

TORONTO — Jews need to stop identifying themselves as victims and instead adopt a self image that reflects their prominence in contemporary world affairs, says an expert on American Jewish life.

"We Jews still prepare ourselves to fight the things the world plans on doing to us. It ain't true...Jews are not victims. We are the players," American journalist J.J. Goldberg, told some 200 people attending a recent conference sponsored by the Labor Zionist Alliance of Canada.

Speaking on the Challenge of Jewish Education, Goldberg, a contributing editor for The Jerusalem Report and author of Jewish Power: Inside the American Jewish Establishment, said the world has changed and with it the Jewish experience. To have resonance and meaning for youth, therefore, Jewish education should be more consistent with the contemporary Jewish experience.

J.J. Goldberg

The reality that must be incorporated into education is that all groups of Jews who had once been victimized have been rescued and that the existence of Israel, "the fourth largest military power in the world" is not being threatened, Goldberg said.

"The [formerly victimized] Jews have left Ethiopia, Syria and the Former Soviet Union (FSU). Israel is strong. Kids see this...That's the world they perceive...The challenge of Jewish education is to find a way for the adults to catch up with the kids."

He went on to give many examples of American Jewry's influential role in world politics. He noted that in addition to Secretary of State Madelaine Albright, who was born Jewish, the key Americans shaping Middle East policy are all Jews, among them, the high-profile negotiator, Middle East envoy Dennis Ross.

A new kosher kitchen was recently installed at the American embassy in Cairo because Dan Kurtzer, the American ambassador to Egypt, is an Orthodox Jew, Goldberg added.

"We Jews run American Middle East policy," however most Americans are not concerned that Jews hold such key positions of power, he said.

U.S. politicians consult with the leadership of the Jewish community on foreign policy matters as was evidenced by the recent state visit of Israeli President Ezer Weizman earlier this month, Goldberg said.

Jewish community leaders and chiefs of Middle East policy were all invited to the White house for lunch with the U.S. and Israeli presidents, he said. "The only non-Jews in the room were Bill and Hilary Clinton."

The Jewish leadership spent an unprecedented three hours with the presidents discussing American Middle East policy and most of them, in their presentations, urged Clinton to press Israel to be more conciliatory with the Palestinians to advance the peace process, he said. "American Jews don't agree with [Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin] Netanyahu."

According to Goldberg, Weizman was visibly angered by American Jews' political interference in Israel, "but the reality is that American Jews have more influence on American policy in the Middle East than Israel. Diaspora Jews are more powerful than Israelis. That's the world we live in."

He noted that Jews also influenced American policy with the FSU.

In 1974 the United States passed a trade bill that hinged on better treatment of Soviet Jewry.

He said by comparison, Canadian Jewry has less political clout — "Jews don't run Ottawa," — than American Jews who are able to exert pressure on Congress.

Referring to the Protocols of the Elders of Zion, the notorious anti-Semitic document from the 19th century, Goldbefg jokingly said, "It's not true we (Jews) run the world as the Elders of Zion stated... on the other hand we're not by any stretch of the imagination powerless."

Coverage of Jews said predictable

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Media coverage of Jews often results from journalists' laziness, but the Jewish community can also be blamed for how it is covered, a panel of journalists examining Jews in the News agreed here last week.

Sheldon Gordon, a former editorial writer for the Globe and Mail, told the small audience that he sees the same spokespeople for the Jewish community being quoted in the press. That, he said, is testament to journalistic sloth.

He said media coverage of Jews tends to fit certain patterns: Jews as victims, as a faith community and as supporters of Israel – but generally not as an ethnic group.

Gordon said that ultimately, media coverage of Jewish issues tends to reflect the community's concerns.

Esther Enkin, managing editor of CBC Radio News, agreed that often, reporters are lazy, but added the Jewish community "is not eager" to display its diversity.

She said media outlets do a disservice by only reporting the views of the mainstream community organizations and not other, smaller groups.

The image of Jews as victims, Enkin said, is "no longer valid." She said Jews are now seen by the media as part of the mainstream.

Coverage of Jewish issues tends to be "narrow and predictable," with the community doing little to counter that.

Suanne Kelman, a journalism professor at Ryerson Polytechnic University, said the Jewish community presents itself as a monolith, which it isn't, "and the media buy into it."

She said Jews are overcovered in the media, and that there is "tremendous pressure" from Jews to cover issues, especially Israel, "in a certain way."

Sol Littman, a former journalist for the Toronto Star and the CBC, said the media cover all ethnic groups badly, and often simply show "bad judgment" when it comes to stories on Jews.

The evening was presented by Tzavta, which represents a coalition of progressive Jewish groups.

The New KING SOLOMON'S TABLE

"OPEN SESAME!"
on Saturday nights, you said.
And we will, effective Nov. 1.

O-P-E-N
SATURDAY NIGHT
as of November 1
Now accepting reservations for Chanukah parties at your office / home or in our restaurant

3705 Chesswood at Sheppard
Tel. (416) 630-0666
Toronto's Finest Glatt Kosher Dining & Catering
Permanent Kosher kitchen on the premises
Licensed under LLBO

VILLEROY & BOCH • ONEIDA • FITZ & FLOYD • KOSTA BODA • HERITAGE • NIKASA • NORITAKE • WEDGWOOD • THOMAS • ROSENTHAL • ROYAL DOULTON • PLUS MORE

NO TAX EVENT

Dinnerware • 25-60%ff*
Flatware • 30-60%ff*
Stemware • 25-60%ff*
Giftware • selected up to 50%ff*

PAY NO TAX
On all in stock merchandise during our No Tax Event

Plus In-Store Specials

Thursday, October 30 to Sunday, November 9

BRONSON'S
CHINA AND GIFTS
2 Steeles Ave W. (at Yonge) 905-881-9930
Lawrence Plaza Lawrence at Bathurst 416-256-9930

* Off index sug. list price. Rubbe and Bening excepted. In stock merchandise only. Subject to prior sale on hand. No Bridal or credit notes. Certain restrictions apply. Bronson's will deduct an amount equivalent to the GST and PST

A Matter of Great Interest
6.92%*
Air Canada 7.25% Oct. 1, 2007

CORRINE SPIEGEL
Vice-President
(416) 928-1616

LIANNE DiROCCO
Investment Advisor
(416) 928-0400

1 800 924-0558
22 St. Clair Ave. East, Suite 1605, Toronto, Ont. M4T 2S7

NESBITT BURNS
Member of the Bank of Montreal Group of Companies

*as of Oct. 27, 1997. Rates subject to change and availability (assumes investment is held to maturity). Member CIPF

Greater Toronto Area

Bialik, Israeli students to study together online

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Students at Bialik Hebrew Day School will join their counterparts at an Israeli school later this year via computer modem for an innovative Holocaust study unit.

Moshe Shner, director of the Pedagogic Centre of the Ghetto Fighters' House, the museum of the Holocaust and Jewish Resistance on Kibbutz Lohamei Haghetaot in the Western Galilee, pioneered the program last year with a New Jersey day school.

Shner, 42, was in Toronto to visit Bialik and two other day schools as part of a brief North American trip. He also met with Pnina Zilberman, director of the Holocaust Education & Memorial Centre, where a poster series depicting young Jewish resistance fighters was recently on display. The series is a project of Yad Layeled, the children's Holocaust museum affiliated with the Ghetto Fighters' House.

Bialik is the only Canadian participant among eight North American schools in the educational project, said Shner in an interview.

At Bialik, Holocaust studies are part of the curriculum from Grade 4 on, but this project will offer "a different angle," said Uri Korin, Bialik's principal.

"From an educational point of view, this is a magnificent opportunity," said Korin.

Grade 7 students here will be matched with Grade 6 students at the Irussim school in Karmiel, about a 20-minute drive from the museum.

Once teachers have been in contact over the Internet, the students will all read the same Hebrew book, one of two by award-winning Israeli author Uri Orlev, a Holocaust survivor who made it through the war as a youth along with his younger brother. The books under consideration are The Sandgame, Orlev's autobiography on which an exhibition at Yad Layeled is based, and The Island on Bird Street, a novel based on his Holocaust experience.

"Then the students will correspond, get to know each other and share their responses to the book," said Shner. They will work on a joint project in small groups of two to three students per school.

Both sets of students will broaden their horizons through the overseas contact. Israeli students will be exposed to "the richness of Jewish life outside Israel," said Shner. "It is a lot more than Holocaust education. It is more than Jewish education."

Moshe Shner looks at the poster series depicting young Jewish resistance fighters, which was on display recently at the Lipa Green Building. The series is a project of Yad Layeled. [Frances Kraft photo]

The books lend themselves to a discussion of issues such as Jewish identity, maturity and responsibility, said Shner, an educator with a PhD in Jewish philosophy from the Jewish Theological Seminary.

He was raised on Kibbutz Lohamei Haghetaot and his late father, Zvi, was founding director of the Ghetto Fighters' House. His mother Sarah, an 83-year-old author, historian and former partisan, still works there every day.

Shner joined the museum's staff only in 1996. He is a lecturer at Haifa University and Oranim College, and has taught Holocaust studies to elementary, high school and university students.

Although the Irussim school is non-religious, the project began with an Orthodox school, said Shner. "We have the whole spectrum, and we want to have the whole spectrum. Our visitors come from the whole spectrum of the Jewish people and the non-Jewish people."

One of the lessons of the Holocaust, he said, is the importance of accepting the diversity of the Jewish people.

Shner has used the Internet to initiate joint programs with non-Jewish students in Germany, France, Luxembourg and the Washington, D.C. area.

In addition to the educational projects, Shner is in charge of the museum's new Web site. The centre offers on line resources for both teachers and students.

It was as a PhD candidate in New York that Shner realized the importance of dialogue between Israelis and the Diaspora. "It became clear to me I have to initiate such a dialogue."

FORTINOS
Your Supermarket with a Heart!
LAWRENCE SQUARE

Gold's Borscht 32 fl. oz. jar 1.29 ea. assorted varieties

Best Kosher Farfel 2/1.00 7 oz. pkg.

Chai • Kosher Bone In Chicken Breast 6.59/kg 2.99 lb.

Fresh Atlantic Salmon Steaks 5.49 lb. 12.10/kg
Fresh Atlantic Salmon Fillets 6.49 lb.

Fresh from Florida Star Ruby Red Grapefruit 8/1.99 Product of U.S.A.

Fresh Ontario Apples All Locally Grown Varieties .69 lb. 1.52/kg Canada Fancy Grade Product of Canada

EVERYDAY LOW PRICES

Prices effective Sunday Oct. 26 thru Saturday, Nov. 1, 1997.
We reserve the right to limit quantities.

401 Lawrence Ave. Allen Rd. Dufferin St. Bathurst St. Eglinton Ave.

STORE HOURS
Monday to Wednesday 8 a.m.-9 p.m.
Thursday & Friday 8 a.m.-10 p.m.
Saturday 8 a.m.-8 p.m.
Sunday 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

Still Paying DI Premiums???...
Ask about Disability Insurance that PAYS YOU TO STAY HEALTHY

CAPITAL IDEAS
for a secure financial future
• Life & Disability Insurance
• Critical Illness Coverage
• RRSP's • Mutual Funds
• GIC's • Segregated Funds
• Annuities • Money Markets

KEN STERN
Committed to personal & professional service
(416) 221-9600
Mutual Funds & Bonds provided by Talleman Investor Services

FINANCIAL SERVICES
INSURANCE PRODUCTS & INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT

נתיבות התורה
NETIVOT HATORAH DAY SCHOOL
Pre-School '98
Join us for an Information Session
Tuesday, November 18, 1997
Morning Session 10:00 a.m.
or
Evening Session 8:00 p.m.
18 Atkinson Avenue, Thornhill
RSVP (905) 771-1234

Greater Toronto Area

Tayar elected as NCSY president

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — As Canadian president of National Conference of Synagogue Youth (NCSY), the youth arm of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, 18-year-old Donna Tayar wants to do for NCSY newcomers what other NCSYers did for her.

Her goals include "befriending people and getting them involved."

Once they are involved in NCSY, she is confident that regional director Rabbi Glenn Black and other staff, members and advisers will provide the atmosphere and social and educational programming she has enjoyed.

"Everyone's incredible. It feels like a family," she said.

Tayar's connection with NCSY goes back to Grade 6, when she attended programs with classmates from Netivot Hatorah Day School.

Now in her OAC year at Thornhill Secondary School where she is involved in NCSY's Hebrew Culture Club, Tayar believes that NCSY has something to offer both public school and day school students. "It shows you how to live your life [Jewishly]. It really showed me the direction I wanted to go in my life."

Donna Tayar

NCSY in Toronto has a high percentage of public school students as members (70 percent), she noted. "That shows me we have very good outreach." The organization is open to all Jewish students, regardless of denomination.

Tayar, a native of South Africa who moved to Canada as a preschooler, has continued her Jewish education while attending public high school through NCSY's twice-weekly Free Torah High.

As one of a handful of Orthodox students at her school, she is often asked about Judaism by both teachers and other students. She enjoys answering them. "It makes me feel like I'm really doing my job," she laughed.

Tayar was elected national president in May, succeeding Rachel Singer of Toronto.

NCSY Canada consists of five Toronto chapters, and chapters in Ottawa, London and Montreal. The organization also has a presence in a number of smaller cities. Some locations in western Canada, as well as Windsor, Ont., have NCSY chapters affiliated to geographically closer American centres.

Tayar is in contact with representatives of the other cities in the region before and after each biweekly board meeting.

Since her election, she has been on NCSY's Michlelet program in Israel this summer and attended a leadership training seminar in the Catskills in September. The sessions have given her a network of other student leaders to exchange ideas with, she said.

Tayar's future plans include a year in Israel and then on to university to study education. Although NCSY is geared to high school students, Tayar hopes to retain her affiliation as an adviser one day.

MUTUAL FUNDS

* NO DEFERRED SALES CHARGES
* NO COMMISSIONS
* All The Great Funds (over 1,000)
* RRSP & General Investing

FOR ON-GOING FREE PERSONAL CONSULTATION CALL
MILES HERSHBERG
1-800-668-2821
M. HERSHBERG CAPITAL LTD.
ST CATHARINES

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA

Jewish National Fund of Toronto

is proud to invite the Toronto Community to the

1997 Negev Dinner Tribute

in honour of

Edward Bronfman

in recognition of excellence in communal leadership and dedication to Israel

Sunday, December 7, 1997 at the Sheraton Centre, Toronto

Reception: 5:00 p.m. Dinner: 6:00 p.m.

Tickets to the Dinner are $107 per person with a minimum contribution of $360 (for which a tax receipt will be issued)

DINNER CHAIRMAN
DONALD CARR, Q.C.

CAMPAIGN CO-CHAIRMEN
ARNOLD L. CADER
DONALD CARR, Q.C.

A special project will be initiated on the occasion of Toronto's 1997 Negev Dinner Tribute saluting Edward Bronfman. Proceeds from the Dinner will be used for land reclamation and project development at Kibbutz Neot Semadar, in the southern Arava region of the Negev Desert. The young pioneers of Neot Semadar require our assistance to help ensure economic stability and a bright future for them and their children in a very barren area of the wilderness known as the Arava, just north of Eilat.

In saluting Edward Bronfman, the Jewish National Fund will assist Neot Semadar in reclaiming hundreds of dunams of land for agricultural use, help develop an Artists Centre, develop roads to the Kibbutz and within the Kibbutz, and assist the construction of a fifty thousand cubic metre reservoir. A resort area to promote tourism will also be developed. This undertaking will surely be a source of great pride to all who will have participated in this very worthy project. Together, we can all help to make the desert green.

For further information contact
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF TORONTO
4600 Bathurst Street, Suite 238
North York, Ont. M2R 3V3
PHONE: (416) 638-7200 FAX: (416) 638-7345

Editorials and Letters

The Canadian Jewish news

Publisher and Proprietor:
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital.
Head Office:
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

Displeasure of a desperate man

Canada's ambassador to France, Jacques Roy, was recently in the province of Quebec. He had been invited to speak to a number of audiences about his observations, on a comparative basis, between the powers of the states in the European Union and those of the provinces in the Canadian federation.

As reported in the Globe and Mail, it was Roy's view, which he was undoubtedly not reluctant to express, that "once the European monetary union is in place, Canada's provinces, including Quebec will have as much if not more power than countries such as France or Germany in setting their monetary policy, trade policy and fiscal policy."

The provincial government of Quebec was displeased that Roy would have the temerity to speak on a subject, of which he has substantial expertise, in their jurisdiction. In their familiar fashion, the separatists chose to try to discredit the man rather than his arguments. Premier Lucien Bouchard called Roy a "political commando."

They also demanded that he resign, loudly condemning him for agreeing to tour Quebec at the request of the Council for Canadian Unity, a pro-federalist lobby group.

The absurdity of the Parti Québécois (PQ) demand would be laughable were it not so chillingly indicative of the extent to which they have surrendered all logic to ideology.

Imagine complaining about a Canadian diplomat speaking to a Canadian audience in a Canadian province about the benefits of Canadian federalism relative to European unionism! In truth, there could be no more appropriate mission for the Canadian ambassador to France than to share his observations with a Canadian audience.

The PQ complaint was ill-advised. But, for reasons that conform to their self-serving, blinkered point of view, they believe that the government of Canada will merely acquiesce to whatever false propaganda emanates from Quebec City. They persist in believing that the government of Canada will simply submit to the separatists' agenda and "go gentle' into the long, nightmarish night of national dismemberment.

The disparagement of Roy's integrity and the call for his resignation are probably proof of the growing feelings of desperation and anxiety in separatists' ranks.

A poll conducted just two weeks ago by Groupe Leger & Leger and released by the Globe and Mail showed that the federalists are slowly winning the high ground in the battle for public opinion in Quebec. According to the poll, almost 55 percent of decided voters would choose renewed federalism, while 45 percent would choose sovereignty.

The Quebec provincial Liberals have moved ahead of the PQ in popularity for the first time in at least three years. Alongside the waning popularity of the PQ and of separation as a political option, is the waning popularity of the premier personally. Both Jean Charest, federal leader of the Progressive Conservatives, and Mario Dumont, leader of Action Democratique, surpassed him in public approval. More than half of the people polled expressed dissatisfaction with the PQ government and with Bouchard's administration.

To be sure, these polling exercises are not definitive of permanent shifts in voter preferences. And they are certainly not the last word. They are mere "snapshots" of voter satisfaction at a specific moment in time. But this snapshot captures only bad news for the separatist regime in Quebec city.

It is therefore not surprising that the premier is displeased and has lately taken to issuing desperate, illogical statements.

WISDOM OF THE AGES
"No man is a hero to his relatives."
Israel Zangwill

Dry Bones
EL NIÑO?! ...THE FREAK METEOROLOGICAL CONDITION WHICH WILL BRING ISRAEL A FREEZING WINTER OF STORMS?!
...THAT'S WHAT HE'S WORRYING ABOUT?! ...EL NIÑO?!
YES.
HE FINDS IT MUCH MORE RELAXING THAN WORRYING ABOUT WHETHER THE AMERICANS
...ARE ABOUT TO SELL US OUT OR NOT.

This Week in Canadian Jewish History
Born October 30, 1847, Edmund Scheuer established the first religious school in Hamilton in 1872.
(Canadian Jewish Congress Archives)

Fava beans pose risk to Sephardim

Our 2-year-old grandson was terribly sick and had to have a blood transfusion after eating fava beans.

My wife is Sephardi while I am Ashkenazi. The intolerance apparently is carried by Sephardi women without any particular symptoms (even my daughter did not show any), but her son's enzymes cannot tolerate fava beans – to the point that they destroy the red blood cells.

When we noticed a somewhat yellowish tint in our grandson's eyes and suspected jaundice, Dr. M. H. Gans, our pediatrician, took a blood test and diagnosed it as hymolitic anemia. Our grandson was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children and monitored hourly, day and night.

Apparently this is a life threatening situation similar to eating poisoned mushrooms or peanuts (for those with intolerance), but it is not well known in Jewish circles. Nowadays physicians can test people for it, and take prevention. People who cannot tolerate fava beans are likely to be threatened by other medications, such as anti-malaria medicine, sulfa and others.

Gad G. Hofmann
Toronto

Questions sanctuary for Hamas in Jordan

The criticism in the Canadian media of Israel's attempted assassination of Hamas leader, Khaled Meshal, was essentially sound, with a few reservations. Even if successful, by virtue of having taken place in Amman and so close to the Jordanian elections, the attack would have upset relations with King Hussein and probably stimulated, rather than deterred, Hamas' terrorist activities. That the assassination failed adds further problems, since Israel has had to release terrorists from its prisons at a time when it is correctly calling upon Yasser Arafat to lock them up. Add to this the dangerous precedent of using chemicals and last, but not least, the unfortunate use of Canadian passports. Quite simply a disaster, both in its design and in its implementation!

At the same time, there were a few problems with the commentary on this affair. First, there is the labelling of this incident as a terrorist action followed by the conclusion that terror begets terror and so on. My understanding is that the word terrorism is properly used to describe an attack on innocent civilians. The failed Israeli assassination was an attack on a major terrorist leader whose fingerprints are all over the deaths of countless innocent Israeli civilians. It is most legitimate, both morally and practically, to question whether assassinations are an appropriate or useful way to combat terrorism, but is totally inappropriate to collapse the two together as if there were part and parcel of the same.

Furthermore, one cannot but be a little dismayed that in all the commentary over this affair, nowhere does one hear any questioning over the whys and wherefores of Hamas' operations in Jordan and the sanctuary that some of their leaders seem to enjoy there. Surely good King Hussein also has some answering to do.

Simon Rosenblum
National Co-President
Canadian Friends of Peace Now

Seeks expressions of peace in Arabic

Our agency is researching a news story concerning possible expressions of peace in Arabic by officials of the new Palestinian Authority (PA) and/or by Yasser Arafat himself.

If anyone possesses records of interviews, tapes, notes or videos of any statements of peace in Arabic that have been attributed to Arafat or to any officials of the PA, please share them with our office.

Thus far, we have monitored one speech given by Arafat in which he calls for peace in Arabic, and that was on the day that he arrived in Hebron this year, on January 16.

In order to be thorough and fair to the sensitive subject at hand, I would like to peruse any expressions of peace in Arabic that have been made by Arafat or officials of the Palestine Authority since the Oslo accords were signed in the summer of 1993.

David S. Bedein
Bureau Chief: Israel Resource News Agency
Beit Agron Int'l Press Center
Jerusalem, Israel

Individuals should solve child poverty

In a Guest Voice column (CJN, Oct. 15), Sandra Stern highlighted Canada's shameful record on child poverty. While I applaud her for bringing this urgent manner to your readers, I do not agree with her conclusion that it is Corporate Canada that must take the lead in solving this problem.

I do agree that individuals within Corporate Canada should lend their talents to addressing social concerns. But this is merely another way of saying that we should all give tzedakah to the best of our means, either through financial donations or through volunteer effort, or both. It is the job of each of us, either individually or through our collective will as expressed in government action, to address serious social concerns such as child poverty. It is not the job of a bank or computer manufacturer or railway to do so.

Moishe Kinneret
Toronto

Were you on the Exodus?

The Montreal Holocaust Memorial Centre is seeking people who were either passengers or crew on the Exodus.

If you were on the Exodus, please contact us at 514-345-2605.

Bill A. Surkis
Executive Director
Holocaust Memorial Centre
Montreal

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures.

Perspectives

Students call on peers to 'wake up'

By SIGMOND SHORE

In May 1997, a group of Canadian students studying in Jerusalem decided that the time had come to end our idealistic debates, cafe philosophizing and constant discussions of the extensive list of problems plaguing the modern Jewish world. We agreed that the time had finally come to assume the responsibilities incumbent on every Jewish student: to solve the problem of apathy and disaffection and to change the world forever.

This decision required us to reach a consensus on the problems that we sought to solve and to immediately conceive of a radical remedial formula.

Our resolve to move from a world of idealism into one of realism was unique in that we stubbornly refused to abandon our conviction of what we, the students, are actually capable of doing.

Nothing was impossible.

The fact that we had decided that our dreams might soon become realities did not mean that our realities could not also be in dreamlike proportions.

A movement had been launched! We jumped at the chance to offer our ideas on what ailed a generation that felt so intensely bored and disinterested in our Judaism.

Activists and Jews (Is there a difference?) began to crawl out of the woodwork to explain how they envisioned their Jewish futures. From their brainstorming,the following ideas emerged:

• There is an overwhelming sense of boredom and passivity associated with being Jewish. Jewish joy, Jewish excitement and Jewish fire, three powerful forces, have not become part of the '90s overused catchword: Jewish continuity.

Students who are told that they already belong to the most apathetic generation ever are all too quick to dismiss yet another ideology, namely Judaism, that is devoid of excitement.

• Young Jews do not clamor to be Jewishly involved when they are told: "Be Jewish because your parents are, your grandparents are and your ancestors were." Students have not found an incentive to be Jewish for themselves.

• Jewish student activism is virtually non-existent. Jews seem to have forgotten that tikkun olam (repairing the world) is an essential requirement for the activist Jew. Incredibly, anti-Semitism has been the most powerful incentive for students to reaffirm their Jewish identity. The student community mobilizes fully when there is an anti-Semitic incident on campus, yet we are strangely uninvolved when there is no such stimulus.

There are almost no examples of Jewish students coming together to express Jewish pride, Jewish joy and Jewish funk! Years of defensive Judaism have taken their toll.

Now when Jews are asked to be "proactive," we reply with confused apathy. Pain and suffering were our old rallying calls; we have yet to find an exciting substitute.

• Jews and non-Jews alike have underestimated their capabilities. The '60s, a time when students recognized just how involved they could be, seem to have existed centuries ago. Youth simply does not know how much it can do. Most young Jews have long forgotten how powerful we really are.

This all adds up to a Jewish student world, possibly an entire generation, that is bored and by most accounts fast asleep.

It is now time for a Wake Up Tour.

Without any assistance from the adult world, we students have created the idea of a Wake Up Tour – a call to wake up Judaism, Jewish students and the state of Jewish activism. Inspired by the words "Jewish Renaissance," we decided that the priority was to find a source of extreme Jewish joy.

The author points to the '60s as a time of greater student energy and activism. The worldwide struggle for Soviet Jewry was one of that era's major causes.

We searched our religion for an element that would light the sparks in Jewish souls across North America. On this, we were unanimous: the solution would have to include the music of Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach. This charismatic singer, rabbi and leader is remembered as an individual who rocked the Jewish world with such powerful fire that upon hearing his music, thousands of Jews took the time to re-examine just what a beautiful and exciting religion they were part of.

After Carlebach's passing in 1994, numerous rock bands picked up his legacy by spreading his world-famous songs (also known as nigunim). One of these bands, Facing East, (also called The Moshav Band) had become immensely popular among overseas students who were studying at Israeli Universities.

Together with Carlebach's finest tunes and an eclectic array of rock (from Bob Dylan to Pearl Jam to the Grateful Dead), they presented Jewish students with a brand of Jewish music that was the funkiest, most sincere and most passionate they had ever heard.

The band's exciting stage presence, their awesome musical ability and the inspiring Jewish world that they revealed soon brought hundreds of fans to re-examine what they once thought was only a heritage, a past, a history.

This band and the music they played were waking up Jewish students, who, despite the fact that they had chosen to come to Israel, had yet to discover the extraordinary joy within their own religion.

Student organizers who had decided that the Jewish world was in need of a revival, agreed that we had found the exciting medium that would convey their wake up call.

With an idea reminiscent of the '60s, we resolved to get the greatest Jewish rock bands into a school bus and start rocking universities throughout the United States and Canada. Facing East would visit campuses. Freshly inspired students would speak of a Jewish Renaissance and the caravan would initiate a "wake up" in the Jewish world.

It is difficult to describe exactly what ensued. It is really quite incredible to watch the beginnings of a revolution. Students from around the world began to call the creators of the Wake Up Tour offering to help plan, raise funds and organize this event. Even skeptics were amazed by the way students began to organize and lead an activity that was this immense, this complex, this thrilling.

We soon focused on finding an immediate source of support and guidance and we had the honor of meeting Edgar Bronfman. He offered us invaluable suggestions and powerful support.

When Bronfman was asked to help us, a group of relatively inexperienced organizers, he took a leap of faith. His dedication to students led him to give the tour the start that it needed: a trial concert to an audience of 400 Jewish students.

The result of this "test run" was an unforgettable night when "being Jewish" was the coolest thing around!

And the effects of the concert resounded long after the performance ended.We received hundreds of e-mails from students who had attended or had heard about the concert. Each letter included two questions: How can I help to plan this tour? and When can it visit my campus?

A crescendo effect resounded through university campuses.

The tour, dedicated to ensuring permanent Jewish excitement (a fire that would continue long after the last notes of any concert), grew to encompass aspects of Jewish learning and social action. For the first time in years, the student community was mobilized for causes other than anti-Semitism. For example, we took up the cause of the Israeli soldiers missing in action. This issue has been sporadically mentioned over the last few years, but it has not benefited from the driving assistance that it desperately needs from the North American Jewish communities.

Early in the Tour's planning stages, the parents of Zachary Baumel, one of the soldiers, expressed their interest in accompanying the Wake Up Tour to speak about what North American students could do to assist in freeing their son and the other three missing soldiers. The Wake Up Tour's organizers agreed to make every effort to join their buses with the Baumel's freedom plan.

The Wake Up Tour organizers also met with Elie Wiesel and Alan Dershowitz. Both were extremely interested in assisting us in the activist components of the tour.

In light of our dedication to Jewish activism, we started receiving suggestions that the tour become the party for Israel's 50th anniversary. People discussed the tour almost as if it was a Jewish Lollapalooza, an activist, Jewish student celebration.

Despite the incredible waves that the Wake Up Tour has generated in the Jewish world, the extraordinary dedication of students across the globe and the kindness and generosity of Edgar Bronfman, it is still in need of assistance for the tour to become the largest demonstration of student initiative since the Soviet Jewry movement.

Assimilation and intermarriage statistics grow. And it is painfully obvious that the Jewish people are slowly becoming comfortable with the semi-comatose state of Jewish programming and Jewish activism. Thus, it is finally time for our wake up call.

I ask you to recall the days of your youth when you thought anything was possible. Search deeply into your memory to find that feeling of youthful invincibility. Remember the feelings you may have felt when you saw for the first time hundreds of Jewish students dancing to the most uplifting Jewish music. Remember the joy you felt when you heard that Soviet Jews and Ethiopian Jews were on planes heading to Israel.

Then try to imagine the happiness we might feel to hear that the four missing soldiers have been freed. Try to imagine too a unique energy sweeping through the Jewish world. Then look deep into the fire of your Jewish soul. Then look a little deeper. And then : Wake Up!

The Wake Up Tour can be reached at: Justin Korda: [Korda@accent.net]; Sigmond Shore: [Shore@netaxis.ca].

The photos on this page recall two different rallies in Ottawa on behalf of Soviet Jewry. [Photos from Count Us In, Wendy Eisen, Burgher Books, 1995]

Opinions

Women's voices for peace

Since 1973, the days around Yom Kippur have taken on an additional, national significance. The Yom Kippur War is burned deep into the Israeli psyche, in many ways. The shock of the surprise attack, the intelligence failure that preceded it, the heavy casualties in human life and the shattering of the myth of invincibility that had prevailed since the Six Day War all left their imprint on Israelis. Since then, Yom Kippur is not only a day of deep religious meaning for many, but also a day of sorrow and reflection.

By Shira Herzog in Toronto

This year, 24 years after that fateful Yom Kippur, the human, rather than the military, strategic side of the war was highlighted in press coverage. In numerous, moving stories, the trauma of captivity for those who were prisoners of war, the pain of loss for those who lost fathers, sons and brothers, and the emotional cost of exposure to the horrors of battle – were all recorded. Two and a half decades later, the scars are still visible, and in many cases, the wound is still open.

Since 1948, every decade of Israel's history has witnessed a war. The years 1948, 1956, 1967, 1973, 1982 were war years. But the Yom Kippur War was the last war that was fought while supported by a national consensus. In 1982, during the extended foray into Lebanon in Operation Peace for Galilee, the national consensus broke down and a groundswell of public opposition developed. It was led by mature, reserve soldiers and officers, who returned from the front and questioned the wisdom of the orders they had followed on the front lines.

Lebanon changed the debate over war in Israel forever. The taboo over questioning the wisdom of a military activity was broken and every government since then knows that any such decision is likely to result in objection, even from soldiers and their commanders. If the war or confrontation is perceived as one of "choice," rather than "no choice," a consensus of support cannot be assumed.

The recent debate over Israel's presence in southern Lebanon is reflective of the new openness on military matters that has characterized Israeli society in the last decade. In this case, voices of women who are mothers and spouses have emerged as a powerful force. Spearheading the opposition to Israel's continued presence are women who are saying loud and clear that the cost of remaining there, compared to the benefit of staying, is too great. If they have the staying power that such opposition requires, no Israeli politician will be able to ignore Mothers Against a Presence in Lebanon.

A more unusual voice of women is the recently organized group, Women for the Sanctity of Life. As their name implies, the group comprises observant women who are, at present, a minority in the religious Zionist community in Israel. They approach peace from a moral, Jewish perspective, rather than a political one, and they stress the forgotten value, in their view, of the sanctity of human life. For these women, their religious belief dictates a value system that sees the pursuit of peace as a moral obligation, and the occupation of another people for the sake of land at any cost as a distortion of fundamental Jewish principles.

Women for the Sanctity of Life has refrained from taking any position on specific political questions, such as which territories should be traded for peace. For them, the relevant question is what kind of Jews they want to be – someone who will go to war to defend every inch of the disputed territories, or someone who will do everything in his or her power to save Jewish lives.

Tsvia Greenfield, a leader of the group, says forcefully, "We as women can make this case because we are spouses and mothers of soldiers. We are not talking about theory and philosophy, but about real life. We can say these difficult things because we are wading in a pool of blood all the time."

The language that Women for the Sanctity of Human Life speaks is foreign to most secular Israelis, but it may well have an impact in the religious and traditional communities. There, in turn, the liberal perspective of Peace Now seems foreign and even irrelevant to a world view that values religious principles above all else. In this case, the challenge is coming from within. If they, too, have the staying power, it will be difficult to ignore this group of educated, committed and articulate women.

Grassroots voices from outside of the political fray have a freshness and integrity that most politicians lack. In the past, Women in Black, for peace, and Women in Green, for the settlements and against Oslo, have been visible players in the grassroots arena. They are now joined by new voices of a different ilk that may pose a serious challenge to politicians and community alike.

Death explains it all

Recently I read a story about a visitor from outer space who comes to Earth in order to study human civilization. Everything is very different where the alien comes from: there they don't hurry as we do, they are confident that what they can't fix today they can fix tomorrow, they don't constantly fight for a place in the sun. The alien is puzzled about the reason for these fundamental differences. The answer comes when an earthling sums up the nature of human life and adds: "Sooner or later we all die." Thereupon the alien responds, "Oh well, that explains it."

By Rabbi Gunther Plaut in Toronto

For us, of course, death is a phenomenon inherent in creation. We grow up with this knowledge and integrate it as part of our existence. Nothing lives forever, and death is the one constant of our existence.

As a bare statement, this is hardly more than a platitude, yet Western civilization has for some time begun to doubt the inevitability of dying. That comes as a strange discovery, not only to aliens but also to people of non-Western cultures, and it certainly would have come as a surprise to our forebears. They took death to be a part of life and when they had lived as a normal span of time (normal, that is, for their day) they accepted the malach hamavet (angel of death) as an expected visitor. Biblical figures such as Jacob and David shared with their children the knowledge that their last days had arrived and imparted to them some thoughts for the future.

For most of us today, such death-bed conversation is nearly impossible. Even if our well-aged and dying parent or grandparent is about to expire and wishes to talk death and what might come thereafter, we will assure him or her and say, "No, you're not about to die, you're doing fine." We know that it isn't so and the dying person knows it as well. Thus life ends as a charade because we make ourselves believe that the end can be put off – a little here, a little there, and maybe forever.

Some of us have thought that, when some years ago Dr. Kubler-Ross laid bare and instructed us how to deal with death, we might be able to follow the path she had laid out. Not so.

Nevertheless, for the foreseeable future, there is no life without death and the two are inextricably interwoven. To be sure, the hope for immortality of some kind is deeply implanted within our psyche, but no one knows for sure what lies on the other side of the Big Divide. Tradition speaks of God reviving the dead, a teaching that many take as a metaphor rather than a realistic hope.

Meanwhile, mortality is the fabric of which our life is made, and when God, at the creation of humanity, said, "Behold it is very good," death was a part of it. The tree of life in the Garden of Eden was never for us; it is reserved for the aliens that crop up among our science-fiction aficionados. And when we say Yizkor, we add a sense of reality to our loving memories.

Passports and dual loyalties

The use of two false Canadian passports in the recent botched Mossad assassination attempt in Jordan raises two tough questions.

By Morton Weinfeld in Montreal

The first concerns the apparently harsh Canadian response, including the recall of Ambassador David Berger. Assume for a moment that Jerusalem Post president and former ambassador to Israel Norman Spector is wrong, and that CSIS knew absolutely nothing about this operation in particular, or about the general use of Canadian passports to assist Israel in its fight against terrorism.

Still, why the initial Canadian hysteria and shock? I would assume that every professional secret service uses passports from many countries, not just from Canada. Is this news to the Canadian government? Perhaps Canada has forgotten our own difficult dealings with FLQ terrorism – a much more modest terrorist threat than what Israel has faced for over a generation. It's a nasty business and even democracies break the rules.

The Canadian government has claimed that this action risks undermining the safety of Canadians travelling in the Middle East, who may face harassment as spies. If this occurs, it would indeed be unfortunate. To date, there is no indication of major problems for Canadian travellers there.

One can argue that the Canadian government had to take the public steps it did to re-establish its bona fides with the Arab world. If so, it worked. The Canadian government seems willing to turn the page on the incident. Berger has been sent back to Israel.

And yet some doubts linger. Imagine if British intelligence used false Canadian passports to track down an IRA terrorist hiding in a Middle Eastern country. Would Canada's reaction have been the same? And imagine if Spector is right, even partially, and CSIS was more aware of developments than Lloyd Axworthy has suggested. If so our government should get its own house in order, rather than vilify Israel.

A second issue raised by the affair is even more troubling. It relates to the age old canard of Jewish dual loyalty. A number of Jewish Canadians have reported being approached by Israeli officials seeking to "borrow" their passports. One of the apparently victimized Canadians was living in Israel working for a Jewish charity.

Ask yourself: How would you respond if the Israeli government asked you to lend it your passport or passport information, in order to help fight terrorism or to enhance Israeli security? More generally, to what lengths should Canadian Jews go to help Israel or other Jews in distress?

The Pollard case in the United States represents an extreme example of out and out treason – the release of classified military intelligence. Legally, Pollard was clearly guilty. But morality… Suppose the information he passed on was vital to Israel and for their own legitimate reasons, the United States decided not to share it…

Another hypothetical case: Imagine the year is 1940 or early 1941. An American of British origin working for American intelligence discovers some crucial information bearing on major innovative plans for German air strikes into the United Kingdom. The Unites States is officially neutral at the time and for some reason, the information was not given to the British. How would we judge, legally and morally, the intelligence officer if he or she decides to pass on the information?

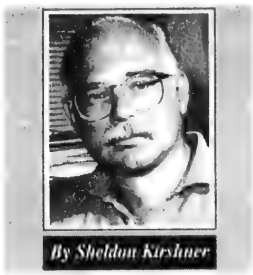
These are unpleasant conundrums. After all, the tragic forced evacuation of Japanese Canadians has shown the harm which suspicions of dual loyalty can produce. But when illegality is not an issue, Jews are no longer reluctant to press policy makers for Jewish interests. A prime example was the determination to link the plight of Soviet Jews to trade and other efforts at detente.

Lobbying is one thing and certainly legitimate, but criminality quite another. Yet my hunch is that the degree of outrage at the Mossad's use of Canadian passports was less among Canadian Jews than among some senior officials at Foreign Affairs. Canadian Jews love Canada deeply and value her freedom and civility. But most are also strongly committed to Israel's security and the fight against terrorism, within the context of the search for peace and the Oslo accords.

So far, Canadian Jews have never really had to choose between the two, particularly since Canada has in general supported those objectives. We recall with discomfort the Jerusalem embassy debacle during Joe Clark's short-lived government. The passport fiasco has been another tough test for the relationships between Canada and Israel, and between Canadian Jews and both countries. The bonds have been bent, but not broken.

The Kirshner File

The genesis of the 1917 Balfour Declaration



On Nov. 2, 1917, Arthur James Balfour, England's foreign minister, sent a brief, blandly-written, historically-momentous letter to Lord Rothschild, president of the British Zionist Federation.

The key sentence of what would be known as the Balfour Declaration read: "His Majesty's Government views with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country."

Approved at the San Remo Conference in April 1920, the Balfour Declaration was incorporated into the League of Nations mandate in Palestine, which Britain would administer, in July 1922.

Eighty years on, the Balfour Declaration remains a highly contentious document. Zionists, Jews and non-Jews alike, regard it as one of the foundation stones of the modern state of Israel. Anti-Zionists, particularly Arabs, consider it an unjust decree and an impertinent imperialist intrusion.

All agree, however, that the Balfour Declaration was indubitably important in the convoluted annals of the Middle East. It encouraged practical Zionists in Palestine, helped by Diaspora Jewry, to build their embryonic state. It fomented an increasingly bitter Arab-Jewish struggle for dominance in that former Turkish Ottoman dominion. It catapulted Palestine, a neglected backwater until the 20th century, into the forefront of Middle Eastern politics.

Historians, regardless of their sympathies, generally agree that the Balfour Declaration was prompted by British colonial interests, the exigencies of World War I and the persuasive powers of Chaim Weizmann, a Russian-born scientist and ardent Zionist with a knack for acquiring supporters in high places.

Weizmann believed that Britain and the Zionist movement were natural allies. In 1902 and again in 1903, Britain had fleetingly flirted with Jewish settlement schemes in the Sinai Peninsula and Uganda. These projects came to naught, but convinced Weizmann that Britain, in fortuitous circumstances, could serve as a patron and a handmaiden of a Jewish homeland in Palestine.

The opportunity presented itself in 1914, when Turkey sided with Germany, Britain's nemesis, in World War I.

Turkey's decision touched off a scramble among the allied powers — principally Britain and France — to secretly divide its restive empire in the Middle East among themselves. Out of this diplomacy emerged two understandings, each designed to detach Syria, Arabia and Mesopotamia from Turkey.

• In 1915, the British high commissioner in Egypt, George McMahon, promised Abdullah, the sheriff of Mecca and Medina, Arab independence in exchange for a commitment to join the Allied war effort. Within about a year, the Arab revolt began, led in part by a British liaison officer named T.E. Lawrence. Later, McMahon would claim that Palestine was not included in the deal.

• In 1916, Britain and France signed a secret protocol, the Sykes-Picot agreement, dividing up spheres of influence in the Middle East, including Palestine. The accord, which was not necessarily consistent with the McMahon undertaking, was endorsed by Russia and Italy.

Britain had a clear interest in its desire to create a protectorate in Palestine. It was the gateway to Turkish spoils in the Middle East. It commanded access to the Suez Canal, the shortest route to Britain's domain in India.

Weizmann, a chemistry instructor at the University of Manchester, had a keen grasp of the region's geopolitical picture, and he used it to win converts to the Zionist cause. Three months after the outbreak of the war, he interested Charles P. Scott, editor of the Manchester Guardian and a friend of British cabinet minister Lloyd George, in the idea of a Jewish homeland in Palestine under British control.

Through Scott, Weizmann met Herbert Samuel, a prominent British Jew, a member of the government and a self-professed Zionist whose views with respect to the future of Palestine were virtually identical with his own. Once hostilities broke out, Samuel championed Zionism on the basis of British self-interest.

Samuel, in turn, introduced Weizmann to George in 1915, when the latter was appointed minister of munitions. George, a devout Protestant, had a mystical attachment to the Old Testament and a firm belief that the Jews were destined to return to the Land of Israel. Trading on this biblical lore, Weizmann further strengthened his relationship with George by finding a scientific solution to the shortage of acetone, a vital ingredient in the explosive cordite.

Around this time, Weizmann renewed his friendship with Balfour, whom he had met in 1906, and made the acquaintance of Sir Mark Sykes, one of the government's leading advisors on Middle Eastern affairs and a negotiator of the Sykes-Picot agreement. Sykes, though not a philo-Semite, thought that the Zionists could enhance Britain's foothold in Palestine, which was still in Turkish hands in 1916. "From the purely British point of view," he wrote, "a prosperous Jewish population in Palestine, owing its inception and its... development to British policy, might be an invaluable asset as a defence of the Suez Canal..."

In December 1916, shortly before Britain launched an offensive into Palestine, there was a change in government. George became the prime minister and Balfour the foreign secretary. Joining them were like-minded pro-Zionists: Lord Robert Cecil, undersecretary of state of foreign affairs; Philip Kerr, George's adviser on foreign affairs; and the undersecretaries for Middle Eastern affairs, William Ormsby-Gore, Leopold Amery and Sykes.

As a collective, they were of the view that an Anglo-French condominium in Palestine, as envisaged in the Sykes-Picot accord, was no longer an effective method of gaining full British hegemony over Palestine.

By 1917, the British government was actively considering the possibility of a Jewish homeland in Palestine. Apart from the strategic reasons already outlined, Britain had concluded that an appeal to Zionist sentiment might keep Russia in the war (dissidents opposed to the czar's policy wanted Russia to pull out) and could have a beneficial effect on public opinion in the United States.

As well, the British government was concerned that Germany might issue a pro-Zionist declaration before Britain had a chance to do so. (Given Germany's alliance with Turkey, this was a fanciful fear.)

Cognizant of these concurrent developments, Britain asked the Zionists to draft a pro-Zionist statement for consideration by the cabinet. The task was assigned to Nahum Sokolow, a member of the Zionist executive.

Before the cabinet could debate Sokolow's draft, a wrench was thrown into the works by Edwin Montagu, the Jewish secretary of state for India. He was vehemently opposed to Zionism, as was the Anglo-Jewish elite, on the grounds that a Jewish homeland in Palestine would raise questions of dual loyalty. But his objections were essentially overridden after U.S. President Woodrow Wilson finally agreed to the declaration.

And so it passed into history.

STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS

THE NATIONAL BOARD OF GOVERNORS

MOURNS THE PASSING OF

GERTRUDE SOLURSH ז"ל and expresses heartfelt condolences to her children Harvey, Honey and Irene and all of her family

May the family be comforted among the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem

17TH ANNUAL HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK

OCTOBER 30 - NOVEMBER 9, 1997

Important Program Changes

UJA FEDERATION

Call (416) 631-5689 for your daily updated program or visit our Web Site: www.feduja.org

PROGRAM CORRECTIONS

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6
ELIZABETH DE JONG, Auschwitz survivor of Mengele medical experiments, shares her personal testimony.
Richmond Hill Public Library, 1 Atkinson Road, Richmond Hill
NEW DATE: TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11 AT 7:30 PM

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 9
"Brundibar," a children's opera performed in Terezin over 50 times between 1943 and 1944. Almost all of the children who performed, as well as the composer Czech Hans Krasa, were gassed in Auschwitz before the War ended.
Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst Street, North York
NEW PERFORMANCE TIMES: 2:00 PM & 7:30 PM

NEW PROGRAMS

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4 - 7:15 PM
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6
Film "Punch Me In the Stomach," with DEB FILER, actress, comedienne and child of Holocaust survivors.
Bloor Cinema, 506 Bloor Street West (416) 690-2600

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 5
7:30 PM
"Commemorating the Connection: Sephardi Communities and the Nazi Regime." SARAH TAIEB-CARLEN, Professor of Sociology and Sephardi Studies at York University will speak, followed by a candle-lighting ceremony and address by spiritual leader RABBI YEHIEL BENAYON of Magen David Sephardic Congregation.
7026 Bathurst Street, Thornhill. (905) 669-7652 ext. 225

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11
4:00 PM
"Auschwitz: A Eugenic Utopia."
PROFESSOR ROBERT-JAN VAN PELT, University of Waterloo. Part of a special series on "Medicine and the Holocaust," presented by the History of Medicine Program, University of Toronto. The Great Hall, 88 College Street. (416) 978-2124

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24
5:00 PM
"Care of the Medical Ethos: Reflections After the Holocaust."
DR. JEREMIAH A. BARONDESS, Chair, Medical Advisory Committee, U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum. Part of a special series on "Medicine and the Holocaust," presented by the History of Medicine Program, University of Toronto. The Great Hall, 88 College Street. (416) 978-2124

Coordinated by the Holocaust Education Week Sub-Committee, Holocaust Remembrance Committee of UJA Federation

Books

By Bernard Baskin

Author explores nature of U.S. Jews' 'power'

Jewish Power: Inside the American Jewish Establishment* by J.J. Goldberg (Addison-Wesley Publishing, $34).

Apart from its unfortunate title, this is a splendidly researched, informative and often perceptive study of the major issues, institutions and individuals that define the Jewish community.

J.J. Goldberg is a contributing editor of the Israeli news magazine, Jerusalem Report, and a longtime reporter on Jewish affairs. Almost every subject of interest to North American Jews is dealt with — from religious identity and affiliation to immigration, from the Israel lobby and defence agencies to the media and motion picture industry.

He concludes that the nature of Jewish power is elusive, complex and contradictory. It is, in any case, far less than many non-Jews fear, but perhaps greater than some Jews — especially those on the fringe of the Jewish community — know.

Among the author's controversial notions is his contention that, starting in the 1960s, the leadership of the organized Jewish community was taken over by a mix of right-wing Orthodox, neoconservatives and extreme Zionists who did not represent the majority of Jews, who remain steadfastly liberal and democratic.

For example, in 1987, Senator Frank Lautenberg of New Jersey joined in a letter to then secretary of state George Shultz urging him to seek Israel-Arab compromise. As a result he was denounced and vilified. "I was national chairman of the UJA, for God's sake. I'm on the board of Bank Leumi, the Hebrew University, the Diaspora Museum of Tel Aviv…thank goodness I have not had to make decisions between my country and Israel. Because my allegiance to Israel is more than cultural, it's contact with my past."

The American Jewish community, Goldberg asserts, can be divided into three groups. "Roughly 25 percent of all American Jews are committed to practicing Judaism all year, every year. Another 60 percent observe the Day of Atonement, Chanukah, Passover, the bar or bat mitzvah, and not much else…but well over 90 percent of all American Jews say that being Jewish is a 'very' or 'fairly' important part of their lives." Evidently, pride in Judaism is not changing. What is changing is the way many Jews understand and experience their faith. The intermarriage rate is only one symptom of this transformation.

The vast majority of Israelis, says Goldberg, aren't interested in problems that agitate North American Jews like the "who is a Jew?" issue, or "who can grant conversions or conduct marriages?"

"For most Diaspora Jews the rebirth of the Jewish state is one of the central facts of modern Jewish history and a dominant presence in their lives as Jews. For most Israeli Jews, the Jews of the Diaspora are an accident of history, and an irritating one at that." To be sure, suggests an Israeli spokesperson, there's a sense of dependence. "In times of crises, the Israeli expects the Diaspora to come to his assistance. But does he think about it on a regular basis? Of course not."

Jewish entrepreneurs were influential in the creation of the movie industry, but despite common conspiracy theories, the Jewish Hollywood moguls were ambivalent about their Jewishness. With very few exceptions they gave a wide berth to Jewish organizations and their politics. "Most dutifully joined a synagogue and wrote cheques to Jewish charities. But they kept Judaism strictly out of their business.

To sum up, the author writes, "Most Jewish organizations exist to perform — or to influence the performance of — the responsibilities that have preoccupied Jewish communities in every time and place through history; conducting their religious life; helping their poor; sick, elderly and immigrants; representing Jews to their gentile neighbors; and defending Jews from their enemies at home, and in other lands."

If North American Jews believed in themselves one-half as much as non-Jews believe in them, they could continue to be a powerful force for their own good, and for the countries in which they live.

Gerry Goldblum & Estelle Foreman

No GST or PST

Imported Body Suits from Italy

JANE X YONGE JOHN

ESTELLE & GERRY'S PLACE

Exciting New Fashions Daily • Dinner Looks, Sweaters, Pants

7690 Yonge Street • 905-886-1067 • One Short Block North of John. West Side of Yonge. Parking at Rear.

'Remember What Amalek Did To You'

The pain strips the heart
It tears it apart
And the tears of the heart are the blood of the victims
And the pain remains; it refuses to vanish
It commands: "Remember what Amalek did to you."

Remember, remember, and do not forget
Children, parents, the aged who to death were taken
And their groans are heard, and their screams echo:
"Vengeance."

And the vengeance of these (Whose thread of continuity was severed with their journey to death)
Is remembrance
The remembrance of deeds by animals in the form of men
Who spilled so much blood
This is their vengeance

But the pain does not let go; it does not vanish
It still commands: "Remember what Amalek did to you"
Remember, remember, and do not forget.

By Rayzie Gruda
Translated from Hebrew by Richard Stoll and Hilda Weil

(Holocaust Education Week is especially a time for us to reflect on what Amalek did to the Jewish people.)

4:52 P.M.

SUNNYBROOK

• THE KOSHER SPECIALISTS •

Super Special

GOLD SEAL RED SOCKEYE SALMON 2.99 213 gr tin

Limit 6 per customer with minimum $3.00 purchase. After limit price is $3.49

PRODUCT OF USA VINE-RIPENED TOMATOES .79 lb/1.74 kg

FROM THE TROPICS: LARGE PINEAPPLE 1.99 3 lb bag

PROD. OF SOUTH AFRICA SEEDLESS NAVEL ORANGES 1.99 dozen

PRODUCT OF SPAIN SEEDLESS CLEMENTINES 4.99 box

KELLOGG'S MEGA VALUE PACK CORN POPS 375 gr RICE KRISPIES 350 gr FRUIT LOOPS 425 gr ALL FOR 5.99 OR 2.49 EACH

GOODMAN'S SOUP CELLOS .69 asst 6 oz pkgs

MANISCHEWITZ SELTZER 2/1.00 1 L

PROD. OF SOUTH AFRICA CERES JUICES 1.99 1 L

WIZARD SPRAY DEODORIZER .99 asst 300 ml

KOSHER LEAN GROUND BEEF 3.69 lb/8.13 kg

KOSHER (MIDDLE CHUCK) BLADE STEAKS 3.69 lb/8.13 kg

KOSHER SHOULDER ROASTS 4.99 lb/11.00 kg

MAN ASSORTED WAFERS 1.99 500 gr pkg

KLEENEX FACIAL TISSUES .79 asst. 150 ct.

241 WILMINGTON AVE., (Bathurst Manor Plaza) Sun. 9-5 • Mon.-Tues. 9-7 • Wed. 9-9 Thurs. 8-9 • Fri. 8-7 • Saturday 9-6

305 FINCH AVE. W., (Finchurst Plaza) Sun. 10-5 • Mon.-Fri. 9-9 • Saturday 9-6

Specials effective Wed., Oct. 29th to Tues., Nov. 4th.

We reserve the right to limit quantities to normal family requirements. Limited quantities on some items. We reserve the right to correct printer's errors.

POSITION AVAILABLE

Part-time Hebrew School & Youth Secretary

Must have computer graphic skills. 20 hours per week. Sunday to Thursday.

Fax resume to: Sam Kapustin, Principal
Beth Tikvah Synagogue Congregational School
(416) 221-1602

Jewish Life

Bringing Judaism to Germany's Jews

By PROF. YAKOV M. RABKIN

Guest Voices

Rabbi Plaut's article (CJN, Sept. 11) was devoted to post-Soviet Jews who have settled in Germany over the last 10 years. He reported the influx of over 60,000 Jews to whom Germany has offered hospitality. The immigration has apparently continued, and Germany's Jewish community has become predominantly Russian-speaking. The influx has revitalized many Jewish communities that seemed virtually extinct just a few years ago.

Rabbi Plaut is not certain to what extent these newcomers will remain or become Jewish in their new land. His doubt is well-founded in view of the understandably low level of Judaic knowledge among post-Soviet Jews, and the geographic dispersion between the Oder and the Rhine.

During a recent sabbatical in Strasbourg, France, I was often asked to address groups of Russian-speaking Jews on the other side of the Rhine. Some of these communities, such as Baden-Baden, were quite close, and I would bicycle across the Peace Bridge to give lectures about Jews and Judaism, and talk with the newcomers.

The reception was invariably warm. There may be several reasons why these Jews are eager to learn about Judaism. One has to do with the ambivalence all of them feel with respect to their new country. Another is their acute awareness of the fragility of their and their children's Jewishness.

Brothers and cousins of these same Jews, who settle in Israel, may be reluctant to accept Judaism: they tend to embrace the unique opportunity that Israel offers to assimilate with the Israelis and to feel that they are full-fledged Jews without any Judaic practice.

Knowing that this is impossible in Germany, I could often start with a rhetorical question: "Would you like your children to grow up to become regular Germans?" This question would bring tears to the eyes of many in the audience, and even those who were initially suspicious of my "missionary" efforts would begin to listen.

I would also emphasize that Germany, and particularly Rhineland, had been home to prominent figures of Jewish history such as Rashi or Maharam. This historical information startled many, and they readily agreed to join a tour of Jewish sites of their region.

The government of Israel attempted to influence the German government and to make it curtail the influx of post-Soviet Jews. I can understand this. However, as a Jew, I feel an obligation to help another Jew, wherever he chooses to live, to acquire Judaic knowledge. I feel no right to judge him or to decide where he should have settled. Nor am I enthusiastic about helping Hitler's dream of a Judenrein Germany come true.

It depends on all of us to help these biologically defined Jews to establish a spiritual link with Judaism. This task is clearly beyond the capacity of German or even European Jewish organizations. Since North America is the largest Diaspora to include a significant number of Russian-speaking rabbis and teachers of Judaica, it is important to begin a consistent effort to bring Judaism to Germany's Jews.

Rabkin, a native of St. Petersburg, Russia, has been a professor at the University of Montreal since 1973.

SHAAR SHALOM SYNAGOGUE
2 SIMONSTON BLVD., THORNHILL
TEL: 905-889-4975

מאפלה לאורה

"From Darkness to Light"

A Holocaust Memorial Sculpture

will be dedicated
Monday, November 3, 1997 at 8:00 p.m.

Please join us as we remember our community, culture and families who perished.

Preceded by a lecture, "Survival Under the Enemies' Skin", by Shlomo Perel, whose story is told in the acclaimed film "Europa, Europa".

An official program of Holocaust Education Week.

Observing kashrut without meat

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

The holidays are over. And we're stuffed. So what better time to look at food. The meatless kind. If you're considering cutting down on meat or cutting it out while observing kashrut, there are many tips for you on the Jewish Highway.

How does Jewish vegetarianism differ from the standard kind? That question is addressed in If Lettuce is Lettuce, What is Jewish Vegetarianism? [http://www.micahbooks.com/lettucediscuss.html]. Several Jewish sources for following a vegetarian way of life are quoted, such as pikuach nefesh (the duty to guard one's health) and tsa'ar ba'alei chayim (the commandment not to cause sorrow to living creatures).

Jews, of course, are allowed to eat meat, but this site points out that there are traditions that Adam and Eve were created as vegetarians and were only permitted to eat meat after leaving the Garden of Eden. And that in the Messianic period, the world will return to vegetarianism.

One of the most outspoken proponents on the Internet of a Jewish vegetarian lifestyle is Richard Schwartz. In Must We Be Veggies: The Case for Jewish Vegetarianism [http://www.jcn18.com/scripts/jcn18/paper/Article.asp?ArticleID=962], Schwartz maintains the controversial point of view "that committed Jews are not only permitted but are obligated to be vegetarians." He also addresses the traditional rabbinical view that meat should be eaten at festive meals. You can find many other articles by Richard Schwartz at [http://www.rasheit.org/VY_REBBES/rebschwartz.html] and [http://www.envirolink.org/arrs/essays/schwartz/menu.html].

For another view on why someone chooses a Kosher/Organic way of life, see the links to Chayyim Pesach Silverman's articles Ritually and Naturally Pure and Becoming Ritually Pure – the Manual at [http://www.jcn18.com/jewishfood/].

From vegetarians to vegans to fruitarians to pescetarians, the terms referring to what people choose not to eat can get confusing. Here's a good Vegetarian Glossary [http://www.veg.org/veg/FAQ/glossary.html].

Just because a product seems to be meat-free doesn't mean it's necessarily kosher. These days, unless you have a degree in advanced biochemistry, it can be daunting trying to understand the origin of the chemicals that go into our food. For example, you can go ahead and eat something with dilauryl thiodipropionate. It's a synthetic preservative that doesn't require kashrut supervision. But watch out for alpha amylase. It's sometimes used in flour to breakdown starches and it comes from hog pancreas. For other ingredients and their uses, see [http://www.kashrus.org/kosher/chem.html].

Two confusing ingredients for vegetarians who keep kosher are rennet and gelatin. Gelatin is a tasteless, odorless substance extracted by boiling bones, hoofs and other animal tissues [http://www.vegweb.com/glossary/gelatin.html]. Some points of view maintain that since gelatin is so far removed from its original form, it does not need to be derived from a kosher animal. Orthodox certification requires it [http://www.ohr.org.il/ask/ask127.htm#Q1].

Vegetarians should be aware that gelatin from kosher sources is considered pareve.

Rennet is a substance containing an enzyme used to coagulate milk and create cheese [http://www.veg.on.ca/cheese.html] and [http://www.envirolink.org/arrs/essays/rennet.html]. A common source of rennet is the stomach of slaughtered newly-born calves, although microbial enzymes are used in kosher cheeses. For a view on the use of kosher rennet, see [http://www.j51.com/~yspivak/spivak5.htm].

So far we've thought about food. We've reasoned about food. And we've looked at its ingredients. Next week, we eat.

* * *

Mark Mietkiewicz is a television producer in Toronto with an interest in the Internet. He can be reached at [mdm@inforamp.net].

Israeli Air Force Museum

GALA DINNER

Sunday, Nov. 16th '97, 6:30pm

AT THE ROYAL ONTARIO MUSEUM

DISTINGUISHED GUEST SPEAKERS:

Brigadier General (Res.) Joshua Shani
Lead Pilot in the Entebbe Rescue
Past Israel Air Force Attaché to Washington

Brigadier General (Res.) Ya'akov Terner
Commander, Israeli Air Force Museum
Past Commander of Hatzerim Air Force Base

DINNER CHAIRMAN: John T. Sereny
Under the patronage of Mr. Jehudi Kinar, Consul General of Israel

"The inspiring history of the Israeli Air Force comes alive in this museum."

For information, call 489-3336 Under COR

Greater Toronto Area

Associated students get top honors in essay contest

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — If Lior Braunstein, 13, were to host an imaginary dinner party, his guests would include science greats Marie Curie, Albert Einstein and Sir Isaac Newton. The latter would dine on apple pastries in deference to his famous gravity experiments.

That whimsical idea helped Braunstein, a Grade 8 student at Associated Hebrew Schools, become one of three Associated students to win a prize in the 1996-97 Commonwealth Essay Contest, sponsored in Ontario by the Royal Commonwealth Society of Canada, Toronto branch. (International results have yet to be announced.)

Orly Cohen and Jonathan Laski, both of whom are now Grade 9 students at the Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto, won first and third prize respectively in the Ages 14-15 category. Braunstein placed second in the Ages 9-13 category.

Twelve awards in all (three per age category) were presented by Ontario's lieutenant-governor Hilary Weston at the Ontario Club Oct. 20. Isabel Bassett, Ontario's minister of citizenship, culture and recreation, spoke at a luncheon following the ceremony.

Cohen's essay, The Week My Great-Aunt Stayed With Us, chronicled the impact of a dying relative's visit on a couple who had grown apart, and on their children. The writing was so believable that Cohen's teacher, Nina Wener, and the contest's chief examiner, Tom Ramautarsingh, initially thought it was based on Cohen's own experience.

"It's completely fictional," clarified Cohen, who enjoys reading as well as writing realistic fiction.

"Her sentences were delightful to read," recalled Ramautarsingh. "They sort of gave you word pictures."

"It was very emotional, very mature," said Wener of Cohen's essay. "And Jonathan's was fun. It had color. [Reading it], I had all the pictures in front of me."

Laski's entry, An Eventful Day in My Family was an account of the highlights of a 1993 family trip to Israel.

"They're okay, our students," said a proud Jerry Rosenfield, general studies principal of Associated's two-campus junior high division. He credited the school's "motivated students and dedicated teachers."

English teacher Rebecca Goldberg, who submitted Braunstein's essay, said his work was "very clever. It was very intellectual, very well written."

All the winning essays "showed excellent evidence of research, writing skills, understanding of their chosen topics and expressive use of vocabulary," said Ramautarsingh.

Ontario's Lt.-Gov. Hilary Weston, centre, presented essay contest awards last week. With her are, from left, Associated teachers Rebecca Goldberg and Nina Wener, winners Orly Cohen, Jonathan Laski and Lior Braunstein and junior high principal Jerry Rosenfield. [Frances Kraft photo]

Last year marked the first time Associated had ever participated in the essay contest. "I liked the topics. They were challenging and interesting," said Wener, who is the junior high's English department head. She used the topics as a regular class assignment, culling the best essays for the contest. (Each school was permitted only a limited number of entries.)

"We were extremely happy to see that a school entering for the first time did so well," Ramautarsingh told The CJN.

The contest is an annual international event dating back to 1913.

The winning students in Ontario, chosen from 94 entrants representing some three dozen schools, received certificates and monetary awards.

Participating students in the international contest represent 53 countries. Winners will be announced by the Royal Commonwealth Society of London, England.

Sir Arthur Chetwynd, chair of the Royal Commonwealth Society of Toronto Foundation, which funds the awards here, encouraged students to "talk it up about the Commonwealth. Every Canadian is a Commonwealth citizen."

The Search For JUSTICE

UJA FEDERATION

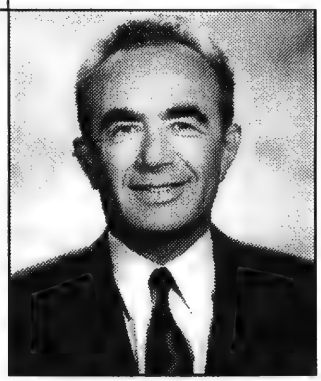
Business Cabinet of UJA Federation

George Weston Recital Hall
FORD CENTRE FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS
5040 Yonge Street, North York

Monday, November 10th, 1997
at 8:00 p.m.
Twenty Five Dollars

Dessert Reception

Kashruth Observed
Seating is limited
RSVP to Cindy Bogach 416-635-2883 Ext. 190



ROBERT L. SHAPIRO
Head of The O.J. Simpson Defence Team

Community Matters

Campaign '98 half way mark

UJA FEDERATION TOPS $25 MILLION

UJA Federation has raised more than $26 million with gifts from nearly 20,000 contributors, as the 1998 campaign passes the half way mark.

A series of successful Fall telethons beginning in September has maintained momentum among campaigners and donors. A New Gifts telethon before Rosh Hashana brought in $300,000 from nearly 600 first-time contributors.

The next set of telephone blitzes, November 2 – 5, will focus on reaching non-contributors as well as the 8,000 supporters who have not yet made a pledge to the 1998 campaign. Students who want to pitch in and make calls are invited to sign up for a special student telethon shift, Monday, November 3, 6:00 – 9:00 p.m. at the Lipa Green Building.

UJA Federation's second York Region telethon will be held on November 2 from 12:30 – 3:30 p.m. at the Promenade Shopping Centre, to seek campaign support from the more than 40,000 Jews living north of Steeles.

Representatives from UJA Federation's recently opened York Region office will be at the Promenade during the telethon to inform community members about their activities and services.

UJA Federation dollars support dozens of local services that assist thousands of Jews in need. According to Campaign '98 Chairman Leo Goldhar, UJA Federation has been "able to assist many agencies hard hit by government cutbacks."

"September and October have been great months for the campaign," says campaign Vice-Chair David Engel. "Our energetic campaigners are really coming through and the community as a whole is very receptive to our message."

To sign up for a telethon shift or for more information, please call (416) 635-2883 ext. 107.

Active UJA Federation supporter Honey Carr is a regular at Campaign telethons.

School Joins Generations

The day was educational, informative and offered an excellent opportunity to see UJA Federation contributions in action. That was the consensus reached by 30 members of the Societies Division who recently participated in a local bus mission to visit beneficiary agencies.

"The trip was organized for one reason," said Societies Cabinet Co-Chair Michael Rosenberg. "In the past, the Societies donations were primarily Israel focused. We felt it was necessary to draw attention to local needs here in our community."

Societies and "Landsmanshaften" were first established before World War I to help Jewish immigrants adjust to life in their new country, and provide support with medical care, finances, friendship and employment. A number of societies are still active today, both for their own members and as contributors to UJA Federation.

The day's itinerary included stops at Jewish Family and Child Service, the Toronto Jewish Free Loan Cassa and the Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living – all UJA Federation beneficiary agencies.

"This type of education is second to none," said Regina Eisenstein, President of the Zaglembier Ladies Auxiliary. "It really makes a difference when you can see how and where your contributions go."

The highlight was a visit to the new Associated Hebrew School campus in Thornhill. The Thornhill complex of Associated, the largest Jewish day school in Canada, provides a place of learning for over 500 students from nursery to grade 6. "We wouldn't exist without UJA Federation's support," said Rabbi Abraham Soffer, the school's Educational Director.

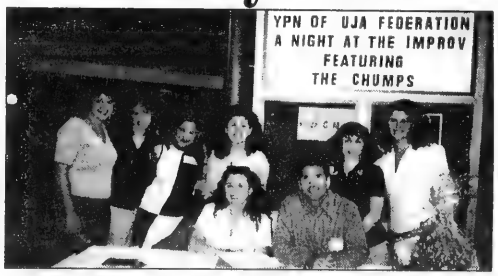
Associated began over 90 years ago, and many of the mission participants' children went through the Associated system. Bus mission member Irving Soloway was a student himself 60 years ago at the Associated Talmud Torah on Brunswick Avenue.

The group not only toured the school but sat in on some of the classes. "It is very fulfilling and exciting to watch two generations brought together in this fashion," observed Principal Sandy Rabinowitz.

"We have seen the complete cycle of life from kindergarten children to seniors at the Bernard Betel Centre," remarked Ralph Snow. "It is great to see our donations directed to the future."

Just one of the Associated classrooms that members of the Societies Bus Mission visited.

Comedy Cares



UJA Federation's Young Professionals Network collected hundreds of items of clothing to donate to Jewish Family and Child Service's Just A Second clothing store at a "Night At The Improv" event earlier this year.

PARTNERS PROFILE

The Partners Program of UJA Federation encourages companies to participate in its worldwide efforts to assist hundreds of thousands in need. Royal Bank, a gold level partner has sponsored UJA Federation's Major Gifts Gala for the past two years.

"We at Royal Bank are very proud of our involvement with UJA Federation," says George F. Gaffney, Royal Bank Executive Vice-President and General Manager. "We wholeheartedly support and commend this organization for the enormous contribution it makes to the community, and we take pride in this developing relationship and the opportunity to strengthen the community together. With the increased demand for services in Greater Toronto, we encourage others to join us in assisting this worthwhile cause."

ROYAL BANK

Community Matters, a supplement of the Canadian Jewish News, is sponsored and produced by UJA Federation. Website: www.feduja.org

Community Matters

JEWISH HERO HEADS HOME

The man who planned and oversaw the largest migration of Jews in modern history, has ended his two year stay in Toronto and learned some important lessons along the way.

"My time at UJA Federation taught me a great deal about how Jews living outside Israel feel towards their Israeli counterparts and about the whole process of fundraising," says Baruch Gur, who, as the Jewish Agency's Special Emissary to Canada, spent many hours getting to know Toronto's Jewish community.

From 1989-1995, Gur served as head of the Jewish Agency's Unit for the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, where he set up the Agency's network which helped more than 800,000 Jews leave the FSU. Most of them moved to Israel.

Gur says "a better understanding of committed Jewish life in the Diaspora" will help him succeed in his new post as Director General of Keren Hayesod, a world wide fundraising partner of United Israel Appeal and UJA Federation. "Keren Hayesod is basically the bridge between Israel and the Diaspora," explains Gur, who says he now has a better view of the "big picture."

Baruch Gur

While in Toronto, Gur, known for his warmth and sense of humour, often relayed detailed accounts of the massive Soviet Jewish emigration he engineered, at numerous UJA Federation events. He also led several UJA Federation missions to the former Soviet Union.

" I met here a very caring, warm Jewish community which immediately welcomed my wife and I with open arms," notes Gur. "We felt like partners even though we are Israeli emissaries." Gur's wife Miri, who will return to Israel next February, is the Director of the Israeli Aliya Centre.

In the short run, Gur says his priority is to "run an efficient organization and increase fundraising at Keren Hayesod." His long-term goal? "In ten years from now and beyond, I hope my children and their children will be friends with the children of my Canadian friends."

Community Quilting Together

Typically a quilt is used for warmth and comfort. But Jewish Women's Federation (JWF) is also using it as a symbol of strength, support, commitment, and caring.

As part of its ongoing prevention campaign against woman abuse, JWF is creating a community quilt to raise awareness of abuse, while celebrating the strength of Jewish women.

Textile artist Haya Nativ (l) and Community Quilt Chair Janis Katz (r) hope the project will raise awareness about woman abuse.

"We believe the quilt will stand as a memorial to victims, and as a symbol for those who have bravely sewn the pieces of their lives back together," says Jewish Women's Federation President Jill Reitman.

"There has been a long tradition of using quilts as a visual representation of women joining together," adds Community Quilt Chairperson Janis Katz.

According to statistics from Jewish Family and Child Service, 300 abused women in the Jewish community received counseling, support and advocacy services last year.

Textile artist Haya Nativ, who specializes in Judaic art, is donating her time, talent and expertise by designing the theme for the quilt. "I wanted to do something positive for a worthwhile cause," she says.

The quilt, which will be available for community events, will have a permanent home in the Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst Street.

JWF, representing 50 affiliated women's organizations, is inviting everyone in the community to help create the quilt. Quilting workshops will take place at the Lipa Green Building, Room 419/420 on Monday, November 10th , 11:00 am – 4:00 pm; Tuesday, November 11th, 7:00 – 9:00 pm; Monday, November 17th, 7:00 – 9:00 pm and Thursday, November 20, 11:00 am – 4:00 pm.

For further information or to register for a quilting session, please call Naomi Cohen at (416) 635-2883 ext. 302.

Funding IN Action

Irene Lastman is a fighter. When she fell victim to a stroke over a decade ago, she wasn't going to let it get the best of her. In fact, she was angry, so angry, she converted all her energy into getting better. The Stroke Recovery Group at the Bathurst Jewish Centre, a UJA beneficiary agency, helped Irene through her difficult struggle.

STARTING OVER

"I couldn't believe I had a stroke, after all, I was in my 50's," recalls Irene. "I wanted to prove to everyone that I was going to recover and be able to do things on my own again."

Irene, a long-time member of the Bathurst Jewish Centre, was familiar with the Stroke Recovery Group, and determined to "reactivate" herself. "I thought this would be a good way to start," she says.

SUCCEEDING TOGETHER

The program which began over 15 years ago, includes exercises, swimming, bingo and organized trips. "For some, this is the only form of physical activity and social interaction they receive," says Irene. "It is important to provide a reason for people to get out of bed."

The group has blossomed over the years, meeting three times a week for entertainment and socialization. This past July, nearly 100 people participated in a yearly dinner for members and their spouses.

"Just because you suffer a stroke, it doesn't mean that your life has to end," observes a determined Irene.

A SOURCE OF ENCOURAGEMENT

The success of the program is also attributable to the dedicated volunteers who bring positive attitudes and cheerful personalities. Ben Swartz and Jerry Weinpeer who have been helping for many years, call what they do a true labour of love. "Everyone works as a team," says Jerry. "Each individual is affected differently by a stroke. But, the most important thing I tell people is that they have to keep smiling," remarks Irene. "We encourage anyone who has had a stroke to join the group. We offer a place of support and friendship."

Although Irene's physical condition has its limitations, her robust attitude to "push forward" has, in part, been due to the group. "It gives me a purpose," she says.

The Stroke Recovery Program at the Bathurst Jewish Centre is energizing, motivating and another example of UJA Federation Funding in Action.

Holocaust Education Week

EXODUS SURVIVORS LOOK BACK

For the last 50 years Erika Burger has been mostly silent about her experiences as a passenger on "Exodus 1947." Next week, she and eleven of her fellow passengers will share their personal accounts of the historic voyage which eventually led to establishment of the State of Israel, at the opening of the 17th annual Holocaust Education Week.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the voyage of Exodus 1947, described as the "ship that launched a nation." The American World War II vessel unsuccessfully attempted to bring more than 4,500 Holocaust survivors to Palestine after the British Navy violently thwarted its efforts to land at the port of Haifa. All those aboard the boat, including 1,282 women and 655 children, were eventually taken back to Hamburg, Germany where they were forced to disembark and live in refugee camps.

Within a year after the expulsion to Germany, the last of the Exodus 1947 passengers, including Erika and her younger sister, finally made it to Israel, where Erika lived for twenty years before moving to Canada.

The opening Holocaust Education Week program, "Exodus 1947: A Look Back, " Thursday, October 30, 8:00 p.m., at the Leah Posluns Theatre, 4588 Bathurst St., will feature a new documentary, directed by Elizabeth Rodgers and Robby Henson, and narrated by Morley Safer, host of CBS-TV's 60 Minutes. A panel discussion will follow the screening, which will include, in addition to the half dozen survivors now living in Canada, Nat Nadler, one of the original crew of the ship and Professor Meir Schwartz, an Israeli Haganah commander who accompanied the survivors to Palestine.

Although Burger was reluctant to impart her story to her children because it was "too difficult to talk about," a request from her 15 year old granddaughter to speak to her class convinced her it was time to break the silence.

"Now I'm ready to talk," Burger explains. "It's important that the younger generation hears about this part of Jewish history."

Ben Shedletzky, who traveled on board the Exodus 1947 with wife Eva, will explain at the program how he managed to falsify his infant son's identification papers in order to gain passage.

Holocaust Education Week, October 30 – November 9, showcases more than 60 programs exploring various aspects of the Holocaust. This year's highlights include the Canadian premier of the film "It Was Nothing…It was Everything: Reflections on the Rescue of Greek Jews During the Holocaust;" a first hand testimonial from a Mengele twin who survived brutal experimentation at Auschwitz, and a female perspective of the Holocaust from 4 women survivors.

Pictured here are three rescuers of Greek Jews.

This year more than 18 churches and 12 libraries in the Greater Toronto Area are hosting Holocaust Education Week programs. For a complete listing of daily events call (416) 631-5689 or log on to the Jewish Toronto Web Site at www.feduja.org.

A SALUTE TO COMMUNITY PIONEERS

They were the architects of community service that we take for granted today. Three individuals who were instrumental in laying the foundations for Toronto's quality of Jewish life were honoured recently by UJA Federation.

Madeleine Epstein, Pearl Langer and Henry Goodman were recognized at a special tribute reception for their foresight and leadership.

Madeleine Epstein (l), Henry Goodman and Pearl Langer cut into a huge cake baked in their honour.

Madeleine Epstein was the first woman officer of the United Jewish Welfare Fund, UJA Federation's predecessor, a member of the UJWF Budget and Finance Committee and Chair of UJA Federation's Women's Division. She also served as Vice-President of the former Jewish Community Centre where she was responsible for several new initiatives serving the north east.

Michael Benjamin, who introduced all three tributees, called Epstein "well ahead of her time," and praised the pioneering volunteer for her "astute insights and probing questions" surrounding important social issues.

Henry Goodman, 91, was the first Chair of the Social Planning Committee when it was created in 1967. He commissioned a study that led to the establishment of Coordinated Services for the Jewish Elderly. Goodman, who also played a pivotal role in the development of Jewish Family & Child Service, served as President from 1967-1970 and 1971-72. Goodman's knack for fundraising led to the successful Friends of JF&CS campaign.

Pearl Langer, who is well known for her work as host of CBC's "From Now On," a seniors program, was recognized for her long professional and volunteer career. Delivering kosher hot meals as a child set the stage for her creation of the popular Meals on Wheels program. Langer served as President of Coordinated Services for the Jewish Elderly, now Senior Care, helped create the Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living and served as a member of the Social Planning Council of Metro.

Volunteer Views

Volunteer Views is a new column highlighting dedicated volunteers and volunteering opportunities in our community.

Bessie brings joy

Bessie Cott loves people. That's why almost every day for the last 15 years she has been volunteering at the Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living, serving senior members of our community.

"It's not that I mind living alone," insists Cott, "it's just nice to feel needed and to know you're helping others." And what a help she is!

Active at 93

Most of the time you can find this lively, petite 93 year old in the Centre's dining room, where she does everything she can to help, from carrying trays to wiping counter spills. She'll even stand in line for those too weak or tired to do so themselves.

Bessie Cott

But that's not all this grandmother of 9 and great grandmother of 18 does. Cott also serves on the membership and food committees and is in charge of Sunday dances for members as well as non-members twice a month.

"I like to be busy and the Centre always has something for me to do," she explains. "It's my home away from home."

From strength to strength

Cott is so convinced her active volunteer life keeps her youthful and energetic that she prescribes a regular dose of volunteerism for all seniors.

"Seniors are very useful in our society and you must never give up as long as you can do it," she says.

"Don't wait for people to reach out to you! Reach out to people and you will gain new friends and a lot of satisfaction for helping others."

For more information about community volunteering, call Shelly Rotman at UJA Federation (416) 635-2883 ext. 137.

Features

Libras weigh all sides of a question incessantly

[Cont'd. from page 2]

AUG. 23-SEPT. 22

Zevulun was blessed by Jacob as the son who engaged in commerce across the seas. So too does Virgo enjoy making new connections and markets. Travel, especially when linked with business, is a special joy to the Virgo. Analytical Virgos, when organized, can often create order out of chaos. Virgos love to help and mentor. If not properly acknowledged or rewarded however, they will move on — to the next experience.

LIBRA: ISSACHAR
SEPT. 23-OCT. 22

Issachar comes from the Hebrew word payment. In those ancient days of one man, many wives, Leah, the undesired wife, purchased from Rachel the right to sleep with Joseph. There, Leah conceived Issachar. Issachar's indecisiveness is attributed to his being the result of hasty bargaining. Librans will weigh all sides of a question incessantly. Often, time itself will prove to be the final arbitrator. When life is balanced for a Libra, they are charming. Out of balance, however, Librans can be almost scary.

SCORPIO: DAN
OCT. 23-NOV. 21

Jacob speaks of his son Dan as being both a judge and a serpent.

Scorpio was always depicted as being either an eagle or a snake. When the Scorpio controls his intense emotions, he has a clarity of judgment that is farseeing. Conversely, an out of control Scorpio will become vengeful, sneaky and vicious. Scorpios usually develop self-control at an early age for their own self-preservation. Then they can fly through life like an eagle.

SAGITTARIUS: GAD
NOV. 22-DEC. 21

Gad means good fortune and Sagittarians seem to be blessed with a special insight. Straight as an arrow, they will pierce right into the heart of a matter. Not always the most diplomatic of signs, they like to say it like it is. Their freedom is paramount. Fairness is important. Injustice makes them despair. Appropriating the best of any situation for themselves, lucky Sagittarians wear their halos slightly askew.

CAPRICORN: ASHER
DEC. 22-JAN. 19

Asher means wealth or fortune. Most Capricorns will not have to worry about their material well-being. It is Moses' blessing of Asher that gives us the astrological adage that Capricorns are old when young and young when old. Capricorns seem to get stronger the older they get. Working hard for their success, the Capricorn perseveres. They will eventually climb to the apex of their particular mountain top — one filled with creature comforts.

AQUARIUS: NAPHTALI
JAN. 20-FEB. 18

Described by Jacob as giving goodly words and having the speed of a racing deer; blessed by Moses with both the desert and the sea; Naphtali was considered to be favored by the Lord. Rarely lonely, Aquarians finds communication easy. They enjoy friends and relate on a mental level. However, they do, suffer fools badly. If an Aquarian feels that you are not wise enough to understand his goodly words, he'll drop you.

PISCES: JOSEPH
FEB. 19-MARCH 20

Joseph was one of the most blessed sons of Jacob. But occult abilities and immaturity led to his early downfall. These same occult powers, but with age and humility, were later royally rewarded. Until recently, the sensitive, intuitive Pisces needed to hide their occult abilities. If not, they faced ridicule, persecution or even worse. Today, these psychic talents are becoming increasingly recognized and rewarded.

Beverley Janus, author, public speaker and columnist, is the director of the Institute of Parapsychological Studies in Toronto.

Canadian Society for Yad Vashem is pleased to invite you to join our Guest of Honour, The Honourable Michael Harris, Premier of Ontario, to pay tribute to the Righteous Among The Nations and to honour the Memory of the Six Million who Perished.

The Honourable
Michael Harris, Premier of Ontario

The title Righteous Among The Nations was created in an effort to honour the men and women who risked certain death to save Jewish lives during World War II. To date, more than 10,000 individual names have been inscribed on the "Righteous Wall of Honour" at the Yad Vashem Museum in Jerusalem.

WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 5, 1997
INN ON THE PARK, CENTENNIAL BALLROOM
COCKTAILS 6:30 P.M. DINNER 7:00 P.M.
COUVERT: $250.00 PER PERSON

HONORARY DINNER CHAIRMAN: THE HONOURABLE CHARLES HARNICK
DINNER CO-CHAIRS: JOEL DIMITRY, RONALD FAUST, HARRY KICHLER & ELLEN SMOSKOWITZ
HONORARY NATIONAL CHAIRMAN: LESLIE DAN
NATIONAL CHAIRMAN: HANK ROSENBAUM

CAMPAIGN CABINET
CHAIR: ALEX EISEN
LOU GREENBAUM, ISAAC JESIN, DAVID PELTZ, EVA SILVERBERG, PETER SILVERMAN & DAVID SMUSCHKOWITZ

For information, please contact:
(416) 785-1333

TRIBUTE COMMITTEE

Isabel Bassett MPP	Sydney Ganghar	Mayor Mel Lastman	The Honourable William Saunderson MPP
Debbie Berlach	Councillor Norm Gardner	The Honourable Al Leach MPP	Rabbi Philip Scheim
Elinor Caplan MP	Paul Godfrey	Ralph Lean	Allan Silber
Mayor Don Cousins	Herman Gottesman	Marylyn Light	Avrom Silver
Aubrey & Marla Dan	Senator Jerahmiel Grafstein	Jeffery S. Lyons, QC	Ralph Snow
Leslie & Anna Dan	Alex Grossman	Howard Orfus	Shoel Silver
Cantor Louis Danto	Max & Sheila Guttman	Jim Peterson MP	Ed Sorahine
Frank Diamant	Stuart & Andrea Hytman	Alexander & Jeannie Raab	Allan Tonks
Dr. Saul Dimitry	Jehudi Kinar	Bob Rae	The Honourable David Tsubouchi MPP
Betty Eisenstadt	Consul General of Israel	Arnold Recht	David Turnbull MPP
Sol & Toby Feldberg	Monte Kwinter MPP	Sigmund Reiser	David Young

זכור

Canadian Society for
YAD VASHEM
The Holocaust Martyrs' and Heroes' Remembrance Authority

A tax receipt will be issued for the maximum allowable amount. Visa, MasterCard, Israel Bonds accepted. Kashrut observed.

Turning 69, 70 or 71 this year?

You must convert your RRSP into a RRIF or an Annuity by DECEMBER 31. Allow me to structure a plan to meet your specific needs.

H. AB NISKER C.A.
Over 45 years as a Financial Advisor
(905) 479-6670
COSBURN, GRIFFITHS & BRANDHAM FINANCIAL SERVICES INC.

The Adath Israel Congregation Adult Study Committee presents

Going to the "Wall" over Intolerance:

Israel's Responsibility for World Jewry

with

Rabbi Reuven P. Bulka

Monday, November 3rd - 8:00 p.m.
•Everyone Welcome •Refreshments Served

Adath Israel Congregation
37 Southbourne Avenue (1 block northeast of Bathurst-Wilson)
North York, Ontario. (416) 635-5340

AS A MATTER OF FACT

With so many divergent views today on religious issues in Israel, it's easy to confuse fact with fiction and lose sight of what really matters.

UNDERSTANDING MATTERS

Our response to issues challenging Jewish unity must be based on mutual respect, support and understanding. This year, the UJA Federation-funded Jewish Agency will be spending nearly $20 million (CDN) in Israel on programs promoting tolerance, religious diversity and unity. In fact, UJA Federations across North America, through the Jewish Agency, are the world's largest supporters of such projects, exceeding the efforts of all other organizations combined.

CARING MATTERS

While we debate important proposals and policies in Israel, over 20,000 Jews living below the poverty line in Greater Toronto are struggling to acquire the necessities of life. This fiscal year, UJA Federation will be spending $2.5 million on human services to help people in need.

EDUCATION MATTERS

Without a foundation of Jewish knowledge, there may be no one to debate the big issues of the future. UJA Federation is investing over $7.5 million a year in Toronto's internationally admired Jewish education network.

RESCUE MATTERS

In every corner of the former Soviet Union, Jews still face economic insecurity, political chaos or anti-Semitism. Since 1989, the Jewish Agency has financed the flight of 800,000 Jews from the former Soviet Union to Israel. Nearly 60,000 more are expected this year. Whenever and wherever Jews are in danger, the Jewish Agency is there.

JEWISH VALUES MATTER

For centuries, Jews everywhere have cared for one another, to make sure no one is left out in the cold. Our sacred responsibility for each other is more important today than ever. Even with all our differences, we must not be diverted from the common cause of social justice, alleviating Jewish distress and furthering the rescue of Jews in danger.

UJA FEDERATION For One People. Forever.

(416) 631-5705 • www.feduja.org

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA
JNF
Send a traditional greeting for any occasion.....
Say It With Trees!
(416) 638-7200

What's New

By Miriam Herman

CANADIAN SOCIETY FOR YAD VASHEM
has moved to:
534 Lawrence Ave. W.
North York, Ont.
M6A 1A2
Tel: 416-785-1333
Fax: 416-785-4536

What's New has received an overwhelming number of requests from Holocaust Education Week event organizers to list their respective events separately. Unfortunately, it is simply impossible to do this. We cannot accommodate all the requests in our limited space and still have room for other community events. We do however urge all Canadian Jewish News readers to take advantage of the tremendous opportunity for learning, discovery and awareness presented by Holocaust Education Week.

DEADLINE REMINDER

Deadlines for What's New and About People: Monday, Nov. 3, is deadline for Nov. 13 issue and Monday, Nov. 10, is deadline for Nov. 20 column. I receive calls and sort my mail on deadline days only. Phone 391-1836, fax 391-0829.

Saturday, Nov. 1

CURRENT EVENTS SERIES

Beth Tikvah Synagogue series, Israel and the Jewish World, with Prof. David Goldberg, Foundation for Middle East Studies, 7 p.m.

MAX MANDEL HOUR

The Max Mandel Jewish Hour starring Michael and Max Mandel (Jr.) with Stella Walker, Dvoira Yanovsky, David Abramowitz and the Winchevsky Ensemble Theatre, 8 p.m., Winchevsky Centre, 585 Cranbrooke Ave. $12 in advance, $15 at door. 789-5502.

DOWNTOWN MINYAN

Downtown Reform Minyan egalitarian Shabbat service every Saturday 10 a.m. at Bloor Jewish Community Centre, Room 204. Singles of all ages, all families, and children are welcome. Shelly 469-4287.

SUNNYBROOK MINYAN

Ma'yan Or Liberal Minyan, 10 a.m. to noon, Sunnybrook Jewish Chapel. Kiddush follows. Hilda Harris, shamus, 480-4421, ext. 3552.

BBYO DANCE

BBYO community-wide dance (teens, grades 9-13), 8 p.m., City Playhouse, 1000 New Westminster (at Bathurst). Members $5, non-members $8. Proceeds to BBYO Leadership Development. Join BBYO at dance and admission is free.

FUN AUCTION

Queen City chapter, Jewish Women International, fun auction, 7:30 p.m., Workmen's Circle, 471 Lawrence Ave. W. New merchandise, vouchers for dinner, theatre, hotel weekend and more. $5.

Sunday, Nov. 2

A YIDDISHER TOG

A Day of Yiddish at Beth Tzedec Congregation:

- 10 a.m. Prof. David Roskies, Jewish Theological Seminary, lectures on Memory as Stone.
- Noon, lunch available $5. Reserve 781-3514, ext. 66.
- 12:30 p.m. The Shtetl – A Portrait with Yiddish poet Simcha Simchovitch and folksinger/pianist Naomi Bell.

JEWISH BROTHERHOODS

Council of Jewish Brotherhoods of Metropolitan Toronto and Vicinity annual installation breakfast at Adath Israel Synagogue. David Goldberg, The Foundation for Middle East Studies, speaks on Israel and Current Foreign Policy. Services 9 a.m., breakfast 9:45, program 10:15. $6.

HABONIM BREAKFAST

Habonim Breakfast Club features storyteller Leslie Robbins talking about Meisses My Bubbie Never Taught Me, stories of Jewish humor, 10 a.m., Beth Habonim, 5 Glen Park. Breakfast and lecture $6.

REMEMBRANCE PARADE

Jewish War Veterans of Canada, Toronto Post, Remembrance Parade and Service. Assemble 9:30 a.m. outside Earl Bales Park Community Centre. Parade route, Raoul Wallenberg Road to Bathurst Street, left to Beth Radom Synagogue, 18 Reiner Rd. for service. Dress code: uniforms, medals, headcovering. Family members welcome at service, 10:20 a.m. 663-8387 or parade marshal Ernest Stein 423-2794.

COOKING CLASS

Beth Tikvah's culinary classes continue with tips on setting your Shabbat table, organizing your dinner, recipes, 4 p.m.

[Cont'd on page 21]

IGA Kosher
IGA brings down the cost of keeping kosher
Centre Street
Clark Avenue West
Bathurst Street
Hilda Avenue
Yonge Street
Steeles Avenue
441 CLARK (AT HILDA)

Whole Chickens
Fresh or Frozen, Kosher
4.61 kg
209 lb.

Rougemont Apple Juice
1.36 L tin
.88

Levitt's Roast Beef
From the Deli
2.75 /100 g
1249 lb.

P.E.I. Potatoes
Product of Canada, Canada No. 1
4.54 kg / 10 lb. bag
199

Frozen Whole Turkeys
Kosher
3.45 kg
179 lb.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes
675 g, Honey Rice Krispies 400 g, Crispix 350 g, Rice Krispies Squares 176 g or Nutri-Grain Bars 295 g 199

Astro Cottage Cheese
From the Deli
1.10 /100 g
499 lb.

Christmas Rose Grapes
Product of U.S.A.
No. 1 Grade, 3.29 kg
149 lb.

Single Chuck Steaks
Glatt Kosher Beef
9.90 kg
449 lb.

Alpine Hot Chocolate
500 g tin
169

Double Rye Bread
From The Bakery
850 g loaf
199

Bar Cakes
From the Bakery
350 - 400 g pkg.
299

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES. PRICES IN EFFECT SUNDAY, OCT. 26 UNTIL SATURDAY, NOV. 1, 1997.

What's New

[Cont'd from page 20]

BOOK DISCUSSION
Older feminists share views and ideas about My Father's House by Sylvia Fraser, 2 p.m., Barbara Frum Library. Female discussion group is sponsored by North York chapter, Older Women's Network. Ruth Goldsmith 782-6414.

JEWISH STORYTELLING
At Beit Habonim, 5 Glen Park Ave., 7:30 p.m., hosted by Alec Gelcer. All welcome to listen and tell. $3. Presented by Jewish Storytelling Arts. 440-1330.

Monday, Nov. 3

RABBI BULKA LECTURE
Rabbi Reuven Bulka of Ottawa speaks on Going to the "Wall" Over Tolerance: Israel's Responsibility for World Jewry, 8 p.m., Adath Israel Congregation.

ABOUT DIABETES
Canadian Diabetes Association, Jewish diabetes chapter meeting, Health Care Restructuring: Where Do We Go From Here?, speaker Lorne Zion, Metro Toronto District Health Council, 8 p.m. Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue. Esther Schwartz 782-2176 or Shirley Glatt 225-1989.

Tuesday, Nov. 4

PARLEZ-VOUS FRANÇAIS?
Une Loge du B'nai Brith de langue française se réunit tous les premiers mardis de chaque mois. Cette réunion aura lieu au 15 Hove. St., 8 p.m. Le sujet est La Persécution des Juifs en France en 1942. 255-6086.

ADULT EDUCATION SERIES
Rabbi Moshe Stern's fall lecture series starts off with Astrology: Is it permissible to believe in and consult astrologers? 8 p.m. Shaarei Tefillah Congregation. For men and women.

INTERMARRIAGE
Beth Tikvah Synagogue's series on Intermarriage and Interdating continues with discussion by educator Gary Levine geared to young adults and a film When Love Meets Tradition, 8 p.m.

KOSHER COOKING
Kashruth Council of Toronto Kosher Cooking School features Gourmet Entertaining on a Budget, 8 p.m. Shaarei Tefillah Congregation. 635-9550.

CHUG TANACH
Meeting 8 p.m. at Finch Associated Library. Irving Matlow leads in discussing Chapters 4 and 5 in the Book of Amos.

Wednesday, Nov. 5

AISH HATORAH
Aish Hatorah lecture, Our Roots: Jewish Psyche– the Unique Character of the Jew, 8 p.m., 949 Clark Ave. W., Thornhill. 905-764-1818.

ROMANIAN BB LODGE
Romanian-speaking B'nai Brith Dr. Filderman Lodge meeting, 6:30 p.m., B'nai Brith Building, 15 Hove St. Herman Nanu speaks on The Future of the Written Book: Facing the New Technology. 631-0634.

SEX AND LOVE
Rabbi Aaron Flanzraich discusses Sex and Love, 7:30 p.m., Pride of Israel Synagogue.

Thursday, Nov. 6

ONE FAMILY: TWO HOMES
Jewish Family & Child Service three-part series for families and children experiencing divorce/separation presents Overview of New Family Law Legislation with a lawyer from Epstein/Cole. Call Pat Lieberman 638-7800, ext. 215.

And What Else Is New

SIYUM HATORAH
Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Synagogue Siyum Hatorah Celebration Weekend honoring Rabbi Joseph Kelman in recognition of 38 years of dedicated service to the synagogue and the community, Shabbat, Nov. 1, services. Guest Rabbi David G. Roskies, guest Cantor Moshe Shulhoff.
Sunday, Nov. 2, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. events include: Parade, Torah competition ceremony, mini Torah fest, tours of The Mission mural, special dedication ceremony featuring Shulhoff. 633-3838.

LE BAL MASQUE
Be part of the team that puts together the Israel Cancer research Fund's Le Bal Masqué. Get involved, meet new friends, make a difference. Opening meeting at Just Your Affair Banquet Hall, 1111A Finch Ave. W., Tuesday, Nov. 18, 7:30 p.m. Nancy 783-9980.

JEWISH STUDENT ARTISTS
Jewish Campus Services is planning a Jewish Students' Arts Festival for early March. The committee is looking for submissions of original visual art, music, drama, dance and film on the theme Discovering Our Jewish Identity. Deadline Dec. 1. 661-8925 or visit your nearest JSF, JSU or Hillel.

AMBULANCE COURSES
Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Adult Education and Young Families present St. John's Ambulance courses starting November. They include Infant and Child First Aid and CPR, a babysitting course (ages 11 plus) and Adult Heart Saver. Register. Rhonda 905-731-9441.

ATTENTION CAREGIVERS!
Volunteer at-home respite care is available for full-time caregivers, 55 years and older through the Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living. Paula Mintzberg or Ruth Cohen 225-2112.

STUDIO ART SALE
Toronto artist Tutzi Haspel-Seguin's annual studio art sale this weekend, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., 43 Camberwell Rd. Part of proceeds go to charity. 783-0781.

HEBREW CLASSES
Conversational Hebrew classes (ulpan method) with Yael Lev, daytime and evening, all levels, at Associated Hebrew School, Beth Tikvah and Kehillat Shaarei Synagogues. Yael 225-6151.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED
Chaplaincy Services needs caring, compassionate volunteers to visit Jewish seniors in nursing homes throughout Metro. Toby Maskowitz, Chaplaincy coordinator, 638-7800, ext. 287.

LIVIN' IN A SHOE
Recording artists Judy & David celebrate the release of their new album, Livin' In a Shoe, with a family concert Nov. 23, 1:30 and 4:30 p.m.at Vaughan City Playhouse, Bathurst south of Hwy. 7. Concert features All Together Now Band and a special kids choir. Proceeds to benefit Adoption Council of Ontario. 905-709-4057.

DOWNTOWN COURSES
Downtown Jewish Community Council courses: Two-day Hebrew marathon Sundays, Nov. 9 and 16; Intermediate Hebrew; Jewish Meditation: Classic and Contemporary Perspectives; Modern Judaism; Living Judaism. Cheryl Wetstein 924-6211.

JF&CS GROUPS
Jewish Family & Child Service groups: Positive Parenting begins week of Nov. 3; Self Confident Woman begins Nov. 3; Single Again begins Nov. 5; Bereavement Groups begin Nov. 6. Pat Lieberman 638-7800, ext. 215.

CRESTVIEW TINY TOTS
North York Parks and Recreation ongoing tiny tots program for children ages 2½ to 4½, Monday to Friday, 9-11:30 a.m., fall, winter and spring, Don Mills/Finch area. Maxine 494-4115 or Giselle 490-1209.

FOR SENIORS

Beth Tzedec Seniors Haverim presents Harold Troper, co-author of None is Too Many , discussing From Second to First: Thoughts on the History of the Toronto Jewish Community, Monday, Nov. 3, 1:30 p.m., Hurwich Board Room. Nominal charge.

Shaarei Shomayim Friendship Club: Nov. 3, Mr. Holland's Opus; Nov. 10, opening musical luncheon, 12:30 p.m., entertainers Ivory and Silver, art exhibit of works by club members. Lena 785-5773. Golden Book donations go to Laniado Hospital in Israel. Dorothy Bloomfield 787-1526.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Nov. 4, seminar on ABCs of Fraud; Nov. 5, shopping in Buffalo; Nov. 19, Square One Shopping Centre; Dec. 3, Showboat matinee; Dec. 17, Casino Rama; activities – table tennis, shuffleboard, woodwork shop, trips day and night. 395-7881.

Aluma Canadian Israeli Club meets 7 p.m. Thursdays, 15 Hove St. Nov. 6, lecture, European Jewry 1939-46 by Heini Bornstein, delegate from Israel. Aaron Dahary 661-4689 or Malka 630-5771.

LZA Seniors Club registration for Miami trip 1998, Libby 782-2059. Ladies Folkdancing Thursdays 1:30 p.m. Cultural Discussion Group Tuesdays 10 a.m. Borochov Centre, 272 Codsell Ave., is open for socializing Monday to Friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE
Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living, 1003 Steeles Ave. W. 225-2112.
The video Nasty Girl , about a small town in Germany that has big secrets it wants to keep secret, Thursday, Nov. 3, 1:30 p.m. Facilitator Bernie Farber, Canadian Jewish Congress. Students from Newtonbrook Secondary School will attend.
Israeli Club Etrog meets 7 p.m. Tuesdays for movies, lectures, singalongs, dances, bingo. Lecture by Heini Bornstein Nov. 4. Anna.

BLOOR JCC

Bloor Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave. 924-6211.
Gala premiere opening of Simcha Jacobovici's film, Hollywoodism: Jew, Movies and the American Dream, Nov. 24, Princess of Wales Theatre. Patron tickets $180, regular seats $36.
Israeli folkdancing with Yossi Straub Monday evenings. Beginners 8:15-9, Intermediate Level 1, 9-10. Yossi 661-6361.
Bloor JCC Seniors Club: Thursday, Nov. 6, 2 p.m., Wallin Lounge, Jackie Kott of Mazon Canada speaks on Hunger and Poverty in Canada – The Jewish Value of Tzedakah. Judy.

BATHURST JC

Bathurst Jewish Centre, 4588 Bathurst St. 636-1880.
Senior Adult Services presents No Fun Falling, the prevention and problems of falling, with Thorne Eric Fredrikson Tuesday, Nov. 4, 1-2:30 p.m. Yvonne ext. 259.
Young Einstein's computer courses for adults and children. ext. 378.
Special needs programs – social, physical and recreational programs for children, teens, adults with developmental and/or physical disabilities. Patricia Trojman ext. 205.

Philips Azur 90
Electronic Auto Off
Silverstone Base
Self Clean Iron
with Cordwinder
Compare at 99.99
LOWEST PRICE EVER
49.99
Cayne's
The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store
WORRY FREE!!! BRIDAL REGISTRY
112 DONCASTER AVENUE
OPEN - MON. to WED. 10-6 • THURS. & FRI.10-9 • SAT. 10-6 • SUN. 11-5 • (905) 764-1188
Always 1st Quality • Always Brand Names • Always Warehouse Prices

Greater Toronto Area

בס"ד

Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto

We're Associated

Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto בתי תלמוד תורה המאוחדים בטורונטו

Information visits & tours for parents interested in registering their children in our

NURSERY AND/OR KINDERGARTENS FOR 1998/9

Wednesday, November 12	Danilack Centre (Leslie)	at 9:30 a.m.
Thursday, November 13	for* Posluns Centre (Neptune) at Hurwich Centre (Finch)	at 9:30 a.m.
Tuesday, November 18	Kamin Centre (Thornhill)	at 9:30 a.m. & 1:30 p.m.

Please call the Bet Hayeled office at (905) 889-3998, ext. 2 to reserve a place on one of the above tours.

We are pleased to offer:

Nursery
half day programmes

Junior Kindergarten
full day & half day programmes

Senior Kindergarten
full day & half day programmes

Danilack Education Centre
6100 Leslie St. • (416) 494-7666

Posluns Education Centre
18 Neptune Drive

Tour at Hurwich Education Centre
252 Finch Ave West • (416) 223-4845

Kamin Education Centre
300 Atkinson Ave. • (905) 889-3998, ext. 2

בס"ד

MIZRACHI
416-630-9266

To initiate our celebration of Medinat Yisrael's fiftieth anniversary year, the Mizrachi Organization of Canada proudly invites the entire Jewish community to participate in:

MIZRACHI ISRAEL SHABBAT

On Shabbatot פרשיות לך לך and וירא (November 8 & 15) special guests will deliver a talk on "TORAH IN ISRAEL: THE NEXT FIFTY YEARS". In addition, a festive kiddush will be offered at each of the following participating Synagogues:

DATE	SYNAGOGUE	SPEAKER
Nov. 8	Congregation B'nai Torah	Rabbi Dr. Bernard Rosenzweig, New York
Nov. 8	Beth Avraham Yoseph of Toronto	Rabbi Menachem Gopin, Toronto
Nov. 8	Beth Jacob V'Anshe Drildz	Rabbi Elliot Feldman, Toronto
Nov. 8	Kehillat Shaarei Torah	Rabbi Dr. Martin Lockshin, Toronto
Nov. 8	Associated at Finch	Rabbi Marvin Pachino, Toronto
Nov. 8	Associated at Atkinson	Rabbi Ronald Weiss, Toronto
Nov. 8	Emunah Shleima Congregation	Rabbi Dr. Leo Davids, Toronto
Nov. 8	Torah V'Avodah/Mizrachi Bayit	Rabbi Benjamin Hecht, Toronto
Nov. 8	Cong. Shaarei Tefillah	Rabbi Mel Granatstein, Cleveland
Nov. 15	The Village Shul	Rabbi Dr. David Aronson, Toronto
Nov. 15	Clanton Park Synagogue	Rabbi Yosef Blau, New York
Nov. 15	Cong. Shaarei Shomayim	Rabbi Joshua Shmidman, Montreal
Nov. 15	Shomer Shabbos Congregation	Rabbi Dr. Moshe Yeres, Toronto
Nov. 15	Magen David Congregation	Rabbi Marvin Pritzker, Toronto
Nov. 15	Yeshivat Or Chaim	Rabbi Roni Barnea, Israel
Nov. 15	Cong. Adas Israel, Hamilton	Rabbi Dr. Martin Lockshin, Toronto
Nov. 15	Sephardic Kehilla Centre, Thornhill	Rabbi David Algaze, New York
Nov. 15	Torath Emeth Congregation	Rabbi Yitzchak Feigenbaum, Toronto
Nov. 15	Kielcer Congregation	Rabbi Benjamin Hecht, Toronto
Nov. 15	Ohr Somayach, Thornhill	Rabbi Menachem Gopin, Toronto

We urge the entire Jewish community to paticipate in this very special program.

Jerry Rosenfield, Chairman
Mizrachi 50th Anniversary Activities

Dr. Leo Davids, Chairman
Mizrachi Israel Shabbat

Paul Brown
Toronto President

Jack Kahn
National President

Exodus survivors to help open event

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Organizers are busy putting final touches to the community's 17th annual Holocaust Education Week, which this year promises to be the most extensive ever.

HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK

The 10-day event will feature over 70 programs, dozens of speakers, and an unprecedented response from Metro churches. More than 20 Toronto-area churches will be hosting films, events and discussion groups, with help from Christian-Jewish Dialogue of Toronto.

One of them will be a discussion of racism in the Canadian armed forces (Nov. 6 at St. Gabriel Roman Catholic Church) — especially timely given recent events surrounding the Somalia inquiry.

Holocaust Education Week gets underway Oct. 30 at the Leah Posluns Theatre, where at least eight local survivors of the Exodus, the famed ship that attempted to bring Holocaust survivors to Palestine in 1947, will gather to mark the 50th anniversary of the vessel's fabled but ill-fated voyage.

Guest speaker from New York will be Nat Nadler, who served on the ship's crew, as well as Prof. Meir Schwartz from Israel, a former Haganah commander who accompanied the passengers to Palestine, and to France after British authorities turned the Exodus away.

Howard Driman, who chairs the week, says more libraries and churches are participating than ever before. The week, he adds, is the only event of its kind, probably in the world.

Plenty of high-profile speakers will appear. Sir Martin Gilbert, one of the world's foremost chroniclers of the Holocaust, will speak Saturday night, Nov. 1 at the Bloor JCC. On the night before, at the Beaches Hebrew Institute (109 Kenilworth Ave.), three Metro-area men depicted in Gilbert's book The Boys will recount their experiences. The three were among 732 teenaged survivors of the Holocaust taken in by Britain after liberation.

On Nov. 2, Prof. Alain Goldschlager, director of the Holocaust Literature Research Institute at the University of Western Ontario, will be joined for a discussion by five area survivors who have recently published their memoirs.

Also on Nov. 2, Heini Bornstein a Swiss-born lecturer now living in Israel, will discuss Switzerland's official wartime neutrality and the current scandal over seized bank assets of Holocaust victims (15 Hove St., Downsview).

Driman says other highlights will include:

• Shlomo Perel, a Tel Aviv businessman who served as the inspiration for the award-winning film Europa Europa, will appear at Shaar Shalom Synagogue (2 Simonston Blvd., Thornhill) on Nov. 3. Beginning at age 14, Perel posed as an ethnic German and found refuge at an elite Hitler Youth school.

• Eva Mozes Kor, who survived the sadistic medical experiments on twins by Josef Mengele, will speak at Pride of Israel Synagogue (59 Lissom Cres.) on Nov. 5. Mozes, founder of CANDLES (Children of Auschwitz Nazi Deadly Laboratory Experiments Survivors) will discuss how she achieved her own personal liberation: by forgiving the Nazis. Appropriately, the program is entitled Forgive Your Worst Enemy: It Will Heal Your Soul and Set You Free.

• Dr. Ekkehard Klausa, director of the Museum of German Resistance in Berlin, will discuss why, 10 years after it was conceived, a monument to Holocaust victims in Berlin remains unbuilt. (Goethe Institute, 163 King St. W. on Nov. 5).

• Dr. Eva Fogelman, a psychotherapist from New York, will discuss what motivated otherwise ordinary Christians to rescue thousands of Jews during the Holocaust. (Nov. 6 at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue, 470 Glencairn Ave.).

• Samuel Aroni, an architecture professor at UCLA and one of the few survivors of the Kishinev ghetto, will describe the pre-war Jewish communities in Kishinev and Bessarabia (Beth Habonim Congregation, 5 Glen Park Ave. on Nov. 9).

Dozens of other lectures, film screenings, exhibits, a Torah dedication and even a dance recital will round out the program.

A post-week program will feature an address by Eli Rosenbaum, director of the U.S. Office of Special Investigations, which prosecutes alleged Nazi war criminals in the United States (Nov. 13, Sheraton Centre).

Organizers are already setting their sights on next year, when Holocaust Education Week will mark the 60th anniversary of Kristallnacht, the night in 1938 when Nazi thugs pillaged Jewish homes, shops and synagogues across Germany, spelling the beginning of the end for European Jewry.

For other details, call 416-631-5689.

UIA northern reflections

Canada Makes Its Mark

From the rugged terrain of the Lebanese border to the Galilee's soft hills, Canada's imprint is clearly visible across northern Israel.

United Israel Appeal, funded by local UJA/CJA campaigns, has sponsored more than 30 projects and dozens of services for residents of the north – among them – the Canada Centre recreation complex in Metulla; the Granovsky Auditorium and the Fuchs Community Centre in Kiryat Shmona.

The community centre, built by Vancouver's Arthur Fuchs, is an educational, social and recreational outlet for adults and children. Since 1990, theatre groups, dance troupes, musicians and other international entertainers have performed in the 700 seat Granovsky Auditorium, financed by the late Phil Granovsky and his wife Shirley from Toronto.

UIA has also guided northern moshavim and kibbutzim through restructuring, to prepare for the future, and helped to upgrade the northern region's education system.

"These facilities minimize the gap between Israelis living in this remote region and those living in more central locations such as Tel Aviv and Jerusalem," explains Amnon Shinar, Director of UIA Canada in Israel.

Physical structures are only part of the strong Canadian connection. Northern Israel is, after all, along the confrontation line – the target, from time to time, of katyusha rockets raining down from Lebanon. Last year, during Operation Grapes of Wrath, when katyushas struck cities and towns in the north, UIA Canada representatives traveled to the area to provide moral support, VCR's, cassettes and musical entertainment for residents restricted to bomb shelters. UJA Federation Prime Minister's Mission participants from Toronto traveled to Kiryat Shmona, Mevo'ot HaHermon and Metulla, lifting spirits along the way.

Our most important objective," says Shinar, "is to strengthen the northern population and help them cope during times of tension."

Looking ahead, Shinar is excited about "building living bridges between the people of the north and their Canadian partners." In July, teachers from Winnipeg, Ottawa, Calgary and Vancouver, visited northern Israel for an educators conference. The second stage of the exchange will take place in March 1998, when an Israeli contingent comes to Canada to share ideas on subjects such as curriculum development and teacher training.

"This is only the beginning," promises Shinar. "Israelis of the north are deeply committed to the concept of partnership. They intend to give back no less than they received."

Partnerships Maintain Ties

Personal contacts are strengthening the bonds between Canada and northern Israel.

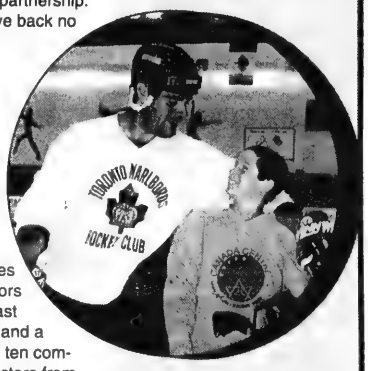
Last summer, UIA sponsored the first hockey camp for teenagers at Canada Centre in Metulla. Fifteen Canadians and thirty-two Israelis participated in the program run by former Toronto Maple Leaf coach Roger Neilson. In addition to spending plenty of time on the ice, the group also toured the Gallilee and Jerusalem.

"The camp was a great success," reports Amnon Shinar, Director of UIA Canada in Israel. "We could have had many more participants but we had limited space."

The Kefiada program for young adults, co-sponsored by UIA and the Canada Israel Experience Centre, now in its third year, is also growing in popularity. One hundred university age Canadians spent six weeks working in UIA sponsored summer camps across Israel. "More than 25% of Kefiada participants end up going back each year," notes Adam Minsky, National Education Director for the Canada Israel Experience Centre. "Living with Israeli families really gives them a sense of community and belonging few other programs offer."

Other "people to people" initiatives include an educators conference held last July in Jerusalem and a visit to Canada by ten community centre directors from northern Israel last spring.

"Now that we have accomplished so much in the way of improved infrastructure and social welfare," explains Shinar, "it's time to focus on people."



Canada Centre: Friendship Over The Border

While diplomats and dignitaries painstakingly maneuver to achieve lasting peace between Israel and her neighbours, Metulla's Canada Centre in Israel's most northern community has been successfully promoting peaceful coexistence for years.

In addition to the 5,000 Metulla residents who have made the Canada Centre sports and recreation facility their second home since it was built in 1989, thousands of Lebanese cross through the Good Fence every year to enjoy its modern amenities and innovative programs.

"Our neighbours from Lebanon have been using Canada Centre for many years," explains Metulla Mayor Yossi Goldberg, whose name has become synonymous with the project.

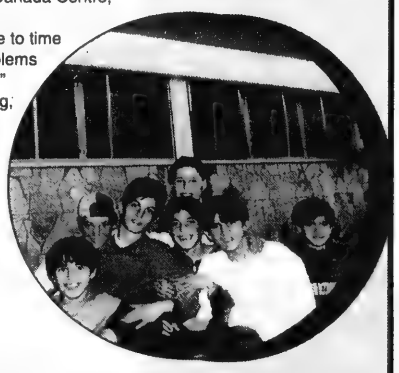
Canada Centre, known as UIA's flagship development in the area, was built with funds raised by Canadian Jewish community campaigns. Since 1976, Israeli children, together with more than 1,000 Christian and Muslim youngsters from south Lebanon, have been celebrating the New Year at Canada Centre.

"Kids are kids, no matter where they come from," says Goldberg. "We all want to do the best we can for them."

Each day, more than 1,600 Lebanese come to work in Metulla and the surrounding area. After bombing raids a year and a half ago, Lebanese workers helped to clean up the debris left by fallen Katyusha rockets.

"When people talk about Metulla they inevitably talk about Canada Centre," boasts Goldberg. "Even Israelis from as far south as Eilat have ventured the length of the country to see for themselves an Olympic size skating rink." In fact, 250,000 Israelis visit Canada Centre, each year.

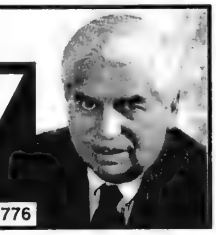
"From time to time we have problems at the border," says Goldberg, "but on a day to day basis, life is good here in Metulla and Canada Centre has a lot to do with that."



UIA northern reflections, a supplement of the Canadian Jewish News, is sponsored by UIA of Canada.

Greater Toronto Area

RE-ELECT
Howard
JOY
CITY COUNCIL - MIDTOWN Call 481-0776



Beth Tikvah Synagogue
3080 Bayview Avenue, Willowdale
(416) 221-3433

SEARCH FOR SPIRITUALITY

Michael Enright, host of CBC's "This Morning" and former host of "As It Happens" brings his formidable interviewing skills to Beth Tikvah. Mr. Enright will host a series of four interviews with people whose approaches to Judaism and Jewish Life offer unique insights into the scope of choices facing each of us as Jews.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6
GUEST: Rabbi Alan Lew, Former Buddhist -- now a prominant Conservative Rabbi in San Francisco and president of the Board of Rabbis in northern California

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13
GUEST: Eva Goldfinger, Spiritual Leader of the Toronto Congregation ORAYNU for Secular Humanist Judaism

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20
GUEST: Dr. Elliott Malamet, Jewish Educator and CHAT faculty member

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27
GUEST: Simcha Jacobovici, Award winning film-maker and founder of Toronto's new east end Beth Joseph Congregation

ALL FOUR EVENINGS BEGIN AT 8:00 P.M.

Seniors help fight elder abuse

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

TORONTO – Their names never appear in lights and they have never won an Oscar, but they act with a fire that burns within.

They are the Awareness Players of Bernard Betel Centre and they have performed hundreds of times in churches, synagogues, hospitals, universities, high schools and private homes all over greater Toronto and York Region. Most of their audiences are non-Jewish.

Their message is simple: Seek out elder abuse, whether it is physical, emotional or financial, and wipe it out.

Their fame is such that they have been invited to the Timiskaming First Nations Reserve in Quebec, 500 kilometres north of Toronto, an invitation initiated by Evelyn Rabkin, one of the players.

"It was a great cross-cultural event," said Sheila Zane, coordinator.

The 20-member Players, all volunteers, are so popular that they are booked solid and other audiences are waiting.

Zane thinks they are winning the battle against elder abuse, citing their several dozen appearances in Metro high schools.

In fact, two high school OAC students, Neda Moaddeli and Kate Wanger, of W.L. Mackenie King Collegiate, helped write Caught in the Middle, a play involving three generations, which often ends up with a student called in from the audience to play the daughter's part.

But in other places, Reta Duenish-Turner, 70, who experienced physical and psychological abuse herself in three marriages, plays a 15-year-old.

Improvisation is the watchword for the Awareness Players who can fold up their props to fit in the trunk of Zane's car.

"Our members feel their roles so intently that Fay Levy, who acts as the mean mother, was stopped after it was over by a woman in the audience, who told her bitterly, 'You're a real witch!'" said Donna Mingail, 71.

Years on the road have brought the troupe face to face with moments of high humor.

"We were at a nursing home once and noticed that the seniors were coming in and out of the hall as we performed," said Deunish-Turner. When we finished, the superintendent told us that only the deaf residents had come in because a fire alarm kept everyone else away."

One of their best days was at Sunnybrook Hospital, where doctors, nurses, police, social workers and other staff saw them put on Pride and Joy and The Stepfather, and took part in the discussion following. Another red letter day was their interaction with medical students at the University of Toronto.

In Pride and Joy, a kindly neighbor discovers that a mother has been physically abused and swindled out of her house by a son who threatens to move her into a basement apartment.

In The Stepfather, a well-meaning son and his wife find that his mother's money is being wagered at the track by the stepfather who has obtained power of attorney.

All the plays are open-ended and the performers remain in character to answer questions, even if it means giving a wrong answer.

"Now that we've told you what it's about, go and do something about it. That's our message," said Mingail.

From left: Frances Halpern, Betty Dawson and Diana Mingail. [Papa Joe photo]

Life and Legacy
of Nehama Leibowitz ז"ל
(1905-1997)

Torah Scholar and Master Teacher of our Times

Sunday, November 9, 7:00 p.m.
(registration at 6:45)
Beth Tikvah Synagogue
3080 Bayview Ave., (416) 221-3433

Admission $5.00
(Free for students, and members of the sponsoring organizations)

Program includes:

- lecture by Marla Frankel of the Melton Center for Jewish Education in the Diaspora at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem
- video tribute to Nehama's teachings from Toronto educators
- study session illuminating Nehama's inspiring Torah study methods

Event sponsored by Beth Tikvah Synagogue and the Centre for Jewish Studies at York University http://www.webwise.on.ca/nehama.html

November 10th ELECT
TED BERGER
Councillor Ward 4 - Vaughan
"The community person who will continue to work for all the people".
– Thank you for your continued support –
(905) 660-1848

Reunion
80 years of Canadian Young Judaea
Last Chance
Sunday, November 2, 1997 7:00-10:00 p.m.
788 Marlee Avenue
Solelim '70 Biluim '78 Shalom '65 Biluim '89
Children welcome!
Call (416) 781-5156 for your ticket!

ROLEX•PATEK•CARTIER
•DIAMONDS•
BUY•SELL•TRADE
VAN RIJK JEWELLERS
440-1233 INSTANT CASH

The government of Israel recognizes sixteen branches of Christianity, but only one branch of Judaism.

Orthodoxy.

As ironic as it seems, Christians living in Israel have more freedom to choose how to live a religious life than Jews. From the vantage point of Christianity, the diversity of state-recognized religious choices looks like the offerings on the winding alleys of a well-stocked shuk. There's Roman Catholic, Anglican, Baptist, Russian Orthodox, Greek Orthodox, and Armenian Orthodox, not to mention Ethiopian Orthodox. The list continues in a dizzying array.

But if you're Jewish, you'll find only one state-supported offering in this shuk, at stall after stall: Jewish Orthodoxy, albeit in several different versions. And while Orthodoxy is a good offering, which we all respect, it clearly isn't the only offering that satisfies the religious needs of the Jewish soul.

Just ask millions of practicing Jews who aren't Orthodox.

Today in Israel, those Jews cannot be married by a Conservative, Reform or Reconstructionist rabbi. Rabbis from these denominations have no legal right to officiate in this capacity. These same rabbis also have no right to perform conversions in the Jewish State. And even the conversions they perform in North America are now coming under scrutiny from the Orthodox establishment in Israel.

For a people who have endured religious persecution for centuries in so many countries, it is incomprehensible that they would deny religious freedom to their fellow Jews in a Jewish State.

And so is the fact that our ultra-Orthodox brothers and sisters in Israel are now demanding new laws to further limit the religious freedom of all those who are not practicing Orthodox Judaism in the Jewish State. Their aim is, in effect, to overturn key Supreme Court decisions that have begun to open the way for diverse expressions of Judaism in Israel. Laws like these will only encourage Israel's religious extremists, alienate hundreds of thousands of Israelis from Judaism, and drive a wedge between Diaspora Jews and Israel.

These laws strike at the core of fundamental civil rights upon which Israel's democracy is based, threatening the democratic nature of Israel's society. It is a concern for all of us.

The struggle for religious pluralism in Israel is a struggle for all concerned Jews everywhere in the world. That is why you should know about the New Israel Fund. The New Israel Fund is one of the most dynamic partnerships today between Israel and the Diaspora. In the 18 years since the Fund was established, it has taken the lead in support of democracy, pluralism, tolerance, and social justice in Israel. For further information on these issues, please contact us for our free brochure, "The Struggle for Pluralism and Religious Freedom."

Call us at (416) 781-4322. Fax us at (416) 781-7443. E-mail us at info@nif.org or visit our Website at www.nif.org.

New Israel Fund
הקרן החדשה לישראל

801 Eglinton Avenue West, Suite 401, Toronto M5N 1E3

"Just Between Us"

YOU'LL SEE THE SAVINGS AISLE AFTER AISLE

Now Save More By Miles

Now Earn AIR MILES* travel miles for FREE* travel and more at The Savings Stores. It's easy as 1-2-3!!!

*1 Carry the Card *2 Show the Card *3 Earn Free Rewards

For every $20 you spend You'll receive one Travel Mile® and every week bonus travel miles will be available on hundreds of items.

SIGN UP TODAY! SEE STORE FOR MORE DETAILS

CHAI KOSHER Fresh Whole Chickens Now! 1.99 lb 4.39 kg

GLATT KOSHER Lean Ground Beef Now! 3.99 lb 8.80 kg

CHAI KOSHER Minced Chicken Now! 2.99 lb 6.59 kg

KOSHER Aaron's Best Frankfurters or Knockwurst Now! 3.99 450 g pkg

Empire Chicken Wings 12 pack Now! 2.29 lb 5.05 kg

Fresh Seafood SUBJECT TO AVAILABILITY

FRESH, FARM RAISED, WHOLE, DRESSED Rainbow Trout Now! 3.88 lb .86 100 g

Fresh Sole Fillets Now! 6.88 lb 1.52 100 g

More Savings Now! ...on all of your Grocery Needs

SELECTED VARIETIES INCLUDING Rippin' Good Chocolate Chip Cookies 300 g - 450 g pkg Now! 1.69

ASSORTED FLAVOURS Ceres Fruit Juice 1 L tetra carton Now! 1.99

Billy Bee Liquid Honey 500 g jar Now! 1.99

SELECTED VARIETIES Goodman's Soup Mix 5 - 6 oz pkg Now! .87

REGULAR OR UNSALTED Rok Snackers 300 g pkg Now! 1.69

POP-INS Puff Pastry Dough 1 lb pkg Now! 1.49

The Savings Stores PRICES EFFECTIVE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS UNTIL SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1997

save a centre FOOD MARKET 600 SHEPPARD AVE., W. DOWNSVIEW 2760 BATHURST ST., TORONTO

We Save You TIME, MONEY and HASSLES!

שישאר בינינו

גידי קורן וחברים

חג האופניים:

אם יום העצמאות הוא חג המנגלים, אז מה הוא חג האופניים? רמז למתקשים להשיב: לפי הלשכה לסטטיסטיקה לפני איזה חג עולות מכירות האופניים פי שבעה מאשר בכל זמן אחר לאורך השנה? כמובן, יום כיפור. בעוד המבוגרים הולכים לבית הכנסת/מסתגרים בביתם עם ספר טוב/הולכים לבקר חברים ברגל, הרי שכל ילדי ישראל על אופניים נהנים משליטתם המוחלטת בכבישים. הייתי בארץ כשבועיים וספגתי את אווירת החגים. מאוד בולט, בניגוד לשקט המוחלט של החג, הוא חוסר כמעט מוחלט של אינושהיא רוחניות או אינושהיא התרוממות רוח. וכך כותב אינתן הבר ב"ידיעות אחרונות": "ילד ישראלי ממוצע אינו יודע כמעט דבר וחצי דבר על יהדות. בבר המצווה הוא מתעניין במתנות שקיבל, ובחתונה- בציקים שעליו לפדות מחר בבוקר. ישראלים רבים חוגגים היום בר-מצווה ללא עליה לתורה, מתחתנים בקפריסין, ורואים טלית ותפילין לכל היותר ב"כנר על הגג" או בריקודי "שלום 96". ילד יהודי אמריקני רפורמי יודע את ברכת המזון על פה. ילד ישראלי לא יודע אפילו על קיומה." אני חייב להגדיש: הדברים אמורים רק לגבי ישראל החילונית. לגבי ישראליים חילוניים, ישראל של 1997 היא מקום אגרסיבי, כוחני, מין ניסיון להיות אמריקה, תוך הזנחה מאוד בולטת של איזשהוא שאר רוח. בעיתונים היומיים הממוסדים, עמוד אחרי פרשת השביע או החדשות, מופיעות מודעות סקס בוטות ששום עיתון ממוסד קנדי או אמריקני היה מעז לפרסם. בחו"ל יש לשם כך עיתוני שוליים, אבל בישראל אפילו "הארץ" מפרסם מודעות סקס

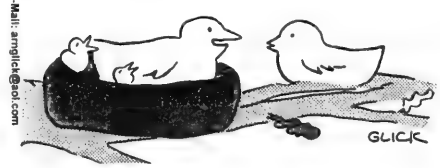
קצת פוליטיקה:

היום, שנה ומחצה אחרי בחירתו של נתניהו, ברור גם לאוהדיו ובודאי למתנגדיו שאין מקריות בהחלטותיו השגויות. מדובר בשורה בלתי נגמרת של פאשלות שנובעות משטחיות, משיקולים לא ענייניים, ומשחצנות. ההחלטה לפעול בירדן הידידותית חודש לפני הבחירות שמתנהלות שם, היא רק דוגמא אחת להמון דוגמאות אחרות שאינן חוצות אפילו את הים ושלא בהכרח מופיעות בעיתוני יום שישי. היו לישראל מנהיגים כאריזמטיים יותר ופחות, משכילים יותר ופחות, אבל דבר כזה עוד לא היה! וגרוע מכל: זה קורה לאחר ששונו סמכויותיו של ראש הממשלה והוא כמעט ואינו תלוי בקואליציה. קשה לתאר עד כמה נמוך המוראל של תושבי ישראל היהודים, ואין הכוונה דווקא למצביעי המערך הקלאסיים שמטבע העניין מרגישים שמחריבים את עולמם. במשאלים שנערכו לאחרונה עלה פי שלושה אחוז הישראלים ששוקלים להעתיק את מקום מגוריהם מישראל. ועכשיו העובדה המדהימה ביותר: לא נראה שלמרות כל הקלקולים הללו, והכיוון השלילי של המאורעות, היה נתניהו מפסיד את בחירות לו היו מתקיימות עכשיו! לשון אחרת: המאזן האנושי של מדינת ישראל השתנה בצורה כזו שיש רוב אוטומאטי לאנשים כמותו, או בלשון יותר מדויקת: יש רוב אוטומאטי שבשום אופן לא יתמוד במנהיג סוציאל דמוקרטי ליבראלי. עצוב.

על נאמנות כפולה:

כשהתברר שאנשי המוסד השתמשו בדרכונים קנדיים מזויפים נשאלתי האם יש לי בעיה אישית כאן. אמרתי שלא. אין ספק שאנשי ריגול בכל העולם משתמשים בדרכונים מזויפים , ואין הדבר מוצדק או לא מוצדק. כל זמן שקנדה עצמה לא השתתפה בעניין, ולא נתנה למוסד דרכונים קנדיים כשרים, מדובר בגניבת מסמכים ותו לא. מבחינת ישראל נראה הדבר מכוער, בזיוק באותה מידה לו היה מתברר שאנשי ריגול הולנדיים השתמשו בדרכונים מזויפים של איטליה. אין פה שאלה של "נאמנות כפולה" כי עוד לא נתקלתי בישראלי אחד החי בישראל שחשב שהצעד של המוסד היה מוצדק. ההערכות נעו בין רשלנות, טיפשות, ושיקול דעת שגוי ביותר. אבל שיישאר בינינו.

SHMOOZIN



"I don't care whether or not my nest is fancy – so long as it has a nice haimische feeling."

Greater Toronto Area

Foster care often challenging but rewarding

By TERESA PITTMAN

When adults apply to become foster parents and care for children who need a temporary home, they expect that it will take some extra work and effort on their part. But foster care is really a family affair – it involves everyone in the household.

Guest Voices

Seventeen-year-old Matthew Goldstein of Willowdale, Ont., has been sharing his home and his parents with foster children for the past seven years. He knows first hand that being part of a foster family changes the lives of both the children and the adults.

The family doesn't run quite as smoothly, Matthew explains. "There are more speed bumps along the way. Being part of a foster family is not the easiest job in the world, but it definitely is rewarding."

Children come into foster care when they are not able to stay at home safely with their own families.

Often the local children's aid society has been working with the family for some time before the decision is made to find a foster home for the child. When they are placed in foster care, children may have been abused, neglected or abandoned, and many have behavior problems.

"That's why being patient is important," Matthew says. While the children may be "temperamental" at first, in his experience, "they eventually calm down and settle in and become part of the family."

The Goldstein family has provided temporary care for nine foster children ranging in age from preschoolers to teenagers. Each one has presented unique challenges, but Matthew says the children who shared his home have "given me a better understanding of different people and widened my view of life. When I was younger, I only knew what happened in my little neighborhood. Now I can see how different things are for some kids."

Matthew's compassion for the sometimes troubled kids who have been part of his family is obvious, but he is open and honest about the challenges of foster care.

One of the boys who lived with them, for example, had trouble making friends at first. Matthew was not impressed when his foster brother began following him around and trying to latch on to his friends.

"My friends didn't like it either," he says.

That problem was solved with some help from his parents and the social worker assigned to the family. The ongoing support provided to parents by Jewish Family & Child Service staff and through the Foster Parent Association is often critical in helping the foster family have a successful relationship with the child. Matthew adds that most of the time, "my friends think fostering is pretty cool. We have a little boy with us now who is six and my friends just love him."

How did the Goldstein family become foster parents? Matthew recalls: "They discussed it with me when they started thinking about it and then they went for training. I was invited to one night of the training, too, and had a chance to meet other kids whose families were already doing foster care. That helped me to be prepared."

Now that he is part of an experienced foster family, Matthew has been invited to speak to social workers and to the children in new foster families. His advice: "Don't think the foster children are stealing your parents from you or taking time from you. If your parents spend more time with your foster brother or sister than they do with you, it isn't because they love you less, it's because those kids need them more.

Almost all children who come into foster care will eventually go home to their parents and many foster families find that transition difficult. When you've had another person living in your home for some time and have learned to know and care for each other, it can be hard to say goodbye. Those goodbyes aren't always final though, and many former foster children will keep in touch with the families who helped them through a difficult period in their lives.

"Being part of a foster family has taught me a lot," says Matthew. "It's not always easy, but it's a good feeling to see a child who has had a tough time settle down and start doing better."

The recently held Foster Family Week in Ontario celebratedthe invaluable role of foster families such as the Goldsteins. If your family is interested in learning more about fostering, please call Selma Elzas at Jewish Family and Child Service, 638-7800 ext. 298.

Farber gets new position at Congress

TORONTO — Bernie Farber has been named acting executive director of Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC), Ontario region.

Farber, national director of community relations for CJC, takes over the region from Manuel Prutschi, who resigned to become executive vice-president of the World Sephardic Educational Centre in Jerusalem, and the Sephardic Kehila Centre in Thornhill. He will be based in Toronto.

Ontario region chair Moshe Ronen said he and the region's executive are "looking forward to benefiting from Bernie's expertise in human rights, anti-racism and interfaith and inter-cultural dialogue."

The Ottawa-born Farber, 46, came to CJC in 1984 as director of community relations for Ontario. Since then, he has established a reputation for his knowledge of hate groups and cyber-hate, Holocaust denial and Nazi war criminals in Canada.

Bernie Farber

Le Parc Markham

LE PARC and BEVERLY HILLS CATERERS

BEVERLY HILLS caterers COR GLATT KOSHER

proudly present:

CELEBRATION SHOWCASE '98

A gallery of special people who will turn your celebration into an extra-special event on

Tuesday, November 18, 1997
4 pm to 10 pm at

LE PARC, MARKHAM
8432 Leslie Street at Hwy. 7 (SW corner)

- Consult the experts . . .
- View actual function settings
- Sample some delicious appetizers and desserts
- See the latest in exclusive bridal fashions
- Hear some of the best bands and DJs in the business

• Bridal Gowns • Formal Wear • Giftware • Travel • Decor

• Entertainment • Photography • Flowers • Music • Video

For further information call
RAPHY AMAR OR BERYL MACLEOD (416) 798-7246

Time of Your Life

Dolphin project part of Elderhostel program

By MARGOT C. ROSENBERG
Special to The CJN

Water temperature 28, wind speed 7, depth three metres. These were measurements I was calling out at the first sighting of a dolphin after the screams subsided: "There, at three o'clock! Two of them."

I was a dolphin researcher off the coast of Belize in the longest barrier reef in the Northern Hemisphere, second in size to the longest in the world — the Great Barrier Reef off the coast of Australia. This reef is in the Caribbean where the water is clear, the coral formations fabulous and the fish population gorgeous.

The Belize dolphin research project is run by Oceanic Society Expeditions, based in San Francisco. The purpose is to study the behavior and distribution of bottlenose dolphins in the offshore caves of Belize and at Turneffe Atoll, a group of mangrove islands 56 km east of Belize.

I didn't know anything scientific about dolphins, and neither did most of the 14 other researchers on this project. We were all there as volunteers in an Elderhostel service program. The dolphin project is one of many service programs including archeological digs, helping build houses, working with youth, teaching English, maintaining trails, planting trees, and many more all over the world.

Our work was easy, pleasant and useful. Seven or eight of us went out in a boat, scanning the water for signs of the mammals. Upon a sighting we each had a job to do — taking latitude, longitude and other measurements and recording the data on charts. Our leader, Greg, a 25-year-old student working on his master's degree, stationed himself in the prow of the boat with a camera and telephoto lens, snapping pictures every time a dolphin leaped out of the water. He aimed at the dorsal fin, the identifying feature of each one. Sometimes he recognized dolphins he had seen before by the irregularities and shape of the fins.

It was very exciting to see these creatures arch out of the water, sometimes quite close to our boat. One swam beneath it a couple of times. We saw two mothers with babies and on one occasion some of us got into the water with the dolphins. Once we saw something unheard of — dolphins playing with manatees.

While one group went in the observation boat, the others went in another boat to snorkel. At noon we returned to our hotel for lunch and after a rest, switched roles. Helen a PhD student, led us on the snorkeling expeditions, each time to a different coral reef. Sometimes the outing included a stop at a little sandy island with one or more palm trees on it.

Helen pointed out the different kinds of fish and coral as we floated on the surface of the sea, peering down through our masks. We learned to recognize groupers, angel fish, jacks, barracuda and many more. My favorite was the juvenile yellowtail damselfish which were deep blue with fluorescent light-blue polka-dots. The larger, older ones turn brown and lose their vibrancy.

It was beautiful to watch Lundy, a native Belizean who ran the snorkel boat, dive. He didn't bother with a snorkel as he gracefully swam to the bottom, in some places about 40 feet below us, as he leisurely explored under coral formations for lobsters and other creatures. His main work is spear fishing and catching lobsters, but lobsters were out of season at this time.

The offshore islands, or cayes (pronounced keys) of Belize are made up of mangroves, bushy trees with no main trunk but many branchlike roots extending into the water. One of our snorkeling trips brought us to the edge of one of these islands where we saw fish swimming in and out among the mangrove roots. We were told that crocodiles lived in the inner part of the caves but I am happy to say we didn't meet any.

Our hotel, Spanish Bay Resort, was on a private island created out of a mangrove caye. The owner had the mangroves cut down and the spaces filled in with sand dug from the sea bottom by workers using shovels. There were a few coconut palms and other trees, but this was not a place of luxury or beauty. The cabins, each with its own bathroom, were built over the water. The windows were screened and we were lucky that there was enough breeze most of the time to keep mosquitoes away, but we all took chloroquine against malaria. The food was interesting, with unusually spiced rice and fish dishes.

Before dinner we met for talks by our leaders on what had been accomplished during the day, and about the ecology of the area. There was nothing to do at night.

Belize is a Central American country bordered by Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula on the north and Guatemala to the west. The country was called British Honduras until it gained its independence in 1981; there is still a British military presence there. The official language is English, although its mixed population speaks Spanish, Creole and various other languages and dialects. To the south are jungles, mountains and rivers, but I didn't get to that part.

Belize City is very shabby and unattractive, and getting mugged is a definite risk. People who own even the most modest of homes anywhere on the caves keep a watchman on the premises at all times for protection against theft.

Elderhostel trips are for people 55 years of age or older. Information on Elderhostel service programs and travel in the United States and internationally, is available from Elderhostel, 75 Federal St., Boston, MA 02110.

HY&ZEL'S
PHARMACY

Attention Seniors

Effective April 1, 1997, under the Ontario Drug Benefit Plan, the Ontario government will, once again, require you to co-pay for some prescription drug benefits.

SAVE $2 at HY & ZEL's ON ELIGIBLE prescriptions!

If your net income is $16,018 or less as a single person or $24,175 for a couple, you are required to pay a $2.00 co-pay per prescription. At HY & ZEL'S we'll waive the two dollars for you!

If your income is higher than $16,018 as a single or $24,175 as a couple, you will each be obliged to pay the first $100.00 of your eligible prescription drug costs each year, and then the authorized Ontario Drug Benefit dispensing fee of $6.11 per prescription.

At HY & ZEL'S you'll pay just $4.11 or less per prescription.

FREE LOCAL DELIVERY!

HY & ZEL'S will help to SAVE YOU MONEY

If you need a prescription refilled, regardless of where it was filled before, just bring in the bottle or phone us. Our friendly pharmacists will make all the necessary arrangements.

By filling your prescription at your local HY & ZEL'S you'll automatically be enrolled in HY & ZEL'S free Pharma Source programme which checks your medication profile for potential problems and drug interactions. We'll enclose information with your prescription which tells you about your medication, describes the best way to take your medicine and highlights other issues of which you should be aware. Just ask our pharmacist for details.

And remember ... we care.

DIXIE
Dixie Value Mall
1250 South Service Rd.
Mississauga, L5E 1V1
Pharmacist:
Cheryl Kelterborn
(905) 271-1771

BRAMPTON
12 Vodden Street
Brampton
L6Y 1A2
Pharmacist:
Reg Ackerman
(905) 454-0976

CAMBRIDGE
Bishop Gate Mall
425 Hespeler Road
Cambridge, N1R 6J2
Pharmacist:
Rabinder Bains
(519) 621-5400

HAMILTON
Kingfisher Square
920 Upper Wentworth
Hamilton, L9A 5C5
Pharmacist:
Mary Man
(905) 388-4311

MARKHAM
Markham Village
8360 Kennedy Road
Markham L3R 2E3
Pharmacist:
Alice Lee
(905) 470-9412

NEWMARKET
Gates of York
17310 Yonge Street
Newmarket, L3Y 6Z1
Pharmacist:
Mike Ripsman
(905) 898-1050

NIAGARA FALLS
5175 Victoria Avenue
Niagara Falls
L2E 4E4
Pharmacist:
Tom Saddler
(905) 374-4481

OAKVILLE
Oakville Town Centre II
200 North Service Road
Oakville, L6M 2Y1
Pharmacist:
Larry Bogach
(905) 338-5055

OSHAWA
Taunton Square
250 Taunton Road East
Oshawa, L1G 3V2
Pharmacist:
Bob Mandel
(905) 434-8188

ROGERS ROAD
605 Rogers Road
Toronto
M6M 1B9
Pharmacist:
C. Doug McCoy
(416) 658-9696

STONEY CREEK
Gulliver Square
800 Queenston Road
Stoney Creek, L8G 1A7
Pharmacist:
Patrick Ho
(905) 664-3810

THORNHILL
North Yonge Market Place
7171 Yonge Street
Thornhill, L3T 2A9
Pharmacist
Fred Kohan
(905) 731-2234

WARDEN
Warden Woods Mall
725 Warden Avenue
Scarborough, M1L 4R7
Pharmacist:
Joyce MacPherson
(416) 288-9442

WOODBRIDGE
Woodbridge Town Centre
5731 Hwy #7
Woodbridge, L4L 1T2
Pharmacist:
Norma Hidalgo
(905) 856-2929

Time of Your Life

Survivor's business an Open Window

By BARBARA SILVERSTEIN
Special to The CJN

In the spring of 1953, Max Feig arrived in Canada from Israel with $7 in his pocket. He and his wife, Rose, and their young daughters settled in Toronto to be near Rose's brother.

Feig, 76, a Czechoslovakian-born Holocaust survivor, initially worked as a bricklayer, a trade he had learned in Israel. But during the winter there was no work so he supplemented his income by selling bread door to door.

"That's how I got started," Feig, 76, told The CJN, in a recent interview at the headquarters of Open Window Bakery, the company he co-founded 40 years ago.

His office is housed in a 60,000-square-foot production centre that manufactures enough bread and baked good products to supply some 30 corporate and franchise stores and more than 350 independent retailers.

In 1957, Feig and three partners – two were bakers and two were drivers – pooled their resources to open a bakery on Bathurst Street just south of Wilson, he said. "Everybody had a few dollars." Two years later they launched a second store on Marlee Avenue.

In the early days the hours were long, Feig said. "I worked 20 hours a day, seven days a week. One day I worked two shifts. I fainted and they had to take me home."

Today the company, which started with a staff of six, has more than 250 employees, many of whom have been with Open Window for more than 25 years and some for as long as 40 years.

Initially Feig concentrated on expanding bakery routes, hiring new drivers as he added the new routes, he said.

In 1982, the company purchased Health Bread's nine stores and two years later Feig bought out his partners. As president and CEO of Open Window Bakery, he continues to head the company, while his daughter Gail Agasis, vice-president and managing director, runs day-to-day operations.

The wall of Feig's second floor office is decorated with plaques, awarded to him by B'nai Brith, Baycrest Geriatric Centre and other charities for his fundraising efforts over the years. Last year, he was the 1996 recipient of North York's Business Excellence Award.

On a tour of the baking facilities, Feig pointed out some of the factory's technological advances such as the 120-foot-long conveyer oven tunnel from Israel, which operate 24 hours a day.

He stressed he only uses hi-tech equipment as long as the quality of the product is not hampered. Greeting a woman who spends eight hours a day cutting onions, he said. "It would be cheaper to buy the onions already cut but we only use the freshest ingredients."

Feig said he never dreamt that business would grow as large as it did, but then again he never imagined that he would survive the war.

He was taken by the Nazis in 1942 and became a slave laborer loading trains and driving locomotives at a Yugoslavian copper mine. "I was lucky I got a good job as a driver."

In 1945 when the Americans began closing in, he and some 4,000 prisoners were forced to march to Germany, but only about 200 survived the brutal trek, he said. "The Nazis shot people for trying to take a drink."

He survived because he was strong and because he was lucky, he said. He spent the remainder of the war in three different concentration camps, contracting typhus just weeks before he was liberated by the Americans.

His parents and three siblings perished during the war. Feig returned to Czechoslovakia after the war where he reconnected with his cousin Rose. They married in 1945 and have three daughters.

Feig has built the business that now employs his daughter, granddaughter and nephew, and he said he hopes the business will remain in the family for many generations to come.

Noah's Natural Foods
Toronto's Best is now Thornhill's Best!
Every Tuesday & Wednesday is SENIORS DAY
10% OFF
Regular Price
322 Bloor St. W. (at Spadina) 968-7930
2293 Yonge St. (1 light N. of Eglinton) 1/2 Hour Free Parking with min. $10 purchase 488-0904
7117 Bathurst St. (1 light N. of Steeles) Free Parking 905-731-2098

Changes in drug benefits

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to the CJN

Too many seniors are unaware of the changes in their drug benefits, says pharmicist Norman Stern, a franchise-owner of Shoppers Drug Mart on Bathurst Street at Glencairn Avenue.

Until July 1996, says Stern, many drugs were provided to seniors at no cost. At that time, however, a new program was instituted and drug benefits became dependant on a senior's income.

As well, the government imposed a maximum three-month supply of medication, making it difficult for seniors leaving the country for an extended period of time.

The government has also eliminated many medications from their benefit listings and has eliminated the no substitution rule, says Stern. If someone insists on a name brand drug rather than the generic, he must pay the difference because the pharmacist dispenses the drug with the lowest-listed price for seniors.

"The government has not done a good job in explaining its seniors' drug program," says Stern. To understand their benefits, he suggests that seniors speak with their pharmacist.

He recommends obtaining medication from one pharmacy so the pharmacist can have it monitored. He also suggests that a family member or caregiver monitor dosages if the senior is apt to get confused.

Some patients see more than one doctor for the same complaint, says Stern, which can lead to too many prescriptions for similar drugs or drugs that have adverse effects when taken together.

Seniors also have a tendency, says Stern, to horde medication. "This can be dangerous, as medication can change composition over time. It should be discarded if the date has passed. Periodically, the medicine cabinet should be cleaned out."

Those who will be abroad more than 100 days should advise their pharmacist so he can make arrangements for their medication to be sent to them, says Stern.

Periodically, he advises, it is wise to bring in medication to the pharmacist for a review. "A few minutes with your pharmacist can save problems in the future."

A TRADITION OF CARING
AT PINE VILLA RETIREMENT RESIDENCE

Welcome to Pine Villa, conveniently located, in the heart of Toronto's Jewish community. With a wide variety of services and amenities included, Pine Villa is designed to enhance your quality of life. At Pine Villa, you can be assured of personal care in a warm and gracious environment.

Pine Villa offers Jewish Retirement Living amidst gracious surroundings

Enjoy private accommodation and amenities which include:
- 24 hour professional health care
- Fine Jewish dining
- Linen, housekeeping & laundry
- Daily activities with companions who share a common heritage
- Proximity to synagogues & amenities
- Friendly, caring, attentive staff

Please call today for a personal guided tour.

PINE VILLA
1035 Eglinton Avenue West
(416)787-5626

Time of Your Life

PHYSIOTHERAPY IN YOUR HOME

HOME AND OFFICE PHYSIOTHERAPY SERVICES brings treatment to you by scheduling appointments at your home or office. Our specialties include orthopaedic and sports injuries, geriatrics, post-operative care, neurology and motor vehicle accident rehabilitation.

Call today to find out more about our services and fees.

Pamela A. Fingold, BSc. P.T.
HOME AND OFFICE PHYSIOTHERAPY SERVICES
Phone: 416 - 410-0463

For Harry home is the first choice.

Senior Care

makes it possible.

Homemakers • Housekeepers • Personal Care
Volunteer & Social Work Services
Caregiver Relief • Kosher Meals on Wheels
Safe, Professional, Experienced. 24 hours a day - 7 days a week.

Senior Care

Call us at 416-635-2860

UJA Federation

A non-profit agency - 24 years of leadership in the provision of quality home services.

THE ULTIMATE WALKING SHOE
THE BEST WALKING SHOE IN THE WORLD • MADE IN FRANCE
MEPHISTO®
THE SECRET OF COMFORT

LATEX FOAM MIDSOLE For moss-soft cushioning
HEEL CUSHIONING FOR PROTECTION OF THE JOINTS Cushions and protects heels and joints
SHOCK-ABSORBING HEEL Protects spine and joints from the jarring effect of walking
PADDED TOPLINE To hold your foot firmly without rubbing
AIR-JET SYSTEM For pleasant freshness of the foot
GENUINE LEATHER Aniline-dyed, superb full grain leather

FOR MEN AND WOMEN

MEPHISTO BOUTIQUE
1177 Yonge St., Toronto
(Yonge & Summerhill)
(416) 968-7026

MEPHISTO BOUTIQUE
50 Bloor St. West, Toronto
(Concourse Level)
(416) 966-2568

MEPHISTO SHOP IN SHOP
182 Main Street, Unionville
(N. of Hwy. 7)
(905) 940-0865

Sara Shefsky

Realtor, 87, keeps on working

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

Sara Shefsky, who is 87 years old, just renewed her real estate licence.

Recently, Shefsky was feted at a tribute dinner party hosted by Paul Slavens Real Estate, where she has been an active agent for almost a quarter of a century.

She was presented with an achievement award for her "inspiration and dedication" and for her 38 successful years in real estate.

"I was thinking of leaving real estate," she told The CJN, "but Paul and my colleagues insisted that I stay – so I renewed my licence for another two years."

Although Shefsky has had more than her share of tragedies, the petite, cheerful and pragmatic octogenarian says, "If I stay at home, I think of my problems. That's why my work is like medicine to me – it's wonderful."

Born in Chmeilnick, Poland, she was eight years old when her family came to Canada. She attended Lansdowne Public School. She left to work in a shirt factory when she was 14, but attended the High School of Commerce at night. She married Sol Frieberg and they had two daughters, Adelle (Freeman) and Sandra (Rotman).

In 1959, Shefsky's husband, who did not want her to work, agreed that to help out financially, since their daughters were married, she could go into real estate.

Real estate agent Sara Shefsky

Tragedy struck when her husband died at 62 and her daughter Adelle died at 46 leaving three children. Shefsky says that when she was going through these difficult times, "Paul and the people in my office were very supportive – they have become my friends.

"I didn't go to a psychiatrist. I knew I had to fight my sadness because the kids needed me – I had to be strong for them."

Many years after her husband died, she met Morris Shefsky while shopping on Eglinton Avenue. They had known each other as teenagers, and then lost touch.

"I guess it was beshert that we should meet again and marry."

After 14 years of "being married to a wonderful man," four years ago her husband died. Once more, she picked herself up and threw herself into her work.

Reflecting on her long career in real estate, she says, "I didn't go to university, but I learned so much in real estate from the people I work with and from my clients; many of them have become my friends."

She says that real estate is "a tough business and you have to have a lot of patience and take a lot of disappointments – you have to love what you are doing."

Shefsky, who has teamed up with agent Edith Weiss, drives a car, but says that she does not go into the office every day any more, "although I keep in touch with my clients. Recently, people I sold a house to some 33 years ago called me to list that house and it was sold," she noted.

"I have a full life," she says. "I think it is great when I can spend time with my four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

"When I went into real estate, I worked very hard and it has paid off."

Legislation will affect tenants

By BEN ROSE
Staff Reporter

The lifting of rent control on vacant apartments, as envisioned in new Ontario legislation, will put enormous pressure on tenants.

Under Bill 96, vacancy decontrol will mean that landlords can harass tenants into moving, said Howard Tessler, executive director of the Federation of Metro Tenants Associations.

Tessler said he knows of a 90-year-old woman whose landlord shows up at her door on the first day of each month asking when she intends to move. "To a lawyer and a judge that's not harassment. She has lived in that building for 27 years and lost her husband four years ago. She always paid her rent on time. How long can she put up with that pressure?" he asked.

The new bill will be passed into law by the Harris government within weeks, or certainly "before the snow flies," Tessler told the Cranbrooke Friendship Club of the United Jewish Peoples Order. The audience was made up of seniors.

Landlords have won a major victory with Bill 96 and "clearly own the government," he said.

Vacancy decontrol has resulted in a tripling of evictions in New York City and a 52 per cent eviction increase in Boston.

He urged tenants to organize resistance to the bill.

Tenants who want to move into a larger or smaller apartment in the same building will face large increases in rent under vacancy decontrol.

"My aunt pays $900 a month for an apartment at Bathurst and Finch and faces an increase of $200 or $300 a month. She says, 'You can't draw blood from a stone,' but unfortunately, you can, because a stone has to settle somewhere," Tessler said.

Currently, tenants are not subject to increases until certain repairs are made. This protection will be considerably weakened under Bill 96, he said.

"Now it takes 56 days to throw out a tenant who doesn't pay the rent. The landlords want it done much faster."

Last year only 23 rental units were built in Toronto by private builders, even though 6,000 were needed. "The landlords say they need 20 per cent more in rents. But they make a return of 10 per cent which is more than other businesses make."

The number of evictions has increased 33 per cent since the Tories took over and instituted welfare cuts of 22 percent, and Tessler predicted a "green Christmas" in which homeless people will sleep in green garbage bags.

WHAT IS OUR SECRET?
"We love old people. They are still human beings."

Ahavath Achim
RETIREMENT HOME & ADULT DAY CARE CENTRE

What We Offer . . . "love and a kind word"

- Three meals daily
- 24 hr. personalized care
- Hamisha atmosphere
- Doctor on call 24 hours
- Activities and physical therapy
- Private and semi-private rooms
- Synagogue on premises
- (416) 398-5486 (905) 660-4831

INTRODUCING THE THINNEST PEN NEEDLE EVER.

THE NEW B-D ULTRA-FINE™ III SHORT PEN NEEDLE

A THINNER NEEDLE MEANS GREATER COMFORT.

CHOOSE COMFORT.

Consult with a healthcare professional before using the B-D ULTRA-FINE™ III Short Pen Needle, and carefully monitor your blood glucose when changing to a shorter needle.

BECTON DICKINSON

Becton Dickinson Canada, Inc.
2464 South Sheridan Way
Mississauga, Ontario L5J 2M8

● Novolin is a trade-mark owned by Novo Nordisk A/S and used by Novo Nordisk Canada Inc., under licence.

Time of Your Life

Mobility for Today's Seniors and Physically Challenged

- Lowered-floor minivans
- Wheelchair and scooter lifts
- Power swivel seats
- Power door operators
- Specialty controls and driving aids

Ricon... providing accessibility with style.™

RICON

RICON CANADA INC.
18 Lepage Court, Downsview, Ontario M3J 1Z9
Tel: (416) 635-5873 • Fax: (416) 635-5910

Crisci, Kussin & Mayer
Consultation, Counselling and Training

TAKING CARE OF AGING PARENTS
LOVE, DUTY AND GUILT

A 10 week group for people coping with aging parents

Annette Kussin, the group leader, is a social worker with 30 years experience working with families and multi-generational issues. She has personal experience with aging parents and in-laws, a parent with alzheimer's and with the death of a parent.

DATES AND TIMES: Thursdays, January 8 – March 12, 1998 4:00 pm to 6:00 pm
PLACE: 1881 Yonge St. Suite 614
FEE: $30.00 per 2 hour group + GST

For more information or registration call 480-1611

Introducing

Baycrest Home Care Services

Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care

has been devoted to enriching the quality of life of the elderly for almost 80 years. Baycrest Home Care Services brings the best of Baycrest to you... in your own home.

Some of our services include:

- Homemaking
- House Cleaning
- Personal Care
- Caregiver Relief
- Live-in/ Live-out Companions
- Nursing

Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care

For help at home please call:
416-964-6402

Retiree continues lifelong work

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

Ralph Wintrob (left) set up a library at Netivot Hatorah Day School.

For Ralph Wintrob, retirement has been a time to continue his lifelong work as an educator and hone his many interests.

Wintrob says he looked forward to this time in his life. He retired two years ago as library consultant for the North York Board of Education. Since then, he has set up a library at the new Netivot Hatorah Day School.

As much as Wintrob loves his work with children, it is obvious that the children also love his dramatic interpretations. He says he is using many of the skills he accumulated throughout his life.

Wintrob graduated from the University of Toronto's honor arts program, majoring in philosophy, "because they didn't have a Jewish studies program in those days; so that was the closest I could get to it," he says. He also worked on the U of T's Varsity newspaper.

Following graduation, he decided to pursue a career in journalism and went to work for a daily newspaper in London, England.

In London, he met his wife-to-be Kitty Simmonds, a nursery school teacher.

Back in Toronto, he worked for the Toronto Telegram and became a news writer and editor at CBC, where he worked with Morley Safer, who was the best man at his wedding.

"I couldn't see any kind of stability in journalism and I realized that if I wanted any kind of a family life, I would have to change careers," he says.

He graduated from the Faculty of Education and got a teaching job in North York. "I got all fired up with the kinds of program activities a library can provide for a school and with the encouragement of the librarian, I returned to summer school and qualified as a school librarian."

After 25 years as a librarian, he again returned to school and received a master's degree in teaching library science and in 1986, he became the library consultant to all North York schools.

He says he developed his dramatic skills as a member of the Temple Players under the direction of Basya Hunter at the Holy Blossom Temple. "The skills I learned in drama and literature with Basya, I use in my work at the library."

Wintrob says that when he left his position at North York, "I knew I had to fill a gap."

North York was a founding sponsor of the Life Institute at Ryerson University; so he joined the seniors' group and became active in their programs. He is currently co-chair of the institute's curriculum committee, which plans all courses and special programs.

Wintrob now volunteers half a day at the Netivot Hatorah library, coordinates the Jewish Theatre Committee of Toronto, moderates a course at the Life Institute and studies religious texts.

He is an active member of Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue, where he attends services daily.

But his most gratifying time, he says, is spent with his family, daughter Suzanne Wintrob, a journalist, and grandsons Kyle and Brett.

Wintrob says he has a big challenge – not to overschedule so that he can balance out his private and public life. "There is so much out there for seniors, you can get swamped.

Programs geared for survivors

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to the CJN

With more and more Holocaust survivors coming to the Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care, programs have expanded and a new Holocaust department has been created for residents and for the community.

Many of the survivors at the centre are in their 80s and 90s and there is a need for resources and expertise.

Paula David, a senior social worker at the Baycrest Terrace was recently appointed as the Holocaust resource coordinator for the centre.

"Presently, almost half the residents are survivors," she says, "and the numbers are growing."

For the past seven years, David and other social workers and representatives from a number of departments have been counselling survivors, creating outreach programs and coordinating special Holocaust events.

"Our mandate is to coordinate our existing activities, provide staff training, develop awareness, create new programs and respond to the changing needs of survivors and their families," she says.

"We also deal with the second generation, with those who were younger when the war started or were born in the camps, and we work with children of survivors who were born here and who bear scars of their own. They all have different needs."

She notes that many survivors lost their entire families and have created extended families, usually other survivors who are also aging and can't help them. "They don't have as large a community or a history, which is very important when you get older."

More survivors are now talking about their horrific experiences. David attributes this to the popularity of the movie Schindler's List, 50th anniversary commemorations, the outraged response to Holocaust

[Cont'd. on page 33]

HEALTH CARE MNS HEALTH CARE
Dedicated to service of excellence
• Home Care Professionals
• Carefully Screened
• Personalized Supervision
RN's • RPN's • HCA's
FREE consultation 905-785-7285
Millenium Nursing Service of Canada Inc.

Time of Your Life

Retired businesswoman now amateur photographer

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

May Karp, wife, mother, homemaker, businesswoman and volunteer, has embarked on a fulfilling adventure in photography. She recently retired from business and decided to pursue her lifelong love of the arts.

An exhibition of her photographs will be on display at the Moore Gallery from Oct. 19. Afterwards, Karp will donate the photos to the Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care.

Karp's home was filled with music and art. Her father, Samuel Harris, was the manager of the Toronto Jewish Folk Choir, and famous opera singers were frequently guests in their home.

She worked as an office manager/bookkeeper while her husband Fred Karp went to university. Later, with their two children in school all day, she worked part time in her father's automotive materials business and began taking courses in design at the Ontario College of Art.

When her father retired, Karp left her job as a library technician at Lord Lansdowne Public School and bought his business. Although the automotive industry was a male dominated business, she gained respect from her male colleagues.

She notes that when women retire, it is only 50 percent retirement. "We still have the responsibility for the home."

Over the years, she volunteered on several committees at Baycrest where her husband served as president. On retirement, she accepted invitations to sit on additional committees.

Now that her husband, who was president and CEO of Speedy Muffler King, has retired, the Karps travel extensively.

She became intrigued with batiks while on a visit to Mexico and was successful with her self-taught craft, but decided to look for other activities after moving into an apartment, because, she says, batik making requires a great deal of space.

"Since I was always interested in architecture and design, four years ago, I began taking pictures in earnest," Karp says. "I got positive feedback from other photographers and people in the art field and a great deal of encouragement from my family and friends."

Some members of the art committee at Baycrest saw her photographs and were impressed.

"I was so pleased to learn that Baycrest wanted some of my photographs that to celebrate my 65th birthday, my husband suggested I prepare an exhibit of my work. With our long involvement with Baycrest, we decided to donate the photos to Baycrest.

Photographer May Karp

"I love to photograph things that speak to me, things that are unusual, pleasant and that evoke some emotion in me."

Her subjects include people, landscapes, flowers and scenes from the many countries she has visited.

"One of the nicest things about photographs, as it is with art, is that you don't just look when you are taking pictures – you see. You see things from many different perspectives and almost everything is interesting."

She says she has trouble selling her paintings or giving them away. "They become part of my thinking and my soul."

She says it is difficult to retire if you have had a busy life. "I believe it is important to have interests and hobbies that you can revisit after your retirement – it gives you a new direction in life and my hobby has become a large part of my life."

Poetry collection compiled by survivors of the Shoah

[Cont'd. from page 32]

deniers and numerous media presentations which have validated their experiences.

One of the projects undertaken by David was compiling and editing a hard cover book of poems by the Terrace Holocaust survivors' group. Although English is not the first language of the contributors, their poetic expression and use of wonderful phraseology make this an outstanding contribution to Holocaust understanding.

"Aging is a time in their life to look back, and survivors are looking back and trying to make sense out of something that is senseless," David says.

"Survivors couldn't understand and we didn't want to listen. But now our perspective has changed and even their grandchildren are listening."

The world, she continues, has never seen anything like this before and what we are learning can be helpful to us as well as to others who are experiencing atrocities and genocide.

"We did not realize the expertise we have developed here because of what our clients have taught us – it is an incredible mutual learning experience."

She says that the challenges of working with aging Holocaust survivors lie in maintaining the delicate balance between encouraging and supporting them when they share their stories and respecting their needs when they choose to remain silent.

WALKING ON A CLOUD

COMFORT FOOTWEAR for Men & Women

Walking on a Cloud offers you the best in footwear.

Our experienced staff measures your feet to make sure you get the proper fit and maximum comfort.

Walking on a Cloud carries a complete selection of sizes and widths for men & women

EASY SPIRIT ECCO AMALFI
S.A.S. MEPHISTO KED
ROCKPORT CLARKS ROHDE

Mapleview Centre
Burlington
(905) 639-7274

Upper Canada Mall
Newmarket
(905) 715-7070

Oshawa Centre
Oshawa
(905) 432-1729

Cloverdale Mall
Etobicoke
(416) 231-2192

Don Mills Shopping Centre • 441-0013

Adults Only
65 and Over
(Youngsters 64 and under must be accompanied by an adult)

UPCOMING EVENTS FOR SENIORS

Forest Hill Place
645 Castlefield Ave., Toronto

'Lorenz Hart - A Poet on Broadway'
With Musical Historian, Gordon Bean.
Thursday, October 30 - 2pm

'Lecture with Live Animals'
The Jungle Comes to Forest Hill Place.
Wednesday, November 19 - 2pm

Call Marlene or Karen at (416) 785-1511 to reserve your place

LIFESTYLE
Retirement Communities
A Subsidiary of London Life

Ask about our other locations in Mississauga, North York, Burlington and Oakville

On Campus

Clark U offers Holocaust doctorate

By PETER EPHROSS
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK – A tiny university in western Massachusetts will soon become the first school in the United States offering a doctoral degree in Holocaust history.

Clark University in Worcester, Mass., plans to begin offering courses for the degree next fall.

The program is the latest in a series of steps that Clark, which has a Jewish student population of 24 percent, has taken to establish itself as a pioneer in the field.

The process began two years ago, when the university hired Deborah Dwork to hold the Rose Chair in Holocaust Studies and Modern Jewish History and Culture.

But Dwork, who was then at Yale, wanted more than just a professorship – she told university officials that she wanted to create a centre for Holocaust studies. Within a few weeks, university President Richard Traina called her and began to discuss the idea in earnest.

The recently inaugurated Centre for Holocaust Studies offers an undergraduate concentration in Holocaust and genocide studies.

Dwork, who is the centre's director, said enrolments in these courses, which include Comparative Genocide and Jewish Child Life in Nazi Europe, have attracted both Jewish and non-Jewish undergraduates, including students from Korea and Bangladesh who have experienced political repression first hand.

The centre has also established a regular lecture series open to the public and a teacher training program on the Holocaust.

The university is currently raising approximately $20 million for the centre and interviewing for a second endowed professorship in Holocaust history.

"The Holocaust is a defining, pivotal event, not just in Jewish history, but in world history and therefore should be part of the educational canon," said Dwork, who wrote Children With a Star: Jewish Youth in Nazi Europe and co-authored Auschwitz: 1270 to the Present.

This is not the first time that Clark, which has approximately 2,700 students, has been an innovator in academia.

University pioneered many courses

Clark was a pioneer in courses in anthropology and psychology, and in more recent years, in women's studies programs. Its small size, said Dwork, allows it to make innovations more easily than in than larger institutions.

A Holocaust studies professorship at Harvard University, for example, has been mired in disputes over whether the Holocaust should be treated as a separate subject and over who should hold the chair.

Some critics have argued that establishing courses and programs in Holocaust studies reduces modern Jewish history to a few years when Jews were victims, thereby neglecting the rich history that Jews created in Europe and elsewhere.

Dwork disagreed with this, arguing that it should not be a choice of one or the other. "Let us have the study of the Holocaust and other studies of Jewish life and Jewish culture," she says.

The centre is being established at a time when Holocaust courses have been proliferating across the country, which Dwork attributes to the fact that more than 50 years have passed since the event.

"The further we get from the event, the less we can rely on survivors," she said. "People say, 'Never forget,' but the fear is they won't ever know what it is they're supposed to forget."

On November 10th VOTE for
SUSAN KADIS

LEADERSHIP THAT WORKS!

SUSAN KADIS

Thornhill Ward 5 Councillor

Open Window Bakery
Health Bread
over 30 stores to serve you across metro
THIS WEEKEND SPECIAL
IN ALL OUR STORES
From FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31st to SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 2nd
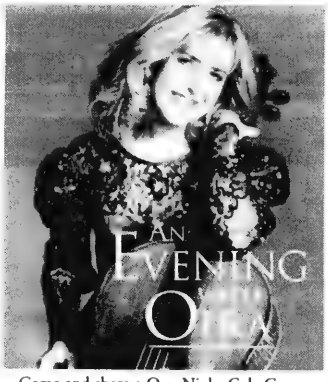
CHOCOLATE, RASPBERRY, LEMON ROLLS $3.39 Reg. Price $3.95
Dome $3.79 Reg. Price $4.35
ASK FOR OTHER IN-STORE SPECIALS



Come and share a One Night Gala Concert with globally-acclaimed cellist

OFRA HARNOY

Wednesday, November 26, 1997
8 o'clock pm
at Temple Sinai, 210 Wilson Avenue

$ 135. tickets
are Reserved seating and include an invitation to the Post-Concert Reception. (A maximum allowable tax receipt will be issued)

$ 55. tickets
are General Admission seating and do not include the Post-Concert Reception.

TICKET HOTLINE (416) 425-1963

CLASSICAL 96.3 FM TORONTO · AGF GROUP OF FUNDS · Aetna · BMG · MEDIA GROUP INTERNATIONAL · DOCS GROUP · Remenyi · CHRIS · COMMUNICATIONS GROUP

GRAND OPENING

UJA FEDERATION

WE'RE WHERE YOU WANT TO BE.

As our Jewish population continues to move north, so have we.

Join UJA Federation and BBYO to celebrate the opening of our York region office.

★ Find out more about special programming in your northern neighborhood.
★ Meet our York region staff.
★ Join York Region personalities and other community leaders.

Thursday, November 6, 1997 ~ 7:00- 8:30 p.m.
1118 Centre Street, Thornhill

Refreshments served. Kashruth observed.
For more information, please contact
Ilan Meister at 905-707-8346 Or Debbie Silver at 905-707-9907

From coast to coast

CJC-Q debates future within Congress

By DAVID LAZARUS
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL — An emotional debate is taking place within Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC) that could well result in the Quebec region (CJC-Q) moving its offices into a future Jewish community "campus" at FEDERATION CJA and in the CJC national office moving to Ottawa.

That appears to be the most likely scenario emerging as factions both within CJC-Q and between CJC-Q and the national body continue to engage in discussions over fundamental questions of process, power and independence.

The proposal to move CJC-Q came over the summer when officials from CJC-Q involved in its "strategic planning" process – chair Reisa Teitelbaum and vice-president Robert Rabinovitch – entered into talks, on a range of matters, with then FEDERATION CJA president Yoine Goldstein and vice-president Marilyn Blumer.

The discussions were initiated by CJC-Q to seek alternate sources of funding in light of a continually eroding budget. But it was the federation that first broached the subject of a possible move into its planned future structure.

Although there appears to be a consensus building towards the move, some members of the CJC-Q and national officers and executive – including president Goldie Hershon – have been questioning the "process" involved and whether CJC-Q could retain its autonomy once it moved into the federation facility.

Critics are also saying that they were presented with the proposal with only brief weeks to go before architectural plans had to be finalized for the expanded facility. The expansion, to be announced officially on Nov. 4, is tentatively set for completion by the fall of 1999.

In an attempt to resolve the situation a special committee has been formed comprising Hershon, former president Les Scheininger, Teitelbaum, former CJC-Q community relations chair Max Bernard and CJC national director Jack Silverstone.

As well, the CJC-Q executive committee will be meeting Oct. 31, and the national officers will convene Nov. 2 in Ottawa, in an effort to arrive at a consensus.

Supporters of the CJC-Q move to the federation, which include Teitelbaum and FEDERATION CJA president Stanley Plotnick, insist that CJC-Q will be given firm guarantees that CJC-Q will remain completely independent in terms of its governing structure, operations and political advocacy work.

The CJC-Q would also save at least the $110,000 it pays annually to the national CJC office as rent for the space it occupies at CJC headquarters in the Samuel Bronfman House at 1590 Dr. Penfield Ave.

Supporters of the move say this would allow the region to free up monies for additional staff, programming and other endeavors, while strengthening its financial viability in the face of budget cuts.

No legal basis to negotiate: Hershon

But as of this writing, those people with serious reservations about the proposal, including Hershon and chair of the CJC-Q executive, Dorothy Zalcman-Howard, still remained to be convinced that CJC-Q would be able to preserve its independence. They are worried about the implications for CJC-national.

Hershon also said that, based on her interpretation of the CJC bylaws, CJC-Q officials had no "legal basis" to "negotiate" a move into the federation building without consulting with the national body and that the ultimate decision rests with CJC-national. Teitelbaum disagrees with this view based on a contrary interpretation of the bylaws and on historical precedent.

One of the concerns raised over the proposed move of CJC-Q is that the relocation would force the national body to move to Ottawa since it alone could no longer afford to stay at Samuel Bronfman House.

Plotnick said that national CJC would be welcome to relocate to the federation with the Quebec region. But Hershon personally saw that as a "very questionable" scenario since the CJC national lobbying agenda is now mostly driven from Ottawa, the capital would be the more logical choice from which to operate if it could no longer afford to stay at Samuel Bronfman House.

The national office would, however, continue to maintain a "presence" in Montreal somewhere outside the Samuel Bronfman House, Hershon predicted.

In an interview with The CJN, Plotnick insisted that a CJC-Q move would be a "relocation" and nothing more.

The move, he said, would allow the Jewish community to centralize and reduce the cost of Jewish community and political advocacy work, create a better "synergy" and "tighten the relationship" between federation and CJC-Q, increase efficiency and allow CJC-Q to make use of the building's "tremendous number of support facilities."

"We're talking about relocation here, to where virtually all Jewish community services are located, the central focal point of Jewish [communal] service life in Montreal.

"I don't see how it's a challenge to its [CJC-Q's] independence.

"I don't see us as antagonists. I see us as a Jewish community that has to work together."

Moreover, he said, a relocation by CJC-Q to the federation building would allow representatives of the federation and CJC-Q to interact personally on a daily basis, and be part and parcel of the "integration of services" taking place within the Jewish community.

Plotnick confirmed the fact that negotiations are also underway with officials from the Communauté Sépharade du Québec (CSQ) to move to the federation building from its current premises.

Other supporters of the proposed move, such as CJC-Q's Teitelbaum and Rabinovitch, are suggesting that the era of looking at the federation as the "enemy" trying to take over CJC-Q is over.

Rabinovitch said the move has been necessitated by a drop in CJC-Q's programming budget from $90,000 to $20,000.

[Cont'd. on page 36]

A Fair to remember...
Fall in love with Israel!
You're invited to join the community at the
Israel Fair
Find out about:
✡ Summer Experiences! ✡ Jobs!
✡ Volunteer Opportunities! ✡ University & Religious Studies
✡ Live Entertainment throughout the day
Discover a Shuk-full of Israel programs under one roof!
SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 2
10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.
Bathurst Jewish Centre
Front Lobby
4588 Bathurst Street
For more information call Karen Worb at (416) 631-5731
UJA FEDERATION
זכר החמישים לישראל
ISRAEL 50TH JUBILEE
YOUR DATE WITH HISTORY

From coast to coast

The 21st Annual Jewish Book Fair

November 8 - 16, 1997

OPENING NIGHT - Saturday, November 8, 8:00 p.m.

David Grossman, author of The Yellow Wind, and the The ZigZag Kid speaks on IMAGINING PEACE. Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Peace Now. $7

Sunday, November 9

10:30 am & 1:30 pm Renelle Kuntz, Jewish Book Fair's Official Puppeteer, presents THE LAND OF MILK AND HONEY. In Honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary. Ages 3-8. $1

11:00 am Nancy-Gay Rotstein, will read from her novel Shattering Glass and discuss WOMEN, CAREER AND FAMILY. Free

12 noon Meet the Authors-Morris Macarz, author of Staying Ahead and Harry Pollock, author of Max.

1:30 pm The Shlomo Steinhardt and Label Basman Memorial Lecture featuring Zachary Baker, Head Librarian, YIVO Institute for Jewish Research, speaking in Yiddish and English on "VILNA REVISITED: A REPORT ON THE YIVO INSTITUTE'S EFFORTS TO RECOVER ITS PRE-WORLD WAR II ARCHIVES." Slide presentation. Sponsored by Cttee, for Yiddish, UJA/ Federation. Supported by Friends of Yiddish. $3

3:30 pm Prose and Poetry at the Cafe Kasrilevke by contributors to Parchment 1997-98, Canada's national journal of creative Jewish writing, featuring Ken Sherman, Seymour Mayne, Murray Pomerance, Ruth Panofsky and Nathalie Stephens. $3

5:00 pm Aurel Braun and Stephen Scheinberg, editors of The Extreme Right speak on FREEDOM AND SECURITY AT RISK. Sponsored by Oraynu-Community for Secular Humanist Judaism. $3

7:00 pm Launch of a travelling exhibit and book, A Seed in the Pocket of Their Blood, by poet and curator, Rafi Aaron. The exhibit links poetry and photography in one artistic unit. Free

8:00 pm Helen Epstein, author of Children of the Holocaust and the bestselling Where She Came From-A Daughter's Search for Her Mother's History speaks on BRINGING THE PAST TO LIFE: THREE GENERATIONS OF REMARKABLE WOMEN. Sponsored by Hadassah-WIZO Organization of Toronto. $7

Monday, November 10

10:30 am Program for Children. Selection of videos and storytelling suitable for ages 6-9. Free

10:30 am Reva Nelson, author of Risk It! and Bounce Back! speaks on CREATING RESILIENCE FROM ADVERSITY. Free

1:30 pm Dr Vera Rabie-Azoory, author of They Love You, They Love Me Not speaks on THE TRUTH ABOUT THE FAMILY FAVOURITE AND SIBLING RIVALRY. $3

8:00 pm Professor Elaine Newton reads from books by women survivors including Ruth's Journey by Ruth Glasberg Gold; And Peace Never Came by Elisabeth M. Raab; To Auschwitz and Back: My Personal Journey by Ruth Bindefeld Neray; Theresienstadt- The Town the Nazis Gave to the Jews by Vera Schiff and A Partisan's Memoir: Woman of the Holocaust by Faye Schulman. Followed by question period with the authors. Sponsored by Na'amat Canada-Toronto. $5

Tuesday, November 11

11:00 am IN THE MONTH OF KISLEV by Nina Jaffe. Performed by Dr. Abraham Shore Academy-Shearim Hebrew Day School . Discussion follows. For K-Grade 8. $1

1:30 pm Yehuda Fine, author of Times Square Rabbi -Finding the Hope in Lost Kids' Lives speaks on HELPING YOUNG PEOPLE EMERGE FROM HELL AND PREVENTING THEIR REENTRY INTO IT. Sponsored by National Council of Jewish Women in Canada. $3

8:00 pm Rosalie Sharp, co-editor of Growing Up Jewish-Canadians Tell Their Own Stories introduces contributing writers Rosalie Abella, Morley Torgov, Ben Kayfetz, Julia Koschitzky, Fred Weinberg, Beatrice Fischer, Martin Goldfarb, Shirley Granovsky. Coffee. Sponsored by ORT Canada. $5

Wednesday, November 12

10:30 am School Program with Carol Matas, author of The Garden. In Honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary. Grades 5-8. Sponsored by Canadian Zionist Federation. $1

1:30 pm School Program with Carol Matas, author of The Garden. In Honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary. Grades 5-8 Sponsored by Canada-Israel Committee. $1.

6:30-7:30 pm Reception by Stoddart Publishing to launch Dawn of the Promised Land- The Birth of Israel by Ben Wicks. Open to the public- please join us.

8:00 pm Ben Wicks, author of Dawn of the Promised Land speaks on THE BIRTH OF ISRAEL. Sponsored by B'nai Brith Canada. $5

Thursday, November 13

10:30 am & 1:30 pm School program featuring Jodi Miller on Brainteasers from Jewish Folklore by Rosalind Charney Kaye. Grades 2-5.$1

10:30 am Eliakim Katz, author of Old Age Comes at a Bad Times speaks on WIT AND WISDOM FOR THE YOUNG AT HEART. Sponsored by Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living. Free

1:00 pm Mark Nagler Ph.D., Yes You Can! speaks on A GUIDE FOR PARENTS OF CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES. Free

1:30 pm Broadway's Jewish Roots- A MUSICAL EXCURSION by Faye Kellerstein. Accompanied by Jordan Klapman. Sponsored by Ont. Region, The United Synagogue of Conservative Judaism and Canadian Seaway Branch, Women's League for Conservative Judaism. $3

8:00 pm Isabel Vincent, author of Hitler's Silent Partners speaks on SWISS BANKS, NAZI GOLD AND THE PURSUIT OF JUSTICE. Sponsored by Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Centre. $5

Friday, November 14

10:30 am Alvin Abram author of The Light After the Dark speaks on TRUE STORIES OF HOLOCAUST SURVIVORS with Eugene Katz. Sponsored by Canadian Holocaust Remembrance Association. Free

Saturday, Nov. 15

8:00 pm THE MAN WHO CAPTURED EICHMANN. Painter, Poet, Soldier, Spy, Peter Z. Malkin, speaks on his book Eichmann in My Hands. With excerpts from Emmy nominated movie The Man Who Captured Eichmann, starring Robert Duvall. Sponsored by Canadian Society for Yad Vashem. $7

Sunday, November 16

10:30 am & 1:30 pm Renelle Kuntz, Jewish Book Fair's Official Puppeteer, presents THE LAND OF MILK AND HONEY. In Honour of Israel's 50th Anniversary. Ages 3-8. $1

11:00 am Panel Discussion by contributors to Celebrating the Lives of Jewish Women-Patterns in a Feminist Sampler. Featuring Rachel Aber Schlesinger (From Generation to Generation); Sarah Taleb-Carlen (Wandering Jews: Lives Fractured by Geography) and Nora Gold (Pain and Healing, Sorrow and Hope). Free

12 noon Brown bag lunch with Ken Vegotsky, author of The Ultimate Power-222 Ways to Make Love

2:00 pm Concert featuring Israeli clarinetists Roy Mezare and Guy Yehuda. Sponsored by du Maurier Arts and the Koffler Centre of the Arts. $5.

1:30 pm Concert Sponsored by du Maurier Arts and the Koffler Centre of the Arts. $3

3:30 pm Poetry Readings by poet Shula Robin and Gladys Aaron with musical interlude by Eric Stein. Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Ezrath Nashim-Herzog Hospital and Emunah Women of Toronto $3

4:00 pm Alan Davies and Marilyn F. Nefsky, co-authors of How Silent Were the Churches? speak on CANADIAN PROTESTANTISM AND THE JEWISH PLIGHT DURING THE NAZI ERA. Sponsored by Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and Christian-Jewish Dialogue of Toronto. $3

7:45 pm Phyllis Weinberg, author of Yossi, the Boy who Wouldn't Speak Loshon Hora, speaks on HAVE YOU HEARD THE LATEST GOSSIP? Sponsored by Aish HaTorah. $3

Bathurst Jewish Centre

Jewish Book Fair - Leah Posluns Theatre
4588 Bathurst St., North York, Ontario. M2R 1W6
For futher information, brochures or tickets,
call: 416-636-1880 xt 368

JEWISH FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO UJA

CJC-Q debates future in Congress

[Cont'd. from page 35]

Rabinovitch said even if the move did not result in a better fiscal position for CJC-Q, "we should still be close to the campus. That's where our constituency is and the physical connection is important.

"From a policy point of view, it is important to be located there. Sitting on Dr. Penfield Avenue is not a way to be representative of our community."

Teitelbaum believes that, "as to the issue of our autonomy, I believe the written guarantees being proposed...are an important step forward. Even today, we cannot and do not make decisions in isolation of the community institutions we purport to represent".

The move would also allow, "our program dollars to increase by one hundred percent, thereby making us somewhat less dependent on government grants in the pursuit of new projects, notably in the area of community relations."

Hershon said many issues remained to be clarified despite the federation guarantees of independence.

"We're political. We do different work," she said. "We can't necessarily do what we do under the federation banner. These things have to be clarified."

Plotnick noted that Quebec is the only Congress region in Canada where the CJC office is not yet located within the federation facility. He said CJC's Ontario region has retained its autonomy.

But Zalcman-Howard said the impact on CJC-national of relocating has to be among the many issues considered, because of the symbolic importance of its presence in Quebec.

"The fact that other communities have 'merged' is not enough," she said. "Our region is in a different situation than other regions across Canada and there are a lot of other complex issues that have to be thought through.

"Congress' autonomy with regard to advocacy has to be protected. It's very important that the historic and traditional mandate of CJC be respected."

Zalcman-Howard was not yet prepared to answer under what conditions she could support the proposed move. But she did say parties should be prepared to spend the necessary time – at least three months – to resolve all the issues.

Plotnick, meanwhile, remained convinced that relocating CJC-Q office while maintaining its autonomy would be in its best interest, as well as that of FEDERATION CJA and the Jewish community as a whole.

MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL

Open Meeting of the Board of Directors of Mount Sinai Hospital

Thurs., Nov. 6, 1997
12 noon
Mount Sinai Hospital
600 University Avenue
Executive Board Room
Main Floor

To confirm attendance or to receive agenda and procedures, contact the Corporate Secretary at (416) 586-5082.

New book out on the Rebbe

By DAVID J. LITVAK

VANCOUVER — A new book, Bringing Heaven Down to Earth, presents 365 teachings of the late Lubavitcher Rebbe, Rabbi Menachem Mendel Schneerson.

For the most part, the book, published by Vancouver author Tzvi Freeman, contains Freeman's paraphrasing of the Rebbe's teachings, as well as some commentary and some quotations translated from Yiddish.

Rabbi Schneerson, who died June 12, 1994, was considered by his followers as one of the leading lights of our generation, a brilliant scholar and tzaddik.

Jews and non-Jews flocked to his home in Brooklyn to find a cure, to benefit from his advice, or to celebrate holidays and festive gatherings with him, according to Freeman.

"The Rebbe has a track record of a truly enlightened being who uplifted literally tens of thousands of people directly and many, many more indirectly."

Freeman himself was profoundly affected by the Rebbe and "studied in the yeshivahs of the Rebbe for nine years" (where he received his rabbinic ordination). The Rebbe, Freeman says "is a teacher for all people, no matter what their background or belief system is."

Wulfing von Rohr, who has translated the book into German and who is the author of over 50 books on metaphysics, concurs with Freeman's assessment that the Rebbe's teachings are relevant to both Jews and non-Jews.

"The Rebbe presents a wisdom and light which help every reader, Jewish, Christian, Muslim, Bhuddist or otherwise to open up to the Divine guiding force within each living being."

For further information about the book, visit the Web site at [members.aol.comzviF], phone 1-800-247-6553 or e-mail [order@bookmaster.com].

From coast to coast

TOTS IN THE SUKKAH

Junior kindergarten classmates at Torah Tots Preschool enjoy their sukkah made out of refrigerator cartons, corregated cardboard, and a lot of imagination. Seen [from left] four-year olds Nikki Altman, Jesse Smiley, Carly Holtzman and Lori-Elle Scheftz. [Photo courtesy Torah Tots Preschool]

Internet racism said not major threat

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL — Racist and ultra-right expression on the Internet is not the threat certain Jewish organizations have made it out to be. The number of proponents on line is only a couple of dozen at any given time, among the estimated 50 million users, says Matthew Friedman, author of the new book Fuzzy Logic/Dispatches from the Information Revolution (Vehicule Press).

The ultra-right gives the impression with its slick, elaborate Web sites that it is pervasive and well-organized, but that is far from the reality, contends Friedman, who argues vigorously against any government regulation of Internet communication and for online anti-racist activism among the users themselves.

"The neo-Nazi movement on the Internet is an iceberg inverted: apparently solid and threatening on the surface, but without substance or support below."

Friedman believes the disseminators represent very few people and he doubts they have gained many recruits. Above all, he is convinced none of them could be prosecuted under Canada's hate speech law, let alone statutes in the United States, where the vast majority of these sites originate.

"There are some really obnoxious people out there, who should be monitored and catalogued, but they are not worth panicking about.

"The community as a whole has over-reacted to these jerks...I can understand this – the bile rises in my throat when I see a swastika – but as upsetting as it may be, we should keep it in perspective," he said in an interview.

Friedman writes a weekly column on business computing in the Gazette, is a contributing editor to NetGuide and teaches computer-assisted journalism at Concordia University.

The ultra-right is not a "single, monolithic ideological entity," according to Friedman, but as "fractious and muddled as it ever has been" and its Internet activities are "at best, haphazard."

"The vast majority of ultra-right militants on the Internet are freelance propagandists...operating on their own initiative and pursuing a campaign of 'leaderless resistance.' If they even belong to established organizations, their online activities are neither controlled nor explicitly sanctioned by the traditional leadership."

Friedman applauds the efforts of Ken McVay, the British Columbia man who counters neo-Nazi propaganda and Holocaust denial directly on the Internet with refuting historical documentation.

Hate over the Internet can, in Friedman's view, be seen positively. "Rather than a threat, the Internet provides an extraordinary opportunity to those people who want to battle racism and fascism both on line and off. It is, after all, easier to kill cockroaches when they crawl out from under the fridge...

"While printed books, paper pamphlets and newspapers – the ultra-right's traditional propaganda media – permitted no interaction or confrontation, anti-racists can respond immediately...or use the Web to create an immediate context for links to hate-related sites."

SINGLES EVENTS

Singles Events is an advertising feature of The Canadian Jewish News

Deadline is Wednesday, 4pm, 8 days preceding issue date.

For rates or to place an ad, call:

Lisa at (416) 391-1836

The CJN encourages readers to direct any queries they may have on an upcoming event to the event's organizers.

Co-ed Volleyball. MTS Presents...It's 5th Annual Co-ed Volleyball Season.Recreational & Compet. Div.Next registration: Sun., Nov. 2nd, 4-6pm at the Tickled Toad, 330 Steeles Ave. W. Limited Space. Almost Sold Out! Call: 416-222-7111

NEW IMAGE 50+ SINGLES is having a Mix 'n Mingle, Sunday, Nov. 2nd at Earl Bales Comm. Centre, 7:30 pm. Refreshments, tapes by Murray. Members $2., Guests $4. AND...Saturday, Nov. 22nd, a dance, DJ Phil Allenbick. Members $5., Guests $7., FREE Dance lesson from 7:45-8:15pm. Enjoy!

Come view our photos & bios. at A NEW CHANCE, Toronto's most affordable Jewish dating service. 416-398-3991

Darren, Mark & Ari invite you to...Nightmare on Yonge Street, Halloween Party, at Taboo Wine Bar & Grill, Friday, Oct. 31st, 9pm, 2345 Yonge St (just n. of Eglinton). Great DJ, dance music, door prizes,pool tables. FREE BUFFET! Prizes for best costume! Tickets Adv. $8., at door $10. TicketMaster: 416-870-8000, Darren, Mark & Ari Hotline: 416-733-1419.

Jewish Singles Registry. Over 1475 registered. Averaging an engagement every 4 wks. 483-4151.

CONTEMPORARY SINGLES NETWORK INTERNATIONAL

IS PLEASED TO PRESENT
2 HALLOWEEN MASQUERADE BALLS

HALLOWEEN MASQUERADE BALL I

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31
8:30 p.m.
At The Spectacular, Award Winning
Inn on the Park Hotel
1100 Eglinton Avenue East
(N.E. Corner of Leslie St.)

HALLOWEEN MASQUERADE BALL II

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1
8:30 p.m.
Regal Constellation Hotel
900 Dixon Road
(N.E. Corner of Carlingview Rd.)

Admission $12. Each Party or $20. for Both Parties

SATURDAY TICKETS AVAILABLE FRIDAY

BOTH PARTIES FEATURE:
HUGE CA$H PRIZE$ FOR BEST COSTUMES
CA$H SPOT PRIZE$
CA$H DOOR PRIZE$
BIG CA$H GRAND PRIZE DRAW
Top DJ Great Music
FREE or Ample Parking

For Complete Details
Call: (416) 410-6010

OPEN MOTZI SHABBOS
COR
RECESS
An oasis of Glatt Kosher dining pleasure
1 GLATT KOSHER RESTAURANT
7117 Bathurst St. (905) 764-2558
DINE IN OR TAKE OUT • PRIVATE PARTY ROOM FOR UP TO 40 PEOPLE

THE RECESS DINNER CLUB
Buy 10 dinners (min. purchase $10), get any dinner on the menu up to $13.00 FREE!
Valid to Dec. 30/97 • Cannot be combined with other offers

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 FREE DINNER JACKPOT

ENTRÉE SPECIALS HELD OVER
Due to popular demand, we are extending the entrée specials advertised in the Oct. 15 issue of the CJN to Dec. 30/97. Bon appétit!
CELEBRATE YOUR NEXT BIRTHDAY AT RECESS (MIN. PURCHASE $50) AND GET A $10 GIFT CERTIFICATE FOR YOUR NEXT VISIT!

WE'RE HAVING A PARTY 1997/98
WEDDING, BAR/BAT MITZVAH PARTY PLANNING SHOW
MONDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1997
BETH TZEDEC SYNAGOGUE
1700 BATHURST (at EGLINTON) 6 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.
Hosted by Caterers York / Sweet York Desserts Bill Batista & Sharon Firestone

Plan a Wonderful Simcha... Meet ALL The Party Planning Professionals Who Can Help Make Your Party A Success!

• CATERING • FLORISTS • CONSULTANTS • MAKE UP • JEWELLERY • • PHOTOGRAPHY • VIDEOGRAPHY • D.J.'S • BANDS • KETUBAH • • DECOR • BRIDALWEAR • DESSERTS • INVITATIONS • PARTY FAVOURS • • FORMAL WEAR • JUDAICA • GIFTWARE • AND MUCH MORE...

• FREE ADMISSION •
BRING THE WHOLE FAMILY
FREE PARTY PLANNING BOOK FOR 1st 100 VISITORS

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CALL
LYNN COHEN 905 889-1007
RICK LEVINE 905 881-6400

WE'RE HAVING A PARTY THE PARTY PLANNING PROFESSIONALS

PRODUCED BY C.G.I. • eMail mrl@iname.com

From coast to coast

TORONTO HADASSAH-WIZO

• young women's chapters ages 18-21 & ages 22-26
• new mother's chapters (babies welcome)
WE HAVE A CHAPTER FOR YOU

JOIN NOW!
For more information call
(416) 630-8373

...enhancing lives in Israel's communities
and promoting women's issues in Canada

Bombay family experiences joy, pain in moving to Canada

By KYLE BERGER
Jewish Western Bulletin

RICHMOND, B.C. — Everybody who has ever moved knows the pain of packing up one house, setting up another, reorganizing your life and leaving old friends and trying to make new ones.

Imagine if you had to make that move to a completely different culture, and the only thing you and your family could take with you was the clothes on your back.

Nissim Samuel, 42, his wife Keren, 31, and their two children Jonathan, 10, and Shaun, 5, made that kind of move in May – from Bombay, India, to Richmond.

The government in India does not allow citizens to take their possessions out of the country. So the Samuels left their home, their life savings, all their possessions and their family behind and came in search of a better future for the children.

In Bombay, explains Nissim, the children's future prospects were not good. Getting admitted to colleges and finding jobs, endeavors that are already difficult, would become more difficult over time.

Although their children have adjusted well, Nissim and Keren are struggling to get their lives going in Richmond. Keren was able to find a job as a travel agent, which is what she did in Bombay. Nissim, however, has not been as fortunate.

"In India I was working on the ships as a communications officer. I have given my resume to many places here, but it has been hard," he says. "You have to live, you have to pay the bills."

Even more frustrating for the family was leaving all their previous successes in Bombay. "In Bombay, apartments and houses are very expensive and very hard to get; so leaving that behind and coming here where it is much smaller and not very comfortable was very hard," explains Nissim.

The Samuels discovered Richmond when a ship on which Nissim was working docked in Vancouver. Although weather and cleanliness were factors in their decision to settle in Richmond, Keren says that the multicultural communities in Richmond were the main reason. "We didn't want to come to a place where there is one community, one majority," she says. "We wanted to go some place where there are many cultures."

Nissim and Keren met at their synagogue in Bombay and have been married for 11 years. They say that despite over-population, lack of cleanliness and educational complications, Jewish life in Bombay is good.

"We have six or seven Synagogues in Bombay, with 5,000 to 6,000 Jews, and everyone knows each other," says Nissim. "The children were learning Hebrew and all the prayers. In a few years, Jonathan will be having his bar mitzvah so we want them to continue learning Hebrew here also."

It takes a lot of courage to leave your life behind and move your family to a strange land, but Nissim and Keren believe their ultimate goal of parenting is to give their children all the opportunities to live a better life than they have.

PRIDE OF ISRAEL
Synagogue
59 Lissom Crescent, Willowdale cordially invites you to study
'JUDAISM BY THE BOOK'
A Look at a Few Provocative Concepts Through Our Great Books. No Background Necessary!
November 12, 8:00 p.m.
"Do I Have to Live in Israel?:
The Land of Israel and the Jew"
November 19, 8:00 p.m.
"Sex and Love"
November 26, 8:00 p.m.
"A Time to Rest: Explore Shabbat"
NO CHARGE EVERYONE WELCOME

You are invited to attend
The I. Jeffrey Presement Memorial Lecture
When the Rabbi Herself Has AIDS ...
Featuring Rabbi Cynthia Culpeper
of Birmingham, Alabama
Guest speakers:
Louise Binder
Voices of Positive Women
Ron Rosenes
AIDS Committee of Toronto
Wednesday, Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m.
Holy Blossom Temple
1950 Bathurst Street, Toronto
Everyone is welcome ✧ Admission is free
Jointly presented by the AIDS Committees of Holy Blossom Temple,
Beth David B'nai Israel Beth Am
& Beth Tzedec Congregations, and the Community Participation Committee of Adath Israel Congregation

Canadian Friends of Tel Aviv University
Marnie Kimelman Cancer Research Fund
Dr. Isaac Witz
Professor of Immunology
Laboratory for Cancer Progression and Metastasis Research
Searching for the Key:
Can Cancer Cells Be Blocked?
Thursday, November 6 at 7:30 p.m.
Inn on the Park - Oak Room
No Solicitations R.S.V.P. (416) 787-9930

ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE
The Toronto Hospital, Western Division is currently conducting drug studies for people with Alzheimer's disease.
Candidates must have the following to apply:
- Must be ambulatory
- Must have a caregiver
- No history of stroke or cancer
- Need to be over 50 years old
- Otherwise healthy

Call Mr. Avi Collins at 416 603-5648 for further deatils.

Help sought for rebbetzin

By MYRON LOVE
Prairie Correspondent

WINNIPEG — The Jewish community here is being asked to help the wife of a former local rabbi.

Kathy Rosenzweig is being treated for liver cancer in a hospital in Windsor, Ont., while her husband, Rabbi Yosil Rosenzweig, is finishing his contract with a synagogue in Newport News, Va.

The Winnipeg campaign is being spearheaded by Miriam Kuropatwa, a longtime friend of Kathy Rosenzweig. They met in the mid-1970s, when Rabbi Rosenzweig was the spiritual leader of Winnipeg's Beth Israel synagogue. He took the position in Newport News last year, after serving for many years as Windsor's rabbi.

Kathy Rosenzweig was treated for breast cancer three years ago, Kuropatwa says.

"She was clear of cancer until last spring, when the cancer returned and spread to her liver," Kuropatwa explains. "This past summer, Yosil let us know about her condition...I asked him if I could follow up with former friends and acquaintances of theirs in Winnipeg to help out. I don't know if anyone anywhere else is doing this."

Kathy Rosenzweig, who is in her late 40s, is currently receiving treatment in Windsor. Her husband is looking for another rabbinical position close by.

From coast to coast

Holocaust expert wants to involve younger people

By JOEL JACOBSON
Atlantic Correspondent

HALIFAX — Dr. Elisabeth Maxwell, an acclaimed expert on the Holocaust and a member of the editorial advisory board of the Journal of Holocaust and Genocide Studies, says it's important to get younger people involved in Holocaust study and research.

"We want to ensure people are carrying the torch," she stressed in a Halifax interview after speaking to a public gathering and addressing students at Saint Mary's University.

"We want to keep the memory of the Holocaust alive, to stop it becoming fossilized as a historical event, as events become after a great many years. Research and discussion will keep it alive and negate the deniers."

The French-born and British-educated Maxwell, 76, has spent most of the past 17 years studying, speaking about and promoting conferences on the Nazi horrors of World War II.

Brought to Halifax, Fredericton and Saint John by the Atlantic Jewish Council and Atlantic Human Rights Centre, she confessed she feels guilt for what happened in Europe in World War II.

"I was a French Huguenot, a Protestant. We were persecuted as were the Jews, but we stood by and did nothing as Hitler murdered millions of them.

"It wasn't really anti-Semitism. We were just totally-ingrained in the Christian culture and I inherited that. We were never taught that there was a Jewish religion."

She didn't convert to Judaism, even though her husband, scientific publisher Robert Maxwell, was a Czechoslovakian Jew whose family was destroyed in concentration camps.

"Conversion would have been the easy way out, a way of getting rid of the guilt. As a Christian, I can say 'we' are guilty. I don't exclude myself from guilt."

Now lecturing extensively, Maxwell, who holds two degrees including a doctorate from Oxford University, began her study of the Holocaust in 1980 when she tried to piece together the fragments of her husband's family tree.

She found 17 of his cousins in the United States and, in five years, expanded the tree to 1,250 names, including more than 500 close relatives who died in the Holocaust.

Her effort led her to many academics researching the Holocaust.

"I told several mentors I wanted to learn. They helped me, and I helped them produce the journal through my husband's publishing company."

She helped organize Remembering for the Future, the first major international conference on Holocaust studies in 1988 at Oxford. A second conference was held in Berlin in 1994 and she is planning Remembering for the Future 2000, to be held at Oxford in July 2000.

"The press wasn't interested in 1988, but today everyone talks of the Holocaust," she said. We made the Holocaust a world concern, not just a Jewish concern."

Benefits of her work include establishing university study chairs on the Holocaust, both in the United States and Europe.

"At long last, Europeans are coming to terms with the war. They were initially unwilling to accept their guilt but this has changed."

Maxwell, with honorary degrees from Temple University (Philadelphia) and Tel Aviv University, is unsure whether people have learned from the Holocaust but thinks it is so self-contained and well documented that we can learn much about how to stop other genocides.

"The Holocaust never happened before or since," she said. "Mass murderers have not aimed to destroy an entire people. The atrocities were dehumanizing, sadistic, cruel and brutal."

DOROT 3 LAUNCHED AT YORK

The third issue of the student-run Jewish literary magazine Dorot was launched recently at York University's Jewish Student Federation office. From left, top row, are Carolynn Schwartz, Dave Gordon and Lenny Cohen; bottom row from left, Sidura Ludwig, Janna Cohen and Moishe Weinberg. [Sam Stone photo]

COMMUNITY CALENDAR

TO SECURE COMMUNITY CALENDAR LISTINGS CALL FRAN AUGENBLICK AT JEWISH INFORMATION SERVICE (416) 635-5600 OR FAX 631-5735

DATE		EVENT	ORGANIZATION	TIME	PLACE
NOVEMBER '97
Sat	1	50th Anniv. Dinner hon. Rabbis Dr. David Monson & Mendel Kirshenblatt	Beth Sholom Synagogue	6:30 pm	Beth Sholom
Sun	2	Israel Fair	UJA Federation	10:00 am	Bathurst Jewish Centre
Sun	2	"A Day of Yiddish" - Lectures & Entertainment	Beth Tzedec Synagogue	10:00 am	Beth Tzedec
Sun	2	November Telethon	UJA Federation	12:00 pm	Lipa Green Building
Sat 8 - Sun	16	21st Annual Jewish Book Fair (Opening)	Bathurst Jewish Centre	8:00 pm	Leah Posluns Theatre
Sun	9	"Life & Legacy of Nehama Leibowitz"	The Centre for Jewish Studies at York University	7:00 pm	Beth Tikvah
Mon	10	Outlook '98 with Robert Shapiro	UJA Federation Professionals Cabinet	7:30 am	Shaarei Shomayim
Mon	10	An Evening with Robert Shapiro	UJA Federation Business Cabinet	8:00 pm	Ford Centre Recital Hall
Thurs	13	Current Affairs with Erika Biro	National Council of Jewish Women	8:00 pm	Council House
Sun	16	Play "The Return of the Markham Messiah - The Civil Suit"	Chabad Lubavitch Community Centre of Markham	8:00 pm	City Playhouse
Mon	17	Musical Event with The Jerusalem Trio	Canada Israel Cultural Foundation, Ontario Chapter	8:00 pm	St. Lawrence Centre for the Arts
Thurs	20	3rd Annual Art & Soul Art Auction	Baycrest Centre, Leadership Development	7:00 pm	Joseph E. & Minnie Wagman Centre
Sun	23	Major Gifts Dinner	UJA Federation	5:30 pm	Four Seasons Hotel
Tues	25	Opening Night of "Rent"- RRSP State of Israel Bonds Awareness	State of Israel Bonds	8:00 pm	Royal Alexandra Theatre
Tues	25	"Taking Charge: What's Up In Depression"	Canadian Society of the Weizmann Institute of Science	8:00 pm	TBA
Wed	26	UJA Federation Ottawa Fly-In	UJA Federation	6:30 am	Ottawa
Thurs	27	Memorial Service	Jewish Family & Child Service, Jewish Hospice	7:30 pm	Lipa Green Building
Sat	29	Labour & Management Dinner celebrating Israel's 50th Anniversary	State of Israel Bonds	6:30 pm	Sheraton Centre
Sun	30	"Bridging the Generations"	State of Israel Bonds Women's Division	10:00 am	Club Monaco Store, Bloor Street
Sun	30	25th Anniversary Dinner hon. Phil Schwartz	Or Chaim Yeshiva	6:00 pm	Shaarei Shomayim
DECEMBER '97
Tues	2	Educational Event & Panel Discussion	Jewish Family & Child Service, Jewish Hospice	7:30 pm	Lipa Green Building
Sun	7	National Annual Meeting	Canadian Society of the Weizmann Institute of Science	10:00 am	Sutton Place
Sun	7	Annual Negev Dinner	Jewish National Fund	5:00 pm	Sheraton Centre
Sun	7	NCSY Music Concert	National Conference of Synagogue Youth	7:30 pm	Bassett Theatre, Metro Tor. Convention Centre
Sun	14	Family Pre-Chanukah Concert	Canadian Shaare Zedek Foundation	10:00 am	North York Library, Main Branch
Wed	17	UJA Federation Campaign Closing	UJA Federation	7:30 pm	Sephardic Kehila Centre

UJA FEDERATION

Community Calendar is published as a community service by UJA Federation which reserves the right to include/exclude listings.

Features

Performer's 'ethno-classic' music soothes, relaxes

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to the CJN

Bluma Schonbrun's latest audiocassette, Shayne Chalomes V (Yiddish for beautiful dreams) is a selection of haunting and nostalgic current and classic Hebrew music.

A performer and teacher, Schonbrun has created serene and lilting instrumental and vocal arrangements. The newest tape, the fifth in the series, includes such favorites as Avinu Malkenu, Shalom Aleichem and Torat Emet.

Shayne Chalomes V, a celebration of the Jewish holidays, comes with a colorful book. The tape and book, which give a cross-generational view of a family celebrating the holidays, are a treat for children as well as adults who wish to learn about Jewish holidays.

Schonbrun's tones on the recorder and flute are melded with the cello, accordion and percussion.

Bluma Schonbrun – "a soothing effect."

The tape features cellist Jose Shapero, a musician at Temple Sinai, and Israeli performer, Doron Ophir.

Schonbrun describes her recordings as "ethno-classic." Non-intrusive, relaxing and soothing, Schonbrun's music is often played as background music at restaurants and bookstores, and is enjoyed by both Jewish and non-Jewish audiences.

In 1989, Schonbrun formed Music a la Carte, a company that provides one to six musicians for any occasion. They entertain at many ethnic weddings and community events, and have become known as the strolling minstrels with guitar, flute and vocals.

Schonbrun, a Buffalo native, says, "I chose [to work in] Toronto because of its multicultural atmosphere and strong Jewish community, and because it is a cosmopolitan city.

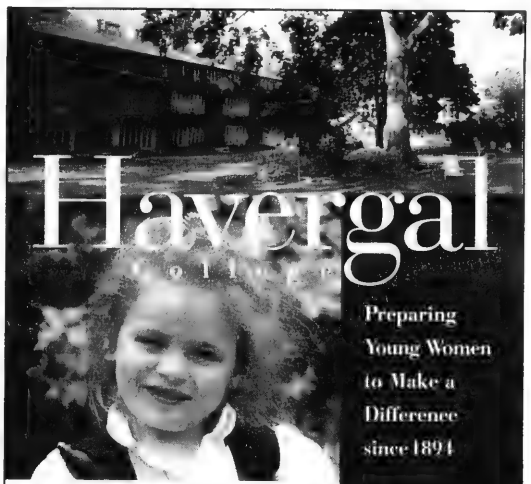
"I get satisfaction knowing that my recordings have such a useful and soothing effect on so many people. I hope that I am importing to the non-Jewish world some of the richness of our culture and music."

Schonbrun's tapes and CDs are available at all Judaica shops and finer gift stores.

ESTĒE LAUDER
InSession
What colours work for you?
Which tips do the trick?

Find out at –Making Makeup Work in Eaton's, Yorkdale
Just call, then come in for a quick, complimentary one-on-one makeup consultation. We'll show you the latest looks and how to create them with our new Fall makeup collection or classic colours that work all year round. Experience for yourself the unique hands-on service and expertise of top regional Beauty Experts, and receive your anniversary celebration 8-piece gift with any Estée Lauder purchase of $24 or more. Available at $24, Rich Results Hydrating Cleanser, 100 mL.

Call 349-7177 ext. 5416 to book your appointment for October 30, 31 or November 1.
ESTĒE LAUDER
EATON'S
Quantities limited. Offer good while supplies last. One to a customer, please.



Preparing Young Women to Make a Difference since 1894

Open House

LOWER & UPPER SCHOOLS
Tuesday, November 11, 1997 at 8:30–11:30 a.m.

INFORMATION PRESENTATIONS
Kindergarten: Wednesday, November 26 at 1:30 p.m.
Grade four: Wednesday, November 19 at 10:00 a.m.

Applications are now being received for all grades for September 1998 entry. Major entry years: JK, Grades 4, 7 and 9

To register for open houses, presentations and to receive further information contact:

Admissions Office, Havergal College
1451 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario M5N 2H9
Telephone: (416) 483-3519 Fax: (416) 483-6796
Web site address: www.havergal.on.ca

An Independent Day & Boarding School in Toronto for Girls

International

Israel & the Jewish World

Your Jewish Community Chapel
STEELES
70 years of traditional service
MEMORIAL CHAPEL
(905) 881-6003
(416) 733-2000

Compromise sought on Israeli conversion bills

By HAIM SHAPIRO AND LIAT COLLINS
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — Representatives of the Reform and Conservative movements on Sunday seemed to be on the verge of accepting a government proposal to delay submitting petitions to the High Court over registering their converts as Jews and seating representatives on religious councils.

Leaders from both movements held conference calls late into the night with their United States peers to decide whether to accept a government compromise.

The proposal calls for Reform and Conservative leaders to postpone their petitions in exchange for the government holding back Knesset bills demanded by religious parties that would essentially outlaw non-Orthodox conversions and exclude the non-Orthodox from religious councils.

Government proposals, as drawn up by the Neeman Committee, also call for setting up a central institute to which conversion candidates from all religious streams would be sent. Final conversions would be carried out by an Orthodox rabbinical court.

The guidelines also provide for Reform and Conservative rabbis to conduct recognized marriages in Israel in the presence of two witnesses from the Chief Rabbinate.

Reform and Conservative leaders said a factor toward accepting the compromise was the presence of more moderate rabbis of the religious kibbutz movement at the Neeman Committee meeting.

Rabbinical authorities have previously rejected compromise, and were suggesting a compromise stance for the first time, the Reform and Conservative leaders said.

But their flexibility also followed some stepped-up pressure from Justice Minister Tzahi Hanegbi, who threatened to present the religious councils and conversion bills to the Knesset if the High Court petitions went ahead.

Leaders of The Third Way and Yisrael Ba'aliya parties, who had said in the past they would vote against religious legislation, also indicated they would vote for the bills if the non-Orthodox movements did not agree to the proposed freeze.

A top delegation of Reform rabbis from the United States and elsewhere, led by Rabbi Amiel Hirsch, head of Arza, the Reform movement's Zionist arm in the United States, arrived Sunday and met with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on the issue.

The rabbis told Netanyahu that passage of the Conversion Law, which would give the Chief Rabbinate the authority to validate all conversions carried out in Israel and would thus invalidate all non-Orthodox conversions done in Israel, would be a slap in the face to the American Jewish community, which largely identifies with the Reform and Conservative movements.

The rabbis said that Netanyahu told them the unity of the Jewish people is of utmost importance to him and that, just as he seeks diversity in economics, he wants diversity in Jewish expression. However, Netanyahu also reportedly told the rabbis that he needs time to achieve this goal.

Rabbi Uri Regev, director of the Reform Movement's Israel Religious Action committee, seemed less willing than others to accept the compromise. He said the delays in court action would serve the interests of the rabbinical establishment and the religious parties, which have been fighting to prevent any changes that could endanger their monopoly on religious matters.

"The religious parties have always been willing to delay any action until the coming of the Messiah in order to preserve the status quo," Regev said.

Regev also said that converts who had petitioned the court would suffer as a result of the delays.

The first scheduled High Court hearing, would hear a petition to seat Reform and Conservative representatives on the religious councils of Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, Haifa, and Kiryat Tivon. Since the Court has already ruled that a Reform representative could join the Netanya religious council, it was expected to make a similar ruling.

Next week, the High Court is due to receive the attorney-general's response to a petition calling for the registration as Jews of adopted infants converted by the Conservative movement in Israel.

It was also due to rule on the case of a woman who studied in Israel and was then converted by a Liberal rabbinical court in London, and of two infants, adopted abroad, who were converted by the same rabbinical court before being brought to Israel. In all these cases the Interior Ministry has refused to register the converts as Jews.

Meanwhile, National Religious Party MKs met to discuss a proposal by three members to adopt the Neeman Committee's recommendations on the conversion bill. The MKs — Hanan Porat, Zvi Hendel, and Shmaryahu Ben-Tsur — spoke of a need to avoid creating a split in the Jewish world and to find a mutually acceptable solution which would avert the need to pass the conversion bill. Hendel called the committee's work "a historic opportunity to reach a compromise among all streams of Judaism."

Batsheva Tsur contributed to this report.

Vatican symposium set

By RUTH E. GRUBER
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

ROME — The Vatican is holding a symposium on the roots of anti-Semitism in Christian teaching, but no Jews were invited.

Jewish leaders have expressed disappointment that there will be no Jewish presence when the Vatican holds its closed-door symposium.

Vatican cardinals and other church officials, as well as about 60 Roman Catholic scholars and theologians, will take part in the meeting on the topic, The Roots of Anti-Judaism in the Christian Environment.

Representatives of other Christian denominations, including Protestants and Orthodox Christians, also will attend the sessions, scheduled to take place from Oct. 30 to Nov. 1.

Tullia Zevi, president of the Union of Italian Jewish Communities, said she had hoped that some Jewish scholars might be invited as observers.

"The answer was very polite but firm that this was an internal church" matter, she said, but added, "We have great confidence in the work of the commission."

The Vatican said in a statement that the conference would focus on "essentially Christian themes."

"This is the reason why their development and elaboration has been entrusted for the most part to Catholic theologians," it said.

five great reasons
to visit your family in Jerusalem this winter
parents of members of the laromme student/volunteer soldier club receive the following benefits:
- upgraded room and home-made chocolates upon arrival.
- student/soldier shares parents' room free with complimentary breakfast.
- stay 7 consecutive nights receive 8th night free, student receives free friday dinner or saturday lunch.

invite your israeli family to visit you during your stay-
- 30% discount on hotel's israeli room rate.
- children (up to 18yrs) receive 50% discount on meals.

applicable Nov. 16, 1997-Apr. 1, 1998 excluding Dec. 20-Jan. 4)
for individual bookings only

your home away from home
laromme jerusalem hotel
For reservations, call your travel agent or the hotel:
Tel: (02) 675-6666 Fax: (02) 675-6777 / (02) 561-0158.
3 Jabotinsky St. 92145 Jerusalem

40,000 Jews
50,000 Opinions
Come add yours
JEWISH.COMUNITY
Over 40,000 people each month visit Jewish.Community Online at AOL. They schmooze, flirt, learn, and of course, argue.
On AOL Canada Keyword:
JEWISH CANADA
For a start-up kit call 1-800-729-4499
...and read Canadian Jewish News at keyword: JEWISH NEWS

The Jewish Community Centre of Ottawa seeks an experienced
DIRECTOR OF OPERATIONS

Responsibilities include: program development, long range planning, board development, staff development, outreach and co-operation with other communal agencies.

Individual will work closely with a Business Manager, a newly developed staff position, as well as key communal leaders and professional staff to further enhance the organization's Jewish and general mission of service.

Successful candidate will possess excellent communication and writing skills, strong Jewish background, outstanding human resource skills and superior program development skills.

Please send resumé no later than November 10, 1997 to: The Jewish Community Centre of Ottawa, 151 Chapel Street, Ottawa, Ont. K1N 7Y2. Attention: Search Committee, Personal and Confidential.

SAXONY GLATT KOSHER
New for '97-'98 FITNESS CENTER
MIAMI BEACH'S #1 LUXURY KOSHER HOTEL
SPECIAL SENIOR GROUP PACKAGES
Call Golden Age Montreal
(514) 343-3515
or 739-4731
• Serving 3 Delicious Glatt Kosher Meals Daily
• Olympic Heated Pool
• Oceanfront Boardwalk
• Private Tennis Courts on Premises
• Voice Mail
• Daily Activities
• Nightly Entertainment, Dancing
• Free Cable TV with Remote
EARLY BIRD SPECIAL
DEC. 1 - DEC. 22
ANY 7 NIGHTS
$249 Per Person Double Occ Plus Tax INCLUDING MEALS
BEAUTIFUL FURNISHED EFFICIENCIES AVAILABLE
3201 COLLINS AVE., MIAMI BEACH, FLA. 33140
SPECIAL RATES FOR LONG STAYS
Your host the Berkowitz Family
TOLL FREE # 1-800-327-8169

CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS
ONTARIO REGION
SEEKS

A dynamic self-starter with a significant knowledge of Jewish traditions and culture, who is ready to

- Embark on a challenging career helping maintain and strengthen Jewish life in smaller centres throughout Ontario
- Travel extensively in the province
- Be part of a small, dedicated team of professionals fulfilling the Congress mandate

FOR THE POSITION OF
DIRECTOR OF COMMUNITY SERVICES AND YOUTH ACTIVITIES

Working with over 30 smaller communities across Ontario, the director

- Helps to develop and deliver programs and services in areas such as family education, Jewish continuity, Israel, and leadership development
- Responds to communal needs
- Assists in fostering Jewish identity among young people

Qualifications:
- A university degree
- Background in Jewish studies and/or Jewish education an important asset
- An outgoing personality with an ability to relate to families, teens, and college-age youth
- Excellent verbal and written communication skills
- Demonstrated organizational skills

Please mail or fax resumé in confidence by Thursday, November 13, to: Chair, Personnel Committee, Canadian Jewish Congress, Ontario Region, 4600 Bathurst Street, North York, Ontario M2R 3V2. Fax: 416-635-1408

Papon testimony sparks outrage

By LEE YANOWITCH
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

PARIS — The families of Jews deported from Bordeaux during the Nazi occupation of France were angry and stupefied after accused wartime collaborator Maurice Papon told a court that he had spent the war years helping Jews.

"I spent the occupation fighting for Jews and for others. Since then, I have mourned in my heart for the deaths of my Jewish compatriots and foreign Jews," Papon said last week, speaking for the first time at his trial, which began earlier this month.

"I risked deportation, maybe even my life, by taking the names of 139 Jews off the lists," he snapped when questioned by Arno Klarsfeld, one of 23 lawyers for the civil plaintiffs.

Papon, 87, is accused of ordering the arrest and deportation of 1,560 Jews, 223 of them children, when he was a senior official for the pro-Nazi Vichy regime. Nearly all died in the gas chambers at Auschwitz.

After proceedings against him were obstructed by French officials for 16 years, his trial for crimes against humanity, which is expected to last until the end of December, is now under way in the southwestern French city of Bordeaux.

The trial of Papon – who will in all likelihood be the last Frenchman to face trial for crimes against humanity – is also seen as the nation's last chance to come to terms with a past it has long tried to forget.

His remarks provoked a wave of protests by the civil plaintiffs, many of them relatives of Holocaust victims, and their lawyers.

"He showed himself for what he is – the hard, cold and cruel man who signed the deportation orders without any scruples," Georges Gheldman, whose mother was deported from Bordeaux in 1942, said in an interview.

Therese Stopnicki, whose younger sisters Nellie, 5, and Rachel, 2, were taken out of hiding, allegedly on Papon's orders, and sent to Auschwitz, said Papon's remarks created "the impression that the cover of a sewer has been lifted and everything inside is flowing out."

Papon also told the court that as prefect of the French Mediterranean island of Corsica in 1947, he was in charge of a secret mission to set up air bases on the island for American planes to send arms to help "the Israeli people in their struggle for independence. It is an honor for me to have always protected the Jewish community."

Papon went further, denying that he ever signed arrest or deportation orders when he was a Vichy official and demanding to see proof of the charges against him.

Alain Levy, the lawyer for an association of former Resistance fighters and deportees, described the testimony as "totally pernicious."

In a dramatic turn, a historian who in 1981 helped uncover Papon's wartime role said further research had convinced him that Papon had indeed helped Jews rather than send them to their deaths.

Michel Berges said in an interview with the daily newspaper Le Monde that prosecutors had erred in their assessment of wartime documents and had turned Papon "into a political myth."

He said Papon had struck the names of more than 100 Jews from deportation lists.

He also stated that Papon had in other instances merely countersigned orders decided upon by his superiors and had no authority to initiate roundups.

Michel Touzet, a lawyer representing some of the civil plaintiffs, criticized Berges for making the comments before he was scheduled to testify in December. Papon, who enjoyed an illustrious political career after the war, has maintained in the past that he joined the Resistance in 1943 and remained in his job as wartime secretary-general of the Bordeaux prefect's office – the second highest-ranking official in the region – at the anti-Nazi movement's request.

But some of the plaintiffs noted that being a member of the Resistance did not necessarily imply he was innocent of anti-Jewish actions.

"People are suddenly losing sight of the objective. The defence is trying to prove that he was a member of the Resistance, a good civil servant, but the essential is the deportation of the Jews," Stopnicki said.

During the second week of the trial, the court heard witnesses for the defence attest to Papon's character and his devotion to his work in various post-war government positions.

One of them was Raymond Barre, current mayor of Lyon, who as France's prime minister in 1978 named Papon his budget minister.

Barre was questioned by a juror – a rare procedure in the French legal system – about whether he had inquired about Papon's past before appointing him.

"I did not have to ask many questions. Maurice Papon had an excellent reputation," Barre replied.

"I benefited from his devoted and efficient assistance."

Perhaps one of the most revealing testimonies in demonstrating how Papon was able to continue his career under post-war French leader Charles de Gaulle and rise to become Paris police chief from 1958 to 1967 came from Olivier Guichard, one of de Gaulle's closest aides.

Guichard said de Gaulle had sought to readmit senior Vichy officials into government service after the war in the name of national unity.

Meanwhile, the trial has been temporarily halted. Papon was hospitalized last week with bronchitis. As of this writing, it had not resumed.

22ND ANNUAL FLORIDA
Medical, Dental, Legal and Podiatric Seminar
DEC. 21, 1997-JAN. 4, 1998
EMBASSY SUITES HOTEL - BOCA RATON, FLA.
Continuing Education Credits & Appropriate Tax Documentation Given
REGISTRATION: $350 U.S.
Contact: Linda Golnick, Co-ordinator
4826 Cliffside Dr., West Bloomfield, Michigan 48323
Tel. (248) 681-0211 Fax: (248) 681-0315
Special hotel, air & car rates available

BAYT
ק"ק בית אברהם יוסף
BETH AVRAHAM YOSEPH OF TORONTO CONGREGATION
THE JOSEPH AND FAYE TANENBAUM SYNAGOGUE CENTRE
A FAMILY SYNAGOGUE EMPHASIZING THE WARMTH OF TORAH TRADITION

הכנסת ספר תורה
TORAH DEDICATION

THE ENTIRE COMMUNITY IS INVITED
TO JOIN WITH BAYT IN CELEBRATING
THE DEDICATION OF A SEFER TORAH
BY OUR MEMBERS

GUILLAUME AND RACHEL FRIEDMAN
IN HONOUR OF THEIR BELOVED PARENTS
ר' אליעזר גרשון בן ר' אברהם ז"ל מרת שרה בת ר' משה ז"ל

יום ראשון ב' חשון תשנ"ח
SUNDAY NOVEMBER 2, 1997
PROCESSION TO BAYT FROM 235 YORK HILL BLVD., THORNHILL
AT 11 A.M.
Refreshments following

The Week in Israel

Oct. 20

• The spiritual leader of Hamas said the group is observing a "cooling off" period on suicide bombings. Sheik Ahmed Yassin said the lull would last only if Israel stopped economic closures, demolition of Palestinian houses and, what he called, the seizure of land.

Oct. 21

• Defence Minister Yitzhak Mordechai and Palestinian Authority (PA) Chairman Yasser Arafat met in the Gaza Strip and agreed to resume security cooperation. After the two-hour meeting, Arafat said that Israel and the Palestinians "had agreed to cooperate on all security matters."

• Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's office announced it may postpone a trip to the United States from mid to late November if the White House cannot accommodate a meeting. This would rule out a planned appearance by Netanyahu before the General Assembly of the Jewish Federations in Indianapolis on Nov. 16.

Oct. 22

• U.S. Middle East envoy Dennis Ross left Israel after four days of meetings with Israeli and Palestinian officials. Israeli officials said progress was being made, but a Palestinian official said Ross' mission had failed and warned of renewed violence.

Oct. 23

• Khaled Meshal warned Israel that Hamas will continue its terror campaign "in the coming days." In an interview with a weekly Jordanian newspaper, Meshal said: "Our path is clear: armed struggle (will continue) until the occupiers have been banished...and in the next few days it will become evident that Hamas has not strayed from its path."

Oct. 24

• An Israeli government report said that the dwindling Christian minority in the areas controlled by the PA is being persecuted. According to the report, cemeteries are being vandalized, churches are being burglarized and Islamic militants fearlessly harass Christian youngsters. At the same time, the PA has taken control of the churches.

With files from JTA

Jordan's balancing act

By SHELDON KIRSHNER

As the dust of the Khaled Meshal affair settles, Jordan has decided to patch up its relationship with Israel.

Mideast Analysis

In the wake of the furor caused by the Mossad's botched attempt to assassinate Meshal – the political leader of Hamas – in broad daylight in Amman, King Hussein recently put an official end to the embarrassing incident by phoning Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and informing him that he wished "to rebuild" Jordan's frayed relations with Israel.

And in two more unmistakable signs that King Hussein wanted to let bygones be bygones, he permitted the commander of the Israeli air force, Eitan Ben-Eliahu, to proceed with his planned visit to Jordan and accepted the credentials of Israel's new ambassador, Oded Eran.

But before he closed the books on the Meshal affair, which he had described as a reckless and insulting act, King Hussein reportedly expelled the Israeli intelligence mission in Amman, lowered the level of security cooperation with Israel and extracted a promise from Netanyahu that a similar operation would never again be staged on Jordanian soil.

If nothing else, the Meshal affair demonstrated the degree to which Israel's strategic ties with Jordan, formalized by a peace treaty signed three years ago in November, are inextricably bound up with the ebb and flow of Palestinian politics.

This is something that Netanyahu does not quite appreciate. In an impassioned letter to King Hussein last March, Netanyahu wrote: "We cannot make the Jordanian-Israeli relationship hostage to the Palestinian-Israeli track. We cannot give every Palestinian-Israeli impasse the power to hurt our own relationship."

But as the Meshal affair showed beyond a doubt, the Palestinians do affect King Hussein's perception of Israel. How could it be otherwise when two-thirds of Jordan's population consists of Palestinians, the majority of whom are hostile to Israel?

It's clear that King Hussein, who values the survival of his Hashemite kingdom above all other considerations, would not have entered into a peace accord with Israel unless the PLO had done so first a year earlier through the Oslo agreement.

Having taken his cue from PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat, King Hussein defied the wishes of many of his subjects by speeding up the process of normalization with Israel in every conceivable sphere. As a result, Jordan became Israel's closest friend in the Arab world, particularly during Yitzhak Rabin's reign as prime minister.

But since September 1996, Israel's friendship with Jordan has been badly strained by three decisions taken by Netanyahu: the opening of a new entrance to an archeological tunnel in eastern Jerusalem, the construction of a massive housing project in Har Choma and the offer to redeploy from only two percent of Area C in the West Bank.

Especially offended by the first two decisions, King Hussein angrily suggested that Netanyahu was leading the region to war and pointedly questioned his commitment to peace.

But in the interests of maintaining strong relations with Israel, King Hussein, in March 1997, fired his prime minister, Abdul-Karim Kabarati, who had warned Netanyahu that his policies threatened the pace of normalization, and replaced him with Abdulsalam al-Majali, the signer of the 1994 peace treaty. It was a development that did not go unnoticed in Amman's anti-Israel circles.

In yet another gesture to Israel, King Hussein visited Israel to pay his respects to the families of seven girls who had been gunned down by a Jordanian soldier at Naharayim.

And most recently, the Jordanian government announced that a military court would soon try four citizens charged with plotting attacks against Israel and three others suspected of smuggling arms to the West Bank.

Clearly, King Hussein is like a highwire acrobat, balancing his relations with Israel and the Palestinians ever so finely.

Jewish schools get $36M boost

[Cont'd. from pg. 1]

schools, and the quality of day schools throughout the spectrum, including the Orthodox schools," said high-profile investor Michael Steinhardt, who founded the partnership along with Edgar Bronfman, president of the World Jewish Congress and chair of the Seagram Corp., and his brother Charles, Seagram's co-chair and head of the CRB Foundation.

In addition to grant money, the program will offer resource material, ongoing consultations and mentoring to a new school's leaders.

Announcement of the program was welcomed "very warmly and enthusiastically" by Shlomo Shimon, executive director of the Jewish Educational Council of Montreal. "It's an important recognition of Jewish education."

Rabbi Jeremiah Unterman, director of Toronto's Board of Jewish Education, said the grant fund is "significant. It could be a real boon for start-up costs, hiring of staff and rent for new schools."

The program is accepting grant applications for new elementary and middle schools. Initial letters are due by Feb. 1, 1998.

The Partnership for Excellence in Jewish Education may be reached at 617-868-6741, or visit its Web site at [www.peje.org].

A Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $5.00 per month.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa or Mastercard before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please call Janice at 416-391-1836, allowing a minimum of two weeks notice.

THE ISRAEL UNITY TRIP

B'NAI BRITH

DECEMBER 1-8, 1997

"If not now, when?"

Join a delegation of Rabbis and congregants from all affiliations on this exceptional journey to Jerusalem to demonstrate our eternal ties with Israel

*Meet Israel's leading personalities

Only $1499 Cdn.* (+ tax)

*Includes return flight, accommodation at deluxe Sheraton Plaza, breakfast and dinner daily, 4 days of sightseeing, several exciting events and transfers.

Extensions available • Space is extremely limited.

Call Ehud Telem today!

PEERLESS TRAVEL

YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY

905-886-5610 OUT OF TOWN CALL 1-800-294-1663

• CLIMB MASSADA • WHITEWATER RAFT THE COLORADO •

• SAIL THE SAN JUANS • VISIT THE VATICAN • LIVE TV TAPING •

• HIKE THE GRAND CANYON • SKI BLACKCOMB •

Our 16th Year

Teen Travel

WESTCOAST CONNECTION

CANADA • USA • EUROPE

20% OFF UNTIL NOVEMBER 28TH

Travel with new friends from all over North America on one of over 20 exciting itineraries. Destinations include Europe, Canada, U.S.A. & Israel.

We'll help you choose a program that has the right mix of challenging adventure, city sights, college campuses and national parks.

Age compatible groups for 13-17 yrs. and exclusive college groups for those 17-19 yrs.

NEW FOR 98 - 35 DAY ISRAEL ADVENTURE, TENNIS & TRAVEL

Prices start at $2639 CDN

Visit us on the web: http://www.westcoastconnection.com

Call for a brochure and the summer of a lifetime!

(416) 667-1288 (514) 488-8920

• SNOWBOARD THE SWISS ALPS • LONDON THEATRE

WHAT ARE YOU DOING NEW YEAR'S EVE?
Come join us at TEMPLE EMANU-EL ...
DINNER, DANCING, WINE BAR, FUN, LIVE BAND ...
Tickets BEFORE December 1st. - $55.00 per person
Tickets AFTER December 1st. - $65.00 per person
FOR RESERVATIONS, CALL: 416-449-3880 & SAY THE MAGIC WORD ..... "CHAVERIM"
Temple Emanu-El
120 Old Colony Rd., Willowdale
TEMPLE MEMBERSHIP INFO.
PHIL RUDOLPH 416 -449-3880

HarmonyMOVEMENT
SECOND ANNUAL HARMONY AWARD BANQUET
Thursday, November 6, 1997
Le Parc Banquet Hall, Thornhill
Highlights:
• Honouring Mrs. Ruth Goldbloom, C.M. LLD (Hon), D. Hum. Litt (Hon)
• Keynote speech by Mr. George Gaffney, Executive Vice-President and General Manager, Metro Toronto, Royal Bank
Tickets $100.00 per person
To reserve please call (416) 385-2660
Platinum Sponsors:
ROYAL BANK FINANCIAL GROUP
CAPS
ROYAL DE VERSAILLES
Gold Sponsors:
Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce
Con Drain
Cranberry Resort
George Bond Sports
Green & Spiegel
Law Development Group
Lozis-Bayview Developments
Mattamy Homes
Scotia Bank
Solid Wear
Harmony Movement is a non-profit organization dedicated to fostering mutual respect and promoting diversity among all people

Six Days of Fun in the Snow!!

Camp Shomria's Winter Camp '97
for ages 8-16
A Jewish Experience During Winter Break
AT A GREAT NEW LOCATION
Sunday, December 21st to Friday, December 26th
(SAVE $260.00 - ASK ABOUT OUR WINTER AND SUMMER CAMP COMBINATION)
$350.00
• Downhill Tubing • Cross-Country Skiing •
• Ice Skating • Snow Shoeing
• Arts & Crafts • Israeli Song & Dance
1997
For more information about winter camp, summer camp or other Hashomer Hatzair activities, contact Yehuda Marle at (416) 736-1339

IDF, SLA thwart Hezbollah attacks on Lebanon outposts

By DAVID RUDGE
Jerusalem Post Foreign Service

JERUSALEM — IDF and South Lebanese Army (SLA) soldiers Sunday repulsed what appears to have been an attempt by Hezbollah gunmen to try and over-run a position in the northeastern sector of the security zone.

The foiled attempt follows a number of recent attacks in the same area by three or four Hezbollah squads.

One of the aims of the gunmen in the activities around the Soujud outpost might have been to try and kidnap an IDF soldier, military sources reported.

A South Lebanese Army soldier was seriously wounded in the fighting, during which Hezbollah fired mortars, anti-tank missiles and machine-guns at the post.

The attempt to approach the position, however, was thwarted by heavy return fire by IDF and SLA soldiers and gunners. Later, IAF warplanes struck at Hezbollah targets in the Soujud region with the pilots reporting accurate hits.

Earlier, IAF jets raided Ahmed Jibril's PFLP-General Command base at Nuemeh, south of Beirut, for the fourth time in recent days. Reports from Lebanon said an activist who worked as a nurse for the organization was killed in the raid.

The IDF spokesperson said that in both raids the pilots reported accurate hits and that all the planes returned safely to their bases.

The air strike on the PFLP-GC base followed early morning bombardments by Hezbollah gunmen on over 15 IDF and SLA positions along the length of the security zone — from the coast to the foothills of Mt. Hermon.

There were no casualties in the long-range mortar and anti-tank missile attacks, which prompted heavy return fire from IDF and SLA gunners. The exchanges began around 6:30 a.m. and lasted for over two hours.

Defence Minister Yitzhak Mordechai, accompanied by Chief of Staff Lt.-Gen. Amnon Lipkin-Shahak visited a position on the northern border Sunday to receive first-hand reports of the situation in the security zone.

The visit is part of a general assessment that the security establishment is conducting of the overall situation in south Lebanon.

SHEILA COHEN ז"ל

In loving memory of Sheila, who died three years ago, on 3 Cheshvan 5755, but whose love and compassion and generosity and kindness and sense of fun touch us to this day. At the rising of the sun and at its going down, we remember her.

Bob, Ellen, Norton, Vicki and Molly

The MARGEL and BENAIM families extend sincere thanks and appreciation to our many relatives, friends and colleagues for their comfort, support and thoughtfulness following the loss of our beloved

PERRY MARGEL ז"ל

CJN Chanukah Poetry Contest

The CJN announces its third annual Chanukah poetry contest.

Who can enter: Anyone can enter except CJN employees or members of their family.

There are three age categories for entrants: 1. Twelve years old and under; 2. Thirteen to 18 years old; 3. Eighteen years old and up.

How to enter: The poems must be about Chanukah; they cannot be longer than 40 lines. A maximum of one poem per entrant may be submitted. Please include your name, age, address and phone number with the poem.

We would prefer to receive typewritten poems if possible.

We will return poems if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

You may mail or deliver your poems to:
CJN Chanukah Poetry Contest, The Canadian Jewish News,
1500 Don Mills Road., Suite 205, North York, Ontario, M3B 3K4.

The contest closes at 5 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 8, 1997.

Prizes: The judges will choose six poems to be published, two from each of the three categories, which in their opinion, most poetically and evocatively convey an aspect of the meaning of Chanukah. Each of the "winners" will also receive a cheque for $50.

Only six poems will be selected as "winners". Space permitting, we may publish other poems as honorable mentions. The decisions of the judges will be final. The odds of "winning" depend upon the number and the quality of submissions received.

How the winners will be notified: "Winning" entrants will be notified by telephone before the start of the Shabbat on Friday, Dec. 12, 1997.

When the prizes will be awarded: The winning poems will be published in The CJN of Dec. 25, 1997. We look forward to receiving your poems. May the miracle of Chanukah and the magic of its light be reflected in your poems.

Any litigation respecting the conduct and awarding of a prize in this contest may be submitted to the Regie des Loteries et courses du Quebec.

Terrorist group difficult to infiltrate

The assessment is carried out every six months but is likely to have more significance this time in light of the recent mishaps, tragedies and high casualties suffered by the IDF. The IDF's methods of operation in the war against Hezbollah are expected to be discussed along with other tactical and strategic issues.

According to Channel 2 news, Shahak informed the cabinet Sunday that the IDF knows very little about the situation and has a serious intelligence problem in trying to penetrate Hezbollah.

Mordechai was briefed by OC Northern Command Maj.-Gen. Amiram Levine and senior officers. He maintained that despite the recent series of incidents, there was no over-riding problem.

He said that all the incidents were being thoroughly investigated and lessons learned were being implemented. Mordechai stressed that the aim was to minimize casualties while increasing the IDF's ability to hit Hezbollah.

Mordechai denied recent reports of tension between himself and Shahak, saying they were working together to tackle the problems.

Levine revealed that the IDF thwarted concerted attacks by "three or four Hezbollah squads" whose primary aim was apparently to hit tanks and IDF troops "and perhaps even to try and kidnap a soldier."

Emergency Services CLOSING

Monday, Nov. 3, 1997

The Emergency Department
at the former Northwestern General Hospital
will close at 7:30 a.m.
Monday, November 3, 1997.

A new Ambulatory/Walk-in Service
will open at 7:30 a.m. on
Monday, November 3, 1997
at the same location, the Keele Street site of Humber River Regional Hospital (HHRH), 2175 Keele Street.

HRRH's new Keele Street Ambulatory/ Walk-in Service will provide non-emergency medical care to those in need of medical attention. The Walk-in Service will operate from 7:30 a.m. until 10 p.m. seven days a week.

The Church Street (formerly Humber Memorial Hospital) and Finch Avenue (formerly York-Finch General Hospital) sites of HRRH will continue to provide emergency services 24-hours-a-day.

HRRH will relocate other programs and services this fall. These changes are outlined in Humber River Regional Hospital's Service Update, which will be published in local community newspapers October 26 and 28. To obtain a copy, or for more information on hospital program and service changes, call our Patient Services Information Line at (416) 658-2044.

Humber River Regional Hospital was formed January 1, 1997 with the voluntary merger of the former Northwestern General, Humber Memorial and York-Finch General Hospitals.

Church Street Site
200 Church Street
Weston, Ontario
(416) 249-8111

Finch Avenue Site
2111 Finch Avenue W.
Downsview, Ontario
(416) 744-2500

Keele Street Site
2175 Keele Street
Toronto, Ontario
(416) 651-6111

HR
Humber River
REGIONAL HOSPITAL

For more information, call the Humber River Regional Hospital Patient Services Information Line at (416) 658-2044.

Violinist encourages young people's musical interest

By MIRIAM CHINSKY
Special to The CJN

Surrounded by paintings and mementos, Eugene Kash, 85, talks about learning the violin when he was just five, studying with klezmer musician Moishe Spielman.

After six months, "Spielman took me by the hand and gave me to Luigi von Kunitz," Kash remembers. He was with von Kunitz for 10 years until he left Jarvis Collegiate at 16 for Philadelphia's Curtis Institute.

Then it was on to Czechoslovakia for lessons with Otakar Sevcik, whose name was synonymous with development of violin technique, but Kash wanted more than technique and moved to Vienna, where he joined a newly formed young people's orchestra for musicians who couldn't get into the philharmonic.

In 1952, he debuted in Vienna. He became known for his chamber music as well as for his orchestral work, and he was a member of Bronislaw Huberman's master class.

Eugene Kash.

Huberman founded the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra in 1936 and later smuggled several exceptional Jewish musicians out of Hitler's Europe.

Kash was in England in 1936 when his mother, prophesying a war with Hitler, urged him to come home.

Back in Toronto he played for the CBC with Percy Faith and the Toronto Symphony under Sir Ernest MacMillan. This reporter, who was about 12 at the time, thrilled to Ravel's Bolero and the eerie Danse Macabre at after-school children's symphony concerts in Massey Hall, and clearly remembers the rapt, young, long-haired violinist onstage.

Kash also served as concertmaster under Reginald Stewart at the 1941 and 1942 summer Promenade Concerts in Varsity Stadium.

After being appointed music director of the National Film Board in Ottawa, he spent 15 years in that city, eight with the film board, seven as conductor of the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra.

During his tenure with the film board, he met Montreal-born contralto Maureen Forrester and they were married in Montreal's Temple Emmanuel, where Forrester had been soloist. They have five children.

Over the years, there were moves to Connecticut where Kash was assistant conductor of the symphony; a return to Toronto in 1963 to fill the position of academic administrator for the National Youth Orchestra; a stay in Philadelphia, where Kash taught; and touring on three continents.

From 1952 to 1975, Kash also participated annually in the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico.

Once again in Toronto, in 1975 he began a 10-year association as conductor with the Etobicoke Philharmonic Orchestra.

He and Forrester are separated. "We were together 20 years and apart 20 years," he says, "but we see each other on many occasions and our whole family gathers each year for the seder." There is caring in his voice.

He continues to play his violin, is involved with conducting and teaches at the Royal Conservatory, still very much a part of the music scene.

"I feel it's very important to share, to plant the seeds among the young generation, encouraging them to carry on to a more fulsome life with music and art," he says.

In response to my request, he brings out his violin and plays my favorite, Melody from Thais. Then it is his choice, a Hebrew melody that fills the air with warmth and sweetness.

Little did I know when I was 12 years old, that one day, Eugene Kash would play a solo performance for me.

Concert to benefit Hachnosas Kallah

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Rochel Miller, a New York singer, composer and recording artist, will headline a women's only concert at the Ford Centre for the Performing Arts in North York on Nov. 2.

The musical soiree will benefit Hachnosas Kallah, an organization that raises money to help needy brides with wedding expenses.

Miller, accompanied by a pianist, will offer a selection of traditional Jewish songs.

The Kol Shira Girls Choir, 50 girls of high school age, will also appear at the concert, singing Jewish songs by local composers.

Organizers expect 1,000 women to attend.

Hachnosas Kallah, under the leadership of Penny Zimmerman, Ruchie Anisfeld and Linda Hofstedter, has several fundraising projects a year, including a tea and luncheon. The organization also raises funds by renting artificial flower arrangements for simchahs as well as mechitzahs.

General admission tickets are $18 and $36. Sponsor tickets are $50, $100 and $180.

For more information, contact Tami Janowski, 416-633-2479.

FISHER-FREMONT TRAVEL LTD.
535 EGLINTON AVENUE WEST
TORONTO, ONT. M5N 1B3
(416) 481-3323 FAX (416) 481-1219
Ont. Reg. 1061998 email flyaway@ican.net

SARA PACHTER

ESCORTED BAR/BAT MITZVAH FAMILY TOURS celebrating Israel's 50th Anniversary

Book now! Some dates are filling up very quickly.

Annual WINTERBREAK CHANUKAH — Dec. 17-31/98 Almost full.
SPRING BREAK — Mar. 11-23/98 and Mar. 12-24/98 Very popular.
SUMMER SELECTION — July 2-16, July 16-30, Aug. 6-20, Aug. 20 - Sept. 3/98
WINTERBREAK CHANUKAH — Dec. 16-30/98 registration now available.

DETAILED BROCHURE NOW AVAILABLE FOR SPECIAL INDEPENDENCE DAY TOUR April 26-May 10/98
Be included in our Orientation meeting - give us a call.

'98 family tours

Fun, family experience in Israel including Bar/Bat Mitzvah Ceremony on Masada carefully crafted by 40 years of experience and service.

July 4 - 19
escorted by Cantor Eli & Linda Kirshblum

August 1 - 16
escorted by Cantor Paul Kowarsky

Call now for our detailed brochure !

aufgang travel
(416) 789-7117 • 1-800-789-7117

Shipping Vehicles To The U.S.A., Canada & Europe Since 1952
AUTO DRIVEAWAY LTD.
6120A Yonge St. W., Suite 2
(North of Cummer, West Side)
For Insured, bonded, reliable door-to-door service
Call: (416) 222-4700 1-800-668-1879

ATTENTION SNOWBIRDS!
FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS AND RETURN
www.torontodriveaway.com
CALL (416) 225-7754
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St. #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

ISRAEL BEST AIRFARES
EL AL ISRAEL AIRLINES AIR CANADA
THE TRUE ALL-INCLUSIVE BAR/BAT MITZVAH FAMILY TOURS TO ISRAEL
See Israel as you've never seen it before!!
SPECIAL PROGRAMS CELEBRATING ISRAEL'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY
NEW 1998 DEPARTURES
WINTER Dec. 21/97-Jan. 4/98 - Limited Space
SPRING BREAK '98 March 11-23
SUMMER '98 June 28-July 12, July 5-19, July 12-26, Aug. 2-16, Aug. 9-23, Aug. 16-30
WINTER '98 Dec. 20/'98-Jan. 3/'99
REGISTRATION IN PROGRESS FOR ALL TOURS
DON'T WAIT - OUR TOURS ARE FILLING UP VERY QUICKLY
Don't book with anyone until you speak to us!
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
905-886-5610
OUT OF TOWN CALL 1-800-294-1663

WANTED PROPERTY IN ISRAEL
PAY TOP U.S. DOLLARS FOR LAND, HOUSES, APT. & CITRUS GROVES ANYWHERE IN ISRAEL.
DAVID GUISSEN: 212-769-4653
DAILY: 10 A.M. -6 P.M.

SUBSCRIBE TO
The Canadian Jewish news

Travel, Arts & Business

Eye on Arts

by Bill Gladstone

RARE JUDAIC BOOKS ON AUCTION IN NEW YORK

For only the second time in its 100-year history, the Jewish Theological Seminary of America is auctioning off some duplicate volumes from its library, one of the world's most important collections of Hebraica and Judaica.

Scheduled for Nov. 25 in New York, the auction will comprise approximately 300 select Hebrew and Yiddish printed books. They range from the 15th through the 19th century, with a strong concentration of 16th-century books, many of which have never appeared at auction before.

Among the noteworthy titles is a six-volume set of the Mishnah with commentary by Maimonides, printed in Naples in 1489 and expected to fetch between $20,000 and $30,000 (US). Another is Mashal Hakadmoni (Proverb of the Ancient), by Isaac ibn Sahula, with 80 unusual woodcut illustrations; printed in Venice circa 1547, it is expected to bring in up to $10,000.

Doral Park Ave. Hotel, New York. Previews Nov. 23 and 24. Kestenbaum & Co., auctioneers. 212-366-1197.

* * *

Jewish Radio: The Max Mandel Jewish Hour, starring Michael and Max Mandel Jr. presents an actual "live" re-creation of a Jewish radio show, featuring a collage of Yiddish melodies and personalities heard on the original radio show. This version is bilingual for those who are "Yiddish challenged."

Also featured are Stella Walker, Dvoira Yanovsky, David Abramowitz and the Winchevsky Ensemble Theatre. Winchevsky Centre, 585 Cranbrooke Ave.

Tickets $12 in advance, $15 at the door. 416-789-5502.

* * *

Hollywood and The Jews: The Bloor JCC and the Riverdale JCC present a gala premiere screening of Hollywoodism: Jews, Movies, and the American Dream, a new film from Emmy Award-winning Associated Producers of Toronto.

The film's tag-line is most intriguing: "They fled a nightmare to build a dream." Among the ideas the film explores is the notion that immigrant Jews fleeing the pogroms of eastern Europe and Ukraine transposed that dark vision onto the American frontier, filming stories of towns in the American Wild West beset by similar lawless gangs of thieves and rogues on horseback.

Both director Simcha Jacobovici and author Neal Gabler, who wrote the book on which the documentary is based, are slated to attend the premiere at the Princess of Wales Theatre, Nov. 24. Reception 6 p.m., film premiere 7 p.m., patron gala party 9 p.m. Tickets $36, patrons $180. 416-872-1212.

* * *

The Lifelong Learning Institute of the Bernard Betel Centre presents a literary luncheon with psychologist-lecturer Anne Balaban who will review the book The Heart Of A Woman, by Maya Angelou. Betel Centre auditorium,Nov. 3, noon, members $8, non-members $10. Includes full-course kosher lunch. Book review only, $5. 1003 Steeles Ave. W., one block west of Bathurst. Bookie Kwart, 416-225- 2112.

* * *

Rare Films Shown: Film lovers, take note, Cinematheque Ontario is screening the films of F.W. Murnau, Oct. 31 to Nov. 17 at the Art Gallery of Ontario's Jackman Hall. Also, a retrospective of the works of Douglas Sirk and Rainer Werner Fassbinder continues to Nov. 11. Tickets for all screenings, $8 for non-members. 416-968-FILM.

* * *

Miscellaneous Notes: Congratulations to Honest Ed Mirvish, who recently launched a new book, There's No Business Like Show Business (But I Wouldn't Ditch My Day Job)...

The Yorkminstrels Show Choir is seeking new voices for its dynamic choir. Call Bonnie Gold, 416-733-8562, or Michael Bines, 905-764-6648...

Speaking of the Yorkminstrels, the drama troupe is presenting the classic Broadway musical Guys & Dolls as part of its 40th anniversary season. Leah Posluns Theatre, Nov. 29 to Dec. 7. 416-622-1971...

Amicus Productions (416-812-6756) presents The Miracle Worker by William Gibson, Oct. 29 to Nov. 8 at the Fairview Library Theatre...

Actor-singer-songwriter Marilyn Lightstone performs at the Bloor JCC, Oct. 30, 8 p.m. Tickets, $15 at the door. All proceeds to benefit the Bloor JCC...

Hear pianist Mark Pinkus playing original solo piano compositions, Trinity-St. Pauls Church, Nov. 8, 8p.m. Tickets $12 advance, $15 door. Sound City, 416-690-8194 or Health Valley, 416-963-9695...

TimeChase, a new quiz show on History Television hosted by Sheldon Turcott, is seeking people with a good knowledge of historical events to be contestants.

Fabulous HARVEY SEIGEL BAND
Super Music — Very Affordable
(416) 782-9202

HARVEY SEIGEL'S (other band)
SPEAK-EASY JAZZ BAND
★ Big Band ★ Swing ★ Klezmer
"Band Size to Suit Your Budget"
(416) 256-4123

◆ Preparé au levain ◆ Chauffé au bois ◆ Formé à la main ILYA DU PAIN
SOURDOUGH BREAD AU LEVAIN
Yes, there's bread here – lots of it, in many shapes, sizes and varieties!
All our breads are handcrafted by artisan bakers with flour made from organic whole grains and pure spring water.
Challah – 800 g
Unbleached organic wheat flour, wheat germ, spring water, fresh eggs, extra virgin olive oil, honey, apple sauce, unrefined sea salt.
Country White – 1 kg
Unbleached organic wheat flour, wheat germ, spring water, unrefined sea salt.
To order our fresh-to-your-table breads, call for a complete brochure.
WILNO ON, K0J 2N0
613-756-9676
613-756-2610 FAX
1-800-216-5129
◆ Naturally Leavened ◆ Hand Shaped ◆ Wood Fired

MANOR TRAVEL
— WE'VE MOVED!! —
Visit us at our new location
1450 CLARK AVE. W., #7
(Dufferin & Clark - Loeb's Plaza, Thornhill)
1997 GROUPS with STANLEY
•Dream Cruise. Dec. 21 From$1119 Cdn. Kids Cruise FREE
•Ft. Lauderdale. From $389 incl. tax (Long Stays)
•New Year's Eve Getaway Dec. 31-Jan. 2
•Singles Club Med Jan. '98
•Cruise Jan. 17 1 week from Ft. Lauderdale
Tel. (905) 669-1347
1-800-763-4769

Carrocel Restorations
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery — Sales and Restorations
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES • BEDROOM SUITES
• DINING SUITES • REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
WE CUSTOM BUILD
3115 - 14TH AVENUE, UNIT 4 • (905) 475-6942

ETOBICOKE MUSICAL PRODUCTIONS
proudly presents
Fiddler on the Roof
Music by Jerry Bock
Lyrics by Sheldon Harnick
Book by Joseph Stein
PERFORMANCE DATES:
November 28, 29, 30, December 5, 6, 7, 12, 13, 1997
Evenings: 8:00 p.m., Sunday Matinees: 2:00 p.m.
ALL SEATS RESERVED
All Tickets $18.00
Groups of 10 or more $16.00
416-248-0410
VISA MasterCard
NEW LOCATION
Burnhamthorpe Auditorium
Hwy 427 and Burnhamthorpe

4 CONCERTS FOR AS LITTLE AS $66!
AmericanAirlines® ConcertSeason
KlezmerMANIA
FORD CENTRE FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS
5040 Yonge Street
Ford
Finjan
Thurs., December 11/97 8:00 pm
A sextet with spirit in their soul and fire in their fingers.
Brave Old World
Wed., January 28/98 8:00 pm
The first "supergroup" of the Klezmer revival.
The Klezmatics
Thurs., March 12/98 8:00 pm
This ensemble of six collaborated with Itzhak Perlman on his klezmer CDs.
The Klezmer Conservatory Band
Wed., April 29/98 8:00 pm
This 12-piece band scintillates with songs ranging from the Yiddish swing era to Old World klezmer tunes.
Media Sponsors: Bravo! CLASSICAL 96
Ford Centre for the Performing Arts is located in the City of North York within Metropolitan Toronto and operated by Livent Inc.
Program and artists subject to change.
THE FIFTH SEASON
George Weston Recital Hall
(416) 324-9333 www.livent.com
Preferred Card: ROYAL BANK FINANCIAL GROUP Canadian Plus

TRAVEL TALK

BY BILL GLADSTONE

KIDDUSH, SAN FRANCISCO STYLE

Kiddush in San Francisco: L'Chaim! A Kiddush Cup Invitational opened this month at the Jewish Museum of San Francisco. The exhibit features more than 160 original kiddush cups (ceremonial wine goblets) handcrafted by various contemporary American and Israeli artists. 121 Steuart St., San Francisco. Until Feb. 8. 415-543-8880 or 415-543-2090.

Thistle Hotel Promotion: Thistle Hotels, one of Britain's leading hotel chains, has announced a special promotion for Canadians this winter. At all Thistle properties in England, Scotland and Wales, the chain is offering to accept Canadian dollars as equivalent to British pounds.

The special "pound for Canadian dollar" promotion runs from Dec. 14 through March 1, 1998, and gives Canadian visitors savings of more than $100 per night per room, based on a two-night minimum stay. Bookings must be prepaid in Canadian dollars.

Thistle operates more than 90 hotels in Great Britain, including 24 properties in London. Reservations, 1-888-844-4788.

* * *

ElderTreks: This Toronto company provides adventure tours for travellers over the age of 50. It specializes in exotic destinations and off-the-beaten-path adventures. All trips involve some outdoor activity and cross-cultural contact.

Destinations include Thailand, Laos, Vietnam, Borneo, Indonesia, Tibet, China, Bhutan and Darjeeling and Sikkim, Mongolia, Nepal, India, The Silk Road, Turkey, Morocco, Queen Charlotte Islands, Alaska and the Yukon, Costa Rica, Belize, Ecuador and the Galapagos Islands, Peru and Bolivia, and New Zealand. ElderTreks, 597 Markham St., Toronto M5G 2L7. 1-800-741-7956.

* * *

Israel Calendar: Israel's food exporters and manufacturers sell nearly $1 billion worth of exports annually. They display their products at the huge Tel Aviv Fair Grounds, Feb. 8 to 12, 1998.

More than 500 exhibitors from 60 countries are expected to attend Israel '98, the world stamp exhibition in Tel Aviv, May 13 to 21, 1998.

Both events are being held to commemorate Israel's 50th anniversary.

* * *

Viennese Display: Chicago's Spertus Institute of Jewish Studies operates a museum that holds the most comprehensive Judaic collection in the American midwest, with more than 10,000 objects, artifacts and works of art.

Vienna Today, a new exhibition running to Feb. 28, captures contemporary Jewish life in Vienna as viewed through the lens of photographer Harry Weber. The show is on loan from the Jewish Museum of Vienna. At 618 South Michigan Ave. Chicago. Adults, $5. 312-322-1747.

* * *

History of Bedlam: The 750-year history of Bethlem Royal Hospital, the world's oldest hospital for people with mental disorders, is the subject of an exhibition at the Museum of London (England) until March 15. Bedlam: Custody, Care and Cure, 1247-1997 tells the remarkable story of the hospital. The word "bedlam," a place of madness and disorder, is a derivation of Bethlem. 0171-600-3699.

* * *

Israel Hotel Deal: Following its popular We Love Kids program, the Renaissance Jerusalem Hotel announces the Real Deal for the hotel's royal wing. From Nov. 1 to Dec. 24, and again from Feb. 1 to March 31, guests staying a minimum of three nights receive on arrival an $18 credit voucher for each adult guest night at the hotel.

The credit can be applied towards meals in the dining room or at the A La Carte restaurant. Maximum two vouchers per room per night.

The Renaissance, the largest hotel in Israel, recently opened a business centre that provides traditional services, such as faxing, copying, translations, typing and computer rentals. Tel: 02-6528111. Fax: 02-6511824.

* * *

Attention Snowbirds: The Canadian Snowbird Guide, by Douglas Gray, is meant for Canadians who choose to spend part or all of the winter in a warm climate. The book purports to offer "everything you need to know about living part time in the United States and Mexico."

The book discusses many pertinent issues, such as currency fluctuations, investments, taxes, immigration, customs, housing, travel, safety, and medical and other types of insurance. Published by McGraw-Hill Ryerson, the large 304-page softcover is available in bookstores for $21.99.

SEND YOUR CAR
FLORIDA, CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA
& ALL POINTS ACROSS CANADA AND RETURN
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY
SERVICE (NATIONWIDE) INC.
5803 Yonge Street, Suite 101 (In the Newtonbrook Plaza)
(N. of Finch, at Cummer) Willowdale, Ont. M2M 3V5
For Quotations ..... (416) 225-7754
If Long Distance 1-800-561-2658
E-Mail.....www.torontodriveaway.com
Serving the Public & Especially the Jewish Community since 1959

Join Rabbi & Mrs. Joseph Kelman on a
SOLIDARITY DELUXE TOUR
APRIL 26 – MAY 10/98
to celebrate
Israel's 50th Anniversary in conjunction with Canadian Friends of
Tel Aviv University & Israel Bonds
Information meeting Wed. Nov. 5, 7:30 p.m. at BETH EMETH BAIS YEHUDA SYNAGOGUE, 100 Elder St.
for further information contact:
SHALOM-K TOURS (416) 229-2517

DAN TOURS PRESENT EL AL
ISRAEL WINTER BARGAINS
Netanya
"Miami on the Mediterranean"
2 WEEKS from $1699 PP CDN.
•13 NIGHTS •RETURN AIR
•HOTEL ("Residence", "Galil" or "Blueweiss")
•TAXES •SERVICE CHARGES
•BREAKFAST/DINNER DAILY
Departures from Nov. 1/97 to March 25/98
Addt'l nights, single supplement rates on request
Hilton Hotels
WARM UP TO WINTER - SPECIAL 1 WK. DELUXE PKGS.
JANUARY 1 - MARCH 15, 1998
5 NIGHTS JERUSALEM + 1 NIGHT TEL AVIV or BEERSHEVA
From $1599 PP CDN.
6 NIGHTS TEL AVIV + 1 NIGHT JERUSALEM, TEL AVIV or BEERSHEVA
From $1719 PP CDN.
Incl. return air, hotel (room only), service charges, taxes
CALL YOUR TRAVEL AGENT AND ASK FOR
"DAN TOURS ISRAEL WINTER BARGAINS"

Guaranteed comfort, year after year after year after year after year after year
Free 10-year parts and labour warranty.
Purchase a qualifying Trane XV 90, XE 90 or XL80 gas furnace before October 31 and receive a ten-year parts-and-labour warranty at no extra charge. Your participating Trane dealer can tell you which units qualify. Just imagine, an efficient, reliable Trane furnace that won't cost you a dime in service for ten years. What more could you ask for?
TRANE It's Hard To Stop A Trane.
Offer not available to dealers and contractors
We Provide 24 Hr. Service on Most Makes of Residential & Commercial Heating & Cooling Systems
Maintenance Contracts Available
Aplus AIR SYSTEMS INC.
(416) 638-2020
Showroom at 638 Wilson Avenue, North York

FABULOUS FALL FASHIONS
brooker's
FALL/WINTER 1997
LADIES' DESIGNER FASHIONS
WAREHOUSE SALE
50% OFF EVERYTHING
LOADS OF NEW DESIGNER LABELS
LOADS OF NEW DESIGNER LABELS
3 DAYS ONLY
THURSDAY, OCT. 30 10 a.m. - 8 p.m.
FRIDAY, OCT. 31 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.
SATURDAY, NOV. 1 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
CALL OUR FASHION HOTLINE FOR MORE INFORMATION!
brooker's
33 GLEN CAMERON RD.
UNIT #4 - THORNHILL
(905) 889-1356
2nd light North of Steeles off Yonge St.
HUSH PUPPIES®
DISCONTINUED STYLES & COLOURS
For Men & Women

MOVING?
Attach label here for change or inquiry.
If you are receiving duplicate copies of The CJN, please send both labels to us.
Please notify us 3 weeks in advance.
The Canadian Jewish news
1500 Don Mills Road
Suite 205
North York, Ontario
M3B 3K4

STRETCH
YOUR BODY AND YOUR BUDGET
From $62 Dly. Per Person Double occ. To Dec. 19
$68 U.S. Dec. 20 to Jan. 20
Includes: 3 meals, massage, exercise, diet, friendly staff
Lido Spa HOTEL
TOLL FREE: 800-327-8363

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
ZOGLO'S VEGETARIAN
Beef or Chicken Patties 300 g $2.99
Spinach, Corn, Potato, Broccoli, Mixed Vegetables, Cauliflower Nuggets $1.99
Cauliflower or Corn Schnitzel 332 g $2.99
Until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK – 161 DENISON ST. W. – (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Health

Seafood Warehouse
CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE
Free Buy One 56g Pkg Pink Euro-cut SMOKED BAGELOX
Get One FREE save 2.99
GOLDEN HARBOR PRE-SLICED RED PACIFIC SMOKED SALMON $9.99/lb
with ad
Valid until October 31/97 with ad
MARKHAM-NORTH YORK – 161 DENISON ST. W. – (905) 470-1700
OPEN 7 DAYS

Jewish scientist wins Nobel Prize in medicine

By DOUG SETO
Jewish Bulletin of Northern California

SAN FRANCISCO — This year's winner of the Nobel Prize in medicine has a strong connection to Israel.

Dr. Stanley Prusiner has long conducted collaborative research with scientists at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem; in 1995, he received an honorary degree from that institution; and last year he won Israel's prestigious Wolf Prize in medicine.

Prusiner, 55, was awarded the Nobel Prize for his 1982 hypothesis that several rare brain diseases in humans and animals were caused by a microscopic life form.

A professor of neurology, biochemistry and biophysics at the University of California at San Francisco, Prusiner linked mad cow disease to a human brain disorder.

Although Prusiner is now regarded as an international authority in the study of dementia-related illnesses, the scientific community scoffed in disbelief after he announced in 1982 that several rare brain diseases in humans and animals were caused by prions, a microscopic life form that has no traces of RNA or DNA.

Prions, which are proteinaceous infectious particles, have been linked to scrapie in sheep, as well as to human disorders, including Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease. Prions may also be linked to Alzheimer disease.

Prusiner discovered that the proteins can cause infectious diseases, such as bacteria or viruses, as well as hereditary illnesses.

Asked if he thought it was fortuitous to receive the Nobel Prize during the High Holy Days, Prusiner, an active member of a San Francisco synagogue, exploded with laughter.

"That's like asking me if I believe in that code book. You know, that one on hidden codes in the Torah. I'm a scientist," he said.

Caring for aging parents

TORONTO — Caring for aging parents, will be the focus of the Baycrest Public Health Forum on Nov. 13 at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Judith Globerman will address the topic: The Encumbered Child: "Why is it always me?"

A prominent researcher and lecturer on family care of the elderly and an associate professor of Social Work at the University of Toronto, Globerman will help people understand how families make decisions about who does what and when.

"Family patterns that develop as we grow up are a good indicator of how we cope," Globerman explains.

Following her presentation, Globerman will be joined by two experienced Baycrest social workers to answer questions.

The lecture will take place in the Abe Posluns Auditorium, second floor, Jewish Home for the Aged, 3560 Bathurst St. Admission is free.

For information call 785-2500, ext. 2049.

DR. DAVID J. FELDMAN
CHIROPRACTOR & ACUPUNCTURIST
MedCare - 800 Steeles Ave. W.
(N.W. corner of Bathurst & Steeles)
LOW BACK PAIN NECK PAIN HEADACHES ARTHRITIS
SCIATICA SPORTS INJURIES TMJ
CUSTOM FOOT ORTHOTICS
We accept: WCB, MVA, VETERAN AFFAIRS CANADA
905-738-6699 – Walk-Ins Welcome – No Referral Neccessary

O MEI
SPECIALIZING IN SEAFOOD, SZECHUAN & PEKING CUISINE
618 SHEPPARD WEST 635-5050
248 STEELES WEST 889-8282
5150 YONGE STREET 222-2300
420 HIGHWAY 7 EAST 881-8188
ANY DISH 1/2 PRICE
with regular-price food purchase of $15 or more (not including beverages, liquor or specials) before taxes. Cannot be combined with other offers. Limit two half price dishes per table. Dining room only.
VALID TO NOVEMBER 30 / 97 AT STEELES AND YONGE LOCATIONS ONLY

DINING PLEASURES

Basil
Restaurant & Grill
15% off with coupon Monday to Thursday – Food Only –
We specialize in lamb, pasta, fish, chicken and beef – all delicately prepared in the Mediterranean style.
Now accepting bookings for your Holiday Parties & Special Occasions
Open for Lunch & Dinner
We know you'll be back!
514 Eglinton Avenue West
All items available for take-out
Reservations: (416) 485-5310

10% OFF WITH COUPON NOT COMBINABLE WITH OTHER OFFERS
AKASAKA JAPANESE STEAK HOUSE
Business Lunch at $5.99
• STEAK
• TERIYAKI
• SUSHI
• TEMPURA
日本料理
280 WEST BEAVER CREEK RD.
UNIT L10 RICHMOND HILL
(HWY #7, WEST OF LESLIE)
Tel: (905) 764-9291
TAKE OUT DELIVERY & CATERING

ELISIA Restaurant
New Location
"The Best Greek Food on the Danforth"
Charcoal broiled red snapper, grilled octopus & calamari, Ontario lamb chops, roast lamb & chicken or beef souvlaki
CHICKEN SOUVLAKI with salad, roast potatoes & rice $7.95 Valid to Nov. 8/97
467 Danforth Ave. (Just West of Logan) (416) 461-3097

Oriental Court
ALL YOU CAN EAT
SERVED DAILY FROM 4–10 PM
OVER 80 DELICIOUS ITEMS
M&G UPON REQUEST
THE ORIENTAL COURT DIFFERENCE. All 80 items are MADE TO ORDER — you can taste the difference!
CHARGES Mon–Fri. Sat, Sun, Hol.
Adult $12.95 $13.95
Child under 4'6" 6.95 7.95
Toddler under 3 years 2.00 2.00
FREE ENTREE
On all cash Take-Out Orders over $30 (before tax). Valid on entrée under $10. Not valid with other offers. Expires Dec. 31/97
8100 YONGE ST. Just S. of Hwy. 7 (905) 731-1666

SERVICE DIRECTORY

350 APPLIANCES

SOBIE'S (416) 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave., Willowdale
SERVICENTRE & APPLIANCE PARTS
Look for our ad under APPLIANCES in the Yellow Pages Directory
HUMIDIFIERS
PARTS • SERVICE • SALES

 KELNER'S APPLIANCE SERVICE
Repairs to washers, dryers, dishwashers and stoves. 2 yrs warr. Same Day Service. FREE est.
Zvi (905) 731-5950

Ahlfeld Appliance Ltd. Very reasonable and reliable service to your dishwasher, fridge, stove, washer, dryer & air conditioning. We pride ourselves on honesty. Free est. (905) 709-3393.

355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/ SALES

Jacob Repairs All TV's, VCRs Computers. 416-661-6798.

405 FURNITURE

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touch-ups. Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 654-0518.

410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS

Acrylic nails, $15., full set & fills, evg. appt's. 416-663-8691.

Pnina, 15 mins. electrol. $13., man.+ ped. $25. 416-667-8012

Professional Hairstylist available at your home for special occasions/private sessions on Sun., Mon. & evgs. Call Loula at (416) 499-6453 for an app't.

370 CATERING

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) (416) 787-0309

Walk 'n Honey THE DAIRY RESTAURANT
*BRIT MILAH *SHIVA MEALS
*BUSINESS MEETINGS
*BAR/BAT MITZVAH PARTIES
*SHEVA BROCHOS
*FULL COURSE MEALS
SHORT NOTICE & SAME DAY SERVICE • DELIVERY AVAILABLE
789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.

חתונה. ברי\בת מצוה
Weddings • Bar Mitzvahs
Tri ✡ Elm Catering
3 Banquet Halls • Joe Elmaleh
Glatt Kosher 631-7322 COR 200
e-mail:trielm@pathcom.com

372 CHUPPAHS

Aviv-Floral Design. Chuppah and aisle runner rentals. We specialize in wedding flowers. Call 416-256-2554

CHAI CHUPPAH Let us create a special, unique chuppah or Bar/Bat Mitzvah signing board. Rental also available. 905-882-0059.

375 CLEANING

Adanac Maintenance cleans stores, offices, factories, bldgs. Fully insured. 694-2065.

395 ELECTRICAL

Air Conditioning, Electrical Contracting, licensed, repair services, reasonable, guaranteed. 905-882-5474.

Electrician seeks small jobs only, Lic #E-329.Call 636-5732.

405 FURNITURE

Furniture restoration and refinishing. Touch-ups & small jobs done on your premises. Free estimates. 416-654-2430.

411 HEALTH THERAPIES

Holistic health & nutritional care, counselling for adults & children, detailed evaluation of health. Recommendations, $22/ hour. 416-497-4782.

ATHLETIC, MASSAGE THERAPIST, Jonathan Maister, RMT, CATC. Exper. with Spec. needs & Seniors. 905-709-9643.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS

BATHTUB REGLAZING Sinks, tiles from $199. & up. FREE Estimate. 416-753-3097.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission (416) 392-3000

City East Hardwood Flooring. Sand, stain, finish. 839-0733.

HANDYMAN 638-5488 Improvement/Repairs, Ephram.

Home Services. Painting, plaster, carpentry, plumbing, electric, ceramic, tiling. 736-1179.

420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING

Barbara Mortfield INVITATIONS
(905) 738-1232

434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES

Prof. limo. driver offers his car & services for people who need safety rides to anywhere. Call Mr. Kogan, 416-587-5139.

438 LOCKSMITH

LOCKS - DEADBOLTS, 1 for $85, 2 for $160 Installed. Fast service, Moshe, 416-445-6438.

445 MOVING

AROMA Moving,any size truck + 2 men,$35/hr. & up. 450-0381

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Homes, offices, apts. Family busnss. Reasonable. 274-6144.

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 738-4030, 663-0630.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPERING

Bargain Painter, apts, houses, offices. Mikhilov, 633-5973.

Benjamin & Moore painting & gen. improv. needs. Prof. workmanship. Comm./Res. 905-761-1542, pgr. 416-379-3082, Ben.

David Painter. Prof. Workmanship. Jewish, Hebrew, Hungarian, Romanian. 905-660-7794.

E. Kats Painting, Free est. 416-219-4182, 905-709-4017.

Exp. painter/ plasterer/ vinyl tile flooring. Best prices. Free est. Guaranteed. Bill, 638-9249.

Harry's Painting, for painting & wallpapering needs. 755-2021.

Prof. painting/paperhanging, Jacob 667-9869, no shabbos calls.

452 PARTY SERVICES

PerLit
"your key to a successful party"
• Invitations • Balloons
• Kippot • Name boards
• Styrofoam letters & shapes
• Custom Centrepieces
We do it all at very competitive prices
Call: Mira or Becky at (416) 665-4838

PHYLLIS' PARTEES. Looking for a creatively different birthday or holiday party for your child? Stenciled decorated t-shirt making & other crafts. Make your own favour. Call 416-654-3518.

455 PHOTOGRAPHY/ VIDEO

 STARDOM * .... we can't promise you; just outstanding Videos. Our Bar/Bat Mitzvah coverage from $495 and our "unique" PHOTO PUZZLE as an alternative to the candlelighting ceremony. SPOTLIGHT VIDEO 416-229-6000

455 PHOTOGRAPHY/ VIDEO

VIDEOCCASIONS proudly presents for BAR-BAT MITZVAHS, PHOTO-VIDEO Service, under $1,000. Call Andy (905) 737-6800.

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Dan Schneider, artist avail. for commissions, winter '97/98. Call 905-884-3771.

490 TABLE COVERINGS

Made To Measure TABLE PADS
Dover Pad. Finest quality since 1950. Heat resistant to 600°F. Many colours. Home service, no obligation.
1-800-354-4445

Artege Table Pads Custom-made, top quality, heat resistant. Wide selection, courteous home service. 745-2711.

500 TUTORING/ LESSONS

A Plus Tutoring/Education Services, prof, reliable, accountable in-home service, all subjects, qualif. exper teachers.Call 410-7005, 1st hr. FREE

Accounting, ESL, Math, Science, Grades 1-12. Qualif. teacher, friendly & patient, 25 yrs. exper. Evgs. & wknds. avail. Convenient, near Finch subway. Marvin, 224-9507.

Science, math, chemistry, by exper. teacher. Monica Segal, 416-665-8373.

510 UPHOLSTERY

Arctic Custom Upholstery Free est. Let us beautify your yesterdays furniture. Free armcovers, free toss pillows with every 2-piece suite. 665-3445.

FORGOT ABOUT YOUR HIDDEN TREASURES? WANT TO SELL THEM?
CALL LISA AT (416) 391-1836
FOR ADVERTISING RATES
CJN Classifieds Really Work!

CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY

Call (416) 391-1836
for information on classified rates

INDEX

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
80 SHORT TERM RENTAL
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED
85 APARTMENT WANTED
90 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE
95 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR RENT
100 DUPLEX/TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE/RENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
120 COTTAGE WANTED
122 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
123 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
143 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. AVAIL.
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. WANTED
147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
155 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTIES
195 PROPERTIES WANTED
196 VACATION PROPERTIES-SWAP/EXCH.
198 SPACE FOR LEASE
200 OFFICE SPACE
201 OFFICE SPACE WANTED
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
205 INDUSTRIAL/COMMERCIAL SPACE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE/LEASE
215 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
217 RETAIL OPPORTUNITIES
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 FINANCIAL OPPORTUNITIES
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
246 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE
248 CAMPS
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
264 SOCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
279 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
310 ARTICLES/SWAP/EXCHANGE
312 BRIDAL
313 BOATS
315 CARS FOR SALE
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE/YARD SALE
330 OBITUARIES
331 IN MEMORIAM
332 MONUMENTS
335 UNVEILINGS
338 SHIVA CATERING

SERVICE DIRECTORY

345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO-VISUAL REPAIRS/SALE
357 AUTOMOTIVE
360 CABINETS
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING
377 CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
385 COMPUTER
386 DANCING
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
395 ELECTRICAL
396 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
405 FURNITURE
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH, BEAUTY & FITNESS
411 HEALTH THERAPIES
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LANDSCAPING
432 LAWN CARE
433 LEASING
434 LIMOUSINE SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
451 PROMOTIONS
452 PARTY SERVICES
455 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
479 SENIORS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIGNS
483 SKIING
485 SNOW REMOVAL
490 TABLE COVERING
493 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING/LESSONS
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
517 WATER TREATMENTS
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
548 WORD PROCESSING
550 WORKSHOPS

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED 787-1712

AVENUE ROAD / OLD ORCHARD

Spacious 4 bdrm. + fam. room, gorgeous deep lot on quiet cul-de-sac, hot location. ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

SOLD

YORK DOWNS / SANDRINGHAM – QUIET CUL-DE-SAC

Prestigious location, luxurious 5 bdrm. executive home, lots of character, 4,000 sq. ft. (approx.), main floor huge library, fam. room, modern family-size kitchen. A MUST SEE at only $629,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / GLENCAIRN — NEW LISTING

Unique opportunity! Back-split with cathedral ceilings, huge family room, walk-out to patio, close to all amenities, only $269,000. Call Richard Cash (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST SHEPPARD — NEW LISTING!

Picturesque ravine setting — country in the city! 104 ft. frontage x 133 ft. deep. Spacious side-split. Live in now, build later — only $389,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

BATHURST / SHEPPARD — PRIDE OF OWNERSHIP!

3+1 bdrm. bung., huge 63' lot, renovated eat-in kitchen, sep. entry to in-law suite, only $229,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

BATHURST / HILLHURST — PRESTIGIOUS LOCATION

Spacious 5 bdrm. side-split, 59 x 128 ft. lot , priced to sell at only $439,000. ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

• • •

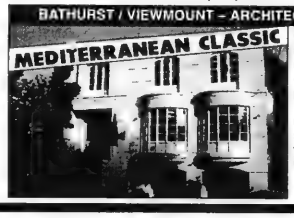
CLANTON PARK — REDUCED

Charming 3 bdrm. on 50 x 150 ft. lot, close to shuls, park, highly desirable location, family values. Great buy at only $289,000! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

GLEN PARK — SPACIOUS EXECUTIVE HOME

4 + 2 bedrooms, modern family-style kitchen, family room, separate entry to in-law suite, double garage (above grade), asking $519,000. Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / VIEWMOUNT – ARCHITECTURAL GEM!



Custom built, stunning quality craftsmanship + finishes. 4200 sq. ft. (approx.) + fin. bsmt. 9 1/2 ft. ceilings on main floor, Neff designer kitchen. Live your dreams NOW! Call David Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

Forest Hill

Real Estate Inc. Realtor

(416) 488-2875 (416) 226-1987

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

JUST LISTED! AVENUE/LAWRENCE – $779K
Stone masterpiece to be built. Faithe Eversky 488-2875

NEW! 504 DOUGLAS AVE. – $699K
Add your own final touch now! H. Rensler* 488-2875

BATHURST/LAWRENCE
Lrg. kit., 4 bdrm., dbl. gar. New home, fin. to order. P. Mack* 226-1987

HEART OF LOWER VILLAGE - $599K
Lovely home on 50'x277' ft. lot. Faithe Eversky 488-2875

18 MARKDALE AVE. – $575K
"Rare" 4x2 br., schools, shuls, $ income!! H. Rensler* 488-2875

BATHURST/EGLINTON - $579,000
Superb custom home! 4 bdrms., 4 baths. F. Eversky 488-2875

PRIME CEDARVALE LOCATION BUNGALOW
2+1 bdrm., 2 baths, shows 10+. Susan Smith* 488-2875

JUST LISTED! BATHURST/EGLINTON
Charming 2 bdrm. bungalow. Faithe Eversky 488-2875

LUXURY 2 BDRM. SUITE DOWNTOWN
2 bdrm., 3 bath apt., pkg. close to subway. N. McPhail* 226-1987

BAYVIEW PROPERTIES

7 VALLEY RIDGE – $1,495,000
Large 10+, 100'x250' Location-Location. Mark Cowan* 226-1987

LEASE – BAYVIEW/YORK MILLS – $1950/MO.
Renovated 3 bdrm townhouse. Faithe Eversky 488-2875

Associate Broker *Sales Representative

LEGAL DUPLEX

BATHURST & LAWRENCE – 1 owner, nice lot, double garage, great investment for 1 or 2 families. Home is in good condition.
MURRAY LAWSON
Sutton Group Future Real Estate Ltd.
(416) 229-4835

CLANTON PARK BEAUTY
Spacious + very well-maintained 4 bedroom backsplit on generous 51' x 150' lot, central air, hardwood floors, quiet street.
Call Jacob Florans, Sutton Group Admiral Realty, 739-7200

1 HOOK WILL DO!
Sunswept North York Condo / 3 bdrm., parquet floors, $179,000
YONGE/ELGIN MILLS
Interlock drive, open staircase to basement, $318,000. Insult us with offers!
Call David Burstyn, Sutton Group Admiral Realty, 739-7200

HARVEY KALLES

REAL ESTATE LIMITED BROKERAGE

Celebrating our 40th Year!

YONGE-FINCH - NEW - ONLY $227,700
The townhouse the builder doesn't want you to see! 2 bdrm., 3 bath, 2 level, 1330 sq. ft., 2 balconies. Will sell well below his price, appls+ Call Maxine Povering*

SPRING FARM – 1ST AD! $278K
Stunning 3 bdrm., "Adelaide" Fab. kit., fam. rm., F/P. Prof. decorated/landscaped. $$upgrades!!! Ellie Parker

BATHURST-MILNER CT. – $378,800
1st ad! Stunning Sherwood Green 4 bdrm. & comp. fin. bsmt. w/sauna, hot tub & prof. office, 2 FPs, skylights, dark hrdwd flrs. +++ Maxine Povering*.

LOWER VILLAGE! QUIET STREET!
